1164
S. C.

(18,924.)

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCTOBER TERM, 1903.

No. 277.

THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, JAMES J. HILL, WILLIAM P. CLOUGH, D. WILLIS JAMES, JOHN S. KENNEDY, J. PIERPONT MORGAN, ROBERT BACON, GEORGE F. BAKER, AND DANIEL S. LAMONT, APPELLANTS,

vs.

THE UNITED STATES.

APPEAL FROM THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE DISTRICT OF MINNESOTA.

INDEX.

	Page.
Caption	a
Appearance of M. D. Purdy et al. for complainant	*a*1
Order for appearance for complainant	*a*1
Bill in equity	*a*2
Certificate of incorporation of Northern Securities Co.	*a*17
Præcipe for chancery subpœna	*a*22
Order of chancery subpœna	*a*23
Chancery subpœna	*a*23

JUDD & DETWEILER, PRINTERS, WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 4, 1903.

	Page.
Præcipe for appearance of Northern Securities Company et al	a24
Order for appearance of Northern Securities Company et al	a25
Appearance for Great Northern Railway Company	a25
Order for appearance of Great Northern Railway Company	a26
Appearance of Northern Pacific Railway Company	a26
Order for appearance of Northern Pacific Railway Company	a27
Appearance of J. P. Morgan et al	a27
Order for appearance of J. P. Morgan et al	a28
Appearance of Daniel S. Lamont	a28
Order for appearance of Daniel S. Lamont	a29
Answer of Northern Securities Company	a30
J. J. Hill et al	a50
Great Northern Railway Company	a69
Northern Pacific Railway Company	a79
J. P. Morgan et al	a85
Daniel S. Lamont	a95
Replication to answer of Northern Securities Company	a105
J. J. Hill et al	a106
Great Northern Railway Company	a107
Northern Pacific Railway Company	a108
J. Pierpont Morgan et al	a109
Daniel S. Lamont	a110
Clerk's certificate	a111
Evidence for the complainant	1
Order appointing special examiner	1
Oath of special examiner	2
Stipulation to take testimony	3
Stipulation appointing stenographer	5
Oath of stenographer	6
Proceedings before examiner, New York city, September 15, 1902	7
September 16, 1902	8
September 25, 1902	10
Evidence from case of Power vs. Northern Pacific R'y Co.	12
Testimony of James J. Hill	12
Direct examination	12
No cross-examination.
Testimony of C. S. Mellen	150
Direct examination	150
Cross-examination	175
Redirect examination	176
Recross-examination	179
Testimony of John S. Kennedy	180
Direct examination	180
Recalled by defendant	212
Redirect examination	218
Testimony of George W. Perkins	224
Direct examination	224
Cross-examination	239

Page.
Testimony of W. P. Clough 242
Direct examination 242
Testimony of Jacob H. Schiff 254
Direct examination 254
Cross-examination 275
Redirect examination 275
Testimony of Charles Steele 276
Direct examination 276
Cross-examination 299
Redirect examination 305
Recross-examination 309
Re-redirect examination 311
Testimony of J. Pierpont Morgan 312
Direct examination 312
Cross-examination 359
Redirect examination 363
Recross-examination 365
Re-redirect examination 366
Re-recross-examination 366
List of members composing firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. 368
Testimony of R. H. Relf 369
Defendant's Exhibit 4 (Power case)—Proceedings of Northern Pacific Railway Company stockholders' meeting, July 1, 1896. 370
Defendant's Exhibit 5 (Power case)—Minutes of meeting of board of directors of Northern Pacific Railway Company, July 8, 1896 380
Defendant's Exhibit 3 (Power case)—Form of certificate of common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company 384
Defendant's Exhibit 2 (Power case)—Form of certificate of Northern Pacific Railway Company preferred stock 386
Defendant's Exhibit 6 (Power case)—Resolution of board of directors of Northern Pacific Railway Company, adopted November 13, 1901 389
Defendant's Exhibit 7 (Power case)—Notice of retirement of Northern Pacific Railway Company preferred stock 393
Defendant's Exhibit 8 (Power case)—Proceedings of meeting of board of directors of Northern Pacific Railway Company, December 11, 1901 394
Defendant's Exhibit 9 (Power case)—Notice that Northern Pacific Railway Company preferred stock had been retired 395
Defendant's Exhibit 10 (Power case)—Notice to holders of 4 per cent. convertible certificates 396
Defendant's Exhibit 11 (Power case)—Agreement of Northern Pacific Railway Company with Standard Trust Company, November 15, 1901 398
Defendant's Exhibit 12 (Power case)—Agreement, November 18, 1901, of Standard Trust Company with subscribers 403
Defendant's Exhibit 13 (Power case)—Charter of Northern Pacific Railway Company 408

Page.

Complainant's Exhibit A—Charter of Great Northern Railway Company (originally Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railway Company) 433
B—Twelfth annual report of Great Northern Railway Company for year ending June 30, 1901 465
C—Trust indenture securing Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy collateral 4 per cent. joint bonds 505
D—Lease from Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company to Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company 547
E—Agreement, December 1, 1896, of Northern Pacific Railway Company, J. P. Morgan & Co., reorganization managers, with the voting trustees 565
F—Dissolution of voting trust, Northern Pacific Railway Company 574
G—Minutes of meeting of board of directors of Northern Pacific Railway Company, November 13, 1901 586
H—Circular of Northern Securities Company, November 22, 1901 596
Testimony of E. H. Harriman before Interstate Commerce Commission. 598
Testimony of W. P. Clough (given in New York September 25, 1902)... 653
Adjournment to St. Paul, October 20, 1902 662
Complainant's Exhibit I (marked Exhibit 13)—Map prepared by Interstate Commerce Commission 662
Evidence for defendants 663
Testimony of James J. Hill (at St. Paul) 663
Direct examination by Mr. Young 663
Cross-examination by Mr. Richards 704
Cross-examination by Mr. Day 716
Redirect examination by Mr. Young 742
Testimony of Frederick Weyerhaeuser (at St. Paul) 744
Direct examination by Mr. Young 744
Testimony of George B. Harris (at St. Paul) 748
Direct examination by Mr. Grover 748
Cross-examination by Mr. Day 759
Redirect examination by Mr. Young 776
Recross-examination by Mr. Day 778
Testimony of W. P. Clough, recalled for defense (at St. Paul) 782
Direct examination by Mr. Grover 782
Cross-examination by Mr. Beck 804
Mr. Richards 845
Mr. Day 846
Mr. Richards 854

Page.

Cross-examination by Mr. Day 854
Mr. Richards 855
Mr. Day 855
Redirect examination by Mr. Grover 858
Recross-examination by Mr. Day 859
Testimony of Charles S. Mellen, recalled for defense (at St. Paul) 860
Direct examination by Mr. Bunn 860
Cross-examination by Mr. Day 863
Testimony of E. N. Saunders (at St. Paul) 866
Direct examination by Mr. Young 866
No cross-examination, but objection entered 872
Proceedings, New York city, November 12 873
Testimony of John P. Meany 876
Direct examination by Mr. Young 876
Argument upon admissibility of evidence 877
Cross-examination by Mr. Richards 888
Redirect examination by Mr. Young 890
Arrangement as to excerpts from Poor's Manual and Interstate Commerce reports 893
Testimony of W. P. Clough (recalled by Mr. Richards) 895
Proceedings, New York city, November 25 896
Proceedings, New York city, December 1 899
Testimony of E. H. Harriman from case of Minnesota vs. Northern Securities Co. et al 899
Resolution of board of directors of Nor. Sec. Co. of November 15, 1901 .. 910
Admission as to membership of proxy committee 911
Resolution of board of directors of Nor. Sec. Co. of November 14, 1901 .. 912
Resolution of board of directors of Nor. Sec. Co. of November 13, 1901 .. 913
Testimony of W. P. Clough, copied from record in the case of State of Minnesota vs. Northern Securities Co. et al 914
Defendants rest 917
Complainant rests 917
Defendants' Exhibit 1—Northern Sec. Co. circular of Nov. 22, 1901 ... 918
2—Letter of J. J. Hill of November 30, 1901 920
3—Thirteenth Annual Report G. N. R'y Co 921
4—Map showing lines of railway ..... Opp. p. 964
5—Tariff sheet and page 21 of tariff 965
6—Statement in re Great Northern Railway line .. 969
7—Statement in re Northern Pacific railway 973
8—Statement of mileage and capitalization of Great Northern railway 977
9—(There is none.)
10—Letter from Interstate Commerce Commission. 984
Defendants' Exhibits 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, and 16—Maps, Memorandum in regard to 985
Defendants' Exhibit 17—High and low prices of Great Northern preferred stock 986

Page.

Defendants' Exhibits 18 A, 18 B, 18 C, 18 D, and 18 E—Memorandum in regard to 987
Defendants' Exhibit 19—Laws of Massachusetts, Maine, New Jersey ... 988
Defendants' Exhibits 20, 20 A, 20 B, 20 C, 20 D, 20 E, 20 F, 20 G, 20 H, 20 I, 20 J, 20 K, and 20 L—Memorandum in regard to 989
Defendants' Exhibit 21—Memoranda showing changes in freight tariffs on Great Northern railway 990
22—Memoranda showing changes in freight tariffs on N. P. R'y 995
23—Pages 45, 46, 47, 48, and 56 of Fifth Annual Report of Northern Pacific Railway Co. 998
24—Pages 37, 38, 39, 40, and 48, Sixth Annual Report of Great Northern Railway Co. 1004
11—Map, N. Y. C. & H. R. R. lines 1010
12—Map, Pennsylvania lines 1011
13—Map, Boston and Maine lines 1012
14—Map, Illinois Central lines. 1012*a*
15—Map, Baltimore and Ohio lines. 1012*b*
16—Map, N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co. lines and steamboat lines 1012*c*
18 A—Extracts from Poor's Manual of Railroads in re Boston and Maine R. R. 1013
18 B—Extracts from same in re N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. 1026
18 C—Extracts from same in re N. Y. C. & H. R. R. 1054
18 D—Extracts from same in re Pennsylvania railroad 1082
18 E—Extracts from same in re Philadelphia and Reading railroad 1113
20 —Explanatory note in re excerpts from Interstate Commerce Commission reports ... 1121
20 A—Excerpts as above for the year 1889 1126
20 B—Excerpts as above for the year 1890 1154
20 C—Excerpts as above for the year 1891 1184
20 D—Excerpts as above for the year 1892 1214
20 E—Excerpts as above for the year 1893 1246
20 F—Excerpts as above for the year 1894 1280
20 G—Excerpts as above for the year 1895 1320
20 H—Excerpts as above for the year 1896 1360
20 I—Excerpts as above for the year 1897 1402
20 J—Excerpts as above for the year 1898 1448
20 K—Excerpts as above for the year 1899 1496
20 L—Excerpts as above for the year 1900 1546
Evidence for complainant 1616
Complainant's Exhibit J—By-laws of Northern Pacific Railway Company 1616

	Page.
Complainant's Exhibit K—By-laws of Great Northern Railway Company	1626
L—By-laws of Northern Securities Company	1632
M—Classified list of directors of Northern Securities Company	1642
N—List of directors of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company	1642
O—List of directors of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company	1643
P—List of directors of Northern Pacific Railway Company	1643
Q—Plan of reorganization of Northern Pacific Railway Company	1644
Examiner's return, with report	1688
Clerk's certificate	1691
Examiner's certificate in re record as printed	1693
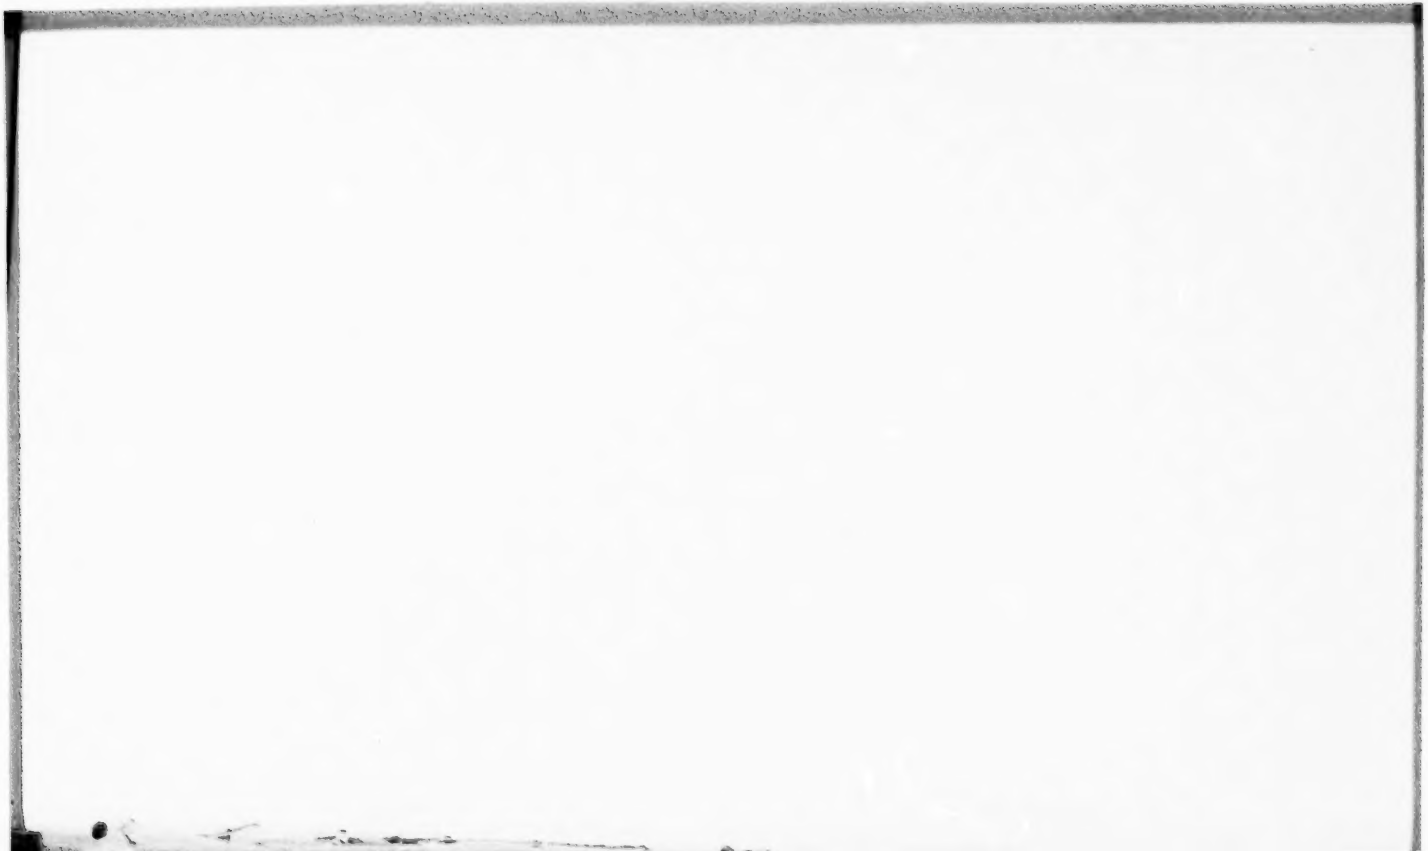
Certificate of Attorney General Knox under act of February 11, 1903	1697
Certificate of clerk as to furnishing judges with copies of certificate of Attorney General	1697
Notice from senior United States circuit judge of time and place of hearing	1698
Record entry of hearing, &c	1699
Record entry of hearing, &c	1700
Record entry of hearing, &c	1701
Record entry of hearing, &c	1702
Opinion	1703
Decree	1714
Petition for suspension of injunction and for allowance of appeal	1716
Record entry of hearing on petition	1718
Order granting petition	1718
Opinion on application for allowance of appeal and supersedeas	1719
Order suspending portion of injunction	1721
Order allowing appeal	1722
Assignment of errors	1722
Cost bond	1730
Supersedeas bond	1732
Citation	1734
Proof of service of citation	1734
Clerk's certificate	1735



UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY ET AL. } C. Equity. No. 789.

Pleas before the honorable the judges of the circuit court of the United States of America for the third division of the district of Minnesota, of the January, A. D. 1903, term of said court, held in the city of Saint Paul, Minnesota, in said district, in the year 1903.

DISTRICT OF MINNESOTA, ss:

Be it remembered that on the 9th day of March A. D. 1903, came the complain-t and filed in the clerk's office its record for hearing in equity, which is in the words and figures following, to-wit:

Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota, Third Division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Complainant,
vs.
THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and Others, Defendants. } No. 789. C. Equity.

Transcript of Record.

Pleadings, etc.

(Endorsed:) Filed March 9th, 1903 Henry D. Lang, clerk.

Circuit court of the United States, district of Minnesota, third division. 1

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company et al., defendants.
} Appearance.

The clerk will enter our appearance for the complainants in the above-entitled cause. 2

MILTON D. PURDY,
Attorney of the United States for the District of Minnesota.
PHILANDER C. KNOX,
Attorney-General of the United States.
JOHN K. RICHARDS,
Solicitor-General of the United States.

Dated March 10, 1902.

(Indorsed:) United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division. The United States of America, complainant, v. Northern Securities Company and others. Appearance of M. D. Purdy, P. C. Knox, and J. K. Richards, for complainant. Ent'd C. R. B. page 84. Filed March 10, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk. 3

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, chancery rule register.

1902. March 10.

4

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY AND others, defendants.
} C. Equity, No. 789.

Pursuant to a præcipe this day filed in this cause, it is ordered that the appearance of Milton D. Purdy, Philander C. Knox, and John K. Richards as solicitors of said complainant be, and the same hereby is, entered.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R. "B," page 84.)

Entered 789, C. E.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
No. 789, C. E. Petition.

(Indorsed:) Filed March 10, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
No. 789, C. E.

PETITION.

To the judges of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota:

Now comes the United States of America, by Milton D. Purdy, the United States attorney for the district of Minnesota, acting under direction of the Attorney-General of the United States, and brings this its proceeding by way of petition against the Northern Securities Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey; the Great Northern Railway Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota; the Northern Pacific Railway Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin; James J. Hill, a citizen of the State of Minnesota and a resident of St. Paul, and William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, citizens of the State of New York and residents of New York City, and, on information and belief, complains and says: 9

I. 10

The defendants, the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company, were, at the times hereinafter mentioned, and now are, common carriers, employed in the transportation of freight and passengers among the several States of the United States and between such States and foreign nations, and, as such carriers so employed, were and are engaged in trade and commerce among the several States and with foreign nations.

II.

On and prior to the 13th day of November, 1901, the defendants, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, and John S. Kennedy, and certain other persons whose names are unknown to the complainant, but whom it prays to have made parties to this action when ascertained (hereinafter referred to as James J. Hill and his associate stockholders), owned or controlled a majority of the capital stock of the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, and the defendants, J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon (members of and representing the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York City), George F. Baker and Daniel S. Lamont, and certain other persons whose names are unknown to the complainant, but whom it prays to have made parties to this action when ascertained (hereinafter referred to as J. Pierpont Morgan and his associate stockholders), owned or controlled a majority of the capital stock of the defendant, the Northern Pacific Railway Company. 11 12

III.

The Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company, at and prior to the doing of the acts hereinafter complained of, owned or controlled and operated two separate, independent, parallel, and competing lines of railway running east and west into or across the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington, and Oregon, the Northern Pacific system, extending from Ashland, in the State of Wisconsin, and from Duluth and St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, to Seattle and Tacoma, in the State of Washington, and Portland, in the State of Oregon, and the Great Northern system, extending from Superior, in the State of Wisconsin, and from Duluth and St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, through Spokane, in the State of Washington, to Everett and Seattle, in the State of Washington, and to Portland, in the State of Oregon, with a branch line to Helena, in the State of Montana, thus furnishing to the public two parallel and competing transcontinental lines connecting the Great Lakes and the Mississippi River with Puget Sound and the Pacific Ocean. At the times mentioned, these two railway systems, which will hereafter be referred to respectively as the Northern Pacific system and the Great Northern system, each of which, with its leased and controlled lines, main and branch, aggregates over 5,500 miles in length, were the only transcontinental lines of railway extending across the northern tier of States west of the Great Lakes, from the Great Lakes and the Mississippi River to the Pacific Ocean, and were then engaged in active competition with one another for freight and passenger traffic among the several States of the United States and between such States and foreign countries, each system connecting at its eastern terminals, not only with lines of railway, but with lake and river steamers to other States and to foreign countries, and at its western terminals with sea-going vessels to other States, Territories, and possessions of the United States and to foreign countries.

IV.

Prior to the year 1893 the Northern Pacific system was owned or controlled and operated by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, a corporation organized and existing under certain acts and resolutions of Congress. During that year the company became insolvent, and the line was placed it the hands of receivers by the proper courts of the United States. While 17 in this condition, awaiting foreclosure and sale, an arrangement was entered into between a majority of the bondholders of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company and the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, for a virtual consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern systems and the placing of the practical control of the Northern Pacific system in the hands of the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company. This arrangement contemplated the sale, under foreclosure, of the property and franchises of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company to a committee of the bondholders, 18 who should organize a new corporation, to be known as the Northern Pacific Railway Company, which was to become the successor of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company; one-half of the capital stock of the new company was to be turned over to the shareholders of the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, which in turn was to guarantee the payment of the bonds of the Northern Pacific Railway Company. An agreement was to be entered into for the exchange of traffic at intersecting and connecting points and for the division of earnings therefrom. The carrying out of this arrangement was de- 19 feated by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Pearsall v. The Great Northern Railway Company (which was decided March 30, 1896, and is reported in the one hundred and sixty-first volume of the reports of said court, beginning on page 646, to which reference is made), in which it was held that the practical effect would be the consolidation of two parallel and competing lines of railway, and the giving to the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, a monopoly of all traffic in the northern half of the State of Minnesota, as well as of all transcontinental traffic north of 20 the line of the Union Pacific, to the detriment of the public and in violation of the laws of the State of Minnesota.

V.

Early in the year 1901 the defendants, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railway companies, acting for the purpose of promoting their joint interests, and in contemplation of the ultimate placing of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems under a common source of control, united in the purchase of the total capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, of Illinois, giving the joint bonds of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railway companies, payable in twenty years from date, with interest at 4 per cent per annum, for such stock, at the rate of $200 in bonds in exchange for each $100 in stock, and in this manner purchased and acquired about $107,000,000 of the $112,000,000 total capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, or about 98 per cent thereof. In this manner, at the time stated, the defendants, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railway companies, secured control of the vast system of railway lines known as the Burlington system, about 8,000 miles in length, extending from St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, where it connects with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railway systems, through the States of Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Illinois, to Chicago, in the State of Illinois, and from these two cities through said States and through the States of Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, South Dakota, Wyoming, and Montana, to Quincy, in the State of Illinois; to Burlington and Des Moines, in the State of Iowa; to St. Louis, Kansas City, and St. Joseph, in the State of Missouri; to Omaha and Lincoln, in the State of Nebraska; to Denver, in the State of Colorado; to Cheyenne, in the State of Wyoming, and to Billings, in the State of Montana, where it again connects with the Northern Pacific Railway system, these States lying west of Chicago and south of the States crossed by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems, and constituting the territory occupied in part by what is known as the Union Pacific Railway system, which has been and is a parallel and competing system within said territory with the said Burlington system.

VI.

The attempt to turn over a controlling interest in the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to the Great Northern Railway Company and thus effect a virtual consolidation of the two railway systems. having thus, in the year 1896, been defeated by a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, the defendants James J. Hill and his associate stockholders of the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, owning or controlling a majority of the stock of that corporation, and the defendants J. Pierpont Morgan and his associate stockholders of the defendant, the Northern Pacific Railway Company, owning or controlling a majority of the stock of that corporation, acting for themselves as such stockholders and on behalf of the said railway companies in which they owned or held a controlling interest, on and prior to the 13th day day of November, 1901, contriving and intending unlawfully to restrain the trade or commerce among the several States and between said States and foreign countries carried on by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern systems, and contriving and intending unlawfully to monopolize or attempt to monopolize such trade or commerce, and contriving and intending unlawfully to restrain and prevent competition among said railway systems in respect to such interstate and foreign trade or commerce, and contriving and intending unlawfully to deprive the public of the facilities and advantages in the carrying on of such interstate and foreign trade or commerce theretofore enjoyed through the independent competition of said railway systems, entered into an unlawful combination or conspiracy to effect a virtual consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern systems, and to place restraint upon all competitive interstate and foreign trade or commerce carried on by them, and to monopolize or attempt to monopolize the same, and to suppress the competition theretofore existing between said railway systems in said interstate and foreign trade or commerce, through the instrumentality and by the means following, to wit: A holding corporation, to be called the Northern Secureties Company, was to be formed under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $400,000,000, to which, in exchange for its own capital stock upon a certain basis and at a certain rate, was to be turned over and transferred the capital stock, or a controlling interest in the capital stock, of each of the defendant railway companies, with power in the holding corporation to vote such stock and in all respects to act as the owner thereof, and to do whatever it might deem necessary to aid in any manner such railway companies or enhance the value of their stocks. In this manner, the individual stockholders of these two independent and competing railway companies were to be eliminated and a single common stockholder, the Northern Securities Company, was to be substituted; the interest of the individual stockholders in the property and franchises of the two railway companies was to terminate, being thus converted into an interest in the property and franchises of the Northern Securities Company. The individual stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company were no longer to hold an interest in the property or draw their dividends from the earnings of the Northern Pacific system, and the individual stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company were no longer to hold an interest in the property or draw their dividends from the earnings of the Great Northern system, but having ceased to be stockholders in the railway companies and having become stockholders in the holding corporation, both were to draw their dividends from the earnings of both systems, collected and distributed by the holding corporation. In this manner, by making the stockholders of each system jointly interested in both systems, and by practically pooling the earnings of both systems for the benefit of the former stockholders of each, and by vesting the selection of the directors and officers of each system in a common body, to wit, the holding corporation, with not only the power but the duty to pursue a policy which would promote the interests, not of one system at the expense of the other, but of both at the expense of the public, all inducement for competition between the two systems was to be removed, a virtual consolidation effected, and a monopoly of the interstate and foreign commerce formerly carried on by the two systems as independent competitors established.

VII.

In pursuance of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid, and solely as an instrumentality through which to effect the purposes thereof, on the 13th day of November, 1901, the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, was organized under the general laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office in Hoboken, in said State, and with an authorized capital stock of $400,000,000. A copy of the articles of incorporation of such company is attached to and made a part of this petition. Among the purposes and powers designedly inserted in said articles is the purpose and power, not only to "purchase" and "hold" "shares of the capital stock of any other corporation or corporations," under which said company wrongfully claims and is exercising the power to acquire by exchange and hold the stock of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway companies, but the purpose and power, while owner thereof, "to exercise all the rights, powers, and privileges of ownership;" that is, to vote such stock, collect the dividends thereon, and in all respects act as a stockholder of such railway companies; and the purpose and power "to aid in any manner any corporation * * * of which any bonds * * * or stock are held, * * * and to do any acts or things designed to protect, preserve, improve, or enhance the value of any such bonds * * * or stock," meaning thereby to do whatever it may deem necessary to aid in any manner the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway companies, or to preserve or enhance the value of their stocks or bonds.

VIII.

In further pursuance of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid, and solely as an instrumentality through which to effect the purposes thereof, on or about the 14th day of November, 1901, the defendant the Northern Securities Company was organized by the election of a board of directors and the selection of a president and other officers, the defendant James J. Hill, the president and controlling power in the management of the defendant the Great Northern Railway Company, being chosen a director and president thereof; and thereupon, in further pursuance of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid, the defendants James J. Hill and his associate stockholders of the defendant the Great Northern Railway Company assigned and transferred to the defendant the Northern Securities Company a large amount of the capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, the exact amount being unknown to complainant, but constituting a controlling interest therein, and complainant believes a majority thereof, upon the agreed basis of exchange of $180, par value, of the capital stock of the said Northern Securities Company for each share of the capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company; and the defendants J. Pierpont Morgan and his associate stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company assigned and transferred to the defendant the Northern Securities Company a large ma-

37 jority of the capital stock of the defendant the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the exact amount being unknown to complainant, upon the agreed basis of exchange of $115, par value, of the capital stock of the said Northern Securities Company for each share of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company; and thereafter, in further pursuance of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid, the defendant the Northern Securities Company offered to the stockholders of the defendant railway companies to issue and exchange its capital stock for the capital stock of such railway companies, upon the 38 basis of exchange aforesaid, no other consideration being required. In further pursuance of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid the defendant the Northern Securities Company has acquired an additional amount of the stock of the defendant railway companies, issuing in lieu thereof its own stock upon the basis of exchange aforesaid, and is now holding, as owner and proprietor, substantially all of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company and, as complainant believes and charges, a majority of the capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, but if not a majority, at least a controlling 39 interest therein, and is voting the same and is collecting the dividends thereon, and in all respects is acting as the owner thereof in the organization, management, and operation of said railway companies, and in the receipt and control of their earnings, and will continue to do so, unless restrained by the order of this court. By reason whereof a virtual consolidation under one ownership and source of control of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway systems has been effected, a combination or conspiracy in restraint of the trade or commerce among the several States and with foreign nations formerly carried on 40 by the defendant railway companies independently and in free competition one with the other has been formed and is in operation, and the defendants are thereby attempting to monopolize, and have monopolized, such interstate and foreign trade or commerce, to the great and irreparable damage of the people of the United States, in derogation of their common rights, and in violation of the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

IX. 41

If the defendant the Northern Securities Company has not acquired a large majority of the capital stock of the defendant the Great Northern Railway Company, it is because the individual defendants named, and their associates in the combination or conspiracy charged in this petition, or some of them, since it became apparent that the legality of their corporate device for the merger of the stock of competing railway companies, through the instrumentality of a central or holding corporation, would be assailed in the courts, have purposely withheld, or caused to be 42 withheld, a large amount of the capital stock of said railway company from transfer for the stock of the Northern Securities Company, and have purposely discouraged and prevented the transfer and exchange of such stock for the stock of the Northern Securities Company, all for the purpose of concealing the real scope and object of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid, and of deceiving and misleading the State and Federal authorities, and of furnishing a ground for the defense that the Northern Securities Company does not hold a clear majority of the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company. The 43 complainant avers that such stock, so withheld or not transferred to the Northern Securities Company, is now in the hands of some person or persons (unknown to the complainant) friendly to and under the influence of the individual defendants named and their associates aforesaid, or some of them, and will either not be voted, or be voted in harmony with the Great Northern stock held by the Northern Securities Company, until the question of the legality of this corporate device for merging competing railway lines shall be finally and judicially determined, when such stock will either be turned over to the Northern 44
Securities Company or continue to be held and voted outside said company but in harmony with the Great Northern stock held and voted by it, as may at the time seem advisable.

X.

In further pursuance of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid, the Northern Securities Company (subject, it may be, to the condition stated in the next preceding paragraph) is about to and will, unless restrained by the order of 45 this court, receive and acquire, and hereafter hold and control as owner and proprietor, substantially all of the capital stock of the defendant railway companies, issuing in lieu thereof its own capital stock to the full extent of the authorized issue, of which, upon the basis of exchange aforesaid, the former stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company have received or will receive and hold about 55 per cent thereof, the balance going to the former stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

XI.

46 No consideration whatever has existed, or will exist, for the transfer as aforesaid of the stock of the defendant railway companies from their stockholders to the Northern Securities Company, other than the issue of the stock of the Northern Securities Company to them in exchange therefor, for the purpose, after the manner, and upon the basis aforesaid.

The defendant, the Northern Securities Company, was not organized in good faith to purchase and pay for the stocks of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway com-
47 panies. It was organized solely to incorporate the pooling of the stocks of said companies and to carry into effect the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid. The Northern Securities Company is a mere depositary, custodian, holder, and trustee of the stocks of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway companies, and its shares of stock are but beneficial certificates issued against said railroad stocks to designate the interest of the holders in the pool. The Northern Securities Company does not have and never had any capital sufficient to warrant such a stupendous operation. Its subscribed capital
48 was but $30,000, and its authorized capital stock of $400,000,000 is just sufficient, when all issued, to represent and cover the exchange value of substantially the entire stock of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway companies, upon the basis and at the rate agreed upon, which is about $122,000,000 in excess of the combined capital stock of the two railway companies taken at par.

XII.

If the Government fails to prevent the carrying out of the combination or conspiracy aforesaid, and the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, is permitted to receive and hold and 49 act as owner of the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies as aforesaid, not only will a virtual consolidation of two competing transcontinental lines, with the practical pooling of their earnings, be effected, and a monopoly of the interstate and foreign commerce formerly carried on by them as competitors be created, and all effective competition between such lines in the carrying of interstate and foreign traffic be destroyed, but thereafter, to all desiring to use it, an available method will be presented, whereby, through the corporate scheme or device aforesaid, the act of Congress of 50

July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," may be circumvented and set at naught, and all transcontinental lines, indeed the entire railway systems of the country, may be absorbed, merged, and consolidated, thus placing the public at the absolute mercy of the holding corporation.

XIII.

In furtherance of the purpose and object of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid to monopolize or attempt to 51
monopolize the trade or commerce among the several States, and between such States and foreign countries, formerly carried on in free competition by the defendants, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies, and to place a restraint thereon, the individual defendants named and their associate stockholders of the defendant railway companies, have combined or conspired with one another and with other persons (whose names are unknown to the complainant, but whom it prays to have made parties to this action when ascertained) to use and employ, in addition to the corporate scheme or device aforesaid, 52 and in aid thereof, various other schemes, devices, and instrumentalities, the precise details of which are at present unknown to the complainant but will be laid before the court when ascertained, by means of which, unless prevented by the order of this court, the object and purpose of the unlawful combination or conspiracy aforesaid may and will be accomplished.

PRAYER.

In consideration whereof, and inasmuch as adequate relief in the premises can only be obtained in this court, the United States of America prays your honors to order, adjudge, and decree that the combination or conspiracy hereinbefore described is unlawful, and that all acts done or to be done in carrying it out are in derogation of the common rights of all the people of the United States and in violation of the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies," and that the defendants and each and every one of them, and their officers, directors, stockholders, agents, and servants, and each and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from doing any act in pursuance of or for the purpose of carrying out the same, and, in addition, that the several defendants be respectively enjoined as follows:

First. That the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, its stockholders, officers, directors, executive committee, and its agents and servants, and each and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from purchasing, acquiring, receiving, holding, voting (whether by proxy or otherwise), or in any manner acting as the owner of any of the shares of the capital stock of either the Northern Pacific Railway Company or the Great Northern Railway Company; and that a mandatory injunction may issue requiring the Northern Securities Company to recall and cancel any certificates of stock issued by it in purchase of or in exchange for any of the shares of the capital stock of either of said railway companies, surrendering in return therefor to the holders thereof the certificates of stock in the respective railway companies in lieu of which they were issued.

Second. That the defendant, the Northern Pacific Railway Company, its stockholders, officers, directors, agents, and servants, and each and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from in any manner recognizing or accepting the Northern Securities Company as the owner or holder of any shares of its capital stock, and from permitting such company to vote such stock, whether by proxy or otherwise, and from paying any dividends upon such stock to said company or its assigns, unless authorized by this court, and from recognizing as valid any transfer, mortgage, pledge, or assignment by such company of such stock, unless authorized by this court.

Third. That the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, its stockholders, officers, directors, agents, and servants, and each and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from in any manner recognizing or accepting the Northern Securities Company as the owner or holder of any shares of its capital stock, and from permitting such company to vote such stock, whether by proxy or otherwise, and from paying any dividends upon such stock to said company or its assigns, unless authorized by this court, and from recognizing as valid any transfer, mortgage, pledge, or assignment by such company of such stock unless authorized by this court. 57

Fourth. That the individual defendants named, and their associate stockholders, and each and every stockholder of either of said railway companies who has exchanged his stock therein for the stock of the Northern Securities Company, be each, respectively, perpetually enjoined from in any manner holding, voting, or acting as the owner of any of the stock of the Northern Securities Company, issued in exchange for the stock of either of the said railway companies, unless authorized by this court; and that a mandatory injunction may issue requiring each of the said defendants to surrender any stock of the Northern Securities Company so acquired and held by him, and accept therefor the stock of the defendant railway company in exchange for which the same was issued. 58 59

Fifth. That the individual defendants named, and their associate stockholders, and each and every person combining or conspiring with them, as charged in Paragraph XIII hereof, and their trustees, agents, and assigns, present or future, and each and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from doing any and every act or thing mentioned in said paragraph, or in furtherance of the combination or conspiracy described therein, or intended or tending to place the capital stock of the defendant railway companies, or the competing railway systems operated by them, or the competitive interstate or foreign trade or commerce carried on by them, under the control, legal or practical, of the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, or of any person or persons, or association or corporation, acting for or in lieu of said company, in the carrying out of the unlawful combination or conspiracy described in said paragraph. 60

The United States prays for such other and further relief as the nature of the case may require and the court may deem proper in the premises.

To the end, therefore, that the United States of America may 61 obtain the relief to which it is justly entitled in the premises, may it please your honors to grant unto it writs of subpœna directed to the said defendants, the Northern Securities Company, the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the Great Northern Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, and John S. Kennedy, and their associate stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company, as their names may become known to complainant and the court be advised thereof, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel S. Lamont, and their associate stockholders

62 of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, as their names may become known to complainant and the court be advised thereof, and the persons referred to in Paragraph XIII hereof, as their names may become known to complainant and the court be advised thereof, and to each of them, commanding them, and each of them, to appear herein and answer (but not under oath) the allegations contained in the foregoing petition, and abide by and perform such order or decree as the court may make in the premises; and that, pending the final hearing of this case, a temporary restraining order may issue enjoining the defendants and 63 their associates, and each of them, and their stockholders, directors, officers, agents, and servants as hereinbefore prayed.

MILTON D. PURDY,
Attorney of the United States
for the District of Minnesota.
PHILANDER C. KNOX,
Attorney-General of the United States.
JOHN K. RICHARDS,
Solicitor-General of the United States.

64 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
District of Minnesota, Third Division, ss:

Milton D. Purdy, being duly sworn, says that he is the United States attorney for the district of Minnesota, and that he has read the foregoing bill of complaint and knows the contents thereof, and that the same is true of his own knowledge except as to those matters therein stated on his information and belief, and as to those matters he believes them to be true. He further states that he is authorized to sign the said bill of complaint for the United States of America, the complainant therein by the Attorney-General of the United States. 65

MILTON D. PURDY,
Attorney of the United States
for the District of Minnesota.

Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me this 10th day of March, A. D. 1902.

[SEAL OF COURT.] HENRY D. LANG,
Clerk of the United States Circuit Court
for the District of Minnesota. 66

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION OF NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, ss:

We, the undersigned, in order to form a corporation for the purposes hereinafter stated, under and pursuant to the provisions of the act of the legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "An act concerning corporations" (revision of 1896), and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, do hereby certify as follows: 67

First. The name of the corporation is Northern Securities Company.

Second. The location of its principal office in the State of New Jersey is at No. 51 Newark street, in the city of Hoboken, county of Hudson. The name of the agent therein, and in charge thereof, upon whom process against the corporation may be served, is Hudson Trust Company. Such office is to be the registered office of the corporation.

Third. The objects for which the corporation is formed are: 68

(1) To acquire by purchase, subscription, or otherwise, and to hold as investment, any bonds or other securities or evidences of indebtedness, or any shares of capital stock created or issued by any other corporation or corporations, association or associations, of the State of New Jersey, or of any other State, Territory, or country.

(2) To purchase, hold, sell, assign, transfer, mortgage, pledge, or otherwise dispose of any bonds or other securities or evidences of indebtedness created or issued by any other corporation or corporations, association or associations, of the State of New Jersey, or of any other State, Territory, or country, and while owner thereof to exercise all the rights, powers, and privileges of ownership.

(3) To purchase, hold, sell, assign, transfer, mortgage, pledge, or otherwise dispose of shares of the capital stock of any other corporation or corporations, association or associations, of the State of New Jersey, or of any other State, Territory, or country, and while owner of such stock to exercise all the rights, powers, and privileges of ownership, including the right to vote thereon.

(4) To aid in any manner any corporation or association of which any bonds or other securities or evidences of indebtedness or stock are held by the corporation, and to do any acts or things designed to protect, preserve, improve, or enhance the value of any such bonds or other securities or evidences of indebtedness or stock.

(5) To acquire, own, and hold such real and personal property as may be necessary or convenient for the transaction of its business.

The business or purpose of the corporation is from time to time to do any one or more of the acts and things herein set forth.

The corporation shall have power to conduct its business in other States and in foreign countries, and to have one or more offices out of this State, and to hold, purchase, mortgage, and convey real and personal property out of this State.

Fourth. The total authorized capital stock of the corporation is four hundred million dollars ($400,000,000), divided into four million (4,000,000) shares of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each. The amount of the capital stock with which the corporation will commence business is thirty thousand dollars.

Fifth. The names and post-office addresses of the incorporators, and the number of shares of stock subscribed for by each (the aggregate of such subscriptions being the amount of capital stock with which this company will commence business), are as follows:

Name and post-office address.	Number of shares.
George F. Baker, jr., 258 Madison avenue, New York, N. Y	100
Abram M. Hyatt, 214 Allen avenue, Allenhurst, N. J	100
Richard Trimble, 53 East Twenty-fifth street, New York, N. Y	100

Sixth. The duration of the corporation shall be perpetual.

Seventh. The number of directors of the corporation shall be fixed from time to time by the by-laws; but the number, if fixed at more than three, shall be some multiple of three. The directors shall be classified with respect to the time for which they shall severally hold office by dividing them into three classes, each consisting of one-third of the whole number of the board of directors. The directors of the first class shall be elected for a term of one year, the directors of the second class for a term of two years, and the directors of the third class for a term of three years; and at each annual election the successors to the class of directors whose term shall expire in that year shall be elected to hold office for the term of three years, so that the term of office of one class of directors shall expire in each year.

In case of any increase of the number of the directors the additional directors shall be elected as may be provided in the by-laws, by the directors or by the stockholders at an annual or special meeting, and one-third of their number shall be elected for the then unexpired portion of the term of the directors of the first class, one-third of their number for the unexpired portion of the term of the directors of the second class, and one-third of their number for the unexpired portion of the term of the directors of the third class, so that each class of directors shall be increased equally.

In case of any vacancy in any class of directors through death, resignation, disqualification, or other cause, the remaining directors, by affirmative vote of a majority of the board of directors, may elect a successor to hold office for the unexpired portion of the term of the director whose place shall be vacant, and until the election of a successor.

The board of directors shall have power to hold their meetings outside the State of New Jersey at such places as from time to time may be designated by the by-laws, or by resolution of the board. The by-laws may prescribe the number of directors necessary to constitute a quorum of the board of directors, which number may be less than a majority of the whole number of the directors.

As authorized by the act of the legislature of the State of New Jersey passed March 22, 1901, amending the seventeenth section of the act concerning corporations (revision of 1896), any action which theretofore required the consent of the holders of two-thirds of the stock at any meeting after notice to them given, or required their consent in writing to be filed, may be taken upon the consent of, and the consent given and filed by, the holders of two-thirds of the stock of each class represented at such meeting in person or by proxy.

Any officer elected or appointed by the board of directors may be removed at any time by the affirmative vote of a majority of the whole board of directors. Any other officer or employee of the corporation may be removed at any time by vote of the board of directors, or by any committee or superior officer upon whom such power of removal may be conferred by the by-laws or by vote of the board of directors.

The board of directors, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the whole board, may appoint from the directors an executive committee, of which a majority shall constitute a quorum, and to such extent as shall be provided in the by-laws such committee shall have and may exercise all or any of the powers of board of directors, including power to cause the seal of the corporation to be affixed to all papers that may require it.

The board of directors may appoint one or more vice-presidents, one or more assistant treasurers, and one or more assistant secretaries, and, to the extent provided in the by-laws, the persons so appointed, respectively, shall have and may exercise all the powers of the president, of the treasurer, and of the secretary, respectively.

The board of directors shall have power from time to time to fix and determine and to vary the amount of the working capital of the corporation; to determine whether any, and if any, what part of any accumulated profits shall be declared in dividends and paid to the stockholders; to determine the time or times for the declaration and the payment of dividends, and to direct and to determine the use and disposition of any surplus or net profits over and above the capital stock paid in; and in its discretion the board of directors may use and apply any such surplus or accumulated profits in purchasing or acquiring its bonds or other obligations, or shares of the capital stock of the corporation to such extent and in such manner and upon such terms as the board of directors shall deem expedient; but shares of such capital stock so purchased or acquired may be resold, unless such shares shall have been retired for the purpose of decreasing the capital stock of the corporation to the extent authorized by law. 81

The board of directors from time to time shall determine whether and to what extent, and at what times and places and under what conditions and regulations, the accounts and books of the corporation, or any of them, shall be open to the inspection of the stockholders, and no stockholder shall have any right to inspect any account or book or document of the corporation except as conferred by statute of the State of New Jersey, or authorized by the board of directors or by a resolution of the stockholders. 82

The board of directors may make by-laws, and from time to time may alter, amend, or repeal any by-laws; but any by-laws made by the board of directors may be altered or repealed by the stockholders at any annual meeting or at any special meeting, provided notice of such proposed alteration or repeal be included in the notice of the meeting. 83

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals the 12th day of November, 1901.

GEO. F. BAKER, JR. [L. S.]
ABRAM M. HYATT. [L. S.]
RICHARD TRIMBLE. [L. S.]

Signed, sealed, and delivered in presence of— 84
GEO. HOLMES.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, Manhattan, ss:

Be it remembered, that on this twelfth day of November, 1901, before the undersigned, personally appeared George F. Baker, junior, Abram M. Hyatt, Richard Trimble, who, I am satisfied, are the persons named in and who executed the foregoing certificate; and I having first made known to them, and 85 to each of them, the contents thereof, they did each acknowledge that they signed, sealed, and delivered the same as their voluntary act and deed.

GEO. HOLMES,
Master in Chancery of New Jersey.

[Endorsed.]

"Received in the Hudson Co., N. J., clerk's office, Nov. 15, A. D. 1901, and recorded in clerk's record No. ——, on page ——.

86 "MAURICE J. STACK, Clerk."

"Filed Nov. 13, 1901.

"GEORGE WURTS, Secretary of State."

Circuit court of the United States, district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
vs.
87 NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } Prœcipe for chancery subpœna.

To the clerk of above-named court:

Please issue chancery subpœna in the above-entitled case. Dated March 10, 1902.

M. D. PURDY,
Attorney for the United States.

88

(Indorsed:) United States circuit court, district of Minnesota. 3rd division. The United States vs. Northern Securities Co. and others. Prœcipe for chancery subpœna. Ent'd C. R., "B," page 84. Filed March 10, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, chancery rule 89 register.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY AND others.
} C. equity No. 789. March 10, 1902.

The complainant having filed a bill of complaint in this cause on application of Milton D. Purdy, U. S. dist. atty., dist. of Minn., P. C. Knox, Atty. Gen'l, and J. K. Richards, Sol. Gen'l of U. S., solicitors, ordered that a writ of subpœna issue 90 as herein prayed.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R., "B," page 84.)

[Original.]

United States of America, district of Minnesota, third division.

The President of the United States of America to Northern Securities Company, Great Northern Railway Company, 91 Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont.

You are hereby commanded to be and appear at rules, to be held at the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, on the first Monday of April next, at the city of St. Paul, then and there to answer the bill of complaint of the United States of America, filed against you on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1902; hence, 92 fail not.

Witness, the Honorable Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, the 10th day of March, 1902.

Issued at my office in the city of St. Paul, under the seal of said circuit court, the day and year last aforesaid.

[SEAL OF COURT.] HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

93 Memorandum: The above-named defendants to enter their appearance in this suit in the clerk's office aforesaid, on or before the day at which this writ is returnable; otherwise the bill may be taken pro confesso.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

Milton D. Purdy, attorney of the U. S. for the district of Minnesota; Philander C. Knox, Attorney-General of the U. S.; John K. Richards, Solicitor-General of the U. S., complainant's solicitors.

94 (Endorsed:) Chancery subpœna. Returnable to April rules, 1902. Filed March 10th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE
95 Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.

To HENRY D. LANG, Esq., Clerk of said Court:

You will please enter the appearance, in this cause, of the defendants, the Northern Securities Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, and George F. Baker, by the undersigned, their solicitors and counsel.

96 Yours, respectfully, JOHN W. GRIGGS.
GEORGE B. YOUNG.

Dated St. Paul, Minn., April 4, 1902.

(Endorsed:) Praecipe for appearance for certain defendant. Ent'd. C. R. "B," page 85. Filed April 7th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, chancery-rule register. 97

April 7th, 1902.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHEN SECURITIES COMPANY, GREAT Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
} C. Equity, No. 789.

98

Pursuant to a præcipe this day filed in this cause, it is ordered that the appearance of the defendants, The Northern Securities Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, and George F. Baker, by John W. Griggs and George B. Young, their solicitors, be, and the same hereby is, entered.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R. "B," page 85.)

99

Circuit court of the United States, district of Minnesota, third division.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, GREAT Northern Railway Company, et al.
} Appearance.

The clerk will enter my appearance for the defendant, Great Northern Railway Company.

100

M. D. GROVER,
St. Paul, Minn.

(Indorsed:) Appearance of M. D. Grover for Great Northern Railway Company. Ent. C. R. "B," page 86. Filed April 7th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

101 United States of America, district of Minnesota, chancery-rule register.

April 7th, 1902.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, GREAT Northern Railway Company, et al.
} C. Equity, No 789.

102 Pursuant to a præcipe this day filed in this cause, it is ordered that the appearance of the defendant Great Northern Railway Company, one of the above-named defendants, by M. D. Grover, its solicitor, be, and the same hereby is, entered.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R. "B," page 86.)

Circuit court of the United States, district of Minnesota, third division.

103 THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
} Appearance.

The clerk will enter my appearance for the Northern Pacific Railway Company, one of the defendants.

104 C. W. BUNN,
St. Paul, Minn.

(Endorsed:) Appearance of C. W. Bunn for the Northern Pacific Railway Co., defendant. Filed April 7th, 1902. C. R. "B," page 85. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, chancery rule register. 105

April 7th, 1902.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } C. Equity, No. 789.

106

Pursuant to a præcipe this day filed in this cause, it is ordered that the appearance of the defendant, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, by C. W. Bunn, its solicitor, be, and the same hereby is, entered.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R. "B," page 85.)

Circuit court of the United States, district of Minnesota, third division. 107

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } Appearance.

The clerk will enter my appearance for the defendants, J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon. 108

FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
15 Broad St., New York.

(Endorsed:) Appearance of Francis Lynde Stetson for J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon, defendants. Ent. C. R. "B," page 86. Filed April 7th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

109 United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, chancery rule register.

April 7th, 1902.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
vs.
THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, The Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
C. Equity, No. 789.

110

Pursuant to a præcipe this day filed in this cause, it is ordered that the appearance of J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon, two of the defendants in this cause, by Francis Lynde Stetson, their solicitor, be, and the same hereby is, entered.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R. "B," page 86.)

United States of America, district of Minnesota, third division.

111 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, PLAINTIFF,
vs.
THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, The Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, et al., defendants.

To the Clerk of the Above-named Court:

You will please enter my appearance in the above-entitled suit as solicitor for Daniel S. Lamont, one of the defendauts.

112

DAVID WILCOX.

(Endorsed:) Appearance of David Wilcox. Ent. C. R. "B," page 86. Filed April 7th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota. Chancery rule register. 113

April 7th, 1902.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, Northern Pacific Railway Company, Great Northern Railway Company, et al., defendants. } C. equity No. 789.

114

Pursuant to a præcipe this day filed in this cause, it is ordered that the appearance of the defendant Daniel S. Lamont, one of the defendants, by David Wilcox, his solicitor, be and the same hereby is entered.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

(C. R. "B," page 86.)

Entered 789, C. E.

Circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota. 115

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainants,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } May, 1902.

ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANT NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY. 116

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
GEORGE B. YOUNG,
Solicitors for the Defendant.

(Endorsed): Filed May 5th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

117 In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainants,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.

118 THE ANSWER OF THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY TO THE PETITION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

I.

This defendant admits and avers that the defendant railway companies were, at the time mentioned in the petition, and are now common carriers employed in transportation of freight and passengers within and among those States of the United States in which the railways operated by them are situated, and not further or otherwise, but were and are engaged in commerce
119 among the several States and with foreign nations.

II.

This defendant admits that, on and prior to November 13, 1901, the capital stock of the defendant railway companies was owned and controlled by their respective shareholders, and it avers, on information and belief, that the outstanding capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company was owned by more than eighteen hundred (1,800) separate owners, and the 120 outstanding capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company was owned by more than thirty-five hundred (3,500) separate owners; and that among the shareholders of the Great Northern Railway Company (hereinafter called the Great Northern Company) were the defendants Hill, Clough, James, Morgan, and Kennedy; and that among the shareholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company (hereinafter called the Northern Pacific Company) were the defendants Morgan, Bacon, Baker, Hill, Kennedy, James, and Lamont. It avers that the persons named and meant to be designated in the petition as owning, controlling, or as being associated in the owner- 121

ship and control of a majority of the stock of the Great Northern Company, did not at any time, nor in any manner, own or control a majority of said stock, nor as much as one-third (⅓) part thereof. Their holdings in said stock were at all times separate and individual, and not in association with each other, or with any other person or persons, and neither of them was under any obligation or promise to any of the others, or to any other person, to hold, use, or vote his stock otherwise than as he should, from time to time, determine to be best for his own individual interest. The persons named 122 and meant to be designated in the petition as owning, controlling, or as being associated in the ownership and control of a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company, did not, at the date named, nor at any time, or in any manner, own or control a majority of such stock, nor as much as one-third (⅓) part thereof. Their holdings in said stock were at all times separate and individual, and neither of them had any control of the holdings of the other, or of any other person or persons, and neither of them was under any promise or obligation to the other, or to any person, to hold, 123 use, or vote his stock otherwise than as he should, from time to time, determine to be best for his own individual interest.

Except as herein admitted and averred, this defendant denies each and every allegation of subdivision II of the petition.

III.

This defendant admits that the Northern Pacific Company owned and operated a railway from Ashland, in Wisconsin, via Duluth, and from St. Paul, across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, and into Oregon, passing 124 through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, and extending to Tacoma and Seattle in Washington, and to Portland in Oregon; and that the Great Northern Company operated lines of railway extending from St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, across said State and North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington to Everett and Seattle in Washington, passing through Spokane in that State.

It admits that the said lines so operated by said companies connected with other railway lines, and that, either directly or 125 by means of such other railway lines, they connected with lines of steamships on the Great Lakes and the ocean; and that the mileage operated by said companies aggregated about fifty-five hundred (5,500) miles for the Northern Pacific Company and about forty-one hundred and twenty-eight (4,128) miles for the Great Northern Company.

It denies that the lines operated by said companies are parallel or competing, except for the short distances and to the limited extent hereinafter mentioned, and denies that said companies were engaged in active competition with each other, ex-126 cept in the manner and to the extent hereinafter stated.

Except as hereinabove and hereinafter stated, it denies each and every allegation in subdivision III of said petition.

IV.

This defendant admits and avers that prior to 1893 those portions, and those portions only, of the lines of the Northern Pacific Company which had been built and were operated by virtue of the act of Congress incorporating the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, approved July 2, 1864, were owned 127 and operated by the last-named company, and that in the year 1893 that company became insolvent and its lines passed into the hands of receivers appointed by various Federal courts.

It admits that while in this condition a contract was made, as set forth in the report of the Pearsall case, referred to in the petition. It avers that said contract was made under and in conformity with the provisions of the act of incorporation of the Great Northern Company, and that the only objection made to the validity of the contract was that the provisions in said charter under which it was made had been repealed by subse-
128 quent general laws of the State. It denies that the case, or that the decision therein, is correctly stated in the petition. And it avers that neither the said contract nor the issues raised and decided in the said case have any relevancy to the matters in controversy in this case.

V.

This defendant admits and avers that in the winter and spring of 1901 the defendant railway companies, for the purpose of promoting their several interests and the interests of the country traversed by their lines and by those of the Chicago, 129

Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, purchased in equal parts the stock of the last-named company to the amount and at the price and upon the terms of payment stated in the petition. It admits that the lines operated by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company and its connections are substantially as stated in the petition. It denies that what is called in the petition the Burlington System was or is parallel to or competing with what is therein called the Union Pacific System, but admits that some of the lines of each system compete with some lines of the other. 130

It denies that said purchase of stock was made in contemplation of the ultimate placing of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems under a common source of control, or that it was made for any other motive or with any other purpose than as hereinafter stated.

Except as herein admitted, it denies each and every allegation in subdivision V of the petition.

VI.

This defendant denies that prior to its organization the defend- 131 ants James J. Hill or J. Pierpont Morgan, or said Hill and Morgan, or any persons associated with them, or either of them, owned or controlled a majority of, or held a controlling interest in, the stock of either of said railway companies.

It denies that said persons, or that any of the persons concerned in its organization, contrived or intended any of the things alleged in subdivision VI of the petition or entered into any agreement or conspiracy to do any of the things charged in said subdivision.

It admits and avers that said James J. Hill and other holders 132
(not exceeding ten in number) of the stock of the Great Northern Company, but not including the defendants Morgan, Bacon, or Lamont, did plan its organization with an authorized capital of four hundred million dollars ($400,000,000) for the purposes, and those only, set forth in its certificate of incorporation. It denies that James J. Hill and J. P. Morgan agreed between themselves, or with other stockholders of either of the defendant railway companies, or with either of said railway companies, or 133 with anyone whomsoever, that a controlling interest of the stock of either of said railway companies should be turned over or transferred to this defendant, whether in exchange for its stock or otherwise.

It denies that any of the matters stated in said subdivision VI of the petition were contemplated or intended, or have resulted, or will result, from its formation and operation. And it denies the allegation that it is the duty of the directors of said railway companies to pursue a policy which will promote the interest of both systems at the expense of the public.

134 It alleges that the motives and intentions of the persons so forming this defendant were and are such, and such only, as are in this answer stated, and it denies each and every allegation in subdivision VI of the petition not herein expressly admitted or specifically denied.

VII.

This defendant admits its formation under the laws of New Jersey, with the articles, a copy of which is attached to the petition, and that the provisions of said articles were designedly inserted therein and were fully authorized by the general corporation laws of that State. And it says that the exercise of the powers of a stockholder provided for in said articles was not, as wrongly stated in the petition, confined to the stock of the defendant railway companies which this defendant might hold. It avers that the clause in said articles, partially quoted in paragraph VII of the petition, was not intended to, and does not, enlarge its powers, as the same are set forth in the preceding clauses of said articles, but makes clear its power to do such acts as making or procuring advances of money to any corporation whose securities are held by it, the indorsement or guaranty by it of the obligations of such corporation, becoming surety therefor, or in any lawful manner using its name or resources in aid of such corporation.

135

136

VIII.

This defendant admits and avers that on or about the 14th day of November, 1901, its directors and officers were elected, and among them the defendant James J. Hill as a director and president, but denies that he was or is the controlling power in the management of the Great Northern Company.

It admits and avers that thereafter the defendant James J. 137
Hill and other stockholders of the Great Northern Company, severally and each acting for himself alone, and without any agreement to that effect with any other stockholder, sold to this defendant a large amount of Great Northern stock at one hundred and eighty dollars ($180) per share in exchange for stock of this defendant at par, but it avers that the stock so sold was not within twenty-six million dollars ($26,000,000) of a majority of the stock of the Great Northern Company.

It admits and avers that thereafter and about November 22, 1901, it offered like terms of purchase to the other shareholders 138 of the Great Northern Company, the offer to hold good for sixty days from its date, and that many of the shareholders of that company, each acting for himself alone, accepted such offer and made such sale.

It admits and avers that the defendant J. P. Morgan and other shareholders of the Northern Pacific Company sold to the defendant a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company; and that this defendant has received such dividends as have been paid on the shares held by it, in the same manner and at the same rate as other shareholders; but it denies that 139 it has acted, whether as owner of stock or otherwise, in the management or direction of either of said railway companies or in receipt or control of the earnings of either of them, and it avers that no change whatever has taken place in the management of the said railway companies, or either of them, and that each of them is managed by the same board of directors and officers as existed before the organization of this defendant.

It denies that any of the things done by the defendants James J. Hill and J. Pierpont Morgan, or by either of them, or by this defendant or its promoters, directors, officers, or stock- 140 holders, or any of them, were done in pursuance of the pretended combination or conspiracy alleged in subdivision VIII of the petition, or as an instrumentality to effect the purposes thereof, and it denies that by reason of the matters or any of them in the petition alleged a virtual or any consolidation of said defendant railway companies or their business has been effected or intended; and it denies any conspiracy or combination in restraint of trade or commerce among the States, or with foreign nations, or that the defendants or any of them are 141 attempting or intending to monopolize or restrain any such trade or commerce.

IX.

It denies each and every allegation in subdivision IX of the petition.

X.

This defendant says that it does not know and can not set forth how much additional stock of either defendant railway 142 company it is likely to acquire, since each acquisition of shares by it depends, among other contingencies, on the willingness of the holders of the said stock to sell it upon terms which this defendant may be willing to accept.

XI.

This defendant says it has bought and paid for and has caused to be transferred to it upon the records of the Great Northern Company, in accordance with the by-laws of that company, about five-twelfths ($\frac{5}{12}$) of the shares of that com-
143 pany's stock; and has also negotiated for, but has not yet caused to be presented to the Great Northern Company for transfer upon its records, other shares of the stock of that company aggregating about four-twelfths ($\frac{4}{12}$) of the total amount of its stock, but has not acquired a right to vote as stockholder of the Great Northern Company on stock not so transferred. This defendant, in acquiring shares of the Great Northern Company and of the Northern Pacific Company, dealt solely with the separate owners of the said shares in their respective individual capacities. It has no knowledge of any agreement, prom-
144 ise, or understanding between any of the holders of said stock concerning the sale thereof to it, and it denies that any such agreement, promise, or understanding was ever made. All the sales and transfers of the said stock to this defendant were absolute and without any reservation of any right or interest in any share thereof to the seller or to any other person.

This defendant has not paid for all the stock of the Great Northern Company and of the Northern Pacific Company acquired by it in shares of its own stock, but, on the contrary, has expended upward of forty million dollars ($40,000,000) cash in the making of such purchases. Every share of the 145 Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company acquired by this defendant has been, and so long as it remains the property of this defendant will continue to be, held and owned by it in its own right, and not under any agreement, promise, or understanding on its part, or on the part of its stockholders or officers, that the same shall be held, owned, or kept by it for any period of time whatever, or under any agreement that in any manner restricts its right and power immediately to sell or otherwise dispose of the same, or that restricts or controls to any extent any use of the same, which might lawfully 146 be exercised by any other owner of said stocks. There has been and is no agreement, promise, or understanding between any of the holders of said stock so acquired by this defendant, or between any of them and any other person or corporation, that any of said shares should at any time be held, used, or voted by this defendant for the purpose of combining or consolidating or placing under one common management or control the railways of the Great Northern Company and of the Northern Pacific Company, or the business thereof, or for the purpose of monopolizing or restraining traffic or competition between 147 the said railways. Many stockholders of the said companies have not sold, and may never sell, their shares to this defendant; and the said railway companies have not nor have any of the directors of either of them, by any act, formal or informal, or by suggestion, ever solicited any of their respective shareholders to sell their shares to this defendant. This defendant was organized in good faith, and it denies all the allegations in subdivision XI of the petition.

XII.

148

This defendant denies each and every allegation in subdivision XII of the petition.

XIII.

This defendant denies each and every allegation in subdivision XIII of the petition.

SECOND.

Further answering the petition, this defendant, upon information and belief, says that the facts as to the purchase of the 149 shares of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Burlington Company) and the planning and forming of this defendant and the motives, intentions, and purposes of the persons and corporations concerned in these enterprises, or either of them, were not as erroneously stated in the petition, but were and are as follows:

I.

When projecting the line of the Great Northern Company to the Pacific coast, that company and its directors contemplated
150 the necessity of creating for the line not merely State and interstate, but an international commerce. Nearly all the country traversed or reached by the line was then but sparsely settled or not settled at all. It was principally agricultural, grazing, or timber land, with mineral deposits in the mountain ranges believed to be large and valuable, but not developed or explored. Whatever commodities the region might furnish for carriage would be raw material, of great weight and bulk in proportion to its value, which would not bear transportation to market except at a low mileage rate, such as could be made possible 151 only by every practicable reduction in the cost of transportation. The available market for all such products was far from the places of production.

In Washington and Oregon are the largest and finest bodies of standing timber in the United States, the best market for which is in the prairie States of the Mississippi Valley east of the Rocky Mountains; but the lumber and shingles from the Pacific coast would not bear the cost of transportation to those States if the cars carrying them had to be hauled back empty, or nearly so, for a distance of from 1,500 to 2,000 miles. And 152 the same is true of the other products. On the other hand, the unoccupied or sparsely populated country along the line, or reached by it, could not furnish a market for commodities enough to load the returning cars; the result being that unless the company could secure traffic for carriage beyond the Pacific coast no great traffic either way could exist or be created.

To meet these conditions the Great Northern Company not only went to great additional expense in the construction of its line to obtain gradients lower than those of any other line to the Pacific coast, but also made great efforts to create and increase in the countries of eastern Asia a demand for the 153 products of this country; and soon after the completion of its railway in 1893 it induced a Japanese company to run a line of steamships, connecting with its railway, on the route between Seattle and ports of Japan, China, and Russian Siberia, and succeeded in creating and has since been actively engaged in building up a commerce in which the flour manufactured along its line, cotton (both raw and manufactured), iron and steel (especially steel rails and plates), machinery, and such other manufactures of this country as a market could be found or made for in eastern Asia, have been carried to oriental ports, 154 and return cargoes of such oriental products as are consumed in this country have been brought back. A large west-bound, as well as an increased east-bound, traffic has thus been secured by the company, enabling it to make such rates on lumber and other products of the country served by it as permit them to be shipped to Eastern markets with a profit to the shippers.

One year before the Burlington purchase, this oriental traffic had reached such proportions that the Great Northern Company caused to be begun the construction of steamships to run from Seattle to ports in Japan, China, and the Philippines, which, 155 from their great carrying capacity (being the largest in the world), will be able to carry at very low rates (if full cargoes can be secured), and thus enable the company to move the largest volume of west-bound traffic (and also of east-bound traffic) at the lowest cost.

In the interstate and international commerce which the Great Northern Company has thus built up, it competes both in this country and on the ocean with the other transcontinental lines (including the Canadian Pacific), and at the oriental ports it competes for commerce of the world. Its rates are and must 156 be made in competition with the rates of ocean carriers and by way of the Suez Canal.

The policy thus followed by the Great Northern Company in building up an international, and thereby interstate, commerce has been followed by the Northern Pacific Company since its reorganization in 1896.

In creating and maintaining this competitive interstate and international commerce both the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company were hampered and placed at a

157 disadvantage with the other transcontinental railways, as well as with European competitors, by the want of sufficient direct connection with the territory offering the best markets for the products of the country along their lines, and with the places of production and great centers of distribution from which their traffic must be supplied. For many months before the purchase of the Burlington shares they had considered the best means of getting closer to such markets and sources of supply. The lines of the Burlington, better than those of any other company, ful-
158 filled the requirements of both the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company in respect of markets for east-bound and freight for west-bound traffic. The Burlington lines traverse the treeless States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas, and Colorado, which afford the best markets for the lumber of the Pacific coast. They reach Denver, Kansas City, Omaha, and Aurora, where are located the principal smelters of silver-lead ores, such as are mined near the lines of the defendant railway companies.

They reach Omaha, Kansas City, and Chicago, where are the great packing houses and the great markets for the cattle and 159 sheep of the ranges of North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.

They reach St. Louis and Kansas City, connecting there with lines traversing the cotton States, from which come raw and manufactured cotton required for shipment to China and Japan.

At Chicago and St. Louis they connect with the lines which reach the points of supply of manufactured iron, steel, machinery, and other manufactured articles that find a market in Japan and China.

The Burlington line southward from Minneapolis and St. Paul 160 along the Mississippi River reaches the great coal deposits of southern Illinois, the largest west of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and its light gradients and consequent low cost of transportation make it possible to supply such coal to points on the lines of each defendant railway company east of the Missouri River, relieving the people and the railways of that territory from entire dependence upon the Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines, the supply from which is yearly becoming more costly and less certain.

The price paid for said Burlington stock was lower per mile of main track covered by the stock than that for which the 161 stock of any other large and well established system in the same general territory could then have been bought.

The purchase of the Burlington stock by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies in equal parts served each company as well as if it were the sole owner of such stock, while such purchase might have been beyond the financial means of either company by itself.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies therefore each purchased an equal number of shares of the Burlington stock as the best means and for the sole purpose of reaching 162 the best markets for the products of the territory along their lines, and of securing connections which would furnish the largest amount of traffic for their respective roads, increase the trade and interchange of commodities between the regions traversed by the Burlington lines and their connections and the regions traversed or reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines, and by their connecting lines of shipping on the Pacific coast. These connections and such interchange of traffic were deemed to be and are indispensable to the maintenance of their business, local as well as interstate, and to the 163 development of the country served by their respective lines, and of like advantage to the Burlington lines and the country served by them, and strengthen each company in the competition with the more southerly lines to the Pacific coast, with the Canadian Pacific Railway, and with European carriers, for the trade and commerce of the Orient.

In such purchase there was no purpose to lessen any competition of the Burlington lines with those of either of the purchasers, for they are not competitive, or to lessen any competition between the purchasers. Such purchase was not intended to 164 have, and it can not have, any such effect.

The purchase of the Burlington stock was not made in view of the formation of this defendant, but solely from the motives and with the purposes already stated.

II.

The project of forming a holding company of any kind was not the result, in any way, of the failure of the plan which was 165 defeated by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Pearsall case. There was no connection whatever between the two.

The project of a holding company which finally developed into the formation of this defendant had its inception years before that date, among several gentlemen, not exceeding ten in number, who had been large shareholders in the Great Northern Company and its predecessor, the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company; some of them from the original organization of the latter company in 1879, and others from dates not long after that time. They have never held a major-166 ity of the stock of the Great Northern Company, but have taken an active interest in its policy and administration; have aided it when necessary in financing its operations; have acted together in promoting its interests; have, with some exceptions, served from time to time as directors and officers (Mr. Hill having been president of the successive companies since 1882); and by reason of their active interest in the company and services to it have influenced to a large degree its policy and management. As far back as 1893, most of these gentlemen being well advanced and some far advanced in years, they 167 began to discuss together what would be the effect upon the policy which under their influence the company had pursued with great benefit to its shareholders and the public, should their holdings by death or otherwise become scattered, and by what means their holdings could be kept together, so as to secure the continuance of such policy in the management of the company. It was considered that if a company should be formed to which they might transfer their individual holdings, their shares were likely to be held together, so long as the majority in the holding company should so wish, and this would 168 tend to give stability to the policy of the Great Northern Company, be of aid to it in financial operations, and maintain the value of their investments. These conclusions were the result of various consultations among the persons mentioned, or some of them, but no definite agreement was made for forming such a company or binding anyone to transfer his shares to it if formed.

From time to time, beginning with the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Company in 1896, Mr. Hill and said other Great Northern shareholders who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, had made large pur- 169 chases of Northern Pacific shares, individually, each for himself, without any concerted action, and solely as investments. About May 1, 1901, their aggregate holdings of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Company amounted to nearly twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) of the eighty million dollars ($80,000,000) common stock of the company, which also had a preferred stock, amounting to seventy-five million dollars ($75,000,000), with the same voting power as the common stock. At this time the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. held about six million dollars ($6,000,000) of the common stock. In the 170 fall of 1900 Mr. Hill and said Great Northern shareholders discussed the question of putting their holdings of Northern Pacific stock into the proposed holding company, as well as the suggestion that all the other stockholders of the Great Northern Company should be given the opportunity of selling and transferring their shares to the holding company, and that its capital stock should be made large enough to enable it to buy such holdings, though it was not known that the holders of any considerable amount of Great Northern stock, other than those above named, would desire to make such transfer. 171

At the time of the purchase of the Burlington shares it was not contemplated by either purchasing company or its shareholders that any alliance between the purchasing companies, or among their shareholders, was needed to preserve to each company its fair share of the advantages secured by the purchase. It was thought that the manifest interest of each company rendered any further guaranty or security needless. But pending or just after the conclusion of the negotiations for the Burlington stock, parties acting in the interest of the Union Pacific Railway System did purchase Northern Pacific shares, both 172 common and preferred, to the amount of about seventy-eight million dollars ($78,000,000), being a clear majority of the entire capital stock of that company. The apparent intent of such purchase was to defeat and, if successful, it would have defeated, the carrying out of the purposes for which the Burlington shares had been bought by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, and the development of the interstate and international commerce of each of them, and would have subordinated the policy of each to an interest adverse to 173 both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, and to the public served by their lines.

To protect the interests of the shareholders of the Northern Pacific Company, J. P. Morgan & Co. made additional purchases of Northern Pacific common stock, which, with the holdings in said stock of Mr. Hill and other Great Northern shareholders who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, constituted about forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000), being a majority of the common stock. In view of the injury apprehended to both companies, and to their 174 shareholders, and the better to protect their interests in the future, the Great Northern shareholders holding Northern Pacific shares, deemed it advisable that the projected holding company should have power to purchase not only their own Great Northern and Northern Pacific shares, but also the shares of such other Great Northern and Northern Pacific shareholders as might wish to sell their stock to said holding company, and the shares of companies already formed, and others that might be formed, for the purpose of aiding the traffic or operations of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, respec-
175 tively. At this time it was not expected by any of the persons concerned that any Northern Pacific shares except the said forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000) would be acquired by the proposed holding company. The organization of such company was not dependent on any agreement that it should acquire a majority of the shares of either defendant railway company. It would have been organized if the Burlington purchase had not been made, and if its promoters had had no other shares to transfer to it than the thirty-four million dollars ($34,000,000) Great Northern stock and the twenty million 176 dollars ($20,000,000) Northern Pacific stock held by them on May 1, 1901. It was not known that all or how many of the shareholders of either of the railway companies would be likely to transfer their shares to this defendant when formed. After its organization this defendant bought and still holds about one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company; and it has also purchased and negotiated for the purchase of the stock of the Great Northern Company, as hereinbefore stated. Neither the said persons who were concerned in the formation of this defendant, nor the said persons from whom it has acquired the stocks of said rail- 177

way companies, nor this defendant itself since its formation, nor its stockholders, directors, or officers, have planned or intended that the stock of said railway companies acquired by this defendant, or any part thereof, should be held, used, or voted by it, or by its officers, agents or proxies, for the purpose of combining, consolidating or placing under one common management or control the railways of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, or the business thereof; or for the purpose of monopolizing or restraining competition between the said railway companies; or for any other purpose than the election by each of 178 said railway companies of a competent and distinct board of directors, able and intending to manage each of them independently of the other, and for the benefit of their shareholders and of the public. By the acts of the legislature of the State of Minnesota incorporating the Great Northern Railway Company, and by the acts of the legislature of the State of Wisconsin incorporating the Northern Pacific Railway Company, it is, in substance, provided that the business and affairs of each railway company shall be managed by a board of directors to be elected by the stockholders, and that all the powers of each corporation 179 relating to said matters shall be vested in such board.

Every share of stock issued by this defendant has been issued to the persons and corporations receiving the same in good faith, for full value paid to it, either in cash or its equivalent, and in accordance with the provisions of its articles of incorporation and with the laws of the State of New Jersey. No agreement, promise, or understanding has been made between this defendant and any of its stockholders, or between its stockholders themselves or any of them, or between said stockholders or any other persons or corporations, that the stock of this defendant 180 should be held, used, or voted other than by each stockholder, separately and individually, and in such way as he should see fit; and there has been no agreement, promise, or understanding between said stockholders themselves, or any of them, or between said stockholders and any other person or corporation, that they or any of them should use, hold, or vote their stock in this defendant in association or for any common purpose or object. The owners and holders of stock of this defendant are more than thirteen hundred (1,300) in number, and the ownership of the stock is being changed from day to day by sales and transfers in the usual course of dealing. The said persons who formed or were otherwise concerned in the formation of this defendant have never, all together, held, owned or otherwise controlled an amount of stock of the said company equal to so much as one-third of the whole amount thereof now outstanding. This defendant has no contract or obligation to purchase or acquire any shares whatever in either railway company, in addition to those which it has purchased or negotiated to purchase, as above stated. Its authorized capital was fixed by persons who planned its organization to enable it to give to each stockholder in each of the defendant railway companies an opportunity to sell his stock to it, should he see fit to do so, and should this defendant desire to acquire it. The sum fixed was deemed ample by those who planned the formation of this defendant to furnish the means to pay for all such shares as would likely be acquired by it, and to leave remaining a large amount to be used for the purchase of stock in other corporations, not common carriers, which this defendant might consider beneficial to acquire. This defendant was not formed as a scheme or a device to evade the act of Congress known as the "antitrust act," or any other law whatever, but solely for the purposes hereinbefore stated.

181 182 183

III.

This defendant was not formed, nor did any of those concerned in its formation, nor any of those who sold their shares of stock to it, have any purpose or intention, to restrain trade or commerce, or to lessen competition between said railway companies, or to monopolize traffic in any manner whatever; nor can any such results follow from the formation or operation of this defendant. In point of fact, since the organization of this defendant rates on the defendant railway companies' lines, including rates to and from points common to both, have voluntarily been so reduced as to decrease their earnings by upwards of a million of dollars annually. For all interstate commerce on the lines of either the defendant railway companies, except traffic beginning and ending on their own lines respectively, the rates are fixed by joint tariffs with connecting lines.

184

In respect to all such traffic neither of the defendant companies 185 has ever had, or can have, any independent rate-making power or control of traffic or rates. All joint tariffs with other companies to or from points common to the lines of the defendant railway companies have always been, and necessarily must be, the same, whether the traffic is carried by one or the other of said companies. The total amount of all other interstate traffic, that is, traffic between common points on the two roads, which is not competitive both as to rates and quality of service with other carriers having equal rate-making power with them, is less than 2 per cent of the total interstate traffic of the two 186 companies.

IV.

The sale and transfer of property, whether in the form of shares of corporate stock or otherwise, has never been adjudged to be, and is not, in violation of the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, known as the "antitrust act."

This defendant is not a railroad company, and it has no power to operate or manage railways or make or control rates of transportation, nor to monopolize or restrain traffic of any kind. So far from intending to violate any provision of said 187 act of Congress, the persons who were concerned in organizing this defendant and those who have sold their shares to it had every reason to believe and did believe that such sales were not in any way in contravention of that act. In common with the general public, they were aware that during the eleven years since the passage of that act in many instances the stock of a competing railway company has been acquired by its competitor or the shareholders thereof, such acquisition including many of the principal railways doing business throughout the country. This has been done without objection from any 188 branch of the Government of the United States, and has invariably proven beneficial to the railway companies concerned and to the public, and those making sales of stocks to this defendant had no reason to believe that such sales were open to any legal objection or question whatever.

V.

This defendant was not organized for the purpose of acquiring a majority of the stock of either the Great Northern or the 189 Northern Pacific Company, but merely to purchase the stock of those who wished to sell, as above stated, and was not organized for the purpose of controlling railway rates in the slightest degree, and has not had and can not have any such effect. The transactions referred to in the petition have consisted in the organization of a lawful corporation and the purchase of property by it. All acts done in relation to the organization of this defendant and in the conduct of its business have been expressly authorized by law, and have had no effect whatever to restrain trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign 190 nations. If these lawful transactions should hereafter have any effect to restrain trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations (which is hereby denied), that effect would be merely indirect, remote, incidental, and collateral, and not intended, and as nothing compared with the great expansion of the volume of interstate and international commerce which was intended, and which this defendant believes is destined to result from the enterprise of the two railway companies, that culminated in the purchase of the Burlington stock.

And this defendant says:

191 1. The "antitrust act" was not intended to prevent or defeat an enterprise in aid of a great competitive interstate and international commerce merely because such enterprise may carry with it the possibility of incidental restraint upon some commerce, trifling both as respects territory and volume.

2. Nor was the act intended to limit the power of the several States to create corporations, define their purposes, fix the amount of their capital, and determine who may buy, own, and sell their stock.

3. Otherwise construed, the act would be unconstitutional,
192 because:

The power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States does not give Congress the power to regulate any of the matters above mentioned in respect to corporations created by the States; and because Persons may not be deprived of their property without due process of law, by taking from them the right to sell it as their interest may suggest.

VI.

There is a defect of necessary parties defendant, because, as already set forth, the persons who made sales of stock of the said railway companies to this defendant were numerous, exceeding more than 1,300 in number, and few of them had any connection whatever in the planning or forming of this defendant, and in their absence from this litigation no decree can be made affecting their rights in the premises.

VII.

And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith it is by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause, or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of this defendant; all of which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed, with its reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY,
By JOHN W. GRIGGS,
GEO. B. YOUNG,
Solicitors and Counsel.

14414—03——4

196 Entered 789 C. E.

Circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainants,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } May, 1902.

197 ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANTS JAMES J. HILL, WILLIAM P. CLOUGH, D. WILLIS JAMES, JOHN S. KENNEDY, AND GEORGE F. BAKER.

GEORGE B. YOUNG,
Solicitor for the Defendants.

(Endorsed:) Filed May 5th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

198 THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainants,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.

THE ANSWER OF DEFENDANTS JAMES J. HILL, WILLIAM P. CLOUGH, D. WILLIS JAMES, JOHN S. KENNEDY, AND GEORGE F. BAKER TO THE PETITION OF THE UNITED 199 STATES OF AMERICA.

I.

They admit and aver that the defendant railway companies were at the time mentioned in the petition and are now common carriers employed in transportation of freight and passengers within and among those States of the United States in which the railways operated by them are situated, and not further or otherwise, but were and are engaged in commerce among the several States and with foreign nations.

II. 200

They admit and aver that prior to November 13, 1901, the outstanding capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company was owned by more than eighteen hundred (1,800) separate owners, and the outstanding capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company was owned by more than thirty-five hundred (3,500) separate owners; and that among the shareholders of the Great Northern Railway Company (hereinafter called the Great Northern Company) were the defendants Hill, Clough, James, Morgan, and Kennedy; and that among the shareholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company (hereinafter called 201 the Northern Pacific Company) were the defendants Morgan, Bacon, Baker, Hill, Kennedy, James, and Lamont. They aver that the persons named and meant to be designated as owning, controlling, or as being associated in the ownership and control of a majority of the stock of the Great Northern Company did not at any time, nor in any manner, own or control a majority of said stock, nor as much as one-third (⅓) part thereof. Their holdings in said stock were at all times separate and individual, and not in association with each other, or with any other person or persons, and neither of them was under any obligation or 202 promise to any of the others, or to any other person, to hold, use, or vote his stock otherwise than as he should from time to time determine to be best for his own individual interest. The persons named and meant to be designated as owning, controlling, or as being associated in the ownership and control of a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company did not, at the date named, nor at any time, or in any manner, own or control a majority of such stock, nor as much as one-third (⅓) part thereof. Their holdings in said stock were at all times separate and individual, and neither of them had any control of 202 the holdings of the other, or of any other person or persons, and neither of them was under any promise or obligation to the other, or to any person, to hold, use, or vote his stock otherwise than as he should from time to time determine to be best for his own individual interest.

Except as herein admitted and averred, they deny each and every allegation of subdivision II of the petition.

204 III.

They admit that the Northern Pacific Company owned and operated a railway from Ashland, in Wisconsin, via Duluth, and from St. Paul, across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, and into Oregon, passing through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, and extending to Tacoma and Seattle, in Washington, and to Portland, in Oregon; and the Great Northern Company operated lines of railway extending from St. Paul, in the State of Min-205 nesota, across said State and North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington to Everett and Seattle, in Washington, passing through Spokane, in that State.

They admit that the said lines so operated by said companies connected with other railway lines, and that, either directly or by means of such other railway lines, they connected with lines of steamships on the Great Lakes and the ocean; and that the mileage operated by said companies aggregated about fifty-five hundred (5,500) miles for the Northern Pacific Company and about forty-one hundred and twenty-eight (4,128) miles for the 206 Great Northern Company.

They deny that the lines operated by said companies are parallel or competing, except for the short distances and to the limited extent hereinafter mentioned, and deny that said companies were engaged in active competition with each other, except in the manner and to the extent hereinafter stated.

And except as hereinabove and hereinafter stated, they deny each and every allegation in subdivision III of said petition.

IV.

207 They admit and ever that prior to 1893 those portions, and and those portions only, of the lines of the Northern Pacific Company which had been built and were operated by virtue of the act of Congress incorporating the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, approved July 2, 1864, were owned and operated by the last-named company, and in the year 1893 that company became insolvent and its lines passed into the hands of receivers appointed by various Federal courts.

They admit that while in this condition a contract was made, as set forth in the report of the Pearsall case, referred to in the petition. They aver that said contract was made under and in 208 conformity with the provisions of the act of incorporation of the Great Northern Company, and that the only objection made to the validity of the contract was that the provisions in said charter under which it was made had been repealed by subsequent general laws of the State. For the terms of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, they refer to the report of the case. They deny that the case, or that the decision therein, is correctly stated in the petition. And they aver that neither the said contract nor the issues raised and decided in the said Pearsall case have any relevancy to the matters in contro- 209 versy in this case.

V.

They admit and aver that in the winter and spring of 1901 the defendant railway companies, for the purpose of promoting their several interests and the interests of the country traversed by their lines and by those of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, purchased in equal parts the stock of the last-named company to the amount and at the price and upon the terms of payment stated in the petition. They admit 210 that the lines operated by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company and its connections are substantially as stated in the petition. They deny that what is called in the petition the Burlington System was or is parallel to or competing with what is therein called the Union Pacific System, but admit that some of the lines of each system compete with some lines of the other.

They deny that said purchase of stock was made in contemplation of the ultimate placing of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Systems under a common source of control, or 211 that it was made for any other motive or with any other purpose than is hereinafter stated.

Except as herein admitted, they deny each and every allegation in subdivision V of the petition.

VI.

They deny that prior to the organization of the Northern Securities Company (hereinafter called the Securities Company)

212 the defendants James J. Hill or J. Pierpont Morgan, or said Hill and Morgan, or any persons associated with them, or either of them, owned or controlled a majority of, or held a controlling interest in, the stock of either of said railway companies.

They deny that said persons, or that any of the persons concerned in the formation of the Securities Company, contrived or intended any of the things alleged in subdivision VI of the petition or entered into any agreement or conspiracy to do any of the things charged in said subdivision.

They admit and aver that said James J. Hill and other hold-213 ers (not exceeding ten in number) of the stock of the Great Northern Company, but not including the defendants Morgan, Bacon, and Lamont, did plan the formation of the Northern Securities Company, with an authorized capital of four hundred million dollars ($400,000,000), for the purposes, and those only, set forth in its certificate of incorporation. They deny that James J. Hill and J. P. Morgan agreed between themselves, or with other stockholders of either of the defendant railway companies, or with either of said railway companies, or with the Securities Company, or with any one whomsoever, that a con-
214 trolling interest of the stock of either of said railway companies should be turned over or transferred to the Securities Company, whether in exchange for its stock or otherwise.

They deny that any of the matters stated in subdivision VI of the petition were contemplated or intended in the formation of the Securities Company, or have resulted or will result from its formation and operation. And they deny the allegation that it is the duty of the directors of said railway companies to pursue a policy which will promote the interests of both systems at the expense of the public.

215

VII.

They admit the organization of the Securities Company on November 13, 1901, under the laws of New Jersey, with the articles a copy of which is attached to the petition, and that the provisions of said articles were designedly inserted therein and were fully authorized by the general corporation laws of that State. And they say that the exercise of the powers of a stockholder provided for in said articles was not, as wrongly stated in the petition, confined to the stock of the defendant railway companies which the Securities Company might hold. 216

They aver that the clause in said articles partially quoted in paragraph VII of the petition was not intended to and does not enlarge the powers of said corporation as the same are set forth in the preceding clauses of said articles, but makes clear the power of the company to do such acts as making or procuring advances of money to any corporation whose securities are held by it, the indorsement or guaranty by it of the obligations of such corporation, becoming surety therefor, or in any lawful manner using its name or resources in aid of such corporation. 217

VIII.

They admit and aver that on or about the 14th of November, 1901, the Securities Company was organized by electing directors and officers, and among them the defendant, James J. Hill, as a director and president, but deny that he was or is the controlling power in the management of the Great Northern Company.

They admit that thereafter the defendant, James J. Hill, and certain other stockholders of the Great Northern Company, severally and each acting for himself alone, and without any agreement to that effect with any other stockholder, sold to the Securities Company a large amount of Great Northern stock at one hundred and eighty dollars ($180) per share in exchange for stock of the Securities Company at par, but they aver that the stock so sold was not within twenty-six million dollars ($26,000,000) of a majority of the stock of the Great Northern Company. 218

They admit that thereafter and about November 22, 1901, the Securities Company offered like terms of purchase to the other shareholders of the Great Northern Company, the offer to hold good for sixty days from its date, and that many of the shareholders of that company, each acting for himself alone, accepted such offer and made such sale. 219

They admit that the defendant, J. P. Morgan, and other shareholders of the Northern Pacific Company, sold to the Securities Company a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company, and that the Securities Company has received such dividends as have been paid on the shares held by it in the the same manner and at the same rate as other shareholders; but they 220 deny that the Securities Company has acted, whether as owner of stock or otherwise, in the management or direction of either of said railway companies or in receipt or control of the earnings of either of them, and they aver that no change whatever has taken place in the management of the said railway companies or either of them, and that each of them is managed by the same board of directors and officers as existed before the organization of the Securities Company.

They deny that any of the things done by the defendants, James J. Hill and J. Pierpont Morgan, or by either of them, or 221 by the Securities Company or its promoters, directors, officers, or stockholders, or any of them, were done in pursuance of the pretended combination or conspiracy alleged in subdivision VIII of the petition, or as an instrumentality to effect the purposes thereof, and they deny that by reason of the matters or any of them in the petition alleged a virtual or any consolidation of said defendant railway companies or their business has been effected or intended, and they deny any conspiracy or combination in restraint of trade or commerce among the States or with foreign nations, or that the defendants or any of them are attempting or intending to 222 monopolize or restrain any such trade or commerce.

IX.

They deny each and every allegation in subdivision IX of the petition.

X.

The defendants say that they do not know and can not set forth how much additional stock of either defendant railway company the Securities Company is likely to acquire, since each ac-223 quisition of shares by it depends, among other contingencies, on the willingness of the holders of the said stock to sell it to the Securities Company upon terms which the latter shall be willing to accept.

XI.

These defendants say that the securities company, in acquiring shares of the Great Northern Company and of the Northern Pacific Company, dealt solely with the separate owners of the said shares in their respective individual capacities. They have no knowledge of any agreement, promise, or understanding between any of the holders of said stock concerning the sale thereof to the Securities Company, and deny that any such agreement, promise, or understanding was ever made. All the sales and transfers of the said stock to the Securities Company were absolute and without any reservation of any right or interest in any share thereof to the seller or to any other person. 224

There has been and is no agreement, promise, or understanding between any of the holders of said stock so acquired by the Securities Company, or between any of them and any other person or corporation, that any of said shares should at any time be held, used, or voted by the Securities Company for the purpose of combining or consolidating or placing under one common management or control the railways of the Great Northern Company and of the Northern Pacific Company, or the business thereof, or for the purpose of monopolizing or restraining traffic or competition between the said railways. Many stockholders of the said companies have not sold, and may never sell, their shares to the Securities Company; and the said railway companies have not nor have any of the directors of either of them, by any act, either formal or informal, or by suggestion, ever solicited any of their respective shareholders to sell their shares to the Securities Company. They say that the Securities Company was organized in good faith, and they deny all the allegations in subdivision XI of the petition. 225 226

XII.

They deny each and every allegation in subdivision XII of the petition.

XIII.

They deny each and every allegation in subdivision XIII of the petition. 227

SECOND.

Further answering the petition, these defendants say that the facts as to the purchase of the shares of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Burlington Company) and the projecting and forming of the Securities Company, and the motives, intentions, and purposes

228 of the persons and corporations concerned in these enterprises, or either of them, are not as erroneously stated in the petition, but were and are as follows:

I.

When projecting the line of the Great Northern Company to the Pacific coast that company and its directors contemplated the necessity of creating for the line not merely State and interstate, but an international, commerce. Nearly all the country traversed or reached by the line was then but sparsely 229 settled or not settled at all. It was principally agricultural, grazing, or timber land, with mineral deposits in the mountain ranges believed to be large and valuable, but not developed or explored. Whatever commodities the region might furnish for carriage would be raw material, of great weight and bulk in proportion to its value, which would not bear transportation to market except at a low mileage rate, such as could be made possible only by every practical reduction in the cost of transportation. The available market for all such products was far from the places of production.

230 In Washington and Oregon are the largest and finest bodies of standing timber in the United States, the best market for which is in the prairie States of the Mississippi Valley east of the Rocky Mountains; but the lumber and shingles from the Pacific coast would not bear the cost of transportation to those States if the cars carrying them had to be hauled back empty, or nearly so, for a distance of from 1,500 to 2,000 miles. And the same is true of the other products. On the other hand, the unoccupied or sparsely populated country along the line or reached by it could not furnish a market for commodities 231 enough to load the returning cars; the result being that unless the company could secure traffic for carriage beyond the Pacific coast no great traffic either way could exist or be created.

To meet these conditions the Great Northern Company not only went to great additional expense in the construction of its line to obtain gradients lower than those of any other line to the Pacific coast, but also made great efforts to create and increase in the countries of eastern Asia a demand for the products of this country; and soon after the completion of its railway in 1893 it induced a Japanese company to run a line of steamships, 232 connecting with its railway, on the route between Seattle and ports of Japan, China, and Russian Siberia, and succeeded in creating, and has since been actively engaged in building up, a commerce in which the flour manufactured along its line, cotton (both raw and manufactured), iron and steel (especially steel rails and plates), machinery, and such other manufactures of this country as a market could be found or made for in eastern Asia, have been carried to oriental ports, and return cargoes of such oriental products as are consumed in this country have been brought back. A large westbound, as well as an increased 233 eastbound, traffic has thus been secured by the company, enabling it to make such rates on lumber and other products of the country served by it as permit them to be shipped to Eastern markets with profit to the shipper.

One year before the Burlington purchase this oriental traffic had reached such proportions that the Great Northern Company caused to be begun the construction of steamships to run from Seattle to ports in Japan, China, and the Philippines, which, from their great carrying capacity (being the largest in the world), will be able to carry at very low rates (if full cargoes 234 can be secured), and thus enable the company to move the largest volume of westbound traffic (and also of eastbound traffic) at the lowest cost.

In the interstate and international commerce which the Great Northern Company has thus built up it competes both in this country and on the ocean with the other transcontinental lines (including the Canadian Pacific) and at the oriental ports it competes for commerce of the world. Its rates are, and must be, made in competition with the rates of ocean carriers and by way of the Suez Canal.

235

The policy thus followed by the Great Northern Company in building up an international, and thereby interstate, commerce has been followed by the Northern Pacific Company since its reorganization in 1896.

In creating and maintaining this competitive interstate and international commerce both the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company were hampered and placed at a disadvantage with the other transcontinental railways, as well as with European competitors, by the want of sufficient direct

236 connection with the territory offering the best markets for the products of the country along their lines, and with the places of production and great centers of distribution from which their traffic must be supplied. And for many months before the purchase of the Burlington shares they had considered the best means of getting closer to such markets and sources of supply. The lines of the Burlington, better than those of any other company, fulfilled the requirements of both the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company in respect of markets for eastbound and freight for westbound traffic. The 237 Burlington lines traverse the treeless States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas, and Colorado, which afford the best markets for the lumber of the Pacific coast. They reach Denver, Kansas City, Omaha, and Aurora, where are located the principal smelters of silver-lead ores, such as are mined near the lines of the defendant railway companies.

They reach Omaha, Kansas City, and Chicago, where are the great packing houses and the great markets for the cattle and sheep of the ranges of North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.

238 They reach St. Louis and Kansas City, connecting there with lines traversing the cotton States, from which come raw and manufactured cotton required for shipment to China and Japan.

At Chicago and St. Louis they connect with the lines which reach the points of supply of manufactured iron, steel, machinery, and other manufactured articles that find a market in Japan and China.

The Burlington line southward from Minneapolis and St. Paul along the Mississippi River reaches the great coal deposits of southern Illinois, the largest west of Pennsylvania and West 239 Virginia; and its light gradients and consequent low cost of transportation make it possible to supply such coal to points on the lines of each defendant railway company east of the Missouri River, relieving the people and the railways of that great territory from entire dependence upon the Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines, the supply from which is yearly becoming more costly and less certain.

The price paid for said Burlington stock was lower per mile of main track covered by the stock than that for which the stock of any other large and well-established system, in the same general territory, could then have been bought. 240

The purchase of the Burlington stock by the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern companies in equal parts served each company as well as if it were the sole owner of such stock, while such purchase might have been beyond the financial means of either company by itself.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific Companies therefore each purchased an equal number of shares of the Burlington stock as the best means and for the sole purpose of reaching the best markets for the products of the territory along their lines and of securing connections which would furnish the largest amount of traffic for their respective roads, increase the trade and interchange of commodities between the regions traversed by the Burlington lines and their connections and the region traversed or reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines, and by their connecting lines of shipping on the Pacific coast. These connections and such interchange of traffic were deemed to be and are indispensable to the maintenance of their business, local as well as interstate, and to the development of the country served by their respective lines, and of like advantage to the Burlington lines and the country served by them, and strengthen each company in the competition with the more southerly lines to the Pacific coast, with the Canadian Pacific Railway, and with European carriers for the trade and commerce of the Orient. 241 242

In such purchase there was no purpose to lessen any competition of the Burlington lines with those of either of the purchasers, for they are not competitive, or to lessen any competition between the purchasers. Such purchase was not intended to have, and it can not have, any such effect. 243

The purchase of the Burlington stock was not made in view of the formation of the Securities Company, but solely from the motives and with the purposes already stated.

II.

The project of forming a holding company of any kind was not the result, in any way, of the failure of the plan which was defeated by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Pearsall case. There was no connection whatever between the two.

244 The project of a holding company which finally developed into the formation of the company incorporated November 13, 1901, had its inception years before that date, among several gentlemen, to wit, Mr. James J. Hill, Mr. John S. Kennedy, Mr. Samuel Thorne, Mr. D. Willis James, and others, not exceeding ten in number altogether, who had been large shareholders in the Great Northern Company and its predecessor, the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company, some of them from the original organization of the latter company in 1879 and others from dates not long after that time. They 245 have never held a majority of the stock of the Great Northern Company, but have taken an active interest in its policy and administration; have aided it when necessary in financing its operations; have acted together in promoting its interests; have, with some exceptions, served from time to time as directors and officers (Mr. Hill having been president of the successive companies since 1882), and by reason of their active interest in the company and services to it have influenced to a large degree its policy and management. As far back as 1893, most of these gentlemen being well advanced and some far advanced 246 in years, they began to discuss together what would be the effect upon the policy which under their influence the company had pursued with great benefit to its shareholders and the public should their holdings by death or otherwise become scattered, and by what means their holdings could be kept together, so as to secure the continuance of such policy in the management of the company. It was considered that if a company should be formed to which they might transfer their individual holdings their shares were likely to be held together so long as the majority in the holding company should so wish, and this would 247 tend to give stability to the policy of the Great Northern Company, be of aid to it in financial operations, and maintain the value of their investments. These conclusions were the result of various consultations among the persons mentioned, or some of them, but no definite agreement was made for forming such a company or binding anyone to transfer his shares to it if formed.

From time to time, beginning with the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Company in 1896, Mr. Hill and said other Great Northern shareholders who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company had made large purchases 248 of Northern Pacific shares individually, each for himself, without any concerted action and solely as investments. About May 1, 1901, their aggregate holdings of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Company amounted to nearly twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) of the eighty million dollars ($80,000,000) common stock of the company, which also had a preferred stock amounting to seventy-five million dollars ($75,000,000), with the same voting power as the common stock. At this time the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. held about six million dollars ($6,000,000) of the common stock. In the fall 249 of 1900 Mr. Hill and said Great Northern shareholders discussed the question of putting their holdings of Northern Pacific stock into the proposed holding company, as well as the suggestion that all the other stockholders of the Great Northern Company should be given the opportunity of selling and transferring their shares to the holding company, and that its capital stock should be made large enough to enable it to buy such holdings, though it was not known that the holders of any considerable amount of Great Northern stock, other than those above named, would desire to make such transfer, but no agreement of 250 any kind was entered into.

At the time of the purchase of the Burlington shares it was not contemplated by either purchasing company or its shareholders that any alliance between the purchasing companies or among their shareholders was needed to preserve to each company its fair share of the advantages secured by the purchase. It was thought that the manifest interest of each company rendered any further guaranty or security needless. But pending or just after the conclusion of the negotiations for the Burlington stock parties acting in the interest of the Union Pacific Rail- 251 way system did purchase Northern Pacific shares, both common and preferred, to the amount of about seventy-eight million dollars ($78,000,000), being a clear majority of the entire capital stock of that company. The apparent intent of such purchase was to defeat, and if successful it would have defeated, the carrying out of the purposes for which the Burlington shares had been bought by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies and the development of the interstate and international commerce of each of them, and would have subordi-

252 nated the policy of each to an interest adverse to both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies and to the public served by their lines.

To protect the interests of the shareholders of the Northern Pacific Company, J. P. Morgan & Co. made additional purchases of Northern Pacific common stock, which, with the holdings in said stock of Mr. Hill and other Great Northern shareholders who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, constituted about forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000), being a majority of the common stock. In view of the injury
253 apprehended to both companies, and to their shareholders, and the better to protect their interests in the future, the Great Northern shareholders holding Northern Pacific shares deemed it advisable that the projected holding company should have power to purchase not only their own Great Northern and Northern Pacific shares, but also the shares of such other Great Northern and Northern Pacific shareholders as might wish to sell their stock to said holding company, and the shares of companies already formed, and others that might be formed, for the purpose of aiding the traffic or operations of the Great Northern 254 and Northern Pacific companies, respectively. At this time it was not expected by any of the persons concerned that any Northern Pacific shares except the said forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000) would be acquired by the proposed holding company. The organization of that company was not dependent on any agreement that it should acquire a majority of the shares of either defendant railway company. It would have been organized if the Burlington purchase had not been made, and if its promoters had had no other shares to transfer to it than the thirty-four million dollars ($34,000,000) Great Northern stock
255 and the twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) Northern Pacific stock, held by them on May 1, 1901. It was not known that all or how many of the shareholders of either of the railway companies would be likely to transfer their shares to the Securities Company. After its organization that company bought and still holds about one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company; and it has also purchased and negotiated for the purchase of the stock of the Great Northern Company, as hereinbefore stated. Neither the said persons who were concerned in the formation of the Securities Company, nor the said persons from whom the Securities Company has acquired the stocks of said railway companies, nor the Securities Company itself since its formation, nor its stockholders, directors, or officers, have planned or intended that the stock of said railway companies acquired by the Securities Company, or any part thereof, should be held, used, or voted by the Securities Company, or by its officers, agents, or proxies, for the purpose of combining, consolidating, or placing under one common management or control the railways of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies or the business thereof; or for the purpose of monopolizing or restraining competition between the said railway companies; or for any other purpose than the election by each of said railway companies of a competent and distinct board of directors, able and intending to manage each of them independently of the other, and for the benefit of their shareholders and of the public. By the acts of the legislature of the State of Minnesota incorporating the Great Northern Railway Company, and by the acts of the legislature of the State of Wisconsin incorporating the Northern Pacific Railway Company, it is, in substance, provided that the business and affairs of each railway company shall be managed by a board of directors to be elected by the stockholders, and that all the powers of each corporation relating to said matters shall be vested in such board.

256 257 258

Every share of stock issued by the Northern Securities Company has been issued to the persons and corporations receiving the same in good faith, for full value paid to the Securities Company, either in cash or its equivalent, and in accordance with the provisions of its articles of incorporation and with the laws of the State of New Jersey. No agreement, promise, or understanding has been made between the Securities Company and any of its stockholders, or between its stockholders themselves, or any of them, or between said stockholders or any other persons or corporations, that the stock of the Securities Company should be held, used, or voted other than by each stockholder, separately and individually, and in such way as he should see fit, and there has been no agreement, promise, or understanding between said stockholders themselves, or any of them, or between said stockholders and any other person or corporation,

259

260 that they, or any of them, should use, hold, or vote their stock in the Securities Company in association or for any common purpose or object. The owners and holders of stock of the Securities Company are more than thirteen hundred (1,300) in number, and the ownership of the stock is being changed from day to day, by sales and transfers, in the usual course of dealing. The said persons who formed or were otherwise concerned in the formation of the said Securities Company have never, all together, held, owned, or otherwise controlled an amount of stock of the said company equal to so much as one-third of the whole
261 amount thereof now outstanding. The authorized capital of the Securities Company was deemed by those who planned its formation ample to furnish the means to pay for all such shares of the defendant railway companies as would likely be acquired by it, and to leave remaining a large amount to be used for the purchase of stock in other corporations not common carriers which the Securities Company might consider beneficial to acquire. The Securities Company was not formed as a scheme or a device to evade the act of Congress known as the "antitrust act," or any other law whatever, but solely for the purposes 262 hereinbefore stated.

III.

The Securities Company was not formed, nor did any of the projectors of such company, nor any of those who sold their shares of stock to it, have any purpose or intention to restrain trade or commerce, or to lessen competition between said railway companies, or to monopolize traffic in any manner whatever; nor can any such results follow from the organization or operation of that company. In point of fact, since the organization 263 of the Securities Company rates on the defendant railway companies' lines, including rates to and from points common to both, have voluntarily been so reduced as to decrease their earnings by upward of a million of dollars annually. For all interstate commerce on the lines of either the defendant railway companies, except traffic beginning and ending on their own lines, respectively, the rates are fixed by joint tariffs with connecting lines. In respect to all such traffic neither of the defendant companies has ever had, or can have, any independent rate-making power or control of traffic or rates. All joint tariffs with other companies to or from points common to the 264

lines of the defendant railway companies have always been, and necessarily must be, the same, whether the traffic is carried by one or the other of said companies. The total amount of all other interstate traffic—that is, traffic between common points on the two roads, which is not competitive both as to rates and quality of service with other carriers having equal rate-making power with them—is less than 2 per cent of the total interstate traffic of the two companies.

IV.

265

These defendants say that the Securities Company was not organized for the purpose of acquiring a majority of the stock of either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern Company, but merely to purchase the stock of those who wished to sell, as above stated, and was not organized for the purpose of controlling railway rates in the slightest degree, and has not had and can not have such effect.

The transactions referred to in the petition have consisted in the organization of a lawful corporation and the purchase of property by it, and the persons who were concerned in the 266 organization of the Securities Company, and those who have sold their shares to it, had every reason to believe, and did believe, that such sales were not in contravention of the act of Congress known as the "antitrust act."

In common with the general public they were aware that during the eleven years since the passage of that act in many instances the stock of a competing railway has been acquired by its competitor, or the shareholders thereof, such acquisitions including many of the principal railways doing business throughout the country. This has been done without objection 267 from any branch of the Government of the United States, and has in every instance proved beneficial to the railways concerned and to the public. The Securities Company, as now existing, became and is necessary as a defensive measure against attempts of rival interests to gain control of the direction of one or both of defendant railway companies and defeat the great enterprise they had undertaken of establishing a large international and interstate traffic, and the effect of its organization upon interstate commerce must be determined upon consideration of the enterprise as a whole. If these lawful transactions, consisting of the purchase and sale of property, should hereafter have any effect in restraint of trade or commerce among the States or with foreign nations (which is hereby denied), that effect would be indirect, remote, incidental, not intended, and as nothing compared with the great expansion of the volume of interstate and international commerce which was intended, and which the defendants believe is destined, to result from the enterprise of the two railway companies that culminated in the purchase of the Burlington stock.

And these defendants say:

1. The "antitrust act" was not intended to prevent or defeat an enterprise in aid of a great competitive interstate and international commerce merely because such enterprise may carry with it the possibility of incidental restraint upon some commerce, trifling both as respects territory and volume.

2. Nor was the act intended to limit the power of the several States to create corporations, define their purposes, fix the amount of their capital, and determine who may buy, own, and sell their stock.

3. Otherwise construed, the act would be unconstitutional, because—

The power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States does not give Congress the power to regulate any of the matters above mentioned in respect to corporations created by the States; and because—

Persons may not be deprived of their property without due process of law, by taking from them the right to sell it as their interest may suggest.

V.

There is a defect of necessary parties defendant herein, because, as already set forth, the persons who made sales of stock of the said railway companies to the Securities Company were numerous, exceeding more than 1,300 in number, and few of them had any connection whatever in the planning or forming of that company, and in their absence from this litigation no decree can be made affecting their rights in the premises.

VI. 272

And these defendants deny all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith they are by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause, or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for these defendants to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of these defendants; all of which matters and things these defendants are ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly pray to be hence dismissed, with their reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained. 273

JAMES J. HILL.
WILLIAM P. CLOUGH.
D. WILLIS JAMES.
JOHN S. KENNEDY.
GEORGE F. BAKER.
By GEO. B. YOUNG,
Solicitor and Counsel. 274

Entered 789, C. Eq.

Circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainants, against NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } May, 1902. 275

ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANT GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

M. D. GROVER,
Solicitor for the Defendant.

(Indorsed:) Filed May 5, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

276 In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainants,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.

277 THE ANSWER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY TO THE PETITION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

I.

This defendant admits and avers that the defendant railway companies were, at the time mentioned in the petition and are now, common carriers employed in transportation of freight and passengers within and among those States of the United States in which the railways operated by them are situated, and not further or otherwise, but were and are engaged in commerce
278 among the several States and with foreign nations.

II.

This defendant admits that on and prior to November 13, 1901, the capital stock of the defendant railway companies was owned and controlled by their respective shareholders, and it avers that the outstanding capital stock of this defendant was owned by more than eighteen hundred (1,800) separate owners, and that among its shareholders were the defendants Hill, 279 Clough, James, Morgan, and Kennedy. It avers that the persons named and meant to be designated in the petition as owning, controlling, or as being associated in the ownership and control of a majority of the stock of this defendant, did not at any time nor in any manner own or control a majority of said stock, nor as much as one-third ($\frac{1}{3}$) part thereof. Their holdings in said stock were at all times separate and individual, and not in association with each other, or with any other person or persons.

Except as herein admitted and averred, the defendant denies each and every allegation of subdivision II of the petition.

III. 280

This defendant admits that the Northern Pacific Company owned and operated a railway from Ashland, in Wisconsin, via Duluth, and from St. Paul, across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, and into Oregon, passing through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, and extending to Tacoma and Seattle in Washington, and to Portland in Oregon; and that this defendant operated lines of railway extending from St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, across said State and North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington to Everett and Seattle in Washington, passing through Spokane in that State. 281

It admits that the said lines connected with other railway lines, and that, either directly or by means of such other railway lines, they connected with lines of steamships on the Great Lakes and the ocean; and that the mileage operated by said companies aggregated about fifty-five hundred (5,500) miles for the Northern Pacific Company and about forty-one hundred and twenty-eight (4,128) miles for this defendant.

It denies that said lines are parallel or competing, except for the short distances and to the limited extent hereinafter mentioned, and denies that this defendant and the Northern Pacific Company were engaged in active competition with each other, except in the manner and to the extent hereinafter stated. Except as hereinabove and hereinafter stated, it denies each and every allegation in subdivision III of said petition. 282

IV.

The defendant admits and avers that prior to 1893 those portions, and those portions only, of the lines of the Northern Pacific Company which had been built and were operated by virtue of the act of Congress incorporating the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, approved July 2, 1864, were owned and operated by the last-named company, and that in the year 1893 that company became insolvent and its lines passed into the hands of receivers appointed by various Federal courts. 283

It admits that while in this condition a contract was made, as set forth in the report of the Pearsall case, referred to in the petition. It avers that said contract was made under and in

284 conformity with the provisions of the act of incorporation of this defendant, and that the only objection made to the validity of the contract was that the provisions in said charter under which it was made had been repealed by subsequent general laws of the State. It denies that the case or that the decision therein is correctly stated in the petition. And it avers that neither the said contract nor the issues raised and decided in the said case have any relevancy to the matters in controversy in this case.

V.

285 This defendant admits and avers that in the winter and spring of 1901, it and the Northern Pacific Company, for the purpose of promoting their several interests and the interests of the country traversed by their lines and by those of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, purchased in equal parts the stock of the last named company to the amount and at the price and upon the terms of payment stated in the petition. It admits that the lines operated by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company and its connections are substantially as stated in the petition. It denies that what is called in the 286 petition the Burlington System was or is parallel to or competing with what is therein called the Union Pacific System, but admits that some of the lines of each system compete with some lines of the other.

It denies that said purchase of stock was made in contemplation of the ultimate placing of the system of this defendant and that of the Northern Pacific Company under a common source of control, or that it was made for any other motive or with any other purpose than as hereinafter stated.

Except as herein admitted, it denies each and every allegation 287 in subdivision V of the petition.

VI.

This defendant says that it knows not and has not been informed, save by the petition, and can not set forth its belief or otherwise as to any of the matters or things alleged or charged in subdivisions VI and VII of the petition as having been done, contrived, or attempted by the parties in said subdivision named or any of them.

VII. 288

This defendant further says it knows not and has not been informed, save by the petition, and can not set forth its belief, or otherwise, in respect to any of the matters charged in subdivisions VIII, IX, X, XI, XII, and XIII of the petition, except that it admits the organization of the Northern Securities Company, with the articles of incorporation, of which a copy is annexed to the petition.

VIII.

Further answering the petition, this defendant says that the 289 facts as to the purchase of the shares of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Burlington Company) were and are as follows:

When projecting the line of this defendant to the Pacific coast, its directors contemplated the necessity of creating for the line not merely State and interstate, but an international commerce. Nearly all the country traversed or reached by the line was then but sparsely settled or not settled at all. It was principally agricultural, grazing, or timber land, with mineral deposits in the mountain ranges believed to be large and valuable, but 290 not developed or explored. Whatever commodities the region might furnish for carriage would be raw material, of great weight and bulk in proportion to its value, which would not bear transportation to market except at low mileage rate, such as could be made possible only by every practicable reduction in the cost of transportation. The available market for all such products was far from the places of production.

In Washington and Oregon are the largest and finest bodies of standing timber in the United States, the best market for which is in the prairie States of the Mississippi Valley east of 291 the Rocky Mountains, but the lumber and shingles from the Pacific coast would not bear the cost of transportation to those States if the cars carrying them had to be hauled back empty, or nearly so, for a distance of from 1,500 to 2,000 miles. And the same is true of the other products. On the other hand, the unoccupied or sparsely populated country along the line, or reached by it, could not furnish a market for commodities enough to load the returning cars; the result being that unless 292 the company could secure traffic for carriage beyond the Pacific coast no great traffic either way could exist or be created.

To meet these conditions this defendant company not only went to great additional expense in the construction of its line to obtain gradients lower than those of any other line to the Pacific coast, but also made great efforts to create and increase in the countries of Eastern Asia a demand for the products of this country; and soon after the completion of its railway in 1893 it induced a Japanese company to run a line of steamships, connecting with its railway, on the route between Seattle and 293 ports of Japan, China, and Russian Siberia, and succeeded in creating and has since been actively engaged in building up a commerce in which the flour manufactured along its line, cotton (both raw and manufactured), iron and steel (especially steel rails and plates), machinery, and such other manufactures of this country as a market could be found or made for in Eastern Asia have been carried to oriental ports, and return cargoes of such oriental products as are consumed in this country have been brought back. A large westbound, as well as an increased eastbound, traffic has thus been secured by the company, enabling 294 it to make such rates on lumber and other products of the country served by it as permit them to be shipped to eastern markets with a profit to the shippers.

One year before the Burlington purchase, this oriental traffic had reached such proportions that this defendant caused to be begun the construction of steamships to run from Seattle to ports in Japan, China, and the Philippines, which, from their great carrying capacity (being the largest in the world), will be able to carry at very low rates (if full cargoes can be secured), and thus enable the company to move the largest volume of west-295 bound traffic (and also of eastbound traffic) at the lowest cost.

In the interstate and international commerce which this defendant has thus built up, it competes both in this country and on the ocean with the other transcontinental lines (including the Canadian Pacific), and at the oriental ports it competes for commerce of the world. Its rates are and must be made in competition with the rates of ocean carriers and by way of the Suez Canal.

The policy thus followed by this defendant in building up an international, and thereby interstate, commerce has been followed by the Northern Pacific Company since its reorganization in 1896. 296

In creating and maintaining this competitive interstate and international commerce, both this defendant and the Northern Pacific Company were hampered and placed at a disadvantage with the other transcontinental railways, as well as with European competitors, by the want of sufficient direct connection with the territory offering the best markets for the products of the country along their lines, and with the places of production and great centers of distribution from which their traffic must be supplied. And for many months before the purchase of the 297
Burlington shares they had considered the best means of getting closer to such markets and sources of supply. The lines of the Burlington, better than those of any other company, fulfilled the requirements of both this defendant and the Northern Pacific Company in respect of markets for eastbound and freight for westbound traffic. The Burlington lines traverse the treeless States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas, and Colorado, which afford the best markets for the lumber of the Pacific coast. They reach Denver, Kansas City, Omaha, and Aurora, where are located the principal 298 smelters of silver-lead ores, such as are mined near the lines of the defendant railway companies.

They reach Omaha, Kansas City, and Chicago, where are the great packing houses and the great markets for the cattle and sheep of the ranges of North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.

They reach St. Louis and Kansas City, connecting there with lines traversing the cotton States, from which come raw and manufactured cotton required for shipment to China and Japan. 299

At Chicago and St. Louis they connect with the lines which reach the points of supply of manufactured iron, steel, machinery, and other manufactured articles that find a market in Japan and China.

The Burlington line southward from Minneapolis and St. Paul along the Mississippi River reaches the great coal deposits of southern Illinois, the largest west of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and its light gradients and consequent low cost of transportation make it possible to supply such coal to points on the lines of each defendant railway company east of the Missouri River, relieving the people and the railways of that great territory from entire dependence upon the Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines, the supply from which is yearly becoming more costly and less certain.

The price paid for said Burlington stock was lower per mile of main track covered by the stock than that for which the stock of any other large and well-established system in the same general territory could then have been bought.

The purchase of the Burlington stock by the Northern Pacific Company and this defendant in equal parts served each company as well as if it were the sole owner of such stock, while such purchase might have been beyond the financial means of either company by itself.

This defendant and the Northern Pacific Company therefore each purchased an equal number of shares of the Burlington stock as the best means and for the sole purpose of reaching the best markets for the products of the territory along their lines, and of securing connections which would furnish the largest amount of traffic for their respective roads, increase the trade and interchange of commodities between the regions traversed by the Burlington lines and their connections and the regions traversed or reached by the lines of this defendant and those of the Northern Pacific Company and by their connecting lines of shipping on the Pacific coast. These connections and such interchange of traffic were deemed to be and are indispensable to the maintenance of their business, local as well as interstate, and to the development of the country served by their respective lines, and of like advantage to the Burlington lines and the country served by them, and strengthen each company in the competition with the more southerly lines to the Pacific coast, with the Canadian Pacific Railway, and with European carriers, for the trade and commerce of the Orient.

In such purchase there was no purpose to lessen any competition of the Burlington lines with those of either of the purchasers, for they are not competitive, or to lessen any competition between the purchasers. Such purchase was not intended to have, and it can not have, any such effect.

The purchase of the Burlington stock was not made in view of the formation of the Northern Securities Company, but solely 304 from the motives and with the purposes already stated.

This defendant says, for all interstate commerce on the lines of either of the defendant railway companies, except traffic beginning and ending on their own lines respectively, the rates are fixed by joint tariffs with connecting lines. In respect to all such traffic neither of the defendant companies has ever had, or can have, any independent rate-making power or control of traffic or rates. All joint tariffs with other companies to or from points common to the lines of the defendant railway companies have always been, and necessarily must be, the same, 305 whether the traffic is carried by one or the other of said companies. The total amount of all other interstate traffic—that is, traffic between common points on the two roads—which is not competitive both as to rates and quality of service with other carriers having equal rate-making power with them, is less than 2 per cent of the total interstate traffic of the two companies.

And this defendant says, that the control of the direction of one of the defendant railway companies, by a rival interest, might defeat the great enterprise they had undertaken of establishing a large international and interstate traffic, and impose 306 upon the other all the burdens of the joint obligations incurred, amounting to more than $220,000,000, while taking from it all the benefits of the purchase of the Burlington shares.

IX.

And this defendant says, that its acts of incorporation provide that the shares of its capital stock shall be deemed personal property, and shall be transferable in such manner as its regulations or by-laws shall prescribe. The by-laws of this defend- 307 ant, made pursuant to the said acts, direct that transfers of shares of its stock may be made by the surrender of the certificate issued therefor, and a written assignment thereof, signed by the owner, or his duly authorized attorney in fact, upon a book, to be called the "Register of transfers," and that without such surrender and assignment no transfer of stock will be recognized by this defendant.

Prior to the filing of the petition herein, holders of regular certificates for this defendant's stock, individually and separately, and in the usual course of dealing, surrendered such certificates

308 to this defendant, and at the same time duly assigned, in writing, upon the said register of transfers, the shares covered thereby to the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, and thereupon, in each of such instances, this defendant recognized such transfer, and issued to the Securities Company its certificate therefor, as by law it was required to do.

The said transfers covered, in the aggregate, not to exceed five-twelfths ($\frac{5}{12}$) of the total number of shares of this defendant's stock now outstanding.

And this defendant says:

309 1. The "antitrust act" was not intended to prevent or defeat an enterprise, in aid of a great competitive interstate and international commerce, merely because such enterprise may carry with it the possibility of incidental restraint upon some commerce, trifling both as respects territory and volume.

2. Nor was the act intended to limit the power of the several States to create corporations, define their purposes, fix the amount of their capital, and determine who may buy, own, and sell their stock.

3. Otherwise construed, the act would be unconstitutional,

310 because:

The power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States does not give Congress the power to regulate any of the matters above mentioned in respect to corporations created by the States; and because

Persons may not be deprived of their property, without due process of law, by taking from them the right to sell it, as their interest may suggest.

X.

311 There is a defect of necessary parties defendant, because, as already set forth, the persons who made sales of stock of the defendant railway companies to the defendant the Northern Securities Company were numerous, exceeding more than 1,300 in number, and few of them had any connection whatever in the planning or forming of the said Securities Company, and in their absence from this litigation no decree can be made affecting their rights in the premises.

XI. 312

And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith it is by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause, or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of this defendant; all of which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed, with its reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained. 313

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY,
By M. D. GROVER, Solicitor and Counsel.

Entered 789, C. Eq.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota. 314

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } May, 1902.

ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANT THE NORTHERN PACFIC RAILWAY COMPANY. 315

C. W. BUNN,
Solicitor for the Defendant.

(Endorsed:) Filed May 5th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

316 In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
} May, 1902.

317 THE ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANT THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY TO THE PETITION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

I. This defendant admits the allegations of paragraph I of the petition that this defendant and the Great Northern Railway Company were at the times mentioned in said petition and now are common carriers employed in the transportation of freight and passengers among the several States of the United States within which the railways operated by them are situated.

318 This defendant denies each and every other allegation of paragraph I of the petition.

II. This defendant admits the allegations of paragraph II of the petition that prior to November 13, 1901, the stock of this defendant was owned and controlled by its shareholders, and that among them were the parties in that behalf alleged.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of paragraph II of the petition.

III. This defendant admits the allegations of paragraph III

319 of the petition that this defendant at the times mentioned owned and operated a railway extending from Ashland in Wisconsin via Duluth, Minnesota, and from St. Paul, Minnesota, across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, passing through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, and extending to Tacoma and Seattle, in Washington, and to Portland, in Oregon; that the Great Northern Company operated lines of railway extending from St. Paul aforesaid across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, passing through Spokane and extending to Everett and Seattle, in the State last aforesaid; that the 320 said lines connected with other railway lines, and either directly or by means of such other railway lines connected with lines of steamships on the Great Lakes and the ocean, and that the mileage operated by said companies aggregated about five thousand five hundred miles for this defendant and about four thousand one hundred and twenty-eight miles for the Great Northern Company.

This defendant denies each and every other allegation of paragraph III of the petition.

IV. This defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph IV 321 of the petition that, prior to the year 1893, a corporation known as the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, organized and existing under certain acts and resolutions of Congress, and which then operated some parts of the lines of this defendant, became insolvent and was placed in the hands of receivers appointed by various courts of the United States; that, while in this condition, a plan of reorganization was entered into by the bondholders of said company, and that an arrangement was proposed between the said bondholders and the Great Northern Company which was never carried out. This defendant admits that a case en- 322 titled Pearsall against the Great Northern Railway Company was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States on March 30, 1896, and is reported in volume 161 of the reports of said court, beginning on page 696.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of Paragraph IV of the petition. It is informed and believes that said paragraph is wholly irrelevant to the cause of action, if any, stated in the petition.

V. This defendant admits the allegations in Paragraph V of 323 the petition that early in the year 1901 this defendant and the Great Northern Company, acting for the purpose of promoting their several interests, each purchased shares of stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company of Illinois, paying therefor with the joint bonds of the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company, payable in twenty years from date, with interest at 4 per cent per annum, at the rate of $200 in bonds for each $100 in stock, and in this manner the said companies severally purchased and acquired each about 49 per cent of said stock; that the lines operated by said Burlington Company and its connections were geographically as stated in the petition, and that some of said lines compete with some lines of what is called in the petition the Union Pacific system.

This purchase was made by these defendants primarily in order to secure a terminus in Chicago and permanent connection with the Eastern and Southeastern markets, which are especially valuable to the agricultural and mineral products of the Northwest, and also because the Burlington system serves a large and growing territory, and the purchase was deemed desirable and profitable in itself. It had no connection with the future formation of any company whatsoever and was not made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States, and was not in violation of any such law.

This defendant denies each and every other allegation of Paragraph V of the petition. It is informed and believes that said paragraph is wholly irrelevant to the cause of action, if any, stated in the petition.

VI. This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every allegation of Paragraph VI of the petition.

VII. This defendant admits the allegation of Paragraph VII of the petition, that the defendant Northern Securities Company was heretofore organized, as it is informed and believes, under the general laws of the State of New Jersey.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of Paragraph VII of the petition.

VIII. This defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph VIII of the petition that the defendant, Northern Securities Company, has purchased and now holds and owns a large majority of the capital stock of this defendant, and that the Securities Company has received such dividends as have been paid on any shares held by it.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of Paragraph VIII of the petition.

IX. This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every allegation of Para- 328 graph IX of the petition.

X. This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every allegation of Paragraph X of the petition.

XI. This defendant denies each and every allegation of Paragraph XI of the petition.

XII. This defendant denies each and every allegation of Paragraph XII of the petition. It is informed and believes that said paragraph consists merely of expressions of opinion, and is, therefore, without weight in support of any cause of action. 329

XIII. This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every allegation of Paragraph XIII of the petition.

XIV. As this defendant is informed and believes, the purchase by the Northern Securities Company of shares of stock of this defendant and the sale thereof by the owners have been expressly authorized by law. They have had no effect whatever, in law or in fact, in restraint or monopoly of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations. The petition does not allege that at any place within the jurisdiction 330 of this court or elsewhere any such restraint or monopoly has been effected.

If these lawful transactions, consisting merely of the purchase and sale of property, should hereafter have any effect in restraint or monopoly of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, that would not be their direct effect, but would be merely indirect, remote, incidental, and collateral, and would, therefore, not bring said transactions within said act of Congress above mentioned. Any other construction would render the statute unconstitutional, as beyond the power 331 of Congress, and as depriving the sellers of the stock thus sold and also the stockholders of this defendant who have not sold their shares to the Securities Company, of liberty and property without due process of law, because, thus construed, it would be an inhibition upon their right to sell their property. If complainant's contention be sustained, the right of the owner of property to sell the same will be dependent upon what the courts at any future time may hold to have been the intention of the purchaser in buying such property. This result would 332 seriously impair the liberty of the owner and the value of his property, and is contrary to the constitutional guaranties thereof.

These transactions are, therefore, not within the act of Congress above mentioned; nor has Congress any constitutional power to annul or prohibit action thus expressly authorized by State statutes under which the same has been or may hereafter be taken.

XV. There is a defect of necessary parties defendant herein, because in this suit it is sought to annul all sales of shares made 333 by shareholders of this defendant to the Northern Securities Company and to cancel all certificates of stock of the latter company issued in purchase of the same. The parties making such sales are numerous, and many of them had no connection with the matter save to sell their shares to the Securities Company after its organization. It is obvious that in their absence no adjudication can be made annulling such sales to the Securities Company. A decree to such effect as prayed for by the petition necessarily would deprive such original sellers of their property without due process of law. All persons who sold 334 shares in this defendant to the Securities Company are, therefore, necessary parties, and the petition is bad by reason of their absence.

XVI. And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith it is by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause, or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or 335 belief of this defendant; all of which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed with its reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
By C. W. BUNN, Solicitor.

C. W. BUNN, and
FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
Counsel for said Defendant.

Entered 789 C. Eq. 336

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } May, 1902. 337

ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANTS, J. PIERPONT MORGAN AND ROBERT BACON.

FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
Solicitor for said Defendants, Mills Building, New York City.

Endorsed: Filed May 5, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota. 338

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company and others, defendants. } May, 1902.

THE ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANTS, J. PIERPONT MORGAN AND ROBERT BACON, TO THE PETITION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. 339

I. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph I of the petition that the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company were at the times mentioned in said petition and now are common carriers employed in the transportation of freight and passengers among the several States of the United States within which the railways operated by them are situated.

340 These defendants deny each and every other allegation of paragraph I of the petition.

II. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph II of the petition that prior to November 13, 1901, the stock of the said railway companies was owned and controlled by their respective shareholders, and that among the shareholders of said companies, respectively, were the parties in that behalf alleged.

These defendants deny each and every other allegation of paragraph II of the petition.

341 III. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph III of the petition that the Northern Pacific Company at the times mentioned owned and operated a railway extending from Ashland, in Wisconsin, via Duluth, Minn., and from St. Paul, Minn., across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, passing through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, and extending to Tacoma and Seattle, in Washington, and to Portland, in Oregon; that the Great Northern Company operated lines of railway extending from St. Paul aforesaid across Minnesota, 342 North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, passing through Spokane and extending to Everett and Seattle, in the State last aforesaid; that the said lines connected with other railway lines, and either directly or by means of such other railway lines connected with lines of steamships on the Great Lakes and the ocean, and that the mileage operated by said companies aggregated about 5,500 miles for the Northern Pacific Company and about 4,128 miles for the Great Northern Company.

These defendants deny any knowledge or information sufficient 343 cient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of paragraph III of the petition.

IV. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph IV of the petition that, prior to the year 1893, a corporation known as the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, organized and existing under certain acts and resolutions of Congress, and which then operated some parts of the lines of the present Northern Pacific Company, became insolvent and was placed in the hands of receivers appointed by various courts of the United States; that while in this condition a plan of reorganization was entered into by the bondholders of said company and that 344 an arrangement was proposed between the said bondholders and the Great Northern Company, which was never carried out. These defendants admit that a case, entitled Pearsall against The Great Northern Railway Company, was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States on March 30, 1896, and is reported in volume 161 of the reports of said court, beginning on page 696.

These defendants deny any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of paragraph IV of the petition. They are informed and believe that said paragraph is wholly irrelevant to the cause of action, 345 if any, stated in the petition.

V. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph V of the petition that early in the year 1901, the defendants the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company, acting for the purpose of promoting their several interests, each purchased shares of stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company of Illinois, paying therefor with the joint bonds of the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company, payable in twenty years from date, with interest at 4 per cent per annum at the rate of $200 in bonds 346 for each $100 in stock, and in this manner the said companies severally purchased and acquired each about 49 per cent of said stock; that the lines operated by said Burlington Company and its connections were geographically as stated in the petition, and that some of said lines compete with some lines of what is called in the petition the Union Pacific system.

These defendants deny any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of paragraph V of the petition. They are informed and believe that said paragraph is wholly irrelevant to the cause of action, 347 if any, stated in the petition.

VI. These defendants admit that the defendant James J. Hill and certain other persons decided upon the formation of a securities company for the purposes set forth in the certificate of incorporation of the Northern Securities Company attached to the petition and in all respects as therein stated.

These defendants deny each and every other allegation of paragraph VI of the petition.

VII. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph 348 VII of the petition that on November 13, 1901, the defendant Northern Securities Company was organized under the general laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office in Hoboken, in said State, and with an authorized capital stock of $400,000,000, and that a copy of the articles of incorporation of said company correctly stating its powers is attached to the petition.

These defendants deny each and every other allegation of paragraph VII of the petition.

VIII. These defendants admit the allegations of paragraph 349 VIII of the petition that on or about November 14, 1901, the defendant Northern Securities Company was organized by the election of directors and officers; that the defendant James J. Hill was chosen a director and president thereof; that thereupon the said James J. Hill and other stockholders of the Great Northern Company, each individually and separately from the others, sold to the Securities Company a large amount of the capital stock of the Great Northern Company for the price of $180 par value of the capital stock of the Securities Company for each share of the capital stock of the Great North-
350 ern Company; that these defendants and other stockholders of the Northern Pacific Company, each individually and separately from the others, sold to the Securities Company a large amount of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Company; that the Securities Company also offered, for a limited period, like terms of purchase to the other shareholders of the Great Northern Company; that the Securities Company now holds and owns a large majority of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and a large amount, though less than a controlling interest, of the stock of the Great Northern Company, 351 and has negotiated for the purchase of additional shares of that company, and that the Securities Company has received such dividends as have been paid on any shares held by it.

These defendants deny each and every other allegation of paragraph VIII of the petition.

IX. These defendants deny each and every allegation of paragraph IX of the petition.

X. These defendants deny any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every allegation of paragraph X of the petition.

XI. These defendants deny each and every allegation of 352 paragraph XI of the petition.

XII. These defendants deny each and every allegation of paragraph XII of the petition. They are informed and believe that said paragraph consists merely of expressions of opinion, and is, therefore, without weight in support of any cause of action.

XIII. These defendants deny each and every allegation of paragraph XIII of the petition.

XIV. In July, 1896, the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company was fixed at $155,000,000, of which 353
$75,000,000 were preferred and $80,000,000 common stock. The preferred stock of the company was issued in exchange for various obligations of the former Northern Pacific Railroad Company because the holders thereof would not accept new common stock therefor. At the same time it was contemplated that the time would arrive when said preferred stock should properly be retired, and it was, accordingly, then provided that the preferred stock might be retired in whole or in part at par on any first day of January, up to and including January 1, 1917. Both classes of stock were made subject to a voting 354 trust in this defendant Morgan and others, continuing until November 1, 1901, but terminable by the trustees in their discretion at an earlier date.

The Northern Pacific Company shared in the recent prosperity of the country, and its common stock appreciated in value until it was deemed practicable to carry out the original intention of retiring the preferred stock and also to terminate the voting trust. Accordingly said trust was terminated by the trustees upon January 1, 1901, and the preferred stock was retired. Although the latter action was in contemplation and 355 was practically decided upon some time before the termination of the voting trust, it was not made the subject of formal action by the board of directors until November 13, 1901, and was completed upon January 1, 1902.

XV. As hereinbefore stated, early in 1901, the Northern Pacific Company, and the Great Northern Company, each purchased about 49 per cent of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company. This purchase was mad by the Northern Pacific Company primarily in order to 356 secure a terminus at Chicago and permanent connection with the Eastern and Southeastern markets, which are especially valuable for the agricultural and mineral products of the Northwest, but also because the Burlington system serves a large and growing territory, and the purchase was deemed desirable and profitable in itself.

These purchases were not made, as the petition alleges, "in contemplation of the ultimate placing of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific system under a common source of control." They had no connection whatever with the future formation of 357 the Northern Securities Company, or any other company whatsoever, and had no connection with the fact alleged in the petition that the Union Pacific Railway system is to some extent a competing system with the Burlington system.

The said purchases were not made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States; were not in violation of any such law, and are not charged in the petition to have been in any respect unlawful.

XVI. During the reorganization of the Northern Pacific system the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., of which these defend-358 ants are members, acted as reorganization managers, and ever since the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Company has been its fiscal agent. Said firm has accordingly at all times desired to further the best interests of the company and all its stockholders, and especially to aid in steadily developing the business of the company and the prosperity of the country which it serves. Said firm considered that these results were accomplished, so far as possible, by the policy of the company during the existence of the voting trust, as above stated. Not long after the termination of the voting trust, however, and very 359 early in May, 1901, said firm became aware that unusually large purchases of both classes of stock were in progress in the stock market, apparently in a single interest. Said firm was apprehensive that these purchases were for the purpose of securing control of the direction of the Northern Pacific Company and thus managing it, not for what said firm conceived to be the best interest of the company, but for some ulterior purpose of which said firm was not informed.

Accordingly said firm, prior to May 7, 1901, purchased common stock of the Northern Pacific Company in considerable amounts, and their holdings upon that day amounted to about 360 two hundred thousand shares. In making these purchases said firm acted on its own account and in behalf of no other person whomsoever, and was actuated by no motives save those above stated.

The said purchases were not made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States, and were not in violation of any such law.

XVII. For some years the defendant Hill and others who were interested in the Great Northern Company, but not including these defendants, had in contemplation the formation of 361 a corporation for the purpose of purchasing their separate interests in that company, with the general object that said interests should be held together and the policy and course of business of the Great Northern Company should be continuous in developing the company's system and the territory served by it, and not subject to radical change and possible inconsistency from time to time. In or about August, 1901, as this plan was approaching maturity, said parties for similar reasons determined that they would also sell to the new company, when formed, their interests in the Northern Pacific Company, which were 362 considerable in amount, and that the capital of the new company should be made sufficiently large to enable it to purchase all shares of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies which the holders might desire to sell and any other shares which the new company might deem it advisable to acquire.

By this time it had become known that the purchases in the market of shares of the Northern Pacific Company, to which reference is made above, had been made in behalf of a corporation known as the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company, con- 363 trolled by the Union Pacific Railroad Company; that there were held in that interest shares of the Northern Pacific Company to about the amount of $41,000,000 of preferred stock, which, however, was to be retired on January 1, 1902, and $37,000,000 of common stock, together making 780,000 shares and constituting an absolute majority of the total capital stock of the Northern Pacific Company. Thereupon and therefore, with the view and for the purpose of protecting the Northern Pacific Company and the holders of its common stock against 364 the possible control of the direction of said company in an adverse interest, these defendants determined and also advised their friends to sell their Northern Pacific stock to the new company.

As set forth in the petition, the Northern Securities Company was duly organized pursuant to the laws of New Jersey upon November 13, 1901. It was organized according to law, and possesses all the powers set forth in its certificate of incorporation, and has full power to do every act which it has in fact done, and the petition does not allege the contrary.

365 It having become known that the Oregon Short Line Company was not disinclined upon satisfactory terms to sell its holdings of the major part of the Northern Pacific stock, the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company, deeming such action for the best interest of the Northern Pacific Company, purchased from said Oregon Short Line Company all its holdings of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Company.

After its organization the Northern Securities Company duly purchased all the shares of the Northern Pacific Company and of the Great Northern Company hereinbefore mentioned, ip-366 cluding those purchased by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company from the Oregon Short Line Company, for which it paid partly in cash and partly in its own shares. It also was willing to purchase the shares of any other shareholders of the Great Northern Company, who desired to sell the same, for the price of one hundred and eighty dollars for each share of the Great Northern Company, payable in its own shares, and did actually purchase and pay for considerable amounts of said stock at such price.

None of these purchases by the Northern Securities Company
367 were made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States, or were in violation of any such law.

XVIII. The foregoing is a correct statement of all the matters mentioned in the petition, omitting its many irrelevant adjectives, adverbs, and conclusions, and of some other facts in addition thereto. The transactions prior to the formation of the Northern Securities Company had no connection whatever with the formation thereof, save as above stated. That company was organized, not for the purpose of acquiring a majority of 368 the stock of either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific Company, but as above set forth. It was not organized for the purpose of affecting railway rates or competition in the slightest degree, and has not had any such effect. In the transactions above stated these defendants and, so far as they are aware, the other parties who have been engaged therein have never sought or intended to violate the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies" (26 Stat., 209, c. 647), or to enter into any contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or 369 conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, or to monopolize or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize, any part of the trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations.

The transactions have consisted merely in the organization of a lawful corporation of New Jersey and the sale to and purchase by it of property lawfully salable. All acts done in relation to the organization of the Securities Company and the purchase by it of shares of stock of the railway companies and 370 the sale thereof by the owners have been expressly authorized by law. They have had no effect whatever, in law or in fact, in restraint or monopoly of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations. The petition does not allege that at any place within the jurisdiction of this court or elsewhere any such restraint or monopoly has been effected.

If these lawful transactions, consisting merely of the purchase and sale of property, should hereafter have any effect in restraint or monopoly of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, such effect would not be their 371 direct effect, but would be merely indirect, remote, incidental, and collateral, and aside from any intention of the parties, and therefore would not bring said transactions within said act of Congress. Any other construction would render the statute unconstitutional as beyond the power of Congress, and as depriving these defendants and the sellers generally of the stock thus sold, of liberty and property without due process of law, because, thus construed, it would be an inhibition upon their 372 right to sell their property. If complainant's contention be sustained, the right of the owner of property to sell the same will be dependent upon what the courts at any future time may hold to have been the intention of the purchaser in buying such property. Such a result would seriously impair the liberty of the owner and the value of his property, and is contrary to the constitutional guaranties thereof.

These transactions are, therefore, not within the act of Congress above mentioned; nor has Congress any constitutional power to annul or prohibit action thus expressly authorized by 373 State statutes under which the same has been taken.

XIX. There is a defect of necessary parties defendant herein because in this suit it is sought to annul all sales of shares made by shareholders of the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company to the Northern Securities Company, and to cancel all certificates of stock of the latter company issued in purchase of the same. As already set forth, the parties making such sales are numerous, and many of them had no connection with the matter save to sell their shares in the railway companies to the Securities Company after its organization.
374 It is obvious that in their absence no adjudication can be made annulling such sales to the Securities Company. A decree to such effect as prayed for by the petition necessarily would deprive such original sellers of their property without due process of law. All persons who sold shares in the railway companies to the Securities Company are, therefore, necessary parties, and the petition is bad by reason of their absence.

XX. And these defendants deny all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith they are by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any 375 other matter, cause, or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for these defendants to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of these defendants; all of which matters and things these defendants are ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly pray to be hence dismissed with their reasonable costs and 376 charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN,
ROBERT BACON,
By FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
Solicitor.

FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
DAVID WILLCOX,
Counsel for said Defendants.

377

Entered 789, C. Eq.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } May, 1902.

378

ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANT DANIEL S. LAMONT.

DAVID WILLCOX,
Solicitor for said Defendant,
20 Nassau Street, New York City.

(Indorsed:) Filed May 5th, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

379 In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
} May, 1902.

380 THE ANSWER OF THE DEFENDANT DANIEL S. LAMONT TO THE PETITION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

I. This defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph I of the petition that the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company were at the times mentioned in said petition and now are common carriers employed in the transportation of freight and passengers among the several States of the United States within which the railways operated by them are situated.

381 This defendant denies each and every other allegation of Paragraph I of the petition.

II. This defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph II of the petition that prior to November 13, 1901, the stock of the said railway companies was owned and controlled by their respective shareholders, and that among the shareholders of said companies respectively were the parties in that behalf alleged.

This defendant denies each and every other allegation of Paragraph II of the petition.

III. This defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph III
382 of the petition that the Northern Pacific Company at the times mentioned, owned and operated a railway extending from Ashland, in Wisconsin, via Duluth, Minnesota, and from St. Paul, Minnesota, across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, passing through Helena, in the State of Montana, and Spokane, in the State of Washington, and extending to Tacoma and Seattle, in Washington, and to Portland, in Oregon; that the Great Northern Company operated lines of railway extending from St. Paul aforesaid across Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington, passing through

Spokane, and extending to Everett and Seattle, in the State last 383 aforesaid; that the said lines connected with other railway lines, and either directly or by means of such other railway lines connected with lines of steamships on the Great Lakes and the ocean, and that the mileage operated by said companies aggregated about five thousand five hundred miles for the Northern Pacific Company and about four thousand one hundred and twenty-eight miles for the Great Northern Company.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of Paragraph III of the petition. 384

IV. This defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph IV of the petition that prior to the year 1893 a corporation known as the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, organized and existing under certain acts and resolutions of Congress, and which then operated some parts of the lines of the present Northern Pacific Company, became insolvent and was placed in the hands of receivers appointed by various courts of the United States; that while in this condition a plan of reorganization was entered into by the bondholders of said company, and that an arrangement was proposed between the said bondholders and the 385
Great Northern Company, which was never carried out. This defendant admits that a case entitled Pearsall against The Great Northern Railway Company was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States on March 30, 1896, and is reported in volume 161 of the reports of said court, beginning on page 696.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of paragraph IV of the petition. He is informed and believes that said paragraph is wholly irrelevant to the cause of action, if any, stated in the petition. 386

V. This defendant admits the allegations of paragraph V of the petition that early in the year 1901 the defendants the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company, acting for the purpose of promoting their several interests, each purchased shares of stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company of Illinois, paying therefor with the joint bonds of the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company, payable in twenty years from date with interest at 387 four per cent per annum at the rate of two hundred dollars in bonds for each one hundred dollars in stock, and in this manner the said companies severally purchased and acquired each about forty-nine per cent of said stock; that the lines operated by said Burlington Company and its connections were geographically as stated in the petition, and that some of said lines compete with some lines of what is called in the petition the Union Pacific system.

This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every other allegation of paragraph 388 V of the petition. He is informed and believes that said paragraph is wholly irrelevant to the cause of action, if any, stated in the petition.

VI. This defendant admits that the defendant James J. Hill and certain other persons decided upon the formation of a securities company for the purposes set forth in the certificate of incorporation of the Northern Securities Company attached to the petition and in all respects as therein stated.

This defendant denies each and every other allegation of paragraph VI of the petition.

389 VII. This defendant admits the allegations of paragraph VII of the petition that on November 13, 1901, the defendant Northern Securities Company was organized under the general laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office in Hoboken in said State and with an authorized capital stock of four hundred millions of dollars, and that a copy of the articles of incorporation of said company correctly stating its powers is attached to the petition.

This defendant denies each and every other allegation of paragraph VII of the petition.

390 VIII. This defendant admits the allegations of paragraph VIII of the petition that on or about November 14, 1901, the defendant Northern Securities Company was organized by the election of directors and officers; that the defendant James J. Hill was chosen a director and president thereof; that thereupon the said James J. Hill and other stockholders of the Great Northern Company, each individually and separately from the others, sold to the Securities Company a large amount of the capital stock of the Great Northern Company for the price of one hundred and eighty dollars par value of the capital stock of the Securities Company for each share of the capital stock of the Great Northern Company; that this defendant and other stockholders of the Northern Pacific Company, each individually and separately from the others, sold to the Securities Company a large amount of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Company; that the Securities Company also offered, for a limited period, like terms of purchase to the other shareholders of the Great Northern Company; that the Securities Company now holds and owns a large majority of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and a large amount, though less than a controlling interest, of the stock of the Great Northern Company, and has negotiated for purchase of additional shares of that company, and that the Securities Company has received such dividends as have been paid on any shares held by it. 391 392

This defendant denies each and every other allegation of paragraph VIII of the petition.

IX. This defendant denies each and every allegation of paragraph IX of the petition.

X. This defendant denies any knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief of each and every allegation of paragraph X of the petition. 393

XI. This defendant denies each and every allegation of paragraph XI of the petition.

XII. This defendant denies each and every allegation of paragraph XII of the petition. He is informed and believes that said paragraph consists merely of expressions of opinion, and is, therefore, without weight in support of any cause of action.

XIII. This defendant denies each and every allegation of paragraph XIII of the petition.

XIV. In July, 1896, the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company was fixed at $155,000,000, of which $75,000,000 were preferred and $80,000,000 common stock. The preferred stock of the company was issued in exchange for various obligations of the former Northern Pacific Railroad Company because the holders thereof would not accept new common stock therefor. At the same time it was contemplated that the time would arrive when said preferred stock should properly be retired, and it was, accordingly, then provided that the preferred stock might be retired in whole or in part at par 394

395 on any first day of January, up to and including January 1, 1917. Both classes of stock were made subject to a voting trust in the defendant Morgan and others, continuing until November 1, 1901, but terminable by the trustees in their discretion at an earlier date.

The Northern Pacific Company shared in the recent prosperity of the country, and its common stock appreciated in value until it was deemed practicable to carry out the original intention of retiring the preferred stock and also to terminate the voting trust. Accordingly said trust was terminated by the trustees
396 upon January 1, 1901, and the preferred stock was retired. Although the latter action was in contemplation and was practically decided upon some time before the termination of the voting trust, it was not made the subject of formal action by the board of directors until November 13, 1901, and was completed upon January 1, 1902.

XV. As hereinbefore stated, early in 1901 the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company each purchased about forty-nine per cent of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company. This 397 purchase was made by the Northern Pacific Company primarily in order to secure a terminus at Chicago and permanent connection with the Eastern and Southeastern markets, which are especially valuable for the agricultural and mineral products of the Northwest, but also because the Burlington system serves a large and growing territory, and the purchase was deemed desirable and profitable in itself.

These purchases were not made as the petition alleges "in contemplation of the ultimate placing of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific system under a common source of con-398 trol." They had no connection whatever with the future formation of the Northern Securities Company, or any other company whatsoever, and had no connection with the fact alleged in the petition that the Union Pacific Railway system is to some extent a competing system with the Burlington system.

The said purchases were not made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States; were not in violation of any such law, and are not charged in the petition to have been in any respect unlawful.

XVI. During the reorganization of the Northern Pacific 399 system the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. acted as reorganization managers, and ever since the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Company has been its fiscal agent and closely identified with the furtherance of its interests. Said firm, prior to May 7, 1901, purchased common stock of the Northern Pacific Company in considerable amounts and their holdings upon that day amounted to about two hundred thousand shares. As this defendant is informed and believes, in making these purchases said firm acted on its own account and in behalf of no other person whomsoever. 400

The said purchases were not made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States, and were not in violation of any such law.

XVII. As this defendant is informed and believes, for some years the defendant Hill and others who were interested in the Great Northern Company, but not including this defendant, had in contemplation the formation of a corporation for the purpose of purchasing their interests in that company, with the general object that said interests should be held together and the policy and course of business of the Great Northern 401
Company should be continuous in developing the company's system and the territory served by it, and not subject to radical change and possible inconsistency from time to time. In or about August, 1901, as this plan was approaching maturity, said parties for similar reasons determined that they would also sell to the new company, when formed, their interests in the Northern Pacific Company, which were considerable in amount, and that the capital of the new company should be made sufficiently large to enable it to purchase all shares of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies which the holders 402 might desire to sell and any other shares which the new company might deem it advisable to acquire.

As set forth in the petition, the Northern Securities Company was duly organized pursuant to the laws of New Jersey upon November 13, 1901. It was organized according to law, and possesses all the powers set forth in its certificate of incorporation, and has full power to do every act which it has in fact done, and the petition does not allege the contrary.

403 After its organization the Northern Securities Company duly purchased all the shares of the Northern Pacific Company and of the Great Northern Company hereinbefore mentioned, and also a large amount of shares of the Northern Pacific Company purchased by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company from the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company, for which it paid partly in cash and partly in its own shares. It was also willing to purchase the shares of any other shareholders of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Companies, who desired to sell the same, for the price of one hundred and fifteen dollars for 404 each share of the Northern Pacific Company and one hundred and eighty dollars for each share of the Great Northern Company, payable in its own shares, and did actually purchase and pay for considerable amounts of said stock at those prices.

None of these purchases by the Northern Securities Company were made with intent to violate the statute or common law of any State or of the United States, or were in violation of any such law.

XVIII. The transactions prior to the formation of the Northern Securities Company had no connection whatever with 405 the formation thereof, save as above stated. That company was organized, not for the purpose of acquiring a majority of the stock of either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific Company, but as above set forth. It was not organized for the purpose of affecting railway rates or competition in the slightest degree, and has not had any such effect. In the transactions above stated this defendant, and, so far as he is aware, the other parties who have been engaged therein, have never sought or intended to violate the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful 406 restraints and monopolies" (26 Stat., 209, c. 647), or to enter into any contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, or to monopolize or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize, any part of the trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations.

The transactions have consisted merely in the organization of a lawful corporation of New Jersey and the sale to, and purchase by it, of lawfully salable property. All acts done in relation to the organization of the Securities Company and the purchase by it of shares of stock of the railway companies, and the sale thereof by the owners have been expressly authorized by law. They have had no effect whatever, in law or in fact, in restraint or monopoly of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations. The petition does not allege that at any place within the jurisdiction of this court or elsewhere any such restraint or monopoly has been effected. 407

If these lawful transactions, consisting merely of the purchase and sale of property, should hereafter have any effect in restraint or monopoly of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, that would not be their direct effect, but would be merely indirect, remote, incidental, and collateral, and aside from any intention of the parties, and would, therefore, not bring said transactions within said act of Congress above mentioned. Any other construction would render the statute unconstitutional as beyond the power of Congress and as depriving this defendant, and the sellers generally of the stock thus sold, of liberty and property without due process of law, because, thus construed, it would be an inhibition upon their right to sell their property. If complainant's contention be sustained, the right of the owner of property to sell the same will be dependent upon what the courts at any future time may hold to have been the intention of the purchaser in buying such property. This result would seriously impair the liberty of the owner and the value of his property, and is contrary to the constitutional guaranties thereof. 408 409

These transactions are, therefore, not within the act of Congress above mentioned; nor has Congress any constitutional power to annul or prohibit action thus expressly authorized by State statutes under which the same has been taken. 410

XIX. There is a defect of necessary parties defendant herein because in this suit it is sought to annul all sales of shares made by shareholders of the Great Northern Company and the Northern Pacific Company to the Northern Securities Company, and to cancel all certificates of stock of the latter company issued in purchase of the same. As already set forth, the parties making such sales are numerous, and many of them had no connection with the matter save to sell their shares in the rail-

411 way companies to the Securities Company after its organization. It is obvious that in their absence no adjudication can be made annulling such sales to the Securities Company. A decree to such effect as prayed for by the petition necessarily would deprive such original sellers of their property without due process of law. All persons who sold shares in the railway companies to the Securities Company are, therefore, necessary parties, and the petition is bad by reason of their absence.

XX. And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith he is by the said 412 petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause, or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of this defendant; all of which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed with his reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

413 DANIEL S. LAMONT,
By DAVID WILLCOX,
Solicitor.

FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
DAVID WILLCOX,
Counsel for said Defendant.

25036

The circuit court of the United States in and for the district of 414
Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } In equity.

415

THE REPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINANT, TO THE ANSWER OF THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, DEFENDANT.

This replicant, the United States of America, saving and reserving to itself all and all manner of advantages of exception which may be had and taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties, and insufficiencies of the answer of the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, for replication thereunto saith: That it doth and will aver, maintain, and prove its said bill to be true, certain, and sufficient in the law, to be answered unto by 416
the said defendant, and that the answer of the said defendant is very uncertain, evasive, and insufficient in the law to be replied unto by this replicant; without that, that any other matter or thing in the said answer contained material or effectual in the law to be replied unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed or avoided, traversed or denied, is true; all which matters and things this replicant is ready to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays as in and by its said bill it hath already prayed. 417

MILTON D. PURDY,
United States Attorney for the District of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minnesota, June 2nd, 1902.

(Endorsed:) Replication to answer of Northern Securities Company. Filed June 2nd, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

418 The United States circuit court in and for the district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.
} In equity.

419 THE REPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINANT, TO THE ANSWER OF JAMES J. HILL AND OTHERS, DEFENDANTS.

This replicant, the United States of America, saving and reserving to itself all and all manner of advantages of exception which may be had or taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties, and insufficiencies of the answer of the defendants, James J. Hill and others, for replication thereunto, saith that it doth and will aver, maintain, and prove its said bill to be true, 420 certain, and sufficient in the law to be answered unto by the said defendants, and that the answer of the said defendants is very uncertain, evasive, and insufficient in law to be replied unto by this replicant; without that, that any other matter or thing in the said answer contained, material or effectual, in the law to be replied unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed, or avoided, traversed or denied, is true, all which matters and things this replicant is ready to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and 421 humbly prays as in and by its said bill it hath already prayed.

MILTON D. PURDY,
United States Attorney for the District of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., June 2, 1902.

(Indorsed:) Replication to answer of James J. Hill and others. Filed June 2, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

25037

The United States circuit court in and for the district of Minnesota, third division. 422

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } In equity.

THE REPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINANT, TO THE ANSWER OF THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, DEFENDANT. 423

This replicant, the United States of America, saving and reserving to itself all and all manner of advantages of exception which may be had and taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties, and insufficiencies of the answer of the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, for replication thereunto saith, that it doth and will aver, maintain, and prove its said bill to be true, certain, and sufficient in law to be answered unto by the 424
said defendant, and that the answer of the said defendant is very uncertain, evasive, and insufficient in law to be replied unto by this replicant; without that, that any other matter or thing in said answer contained, material or effectual in the law to be replied unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed or avoided, traversed or denied, is true, all which matters and things this replicant is ready to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays as in and by its said bill it hath already prayed. 425

MILTON D. PURDY,
United States Attorney for the District of Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, MINN., June 2, 1902.

(Endorsed): Replication to answer of Great Northern Railway Company. Filed June 2, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

426 The United States circuit court in and for the district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant, v. NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants.	In equity.

427 THE REPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINANT, TO THE ANSWER OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, DEFENDANT.

This replicant, the United States of America, saving and reserving to itself all and all manner of advantages of exception which may be had and taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties, and insufficiencies of the answer of the defendant, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, for replication thereunto saith that it doth and will aver, maintain, and prove its said bill to be true, certain, and sufficient in the law to be answered unto by the said
428 defendant; and that the answer of the said defendant is very uncertain, evasive, and insufficient in law to be replied unto by this replicant; without that, that any other matter or thing in the said answer contained, material or effectual in the law to be replied unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed, or avoided, traversed, or denied, is true; all which matters and things this replicant is ready to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays as in and by its said bill it hath already prayed.

MILTON D. PURDY,
429 United States Attorney for the District of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., June 2, 1902.

(Indorsed:) Replication to answer of Northern Pacific Ry. Co. Filed June 2, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

The United States circuit court in and for the district of Minnesota, third division. 430

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT Northern Railway Company, the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } In equity.

THE REPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINANT, TO THE ANSWER OF J. PIERPONT MORGAN AND ROBERT BACON, DEFENDANTS. 431

This replicant, the United States of America, saving and reserving to itself all and all manner of advantages of exception which may be had and taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties, and insufficiences of the answer of the defendants, J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon, for replication thereunto saith, that it doth and will aver, maintain, and prove its said bill to be true, certain, and sufficient in law to be answered unto by the 432 said defendants, and that the answer of the said defendants is very uncertain, evasive, and insufficient in the law to be replied unto by this replicant; without that, that any other matter or thing in said answer contained, material or effectual in the law, to be replied unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed or avoided, traversed or denied, is true: All which matters and things this replicant is ready to aver, maintain, and prove, as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays, as in and by its said bill it hath already prayed. 433

MILTON D. PURDY,
United States Attorney for the District of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minnesota, June 2, 1902.

(Indorsed:) Replication to answer of J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon. Filed June 2, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

434 The United States circuit court in and for the district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
vs.
THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, The Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, and others, defendants. } In equity.

435 THE REPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINANT, TO THE ANSWER OF DANIEL S. LAMONT, DEFENDANT.

This replicant, the United States of America, saving and reserving to itself all and all manner of advantages of exception which may be had and taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties, and insufficiencies of the answer of the defendant Daniel S. Lamont, for replication thereto saith that it doth and will aver, maintain, and prove its said bill to be true, cer-436 tain, and sufficient in the law to be answered unto by the said defendant, and that the answer of the said defendant is very uncertain, evasive, and insufficient in law to be replied unto by this replicant, without that, that any other matter or thing in the said answer contained, material or effectual in the law to be replied unto, and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed, or avoided, traversed or denied, is true; all which matters and things this replicant is ready to aver, maintain, and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays as in and by its said bill it hath already prayed.

437 MILTON D. PURDY,
United States Attorney for the District of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., June 2, 1902.

(Indorsed:) Replication to answer of Daniel S. Lamont, filed June 2, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, 438
District of Minnesota, ss:

I, Henry D. Lang, clerk of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, do hereby certify that I have carefully compared the foregoing paper writings, viz:

Appearance of M. D. Purdy et al. for complainant and order,
Bill in equity,
Præcipe for chancery subpœna and order,
Chancery subpœna,
Præcipe for appearance for Northern Securities Company et al. and order, 439
Præcipe for appearance Great North Railway Company and order, Appearance for Northern Pacific Railway Company and order,
Appearance of J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon and order, Appearance of Daniel S. Lamont and order,
Answer of defendant Northern Securities Company,
Answer of defendants J. J. Hill et al.,
Answer of defendant Great Northern Railway Company, 440
Answer of defendant Northern Pacific Railway Company, Answer of J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon,
Answer of Daniel S. Lamont,
Replication to answer of Northern Securities Company,
Replication to answer of J. J. Hill and others,
Replication to answer of Great Northern Railway Company,
Replication to answer of Northern Pacific Railway Company,
Replication to answer of J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon, Replication to answer of Daniel S. Lamont, with the original files and records thereof, which are in my 441 custody as such clerk, and that said copies are true copies of the original files and records, and of the whole thereof, on file and of record in the cause therein named.

Witness my hand as clerk, and the seal of said court.

Done at my office in St. Paul, Minnesota, this 23rd day of December, A. D. 1902.

[SEAL.] HENRY D. LANG,
Clerk of U. S. Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota.

O

ORDER APPOINTING FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL SPECIAL EXAMINER. 1

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, third division.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, COMPLAINANT,
against
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, defendants. 2

The motion on the part of the complainant for the appointment of an examiner to take and report the testimony of all the witnesses on the part of both parties to the above-entitled cause having this day come on to be heard, Charles C. Houpt, esq., United States district attorney for the district of Minnesota, appearing for the complainant, and Hon. George B. Young appearing for the defendants; after hearing the respective counsel, and there being no objection made on behalf of any party to said cause to an examiner being appointed at this time, it is hereby 3

Ordered: That Frederick G. Ingersoll, of the city of St. Paul, in said district of Minnesota, be, and he is hereby, appointed special examiner to take and report the testimony in this cause and return the same to this court.

Dated at St. Paul, Minnesota, July 29, 1902.

WM. LOCHREN, Judge.

(Endorsed:) Order appointing Frederick G. Ingersoll special examiner. Entered T. M., vol. 26, p. 108. Filed August 1, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk, by Louise B. Trott, deputy.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
District of Minnesota, Third Division, ss.: 4

I, Henry D. Lang, clerk of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, do hereby certify that I have carefully compared the foregoing paper writing with the original thereof, which is in my custody as such clerk, and that the said paper writing is a correct copy of such original and of the whole thereof, in the cause therein named.

Witness my hand as clerk, and the seal of said court. Done at my office in St. Paul, Minn., this 19th day of August, A. D. 1902.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

[Seal United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division.]

Printed and endorsed on back as follows:

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division.

United States of America v. Northern Securities Company et al., defendants.

Certified copy of order appointing Frederick G. Ingersoll special examiner.

OATH OF SPECIAL EXAMINER.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, COMPLAINANT,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, defendants.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
District of Minnesota, ss:

I, Frederick G. Ingersoll, the duly appointed examiner in the above-entitled cause, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully and fairly examine, take, and report the testimony to be adduced therein and make a just and true report thereof according to the best of my understanding and ability. So help me God.

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 12th day of September, A. D. 1902. 9

CONSTAN JENSEN,
Notary Public, Ramsey County, Minn.

[Notarial seal, Ramsey County, Minn.]

(Indorsed on back:) Entered 789, C. Eq. United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division. The United States, complainant, v. Northern Securities Company, a corporation, et al., defendants. Oath of examiner. Filed September 12, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, 10
District of Minnesota, Third Division, sct:

I, Henry D. Lang, clerk of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, do hereby certify that I have carefully compared the foregoing paper writing with the original thereof, which is in my custody as such clerk, and that the said paper writing is a correct copy of such original and of the whole thereof in the cause therein named.

Witness my hand as clerk and the seal of said court. Done at my office in St. Paul, Minn., this 12th day of September, A. D. 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk. 11

[U. S. circuit court seal, district of Minnesota, third division.]

(Indorsed on back:) United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division. United States of America, plaintiff, v. Northern Securities Company et al., defendants. Certified copy of oath of examiner.

STIPULATION AS TO TIME AND PLACE OF TAKING TESTIMONY.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, COMPLAINANT,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, defendants. 12

It is agreed between counsel that the testimony on the part of the complainant shall be commenced before the special master heretofore appointed on the 15th day of September, 1902, at the United States attorney's office, Post-Office Building, New York City.

Dated August 21, 1902.

CHARLES C. HOUPT,
Solicitor for Complainant.

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
GEO. B. YOUNG,
Counsel for Northern Securities Company.

M. D. GROVER,
Counsel for Great Northern Railway Company.

C. W. BUNN,
Counsel for Northern Pacific Railway Company.

FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
Counsel for J. Pierpont Morgan and Robert Bacon.

FRANCIS LYNDE STETSON,
Counsel for Daniel Lamont.

GEORGE B. YOUNG,
Counsel for James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, George F. Baker.

(Indorsed:) Filed September 13, 1902. Henry D. Lang, clerk.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
District of Minnesota, Third Division, set:

I, Henry D. Lang, clerk of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, do hereby certify that I have carefully compared the foregoing paper writing with the original thereof, which is in my custody as such clerk, and that the said paper writing is a correct copy of such original and of the whole thereof in the cause therein named.

Witness my hand as clerk and the seal of said court. Done at my office in St. Paul, Minn., this 13th day of September, A. D. 1902.

HENRY D. LANG, Clerk.

[Seal U. S. circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division.]

(Indorsed:) United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, third division. United States of America, plaintiff, v. Northern Securities Company et al., defendants. Certified copy of stipulation relative to time of taking testimony.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, third division. 17

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, COMPLAINANT,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, defendants.

It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the parties 18 to the above-entitled cause, by their respective solicitors, that the testimony to be taken herein before Frederick G. Ingersoll, the duly appointed examiner, may be taken stenographically by Robert S. Taylor, and shall thereafter by him be put into typewriting.

Dated city of New York, September 15, 1902.

JOHN K. RICHARDS,
Solicitor-General,
JAMES M. BECK,
Assistant Attorney-General, 19
W. A. DAY,
Special Assistant to Attorney-General,
Solicitors for Complainant.
DAVID WILLCOX,
Of Counsel for Defendants Morgan, Bacon, and Lamont,
M. D. GROVER,
Great Northern Railway Company,
JOHN W. CRIGGS,
GEORGE B. YOUNG,
C. W. BUNN, 20
Solicitors for Defendants.

21 In the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, complainant,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE Great Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis
22 James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, defendants.

I do solemnly swear that I will fairly and faithfully report and transcribe the testimony to be adduced on behalf of the complainant and defendants in the above-entitled cause according to the best of my understanding and ability. So help me God.

ROBERT S. TAYLOR.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 15th day of Septem-23 ber, A. D. 1902.

BENJ. P. THORNTON,
Deputy Clerk of United States Circuit Court.

In the circuit court of the United States for the district of 24
Minnesota, third division.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, COMPLAINANT,
v.
NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, THE GREAT Northern Railway Company, The Northern Pacific Railway Company, James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, and Daniel Lamont, defendants.

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 15, 1902. 25

At 10 o'clock in the forenoon of the 15th day of September, 1902, at the office of the United States district attorney, in the Post-Office building, in the city of New York, this cause was duly called by the special examiner, Frederick G. Ingersoll.

Mr. John K. Richards, Solicitor-General, and Mr. James M. Beck, Assistant Attorney-General, and Mr. William A. Day, special assistant to the Attorney-General, appeared for and on behalf of the complainant. Mr. M. D. Grover appeared for and on behalf of the defendant Great Northern Railway Company; Mr. Charles W. Bunn appeared for and on behalf of the 26 defendant, the Northern Pacific Railway Company; Messrs. John W. Griggs and George B. Young appeared for and on behalf of the defendant, the Northern Securities Company; Mr. George B. Young appeared for and on behalf of the defendants, W. P. Clough, James J. Hill, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, and George F. Baker; and Mr. David Willcox appeared for and on behalf of the defendants, Daniel S. Lamont, J. Pierpont Morgan, and Robert Bacon; all parties to said cause being represented.

Thereupon, by consent of all parties, further proceedings 27 herein were adjourned until Tuesday, September 16, 1902, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at room 70 in the post-office building in said city of New York.

28 CITY OF NEW YORK, September 16, 1902.

This cause was duly called at room 70, in the post-office building in said city of New York, at 11 o'clock a. m. this day, pursuant to adjournment. All parties complainant and defendant appeared. Thereupon Solicitor-General Richards made the following statement:

Mr. EXAMINER: It has been stipulated by counsel for the United States and counsel for all of the defendants in this case that certain testimony and documentary evidence heretofore taken and reported shall be treated and considered as testi-
29 mony taken and reported by the special examiner in the present case. I therefore request that you spread upon the record a minute to the effect that all parties to this case stipulate and agree that the testimony of James J. Hill, C. S. Mellen, J. S. Kennedy, G. W. Perkins, W. P. Clough, Jacob H. Schiff, Charles Steele, and J. P. Morgan, with the documentary evidence and exhibits introduced in connection therewith, taken in the case of Peter Power against the Northern Pacific Railway Company, pending in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, fourth division, before Richard A.
30 Mabey, special examiner, and printed in the transcript, and also all the exhibits introduced in evidence in said case; likewise the testimony of E. H. Harriman taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission at Chicago, Ill., on the 25th of January, 1902, in the matter of consolidations and combinations of carriers, subject to the act to regulate commerce, including the method of association known as the "Community of interest plan," shall be considered and treated as testimony taken in this case and have the same force and effect as if the documentary evidence had been introduced and each of the witnesses formally 31 sworn and examined before you as special examiner in this case.

The EXAMINER. Now, Mr. Solicitor-General, when will you hand to the examiner that testimony—that record?

Mr. RICHARDS. In that connection, Mr. Examiner, I desire to state further that of course both sides reserve the right to call either of these witnesses and take their oral testimony; and, of course, as you suggest, it will be necessary to put in shape all of the testimony, oral and documentary, to which I have referred; and so, I suppose it will be necessary to adjourn from now until some day next week, say Thursday of next week, in order to permit the placing in proper shape of the testimony which is thus introduced by agreement. 32

Mr. GRIGGS. That is agreeable to the other side.

The EXAMINER. Then I understand that that adjournment is asked for now?

Mr. RICHARDS. Yes.

The EXAMINER. Well, then, we will adjourn until next week, Thursday, at 11 o'clock, at this room. 33

Mr. RICHARDS. At 11 o'clock.

The EXAMINER. Next week, Thursday, at 11 o'clock at this room?

Mr. RICHARDS. Yes.

Adjourned until September 25, 1902, at 11 a. m., room 70, post-office building.

34 CITY OF NEW YORK, September 25, 1902.

Pursuant to adjournment, the hearing was resumed at this time. All parties appeared.

Mr. RICHARDS. Mr. Examiner, in pursuance of the stipulation and agreement by counsel for all the parties, of which I advised you at the last meeting, I hand you certain printed testimony:

1. Volume 1 of the special examiner's transcript of defendant's testimony in the Peter Power case.

2. Volume 2 of special examiner's transcript, same case.

35 3. Volume 3 of special examiner's transcript, same case, up to and including page 88.

4. A pamhlet containing the laws constituting charter of the Great Northern Railway Company and a record of its organization. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit A.")

5. Twelfth Annual Report of the Great Northern Railway Company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit B.")

Mr. GROVER. In that report, Mr. Richards, is a map, marked an exhibit, with special reference to Mr. Hill's testimony.

36 Mr. RICHARDS. Yes.

The SPECIAL EXAMINER. Do I understand that the twelfth annual report introduced here now is a part of Mr. Hill's testimony?

Mr. GROVER. Yes.

Mr. RICHARDS (continuing):

6. A copy of the trust indenture securing Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy collateral, 4 per cent joint bonds. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit C.")

7. A copy of the lease of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy

37 Railroad Company to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit D.")

8. A copy of the agreement of J. P. Morgan & Co. with the voting trustees of the Northern Pacific Railway Company of December 1, 1896. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit E.")

9. A copy of dissolution of the voting trust of the Northern Pacific Railway Company. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit F.")

10. A copy of the minutes of the meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company held on November 13, 1901. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit G.") 38

11. A copy of the circular issued by the Northern Securities Company on November 22, 1901, to the holders of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company. (Marked "Complainant's Exhibit H.")

12. A copy of the testimony of Edward H. Harriman, given before the Interstate Commerce Commission, at Chicago, on January 25, 1902, and reported on pages 78 to 115, inclusive, of the printed report of that hearing. 39

I think that is all that goes in under this stipulation.

Mr. GROVER. Yes, that embraces everything.

Mr. RICHARDS. Now, Mr. Examiner, we desire to introduce on the part of the Government a map which has been prepared by the Interstate Commerce Commission, or by the map maker of the Interstate Commerce Commission. That map is here. Mr. Day can state how the map happened to be made and identified.

The SPECIAL EXAMINER. That, I understand, is introduced under the same general consent. 40

Mr. GRIGGS. They offer it and we say no objection; take it as original evidence.

The SPECIAL EXAMINER. That will be received and marked as one of the exhibits in the case.

It was marked "Complainant's Exhibit I."

41 The following is a copy of vol. 1 of special examiner's transcript in Peter Power case, containing the testimony of James J. Hill and Charles S. Mellen, and here offered by complainant as original evidence in this case.

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, fourth division.

PETER POWER, COMPLAINANT,
v.
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, defendant.

42 JAMES J. HILL, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows, in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Lancaster:

Q. Mr. Hill, you will give your name and residence.

A. James J. Hill; St. Paul, Minn.

Q. On the 30th day of December, 1901, you were president and a director of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long have you been president and a director of said company?

A. Since its organization.

43 Q. What year was that, please?

A. The fall of 1889, I think.

Mr. KELLOGG. I wish to enter an objection to my testimony in this case as irrelevant and immaterial, and on the ground that the bill of complaint states no cause of action, and I suppose it may be understood that I need not repeat this objection to every question.

Mr. LANCASTER. That may be stipulated.

Mr. KELLOGG. And I can urge it as though it was placed against every question.

44 Q. Mr. Hill, about how many miles of railway does the Great Northern system comprise, including branches?

A. And proprietary lines?

Q. Yes.

A. 5,700 or 5,800.

Q. What are the eastern termini of the Great Northern Railway system?

A. The Twin Cities and the head of Lake Superior.

Q. Duluth?

A. Duluth and Superior. 45

Q. What are the western termini of the same road?

A. Puget Sound. It has a line along the shore principally of Puget Sound.

Q. And does it reach Seattle?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Tacoma?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, does it reach Portland?

A. No, sir. Over another line.

Q. Does it have a line of railway extending from St. Paul 46 and Minneapolis to Duluth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And a line of railway from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Moorhead?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And to Crookston?

A. Part of the same line.

Q. And does it also extend to East Grand Forks?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And all of those towns in the State of Minnesota? 47

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your line also reaches Fargo, N. Dak.?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does your line also extend from St. Paul and Minneapolis westward to Wahpeton, N. Dak.?

A. One of the lines to Moorhead and Fargo extends to Wahpeton and passes through Wahpeton.

Q. And touches Breckenridge?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which is in the State of Minnesota? 48

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Through what States does the Great Northern Railway system go or pass?

A. There are some lines in Wisconsin, Minnesota, both Dakotas, Montana, Idaho, and Washington. There are some lines in British Columbia. That is all.

Q. And it had all of these lines and was operating all of these lines on and prior to December 30, 1901, did it?

49 A. Practically. There may a few miles have been added since that time, but practically.

Q. Practically all of these lines that you have described were operated and owned by the Great Northern road at and prior to December 30, 1901?

A. Either operated by the Great Northern road—some of them, known as Great Northern lines, are operated by their own companies separately.

Q. Well, all of those lines that you have described, Mr. Hill, were, on the 30th day of December, 1901, and prior thereto, 50 known and operated as a part of the Great Northern Railway system, were they not?

A. The Eastern Minnesota, the Montana Central, Spokane Falls and Northern, and Kootenai Valley are all operated by their own separate corporations.

Q. Well, are the stocks of all of those roads owned and held by the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Substantially all.

Q. The main line, Mr. Hill, from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Seattle, is that owned directly by the Great Northern Rail-51 way Company?

A. Owned by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba. Leased.

Q. Is it leased?

A. By the Great Northern.

Q. Leased by the Great Northern?

A. Yes.

Q. For how long a time?

A. Nine hundred and ninety-nine years; and the Great Northern substantially owns the stock.

52 Q. That is, substantially owns the stock of the St. Paul——

A. Minneapolis and Manitoba; yes.

Q. And that was the condition on and prior to the 30th day of December, 1901?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Great Northern Railway Company was on that day, and prior thereto, operating the main line from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Seattle?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that main line passes in a northwesterly direction 53 from St. Paul and Minneapolis through the State of Minnesota, does it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in a westerly direction through the State of North Dakota?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in a practically westerly direction through the State of Montana?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And through the States of Idaho and Washington? 54

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To Puget Sound?

A. That is correct.

Mr. LANCASTER. Mr. Kellogg, we would like to have in the record here a map. We have one. This is the Great Northern. We have another one here of the Northern Pacific, but I think this was gotten out after the purchase of the Burlington. It shows the three systems, and that is attached to the Great Northern report for 1901.

Mr. KELLOGG. That map is substantially correct, as such 55 railway maps are.

Mr. LANCASTER. Very well, that may be taken.

Mr. KELLOGG. Of course, that is not an exact map of the railroads. It is what is usually printed in advertising sheets and time tables, as railway maps.

Mr. BOUTELLE. It is a little more accurate than that, isn't it?

Mr. KELLOGG. I don't know how accurate it is.

Mr. LANCASTER. I just want to show what this is, Mr. Kellogg.

Mr. KELLOGG. All right. 56

(The map was marked "Complainant's Exhibit A.")

Q. Mr. Hill, I will show you complainant's Exhibit A, which has been identified by the examiner, which is a map attached to the twelfth annual report of the Great Northern Railway Company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, and ask you if in a general way that shows the lines of railways of the Great Northern Railway system, the Northern Pacific system, and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad system.

57 A. Yes, sir; that in a general way shows the various lines of the three systems.

Q. I will ask you if the Great Northern Railway system is shown in red lines on the map.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Northern Pacific Railway system is shown in green on the map?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway system is shown in blue?

58 A. That is correct.

Q. I would like a little explanation of this, Mr. Hill. I call your attention to dotted lines in blue in the State of Montana, extending northwesterly from Huntley, and ask you what those dotted lines are proposed to show.

A. Supposed to show surveys, or they may show probable surveys or possible lines.

Q. Surveys for proposed lines?

A. Proposed lines or possible lines.

Q. Or extensions?

59 A. Yes.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the dotted lines in red extending from Armington, in a general southeasterly direction, and ask you what those dotted lines in red show, and what they indicate.

A. They indicate a possible extension.

Q. Well, in the case of the Great Northern do they show a proposed extension of the Great Northern line?

A. Not at present.

Q. About what time, Mr. Hill, was this map, Exhibit

60 gotten out by the Great Northern road?

A. Oh, about the time of the publication of the report, I should think.

Q. It isn't dated?

A. The report is dated; yes.

Q. That is the end of the fiscal year, June 30; but this was not gotten out until long afterwards, was it?

A. It is usually gotten out in the month of September. I suppose that map was made, possibly, in September, 1901.

Q. September, you think, 1901?

A. Yes, sir. 61

Q. Now, at the time when this map was gotton out, were those red lines from Armington intended to show a proposed extension of the Great Northern?

A. No, sir. They are simply meant as a possibility. It may be an advertisement or it may be some suggestion or possibility.

Q. At the time this map was gotten out, some time in September, 1901, had there been an actual survey of that line by the Great Northern Railway as shown by this map?

A. I don't think there has ever been any survey by the Great Northern Railway over that ground. 62

Q. I don't wish to take up much time on this, Mr. Hill, but wish to call your attention to this—the red dotted lines from Portland, Oreg., up to Seattle. At the time this map was gotten out, was there a proposed extension, as shown by the dotted lines there, on the part of the Great Northern?

A. No, sir. That is possibly meant—probably meant—I don't know who put it there, but it probably meant to cover a grade that was partially built ten or twelve years ago.

Mr. GROVER. By another company?

A. Built by the Portland and Puget Sound Railroad. 63

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, then, Mr. Hill, at the present time, or on the 30th day of December, 1901, the dotted lines to which I have just called your attention, from Seattle to Portland, was not a proposed extension?

A. I tried to explain that, that these were mere suggestions. I don't imagine that it would be possible to build a line around that particular location. I think that line would run over the top of steep hills. There is a valley there most of the way.

Q. Well, I will ask you this: Was there on the 30th day of December, 1901, an actual proposed line by the Great Northern road between Seattle and Portland? 64

A. No, sir. There was a survey down in some places on one side of the Northern Pacific, and some places it is on the other, of a line built or partially built—partially graded—in 1890, I think.

Q. By another company?

A. Yes, sir; by a company called the Portland and Puget Sound.

65 Q. Now, with reference to the two other dotted lines, extending northerly from the main line of the Great Northern, or take the three dotted lines there; what were those dotted lines intended to show and what do they show?

A. One of them, running down through the center of Kootenai Lake, shows the steamboat route. This line running up the Columbia River up to the mouth of the Okanogan, that may show a steamboat line and it may show a possible railway line. I couldn't say. There is a steamboat running there.

Q. There was not, then, on the 30th day of December, 1901, 66 a proposed line from Huntley, in the State of Montana, to Armington, by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway system and the Great Northern Railway system?

A. I could answer for the Great Northern that there was not; I could not answer for the Burlington.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Hill, if you knew of your own knowledge of any proposed extension on the part of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. I think the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy had engineers within the last year in that country; whether they completed 67 their work or whether they did not, I could not say.

Mr. LANCASTER. Now, Mr. Kellogg, we will offer this map in evidence.

Mr. KELLOGG. All right, put it in evidence. It will be received subject to the same objection.

Mr. GROVER. Is there a scale on it?

Mr. LANCASTER. I don't think there is. As I stated, practically all we want it for is to show the directions and main lines, etc.

Mr. KELLOGG. Well, it may be received subject to the ob-68 jection that it is irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. LANCASTER. Mr. Kellogg, have you any objection to the report going in?

Mr. KELLOGG. I don't see what that has to do with the Northern Pacific Railway. I object to that report going in generally. I don't know what is in the report. I haven't examined it. It is certainly incompetent against the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Hill, if complainant's Exhibit B is the Twelfth Annual Report of the Great Northern Railway 69

Company issued some time in September, 1901.

A. It has that appearance; I haven't compared it with the copy.

Q. You have no doubt, I suppose, Mr. Hill, but what that is official?

A. It has every appearance of being the report.

Q. (Mr. BOUTELLE.) Is that the printed report that was issued by the Great Northern, as it went out? This is a report, or a printed copy of a report, that was actually published by the Great Northern road and sent out to the stockholders? 70

A. It may be. I could compare it with a correct copy and then I could say that it is, but I have not read it. I don't know that it is not.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is not the question.

Q. You haven't any doubt, have you, Mr. Hill, but what that is the official printed copy?

A. It has every appearance. I have not read it, and without reading it I couldn't swear that it was.

Q. You did cause, Mr. Hill, on behalf of the Great Northern Railway Company, in September, 1901, to be sent out a printed 71 copy of the Twelfth Annual Report, did you not?

A. The company has printed every year an annual report.

Q. Of your own knowledge, do you know that such a printed report was gotten out in September, 1901?

A. It is made from the annual report and sent to the shareholders.

Q. I say you know of your own knowledge that a printed copy was sent out?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have seen those printed copies, have you not, Mr. 72 Hill?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are you not able to tell that that is one of the printed copies which the Great Northern road had printed and sent out in September, 1901, as its Twelfth Annual Report?

A. I haven't read it. It has the appearance of the Twelfth Annual Report, but without reading it I couldn't say.

Q. It wouldn't be necessary for you to read it all through, 73 Mr. Hill, to tell whether or not it was one of the printed copies which your road sent out.

A. I don't know how I could swear it was a correct copy without comparing it with a correct copy. I don't know what is in that.

Q. I don't ask you, Mr. Hill, whether it is a correct copy of the annual report as prepared, but what I want to know is if that is not one of the printed copies which the Great Northern road sent out?

A. I don't know that, sir. I said it had the appearance of it.

74 Mr. KELLOGG. This is hardly a fair examination. What do you want of this report?

Mr. LANCASTER. I want to have it identified as the printed report of the Great Northern road, and I suppose you will admit that, won't you?

Mr. KELLOGG. If we have time to examine it, we will see. You have not pointed out anything you want, and it is not proper evidence in this case. If you will point out anything you want to introduce we will see if we will admit it or not. At present it is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and im-75 material.

Mr. LANCASTER. I haven't got to that. I was simply trying to identify it and to save the time of pursuing this examination of Mr. Hill. I asked you if you would admit that this was a printed copy of the twelfth annual report of the Great Northern road; the question of whether it shall be received in evidence is something to be reached later.

Mr. GROVER. If that is not a correct one, you can get one that is.

Mr. LANCASTER. Certainly.

76 Mr. KELLOGG. Well, subject to the right to examine it and make any corrections, we are willing to admit that this is the printed copy of the twelfth annual report of the Great Northern Railway Company.

Mr. LANCASTER. Yes, sir; and you will have the privilege of examining it, and if you prefer you can bring a copy of your own and we will substitute it.

Mr. KELLOGG. Well, it isn't in evidence yet.

(The twelfth annual report of the Great Northern Railway Company was marked by the examiner "Complainant's Exhibit B.") 77

Mr. LANCASTER. Complainant offers in evidence complainant's Exhibit B.

Mr. KELLOGG. This is especially objected to as incompetent and as irrelevant and as immaterial.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, I want to get into the record the names of the directors of the railroads—the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company—and I thought possibly that might help your memory a little. 78

Mr. YOUNG. At what date?

Mr. LANCASTER. On and prior to December 30, 1901.

A. That states the directors prior to October, 1901.

Q. That is, the twelfth annual report shows the directors of the Great Northern road on and prior to December 30, 1901?

A. No; prior to October, 1901.

Q. Well, I will take those and note the changes.

Mr. BULKLEY. How long have they been directors?

A. James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Miller, Edward Sawyer, M. D. Grover, R. I. Farrington, Jacob H. Schiff, Henry W. Cannon, James N. Hill, Samuel Hill, and E. T. Nichols. 79

Q. What changes in the directors were made subsequent to October and prior to December 30, 1901, Mr. Hill?

A. The election of the company was held in October and changes were made.

Q. Will you indicate the changes that were made in the board of directors?

A. A director was elected in place of Jacob H. Schiff, whose term expired.

Q. And who was elected in his place, Mr. Hill? 80

A. I am not certain whether it was Mr. Nichols or Mr. Farrington.

Q. Mr. Nichols and Mr. Farrington were directors of the old board, weren't they?

A. No, sir.

Q. E. T. Nichols?

A. No, sir.

Q. I guess that is right. I took these from a later date. Mr. Farrington, Mr. Hill, appears to be a director prior to October, 1901; it must have been Mr. Nichols, then, that was substituted for Mr. Schiff. Is that correct?

A. I couldn't say without the record; it is only a matter of recollection. To be accurate, I can give you the information upon that point.

Mr. KELLOGG. What do you care if you have the present board?

Mr. LANCASTER. I had these names here, and I wanted to get it straightened out.

Q. Then the present board, Mr. Hill, would be James J. Hill, William P. Clough, D. Miller, Edward Sawyer, M. D. Grover, R. I. Farrington, Henry W. Cannon, James N. Hill, Samuel Hill, and E. T. Nichols, if Mr. Nichols was the one that was elected?

A. That would not be correct.

Q. In what respect isn't it correct? Give the present board.

A. I can't; I don't remember the names. I know that Mr. Miller is not a member of the present board. That is my best recollection. Colonel Clough is not a member, or Mr. Schiff.

Q. When was the annual election held?

A. I don't remember the time. I wasn't present. It was adjourned.

Q. Mr. Hill, I suppose you would have no difficulty in giving us the names of the directors that were elected?

Mr. GROVER. I will give you those names.

A. You will have no difficulty at all.

Mr. GROVER. I haven't them now, but I will give them to you.

Mr. LANCASTER. If you will submit to the examiner a correct list——

Mr. GROVER. Yes, I will send it to him.

Mr. LANCASTER. What I want is the directors that were elected at the annual meeting in October and the changes, if any, that have been made subsequent to that date and prior to December 30, 1901.

Mr. GROVER. I can tell you now, off-hand of course, there were no changes.

Mr. LANCASTER. If you will consent to Mr. Grover's putting those in here we would just as soon have it in that way.

Mr. GROVER. Mr. Farrington succeeded the gentleman from 85
New York, Mr. Todd; Mr. Dean succeeded Mr. Schiff, and Mr. Weyerhauser succeeded Mr. Clough, and there was only one election.

Mr. LANCASTER. And those gentlemen were elected at the October meeting?

Mr. GROVER. They were elected at the October meeting. It was when the adjourned meeting was held. Not the first day of the meeting, but the annual October meeting adjourned. Mr. Todd was a member and resigned, and Mr. Farrington succeeded him some time previous to October. 86

Q. Now, with those changes, Mr. Hill, that constitutes the present board of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that constituted the board on the 30th day of December, 1901?

A. There has been no change since the board was elected.

Q. And Mr. William P. Clough, was he a director on the 30th day of December, 1901?

A. No, sir.

Mr. GROVER. He resigned weeks before that and Mr. Weyer- 87 hauser succeeded him.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you know when the annual meeting of the Northern Pacific Railway Company was held in 1901?

A. I do not know accurately, but have an impression it was about the 13th of November. It might have been prior to that time.

Mr. KELLOGG. Mr. Mellen can tell you that.

Q. Mr. Hill, you were elected a director of the Northern Pacific Railway Company. Do you remember about what time that election took place? 88

A. I think it was held in July or early August.

Q. I will show you this. This is the report of the Northern Pacific. This shows that you were elected July 23, 1901. Is that your recollection?

A. I think that is substantially correct. No doubt it is.

Q. And how long did you continue a director in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I didn't qualify or accept the position or attend a meeting until after the election in the fall.

89 Q. November?

A. It might have been October or November, but my recollection is that I attended one meeting in November and resigned from the board. I remember when I was elected I called attention to the fact that I was not eligible.

Q. Well, you probably resigned, then, some time in November, 1901?

A. I think about the 17th or 18th of November.

Q. On and prior to December 30, 1901, were you a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

90 A. Well, there are two companies, and the railroad company is the older company. I am not certain.

Q. You are not certain whether you were a director of the railroad company?

A. Or not.

Q. Were you ever a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. I am not sure. I could tell by referring to the record. I am a director in a number of companies, and I have to depend on the record better than my recollection.

91 Q. Will you examine your records, Mr. Hill, and see if you ever were a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, and if so when you were elected, and if you are still a director of that company?

A. Yes, sir; I will do so.

Q. Were you on the 30th day of December, 1901, and prior thereto, a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir; I was.

Q. And are you such director at the present time?

92 A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when did the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company conclude their negotiations for the purchase of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. I think the stockholders did not take action. I think the action was taken in the first instance by the company in approving the purchase by resolution of the board of directors. I don't recollect a stockholders' meeting to consider that matter.

Q. Well, what I am getting at, Mr. Hill, is, at what time 93 was the matter virtually concluded, that is, when were the negotiations concluded?

A. I think the negotiations were concluded subject to approval some time in April, 1901.

Q. Had the Great Northern Railway Company or the Northern Pacific Railway Company for several months prior to April, 1901, acquired large holdings of stock in the Burlington system?

A. They had not acquired a dollar, nor anyone representing them, directly or indirectly. 94

Mr. KELLOGG. That is, you mean prior to the conclusion of the negotiations?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you, Mr. Hill, prior to April, 1901, hold stock in the Burlington system?

A. Not a share.

Q. Had the common stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company been purchased for or on account of either the Great Northern or Northern Pacific prior to April, 1901? 95

A. I can speak for the Great Northern. There was not one share, either for account for the company or for anyone connected with the company, and I believe that was the case with regard to the Northern Pacific. I have no knowledge.

Mr. KELLOGG. You mean prior to whenever those negotiations were completed? Mr. Hill didn't pretend to be certain of the date of that negotiation.

Q. You say, Mr. Hill, that the negotiations, as near as you can recall, were concluded some time in April, 1901?

A. That is my recollection. 96

Q. Now, of course, we are talking with reference to the month of April as being the time when the negotiations were concluded. I don't want to be misunderstood.

Mr. GROVER. That is correct.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company was held by a large number of individuals, was it not?

A. Yes, sir; about 18,000, I think.

97 Q. Did either the Great Northern or Northern Pacific commence in the fall of 1900 to purchase the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company from individuals?

A. The Great Northern did not in the fall, or at any other time before or since, purchase any shares of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company from any individual shareholders, nor did anyone connected with the Great Northern or for the Great Northern directly or indirectly.

Q. Then I understand, Mr. Hill, that at no time prior to the conclusion of the negotiations which took place in April, 1901, 98 did you individually, or for or on account of the Great Northern Railway Company, own or hold any shares in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. I never bought any for myself, never owned any prior to that time, and never have owned any except as a director, if I am a director; I don't know that I am. And to answer your question in regard to the Northern Pacific, I have no accurate knowledge as to what was done for the Northern Pacific, but I have a distinct recollection that Mr. Morgan told me that neither the Northern Pacific nor his firm, nor anyone connected 99 with it, could or would buy a share of the stock of the Burlington pending the negotiations.

Q. Well, when, Mr. Hill, did the negotiations for the acquirement of the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road commence? About when?

A. The actual negotiations, I should say, commenced about or after the middle of January, 1901.

Q. And is it your recollection that negotiations had been had in the fall or early winter of 1900?

A. Yes, sir; I know there were no such negotiations prior 100 to the first of January or to Christmas.

Q. That is the 1st of January, 1901?

A. The 1st of January, 1901, or Christmas, 1900.

Q. Who conducted the negotiations on the part of the Great Northern road for the acquirement of this stock of the Burlington?

A. I did.

Q. And who conducted the negotiations on the part of the Northern Pacific?

A. Members of the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., who were directors, and I remember Mr. Robert Bacon and Mr. Baker— 101

Mr. George F. Baker, who was a director in the Northern Pacific.

Q. And with whom were the negotiations carried on; that is, with whom representing the Burlington system?

A. With the members of the executive committee of the Burlington and Quincy board of directors.

Q. Can you give us the names of those gentlemen, Mr. Hill?

A. Mr. Charles E. Perkins——

Q. Of New York? 102

A. Burlington.

Q. Burlington, Iowa?

A. Burlington, Iowa. Mr. Huniwell, of Boston; Mr. Forbes, of Boston; Mr. Olney, of Boston, and General Paine, of Boston. I think that covers the names of those present.

Q. I understood you to say, Mr. Hill, that these negotiations were concluded in April, 1901? Do you refer to the action taken by the directors of the different companies?

A. I think the action by the Great Northern was taken in April, 1901. 103

Q. That is, at a meeting of the board of directors?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where was that meeting held?

A. I think it was held in St. Paul.

Q. At that time, Mr. Hill, the negotiations had been closed, subject to ratification by the boards of directors of the different companies, had it?

A. The understanding arrived at was ready to submit to the board of directors.

Q. That is, you representing the Great Northern and the gen- 104 tlemen that you have named representing the Northern Pacific, and the executive committee representing the Burlington, had agreed upon a basis of purchase subject to the approval of the boards of the different companies?

A. I think the executive committee of the Burlington had stated that they would recommend their shareholders to accept, and that was submitted to the other companies. I think that was the manner in which the matter was decided, and it is my best recollection of what occurred.

105 Q. Now, at the time when the negotiations were concluded, and the matter ready to be submitted to the board of directors of the different companies, had either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific any option on any of the stock of the Burlington road to your knowledge?

A. Outside of the negotiations carried on with the executive committee?

Q. Yes.

A. I know that the Great Northern had no options or interest in any options, or any interest in any purchase of stock.

106 Q. So that when the executive committee of the Burlington road arrived at an understanding with you representing the Great Northern, and the gentlemen named representing the Northern Pacific, their action would simply be advisory to 18,000 individual stockholders of the Burlington Railroad Company. Is that correct?

A. Please state that again.

Q. I say that at the time when you, representing the Great Northern, and J. Pierpont Morgan and others representing the Northern Pacific, and the gentlemen, Mr. Perkins and others, 107 representing the Burlington—I say when you arrived at a basis of purchase of the stock, that stock was still owned and held by some 18,000 stockholders, and the action of the executive committee representing the Burlington would simply be advisory to those stockholders?

A. That is all.

Q. And all that the executive committee representing the Burlington, then, could or attempted to do in those negotiations was to arrive at some basis which they would recommend their stockholders to accept?

108 A. And that is what they did.

Q. I say that is what they attempted to do and what they did?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that, so far as you know, Mr. Hill, there had been no substantial change in the holdings of the Burlington stock after the commencement of negotiations and up to the time when the executive committee undertook to advise their stockholders to make this exchange?

A. There were reported more or less transactions in the stock.

The price advanced, and more or less transactions were reported. 109
Outside of that I have no knowledge, and I had no special knowledge of any kind.

Q. I notice in the report of the Great Northern, which I understood you to say was submitted to the public or printed in September, 1901, states that the Northern Pacific and Great Northern had actually acquired 96.79 per cent of the total authorized issue of the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company. That stock was all acquired between the submission of this matter to the boards of directors of the three different companies and the publication of this report, was 110
it?

A. Yes, sir; it was all acquired after it was authorized by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and the authority was given, I think, to make the purchase in April.

Q. That is, the authority given by the board of directors of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, you mean. The matter was submitted to the board of directors of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern in April, 1901?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, how soon after that submission to the boards of 111 directors of the different companies was this stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company acquired? Do you remember about what time it was when you had acquired this 96.79 per cent?

A. There was a large amount of it deposited under the agreement to purchase within a short time after the understanding was arrived at with the Burlington and Quincy executive committee, but I don't carry in my mind the percentage or the changes in the percentage.

Q. Do I understand you to say, Mr. Hill, that probably a 112 majority of the stock was acquired right away?

A. Oh, I think that the understanding was based upon two-thirds or three-fourths of the Quincy company shareholders; that is, two-thirds or three-fourths of the shares accepting the purchase price.

Q. Did the executive committee representing the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company guarantee to procure that amount at the time when you say you arrived at a basis?

113 A. No, sir; they made no guaranty.

Q. Was there any agreement in writing between the executive committee of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company and the Great Northern, or yourself representing the Great Northern, or yourself individually, and the Northern Pacific road, or anybody representing it, with reference to this exchange of stock or sale of stock?

A. There were a great many matters put in writing and circulars, but as to whether the preliminary agreement was in writing I don't remember.

114 Q. Were you present, Mr. Hill, at the time the basis of purchase was agreed upon?

A. I was present at a number of meetings and I think I was present when everything substantially was agreed upon that was done.

Q. Are you able to state whether or not the provisions and terms of that agreement were reduced to writing?

A. The whole matter was a formal one, and reduced to writing as it was carried out. Whether there was a protocol or a preliminary agreement I don't remember.

115 Q. Do you remember of signing any preliminary agreement?

A. I don't recall any. The basis was substantially arrived at, and any modifications were subject to telegram or correspondence or personal negotiations.

Q. Was this matter submitted by you to the directors of the Great Northern road, at its meeting in April, in writing?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember whether you made any written report?

A. Or verbal report; I couldn't say which.

116 Q. I suppose you can ascertain, can't you?

A. Oh, yes.

Mr. GROVER. I can tell you all about it at any time when you want to know.

A. I was very busy those days, and I don't remember everything that happened.

Q. No doubt of it, Mr. Hill; you must have been. About what time were the joint bonds of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads issued with which to purchase the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy?

A. That was a detail with which I had little to do and do not recall. 117

Q. I am not going into that for the details, Mr. Hill, but about what time—June or July?

A. I should say May or June.

Mr. GROVER. The whole thing was ended before June, Mr. Lancaster.

Q. So that about the 1st of June or 1st of July, 1901, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads held and owned a large majority of the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company? 118

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the purchase of that stock by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, was there a company organized under the name of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir; there was such a company organized.

Q. And that was organized under the laws of the State of Iowa, was it not?

A. Yes, sir; I think so.

Q. The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company 119 was organized under the laws of Illinois, was it not?

A. Possibly, the parent company, but I think there were a number of companies; I think there were a great many companies in the Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company.

Q. There was one distinct organization or company or corporation known as the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, wasn't there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was organized under the laws of the State of Illinois? 120

A. I think it was.

Q. And the different corporations that you speak of or organizations under that, the stock of those different companies was held and owned by the main company—that is, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. It held the stocks of various companies. I don't carry in my mind the details of those matters.

Q. I don't expect you do, and I didn't mean to ask you for the details, merely the main points, Mr. Hill. Now, the Chi-121 cago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company is at the present time, and was on the 30th day of December, 1901, operating what is known as the Burlington system?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is operating that system under a lease?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. About when, Mr. Hill, was that lease executed from the railroad company to the railway company?

A. I couldn't give the exact date, but some time in the fall.

Q. The fall of 1901?

122 A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where are the principal offices of the railway company located?

A. The president's office is in Chicago.

Q. And where are the principal offices of the railroad company?

A. In Chicago; or the official office may be in Burlington as the old company. I don't know.

Q. That is, you mean the official offices of both companies or of the railway company?

123 A. The president's office is in Chicago. Now, where the official office of the company is, if it has an office outside of Chicago, I don't know. I think several of those corporations hold their meetings in the States they are organized in.

Q. What is the capital stock of the railway company?

A. I don't recollect the amount.

Q. Has the amount been fixed, Mr. Hill?

A. That I couldn't say. It hadn't been when I attended the last meeting.

Q. Are you a stockholder in the railway company?

124 A. Only to qualify.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, at the present time has there been any stock issued excepting to qualify officers?

A. I think there has.

Q. And do you know how much?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember what the authorized capital stock of the railway company is?

A. Only an impression that it has an authorized capital stock of one hundred million, I think.

Q. And you can not give us any idea as to how much has been issued? 125

A. No, sir; I couldn't without it being a wild guess, for I don't know.

Q. Is it more, Mr. Hill, than a nominal amount; that is, up to the present time?

A. I couldn't give the amount; I don't know.

Q. Well, is the stock on the market for sale?

A. Oh, no; not at all.

Q. And do you know at the present time of your own knowledge of any considerable amount of stock having been sold? 126

A. That stock belongs to the Great Northern Railway and to the Northern Pacific Railway.

Q. The stock of the railway company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you acquire that? How did those roads acquire the stock of the railway company, Mr. Hill?

A. Bought it.

Q. When?

A. As it was issued.

Q. Well, when was it issued? 127

A. I couldn't give the date; along through the autumn or fall.

Q. Can you ascertain from your office at St. Paul how much stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company has been issued to the Great Northern road?

A. I could not. I could from New York.

Q. Well, do you know, Mr. Hill, of your own knowledge that any stock of the railway company has been issued to the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I haven't seen it, but I know that the stock would be issued to the Great Northern as fast as it is issued, and I know that the stock has been paid for. 128

Q. Do you mean by that, Mr. Hill, that the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads, whatever stock comes to them they are to pay for in cash?

A. I am speaking for the Great Northern, and that stock would be paid for in cash.

Q. Do the Great Northern and Northern Pacific own the 129 stock of the railway company by reason of any agreement or understanding with reference to the buying of the stock of the railroad company?

A. The conditions are set out in the lease, and I don't recall what they were.

Q. Have you a copy of that lease?

A. I have not.

Q. Has the Great Northern road got a copy?

A. It perhaps has in New York; I don't think there are any copies in St. Paul.

130 Q. Mr. Hill, do you understand that whatever stock is issued by the railway company is to go to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway companies?

A. It goes to them.

Q. Yes?

A. Yes, sir; that is my understanding.

Q. And is that stock to be paid for in cash by those two companies?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, at par?

131 A. At par.

Q. And neither of those companies, the Great Northern Railway Company nor the Northern Pacific Railway Company, acquired that stock by reason of the purchase of the stock of the railroad company?

A. If that stock was issued to them at par and paid for in cash, that would be the consideration.

Q. I understand.

A. And that is, as I understood your question, my answer.

Q. I understood you to say a moment ago that the stock, as 132 fast as it is issued by the railway company—that is, the Burlington Railway Company—is to go (I suppose in equal shares, is it not?) to the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that that stock is to be paid for at par in cash by the respective companies, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern?

A. Stock might be issued for the stock of the Burlington—of the old railroad company. That stock might be issued for that, but you are asking me for stock that was issued—at least I understood you— for stock that was issued now, and I so testify 133 in regard to that.

Q. I read your testimony, Mr. Hill, before the Interstate Commerce Commission. I may not have understood it. I don't want to pursue this unnecessarily, but I want to get it straight.

A. That report is very garbled, and it might be that you got hold of some inaccurate portion of it.

Q. We have a transcript of the testimony as taken; not a newspaper report.

A. The testimony was not examined or verified, and it is 134 very incorrect. I know something of it. It is full of mistakes, some of which are ridiculous.

Q. I understood, Mr. Hill, that the stock of the Burlington Railway Company, the amount to be issued, etc., has not been agreed upon.

A. It has not been determined; no, sir.

Q. And there is a provision and agreement between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway and the railway company that whatever stock is issued shall go in equal shares to the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway 135 Company?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, that stock may be issued to those companies and paid for in cash at par?

A. That is right.

Q. Or it may be exchanged for stock of the old railroad company?

A. Yes, sir; it might.

Q. The 96-79 per cent of the capital stock of the old railroad company is now pledged as collateral security for the payment 136 of some two hundred and nine or ten million dollars of collateral bonds?

A. Yes, sir; joint collateral bonds.

Q. So that the only way that either road, the Great Northern or Northern Pacific, could exchange stock of the old company for stock of the railway company would be by payment of those bonds and acquiring that stock?

A. The only way in which they could deliver the stock to the purchaser would be to pay off the bonds.

137 Q. Now, is the agreement, or understanding, or expectation of the railway company to issue its stock—that is, the railway stock—and sell the same for cash, any considerable amount of it?

A. I have no agreement or understanding in reference to that.

Q. Is or is it not the understanding and agreement that eventually the stock of the railroad company, which is now pledged as collateral security for the collateral bonds—trust bonds of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific—when those bonds are paid, that that stock shall eventually be turned over to the railway company in exchange for its own stock?

138 A. That could be done, and that has been considered, but there is no definite information.

Q. In a general way, is that the plan and expectation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway companies?

A. There is no plan so far advanced as that that I know of.

Q. At the present time the stock of the railway company, whatever stock is issued, is owned by the Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those two roads own, so far as you know, all the 139 stock, excepting possibly a qualifying stock for directors?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of that road?

A. Of that company.

Q. Of that railway company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then, Mr. Hill, it is not under the present condition the expectation that any considerable amount of capital stock of the railway company shall be issued—that is, at the present time?

A. It might be to the advantage of the company to issue its 140 stock and sell it, but I don't know of any present or immediate plan for any such action.

Q. Mr. Hill, are the following gentlemen directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company: J. J. Hill, W. P. Clough, E. H. Harriman, Mortimer L. Schiff, James Stillman, George B. Harris, John S. Kennedy, George W. Perkins, William H. McIntyre, C. E. Perkins, and C. J. Paine?

A. As a matter of recollection that list contains many of the names, and—but I don't know but it is entirely correct. I will say it is correct, subject to correction, because there are two boards, one of the old company and one of the new, and some of 141 the names are on both. That makes it, as a matter of recollection, a little confusing.

Q. Mr. Hill, the gentlemen whose names have just been given there were directors of the railway company—that is, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company—on December 30, 1901?

A. Yes, sir; I think that these gentlemen were the directors at that time.

Q. What was the purpose or object of organizing the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company? 142

A. To unify the operation and management of the company. The old company is and has been made up of three organizations, with three sets of operating officers, substantially three sets of accounting officers.

Q. Well, did the railroad company, then, lease to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company all of its lines?

A. All of its lines.

Q. And all the lines which it owned or controlled, branch and otherwise?

A. Yes, sir. 143

Q. Mr. Hill, is the railway company at the present time anything more than a mere operating company?

A. It is the lessee.

Q. Well, did it take over, in addition to the lease from the railroad company, any of the stocks or securities of the railroad company in other lines—that is, subsidiary lines?

A. Those stocks, as I explained before, are held as a collateral security for the joint bonds.

Q. I don't think you quite understand me. I want to know if the railway company took anything from the railroad com- 144 pany excepting the lease. As I understand it, the railroad company held stocks and securities in various subsidiary companies. Now, were any of those stocks or securities held and owned by the railroad company turned over to the railway company under the terms of the lease?

A. The terms of the lease would be a great deal better than my recollection, and I couldn't testify on that with accuracy.

Q. We haven't the lease, Mr. Hill, and I understood you to say you hadn't a copy of the lease.

145 A. I haven't a copy of it.

Q. Whereabouts is the copy?

A. I suppose a copy is filed in the different offices throughout the State where the railway is. Maybe it is in Minnesota.

Q. Hasn't the Great Northern road a copy of the lease?

A. We have no copy in St Paul.

Q. Mr. Hill, you were not a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company or of the railway company—the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company—until after the purchase by the Great Northern and the North-146 ern Pacific Railway companies of the stock?

A. I was not.

Q. Was Mr. Harriman—E. H. Harriman?

A. He was not.

Q. Do you remember about what time you were elected a director of the railroad company?

A. I do not recall the time.

Q. Was it last summer?

A. I should think it was in the autumn.

Q. Mr. Hill, I understand that pretty nearly all of the 147 stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company is up with the trustees as collateral security for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific joint bonds. Is there an agreement as to who shall vote the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad during the time that that stock is up as collateral?

A. I couldn't recall. I should think there is some provision for voting it, but what that provision is I don't recall.

Q. Well, don't you recall in connection with the last meeting of the stockholders of the railroad company as to who voted 148 the stock?

A. I don't recall that I was there, although I might have been.

Q. Well, don't you know, Mr. Hill, that there is a definite provision as to how that stock shall be voted and who shall vote it while it is pledged?

A. I don't recall. I think there is a proxy named to vote the stock. That is a matter of recollection and not anything more.

Q. Well, was the board of directors of the railroad company at the last election named or suggested by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroad companies? 149

A. It was arrived at by an understanding.

Q. Between the two roads, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that understanding was carried through by whomever the stock was voted?

A. That is probably corr[illegible].

Q. Mr. Hill, it is my recollection that there was such a provision. 150

A. My recollection is not widely different from that. As I said, I thought there was a provision for a proxy. I think that is the way it was managed.

Mr. KELLOGG. Subject to any corrections that we desire to make, we admit that complainant's Exhibit C is a true copy of the trust deed securing the collateral bonds of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Mr. BULKLEY. That is understood on all copies, that they are subject to correction.

Mr. KELLOGG. Yes, sir. 151

Mr. LANCASTER. We offer in evidence complainant's Exhibit C subject to the objection that it is immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. KELLOGG. That is all right.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, I simply call your attention to Exhibit C. Whatever arrangement was made with reference to voting the stock during the time the stock of the old company, the Burlington Railroad Company, was up as collateral, is contained in the written agreements, Exhibit C.

A. The exhibit covers the agreement in regard to voting the stock. 152

Q. And that is the only agreement with reference to the power to vote the stock during the time that the same is up as collateral to the joint bond?

A. I know of no other.

Q. So that, as long as the interest is kept up and maintained upon the collateral bonds, the right to vote the stock is in the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir; subject to the conditions of the agreement, of course.

153 Q. But is that not the condition, Mr. Hill, that as long as the interest is maintained upon the collateral bonds, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific shall vote the stock? Have power to?

A. They shall each vote their own holding, and if they did not agree I think there is a method provided for an election.

Mr. KELLOGG. Isn't it stated in detail? It is pretty hard to state the substance of a trust deed.

A. I don't carry this matter in my mind.

Q. What I was getting at is, that during the time, Mr. Hill,
154 that this stock of the railroad company is up as collateral to the joint bonds of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, the two latter roads have the power to vote the stock of the railroad company. That is, as long as the conditions of that agreement, Exhibit C, are kept up.

A. Yes, sir; I suppose they could agree together on any board of directors they saw fit.

Q. That is, the two roads, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific.

A. Yes, sir. They are the shareholders, and as shareholders 155 they control the property.

By consent of all parties a recess was taken at this time until 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Monday afternoon, February 18, 1902, at 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon all parties appeared, represented by the same counsel and the following proceedings were had, to wit:

JAMES J. HILL, recalled for further examination by Mr. Lancaster, testified as follows:

Q. Mr. Hill, I will ask you if the following gentlemen were directors on the 30th day of December, 1901, of the Chicago, 156 Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company: C. E. Perkins, F. W. Hunnewell, J. Malcolm Forbes, James J. Hill, J. N. Hill, Norman B. Rean, Robert Bacon, E. H. Harriman, Jacob Schiff, George J. Gould, and H. McK. Twombly?

A. There are some names that I feel sure are members, but there are others I am not clear about. It is a matter of recollection. I had not charged my mind with them.

Mr. LANCASTER. May this be taken?

A. The actual directors can be ascertained.

Q. Certainly, Mr. Hill, but we want to get this in the record, and may this be taken as your recollection of the 157 directors subject to any correction that Mr. Grover may make?

A. I would rather undertake to furnish a list of the directors.

Q. If you will furnish a list that is all right, Mr. Hill; we would be glad to have it that way, only we want it in the record.

A. I would be very glad to furnish the list.

Q. Mr. Hill, let me ask you if, on and prior to December 31, 1901, you were a director of the railroad company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your son, J. N. Hill, was also a director? 158

A. I think he was.

Q. And who else of the list are you sure of and can you mention some?

A. I think Mr. Perkins, Mr. Forbes, and Mr. Hunnewell.

Q. And are those the only ones you are now sure of?

Mr. BACON. Harriman, are you sure of him?

A. Not sure.

Q. Well, we don't care to waste any time on that because, as you say, it is a matter that can be easily determined.

Mr. LANCASTER. I will offer in evidence Exhibit 5, this map, 159
Mr. Kellogg.

Mr. KELLOGG. Subject to the objection as to its materiality and relevancy. The map may be received in evidence as the railroad commissioners' map of Minnesota of 1901. There is such a railroad map published by the railway commission of Minnesota.

Mr. LANCASTER. And to save any time going over this with Mr. Hill or any other witnesses, the notations as to the different roads, the colors by which they are indicated, that may be taken?

Mr. KELLOGG. Subject to any corrections that we may wish 160 to make hereafter, the notations of the different roads with the colors as shown on the map may be taken as correct?

A. I think they are. I have looked them over, but I do not remember.

Q. Mr. Hill, I barely touched a matter in connection with the Burlington that I want to clear up a little, at least, in my own mind. Is it a fact that some time in the fall of 1900, or early winter of 1901, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern made an attempt or an effort to buy up stock of the Burlington 161 railroad, independent of any negotiations with the directors of that railroad?

A. They never made any effort or attempt to buy the stock of the Burlington road jointly, and I can speak for the Great Northern, it never made any attempt, or was ever concerned in any attempt to buy it, directly or indirectly, outside of the negotiations that were carried on and completed through the executive committee of the Burlington road.

Q. Had any attempt, to your knowledge, been made in the fall of 1900, or early winter of 1901, to buy up the stock of 162 the Burlington Railroad Company, independent of negotiations with the directors of that railroad?

A. Not by the Great Northern or jointly with the Northern Pacific.

Q. Had any attempt by any other road to your knowledge been made?

Mr. KELLOGG. I do not see how that is material to this inquiry at all. If you gentlemen want to ask questions of that kind you can wander around, unless the witness refuses to answer, but we object to it, because it certainly is not material.
163 What other roads have been doing has nothing to do with this inquiry or the issue in this case.

Q. Will you answer that, Mr. Hill?

A. My knowledge is based on what the parties who made the attempt told me.

Mr. KELLOGG. That certainly is not material.

A. It is not.

Q. Who were the parties, Mr. Hill?

A. I got that information in confidence, and unless I am compelled to answer it I would prefer not to.

164 Mr. KELLOGG. It is certainly hearsay, and you do not want to pursue hearsay testimony, Mr. Lancaster, as a lawyer.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, do you want to be understood as declining to answer that question?

Mr. KELLOGG. No objection to your answering it at all, if these gentlemen want to pursue that sort of inquiry.

A. The question is who gave me the information?

Q. Who the parties were.

Mr. KELLOGG. There is nothing to conceal about it.

Q. Who the parties were that made the attempt to buy up 165 the Burlington Railroad?

A. The particular party, or the party who gave me the information, rather, represented that he was the particular party. His name is Jacob H. Schiff, of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in behalf of the Union Pacific interests. I won't undertake to say it was for the Union Pacific, but it would be for the Union Pacific interests.

Mr. KELLOGG. There is no objection to you gentlemen having answers to any questions, but I supposed you were lawyers enough not to go into the subject of hearsay. If you are not, go 166 ahead.

Mr. LANCASTER. Mr. Kellogg, we shall not attempt to go outside of what we think are legitimate issues in this case.

Q. At the time of your opening negotiations on behalf of the Great Northern Railway Company and J. Pierpont Morgan, representing the Northern Pacific Railway Company, for the purchase of Burlington stock, had you learned that some $8,000,000 or $9,000,000 out of $108,000,000 or $109,000,000 of the Burlington stock had been acquired by parties supposed to be representing the Union Pacific? 167

A. My understanding was that it had been acquired and principally all, if not all, of it had been sold by them, because they found that they could not get control of the Burlington Railroad Company by purchasing the stock in the market at any price they were willing to pay.

Q. And it was after you had acquired that information, Mr. Hill, with reference to the attempted purchase from the stockholders of the stock in the Burlington that you, in connection with the Northern Pacific, commenced or opened your negotiations directly with the directors or trustees of the Burlington Rail- 168 road Company.

A. I am not sure whether that information came to me in the first instance before or after. I can not recall that. I know it did after we had taken up negotiations with the executive committee of the Burlington.

Q. Then the fact is, Mr. Hill, that neither you individually or as representing the Great Northern nor the Northern Pacific, to your knowledge, had made any attempt to buy this stock in the open market or individually—that is, from the individual 169 stockholders—previous to your opening negotiations with the directors?

A. We had not made any attempt directly or indirectly in one way or another, and further than that, when the matter was so far advanced as to be taken up with the representatives of the Burlington Railroad Company, it was expressly understood by Mr. Morgan and myself that no one should buy, either of his people or any of my associates should buy, any stock of the Burlington Railroad Company for themselves, and certainly not for the Company; not even for themselves to operate in it. That 170 understanding was clear and explicit, and I believe it was carried out.

Q. Mr. Hill, why did you go to the trustees of the Burlington Railroad Company to purchase this stock instead of attempting to purchase it in the market or otherwise?

A. I knew that the stock of the Burlington company was held by people for many years; some who had inherited it, and it would be an impossibility to buy control of it except through the recommendation and cooperation of the Burlington trustees. They were men whom I had known for several years, and I 171 knew something of the situation of the Burlington company.

Q. And you knew at that time, I presume, of the failure of the Union Pacific's interests to acquire any considerable amount of stock in the open market?

A. I knew it either at that time or afterwards, or possibly both before and after.

Q. Did the Union Pacific, or anybody representing the Union Pacific, at or about the time you opened negotiations with the trustees or directors of the Burlington Railroad Company, request or seek to be allowed into the deal of purchasing the Burlington?

172 A. About the time that the Burlington people and representatives of the Northern Pacific and myself had arrived at an understanding in regard to the Burlington property matters were so far advanced that Mr. Baker, in behalf of the Northern Pacific, and myself were going to Boston, and we were requested by two members of what had been the Union Pacific reorganization committee, or acting for the Union Pacific people, to be allowed to join in the purchase.

Q. Will you give us the names of those individuals, Mr. Hill?

A. One was Mr. Schiff and the other Mr. Harriman.

Q. And about what time in 1901 was this? 173

A. Oh, it might have been early in March.

Q. March, 1901?

A. As near as I could testify; it is a matter of recollection.

Q. You refer to Mr. Schiff and Mr. Harriman; you mean Jacob Schiff and E. H. Harriman?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time of your negotiating with the trustees or directors of the Burlington Railroad Company, did the Union Pacific, to your knowledge, own or hold in the neighborhood of eight or nine millions of Burlington stock? 174

A. I wasn't aware that they held any.

Q. You do not understand, Mr. Hill, that they owned any at that time?

A. No, sir; I understood that they had bought some eight or nine millions, possibly more, and that they had sold it some time previous.

Mr. KELLOGG. Do you mean the railroad company?

A. I mean those who represent the railroad company.

Q. I suppose in this connection, then, you mean Jacob H. Schiff and E. H. Harriman? 175

A. My information largely came from Mr. Schiff.

Q. Well, do you know, Mr. Hill, of your own knowledge, whether that stock was turned in to your purchase by those people?

A. I don't know that they turned in anything.

Q. Well, do you know that they did not turn it in?

A. I don't recollect their name being concerned in the list of Burlington shareholders at any time. However, I am not very familiar with that list.

Q. The request of Mr. Schiff and Mr. Harriman on behalf of 176 the Union Pacific, as you understood it, was refused, was it?

A. I didn't testify that it was on behalf of the Union Pacific; but I said they had represented the Union Pacific in the reorganization committee; they were working in connection with the Union Pacific, and I don't undertake to testify, and I could not testify, as to whether they said they were acting for the Union Pacific or for themselves, or other interests friendly to the Union Pacific.

Q. Well, was their request, Mr. Hill, to purchase a one-177 third interest—that is, an equitable share—with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. And that request on your part was refused, was it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at that time—this was some time, I understood you to say, probably, in March, 1901—at that time did the Great Northern Railway Company own any stock in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. The Great Northern never owned any stock in the North-178 ern Pacific Railway Company.

Q. At that time did you, individually, own stock in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir; I had been a stockholder of the Northern Pacific for a great many years.

Q. About how many shares, par value? What was the amount of your holdings at that time, Mr. Hill, in March, 1901?

A. Oh, it is difficult for me to recall the amount; somewhere from sixty to seventy thousand shares. Later it was something over seventy.

179 Q. That is six to seven million, par value, in amount?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, at that time, in March, 1901, of your own knowledge, did the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line, or any parties representing those two railroad companies, own or hold any stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Later on, in the spring of 1901, you did learn that large holdings of Northern Pacific stock were held by what is known as the Union Pacific interests, did you not?

180 A. Yes; they told me that they had bought a substantial control.

Q. About what time, Mr. Hill, did you learn of the large holdings of the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line?

A. Early in May, is my best recollection.

Q. Now, between March and the 1st day of May, 1901, had you and others representing the Great Northern and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., and perhaps others representing the Northern Pacific, been buying up stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. I had not. I don't know that anyone else did, for Mr. 181
Morgan or for the gentlemen you have named.

Q. On or about the 1st of May, Mr. Hill, in 1901, did you and your associates own large blocks of the common and preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. Myself and associates owned large blocks for practically ever since the road was reorganized. That amount changed from time to time; some continued as holders, and some of them reduced, and possibly sold out.

Q. On or about the 1st of May, 1901, can you give us approximately the amount of stock which you and your associates 182 held of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. I couldn't give the amount of preferred, because I never charged my mind with the amount of preferred. It was stock that could be redeemed, and in a matter of the control of the railroad it wasn't considered as essential to the control as the common stock was.

Q. Mr. Hill, in the spring of 1901, there was outstanding eighty millions par value of the common stock of the Northern Pacific.

A. That is correct. 183

Q. And there was outstanding at the same time, seventy-five millions of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, on or about the 1st day of May, 1901, how much stock par value did you and your associates hold?

A. It would be difficult for me to answer that question specifically, because there was great activity on the part of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or those who were buying the stock in the market, and some of my friends sold their stock, and the 1st of May I would be unable to answer, but say about the 7th or 184 8th of May.

Q. Well?

A. I should think myself and friends controlled somewhere from seventeen and a half to twenty millions.

Q. That is of the common?

A. Of the common; that did not include what was held by Messrs. Morgan & Co.

Q. On and prior to May 7, 1901, how much stock par value

185 did you and your associates hold in the Northern Pacific, that is, of the common stock?

A. I should say in the neighborhood of eighteen or twenty millions.

Q. And on or about that time, how much of the common stock of the Northern Pacific did J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. hold?

A. Seven or eight millions; they held or controlled it. I don't know how much they held; they held or controlled seven or eight millions.

186 Q. And subsequent to that time, May 7, and before May 9, did J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., or did you and your associates acquire further Northern Pacific common?

A. The members of the firm asked me if myself and friends would hold the stock and not sell out. I told them we would, and they went into the market and bought some fifteen or sixteen millions. I think they bought it. My recollection is on Saturday and Monday prior to the 9th of May. On the 9th of May there was a good-sized panic in New York, and I think they bought it on Saturday and Monday prior to that time—

187 bought it in London and New York.

Q. Then, prior to the morning of May 9, Mr. Hill, you and your associates, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and other associates, held somewhat exceeding forty-two millions par value.

A. Something less than forty-two; in that neighborhood.

Q. But more than forty?

A. More than forty-one.

Q. More than forty-one million par value of the common stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes, sir.

188 Q. Mr. Hill, Mr. Grover suggests that the reporter did not take down your definition of your associates; now you may state that.

A. When I speak of my associates I mean those who have been interested with me in Great Northern matters, or those who were interested with me in the purchase of the large block of Northern Pacific stock which I bought from the reorganization committee.

Q. Now, will you give us the names of those, Mr. Hill?

A. It would be difficult to give the names; I can give some. 189

Q. Give what readily occurs to your mind.

A. John S. Kennedy, D. Willis James, Samuel Thorne, J. W. Sterling, Oliver Payne, Jacob Schiff, Henry W. Cannon, Lord Strathcona, Lord Mount Stephen. Well, there might have been others, but I think that substantially covers it.

Q. Mr. Hill, shortly before—say between the 5th of May and the morning of the 9th of May—had you learned that what we may call the Union Pacific interests had acquired about seventy-eight millions of the common and preferred stock of the Northern Pacific? 190

A. I understood, on authority that I thought should know, that they had acquired something over sixty; somewhere in the neighborhood of sixty or sixty-five millions.

Q. How was that divided, Mr. Hill?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you subsequently learn that Mr. Harriman, representing the Union Pacific interests, had acquired about seventy-eight millions—not confining you to those dates, did you subsequently learn that—seventy-eight millions of the common and preferred? 191

A. I understand Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had acquired it.

Q. Did Kuhn, Loeb & Co. represent Mr. Harriman?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Did you understand that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. represented the Union Pacific interests?

A. I understood afterwards that they represented the Oregon Short Line.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, the Oregon Short Line is owned and controlled by the Union Pacific?

A. I think so. 192

Q. And was at that time, Mr. Hill?

A. I think so and so understood.

Q. Subsequent, then, to May 9, 1901, did you learn that Kuhn, Loeb & Co., representing what we may call the Union Pacific interests, held about forty-six millions par value of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. About forty-one.

193 Q. And also held at the same time about thirty-seven millions of the common?

A. That is correct.

Q. When, or about when, Mr. Hill, did you first learn the amount of the holding on the part of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as to common and preferred stock?

A. I could not testify as to when, except that my knowing what myself and friends held, and what Morgan & Co. held, either for themselves or clients—the total outstanding that was not held by those whom I could clearly indicate or identify 194 would leave the other stock as outstanding stock.

Q. Just a process of arithmetic, then?

A. That is the best information I think we had until the other people stated what they had.

Q. That is what I was going to get at, Mr. Hill, in the next question. Did there come a time subsequent to May 9, 1901, when there was, so to speak, a show down of the holdings on the part of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and on the part of yourself and J. Pierpont Morgan?

A. No.

195 Q. Was there a conference or meeting between you and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or anybody representing them?

A. There might have been more than one meeting. Possibly there were several meetings. There was a very strained financial condition; people were failing and the trouble was very great. Something had occurred that never had happened in New York before—an attempt to buy a control of one hundred and fifty-five millions of stock on the market, and the high price caused people to sell stock they did not own. The bankers and 196 financial men of every description were deeply interested, not only in New York, but in London, and in financial centers on the Continent, and the result was, I think, maybe two or three meetings. I know certainly there was one between the bankers at that time. The Union Pacific people claimed that they had the control by the ownership of a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railroad; that wasn't conceded by Messrs. Bacon and I think Mr. Steele—Mr. Robert Bacon and Mr. Steele—because they knew they held, as long as myself and friends held our stock, a majority of the common stock which would control the property. They made an agreement that as 197 far as the election of the directors was concerned they would leave it to Mr. Morgan to name the directors, and that was done.

Q. That is getting a little ahead, Mr. Hill.

A. Well, that is the meeting; maybe I have answered a little more.

Q. A little more, but that is all right.

A. It is a part of the whole truth.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, the common and preferred stock was both voting stock, was it not, in the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes, sir. 198

Q. And since the preferred stock was outstanding, it participated equally with the common stock in all stockholders' meetings?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time of these conferences, or conference, that you speak of, did Mr. Harriman attend those meetings—one or more?

A. The one that I have particularly in mind—I have an impression there was more than one, possibly more than two—but the one I have particularly in mind occurred in Mr. Harriman's office. 199

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, at that meeting did Mr. Harriman claim or did he state to you gentlemen precisely how much stock he held—he or his interests or his associates held—in the Northern Pacific?

A. Not while I was there; not to me.

Q. Well, was there any claim made by him, or by others representing him, in any of those conferences previous to the time when you agreed upon J. Pierpont Morgan as the arbitrator to name the board. Did he make a claim as to the amount, or approximately the amount. of stock, both common and 200 preferred, held by him and his associates?

A. I have not testified that I was present at more than one meeting, and there was nothing of the kind in my presence.

Q. Well, do you recall at any time previous to the selection of J. Pierpont Morgan as the arbitrator to name the board of directors for the Northern Pacific when Mr. Harriman or Kuhn, Loeb & Co. indicated or expressed to you the amount of stock, common and preferred, held by them?

201 A. Nothing more than they always claimed to have control of the Northern Pacific.

Q. Did not there come a time, Mr. Hill, when they made the claim a show down of seventy-eight millions of common and preferred?

A. Not to me. I think, however, that I can answer your question by saying that before the annual election they had their stock transferred to their own names. Then it was practically apparent from the transfer books of the company what they owned. I think that was the first knowledge.

202 Q. And that was what time in the year?

A. I could not testify as to that.

Q. Was that before or after the selection of Mr. Morgan as the arbitrator?

A. Oh, this would be before the annual meeting.

Q. When—with reference, Mr. Hill, if you can fix the date of the annual meeting—when with reference to the selection of Mr. Morgan as the arbitrator?

A. They were pretty anxious to have the matter settled, so that the world would be at peace, and they were willing to leave 203 it to Mr. Morgan, and I think that he named that board after his return from Europe, which was in July, and their stock was transferred then or soon after. The annual meeting I think is held in October.

Q. What I want to get at, Mr. Hill, is this: If before the selection of Mr. Morgan as an arbitrator to name the board of directors of the Northern Pacific, Mr. Harriman or Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or their associates, made a show down or stated to you or your associates, to your knowledge, the amount of their holdings, both common and preferred?

204 A. I never knew their holdings of common and preferred until I got it from those who took it from the record of the Northern Pacific books.

Q. That was in October, just before the annual meeting?

A. Before the annual, or about that time.

Q. What was the total amount of their holdings at that time, both common and preferred?

A. Seventy-seven to seventy-eight millions.

Q. Now, what I want to get at is, as a matter of fact, it was more than one-half of one hundred and fifty-five millions, wasn't 205 it, Mr. Hill?

A. Yes; they had a majority of all the stock.

Q. That is, they had a clear majority of one hundred and fifty-five millions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was your recollection a little less than seventy-eight millions?

A. I think a little less than seventy-eight. It might have been a hundred or a hundred or two shares more, but it was in that neighborhood. 206

Q. I say seventy-eight, because in your testimony before the board of commissioners you used that figure.

A. It was in that neighborhood.

Q. Prior to the morning of May 9, 1901, you and your associates and Mr. J. P. Morgan and his associates held a large amount of the preferred stock in the Northern Pacific, did you not?

A. Some of my associates held a considerable amount of the preferred, and some of them held less; some of them held none. I don't know whether Messrs. Morgan & Co. held any or how 207 much.

Q. Are you able to state, having given us the amount of the common—are you able to state now, Mr. Hill, approximately the total amount of holdings of the preferred stock in the Northern Pacific held by you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and his associates?

A. I don't remember that I held any. I don't think I held any. Some of my associates held preferred. I think I had exchanged my preferred for common some time before, and I don't know and I never did know the amount of preferred stock 208 held by those who were of my party or the amount held by Morgan & Co. I knew that some of my friends held preferred stock. I don't know how much Messrs. Morgan & Co. held, because it cut no figure in the transaction or control of the road.

Q. In other words, you would be unable to state whether yourself and associates, or J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates, held ten or twenty million?

A. I could not give the amount at all. I didn't concern my-209 self with the knowledge, and only gained that knowledge incidentally that they held any.

Q. At the time of the conference—there was one conference which you say you attended—between Mr. Harriman, in his office, and yourself, and I think you said a representative of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.—at the time of that conference was it ascertained by you that yourself and associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. held practically forty-two millions of the common and in the neighborhood of thirty millions or a little more of the preferred?

210 A. I never knew or heard that the question was raised as to whether they held any preferred or not. If our friends had the stock that they reported to have, we knew that we had a majority of the common stock.

Q. And you did not know whether you had a majority of the common and preferred or not?

A. We didn't pay any attention to the preferred.

Q. Well, as matters then stood, Mr. Hill, in May, 1901, the common and preferred stock together would control corporate action, wouldn't it?

211 A. Certainly; that is, it would control the election of the board. The corporate action, I think, under the Northern Pacific charter is in the hands of the directors.

Q. There may possibly be some question about that later on, Mr. Hill.

Mr. KELLOGG. Up to the date, that is the decision of the court.

Q. That may be correct, but so far as the election of the board of directors was concerned, and as matters stood on May 9, 1901, it took a majority of both stocks to control an election?

212 A. As matters stood at that time, both common and preferred voted one vote for each share of stock and had to the extent of their holdings a voice in the control of the property in the election of the board.

Q. Subsequent votes, Mr. Hill, demonstrated that so far as the election of the board was concerned—that is, the right to elect a board of directors—that Mr. Harriman and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. held a majority of both stocks, did they not? I say, subsequent votes showed that to be so?

A. They held a majority of both stocks of the Northern 213
Pacific.

Mr. KELLOGG. A majority of the total stock.

A. Of the total, yes. Not of each, but of the total stock.

Q. I want to know if, or at about the time—I will say at the time of the conference which you attended at Mr. Harriman's office shortly after May 9—did you or did you not know at that time whether you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates held a majority of both stocks, that is, taking them together?

A. We knew that we did not. 214

Q. And I understand you to testify now that you did not, as a matter of fact, know whether or not Mr. Harriman and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. held a majority of the two stocks?

A. No, we did not.

Q. You knew, however, Mr. Hill, that you and your associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates held a clear majority of the common stock at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I understood you to say that at that conference there was no show down on the part of either faction; either you and 215 your associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates to Mr. Harriman and his associates?

A. That conference was held to agree on a basis to settle a general disturbance in the financial circles of the world.

Q. But as preliminary to that, conceding that that was the object of your conference, as preliminary to that, was there or was there not a show down on the part of the two factions?

A. None that I know of. I wasn't so much interested in the market condition as others, because I had neither bought nor sold a share of stock, and I was brought into the meeting. I 216 remember I was asked to come there, and when I came over to the office, this question was up and it lasted maybe fifteen minutes. The other people said we would let Mr. Morgan select the board.

Q. At that meeting. That was shortly after May 9?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it within a day or two after?

A. I should think so; within two or three days anyway.

217 Q. And at that meeting the agreement was reached that Mr. Morgan should name the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the board to be elected at the next annual meeting?

A. Yes, it was expected, and I think notice had been given, that the board would be classified, and whether Mr. Morgan was to name the whole or a part I do not recall. I know that Mr. Morgan was to name the board of directors, and I know that on his return from Europe he did.

218 Q. Was that agreement put in writing at that meeting?

A. I don't remember. I have a faint recollection of a typewritten memorandum—maybe it was shown to me somewhere else—just a memorandum of what was proposed.

Q. Well, did you for yourself, or acting for your associates in anyway, execute or sign any agreement?

A. I don't recall any signed agreement. When you asked me if it was in writing I remembered something of seeing a proposition, maybe it was a telegram to be transmitted to Mr. Morgan; maybe that is what was in my mind.

219 Q. So far as your present recollection goes, Mr. Hill, do you wish to be understood as saying that you do not recollect whether there was any executed agreement; that is, any agreement that was signed by the respective parties?

A. I don't recall any.

Q. But you do recall some written proposition—that is, some typewritten agreement—that was drawn up; but whether it was executed or not you do not remember; was that it?

A. No; that is a little more than my recollection. My recollection is that either coming from some of the parties for con-220 sideration by the others or to be transmitted to Mr. Morgan, or a short statement covering what was proposed. Now, whether that was a cable made for transmission or whether it was a memorandum that was in the office I could not say. Now, it might be both, and I could not say which.

Q. Mr. Hill, have you any present knowledge of having in your possession or under your control any memorandum or agreement that was reached that day?

A. No; I haven't.

Q. Do you recall having signed any memorandum of agree- 221
ment?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Or any memorandum executed or unexecuted since that time?

A. I don't recall more than I have testified to. I have a recollection of seeing a memorandum. Whether it was a cable or whether it was a memorandum used locally, or both, I could not testify.

Q. But at that meeting, if there was any memorandum drawn up, nothing was said with reference to the respective holdings 222 of either common or preferred by the Harriman or the Hill factions, so to speak?

A. My recollection is that there was no discussion as to the amount of stock held. I think Mr. Schiff said we control or own a majority of the Northern Pacific, and I think Mr. Bacon said, "Mr. Schiff, we do not concede that, and before you are through you will find you don't."

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, at that meeting was there anything said by you or your associates, or Mr. Harriman or his associates, about the power of the corporation to retire the preferred stock? 223

A. I could not say as to that; I could not testify.

Q. Mr. Hill, did there come a time when you made known to Mr. Harriman the power that you held there as to the right to retire?

A. I do not recall my making that known to Mr. Harriman. I think Mr. Harriman learned that early in May. I think after they had bought some sixty or sixty-five millions they found out that they needed more common.

Q. Well, did they find it out, Mr. Hill, until after the 9th of May? 224

A. I think they must have found it out before. The market indicated rather. I have no means of knowing other than the market indications. Still, that is a matter I have no knowledge of, and possibly I ought not to give mere impressions as testimony.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, whatever that agreement was with reference to allowing Mr. Morgan to name the board of directors, it was carried out at the annual meeting in October, was it not?

225 A. I think Mr. Morgan named the board on his return from Europe, and there were some changes in the board; that is my recollection. There were some changes in the board, and I think that parties who had been directors resigned and others took their places.

Q. Did you attend the annual meeting of the Northern Pacific?

A. I attended one meeting, and whether I was present at the annual meeting or not I don't quite recall. I could not testify. I attended one meeting of the board of directors, I know.

226 Q. Mr. Hill, were there any changes in the board of directors of the Northern Pacific between May 9 and the annual meeting in October?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a mattor of fact, there were some resignations, were there not?

A. Yes; I testified to that.

Q. Now, were those resignations agreed upon between you and Mr. Harriman, or Kuhn, Loeb & Co., at this conference shortly after May 9?

227 A. They were not.

Q. That was brought about subsequently, was it?

A. I knew nothing about that until I saw the list of those nominated by Mr. Morgan.

Q. Then there were some resignations between May 9 and the annual meeting?

A. I think these resignations were after Mr. Morgan's return, some time in July.

Q. And Mr. Morgan named the parties to take the places of those who resigned, did he not?

228 A. That is my understanding.

Mr. GROVER. That is the fact.

Q. Let me see if we can make this plain. Was there or was there not any agreement at this conference of which Mr. Morgan was appointed arbitrator with reference to naming the present board—that is, that the personnel of that board should be changed?

A. There was no agreement stipulated for retaining the board or changing the board. I remember Mr. Bacon saying if we leave it to Mr. Morgan, Mr. Morgan must have the entire 229 power to say who shall be nominated.

Q. What I am getting at, Mr. Hill, is, was there anything said with reference to the resignations of the then board?

A. Nothing whatever that I recall, and I came away with the impression that no changes would be made until the annual meeting.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, there were changes made right away, weren't there, after Mr. Morgan's return?

A. Some time after his return, or soon after his return.

Q. Can you give us the names of those directors who re- 230 signed?

A. I can not.

Mr. LANCASTER. Can you, Mr. Grover?

Mr. GROVER. Not from memory. Maybe Mr. Mellen can.

Mr. LANCASTER. Can you Mr. Mellen?

Mr. MELLEN. It is all in that report.

Mr. KELLOGG. Mr. Mellen can give those when he goes on the stand.

Mr. LANCASTER. I guess that will save time.

Q. Before leaving this matter, I will ask you to give me the 231 names as near as you can recall them, and the full names of the parties present at the conference which you say occurred two or three days after May 9.

A. The meeting might have been within two days, and my recollection is that Mr. Schiff and Mr. Harriman, Mr. Robert Bacon and Mr. Steele were present at Mr. Harriman's office when I was called in.

Q. Who represented Kuhn, Loeb & Co. at that meeting?

A. Mr. Schiff, a member of the firm, a senior member of the house, I think. 232

Q. Mr. Hill, Mr. Robert Bacon and Mr. Steele were partners of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Harriman you understood to represent the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line?

A. Well, he might have represented himself. It is difficult for me to give any more than my understanding. He represented the Union Pacific interests, or those that were concerned 233 in buying the control of the Northern Pacific. He represented the opposition to our plans.

Q. Then you know, Mr. Hill, of your own knowledge, that the board of directors which was elected at the annual meeting in October, 1901, was nominated or named by Mr. Morgan under that agreement.

A. I know that it was left at that meeting for him to nominate the directors of the Northern Pacific.

Q. You mean the conference shortly after May 9?

A. Yes; that meeting at Mr. Harriman's office.

234 Q. And do you know that that arrangement or agreement with reference to Mr. Morgan's naming the directors of the Northern Pacific was carried out in fact?

A. I do. I have the understanding that it was carried out. There was no other board elected.

Q. Was there at that conference, Mr. Hill, any agreement among the parties to it as to the Union Pacific being represented on the board of the Northern Pacific?

A. There was not.

Q. No understanding with reference to that?

235 A. None whatever. I remember some discussion; not as to the question of Union Pacific, but as to the suggestion of some names. Mr. Bacon said he would not consider it at all on any other basis than that Mr. Morgan shall nominate the board, and if you are willing that he shall nominate the board we will agree to it.

Q. When you say there was some suggestion made with reference to the directors, do you mean to say that Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff insisted?

A. I think that they named, or gave some names, or suggested 236 some names, and they were refused.

Q. And the final agreement, then, was that Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan should have the right and power to absolutely name the board of directors of the Northern Pacific.

A. That was the understanding, or the conclusion arrived at. It hardly took the form of a final agreement.

Q. Well, you broke up with that understanding, didn't you?

A. Yes, that is right; and I think it was practically carried out on that line, and the disturbance on the street adjusted itself very quickly.

Q. What gave rise, Mr. Hill, to leaving this matter with 237
Mr. Morgan?

A. I don't know.

Q. What subject was under discussion between you gentlemen that led up to that?

A. The subject under discussion as I testified before was mainly between the bankers on account of the strained condition of the situation in the money markets of the world.

Q. Wasn't the matter that was under discussion between you gentlemen that led up to the appointment of Mr. Morgan as arbitrator the respective claims as to the control of the Northern 238
Pacific?

A. No; the thing that led up to that was the bankers' anxiety to allay this terrible condition, and they wanted to know how it might be done, and as I understand it, the other people waived their control; said we will leave the matter to Mr. Morgan and let him name the board of directors, and we will vote for them or send a proxy.

Q. Mr. Hill, the cause of the bidding up of the common stock on May 9; what caused that stock to be bid up was the anxiety and desire of the two factions to get control of the common stock 239 of the Northern Pacific?

A. I don't consider it so at all.

Q. Mr. Hill, on the morning of May 9 you and your associates held par value about forty-two millions of the common stock of the Northern Pacific; that is, you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates?

A. Do you ask me if we held them?

Q. Yes; we have already been over that.

A. Well, my recollection is that on the 7th of May the stock controlled by Messrs. Morgan & Co. prior to the 1st of May, 240 added to what they had bought between the 1st of May and the 7th, with what myself and friends held, made about forty-one millions of the common stock, or a clear majority of the common stock. The extreme pressure on May 9 was certainly greatly aggravated by the short selling; people selling stock who hadn't got it, and others sold stock—for instance, shareholders in Tacoma and here in St. Paul and Minneapolis, and in St. Louis and Louisville, and in New Orleans and other cities throughout 241 the country where they held the stock. They wanted it sold, but they couldn't deliver it that day, and for several days, and that made the extreme high prices.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, under the agreement which you and your associates had with Mr. Morgan and his associates——

A. We had no agreement.

Q. You were not at liberty to sell any common stock, were you?

A. We had no agreement.

Q. I understood you to say a little while ago that you had an 242 agreement with Morgan that you wouldn't sell.

A. No; I simply said that myself and friends would hold. I remember the word I used, because they repeated it afterwards. I said myself and friends would stand without hitching, and we did.

Q. Mr. Hill, you intended that, when you said that to Mr. Morgan, that you would stand without hitching—you meant that you and your friends would not deliver common stock.

A. Wouldn't sell a share of common stock. Now, I delivered mine to people who had sold it, and couldn't make the 243 deliveries and had the stock. I remember banks and friends telegraphing me.

Q. That is, they had it, but they didn't have it in New York?

A. They would get some local banker or somebody to certify that it was mailed by express to me, and will you make a delivery? Well, I don't remember how I did, but I arranged to get several people out of trouble that way.

Q. I don't want to take up much time on this, Mr. Hill, but I do want to make this clear. The practical effect of your agreement with Mr. Morgan was that you and your associates, 244 and Mr. Morgan and his associates, would stand together and not deliver any of your forty-one millions of common stock.

A. We wouldn't sell it; wouldn't part with it.

Q. And when you say you did deliver some, you merely exchanged it with others who had stock, but not in New York at that time.

A. That would be returned in a day or two.

Q. Inasmuch as you had it and knew it could be delivered later on, it answered your purpose and you were willing to loan them stock in exchange?

A. Well, that amounted to probably 300 or 500 shares; it 245 amounted to very little.

Q. The panic, then, of May 9 was due to the fact that practically all of the common stock of the Northern Pacific was held by parties who wouldn't sell and deliver; was that it? And, of course, in connection with that, Mr. Hill, the fact that parties had sold short?

A. There was very high prices offered for the stock; very high prices offered, and led people to make sales, thinking that they could cover—or I don't know what they thought. They at least felt that they would like to sell Northern Pacific at that, 246 and it was sold and they couldn't deliver. The purchasers settled at $1.50.

Q. Mr. Hill, some days previous, perhaps weeks previous to May 9, was it or was it not pretty well understood in New York that there was a contest for the control of the Northern Pacific on between what we may call the Hill faction and the Harriman faction?

A. No, sir; there was no understanding of the kind; quite the contrary.

Q. Well, Mr. Hill, I will ask you this—— 247

A. For the purpose of showing what I know, it was quite the contrary——

Q. I have no objection to your explaining.

A. I arrived in New York about the 1st of May. I think I am right in saying that on Thursday, the 2d of May, the Northern Pacific treasury—or not Northern Pacific treasury, but rather the treasurer of one of its companies, one of its proprietary lines—sold quite a block of Northern Pacific common, maybe 7,000 or 8,000 or 10,000 shares.

Mr. MELLEN. Thirteen thousand. 248

A. Thirteen thousand. Well, I knew it was something. They sold it. If the contest between Morgan & Co. commenced on Saturday, they sold it on the previous Thursday; so they didn't know that there was any contest or they wouldn't have sold it and commenced buying it back on Saturday.

Q. It is true that it was given out in the public newspapers for a week or ten days before May 9 that there was a contest on between the two factions.

249 A. I don't recall it, but then I pay very little attention to newspapers; don't read them very often. A great many things are inspired in the newspapers that you have to take with a great deal of salt.

Q. Mr. Hill, I am not quite clear as to what your testimony was about Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's purchase of the common stock just before May 9. How long before May 9 was it that J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. bought some fifteen or sixteen millions of the common?

A. I think between the 4th and the 6th or 7th. That is my 250 best recollection.

Q. Now, come down, Mr. Hill, to the directors' meeting after the annual election at which a resolution was passed to retire the preferred stock; do you remember the date of that?

A. I think it was the 13th.

Mr. GROVER. November 13.

Q. Did you attend that meeting?

A. I attended a meeting on the 13th of November. I spent most of the time, if not all of the time, in a room adjoining the board room. I was in conversation with Mr. Harriman about 251 some matters, and I think at the time that the meeting was held—it was a short one—most of the time I spent in a room adjoining the board room. I was present and answered roll call at the meeting. Perhaps that would answer your question better.

Q. That is, you answered the roll call of the directors' meeting on November 13?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred stock come up between you and your associates and J.
252 Pierpont Morgan & Co. and their associates?

A. I don't know when it was first mentioned. It was always understood from the time of the reorganization that the preferred stock would be retired and that there would be one kind of stock.

Q. But what I mean is after, say May 9, was there any definite plan between you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. with reference to the retirement of the preferred stock?

A. Previous to May 9. I think that between May 1 and the time they made up their minds to buy the control of the common that it was decided to exercise that privilege. 253

Q. And that was decided upon between you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. No; they simply said that that could be done, and they would do it. They wouldn't hand over control of the property. Mr. Morgan had a good deal of feeling that the Northern Pacific had been a difficult property to keep on its feet and get it on its feet. His name was connected with it, and he had a good deal of pride in not handing it over to a rival.

Q. When you speak of a rival, do you mean the Union Pacific interests? 254

A. The interests of the Union Pacific.

Q. And the matter then was definitely determined upon that you had a right to retire the preferred stock?

A. That the Northern Pacific had.

Q. Of course you mean the company had a right to retire the preferred stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And having a complete majority of the common stock that would give you and your associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates complete control of the Northern Pacific? 255

A. Of the Northern Pacific through a majority of the common stock.

Q. Yes; that is what I mean.

A. And the Great Northern had a very direct interest in knowing that it was not—that the control of the Northern Pacific was not—going to be vested in the friends of the Union Pacific, because if that was the case the Northern Pacific owning one-half the control of the Burlington, with the control of the Northern Pacific in the hands of the Union Pacific, the Great Northern would have had to go into the hands of the Union Pacific. 256

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, when subsequent to this determination to retire the preferred stock was it definitely decided upon to retire?

A. Oh, before myself and friends would agree to hold our Northern Pacific we had the promise of Messrs. Morgan & Co. that the preferred stock would be retired.

257 Q. And that was shortly before May 9?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And probably before May 1, was it not, Mr. Hill?

A. No, sir.

Q. Between May 1 and May 9?

A. Between May 1 and May 9. It was between the time that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. interests attempted purchasing the Northern Pacific stock in a large way, or claiming control of it, and the time that Morgan & Co. bought.

Q. So that when at the time you told Mr. Morgan that you 258 and your associates would hold your Northern Pacific common, Mr. Morgan and you then and there agreed that you would retire eventually—that is, as soon as convenient—the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. I couldn't agree to retire that.

Q. Well, you and Mr. Morgan had that understanding that it should be done?

A. Mr. Morgan was abroad. His partners were at home and I stated to them, if you will retire that preferred stock under the conditions under which it was issued, we will not sell our 259 stock; we will cooperate with you.

Q. And it was upon that agreement and understanding that you continued to hold—you and your associates—to hold your common stock?

A. As I testified before, it was a very important matter to the Great Northern. It was a question whether we controlled our property or whether the Union Pacific controlled it through the Burlington and the Northern Pacific. If that stock had not been redeemed, and the Union Pacific control the Northern Pacific and half the Burlington, they would very soon control 260 the Great Northern.

Q. Mr. Hill, I suppose you refer now to the provisions of the collateral mortage—the joint bond?

A. No. If one-half the stock of the Burlington belonged to the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific controlled the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern could not depend on the Burlington down in Union Pacific territory as an ally in any contest, and the Union Pacific could have kept——

Q. If you want to explain this, it is all satisfactory, but we don't want it to go into our case.

A. No. I thought I was answering your question. 261

Mr. LANCASTER. I move to strike out the voluntary statements of Mr. Hill as not being responsive to any questions asked by complainant.

A. Well, what is the question?

Q. There isn't any question. I was trying to frame one when you started on that explanation. Now, when was the matter of the retirement—that is, when were the first steps taken to actually retire the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific—when was that?

A. The first that I knew were at the meeting when the notice 262 was given, when a resolution to retire it was passed, and to give the necessary notice.

Q. About what time?

A. That, I think, was on the 13th of November.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, previous to the 13th of November, had not you and your associates and Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. discussed the ways and means of retiring the preferred stock?

A. I couldn't testify accurately as to that.

Q. Well, could you testify that previous to the passage of the resolution to retire the preferred stock, which was on Novem- 263 ber 13, 1901, no arrangements or agreements had been made between you and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. with reference to carrying out the plan of retirement?

A. The agreement was not made between Mr. Morgan and myself at any time. The fact that it was necessary to raise a large amount of money was more or less discussed possibly before, certainly after that date, but my impression is that the plan as subsequently carried out was discussed both before and after. Remember there were other shareholders besides myself, and they spoke for themselves. 264

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, previous to November 13, 1901, which was the day on which the meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific was held at which the resolution was passed to give notice with reference to the retirement on the 1st day of January, 1901, of the preferred stock? You understand that that was the meeting at which such a resolution was passed?

A. Yes, sir.

265 Q. Now, I want to known if prior to November 13, 1901, a complete plan and scheme had been devised by you and your associates and by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. so as to provide the money to retire the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. I think that the entire plan was provided by the board of directors and some of the principal stockholders. I know many of the stockholders were allowed to take their share of the securities?

Q. When was that done?

A. When was the plan agreed upon?

266 Q. When was this plan matured?

A. It was matured prior to the 13th of November.

Q. About how long before?

A. Oh, I couldn't say; maybe ten days or two weeks.

Q. Now, had not the plan of organizing the Northern Securities Company been definitely decided upon prior to November 13, 1901?

A. The plan of organizing the Securities company was decided upon a very long time before—two or three years before.

Q. Then you had not at that time, November 13, 1901, 267 arranged so that the retirement of the Northern Pacific stock in the end would be taken care of by the Securities company?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, any arrangements with reference to that, were they made subsequent to November 13?

A. The Securities company purchased Northern Pacific stock. The Northern Pacific preferred stock was retired by the sale of a bond, and that bond was convertible into stock. I think that was a matter—the whole subject is one of recollection on my part, but you can get the actual transaction, and it would be a 268 great deal better than my recollection.

Q. Well, that may possibly be so, Mr. Hill, but I want to get at the general features of this transaction.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you prior to November 13, 1901, any arrangement, agreement, or understanding that Mr. Harriman, or of any one representing his interest or the interests of the Union Pacific Railway Company, with reference to the taking care of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific held by him, or the Union Pacific, or the Oregon Short Line?

A. I had no such arrangement with Mr. Harriman or any 269 one else before or after.

Q. To your knowledge, was there any arrangement or agreement or understanding with reference to the retirement of this stock; that is, as to how it should be retired, and how it should be taken care of by any one representing the Northern Pacific or Great Northern or J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. I had nothing to do with it and know nothing about it. It could only be retired the same as another stock. I don't know any difference between his stock and any other.

Q. What I want to get at is this: The stock was retired on 270 the 1st day of January, 1902, by a delivery of the stock at J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.'s office and taking the cash par value of the same, was it not?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, was not that the effect of the resolution?

A. I don't remember the terms of the resolution.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Don't the pleadings admit that now?

Mr. KELLOGG. I think the pleadings state definitely just what was done in detail.

Q. In order to provide for the cash to retire the preferred 271 stock, the Northern Pacific issued seventy-five millions of certificates of indebtedness, did it not?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. The subscriptions for the whole of the seventy-five millions of certificates of indebtedness were actually subscribed for by yourself and others previous to the meeting on November 13, 1901?

A. My understanding and recollection is that each holder of common stock prior to the 1st of January, at the time when the books closed, was entitled to subscribe for seventy-five eightieths 272 of his holdings of common stock in debentures or certificates issued by the Northern Pacific and to pay for the same at par. Now, that is my recollection.

Q. Well, Mr. Hill, before we get to that, what I want to get at is that primarily this preferred stock was to be paid in cash; that is, you had to provide a fund to pay that stock when it was tendered to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., on the 1st day of January, 1902?

273 A. Yes, sir; certainly.

Q. Now, some provision had to be made in order to provide for that amount of cash, $75,000,000. Now, is it not a fact that prior to the passage of the resolution retiring this stock, which took place on November 13, 1901, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., J. P. Morgan & Co., James J. Hill, George F. Baker, and John S. Kennedy had subscribed for seventy-five millions?

A. No. That is simply an underwriting agreement under which the gentlemen signing it agree to take the $75,000,000, because the parties who had agreed to buy any of these securities 274 that were for sale wanted to know that it would be subscribed for. And that is not an uncommon practice. It is rather a common practice. It is what they call "underwriting." My recollection is that of that $75,000,000 that the underwriting party agreed to take, that they got somewhere from six to seven hundred thousand of it.

Q. What I am getting at is this: That prior to November 13, 1901, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., James J. Hill, George F. Baker, and John S. Kennedy became obligated to the Standard Trust Company of New York for seventy-275 five millions; that is, to take $75,000,000 par value of the certificates of indebtedness to be issued by the Northern Pacific?

A. When Mr. Kennedy and myself signed that underwriting it was generally considered a matter of form, and Kuhn, Loeb & Co.'s name was not mentioned in connection with it.

Q. Well, I am asking you as to what was actually done?

A. I am trying to answer your question.

Q. Mr. Hill, I want to know if it is not true that previous to November 13, 1901, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., James J. Hill, George F. Baker, and John S. Kennedy
276 had been in fact obligated to this Standard Trust Company of New York to take seventy-five millions of the certificates of indebtedness of the Northern Pacific which were to be issued to take up and retire the preferred stock of that company?

Mr. KELLOGG. I think I will object to that. That agreement is in writing and attached to the pleadings and you are asking Mr. Hill for his recollection of it. The writing is the best evidence and you know it.

A. My recollection of that agreement or the signing of it, was that it was a mere formal affair, and that it would in all 277 probability carry no stock. It was something the trust company asked to have done. I know that when I signed it it was considered that but a very small amount, if any, of the stock, or rather of the certificates of indebtedness would come to the underwriters, and as to the date when it was signed, whether it was before or after the 13th, I could not testify. I should say it was some time after the 13th and I may be wrong. It is my recollection. The paper would be a great deal better.

Q. I don't want to mislead you. It says the 15th. The agreement itself attached to the answer says the 15th, which I 278 presume is correct?

A. My recollection is that it was after the 13th.

Q. What I am getting at, Mr. Hill, is this: I don't want to haggle about the date—whether or not, previous to the passage of the resolution retiring the preferred stock you and your associates, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and their associates and perhaps Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or Mr. Harriman, had not talked over the necessity of providing $75,000,000 to retire the preferred stock?

A. As far as the $75,000,000 to retire the preferred stock 279 was concerned, I have no recollection whatever. I think I would have a clear recollection if there had been any such understanding with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. or Mr. Harriman in any way or manner whatever. The retirement of that stock was not a matter newly considered. The parties knew from early May that it had to be retired or the Northern Pacific would have to pass into the control of the southern people. The proposition was made to some extent, and to a greater or less extent, to meet this amount of money and the method—the issuance of certificates—I think that was more in reference— 280 and this is only an impression—but it is a strong one—that it was with reference to the share capital. These certificates were made convertible so that it did not interfere with the amount of share capital.

Q. What I am getting at, Mr. Hill, is in the first instance you had to make provision to provide, if necessary, the total amount; that is, the seventy-five millions of cash?

A. Yes, sir.

281 Q. In other words, under the resolution which was passed to retire the $75,000,000 on the 1st of January, 1902, every holder of a preferred share of stock had the right to present his certificates and get his money in cash, is not that true?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, in order to provide for that, you and your associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates, had talked over and discussed ways and means of doing that, accomplishing that, hadn't you, previous to November 13?

A. I have tried to make it understood that the providing of 282 that money was a matter that concerned the Northern Pacific, and the Northern Pacific had to make the provision for raising the money, and it did make it and called on its common shareholders and they responded.

Q. I understand exactly how it came about later on, but what I am getting at now is that, primarily, you had to make provision for raising $75,000,000?

A. I had not.

Q. But the Northern Pacific had?

A. You keep confounding me with the Northern Pacific, 283 Judge. If you will get that out of your head you will save a lot of trouble for yourself and me, because I am all the time trying to steer clear of being confounded with people whom I had little to do with.

Q. It was necessary, Mr. Hill, to provide some way of raising, on the part of the Northern Pacific, $75,000,000 to retire the preferred stock?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And what I want to get at is, when was that agreed upon? When was the plan of raising that money outlined and agreed 284 upon, to your knowledge?

A. I could not testify. I do not recollect.

Q. Did you discuss with your associates or with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., or with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or Mr. Harriman, or anybody else, that proposition?

A. I never discussed it with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. or Mr. Harriman.

Q. Did you discuss it with J. Pierpont Morgan?

A. I discussed it with a great many, or with several people who were interested—stockholders, and with Messrs. Morgan & Co., and more or less with counsel. 285

Q. And with members of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. With Mr. Morgan and other members of the firm.

Q. Mr. Bacon?

A. Mr. Bacon. I don't know whether the details were discussed to any great length with him. He went abroad some time in the fall.

Q. Did you discuss it with Mr. Steele?

A. I think so, clearly. 286

Q. Now, previous to November 13, 1901, had you personally any conference with the officers, or any of them, of the Standard Trust Company with reference to this matter?

A. I recall none. You mean conferences as to this raising of money?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I recall none.

Q. Was that matter of raising the money and providing ways and means of raising the money, left to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. to attend to? 287

A. That was done by the Northern Pacific and by its officers, and what they did I don't know, except as a shareholder, that I was offered, as others were, the right to subscribe for securities.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you know what officers of the Northern Pacific negotiated the $75,000,000?

A. I think it was probably done by the executive committee.

Q. Who are the executive committee?

A. I know two of them.

Q. Well, give me the names of two of them?

A. George F. Baker and John S. Kennedy. Now, there are probably five. 288

Mr. MELLEN. Six.

Q. You can't give the name of the others?

A. No; I can not. The president is ex officio one, I think.

Q. And so far as the method or scheme or plan of raising the $75,000,000 to retire the stock was concerned, you didn't have anything to do with it yourself?

A. I testified a moment ago that I had discussed it with the 289 firm of Morgan & Co. and with counsel, and I could hardly say I had nothing to do with it. I didn't wish to be so understood.

Q. And you approved of the issuance of $75,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness on the part of the Northern Pacific?

A. I did not testify that I approved of it or disapproved of it.

Q. Well, I ask you now, Mr. Hill.

A. It was not a matter for me to approve or disapprove. It was a matter for the Northern Pacific to determine. I approved of the retirement of the stock because it was a necessity.

Q. And the retirement of the stock was also a matter for the 290 Northern Pacific, too, was it not?

A. Certainly.

Q. Why do you make any distinction between the retirement of the stock and the ways and means of doing it, which would be a corporate action, would it not?

A. I could have insisted on the retirement of the stock when I held or represented with others as large an amount as we did early in the season. I could not tell the Northern Pacific how they should retire their own stocks or what financial arrangements they should make.

291 Q. Then, in other words, Mr. Hill, I understand your testimony to be that while you were interested in the retirement of the preferred stock, you did not approve or disapprove of the methods by which that retirement was carried out?

A. I did not disapprove of them, I know.

Q. Did you approve of them?

A. Why, I accepted them, and that was approval so far as they affected my holding.

Q. Now, I will show you Exhibit 5, which is attached to the answer of defendant company in the case that we are taking this 292 testimony in, that purports to be a copy of an agreement between the Standard Trust Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Mr. KELLOGG. That is correct. It is unless there is any mistake in it, and I don't think there is.

Mr. LANCASTER. That came from your office, Mr. Kellogg?

Mr. KELLOGG. Yes, sir; and it is correct.

Q. Have you examined Exhibit 5?

A. I examined that paper that you showed me.

Q. That is Exhibit 5 attached to defendant's answer?

A. Yes, sir. 293

Q. I will ask you if you executed that agreement in your own name and in your own behalf?

Mr. KELLOGG. You have referred him to an agreement.

Exhibit 5 was executed between the Northern Pacific and the Standard Trust Company.

Mr. BULKLEY. That was the one you referred to in the evidence.

Mr. KELLOGG. Which one do you mean, Mr. Hill, to refer to, the one he executed or the one to the Standard Trust Company? 294

Mr. BOUTELL. The underwriting agreement was probably attached to the agreement, wasn't it?

Mr. KELLOGG. That may have been so. This is the underwriting agreement.

Mr. LANCASTER. I suppose it was all one agreement and one paper?

A. Oh, no; one was a Northern Pacific matter, and this was a personal matter.

Q. Now, I will call your attention to what we will designate as the underwriters' agreement. 295

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which purports to be a contract between the Standard Trust Company of New York and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., J. P. Morgan & Co., James J. Hill, George F. Baker, and John S. Kennedy. This appears as an exhibit to the defendant's answer. I ask you if you executed that on or about the 18th day of November, 1901? That is the date that is given here.

A. Yes, sir; I executed that agreement.

Q. And at the time of the execution of the underwriters' agreement, did you know of the execution of the agreement 296 between the Standard Trust Company of New York and the Northern Pacific Railway Company, executed on the 15th day of November, 1901?

A. I knew that the Standard Trust Company had made an agreement with the Northern Pacific to take the certificates of indebtedness. I don't recall the date.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hill, was not the agreement between the Standard Trust Company and the Northern Pacific 297 Railway Company made a part of and a copy of that agreement attached to your agreement with the Standard Trust Company; was not that a part of it?

A. No, sir; it was not.

Mr. KELLOGG. I shouldn't wonder if it was.

A. My recollection is clear that the underwriting paper was presented to me in Mr. Morgan's office and explained to me. I was offered one-third of the one-third of the underwriting, and I took it.

Q. Mr. Hill, I call your attention to the language of the 298 underwriters' agreement where it says, "The trust company, at the request of the subscribers, has made or is about to make an agreement with the Northern Pacific Railway Company of even date herewith, a copy of which is hereto annexed and marked 'Exhibit A,' upon the express conditions that the subscribers hereto enter into this agreement." Now, with your attention called to that provision of the contract which you signed, are you able to say that there was not attached to the paper which you signed a copy of the agreement between the Standard Trust Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

299 A. My recollection is that the underwriting agreement was not attached to anything, and that it was executed on or soon after the date I testified a while ago; that it was my best recollection, and is now, that it was executed after the Northern Pacific put out this circular notice.

Q. Mr. Hill, is it not a fact that the Standard Trust Company would not enter into the agreement with the Northern Pacific with reference to furnishing the money upon the certificates of indebtedness until the underwriters' agreement, which I have just shown you, was executed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., J.
300 Pierpont Morgan & Co., James J. Hill, George F. Baker, and John S. Kennedy?

A. I have no knowledge what the Standard Trust Company might have done with the Northern Pacific beyond what they did do, and my understanding was, and is now, that they made that agreement or arrangement, and that this underwriting was offered to the parties, and after the arrangement was made. And if I had not signed it, and if Mr. Kennedy had not signed it, and Mr. Morgan not signed it, any number of others were ready to sign it for the profit they would make out of it, because 301 underwriting usually carries a profit with it. If these certificates were not all subscribed by the holders of the common stock the unsubscribed portion would come to the underwriters. That is what that agreement means. I was under no obligation to sign it a minute before I put my name to it, and there was no previous agreement made that I should sign it, and when I was offered it to sign I remember quite well it was in the evening in the office of Messrs. Morgan & Co. I was not under any obligation to sign it, and there had been no agreement that I should sign it. Anybody else—any banker—would have 302 been glad to have signed it and take his chance of making some profit out of it.

Q. What I am trying to get at is whether or not it was understood and agreed between the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Standard Trust Company that before the Standard Trust Company would undertake the obligation of the agreement between those parties, the same would have to be underwritten by responsible people satisfactory to them?

A. That is a question I could not answer.

Q. That answers it. That is all I want. When you can't 303 answer a question and don't know, that is enough.

A. I could not answer what was the understanding between the Northern Pacific. I know what the understanding was with me when I signed that agreement.

Q. And at the time that you signed this agreement there had been no previous understanding or agreement of any kind that you should execute it?

A. No, sir; none whatever. If I didn't sign, or if Mr. Kennedy did not sign it, we were under no obligation of any nature or kind. I know Mr. Kennedy hesitated some time. 304
He said, "We may be called upon to take a very large amount." Mr. Morgan said, "If you don't want it, I will be very glad to take it myself."

Q. Mr. Hill, do I understand you to say that before the meeting of November 13, 1901, you knew that the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific was to be retired?

A. I knew that a number of people in the Northern Pacific had discussed it many times, and I knew from Messrs. Morgan 305 & Co. and from the officers of the company and the directors that it would be retired.

Q. Had you talked with the directors of the Northern Pacific directly with reference to it?

A. Some of them.

Q. Had you talked with a majority of them?

A. I didn't keep exact count as to the number. I think I did unquestionably talk with a majority.

Q. What I am getting at is whether you knew before November 13 that the matter had been sufficiently discussed and 306 determined upon so that you were sure of the action which the board was going to take on the 13th?

A. I felt entirely sure that on the 13th of November the action that was taken would be taken to retire the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific.

Q. Had you discussed this matter with Mr. Harriman with reference to the retirement of the preferred stock?

A. I don't recall any such discussion.

Q. Did you discuss the matter with Mr. Jacob H. Schiff?

A. I don't recall any. I remember Mr. Schiff telling me on 307 one occasion that they had the opinion of quite prominent lawyers that the stock could not be retired, and I told him to save his breath on that matter because our counsel had told us that it not only could be retired, but I asked him not to bank on it being continued after the 1st of January. Whether that was before or after the 13th I couldn't say.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Hill, how was the preferred stock retired?

A. I don't know, except that it was retired and paid for in cash. I think it was presented at the office of the Northern 308 Pacific. It might have been at Mr. Morgan's office for greater convenience, because the office of the Northern Pacific is up on the fifteenth or sixteenth story of a very high building, and the other is right on the street—I don't know, I was not in New York at the time.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hill, do you know that all of the preferred stock was in fact retired and has in fact been retired?

A. I don't know that.

Mr. BOUTELL. Is not that matter covered in the amended answer?

Mr. KELLOGG. Yes; it has all been retired. There may be 309 a few certificates that have not been turned in. We will find out definitely if you want to know.

Q. Well, by the resolution of November 13, 1901, there was a provision made for the benefit of the common-stock holders to subscribe for the certificates of indebtedness, wasn't there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And there was also another provision by which those certificates of indebtedness could be converted into common stock?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. Now, what arrangement, or agreement or plan was all laid 310 out and practically agreed upon by the interested parties prior to November 13, 1901?

A. The plan or details was a matter that came under the direction of the Northern Pacific, and I could not testify as to what they did further than any other shareholder. My recollection is that they issued certificates which were convertible into common stock, and these certificates were subscribed for by the common-stock holders at par and afterwards were exchanged for common stock. That is what I did with mine.

Q. I don't think you quite understood my question. I want 311 to know if the details of this plan with reference to the issuance of the certificates of indebtedness by the Northern Pacific and the subscriptions for those certificates by the common-stock holders, and then the further step of converting those by the subscribers into common stock—whether all those plans and details were in fact agreed upon by yourself and Mr. Morgan and other interested parties previous to November 13, 1901?

A. I had nothing to agree to in the matter. It was a matter for the Northern Pacific to do. I was not a member of the board of directors of the company, and I had no agreement and 312
I could not make any agreement except as to my stock.

Q. Well, Mr. Hill, did you know previous to November 13, 1901, the details of the plan which was to be voted upon?

A. Oh, in a general way I have no doubt I knew what the intention was.

Q. You knew that the subscription for the certificates of indebtedness would not be open to preferred-stock holders, didn't you?

313 A. It was stipulated expressly in the circular that it was to common-stock holders.

Q. What I am getting at is, previous to the meeting of November 13, 1901; I want to get your knowledge of what that resolution was or was to be. Now, I want to know if previous to November 13, 1901, you knew of the details of the plan which was to be voted on at that meeting of the board of directors?

A. I knew in a general way all the steps that were to be taken, but as to the details I could not testify how much or how 314 little knowledge I had on the subject. I knew in a general way that the stock was to be retired by an issuance of certificates to the common stockholders and not to the preferred stockholders.

Q. Who had the matter of the preliminaries, or making or devising the scheme and formulating the plan—who had the matter in charge for the Northern Pacific?

A. I couldn't say. I suppose the Northern Pacific counsel had charge of it.

Q. Prior to November 13, 1901, you knew that this plan as 315 it would work out would result in the then owners of the common stock of the Northern Pacific acquiring the additional $75,000,000 of common stock which would be issued?

A. I knew that ever since the reorganization of the company. I knew that that was the condition when the preferred stock was retired, and that it might be retired at any time up to 1917.

Q. You don't mean that it was made a condition. You mean that there was a provision in the charter of the Northern Pacific allowing the company to make provision so that the preferred stock could be converted into common stock or retiring it?

316 Mr. KELLOGG. Yes; that was in the certificates of stock, too, and the resolutions issuing it, and everything.

A. The common stock would control the company.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you mean by that to say that there was any provision or, rather, condition in the charter or in the reorganization agreement or in the certificates themselves of the preferred stock by which the common stockholders should get the additional common stock to retire the preferred stock?

A. I always understood that. I understood it from Mr.

Morgan about the time I bought a very large block of stock from the committee. 317

Q. Mr. Hill, did you understand, and do you understand now——

A. I will answer that a little further, if I may, that when the preferred stock was retired there was only common stock, and my understanding of the situation was based largely on a conversation with Mr. Morgan; that it was his intention to retire that preferred stock about the time that the voting trust expired, which was five years. I think it legally expired in five, but was abandoned or discontinued—dissolved—at the end of four years. 318 I am very clear Mr. Morgan told me that when the voting trust expired that he wanted to have only one kind of stock, and would retire the preferred stock.

Q. I think your original answer is not correct when you say that it was a condition. I want to know if it is your present understanding, or has ever been your understanding, that there was any condition by which the preferred stock was to be surrendered, and, conditionally, common stock issued for the benefit of the common stockholders. In other words, was it necessary that the preferred stock should be retired in favor of the common stockholder, 319 so that he would acquire additional stock, or could not the preferred stock have been retired in any manner which the directors may have selected or chosen?

A. My understanding was based upon a somewhat intimate knowledge of the situation before the reorganization committee. The preferred stock was largely issued in lieu of bonds, and the holders of these wanted bonds in place of stock. The reorganization committee was very anxious to keep the fixed charges as near $6,000,000 per annum as they could—not to exceed six and one-quarter millions of dollars—and I am clear that Mr. Morgan told me that he said to the representatives of these people that he meant to pay that preferred stock off—said you can have preferred stock and not bonds, and we will pay you the preferred stock in money, and they took the privilege to pay it up to 1917. 320 Now, that conversation with Mr. Morgan was at an early time, and it may have affected my understanding. But your question as to the understanding had with 321 Messrs. Morgan & Co. about the 1st of May, that we were to hold our common stock, was on the condition that the Northern Pacific should be retired at the first opportunity, which was the succeeding January or following January.

Mr. BULKLEY. You mean the preferred stock?

A. The Northern Pacific preferred stock; yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, to get back previous to November 13, 1901. Whether you know all the details of the plan which was submitted to the board of directors on that day or not, you knew that the ultimate object of the retirement and the carrying out 322 of that plan would result in the common stock holders of the company increasing their holdings to the extent of $75,000,000 new issue of common stock?

A. Seventy-five millions, or such part of that as was subscribed for whenever the stock would be retired.

Q. And you also knew that under the arrangement which was to be passed by the board of directors the preferred stock holder would have no part or share in that privilege of subscribing?

A. I understood that he would have no more share in the debentures or certificates that could be converted into common 323 stock than if they had not contained that provision—any more than if they had been a time bond—and that the preferred stock holder would simply get his money and cease to have any interest in the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Q. And the further plan with reference to the subscription to the certificates of indebtedness and the converting of those certificates into the further issue of common stock was all done for the benefit of the common stock holder, wasn't it?

A. It was done for the benefit of the common.

Q. Well, if it was a privilege to subscribe for the stock, that 324 privilege was only extended to the common stock holder?

A. If the preferred stock was entitled to dividends before the common stock could receive any, to get that preferred stock out of the way it was certainly an advantage to the common stock.

Q. What steps, if any, had been taken by you and your associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates with reference to the organization of the Northern Securities Company prior to November 13, 1901?

A. The Northern Securities Company, or a company of that character, has been considered by the large shareholders of the 325 Great Northern Railway Company for several years.

Q. And for what purpose, Mr. Hill?

A. For the purpose of combining their interest in the property.

Q. And what was the object or purpose of the combination?

A. Some of them were very old men and they had always acted together and in harmony, and they desired to perpetuate that action.

Q. What amount of stock, par value, of the Great Northern Road did those men that you now speak of hold prior to Novem- 326 ber 13, 1901, in the Great Northern Road?

A. Oh, I don't think there was any material change in their holding for a long time. I could not say about November 13.

Q. About.

A. On the 1st of November I should say they held somewhere from thirty-three to thirty-five millions.

Q. And were you among the number?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many individuals do you refer to in that connection, Mr. Hill? 327

A. Oh, fifteen or sixteen.

Q. That is, that you refer to as old men?

A. No, some of them are old men. Several of them are old men; but as those who discussed this matter for a long time and who finally took action upon it.

Q. And was that the purpose and object, Mr. Hill, of your organizing the Northern Securities Company?

A. That was the purpose.

Q. And at the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company were these things that you have told us the 328 only objects or purposes that you had in mind at that time?

A. The action in buying the majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific in the market in April or May, or both, brought the question up more strongly than before as to the necessity of the Great Northern old shareholders who had been continuously connected with the property from the beginning making their holding together permanent, and, I think, in June, somewhere about the 5th or 6th of June, speaking from recol-

329 lection, Mr. Kennedy, on his return from Europe, discussed the matter with me, going over the entire situation, the relations of the Burlington; the relations growing out of the Burlington; the relations growing out of the large purchases by the Union Pacific interests of the Northern Pacific, and suggested whether we should not include in our holding company our holdings in the Northern Pacific.

Q. And for the same purpose?

A. For the same purpose, so that we would all act together and no one would sell out or leave the others. We would all 330 act together.

Q. For the purpose of unifying the interests that you had in the two roads?

A. Yes, sir; for the purpose of unifying the interests in each road; because when the Burlington was transferred or sold to the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern jointly, our owning an equal share in the company it was a matter of great consequence to the Great Northern as to who would own the stock of the Northern Pacific or control the Northern Pacific, and some of our shareholders—some of them are 86 years old, 331 others are more than 80, and so on—they might have concluded that they would sell their stock, and it might have made a difference as to the majority of the common stock.

Q. Of the Northern Pacific?

A. Of the Northern Pacific, if the control of the Northern Pacific passed to the Union Pacific, as a matter of influence. The control of the Great Northern would have passed to the Union Pacific because we would not have held it a day longer than we could have sold it.

Mr. BOUTELL. You mean the Burlington instead of the Great 332 Northern.

A. I testified that the Great Northern would pass to the Union Pacific if we sold it, very quickly. You can see readily that we didn't want to hold a line from Lake Superior and the Twin Cities to Puget Sound, with all the rest of the roads in the United States in a position to fight us and without power to fight back.

Q. Mr. Hill, was it the object and purpose of the Northern Securities Company to acquire a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific and of the Great Northern?

A. When it was first discussed it had no reference to the 333
Northern Pacific at all.

Q. And later on, when the Northern Pacific was taken into the scheme, was it with a view to acquire a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific as well as of the Great Northern?

A. The discussion covered simply the Northern Pacific common stock held. I am not sure that it covered any of the preferred. I am sure that it covered the common stock held by myself and close friends.

Q. Well, now, when were the first actual steps taken to organize the Northern Securities Company? 334

A. The first active steps were taken, I should say, a couple of years ago; but the official steps, or the steps of making the company of record——

Q. That is what I mean.

A. Well, that would be shown by the date of the organization, the date of the filing of the articles. I could not give that date.

Q. I suppose there would have to be some preliminary steps taken, wouldn't there?

A. I was not present at the formation of the company. 335

Q. When and where was it agreed that the capital stock should be four hundred million?

A. That was the first meeting of the Northern Securities Company, or maybe the second meeting; I don't know.

Q. You mean after the organization?

A. The first meeting that I attended.

Q. After the organization?

A. I think so.

Q. Mr. Hill, let us come right down to the time when the Northern Securities Company was organized? 336

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Without reference to what you had had in mind in previous years, I want to know when, with reference to the filing or publishing of your articles of incorporation, was the amount $400,000,000 capital stock agreed upon.

A. I am not clear that the capital stock was fixed at four hundred millions when the articles were filed. I may have another company in my mind. But my recollection was that the articles were filed and this amount increased.

337 Mr. KELLOGG. That don't seem to have been.

A. I am speaking from recollection. This paper you have shown me would be a great deal better than my recollection.

Q. But, Mr. Hill, after you have seen this provision with reference to the capital stock of the company, are you not able to fix approximately the time when you and your associates agreed upon the amount of the capital stock?

A. No.

Q. Well, was the amount of the capital stock of the Northern Securities Company fixed with reference to the capital stock 338 of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies?

A. It had some reference to that.

Q. Did it have reference to the then actual market value of those two stocks?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, then at the time you formed the Northern Securities Company, organized the Northern Securities Company, had you agreed upon the basis at which the Northern Pacific stock should be turned into the Northern Securities Company in 339 exchange for Northern Securities stock, as well as the basis on which the Northern Pacific stock should be turned in in exchange?

A. My recollection of that is that possibly in my interview with Mr. Kennedy, early in June, soon after his return from Europe, that the question came up as to how, if we put our own holdings into a company, upon what basis this stock would go in, and he asked me to turn it over. Maybe I wrote him and maybe I saw him; but I think the basis—I think, after consulting with two or three of the shareholders, I fixed the rate 340 upon which each, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, would be taken or purchased by the holding company when such holding company was organized.

Q. Was that rate, Mr. Hill, that you fixed $1.15 for the Northern Pacific, and $1.80 for Great Northern?

A. That was right.

Q. What I am getting at is this: Wasn't the four hundred million capital stock of the Northern Securities Company determined upon because of the fact that that would practically include or take in all of the stock of the Northern Pacific Rail- 341 way Company and the Great Northern Railway Company at or upon the basis which you indicate?

A. After discussing the matter with Mr. Kennedy, and with some of my friends from abroad who were here in July, it was considered, and I may say determined, to go on and form the company. Many of them felt that they would like to give all the shareholders of the Great Northern the right to participate in any company, the old leading shareholders to put their stock in, and they said if a close corporation was formed it would be the first time in the history of the property that each and every 342 shareholder had not the same opportunity that every other shareholder had, and they discussed that with me, sometimes one and sometimes another. There was no meeting to discuss it. The general feeling, however, was among those with whom I talked, and I had that feeling myself, that we would give each shareholder the opportunity to come in at the price we put our own in, if he desired, and if he preferred to stay out, that was his privilege. Now, in making the arrangement, or in arranging the amount of capital stock that had to be provided for, there was also a condition that had reference to the fixing of the 343 amount. There were other companies, other properties, some of which are not located in this country, and the holding of which was hardly contemplated by the corporate authority of the Great Northern. It was intended to cover all shares of that character and of companies of that description in the securities company. That had to do with the amount of the capital stock. But that it was solely to hold the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern. That wasn't the controlling point. It could be amended at any time, to increase it or decrease it. But to provide for the hundred and twenty-five millions Great North- 344 ern at $1.80 would take $225,000,000 of the securities company, if that many of the Great Northern shareholders chose to sell their stock to the securities company.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, to go back just a moment. After all this talk and discussion that you have had for several years with reference to forming a corporation to hold stock of the Great Northern Railway Company originally and subsequently the holdings of the Northern Pacific, there came a time when some definite conclusion was arrived at.

345 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And somebody was authorized and requested to go ahead and organize a corporation. Now, about when and where was that determination arrived at?

A. The determination to form the corporation was arrived at before the 1st of July.

Q. 1901?

A. 1901.

Q. And the plan for organizing the Northern Securities Company ——

346 A. Was worked out and modified or changed between the 1st of September and the date of the publication of the articles.

Q. Who finally decided upon the plan that was adopted in the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Practically, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. George Baker, Mr. James, Mr. Thorne, Mr. Clough, Mr. Perkins, and myself.

Q. And were there no others than those whose names you have just given who had anything to do with the actual perfecting of the plan of organization of the Northern Securities Company?

347 A. No one outside of the counsel who drew the papers. I think I had as much to do with it as anybody.

Q. Mr. Hill, in the discussion and consummation of the plan which resulted in the organization of the Northern Securities Company, had J. Pierpont Morgan or his partners anything to do with it?

A. Mr. Perkins was his partner. He had something to do, but in the first instance nothing, and at the last very little.

By the consent of all parties an adjournment of these proceedings was had at this time until February 18, 1902, at 10 o'clock 348 in the morning.

TUESDAY MORNING, February 18, 1902.

JAMES J. HILL, recalled.

Examined by Mr. LANCASTER:

Mr. LANCASTER. Last night I forgot to formally offer in evidence complainant's Exhibit E. I offer it in evidence now.

Q. Mr. Hill, I understood you yesterday to say that in the matter of the basis upon which the Northern Pacific common was to be turned into the Northern Securities Company and the stock of the Great Northern, that you fixed that basis yourself. 349

Is that correct?

A. I recollect, or as I recollect it, the figures I suggested were adopted and considered right by the parties whom I consulted.

Q. And what considerations determined $1.15 for the Northern Pacific common, Mr. Hill? What were the chief considerations which determined that amount with you and your associates?

A. The value of the property, the property taken as a whole; its capacity to earn money, its land grant, and the situation in the country, and so on. 350

Q. Did the market value of the stock at that particular time——

A. The stock hadn't a market quotation at the time that I suggested the figure. My recollection is that at the time that the figure was suggested or named it was midsummer.

Q. And at the time when you suggested that figure and that was determined upon, the Northern Pacific common was practically out of the market, wasn't it?

A. I think so; not quoted.

Q. And was not being sold in the stock markets? 351

A. No transactions.

Q. Was the Great Northern stock being sold at the time when the $1.80 was agreed upon?

A. When that rate was named, Great Northern was selling on the market.

Q. And at what figure?

A. My recollection is about $1.95.

Q. At the time when it was agreed to put it into the Northern Securities Company at $1.80?

A. Yes, sir. 352

Q. And had it been selling at $1.95 for any length of time previous to that?

A. Oh, yes; it had been selling; it sold up to $2.

Q. Was $2 the highest point it had reached?

A. I don't recall the figures; possibly something over 200. I don't carry those figures in my mind.

Q. The considerations which you mentioned in reference to the Northern Pacific, were those chiefly instrumental in fixing 353 the $1.80 as the basis of the Great Northern, excluding the land grant; I think you mentioned the land grant in reference to the Great Northern?

A. In reference to the Northern Pacific.

Q. I mean the Northern Pacific, yes.

A. The Great Northern had property that gave it a value and were considered in addition to the railway.

Q. Mr. Hill, at the time when the $1.15 for the Northern Pacific common and $1.80 for the Great Northern was agreed upon as the basis upon which those stocks were to be exchanged 354 for Northern Securities Company stock, did Mr. Harriman and his associates, or the Oregon Short Line or the Union Pacific hold their $78,000,000 of Northern Pacific common or preferred?

A. The question seems to assume something that I have not testified was the case. It says it was agreed upon; I say that I suggested this price. I recall no agreement.

Q. I understood you to say, Mr. Hill, that you suggested the price and it met with approval and that that was actually——

A. The approval of those with whom I consulted, and they 355 were very few, and this was simply a stockholders' affair acting individually, and a circular was subsequently prepared after the formation of the company; but before that it was limited to a very few people, and in that connection let me say there was no agreement or formal undertaking.

Q. In that connection will you give me the names of the very few stockholders with whom you consulted and to whom you suggested the $1.15 and $1.80 as the prices of exchange?

A. I think the suggestions were mainly confined to Mr. Kennedy, Mr. James, Mr. Thorne, Mr. Sterling, and Mr.
356 Baker. Now, it might have been suggested to some others; probably Mr. Clark.

Q. Did any of those gentlemen whose names you have given represent J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. No, sir.

Q. Before the circular was sent out and this basis given out to the stockholders generally, did you suggest this basis of $1.15 and $1.80 to anybody representing J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. I don't recall. I think I have an indistinct recollection 357 of discussing the matter with Mr. Morgan, but as to whether the price or rate for exchange was discussed, I could not testify.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, before this basis was suggested to your friends, whose names you have given, or at the time of that suggestion, did Mr. Harriman, or the Oregon Short Line, or the Union Pacific, hold the seventy-eight millions of the common and preferred of the Northern Pacific?

A. As a matter of hearsay, I should testify they did. It was after the purchase, but I didn't know, as I testified yesterday, what stock they held until it became apparent by their having 358 their stock transferred on the books of the Northern Pacific Company, and I learned through that channel, which would be some time late in September.

Q. Well, it was your understanding, and is your understanding at the present time, Mr. Hill, that, subsequent to May 9, the Harriman interests, or the Union Pacific interests, did not acquire any additional stock, either common or preferred?

A. I don't know that. I know they claimed to hold a majority of the Northern Pacific Company at that time.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, I understood you to say that this sugges- 359 tion of the basis of exchange was made some time in the midsummer of 1901?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And so far as you knew then, and so far as you know now, the Harriman, the Oregon Short Line, and the Union Pacific interests held whatever stock, common and preferred, in the Northern Pacific which they held on or about May 9?

A. I knew by what they claimed and by common hearsay, that they held what they asserted was a control of the Northern Pacific. 360

Q. Subsequently to this time, when this basis of exchange had been suggested by you to your friends, did Mr. Harriman, acting for the Union Pacific, or the Oregon Short Line, or for others, sell or make any agreements to sell all or any portion of the seventy-eight millions of common and preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway to you or your friends, or your associates, or to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., to your knowledge?

A. My recollection is that he sold it to Morgan & Co.

361 Q. And about what time, Mr. Hill, did you learn of that sale?

A. I couldn't fix the time closer than to say I should place it in the month of November.

Q. Was or was not there an agreement of sale practically concluded along about the month of November?

A. None whatever, to my knowledge; I never heard of any.

Q. And so far as you know, the sale was negotiated and consummated some time in the month of November?

A. That is as far as I know.

Q. Had there been any previous negotiations with Mr. Har-362 riman, or with anyone representing Mr. Harriman, carried on by you or your associates, or to your knowledge by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., looking to the purchase of Mr. Harriman's or the Oregon Short Line's interests in the Northern Pacific?

A. I was aware at the time that negotiations were being carried on. I remember Mr. Harriman making some proposition to me in regard to railway matters and in regard to territorial matters, and nothing came of them; they were dropped.

Q. Well, do I understand you to say that there were any negotiations carried on, either by you or your associates, or by 363 J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., to your knowledge, looking to the purchase of Mr. Harriman's interests, or the Oregon Short Line's interests, or the Union Pacific interests, prior to November?

A. My recollection is that about the month of November Mr. Bacon, of Morgan & Co., was about to sail for Europe, and he had before he went abroad conducted these negotiations.

Q. That is, he had conducted the negotiations with Mr. Harriman looking to the purchase of Harriman's interests in the Northern Pacific?

364 A. Whatever the negotions were. That was my understanding. I was not present during these negotiations, except I remember on one occasion I came into Mr. Morgan's office, and in the evening I saw Mr. Harriman there, but I left immediately. Mr. Bacon and Mr. Harriman retired to another room. My business was transacted and I left.

Q. I understood you to say yesterday that the organization of the Northern Securities Company was practically settled and decided upon in the summer of 1901?

A. That is correct, and the rate at which the Northern Securi- 365 ties Company would take the stock was decided, but that was at a time when it was expected that the Northern Securities Company would hold a comparatively small amount.

Q. Of what?

A. Northern Pacific or Great Northern.

Q. Mr. Hill, at the time when the Northern Securities Company was decided upon, which took place some time in the summer of 1901, at that time, to your knowledge, were there any negotiations being carried on, or had been carried on prior to that time, with Mr. Harriman, or with persons representing 366
Mr. Harriman, or the Oregon Short Line, looking to the purchase of the entire holding of the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line, or Mr. Harriman?

A. There was absolutely no such negotiations, directly or indirectly, and I think there could not have been any without my knowing it.

Q. Now, the actual sale of the Harriman stock—we will call the stock which stood in the name of the Oregon Short Line, and perhaps in the name of Mr. Harriman and Mr. Winslow Pierce, the Harriman interests or Harriman stock. Now, at the 367 time of the actual sale of that stock to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., do I understand you to say it took place in November, 1901?

A. I testified as my recollection that it was sold to Morgan in November.

Q. Now, was or was not that sale the result of conferences between Mr. Harriman and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., yourself and Mr. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

A. No; I don't recall conferences between myself, Mr. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or Mr. Harriman on that subject. I do 368 recall a number of conferences with Mr. Harriman in regard to railway matters.

Q. But so far as the sale of the Harriman interests, the Harriman stock, or the Oregon Short Line stock in the Northern Pacific—so far as the actual sale of that stock or the negotiations for that stock, you had or took part in them. Is that so?

A. I made no agreement with Mr. Harriman of any kind for the sale or purchase of that stock.

369 Q. That perhaps doesn't answer my question. Did you take part in the negotiations which led up to the actual purchase of that stock by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. I testified a moment ago that I recalled being in Mr. Morgan's office one evening when Mr. Harriman was there. The subject may have been mentioned as to what they were negotiating about, but I did not remain, and Mr. Harriman and Mr. Bacon withdrew into another room.

Q. Did you attend any conferences between Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., or any of his partners, Mr. Schiff or Mr. Harri-370 man, which were held for the purpose of negotiating the purchase of that stock?

A. I recall none whatever.

Q. Then to leave that matter, Mr. Hill, I understand you to testify that you took no part and had no part in the negotiations which led up to the purchase by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. of the Oregon Short Line stock, or the Harriman stock, or the Union Pacific stock?

A. My recollection is that the purchase was made mainly by Mr. Bacon.

371 Q. Of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. Of Morgan & Co. Now, it is quite possible, and I might say more than possible, that I knew from time to time something of the negotiations, but the negotiations were carried on and closed, whenever they were closed, by Morgan & Co.

Q. Well, Mr. Hill, if you didn't take any active part, or any part, in the conferences with Mr. Harriman, did you consult and confer and advise with Mr. Bacon, of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., with reference to the purchase of the Harriman or Oregon Short Line stock?

372 A. Oh, I think if Mr. Bacon asked me in regard to the matter I should have given him any advice that I could.

Q. I am not asking you, Mr. Hill, what you might have done, but have you any recollection now of actual conferences with Mr. Bacon?

A. I have no recollection of any special discussion or conferences, excepting the one that I have alluded to as taking place one evening when I was in Morgan's office, and met Mr. Harriman and Bacon there.

Q. Well, I understand from your previous testimony that 373 nothing special at that time was said by anybody with reference to the sale of the Oregon stock at that meeting?

A. I recall nothing special, and I do recall Mr. Bacon and Mr. Harriman going into another room, I supposed to carry on their negotiations.

Q. Then you wouldn't refer to that meeting that evening in Mr. Morgan's office as a conference looking to or in any way touching the purchase of this stock?

A. Not a conference that would affect the result particularly.

Q. Were you called by anybody to that meeting? 374

A. I don't recall the reason why I went there. I had occasion to go in and out of Morgan's office several times a week.

Q. But at the present time you don't recall any reason for your visit to his office that evening?

A. I do not recall the reason. Now, I might have been called in there to ask me some question about a railway, I don't know; or some question in regard to the matter in hand; I don't recall it. I was not, however, the main party in carrying on the negotiations.

Q. Now, when you say that this sale was made in November, 375 are you speaking of your own knowledge? That is, you say the Harriman sale was made in November?

A. I am speaking of my best recollection; that is all.

Q. Are you able to testify that it did not occur either in September or October of 1901? I would show you Mr. Harriman's testimony.

A. I will say that that is not according to my recollection. I have no doubt you can establish the exact date without the slightest trouble.

Q. I will ask you this, Mr. Hill: Do you know whether or 376 not there was an agreement for the sale of this stock previous to November?

A. I know of no such agreement. I think and feel certain that if any such agreement had been made I would have known something of it.

Q. Now, at the time when the actual sale of the Harriman stock was made to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., had the Northern Securities Company been incorporated?

377 A. I couldn't testify to that. I haven't charged my mind with that figure because I always go to the figures.

Q. Calling your attention to the date of the articles of incorporation of the Northern Securities Company, November 13, 1901, are you able to state whether the sale of the Harriman stock was made to J. Pierpont Morgan prior to that time?

A. I could not testify with any accuracy.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you know that as a part of the consideration for the sale of the Harriman stock, so called, to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., a large block of Northern Securities Company's 378 stock, which was to be issued later, was to be turned over to Harriman or his associates?

A. I knew that the stock was exchanged the same as other stock. Now, that is all the exact information I had on the subject.

Q. I want to make this quite clear, if I can, Mr. Hill. Do you now know of your own knowledge that at the time when the sale was actually made by Mr. Harriman to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., that it was agreed that Mr. Harriman should receive, as part consideration for that stock, Northern Securities 379 Company stock to a large amount?

A. I knew that that was the course that was pursued, but when I got that knowledge I can't recollect. I can't recall whether it was before or at the time the stock was delivered to the securities company. Now, it might be that I knew a day or two before. It might be that I knew three or four days, because the transaction was large and the time that would elapse between the purchase of the stock by Morgan, or what arrangement he made for the purchase, rather—it was part cash——

380 Q. What I want to get at is this: Are you able to state now whether or not you knew prior to the actual transfer or sale of the Harriman stock to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., that as a part consideration for that transfer and sale Northern Securities Company's stock to a large amount was to be turned over to the Harriman interests? That is what I want to know.

A. I could not testify as to when I got that knowledge. That is the best testimony I can give.

Q. Mr. Hill, was this substantially the transaction as you understood it then and as you understand it now: That Mr. 381

Harriman sold his Northern Pacific common and preferred to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. for cash, with a reservation of an option on his part—Morgan's part—to give him a certain percentage of Northern Securities Company stock instead of cash when it should be issued?

A. My knowledge of the matter is substantially what was done, and whether Morgan agreed to pay him cash with a reservation is a matter that I had no knowledge of.

Q. Then, Mr. Hill, right in this connection, will you please state what you know was done with reference to the Harriman 382 stock?

A. The stock was turned over. I think the common stock was turned over to the Northern Securities Company—sold to it. The preferred stock was retired.

Q. Retired by whom?

A. The Northern Pacific.

Q. Who presented it for retirement?

A. I couldn't say; Morgan & Co., I assume.

Q. It had previously been turned over by Mr. Harriman to Morgan & Co.? 383

A. Yes.

Q. And Morgan & Co. presented it for retirement?

A. I think so; I was not in New York at the time, but that would be the general course, and is my understanding.

Q. When you speak of the common stock being exchanged or sold to the Northern Securities Company, who exchanged it? That is, who presented it for exchange, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. or Mr. Harriman?

A. My recollection is Morgan & Co.

Q. And is it not a fact that J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., after 384 the exchange of the Harriman common stock, turned over to Harriman or his associates between fifty and sixty millions of the Northern Securities Company's stock.

A. I don't know the amount, but they turned over whatever amount was the equivalent of the common stock purchased by the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, Mr. Hill, don't you know that 385 Mr. Harriman actually acquired and now holds, either for himself or for the Oregon Short Line or the Union Pacific, a much larger proportion of Northern Securities Company's stock than would have been given to him or exchanged to him for his common stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. As soon as the notice was given to redeem the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific, my recollection is that a number of the preferred stockholders surrendered their stock, took their certificates for their common and converted them. Now, it may be, and I think quite likely, that that is what was done by 386 Mr. Morgan or his firm with the Harriman preferred stock. I know that others did that.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you know now, of your own knowledge, how much cash the Harriman interests got upon the sale of their common and preferred stock, aggregating about seventy-eight millions par value?

A. I do not recall the exact amount of the cash.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Harriman's testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. Part of it.

387 Q. Do you remember his testimony in regard to his present holdings in the Northern Securities Company?

A. I do not.

Q. And do I understand you to say that at the present time, Mr. Hill, you do not know within five or ten millions of the holdings of Mr. Harriman and his associates, in the Northern Securities Company?

A. I think that they hold somewhere from seventy-five to seventy-eight millions of the Northern Securities Company's stock. They may have sold. I am basing this on what I 388 assume they held a month or six weeks ago; they may have sold some of it.

Q. Then, a month or six weeks ago, Mr. Hill, the Harriman interests held some seventy-five to seventy-eight millions par value of the Northern Securities Company's stock?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. And as a matter of fact you don't know yourself of any sales by them?

A. I do not, and I would not, unless I was the purchaser.

There is no way that I could know, unless I should watch the 389 stock market, and I have not been there to do it.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, was there any connection whatever between the organization of the Northern Securities Company and the purchase of the Harriman stock? That is, taking those two things together, was there any connection between those two things and the selection of Mr. Morgan as arbitrator to name the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. There was absolutely no connection whatever. The time at which it was agreed by the banks to allow Mr. Morgan to nominate the directors was in May. The Northern Securities 390
Company was actually formed in November. It had been discussed without any reference to Mr. Harriman's holding, or anybody else's holding for several years, and they had no more to do with each other than you have to do with either of them, and I assume that you had nothing to do with them.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, at the time of the selection of Mr. Morgan as an arbitrator to name the board of directors, was or was not a majority of the then board favorable and friendly to the Hill-Morgan interest?

A. Now, I would like to know what the Hill-Morgan inter- 391 ests are. I have seen it in the newspapers a great deal, but I I have never been able to find out what it is.

Q. Well, I will explain it as I understand it. I understood that just shortly before May 9 you and your associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates held and owned forty-two millions, or about forty-one or forty-two millions, of the common stock and something over thirty millions of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific road, and I understood you to testify yesterday that you told Mr. Morgan that you would stand without hitching, and that you would not let go or deliver any of your stock, 392 and he agreed to do the same thing, and that you did stand together in that matter of holding the common stock together. That is what I understood by the Hill-Morgan interests; and with that explanation I will ask you if at that time a majority of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad was friendly to the Hill-Morgan interests?

A. I testified yesterday that Mr. Morgan was in Europe at the time. I also testified yesterday that we did not hold the 393 outside preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Company, and this statement assumes things and puts words in my mouth that I didn't say, because they weren't true.

Q. Then I will change it. I will try and make it conform to what you say your testimony was, Mr. Hill. I understood you to say yesterday afternoon that you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co—now, we will not quibble about J. Pierpont Morgan. I remember your testimony with regard to Mr. Morgan being away, but J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.—you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. owned 394 and controlled and held previous to May 9 something like forty-two millions, perhaps a little less than forty-two millions, but a clear majority of the common stock?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, as to the amount of preferred stock I think you did testify that you did not know what amount of stock was held by you and your associates and Mr. Morgan & Co., so that we will leave that undetermined. But I now refer to the forty-one or forty-two millions of common stock which you referred to in your testimony yesterday afternoon, which you on your 395 part and for your associates agreed to hold and not deliver to anyone, and Messrs. J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. agreed to hold theirs together. Now, I say I call that the Hill-Morgan interests, and I want to know if at that time a majority of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company were favorable and friendly to the Hill-Morgan interests?

A. They were selected mainly by Mr. Morgan, or the voting trust which had controlled the Northern Pacific. Some of them I knew were my friends. I couldn't name who they were, the list covered fifteen, and some of them were not 396 friendly, at least to me.

Q. Mr. Hill, all the directors, then, on the board had been named by the voting trust?

A. Elected by the voting trust.

Q. And that voting trust had been dissolved, I think, some eight or ten months?

Mr. GROVER. The 1st of January.

Q. The 1st of January, 1901. Is that true?

A. That is right.

Q. So that at the following annual election the board of 397 directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company would be elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, was it your understanding at and prior to May 9, and I will say a few days subsequent when you held your conference with Mr. Harriman which you testified to yesterday afternoon, that a majority of that board as then constituted was favorable and friendly to Mr. Morgan or J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and yourself and associates?

A. I knew that some members of the board were my per- 398
sonal friends; I knew that some of them were unfriendly and had been.

Q. Mr. Hill, at the time when you promised J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.—that is, one of the partners of the firm, Mr. Morgan being away—that you would hold your common stock, and they agreed to hold theirs, you testified that there was an agreement with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and an understanding that the Northern Pacific preferred should be retired. Is that correct?

A. That is correct. I told them that if the Northern Pacific 399 control was retained, or to assist them in retaining it, we would hold our stock and not sell it.

Q. You understood then, Mr. Hill, that the control of the Northern Pacific, so far as the board of directors was concerned, was in J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., did you not?

A. He had selected the board of directors, but there are many men there who are independent of anybody's control.

Q. Didn't you, in your testimony, a moment ago, use the words, "If the control of the Northern Pacific was to be retained?" Now, it was your understanding that it was then in 400
J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. That is the control of it through an ownership of the majority of the stock.

Q. Well, they had up to that time, Mr. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. had elected—that is, the voting trust of which he was the head had named or elected the board of trustees?

A. The voting trust didn't own the stock.

Q. I understand, but they elected?

401 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And, then, the board of trustees had been named by the voting trust?

A. Yes, sir; that is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, at the time when you had this understanding and agreement with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., that the Northern Pacific preferred should be retired, that agreement and understanding necessarily contemplated corporate action, did it not?

A. By whom?

402 Q. By the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

A. Oh, yes, sir; that is the only way it could be retired.

Q. And at that time you necessarily had in mind action to be taken by the board of directors, did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you then assumed that if the majority of the common stock, which was then held by yourself and associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., should request the board of directors to pass that resolution that it would be done, did you not?

A. Well, speaking for myself, I hoped it would be done.

403 Q. I say, in those negotiations you assumed that it would be done, did you not?

A. I trusted it would be done.

Q. Now, you were aware that the stock could not be retired; that is, there could be no compulsory retirement until the 1st of January, 1902?

A. That is correct; that is the date fixed.

Q. And I suppose you were aware that at the annual meeting which was to take place in October, of the stockholders, 404 that at that annual meeting Mr. Harriman and his associates would have a majority of the common and preferred stock; that is, if they presented it and voted it?

A. If they presented it and voted it, and the meeting was held in October. The meeting date was a matter of the by-laws, which might be changed and amended at any time.

Q. That is just what I am getting at. At that time, Mr. Hill, you had in mind, if necessary, to postpone the annual meeting of the stockholders beyond January 1, did you not?

A. It might have been done.

Q. I want to know, Mr. Hill, if, as a matter of fact, you had 405 that in mind at the time that it could be done?

A. It had occurred, and was discussed.

Q. So that if it was necessary, in order to accomplish the purpose of the retiring of the Northern Pacific preferred stock, and you succeeded in getting a resolution passed by the then board of directors, the same board of directors could postpone the annual election beyond the 1st of January, 1902, at which time the retirement would take place?

A. Now, let me say that that was not discussed by me with Morgan & Co. 406

Q. Well, was it discussed by you with anybody?

A. With my own counsel, as a step that might be taken. My recollection is that it wasn't necessary to take any steps.

Q. But, Mr. Hill, let me ask you this, if you have finished.

A. I was going to say that my recollection is that it was not necessary to bring that up or discuss it with Morgan & Co., because the Harriman interests sent in their proxy to vote their stock to Morgan & Co., as they agreed to.

Q. I am getting at things that were in your mind before Mr. Morgan was selected, Mr. Hill, as arbitrator. I want to follow 407 that up with this question, Mr. Hill: Did you have in mind, or were you advised by your counsel, that if action be taken by the then board of directors, and an annual election of stockholders should be held as provided by the then by-laws in October, that it would be possible for the new board which might be named by the Harriman interests to cancel and annul any resolution of retirement?

A. That matter and any consultation with counsel was after my return from New York subsequent to my visit there during the first of May. 408

Q. Now, about what time was that?

A. Oh, I should think toward the last of May or first of June.

Q. What I want to get at is, you did have in mind some time the last of May or first of June, whatever time it was you got home or consulted with your counsel—you did have in mind the possibility of the Harriman interests dominating the election or controlling the election of the board of directors at the next annual meeting, did you not?

409 A. Certainly.

Q. And you did have in mind, and you were advised by your counsel, that if that should be done the directors so named would have the power to annul or cancel any action looking to the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred which might be taken by the then board of directors?

A. They might have attempted to annul it.

Q. I don't care so much about the rule of law of the case as I do what was in your mind and what was called to your attention. I ask you now if the possibility of such action was not 410 present in your mind at that time?

A. It was called to my attention and was present during the summer, I suppose. It was a subject I thought very frequently of.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Hill, that you went ahead upon the assumption that the then board of directors would be favorable and would pass such resolution as might be necessary to retire the preferred stock, and that the then board of directors, if necessary, and they were so advised and requested by you and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., and your associates, that they would 411 postpone the annual election until after January 1, 1902?

A. I don't recall that question of postponement coming up between myself and the members of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific at any time, or being discussed with them.

Q. Did you discuss it with anybody?

A. I remember talking it over and having it discussed with counsel; that is, that such course might be taken.

Q. Mr. Hill, is it not true, and was it not your then understanding, that the mere control of the forty-two millions of common stock by you and your associates and Mr. Morgan, and 412 the mere control of the board of directors as then constituted, provided an annual election should be held in October, would not give you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and their associates the final control or the control after the annual election of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. About forty-one or forty-two millions certainly was not a control of one hundred and fifty-five, and if the preferred stock voted, with the Harriman stock against us, we would be in a minority.

Q. I say if you had—that is not an answer to my question, 413
Mr. Hill. As the matter then stood on May 9, you and your associates and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and their associates held between forty-one and forty-two millions of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, assuming that you had a majority of the board of directors, as then constituted favorable to the proposition to retire the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, it was necessary, in addition to that, to carry out the plans of retirement to postpone, in case the seventy-eight mil- 414 lions of common and preferred held by Harriman were left outstanding, it would be necessary, in order to carry out your plan of retirement, to postpone the annual election, or might be necessary, beyond the 1st of January, 1902?

A. It might be necessary to postpone it if the preferred stock was to be retired on the 1st of January, because at that time, I think prior to that time, notice had been given of an intention to classify the board of directors, electing for one, two, and three years, and it would have been manifestly unjust for the preferred stock to have voted to elect a board of directors when that stock 415 would cease to exist on the 1st of January, a few months after electing the board of directors who were going to manage that property for two or three years.

Q. Yes, but that would be upon the assumption that your plan of retirement was to be carried out.

A. Why, of course.

Q. Now, I am trying to develop the other side of this programme a little. I want to know, Mr. Hill, if, as a matter of fact, these various considerations that we have just been discussing did not influence you and your associates and J. Pierpont 416
Morgan & Co. to open negotiations for the purchase of the Harriman stock, the seventy-eight millions of common and preferred?

A. I did not open negotiations for the Harriman stock, or for its purchase, at any time.

Q. Did that influence J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., to your knowledge?

A. I do not know that it did. I always felt that that stock could be retired and that any attempt to prevent its retirement 417 would fail, and I had the fullest confidence that it was a contract that could be enforced in any honest court.

Q. Now, Mr. Hili, I want to ask you this—if you didn't also realize, right in that same connection, that in order to carry out your plan of retirement it might become necessary to postpone the annual election which was then fixed for October, 1901?

A. I have testified repeatedly that the postponement of the election was suggested as one step by counsel.

Q. And one step that would be necessary, or might become necessary, in order to accomplish your plan of retirement?

418 A. It might become necessary.

Q. Wasn't that proposition, Mr. Hill, with reference to the necessity of postponing the annual election discussed with Mr. Stetson, of New York, who was counsel for J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. I don't recall any discussion of that kind.

Q. Do you recall now whether or not it was discussed with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., or with any of his partners?

A. I don't recall that discussion. I think I may have mentioned it to them as a suggestion or an opinion from our counsel 419 in the West.

Q. The counsel of the Great Northern road, Mr. Grover?

A. Yes, Mr. Grover. I am very apt to go to him for advice on legal matters on almost any subject.

Q. Mr. Hill—I don't remember whether I asked you or not—do you remember at what price the seventy-eight millions of common and preferred of the Harriman Northern Pacific stock was sold to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. at?

A. I do not recall the figure.

Q. You did know at the time, did you?

420 A. I think likely, but I can't recall the figure. I don't know that I knew exactly what the figure was. I don't know that I ever knew.

Q. I think you have already testified that one particular member of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. conducted the negotiations for the purchase, did you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was his name?

A. Robert Bacon.

Q. He is a member of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.? 421

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he lives in New York?

A. Yes, when he is at home; he has been away since fall.

Q. Mr. Hill, from May 9 to January 1, we will say, 1902—May 9 preceding January 1, 1902—what amount of stock during that period, common and preferred, in the Northern Pacific did J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. hold, if you know, approximately? I don't expect you to state it accurately, but, if you can, state it approximately.

A. Oh, twenty-two to twenty-seven or twenty-eight million. 422

Q. And that was, of course, independent of the Harriman purchase?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how much of that, Mr. Hill, was preferred?

A. I am counting common.

Q. All common?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. subscribe for their proportion of the certificates of indebtedness which were issued by the Northern Pacific Railway Company? 423

A. I think that Morgan & Co.—in fact, I know that Morgan & Co. sold some of their stock in the meantime.

Q. How much, Mr. Hill, as near as you can state?

A. Oh, I should say ten or twelve million.

Q. Now, on January 1, 1902, how much stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company did J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. hold—about?

A. I don't know that they held any.

Q. Well, what had become of it?

A. The Northern Securities Company had bought it. 424

Q. What I am getting at, Mr. Hill, is, how much common stock did they turn into the Northern Securities Company in exchange for Northern Securities Company's stock?

A. I couldn't say without getting knowledge from the books.

Q. Couldn't you approximately?

A. No. The company is new and I have never seen a list of the stockholders of the Northern Securities Company; never had been made up to the time I was last in its office.

Q. Well, do you know approximately how much of the stock 425 of the Northern Securities Company is now held by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., or by any of the partners of that firm?

A. I do not know how much.

Q. Well, do you know whether it is five million or forty million?

A. I know it is not forty and it might be five and it might be ten.

Q. Well, to get at the matter shortly, you don't know whether it is five or three times five?

A. I do not.

426 Q. You can not give us any approximation of the amount?

A. No. I have no recollection of the list of stockholders, and I think it is Morgan & Co.'s custom to carry any stock they hold in other names.

Q. Well, at the time, on or about the 1st of January, or previous to the 1st of January, after the organization of the Northern Securities Company and the starting of the business of that company, did you not know approximately the amount of common stock held by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. which it was their intention to exchange for Northern Securities Com-427 pany stock?

A. About. In fact, when the stock was exchanged I knew about what they held.

Q. And about how much was it?

A. Oh, I should say twelve or fifteen millions.

Q. And that so far as your present recollection goes was all the stock which J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. or any of the partners of that company had to exchange for Northern Securities Company stock?

A. No; they had the so-called Harriman stock outside of 428 that.

Q. I am eliminating that.

A. Outside of that, that is my recollection of about what Morgan & Co. had. That figure is not intended by me to be more than an estimate, and it is the best information I have on the subject.

Q. I understand. At the present time there is outstanding of the common stock, new and old issue, of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, one hundred and fifty-five millions, is there?

A. Yes, sir; that is the exact figure. 429

Q. And what part of that one hundred and fifty-five millions of stock is now held by the Northern Securities Company?

A. One hundred and fifty-two or one hundred and fifty-three, or possibly more, millions.

Q. I will ask you this in this connection, something I forgot yesterday. The Great Northern Railway Company is and always has been a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Minnesota, is it not, Mr. Hill?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And its authorized capital stock at the present time, and 430 on the 30th day of December, 1901, was what amount?

A. Its capital stock was one hundred and twenty-five million.

Q. And that stock is not divided into common and preferred?

A. No, sir. It is called preferred, but there is no common.

Q. There is only one class and never has been but one class of stock in the Great Northern?

A. That is right.

Q. And on the 30th day of December, 1901, how much of the authorized capital stock of the Great Northern road had been issued and was outstanding? 431

A. Probably one hundred and twenty-three million. It may be a fraction more; something less than one hundred and twenty-five.

Q. Mr. Hill, on the 30th day of December, 1901, what amount par value of the capital stock of the Great Northern road was held by the Northern Securities Company?

A. Possibly forty million.

Q. And by saying possibly forty million do you wish to be understood as saying that that is as near as you can fix it?

A. That is as near as I can fix it at that time. I think that 432 that is very near what was held at that time.

Q. And at the present time what is the holding of Great Northern stock by the Northern Securities Company?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, do you know that it is much larger, Mr. Hill?

A. It is some larger, but not a great deal larger. It may be five or six millions more.

Q. So, that at the present time the holding of the Great 433 Northern stock by the Northern Securities Company is not exceeding forty-five or forty-six million?

A. My information comes from the office of the company in New York, and it is put somewhere less than fifty million; between forty-five and fifty.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, on the 30th day of December, 1901, how much stock did you own and hold yourself individually in the Great Northern Railway Company par value?

A. Between two and a half and three million dollars.

Q. And had you, previous to that time, exchanged any of 434 your Great Northern stock for Northern Securities Company stock.

A. Yes.

Q. Well, I will ask you this: What time did the Northern Securities Company commence issuing its stock? When did it first commence to do business?

A. It commenced to do business about two or three days after it was organized.

Q. Mr. Hill, can you fix the date for us about when?

Mr. GROVER. That is pretty nearly right, perhaps three or 435 four days; very shortly.

Mr. YOUNG. You have the circular there which is dated two or three days after.

A. That is substantially correct.

Mr. LANCASTER. This appears to have been filed November 13, 1901, with the secretary of the state of New Jersey, and under the laws is there any publication down there?

Mr. GROVER. No.

Mr. LANCASTER. It goes into effect immediately?

Mr. GROVER. Yes.

436 Q. At the time when the Northern Securities Company commenced doing business, how much stock par value in the Great Northern Railway Company did you own and hold?

A. I couldn't give the exact figure.

Q. Well, approximately, Mr. Hill?

A. Oh, $11,000,000 to $12,000,000.

Q. On the 30th day of December, 1901, you had exchanged that stock, excepting two or three millions, into stock of the Northern Securities Company, had you?

A. Yes; substantially. 437

Q. And at the present time, how much stock do you own and hold in the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Two and a half or three millions.

Q. Do any of your associates at the present time own and hold any of the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I have not looked at the stockholders' list of the Great Northern Railway Company recently, and do not know.

Q. Well, do you mean to say that you do not know whether or not your associates have exchanged all of their Great Northern stock for Northern Securities Company? 438

A. I think Mr. Kennedy has exchanged all of his; I think he told me so, and I don't know whether Mr. James has or whether he has not. I don't know whether Mr. Thorne has or whether he has not. I think Mr. Baker has.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you know whether or not the amount held by the Northern Securities Company, which you say is forty-five or fifty million of the Great Northern Railway Company, together with what is held by you and your associates, constitute a clear majority of the outstanding capital stock of the Great Northern Railway? 439

A. I never made the calculation and could not answer it.

Q. You mean to say, then, that at the present time you don't know whether you and your associates, the Northern Securities Company, own and control a majority of the Great Northern Railway stock or not?

A. I don't know that the Northern Securities Company—I know they don't.

Q. I assume that forty-five or fifty is not a majority of one hundred and twenty-three, but what I am getting at is if you know whether or not the stock held by the Northern Securities 440 Company, together with the stock held by yourself and your associates, constitute a clear majority of one hundred and twenty-three million?

A. Well, if I call my associates the shareholders of the Great Northern Railway——

Q. I thought we had that well defined yesterday afternoon; you named them. I refer to them.

A. Those who were named as my associates yesterday would 441 not have a control, but the shareholders of the Great Northern Railway have always been very loyal supporters of the board of directors and sent their proxies when called upon, and I have no doubt they would act practically as a unit.

Q. And act practically as you would recommend?

A. I think they always have been ready to.

Q. Then it has not been necessary up to the present time for you to locate absolutely a majority of the capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company; is that it?

A. I don't know why it should be necessary.

442 Q. I am not asking for the reasons, I am simply asking for the fact.

A. Well, it is the best answer I can give. Now, my judgment or opinion of what is necessary is a difficult question to answer. If I had thought it was necessary I suppose I could have had a list made.

Q. You named over yesterday, Mr. Hill, a list of some ten or twelve, I think, names of gentlemen, of which the following is a copy: John S. Kennedy, D. Willis James, S. Thorne, R. S. Sterling, Oliver Payne, Jacob Schiff, H. W. Cannon, Lord 443 Strathcona, and Lord Mount Stephens, and I think you testified that those men, whom you designated as your associates, had for a long time held a large amount of the stock of the Great Northern road and had always acted together in the management and control of that road.

A. That is not correct.

Q. Well, will you correct it?

A. Yes, sir. Those were my associates who had purchased the Northern Pacific stock. Jacob H. Schiff was a director, but not at any time of the old promoters. He was a director, and 444 his firm owned or represented an amount of stock. Not a very large amount.

Q. It will take a little time, but let's get it straight. What I want to get at is the names of the individuals to whom you have referred several times in your testimony as being your associates in the Great Northern, men some of whom were 86 years of age, and some 80, etc. Now, let's have their names.

A. The man 86 years of age is Johnston Livingston, and Lord Strathcona was born in 1820.

Q. Now, we are talking about Great Northern associates?

A. Entirely. 445

Q. And who else?

A. Mr. Thorne, Mr. Sterling, Lord Mount Stephens, Willis James, Mr. Kennedy, and Baker was a Great Northern stockholder for many years, and Mr. Cannon, and Mr. Payne.

Q. Do you know whether Lord Strathcona has any stock in the Great Northern road at the present time?

A. I do not. I think his stock is turned in, but that is only an opinion.

Q. You don't know whether it is turned in or not?

A. No; I think it is. 446

Q. You said Mr. Kennedy exchanged all of his?

A. I think he told me he had.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Baker has?

A. I have the impression that he has. I don't know that he has.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. James has?

A. I think he has.

Q. All of the stock?

A. I think so.

Q. Mr. Thorne? 447

A. I could not say as to Mr. Thorne; he has been sick for some time.

Q. Mr. Clough?

A. Mr. Clough, I don't know. I think Mr. Clough's holding isn't large.

Q. Mr. Perkins?

A. There are two gentlemen of that name.

Q. Well, you only gave us one here as being your associate in the Great Northern?

A. I did not. 448

Q. No; you did not give that name; that is right.

Mr. KELLOGG. There is a Burlington Perkins and a Morgan & Co. Perkins.

A. That is right.

Mr. BULKLEY. Which is which?

Mr. YOUNG. Charles E. Perkins is the president of the Burlington.

449 Q. Mr. Hill, do you know whether or not there is any stock of the Great Northern Railway Company that is up in the hands of the trustees or a trustee to be exchanged at any time?

A. I know of none.

Q. Are there any agreements at the present time of which you have any knowledge between any stockholder and the Northern Securities Company for the exchange of stock in the future?

A. None whatever.

Q. Mr. Hill, the stock which you hold now, which you hold 450 out from the amount which you had on hand at the organization of the Northern Securities Company, is that stock under any agreement of any kind, to be turned into the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir; it was held out because it was collateral security for borrowed money at the time and it was not as easy to turn it over as it might be after the debt was paid.

Q. And is it your purpose and intention, Mr. Hill, to turn that over to the Northern Securities Company as soon as it is released?

451 A. It is released, I think, now.

Q. Well, is it your present intention to turn over and exchange the Great Northern stock for Northern Securities Company stock?

A. Well, I may have a little sentiment to induce me to hold some of the Great Northern shares. I might.

Q. That does not quite answer the question. I ask you what your present intention is?

A. I couldn't testify. I haven't any present intention.

Q. Is there at present any purpose or intention on the part 452 of you and your associates to secure a majority of the Great Northern Railway Company's stock to be exchanged for Northern Securities Company stock?

A. I don't know what the intentions of my associates are in the matter; I have never consulted them in regard to it. I suppose that any time we want any action of the Great Northern Railway Company the stockholders will be ready to do as they have in the past. Generally I have felt they were a very loyal set of people

Q. You issued a circular to the stockholders of the Great 453
Northern Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in that circular you set forth the plan or scheme of exchange?

A. That is, the circular was issued by the Northern Securities Company.

Q. And it was signed by you as president of the Northern Securities Company, was it?

A. I think so.

Q. As a matter of fact, you sent that or directed that it be 454 sent to all the stockholders of the Great Northern?

A. They were all given an opportunity to exchange their stock up to a certain date, I think the 22d of January. The circular speaks for itself; and you have a copy of it, for I saw it yesterday.

Q. We don't find it here, Mr. Hill. At the time when the Northern Securities Company was formed was it your expectation and desire that a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company should be turned into the Northern Securities Company in exchange for the latter com- 455 pany's stock?

A. In November?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Yes.

Q. It was?

A. Of the Northern Pacific?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it your expectation and desire at the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company that a major- 456 ity of the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company should also be exchanged for Northern Securities Company stock?

A. I think it was expected that a majority would be exchanged. At the same time the market price at that time was considerably higher than the price the Northern Securities Company purchased the Great Northern stock at. It was a matter that was left to the shareholders.

Mr. LANCASTER. Mr. Kellogg, we will offer in evidence Exhibit F.

457 Mr. KELLOGG. All right. It is taken subject to the same objection, that it is irrelevant and immaterial. We waive the authentication.

Q. Mr. Hill, I will show you complainant's Exhibit G and ask you if that is a copy of the circular sent out by the Northern Securities Company, signed by you as president, to the stockholders of the Great Northern road in November last?

A. That is a copy of what was sent from the Northern Securities Company office in New York to its shareholders.

Mr. LANCASTER. It is offered in evidence.

458 Mr. KELLOGG. It is received, subject to the same objection.

Q. Mr. Hill, can you give the names of the directors of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I could not.

Mr. LANCASTER. I have a list here, which I think is correct. Have you a list, Mr. Grover?

Mr. GROVER. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hill, will you give the names of the present directors of the Northern Securities Company?

A. James J. Hill, John S. Kennedy, George F. Baker, D.
459 Willis James, E. T. Nichols, George W. Perkins, Robert Bacon, E. H. Harriman, Jacob H. Schiff, Samuel Thorne, George C. Clark, Daniel S. Lamont, Nicholas Terhune, James Stillman, and W. P. Clough.

Q. You are president of that company and have been since its organization, have you not?

A. Yes, sir; I have been president since it commenced to do business. I think there was a president ahead of me.

Q. Were the officers named in the articles?

A. I think so.

460 Q. The first vice-president is John S. Kennedy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the second vice-president, George F. Baker?

A. Correct.

Q. And the third vice-president, D. Willis James?

A. Correct.

Q. And the fourth vice-president, William P. Clough?

A. That is right.

Q. And the secretary and treasurer is E. T. Nichols?

A. That is correct. 461

Q. And was there an executive committee of the corporation?

A. Yes, sir; there is.

Q. And who is chairman of the executive committee?

A. The president is ex officio chairman, I think.

Q. And how many members constitute the executive committee?

A. Five or six.

Q. Can you give those names.

A. I could not. I think the four vice-presidents and E. H. Harriman. 462

Mr. GROVER. The four vice-presidents and E. H. Harriman and the president ex officio.

Q. That would make six.

A. Well, I said five or six.

Q. Mr. Hill, to your knowledge, was there any Great Northern Railway stock on the market for sale?

A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Was it being dealt in?

A. There are quotations frequently.

Q. And has been since the 1st of January, 1901? 463

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has there been any considerable dealings in Great Northern Railway stock since the 1st of January?

A. I don't recall; it is never an active stock; it is never a stock that has been dealt in in large amounts, but I think I have seen seven or eight hundred shares in a day dealt in some times.

Q. Mr. Hill, can you state approximately the number of stockholders at the present time in the Great Northern Railway Company? 464

A. I could not without a list of them. Last fall when I last saw a list there was some fifteen or sixteen hundred, but that changes as the sales are made.

Q. You are unable now to give even an estimate of the number of stockholders outstanding?

A. I have no means of estimating the changes. The sales might increase the number of holders or it might reduce them. I have seen the number of shareholders up well toward two thousand.

465 Q. Where are the stock books of the Great Northern Railway Company kept?

A. New York.

Q. And do you have a copy, or substantially a copy, of that book in your office at St. Paul?

A. I suppose I could get one, if I wanted it.

Q. What I mean is, either the secretary or assistant secretary of the Great Northern road is at St. Paul?

A. The secretary, I think.

Q. And you have your assistant secretary reside in New 466 York?

A. Yes.

Mr. GROVER. The secretary is in New York.

Q. And the assistant secretary resides in St. Paul?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What I want to know is, whether or not you keep in your office at St. Paul a duplicate copy, or something serving the purpose of a duplicate copy, of your stock book?

A. I think once a year there is; whether it is oftener than that, I could not testify.

467 Q. And all transfers of stock are registered in your office at New York?

A. Yes, sir; they are made there; of course they are registered there.

Q. Now, the custody and control of the books of the Great Northern Railway Company, then—the original books—are in the possession and control of the secretary, Mr. Nichols. Is that his name?

A. Mr. Nichols.

Q. In New York City?

468 A. The stock books are necessarily kept there.

Q. They are kept by Mr. Nichols, are they, as secretary of the company?

A. Yes.

Q. That is what I am getting at. Where are the records of the official meetings of the stockholders and directors of the Great Northern Railway Company kept?

A. They are in New York.

Q. And are they in the custody of the secretary, Mr. E. T. Nichols?

A. Yes, sir. The directors' meetings are held in St. Paul. 469

Q. And the minutes of the directors' meetings are kept by whom?

A. Kept by the secretary in St. Paul.

Q. That is the assistant?

A. By Mr. Sawyer.

Q. He is the assistant secretary, is he?

A. He is either secretary or assistant. One is assistant treasurer and secretary, and the other is assistant secretary and treasurer.

Q. But Mr. Sawyer has the custody and control of the records 470 of the directors' meetings in St. Paul?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, we will want to clean up a little and ask a few more questions. We had better take an adjournment until 2 o'clock.

By consent of all parties, a recess was taken at this time until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Thursday afternoon, February 20, 1902, at 2 o'clock all parties appeared pursuant to the adjournment, represented by the same solicitors, and the following proceedings were had, to wit: 471

JAMES J. HILL, being recalled for further examination by Mr. Lancaster, testified as follows:

Q. Mr. Hill, is there a voting committee of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I think not; I don't recollect any.

Q. Has there been any provision made for a committee to represent the Northern Securities Company in any stockholders' meeting of either the Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. No committee that I know of. I think there is a proxy. 472

Q. To whom?

A. I don't recall to whom it ran, but I think there is a proxy. I think the board appointed a proxy to vote stock in case any occasion for voting it should arise.

Q. Do you know whether or not that proxy is held by one individual or by a committee?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Has that proxy been actually issued?

473 A. That I don't know.

Q. And does it cover the stock of the Great Northern as well as the stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. They would be different proxies.

Q. I mean, does the provision with reference to the proxies cover both classes of stocks?

A. I think so.

Q. And does the proxy run to the same person?

A. I think not; I think it is a separate proxy.

Q. Are you able to give the name or names of the parties 474 holding either proxy or both?

A. I think that I am one of the proxies for the Great Northern.

Q. And who else with you?

A. I don't recall. Possibly Mr. Nichols is the alternate.

Q. And who is the party holding the proxy for the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Is it you, Mr. Hill?

A. I am not. I think that Colonel Lamont, vice-president, 475 who is resident and in the office of the Northern Pacific, I think that he is the proxy for the Northern Pacific, but I am not certain; and as to the alternate I don't know.

Q. Has any stock of the Northern Securities Company been issued and sold to any individual or individuals for cash?

A. I couldn't testify as to that.

Q. Well, has the Northern Securities Company any assets excepting the stocks of the Northern Pacific Railway Company and of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. It has.

476 Q. What are they?

A. Other stocks or securities.

Q. Of what companies?

A. Well, for one, it has stocks or stock in the Crow's Nest Coal Company.

Q. How much?

A. I don't remember. I think 25,000 shares.

Q. From whom did it acquire that stock?

A. The stock was purchased under my direction from people in Canada and was carried and turned over.

Q. Did the Northern Securities Company pay cash for it? 477

A. I think so. This transaction was ready to close when I left New York. How far it has advanced I don't know.

Q. At what price was the 25,000 par value put in at—25,000 shares, did you say?

A. Twenty-five thousand shares, I think.

Q. At a par value of $100?

A. I am not sure whether it was twenty-five or fifty; I am not sure which. It was less than a hundred.

Q. And for that you say the Northern Securities Company paid cash? 478

A. Yes.

Q. It didn't issue its own stock?

A. It didn't issue its own stock direct.

Q. Did it indirectly?

A. It might sell its stock to provide the money.

Q. Well, are you able to state, Mr. Hill, how much cash to the company that transaction of the Crow's Nest Coal Company involved?

A. I do not know how much.

Q. Approximately. 479

A. I do not know how much of that stock it has sold; that is, how much the securities company has sold for cash.

Q. Has it sold any considerable amount?

A. I think it has.

Q. About how much?

A. I do not know.

Q. Well, what do you regard as a considerable amount? You say it has sold a considerable amount.

A. Oh, it would amount to probably $3,000,000 or $4,000,000.

Q. That is, the Northern Securities Company has sold its 480 own stock to various parties to the extent of $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 for cash?

A. It either has or intends to. It either has or expects to.

Q. I am confining it up to date, Mr. Hill, to what has been done.

A. Well, I couldn't say, because I haven't been in the office for some time.

Q. Then, so far as your own knowledge goes, Mr. Hill, are 481 you able to say that the company has, up to date, in fact, bought any property for which it has paid cash up to the present time?

A. It has agreed to buy property for which it must pay cash, and whether that transaction has been completed since I left New York or not I couldn't say.

Q. Well, has it purchased any other property or any other stock outside of the stock of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern except this Crow's Nest Coal Company?

A. Yes.

Q. What other?

482 A. Oh, other coal companies; two.

Q. Two other coal companies?

A. Yes, sir; one of them situated on Puget Sound; the other east of the Rocky Mountains.

Q. That is, other independent companies—independent of the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern?

A. Yes, sir; and it expects also some other coal companies and mineral holding ones.

Q. Has it, up to date, Mr. Hill, paid out any cash for these two other coal companies that you have mentioned?

483 A. I couldn't say.

Q. How much stock of the Northern Securities Company has been issued up to date?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Can you say approximately, Mr. Hill?

A. Not without access to the books.

Q. Well, have you any present information as to the approximate amount of stock actually issued?

A. I should say it was over 230,000,000 or 240,000,000. It may be over 250,000,000.

484 Q. And 152,000,000 or 153,000,000 I think you testified of that amount of stock issued was issued for the acquirement of the Northern Pacific stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At 115?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that as a matter of fact it would be considerably more than 152,000,000 or 153,000,000 of the Northern Securities Company stock?

A. Yes.

Q. Probably 165,000,000 or 170,000,000 of Northern Securi- 485 ties Company?

A. Yes, sir; somewhere from 170,000,000 to 180,000,000.

Q. Of the Northern Securities Company stock which it was necessary to issue in order to take care of 152,000,000 or 153,000,000 of the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Hill, were the two coal companies that you referred to, one on Puget Sound and one elsewhere I think you stated, were those companies before they were purchased in whole or in part by the Northern Securities Company owned or con- 486 trolled by either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern?

A. The Crow's Nest Coal Company was not.

Q. I didn't ask you about that one, but the ones that you mentioned, one of them I think you said on Puget Sound——

A. And one of them east of the mountains?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, they were in th interest of the Great Northern.

Q. Both of them?

A. Yes.

Q. And did the Northern Securities Company acquire those 487 properties or the stocks for those properties from the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. No.

Q. From whom did they acquire them?

A. I have not testified that they did more than expect to acquire them.

Q. You are not able to say, then, that up to the present time they have actually acquired them or whether they have any actual agreement for them?

A. They have an expectation, and it is intended to acquire 488 them, but whether that has been carried out I am unable to say.

Q. Well, do you say expectation, Mr. Hill, because of any agreement outstanding for their purchase?

A. No special agreement. In regard to these two, I explained the matter to the board of directors and they thought it was a proper thing for them to acquire these properties, and additional properties of that character. In other words, that they should as a matter of policy seek to secure a supply of fuel for the company and for the country served by the company's lines.

489 Q. Mr. Hill, do you mean by what you have testified to that the stocks of these two coal companies—one on Puget Sound and one east of the mountains—which were held in the interests of the Great Northern, that those stocks are so held that they may at any time be turned over to the Northern Securities Company?

A. The Northern Securities Company could buy either the stocks or the property.

Q. That is, the present arrangements are such that they can be delivered to the Northern Securities Company whenever it is 490 desirable to carry out the scheme?

A. I think so. The owners would have to agree to sell before the purchasers could close a bargain, but I think that they would agree.

Q. And is that the same with reference to the Crow's Nest?

A. The Crow's Nest is a matter of stock in an organized company. It is a foreign company.

Q. I understood you to say you were unable to state whether it had actually been transferred or not?

A. I so stated.

491 Q. That you are unable to state whether or not the stock has been transferred?

A. That is right, but I believe that the Crow's Nest stock is in a position where it could be transferred, and it may have been transferred since I left New York.

Q. Are the other two coal mines at the present time in corporate companies?

A. I think so.

Q. Mr. Hill, Mr. E. T. Nichols is the secretary and treasurer of the Northern Securities Company, is he not?

492 A. I think so; yes, sir.

Q. And where does he reside?

A. His residence or his business residence?

Q. Well, where his actual residence is?

A. New Jersey.

Q. And what town or city?

A. He lives near Morristown.

Q. And where is his official residence as treasurer of the Northern Securities Company?

A. In New York.

Q. And is the office of the treasurer of the Northern Secu- 493 rities Company in New York?

A. The main office is in New Jersey.

Q. Does Mr. Nichols maintain his office as treasurer of the company in New Jersey?

A. No; he has an office in New Jersey, and the books of the company and the corporate office is in New Jersey. It also has an office in New York.

Q. And is the business of the company and the business of Mr. Nichols as treasurer of the company in New York?

A. Well, it would be in both places, I think. I am not 494 familiar with the requirements of the New Jersey law. I may in time become so.

Q. Mr. Hill, do you know whether or not the Northern Securities Company is doing anything more than maintaining an official office in New Jersey?

A. Under the provisions of the New Jersey laws there are certain requirements in regard to local representation and office, and I know that at least these laws are complied with. Now, how much further than that, and how much business is transacted there I couldn't say. 495

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Hill, that the actual business of the corporation is carried on and conducted from the corporation's office in New York City?

A. The bulk of the business would be carried on there.

Q. Mr. Hill, at the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company how much stock was then subscribed for?

A. I couldn't testify. I don't recollect.

Q. Do you know whether or not any stock was subscribed for?

A. My recollection is that there was. 496

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not any cash was actually paid into the Northern Securities Company on these subscriptions?

A. The company in organizing required a considerable amount of cash.

Q. How much?

A. I don't recollect the amount, but a considerable amount. It might have been $3,000,000 or $5,000,000.

497 Q. Well, do you know of your own knowledge that $3,000,000 or $5,000,000 was actually subscribed?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge that $3,000,000 or $5,000,000, or any considerable sum, was actually paid in cash by any subscriber?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge that any cash was actually paid into the Northern Securities Company at the time of its organization, or immediately thereafter?

498 A. Yes, sir; I do.

Q. And how much?

A. I testified, a large sum. It might have been——

Q. Mr. Hill, let us understand each other. I am not asking you what might have been, or what possibly was done, but if you know——

A. I can not give you the amount.

Q. Then, so far as your own knowledge is concerned, you are unable to state that any cash was actually paid in at or immediately subsequent to the organization of the Northern Securities

499 Company?

A. I know that cash was paid in at that time; I could not say how much.

Q. Well, if you know of your own knowledge, Mr. Hill, that any was paid, can you give us approximately the amount?

A. I said I could not.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Hill, whether or not the amount or amounts paid in in cash was anything more than was probably necessary or required to pay the expenses of incorporation, etc.?

A. Oh, there were other necessary payments and then to carry 500 out these other purchases would require a further sum of money.

Q. Mr. Hill, was it not the principal and practically the whole object and purpose of the Northern Securities Company to acquire stocks in the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and to pay for them by the issuance of its own stock? Wasn't that the principal and practically the entire object and purpose of the corporation?

A. That was not the entire object or purpose or sole reason.

Q. Was it practically the whole purpose and object?

A. If it was practically it would have been in fact, but it 501 wasn't.

Q. Well, Mr. Hill, I want to know if at the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company it was the purpose and intention practically of the company and of the officers who promoted it, and the individuals who promoted it, to purchase stock in the Great Northern Railway Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company and to issue its own stock in payment therefor?

A. It was contemplated to buy other stock or other properties at the time. 502

Q. Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Hill, did you not testify that when the Northern Securities Company was first contemplated, and down to some time in the midsummer of 1901, the principal object of the organization of the Northern Securities Company was to hold together and combine the stock of yourself and immediate associates in the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. That was in regard to the Great Northern Railway.

Q. And didn't you testify yesterday that subsequently and a little later on the matter was discussed, and I think you sug- 503 gested Mr. Kennedy as the man who first proposed the taking in of the holdings of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Held by a small number of people who contemplated forming such a company which you might call a close corporation, and at that time not expected to be a majority of either company.

Q. Then later on, Mr. Hill, didn't you testify yesterday afternoon that that scheme was broadened so as to let in all the stockholders of the Great Northern that desired, or might desire, to come in and exchange their stock? 504

A. They were all given an opportunity to remain associated with the principal owners as they had been in the past.

Q. Then down to the time when the corporation was organized, November 13, 1901, weren't the principal objects and purposes of the incorporation of the Northern Securities Company to acquire the stocks of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, and to buy them—acquire them—by issuing its own stock in payment therefor?

505 A. The object is fairly stated in the circular; it gave the holders of the Great Northern the opportunity to come in if they so desired and to remain out if they so desired, and the holders of the Northern Pacific, the steps that were taken I do not recall, except for myself and a few immediate associates. The stock of the Northern Pacific was held by comparatively few holders; I think altogether, common and preferred, four or five hundred.

Q. On November 20, 1901, the Northern Securities Company, by you as its president, issued complainant's Exhibit G, 506 which is a circular to the stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company, and on or about the same date a similar circular was sent out to the holders of the Northern Pacific stock, wasn't there?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Wasn't there a circular sent out detailing the basis upon which the Northern Pacific stock could be exchanged?

A. I don't recall ever having seen such a circular. There might have been, but I don't recall ever having seen it, and it wouldn't have been likely that I would have seen it, except it 507 might have been sent to me as a shareholder, and in that case Mr. Nichols, who represented me in such matters, would have received it.

Q. Did you see the circular sent out by the Northern Securities Company to the stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I signed it.

Q. Well, now, I am asking you if one was sent to the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Company?

A. Oh, you mean from the Northern Securities Company?

508 Q. Certainly; that is what I am talking about.

A. I don't know whether such a circular was sent or not. I think not. It is only a matter of recollection, but I don't recall any such letter sent. There might have been, but I I don't recall it. There was a great many papers passing at those times and I haven't charged my mind with the details of them.

Q. Up to November 22, 1901, had the Northern Securities Company made any efforts or attempts to purchase or acquire any other stocks than those of the Northern Pacific and the 509

Great Northern Railway Company?

A. It expected to, and the matter of acquiring other stocks was discussed.

Q. Had it actually taken any steps to acquire any other stock at that time?

A. Before its organization?

Q. No, sir; I am talking about after November 13 and on or about November 22.

A. I couldn't testify as to the date when these steps were taken. I think at the first meeting of the executive committee 510
I outlined the matter of several properties that the company should own.

Q. Mr. Hill, are you able to give any other stocks or securities other than the stocks of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, the two coal companies, one on Puget Sound and one east of the Rocky Mountains, and the Crow's Nest Coal Company in Canada in which the Northern Securities Company at the present time has any interest?

A. I don't know. I have not testified that it had an interest in all these. 511

Q. I understand, but you say it may have, or at least is expected to have.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, I ask you whether you can name any others?

A. Yes. Some very important and very large interests in iron ore and lands containing iron ore in this State.

Q. Now, those are in contemplation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge that the Northern Securites Company has in its possession or under its control or 512 has bought or purchased any other stocks than those of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. I know that the purchase of other securites, bonds, and stocks have been contemplated, and I have not been in the office for some time, some weeks, and I do not know how far the transactions have been completed.

Q. Do you mean to say you don't know whether they have any or not at the present time?

513 A. I don't know whether the transactions have been completed or not. I know it was the intention and expectation, and the matter was discussed—the acquiring of other securities. Some of these securities would be bonds and some of them stocks.

Q. Were any persons interested in the Northern Securities Company or in the organization of that company other than yourself and persons interested either in the Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railway companies?

A. None that I know of. I think the persons who were 514 actively interested were originally shareholders in the Great Northern, and most of them, if not all, had shares in the Northern Pacific at the time the company was organized.

Q. I will leave this for a moment, Mr. Hill. I want to go back to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company for just a moment. Prior to May 9, 1901, was E. H. Harriman a director of either the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company or the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. Prior to May 9 there was no Chicago, Burlington and 515 Quincy Railway Company.

Q. Was he a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. I think not. I feel very sure he was not.

Q. And the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company was organized—I think you have stated, but I have forgotten—about what time?

A. During the summer of 1901.

Q. And Mr. Harriman, subsequent to May 9, was elected a director of the Quincy Railroad Company?

516 A. I think he was elected at the annual meeting.

Q. And about when was that held?

A. I don't remember.

Q. In the fall of 1901?

A. No; I should say it was before that.

Q. In the summer?

A. It might have been in the autumn.

Q. Well, it was subsequent to May 9?

A. Yes.

Q. And, Mr. Hill, at the time Mr. Harriman was elected a 517 director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, at the annual meeting of the stockholders which occurred, you say, probably in the autumn of 1901, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway Company held and voted, through its proxies or voting committee, all the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, did it not?

A. They authorized the stock to be voted.

Q. And the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway Company selected the board of directors for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, didn't it? 518

A. Practically.

Q. Now, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway Company also named the directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, did they not?

A. Yes, sir. That is, as stockholders they did.

Q. And Mr. Harriman was, with the consent and approval or by the direction of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, placed upon the boards of directors of each company?

A. Mr. Harriman was elected a director of the railway company when the board was elected, and also of the railroad com- 519 pany, I think, at the annual election.

Q. And at those meetings the two roads, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, held all the stock of both companies, did they not?

A. Well, they held a large majority of it.

Q. And they named the directors?

A. Practically.

Q. And at the same time the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern also named George J. Gould as a director of the railroad company? 520

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Both Mr. Harriman and George J. Gould were, and for some time previous had been, directors of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, or railway company, had they not?

A. Mr. Harriman had. Mr. Gould is usually interested in railroad properties in the West, and as far west as Colorado.

Mr. BOUTELLE: Missouri Pacific?

A. I think he used to be connected with the Union Pacific.

521 Mr. BOUTELLE. Missouri Pacific, I said.

A. Missouri Pacific; yes.

Q. Are you unable to state whether or not Mr. Gould, at the time he was elected a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, was a director of the Union Pacific?

A. I could not testify.

Q. Or do you know whether he was a director of the Southern Pacific?

A. I couldn't testify.

Q. Mr. Hill, you understood at that time and understood 522 ever since that the Union Pacific owned and controlled a majority of the stock of the Southern Pacific?

A. I have never understood that it owned a majority of the stock. I knew that it had purchased, at least I was informed it had purchased, the Huntington interests, but that was not a majority.

Q. It was very nearly a majority, wasn't it?

A. I don't remember what the proportion was; it was a large block.

Q. Mr. Hill, the Union Pacific at that time owned and con-
523 trolled the Oregon Short Line?

A. Yes, sir; I believe they did.

Q. And the Southern Pacific controlled the Central Pacific?

A. Well, I don't know which was considered the parent company, whether the Central controlled the Southern or the Southern the Central. It was one interest.

Q. I was going to say they were allied interests at this time, in 1901?

A. I think they have been considered one interest for some time.

524 Q. That is, the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific and the Southern?

A. No; the Central and the Southern.

Q. And the Oregon Short Line had been controlled and managed by the Union Pacific?

A. For some time.

Q. Now, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company was to a large extent—that is, through a large territory—a competing line with the Union Pacific, was it not?

A. Well, in some places it was a competing line and in some 525 places a connecting line.

Q. I say through a very large part of the territory it was a parallel and competing line with the Union Pacific, was it not?

A. I think through the largest territory it was a connecting line, but part of the territory it is certainly a competing line.

Q. During the spring and summer and fall of 1901, did you understand that Mr. E. H. Harriman was the chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific and a member of its board of directors?

A. Yes, sir. 526

Q. And also president of the Oregon Short Line?

A. I didn't know who was president of the Oregon Short Line.

Q. Were you informed that he was president of the Oregon Short Line?

A. I don't know. I understood that the Oregon Short Line was controlled by the Union Pacific, and whoever was president or was not president would be controlled by that company.

Q. Did you understand that Mr. Harriman was chairman of the executive committee of the Oregon Short Line and Naviga- 527 tion Company?

A. I did not; no.

Q. Did you understand that that company was allied to the Union Pacific?

A. I have always understood, for a year and a half, I might say—possibly longer—that the stock was largely owned by the Union Pacific, both common and preferred.

Q. And did you understand at that time that Mr. Harriman was president of the Southern Pacific?

A. I did not, and don't know that he was. I do not recall 528 when he was elected president of the Southern Pacific, but I am only speaking from recollection.

Q. Mr. Hill, in your testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission at Chicago I think you gave two reasons why you refused the request of Mr. Harriman to join in the purchase, with the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, and one of these reasons was that such purchase by the Union Pacific would be illegal.

529 A. That is correct.

Q. And was that opinion based on the assumption of fact that the Union Pacific was a parallel and competing line to some extent with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company.

A. That was a reason. The Union Pacific Railway Company could not properly become an owner of that stock or join in the purchase without infringing on the law.

Q. And the laws of what States, as you understood it?

A. I don't know the States. I think Nebraska, and I think 530 most of the Western States.

Q. So that at that time, Mr. Hill, you must have had in mind and believed that to a very large extent, at least, the Union Pacific and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company were parallel and competing lines?

A. A portion of the property is a parallel and competing line, then and now.

Q. That is, the two lines, the Union Pacific and the Burlington?

A. Yes, sir.

531 Q. Prior to May 9 was Mr. Harriman ever to your knowledge a director of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. And was he elected subsequent to May 9 as a director of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. On Mr. Morgan's return I think Mr. Harriman was one of the names that he suggested or designated as directors in the Northern Pacific.

Q. Now, subsequent to May 9, was there any undertaking or agreement or negotiations between you or your associates or 532 J. P. Morgan & Co. and his associates, to your knowledge, with Mr. Harriman by which it was understood and agreed that Mr. Harriman should become a director of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, and of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, and of the Northern Pacific?

A. No such agreement was discussed or made. Mr. Morgan on his return named these parties as the board of directors for the Northern Pacific without any agreement or pledge or promise.

Q. Without any understanding that Mr. Harriman should be represented upon any of those boards? 533

A. I think there was a clear understanding or statement by Mr. Bacon that Mr. Harriman's name was not to come up, not to be considered, and also Mr. Schiff's, but this is mere hearsay. But we have been compelled to give a good deal of hearsay.

Q. We will allow you to give some more if you wish to.

A. All right. When Mr. Morgan came back, I think Mr. Morgan said: "Here, we will put Mr. Harriman on this board, and Mr. Schiff, too, to show them we are not afraid of them." 534

Q. Mr. Hill, after these cessations of hostilities, or supposed hostilities, between the Harriman faction and the Hill faction as we understood it this morning, this putting of Mr. Harriman upon the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company and of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, and upon the Northern Pacific Railway Company was simply an act of magnanimity on the part of the Hill-Morgan faction; was that it?

A. There was a good deal of fear professed by Mr. Harriman and Mr. Schiff that the Northern lines taking the Burlington 535 would be too strong. I don't know but they feared we would swallow them or something, and they professed great fear that the Burlington was going to build through to California and to southern California and what is known as the W. A. Clark road, now building from Los Angeles into Utah. I remember being asked by some of them if our company or the Northern Pacific or the Burlington were connected with it or expected to be. I told them no; we were developing an entirely different section of the country, and we were not anxious to extend into southern California or San Francisco, and I think that largely led to 536 those people being put into the Burlington board that they might be witnesses; that there was nobody going to dig pitfalls, etc., for them in that country. Now, I think that is why they were put there.

Q. Mr. Harriman at that time had no stock in the Burlington, had he?

A. I don't think Mr. Harriman then or since has any stock in the Burlington except to qualify him as a director.

537 Q. And he had none in the railway company?

A. No, sir.

Q. And at the time he was elected a director of the Northern Pacific he had either sold or had contracted to sell all of his stock to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. I don't think he had contracted to sell any of it; he contracted or promised verbally to give his proxy to Mr. Morgan to vote it at the succeeding election and carried that agreement out, and he subsequently sold all of his stock, and sold it to J. Pierpont Morgan. In fact, I am sure that was after the 538 election of the Northern Pacific.

Q. There was no connection between the cessation of hostilities—if we may use that word—on the part of Mr. Harriman against the Northern Pacific and his appointment or election to the directorate of that road subsequently, was there?

A. His appointment as director of the Northern Pacific road grew out of the offer of Mr. Harriman and his associates to let the appointment be made by the selection of Mr. Morgan for the board of directors of the Northern Pacific, and their promise to put their stock, or proxy representing their stock, in his hands 539 to vote it at the succeeding annual election. Now, that was the cause, I think, for Mr. Morgan's putting him there; not because there was an agreement, because there was no agreement. Mr. Morgan might have taken eleven men or fifteen men off the street and nominated them.

Q. So that there was no connection between his placing the proxy in the hands of Mr. Morgan to vote his stock and his appointment as a director upon the board of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific?

A. Not the slightest. I testified already that my recollection 540 is that Mr. Bacon said that Mr. Morgan should be entirely free to act, and that Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff, or Mr. anybody else's name should not be considered.

Q. And there was no connection whatever between Mr. Harriman's placing the proxy to vote his stock in the hands of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and Mr. Harriman's subsequent election to the board of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. Not the slightest.

Q. Nor any connection between the placing of the proxy for his stock in the hands of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and his selection for the directorate of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company? 541

A. Not the slightest.

Q. His appointments and elections to all three of those roads came about without any agreement or understanding on the part of anybody that they should come. That is correct, is it?

A. That is correct, except that there was an agreement it should be left to Mr. Morgan, and Mr. Morgan made the selection. 542

Q. I understand; but the actual selection had no connection whatever with any prior understanding or agreement?

A. No agreement or understanding of any kind.

Q. Mr. Hill, at and prior to May 9, 1901, did you know that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company had, in fact, projected extensive lines of railway; that is, that it had contemplated extending its lines into what was known or supposed to be Union Pacific territory?

A. I did not. I knew that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Company had made their surveys and was credited with 543 making others; but I didn't know that it was contemplating the construction of lines into California or elsewhere.

Q. Was it generally supposed, or was it a matter of public knowledge prior to May 9, 1901, that the Burlington Railroad Company was then intending to extend its lines into some of what is known as Union Pacific territory? I am not asking about the fact, but was that generally understood to be the case?

A. I had no understanding or knowledge, but I asked the questions of the president or chairman of the Burlington; I asked the question of Mr. Perkins, the chairman of the Bur- 544 lington board, and Mr. Perkins told me they had made a number of surveys to know where they might go, but they had no work immediately contemplated. I knew also from some time before Mr. Perkins came to see me to know if I would join him in buying control of the Oregon and Navigation during the time the Union Pacific was being reorganized and before they acquired it. I had some knowledge as to what was the plan of the Burlington property and people.

545 Q. Has the Burlington Railway Company which, so far as operating roads or extending lines is concerned, has succeeded the railroad company—has it at the present time under construction any of the lines that are supposed to be projected during the summer of 1901?

A. It hasn't any lines under construction that I know of. There was a short piece running southwest from Sheridan, and I believe that has been completed.

Q. Mr. Hill, has there since May 9, 1901, been, to your knowledge, any actual abandonment by the Chicago, Burlington 546 and Quincy Railroad Company or the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company of construction of extensions?

A. None whatever.

Q. And there are at the present time, so far as you know, no extensions contemplated?

A. None. It has some very heavy improvements contemplated, but no extensions.

Q. I am speaking about extensions of its railway.

A. Of new railroad?

Q. Yes.

547 A. No extensions contemplated that I know of.

Q. And is it true, Mr. Hill, that from May 9 down to the present time there has been no agreement or understanding of any kind between the Union Pacific and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company or the railroad company and the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern with reference to the policies of the respective roads touching one another?

A. The construction of lines or competing lines?

Q. Yes; I will ask you that first with respect to constructing parallel or competing lines.

548 A. No such understanding.

Q. Or extensions?

A. There is an extension contemplated in the Snake River country which would be made jointly.

Q. By what roads?

A. By the Navigation Company and the Northern Pacific.

Q. And for the joint benefit of both roads?

A. Well, the situation is a peculiar one. There is a very deep gorge. One company owns one end of it and the other company the other, and there is a piece not completed in the middle, and it would benefit the situation and make it easier for everybody, for the railroads and the public, if the line was completed through. I think Mr. Mellen is here, and he can throw more light on that subject than I can, but I think—I have never seen the country—but I think it is a desirable thing to do for the benefit of the people, particularly those that live at the upper end of the valley. 549

Q. And for the joint benefit of both roads?

A. Well, it would be for the benefit of the country. It would save the people living at the upper end of the valley from going 100 or 150 miles out of the way. 550

Q. We will assume it is primarily for the benefit of the people, but was there some incidental benefit to be derived by the two roads?

A. It would certainly benefit both roads.

Q. I didn't know but that was a clear case of public benefaction.

A. Oh, no; the public wil' always benefit by a railroad.

Q. And vice versa, I suppose, Mr. Hill?

A. Yes, sir. 551

Q. Now, excepting that, Mr. Hill, there is no understanding and has been no understanding or agreement of any kind between the Union Pacific and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy system and the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern?

A. That covers all.

Q. With reference to the construction of extensions and new lines, etc.?

A. No lines abandoned and no lines opened up.

Q. And there has been no agreement or understanding of any kind between those different roads with reference to the policies of the different roads to one another? 552

A. Territorial matter?

Q. Yes.

A. No, none in regard to territorial matters.

Q. Is there at the present time, and has there been since the summer of 1901, what you would call a better understanding between these roads?

553 A. Since the visit of the Interstate Commerce Committee to the West I think there is an effort to maintain rates.

Q. You think that is entirely due to the visit of the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. I wouldn't say that; it might be due to a fear that the law would be enforced against them. That applies mainly to points between the Missouri River and Chicago. My information is somewhat limited.

Q. If you will pardon me, I want to get through—let us go back. I am not speaking so much of the present time as I am 554 with reference to the deal of last summer. I want to know if, as a result of the conferences between the different roads and the negotiations that were had and the changes made in stock, and the placing of Mr. Harriman on the directorate of the different railway companies, I want to know if, as a result of that, there is any better understanding between the Union Pacific and the Burlington, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern?

A. That was simply a matter of the stockholders, and Mr. Morgan was selected by the Union Pacific interests. They 555 said if the strain was relieved that they were satisfied to put their proxy in Mr. Morgan's hands. That was for the purpose of relieving the strained situation in the money markets, and that is all there was of it. Now, as to any agreement in regard to territory or operation, or the relation between the roads covering the business or their interests with the public, there wasn't anything of the kind, directly or indirectly.

Q. Let me call your attention to my question, and see if you will answer that directly.

Mr. KELLOGG. I thought that was a pretty direct answer.
556 Sometimes it happens that lawyers on different sides do not look at things in the same way.

Q. I want to know, Mr. Hill, if as a result of the conferences and negotiations and sales of stock that you have described during the summer and fall of 1901, and the placing of the proxy by Mr. Harriman in the hands of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., about seventy-eight millions of the stock, which was a controlling interest in the stock of the Northern Pacific, and the placing of Mr. Harriman upon the board of directors of the railroad company, and upon the board of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and also, later on, placing him as a director upon the Northern Securities Company, which now holds practically all the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company and a large part of the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, has resulted in a better understanding between these roads as to the policies to be pursued?

Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, and of the 557

A. Nothing whatever. The making of Mr. Harriman a director of these companies was considered by neither company, acted upon by neither company, but was solely a matter of the 558 shareholders. As far as Mr. Morgan was concerned, Mr. Morgan had a right under Mr. Harriman's proxy or agreement to select the directors for the Northern Pacific, and I think that there was much weight given by him in selecting Mr. Harriman, to the fact that he wanted to show Mr. Harriman that he was not taking any advantage of him, or was afraid of him, or suspected him.

Q. You have explained that to my entire satisfaction, but what I am trying to get at is, what has all of these various things that you have described, and this interchange of confer- 559 ences between the Harriman faction and the Hill-Morgan faction resulted in? I want to know if it has resulted in a better understanding between the Union Pacific Railroad and the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway system, as the policies of those roads effect one another.

A. I don't know that there is any difference in the understanding or policy of the roads affecting each other to-day than there was last year or any previous year.

Q. So that these various things that have come along, these 560 different developments with regard to the Harriman interests, his sale of the stock to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., and his final exchange, which resulted in the exchange of that stock into the Northern Securities Company, and his appointment upon the Northern Pacific board, and his appointment on the board of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company and railroad companies. They have simply been acts of Mr. Morgan's to show his confidence in Mr. Harriman, and to show him also that he is not afraid of him upon these boards?

561 A. I am not able to testify as to Mr. Morgan's object or reasons further than I have stated.

Q. I thought you had stated pretty fully, Mr. Hill, what he did it for. I understand you to give your explanation of why he did it.

A. I made my answer and it is there.

Q. I say, so far as you know, there were no other reasons than those you have given existed for these numerous acts on the part of J. Pierpont Morgan showing his confidence in Mr. Harriman?

562 A. I have answered that there was no agreement or understanding that there should be any particular change in the relations of the railroads. Now I recall attending two conferences at Mr. Harriman's request affecting the railroad situation in the Southwest, in Colorado, but I may say these are the only two conferences that I remember attending. They were to try and settle some differences between Mr. Gould and Mr. Harriman. The relations were very strained, and they were paying rebates, or it was claimed they were paying rebates, to big shippers, and doing very irregular things, and Mr. Harriman asked 563 me to come over and attend the meeting, and I attended two or three meetings with him on that ground.

Q. That was a matter in which you were not interested, either for the Northern Pacific or Great Northern?

A. No.

Q. You went in merely as a peacemaker?

A. The Burlington was interested to some extent.

Q. Oh, yes; then you went in as a party interested in the Burlington?

A. I was not an officer in the Burlington, and I said to them 564 I was not, and couldn't bind the Burlington or act for it.

Q. But you were president of a company which owned half of the stock of the Burlington?

A. But if I could do them any good I would go and hear what they had to say, and I did.

Q. Mr. W. P. Clough, who is now vice-president and director of the Northern Securities Company, was formerly a director and vice-president of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. He was for many years.

Q. And Darius Miller, who is now the general traffic man- 565 ager?

A. No; he is vice-president of the Burlington.

Q. And has he charge of the traffic department?

A. Special charge of it.

Q. Special charge of the traffic department of the Burlington system?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what office did he have with the Great Northern?

A. He was, I think, second vice-president—the Great Northern was very sorry to lose him. 566

Q. Mr. Hill, I think I barely touched on this: Do you know whether or not, prior to the organization of the Northern Securities Company, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. had contracted to sell all, or practically all of their stock or holdings in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. They had sold a portion of it.

Q. To whom?

A. To me.

Q. How much?

A. Oh, I should say ten millions. 567

Q. And how much, at the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company, did they then hold?

A. Oh, ten or eleven millions.

Q. And at that time were they, to your knowledge, under any contract or agreement to sell and dispose of that stock to anybody?

A. I don't know that there was any special contract, but they were, as I remember, willing to sell it to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Was there any general understanding, if not a special, that 568 they should turn it over to the securities company?

A. I think Mr. Morgan named a price that was higher than the price that was paid, and I told him that the securities company would not pay that price. It would pay one price to all. I think maybe Mr. Kennedy was with me at that conversation, and Mr. Morgan agreed to turn his stock in.

Q. At the price of $1.15?

A. Yes, sir.

569 Q. And was it the agreement between you and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. that you would take about ten millions, or half of their holdings yourself, if they would turn in the balance at $1.15 to the Northern Securities Company?

A. No; my agreement had nothing to do with his turning into the Northern Securities Company directly. I wanted the shares and asked him if he would sell them.

Q. The ten millions?

A. Yes; I wanted them for other friends.

Q. And that had no other connection whatever with the sub-570 sequent turning in by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. of ten or twelve millions of their stock to the Northern Securities Company?

A. I am inclined to think that the price paid for the stock and the understanding that Mr. Morgan would turn the stock into the Northern Securities Company was before I bought the large block from him.

Q. What I am getting at is, you mean to say there was no connection between your purchase absolutely of the ten millions and the turning in by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. of the ten or twelve millions into the Northern Securities Company?

571 A. None whatever. That is what I have testified to.

Q. You bought these ten millions for yourself?

A. And others.

Q. And at what price, Mr. Hill?

Mr. KELLOGG. I don't see how that is material.

A. I don't remember. I think the price was $1.15—that is what it was, I am sure.

Q. Had you purchased any stock of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. during the summer and fall of 1901, prior to the purchase of the ten millions?

572 A. Between the 1st of May and the purchase of ten millions?

Q. Yes.

A. No, sir; I had not.

Q. Had your associates?

A. Not that I know of. I don't think there is any change in his holding.

Q. I think your answer already covers it, but did you purchase this ten million of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. prior to January 1, 1902?

A. Oh, yes, sir; I think it was in August or September.

Q. Mr. Hill, I think you already testified, at least in some 573 of your explanations, that you had held a large amount of stock in the Northern Pacific since its reorganization—in March, 1896, wasn't it?

A. I don't remember, but it was reorganized in 1896. I think possibly before; I think myself and three others had about three millions invested in it before the actual reorganization; the old securities.

Q. And subsequent to the reorganization you purchased in the neighborhood of twenty-six millions?

A. I think twenty-six or twenty-seven millions. 574

Q. And on whose behalf did you purchase that stock? On your own or on behalf of the Great Northern?

A. As individuals; the Great Northern had nothing to do with it.

Q. And did the Great Northern have anything to do with the financing of the deal?

A. Not a dollar.

Q. Did you pay $26,000,000 for that stock?

A. No, sir; we didn't.

Q. You and three of your associates carried that stock prac- 575 tically all the time?

A. No, sir.

Q. How long did you carry it?

A. We carried bonds until the company was reorganized, and then we got stocks as security from the reorganization, and, I think about a year after the close of the reorganization, I bought from the reorganization committee—maybe less than a year—from the committee what stock it held of the company. That was bought and distributed at once between myself and seven or eight others, and I think I have given the names of 576 those who were associated with me, and Jacob Schiff and Col. Oliver Paine will appear as associates in that transaction.

Q. In the spring of 1901, I think, you testified either here or before the Interstate Commerce Commission, that you held about seven million and a half par value of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. That was my individual holding.

577 Q. And you were the largest individual holder of stock in that company?

A. I think I was.

Q. And that is a part of the stock which you got as you have just described?

A. Some; but some was acquired afterwards. Some of it was acquired subsequently.

Q. You sold and bought back other stock at different times?

A. Yes.

Q. I will revert to the Burlington matter for a question or 578 two, Mr. Hill. At the time you commenced negotiations with the executive committee of the Burlington Railroad Company, or at any time during these negotiations with them, did they at any time represent to you that they controlled any particular portion of the stock of that road—that they owned or controlled it?

A. The executive committee?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. They didn't profess to act for any particular holding of stock; they were strongly of the impression, and so represented 579 to me, that their shareholders would largely be governed by their recommendation, and subsequently that was the case.

Q. From the time you commenced negotiations in January, 1901, with the trustees or executive committee of the Burlington Railroad Company up to the time these negotiations were concluded, was the Burlington stock—that is, the railroad company's stock—being sold and dealt in in the open markets?

A. That was the case, and I recollect at the time there was quite a marked variation in the price up and down.

580 Q. And what was the highest price that you can now recall and for which the Burlington Railroad Company's stock was sold or purchased in the open market?

A. I couldn't recall. Probably one hundred seventy-five or eighty.

Q. Not exceeding one hundred eighty?

A. It might have been, but I don't recollect—something in that neighborhood. However, I don't concern myself particularly with the market price of the stock.

Q. Isn't it a fact, after you commenced your negotiations 581 with the executive committee of the Burlington Railroad Company that there were large sales and purchases of the railroad company's stock in the open market at from one hundred fifty to one hundred sixty-five, varying along from time to time?

A. My understanding at the time was that there was somewhere between ten and fifteen millions of the Burlington stock that might be considered for sale in the market, but the great bulk of the stock was held by investors and men who paid no attention to the market. I knew the market price of the Burlington stock and that seeking to buy it in the market would 582 accomplish nothing.

Q. The directors of the Burlington Railroad Company and the members of the executive committee with which you were dealing, of course, owned some stock, didn't they?

A. I remember the chairman of the executive committee of the Burlington trustees, Mr. Hunniwell, said to me that his father, and I think he said himself and his father, were more interested, and had larger holdings of the Great Northern than they had of Burlington, although Mr. Hunniwell was the hardest man to agree with in the entire board. 583

Q. Well, Mr. Hill, I am afraid you are not answering my question.

A. I am trying to, sir.

Q. I will have to put it again. I want to know if at the time you were dealing with the executive committee you had any knowledge or were given any information as to the holdings of the members of the board and of the executive committee; if you had any information given you as to the approximate amount of their holdings?

A. I think Mr. Perkins was the largest holder, and he held 584 less than two millions; that he was the largest holder of Burlington stock on the list of stockholders.

Q. That is a partial answer, Mr. Hill.

A. That is as far as my knowledge goes.

Q. Then so far as the balance of them was concerned, I understand you to say that you had never known; that you had no information whatever or any knowledge as to even the approximate amount of their holdings.

585 A. None as to their holdings. They gave me information as to where the stock was held largely. I remember their saying that they had, I think, 1,500 shareholders who held less than 5 shares each. The stock was very widely distributed.

Q. Then at the time you started in with your negotiations with the executive committee, this stock was scattered all over this country, in the hands of some 18,000 or 19,000 stockholders?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at the time you commenced your negotiations with 586 the executive committee you were given no information or any assurances by that committee as to any particular amount that could be immediately controlled?

A. That is a different question entirely.

Q. That is what I am getting at.

A. I was given to understand by the executive committee that their recommendation would be accepted, at least they felt that it would be very generally accepted by the stockholders of the Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company.

Q. Now, how was the price of the Burlington Railroad Com-587 pany's stock in your deal, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific deal—how was that price fixed upon? Who suggested that?

A. The matter was the subject of negotiation on several occasions. The books or transcripts of the accounts were produced, showing its earnings—the income—I remember its income as shown was $10,400,000, including the sinking fund, and that was over 10 per cent on the outstanding stock at that time, or about 10 per cent. The Burlington road had a very heavy sinking fund; for many years the miles of main track—something 588 over 8,000—had a bonded debt, less the sinking fund, of about $15,800 a mile, and stock was about $13,000 a mile. Take the Burlington stock at 200 and add to it the bonded debt per mile of the road and it would give the average cost of the Burlington about $42,000 a mile, which was about what it cost us; that is $10,000 or $12,000 a mile less than any of these granger roads are selling at on the market. In other words, the Burlington was the cheapest property altogether, and reached the points we desired to reach and it would cost us less money per mile than it would to have acquired any other.

Q. And you agreed on $200 per share as the actual value of 589 the road?

A. Yes.

Q. Although that was 20 or 30 points higher than the market value?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Hill, did you know that as a result of your negotiations with the executive committee of the Burlington Railroad that a pool was formed to buy up the stock and that it did actually buy up a large amount of stock of the Burlington road which finally went into this deal? 590

A. I didn't know that, and I don't know it now. Never heard of it before and don't believe it is true. I know that the officers, Mr. Perkins and Mr. Harris, told me, not together, but separately; Mr. Perkins told me that he was a trustee and that he would not buy a share. Mr. Harris, the president of the company, told me that Mr. Perkins had said to him: "Harris, ordinarily I am glad to see you getting as large interests as you can pay for in the Burlington, but at this time you are president of the company—don't speculate in its shares." Now, under these circumstances I don't think either of those men were con- 591 cerned in any such pool. I think the information you have is wrong. I had no such information or knowledge.

Q. I am not asking you to argue the case; I am asking you for your information.

A. I will apologize for arguing it.

Q. There is no occasion for apology, but I am simply asking you so far as you know, no pool was formed?

A. I don't know of any pool, and I don't believe there was any.

Q. At the time of the consummation of that deal, the stock- 592 holders had an option to take joint bonds of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, and turn in their stock on the basis of one share of the Burlington stock for twice its face in these joint bonds?

A. Yes.

Q. Or they could take 20 per cent in cash and bonds for the balance, or they could take their cash?

593 A. I don't recollect the terms of the circular. It was a public matter, and I have not charged myself with the conditions. I suppose the circular could be found, and it would be much better.

Q. Wasn't it in the alternative in that way?

A. I think there was an alternative, but as to the proportions, I don't recollect.

Q. Who financed that deal?

A. Morgan & Co.

Q. J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., of New York?

A. Yes.

594 Q. They furnished whatever money was necessary, or might be necessary, to carry through that deal?

A. Well, there was an underwriting party, who furnished the money.

Q. Who was that; a large number?

A. Yes; I think they invited others, as is customary——

Q. Were you a party to that underwriting?

A. I think I was a party to it, and through me several others.

Q. Of your friends and associates?

A. Yes; I don't know that I held any of the underwriting 595 for myself. I know some of it was offered to me, and I think I turned it over to a number of my friends.

Q. And was that underwriting executed to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. Yes; they would issue the underwriting, similar to the underwriting circular of yesterday.

Mr. KELLOGG. I don't think we wish to ask any questions now.

Mr. GROVER. We ought to have the testimony written out if there is time, and if we want to examine, then we can examine.

596 Mr. LANCASTER. That will be satisfactory.

CHARLES S. MELLEN, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows in answer to questions propounded by Mr. Lancaster:

Q. You are the president of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I am.

Q. And have been for how long?

A. Since the 1st of September, 1897.

Q. You are a member of the board of directors of that company? 597

A. I am.

Q. And have been for how long?

A. Since I was elected president.

Q. In 1897?

A. Yes.

Q. And since your election you have resided in St. Paul?

A. Yes.

Q. And reside there now?

A. Yes. 598

Q. We have introduced this map in evidence, and I will ask you a few things in reference to the Northern Pacific line. What are the eastern termini of the Northern Pacific system?

A. Ashland, Superior——

Q. In the State of Wisconsin?

A. Yes. Superior, Duluth, Stillwater, St. Paul, and Minneapolis.

Q. And what are the western termini?

A. Portland, Oreg.; Tacoma, Seattle. There are various points known as western termini—that is, that take terminal 599 rates, but those are the main termini.

Q. I am speaking of the actual termini. The terminal rates are rather fictitious—that is, when you speak of the termini in that sense it is arbitrary.

A. Well, I think the answer to that question is fairly stated by Portland, Tacoma, and Seattle.

Q. That is what I mean, the actual points on the Western slope.

A. Well, our lines go farther west than that, but those are generally considered the termini. 600

Q. And you have a line running from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Duluth and West Superior?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have a line running westward to Moorhead and Fargo, Moorhead in this State and Fargo in North Dakota?

A. Yes.

Q. And to Grand Forks, in North Dakota, and East Grand Forks, in Minnesota?

A. Yes.

601 Q. And you have a line running also westward to Breckenridge, in the State of Minnesota?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have a line to Morris, in the State of Minnesota?

A. Yes.

Q. You have no lines south of that?

A. No.

Q. The general direction of your main lines westward is through the States of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, and Washington?

602 A. That is the general course.

Q. Are those lines of the Northern Pacific and the lines of the Great Northern, for a large part of the territory through which they run and to many of the points which they reach, parallel and competing lines?

A. They are.

Q. And with reference to the State of Minnesota, Mr. Mellen, are not the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern lines almost generally parallel and competing lines?

Mr. KELLOGG. Do you mean all of the lines?

603 Mr. LANCASTER. Practically all of them.

A. Many of the lines are parallel and competing.

Q. From what State does the wheat shipments come into the State of Minnesota and West Superior in Wisconsin?

A. Over the Northern Pacific?

Q. Over both lines.

A. Over the Northern Pacific they come from North Dakota and from the province of Manitoba and from points within the State of Minnesota.

Q. And on the Great Northern?

604 A. Well, they come from the same States, and from others.

Q. That is, they come some from South Dakota?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also some from Manitoba, on the Great Northern?

A. I would not say as to Manitoba.

Q. As to a very large percentage of the wheat shipments from the West to Duluth and West Superior, and to Minneapolis and St. Paul, are not the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern parallel and competing lines?

A. In the transportation of wheat?

Q. Yes. 605

A. Yes, they are.

Mr. KELLOGG. I suppose the same understanding may be had as to his testimony, that all of it is considered as objected to as irrelevant and immaterial, and for the reason that the complaint does not state a cause of action, and it need not be repeated to each question.

Mr. LANCASTER. The same objection that you had before, Mr. Kellogg.

Q. Are you able to give us an approximation, Mr. Mellen, of the percentage of wheat shipments in which they would 606 apply?

A. It would be purely a guess.

Q. But as definite as you can make it would be to say that to a very large proportion of it those lines are competing lines for that traffic?

A. There is very active competition for a large portion of the traffic, if that is what you mean.

Q. More than half of it?

A. I wouldn't care to state a percentage.

Q. It is true, Mr. Mellen, as to a very large percentage of 607 the wheat traffic in North Dakota and Manitoba and in Minnesota?

A. I would state that as to North Dakota and Minnesota. I would not state it as to Manitoba, for I don't think there is any competition.

Q. So far as North Dakota and Minnesota are concerned, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern are, and always have been, so far as you know, competing lines?

A. Yes.

Q. And how is it, Mr. Mellen, as to general traffic from the 608 western coast eastward, and from the east westward?

A. There is active competition between the two lines for the business.

Q. And always has been?

A. Always has been, so far as I know.

Q. And as to practically all of the through traffic—from the western termini to the eastern termini, and vice versa—those lines are parallel and competing lines?

609 A. I wouldn't say that.

Q. I don't think I ought to say parallel. I ought to say they were competing lines.

A. I wouldn't say they were competing lines as to all the traffic. I would say they were competing lines as to a large portion.

Q. As to transportation between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and Duluth and West Superior, and as to all traffic originating in Minneapolis and St. Paul and going by way of the lakes eastward, are the two lines, the Northern Pacific and Great North-610 ern, competing lines?

A. There is active competition between the head of the lakes and the Twin Cities. As to the business east of there——

Q. I don't mean competition beyond those points.

A. Oh, as to business between the head of the lakes and the Twin Cities, there is active competition.

Q. Whether the freight is merely to stop at Duluth or to go on eastward?

A. Well, I think there is a distinction to be drawn there, a decided distinction. There is not such active competition 611 between the two railroads as to business that goes east that takes the steamers on the lakes. That is more a competition between the carriers on the lakes and the east.

Q. Well, is there to some extent, competition between the two lines as to that trade?

A. Why, speaking for the Northern Pacific, it forms a link in a line from which there may be competition, but the Northern Pacific interest is very small. It concerns a portion of a link of a through line on which there is competition, but the Northern Pacific interests are unimportant.

612 Q. On the shipments of coal from the east to Minneapolis and St. Paul, and points west of us, are not the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway lines competing ones?

A. They compete for coal between the head of the lakes and those cities, certainly.

Q. Mr. Mellen, please take this book I now show you. I would like you to give a list of the present directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

A. The present directors of the Northern Pacific are George

F. Baker, Edward H. Harriman, Brayton Ives, D. Willis 613
James, John S. Kennedy, Daniel S. Lamont, Charles S. Mellen, Samuel Rea, William Rockefeller, Samuel Spencer, Charles Steele, James Stillman, Eben B. Thomas, Hamilton McK. Twombly, and W. P. Clough. Mr. Clough's name is not on there.

Q. Can you, by taking that, give us the names of the directors on May 9, 1901?

A. I think so.

Q. If you will, I wish you would.

A. Edward D. Adams, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, 614
Dumont Clark, Robert M. Galloway, Brayton Ives, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, Daniel S. Lamont, Charles S. Mellen, Walter G. Oakman, Samuel Spencer, Charles Steele, James Stillman, and Eben B. Thomas.

Q. Subsequent to May 9, 1901, did any of the directors resign, that is, before the annual meeting in October?

A. There did, several.

Q. And will you give us the names of those, Mr. Mellen?

A. The following resigned July 23, 1901: Edward D. Adams, Dumont Clark, Robert M. Galloway, Walter G. Oakman, and 615
Samuel Spencer.

Q. Do you know the circumstances under which those gentlemen resigned?

A. Only by hearsay. I received their resignations and presented them to the board for acceptance. There were no reasons given.

Q. And of your own knowledge, Mr. Mellen——

A. I only have the same knowledge that you have—what I have seen through the public press.

Q. And of your own knowledge you do not know the reasons 616 for their resignation?

A. Only as I have learned it through the public press.

Mr. KELLOGG. You don't know of your own knowledge?

Mr. LANCASTER. That is a satisfactory answer and entirely so. Those resignations were in writing?

A. I think so. I have the impression that they were, but I am uncertain regarding one. I have the impression that Mr. Spencer was present and resigned in person.

617 Q. And was the meeting at which the resignations were presented held in New York?

A. It was.

Q. And were you present?

A. I was.

Q. And at that meeting certain directors were elected to take the places of those resigned?

A. They were.

Q. And for the sake of clearness I wish you would give us the names now, so we may have them in the record, right before 618 us, of those who took the place of those who resigned.

A. I can not give you the names of the ones who took the places seriatim, but I can give you the names of the five.

Q. Certainly; what I mean is how many were there resigned?

A. Five.

Q. Now, can you give me the names of the five who were elected at that meeting to take their places?

A. I can and will. The men who were elected July 23, 1901, were: Edward H. Harriman, James J. Hill, Samuel Rea, William Rockefeller, and Hamilton McK. Twombly.

619 Q. Now, can you state, Mr. Mellen, when James J. Hill resigned from the board of directors?

A. I can approximately.

Q. Well, that is near enough.

A. On or about November 13, 1901.

Q. It must have been after the 13th, wasn't it?

A. It was on or about that time, and it may have been—the resignation may have been—a day or two later, probably was; but I fix it on or about that time, because that was the only meeting I recall of his having attended—November 13. He 620 resigned about that time, I don't think at that meeting, but within a day or so.

Q. I want to fix it that it must have been either at that meeting or subsequent to the meeting.

A. I think it was subsequent to the meeting, but only a day or so. That is my recollection.

Q. And that meeting of the directors, Mr. Mellen, to which you refer, of November 13, 1901, was held after the annual meeting of the stockholders?

A. My impression is that was the first meeting after the annual meeting and was the meeting for organization. 621

Q. And at the annual meeting of the stockholders held in October, that was, wasn't it, Mr. Mellen?

A. Yes; I think so.

Q. Mr. Hill was elected, among others, a director, was he not?

A. I so understand it. But I was not present at the annual meeting of the stockholders.

Q. Now, after Mr. Hill's resignation, who was elected to take his place? 622

A. Mr. W. P. Clough.

Q. Mr. Clough had previously resigned as a director of the Great Northern Railway Company, had he not?

A. Well, that I could not say. I only know as Mr. Hill made the statement here.

Mr. GROVER. That is the fact.

Mr. KELLOGG. That is the fact.

Mr. LANCASTER. May we have that as an admission, that W. P. Clough had previously resigned as a director of the Great Northern Railway Company and was elected by the board of directors subsequent to November 13, 1901, as a director of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to take the place of Mr. James J. Hill, resigned? 623

MR. KELLOGG. Yes; he resigned as a director and officer.

Mr. LANCASTER. May it also be taken as an admission here, to save us proving it, otherwise, that Mr. W. P. Clough, prior to November 13, 1901, had been a vice-president and director and officer of the Great Northern road for several years?

Mr. GROVER. Yes.

Q. Mr. Mellen, can you give us the names of the executive officers of the Northern Pacific Railway Company? 624

A. I am president; Daniel S. Lamont, vice-president; Henry A. Gray, comptroller; Charles A. Clark, treasurer; George H. Earle, secretary and assistant treasurer; Richard H. Relf, assistant secretary; Francis Lynde Stetson, general counsel in New York; Charles W. Bunn, general counsel in St. Paul. Those are the executive officers.

Q. Where are the principal offices of the Northern Pacific Railway Company kept and maintained, Mr. Mellen?

625 A. In St. Paul.

Q. Where are the records of the company kept?

A. At the secretary's office in New York—secretary and assistant treasurer, Mr. Earle.

Q. And does the company maintain an independent office in New York City?

A. It does; at 49 Wall street.

Q. And Mr. Earle has entire charge of the office there?

A. No; the vice-president, Daniel S. Lamont, has general charge.

626 Q. But Mr. Earle, as secretary and assistant treasurer——

A. Has charge of matters within the province of those duties.

Q. And I understand these records of the stockholders' meetings and the records of the directors' meetings are kept by Mr. Earle?

A. In New York?

Q. In the New York office?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you duplicates of those records in your St. Paul office?

627 A. I have.

Q. Of the stockholders' meetings and also the directors' meetings?

A. I won't say as to the stockholders, but of the directors, yes. I am of the impression we have the stockholders, but I am not sure.

Q. And those are in the possession and custody of the assistant secretary, Mr. Relf?

A. They are.

Q. Where are the stock books kept?

628 A. They are kept in New York.

Q. All the stock is registered and transferred on the books of the company in New York?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have duplicates?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you have not exactly a duplicate, but do you keep any record of the transfers, a duplicate record in St. Paul?

A. Absolutely none.

Q. So that both the stock books, the certificate books, and the 629 stock ledgers are kept in New York?

A. They are.

Q. And you have no minutes or duplicate copies, or anything of the kind, in St Paul?

A. Absolutely none.

Q. Mr. Mellen, did you have anything to do with the negotiations leading up to the purchase by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company of the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. I did not. 630

Q. Did you participate in any of the conferences or negotiations leading up to such purchase?

A. To the best of my recollection I did not.

Q. Were you consulted by anybody with reference to such purchase?

A. I knew of such negotiations being in progress and was asked my opinion regarding certain features, like the value of the property, and so forth, which I gave.

Q. What individuals, to your knowledge, Mr. Mellen, had these negotiations in charge, representing the Northern Pacific 631 and the Great Northern?

A. I think it was handled by the Northern Pacific through its executive committee.

Q. Will you give us the names of the executive committee?

A. I have given them.

Q. I don't think I asked you that.

Mr. KELLOGG. Yes, you did, and he gave them.

Mr. BOUTELL. That was the executive officers.

Mr. KELLOGG. Oh, I guess you didn't.

A. The executive committee now and the executive commit- 632 tee at the time of the negotiation are different.

Q. Give me the executive committee as it was, please.

A. On what date in particular?

Q. From January 1, 1901, on until the purchase.

A. From January 1 until July 1? Is that late enough?

Q. Yes.

A. From January 1 to July 1 the executive committee were: Edward D. Adams, Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, Brayton

633 Ives, and Eben B. Thomas, with the president ex officio, and in his absence the vice-president.

Q. Who conducted the negotiations on the part of the Great Northern?

A. I don't know. I have only general information. I have no personal knowledge.

Q. You say that you were consulted with reference to the value of the Burlington. By whom?

A. By the members of my executive committee.

Q. Do you know when that purchase was definitely decided 634 upon by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern?

A. Only as I attended the meeting of the directors wherein the purchase was approved.

Q. And was that matter laid before the board of directors at a meeting which you attended?

A. It was.

Q. And when was that?

A. Well, I am a little confused as to dates, but my impression is some time in April, 1901.

Mr. GROVER. It was before the 4th of April.

635 A. It may have been, but it was on or about that time. I wouldn't say it was not the 31st of March, nor the 1st of April, but it was about the 1st of April.

Q. At that time had the negotiations proceeded so far that a definite proposition had been received from the executive committee of the Burlington road?

A. I can not say that there was any definite proposition from anybody to sell the stock of the Burlington road laid before the board. If I recall correctly, the proposition before the board was whether they should buy the Burlington stock at a price 636 mentioned, but what authority the proposition to buy had that it would be accepted, I did not know then and I do not know now.

Q. Was there any written report submitted to the board of directors at that meeting?

A. There was a typewritten memorandum submitted which was in the form of a preamble and a resolution of authority.

Q. Well, Mr. Mellen, at that time you presided at that meeting?

A. I did.

Q. And at that time did you understand that a definite 637 proposition had been made by the trustees or the executive committee of the Burlington road to the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific as to the precise terms upon which that stock could be obtained by the latter roads?

A. I did not understand there was a definite proposition from the Burlington road. I did understand that if the Northern Pacific undertook to buy in connection with the Great Northern stock of the Burlington road at the price named, the executive committee of the Burlington road would recommend to its stockholders that they accept such price. 638

Q. Now, that matter was submitted to the board of directors in the form of a typewritten preamble and resolution, was it not?

A. To the best of my recollection, yes. All of our business is handled in that way. It is prepared so as to detain the directors as little time as possible.

Q. ———

A. I wasn't attaching any particular importance to the manner at all.

Q. Up to the time of that meeting in April, 1901, had you 639 known anything of the negotiations?

A. Yes, by conference with my executive committee.

Q. Did you recommend and approve of that purchase, Mr. Mellen?

A. I did.

Q. I mean at the meeting; and voted for it?

A. I recommended it both as a director, stockholder, and president, and voted for it.

Mr. LANCASTER. Is there any objection to our offering in evidence the fifth annual report of the Northern Pacific as 640 Exhibit H?

Mr. KELLOGG. No; subject to the objection that it is irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. LANCASTER. We will offer it in evidence.

Q. Mr. Mellen, that deal with the Burlington was concluded on or before the 1st of July, 1901, was it not?

A. I think so, substantially.

641 Q. And, as a matter of fact, it was concluded very shortly after this meeting to which you refer, wasn't it?

A. No; I don't understand it. The meeting to which I refer, on or about the 1st of April, was a meeting practically to confer authority by the Northern Pacific to make a trade which was made subsequently.

Q. But it was actually made very shortly afterwards, wasn't it?

A. That depends on what you would call making a trade. The bonds were not delivered, I think, until some time in Sep-642 tember, all of them.

Q. But the terms were agreed upon very shortly after that meeting, were not they?

A. I think so.

Q. And the matter concluded as rapidly as possible?

A. Yes.

Q. So that you knew, in fact, prior to May 9, 1901, that the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern had practically closed that deal, and either had or would get possession of practically all of the stock of the Burlington Railroad Company?

643 A. I expected they would.

Q. I mean by that that the negotiations had proceeded to that point where it was a practical certainty that they would go through?

A. So far as the committees were concerned, yes; but the action of the committee was dependent upon the deposit of the stock, and my impression is there was a later date set than May 9 within which the stock was to be deposited; or in case a sufficient amount was not deposited, the trade fell through.

Q. Did you, Mr. Mellen, of your own knowledge, at any 644 time, know of the request on the part of Mr. Harriman, representing the Union Pacific, to be allowed to join in the purchase of those bonds?

A. I did not. I knew nothing of it.

Q. Was such a request reported to you at that time?

A. Not at that time.

Q. Was it later?

A. Only as I have gathered it from the Interstate Commerce Commission reports and Mr. Hill's testimony there and Mr. Harriman's.

Q. You have never received any notice of it officially? 645

A. It never reached me officially in any way.

Q. Were you in New York during the week of May 9, 1901?

A. No; I left there the Sunday night before May 9, for St. Paul.

Q. And were you there a few days after May 9?

A. No; I don't think I was in New York again until the June meeting. I was in St. Paul May 9, I know.

Q. Did you attend any of the conferences held between Mr. Hill and Mr. Harriman, either at Mr. Harriman's office or J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.'s offices, or Kuhn, Loeb & Co.'s 646 offices, or anywhere else, which resulted in the giving by Mr. Harriman of a proxy to J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. to vote his stock in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. To the best of my knowledge I did not attend any such conferences.

Q. And do you have now any present recollection of taking any part in the negotiations by which that result was obtained?

A. I feel confident that I had no part in any of those negotiations.

Q. And were you in New York during the time such nego- 647 tiations were going on?

A. To the best of my recollection I was not.

Q. When did you first learn of the deposit by Mr. Harriman of the proxy to vote his stock with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

A. Well, it was a few days before the annual meeting, I think. It is my custom to attend the directors' meeting, which occurred the second Wednesday in each month, and my recollection would be that I was in New York about the second Wednesday in October and learned before I left there. I left before the annual meeting. The annual meeting was October 648 1, was it not, this year?

Q. I don't know just what date it was.

A. I know at the time I was there, prior to the annual meeting, I was told by one of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. that they had Mr. Harriman's proxy; that Mr. Harriman had turned in his proxy.

Q. Were you in New York the 23d of July, 1901?

A. Yes.

649 Q. And that was the meeting at which five directors resigned and at which five were elected?

A. Yes.

Q. Did J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., or did J. Pierpont Morgan individually, or any one representing him, name those directors or nominate them?

A. Not to me.

Q. Did you understand that J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. suggested those names and requested the other directors to elect them?

650 A. It was my general understanding, but not the result of anything any member of the firm told me.

Q. You understood that those gentlemen's names whom you have given as having been elected on that day, among the number James J. Hill and E. H. Harriman, had been suggested and approved by J. Pierpont Morgan?

A. I did.

Q. And you voted for them upon the understanding that that was satisfactory to J. Pierpont Morgan's interests?

A. No, I voted for them for they were entirely satisfactory 651 to me and no objection.

Q. Do you mean to say that you had no conference with J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. or any of the parties with reference to the selection of those names?

A. I mean to say exactly that.

Q. How long before the meeting of July 23, 1901, did you know that those names would be presented?

A. About fifteen minutes before the meeting was assembled; it might have been five.

Q. That came to you absolutely as a new proposition at that 652 meeting?

A. The package for the meeting was laid in front of me, and in opening the package I found the resignation of the directors and I presented the resignations to the board. I forget who nominated. As each resignation was accepted a nomination was made for the vacancy and the question was put and they were elected.

Q. And there was no opposition to any?

A. Not the slightest.

Q. Had you seen a list of the names of those who were 653 nominated in that way?

A. I had not.

Q. Previous to the meeting?

A. No.

Q. You understood that there was some reason for the resignation of those five men and some reason for the election and appointment of those to take their place?

A. I read the newspapers regularly, and I saw this was in the newspapers.

Q. In the management and control of the affairs of the 654
Northern Pacific and in the election of the directors of that company, do you get your information from the newspapers to the point of governing your conduct by them?

A. My conduct was not affected at all by the information in the newspapers.

Q. You didn't vote for those men on the supposition that they were hostile to the interests which previous to that time had controlled the destinies of the Northern Pacific?

A. I voted for these men because I considered them excellent men for the position and I couldn't find any reasonable objec- 655 tion to urge against their election.

Q. And that could have been said of hundreds of other names?

A. And I undoubtedly might have voted for a hundred others had they been proposed and been equally unobjectionable.

Q. Did you at that time know who suggested those names?

A. Why, I had read the newspapers.

Q. Did you learn that from anybody else?

A. Only general talk.

Q. General talk with whom? 656

A. Everybody.

Q. Including J. Pierpont Morgan?

A. No; I don't think I met him at all.

Q. Did you meet his partners?

A. Why, they were members of the board and present at the meeting, two of them.

Q. Is it not true that at that time you had learned of a truce between the Harriman and the Hill-Morgan interests and the 657 fact that Mr. Morgan was to nominate the directors of the Northern Pacific Railway?

A. I read it in the newspapers.

Q. Hadn't you learned it anywhere else?

A. I had had no official information of any description, except what I got through the press and by talking with Colonel Lamont and other people whom I came in contact with.

Q. You voted for those five names that were nominated in the way you have detailed strictly upon their merits and without any previous understanding?

658 A. I had no understanding.

Q. Wait a moment. You have already testified to that, and I say you voted for them strictly upon their merits individually, without reference to any understanding that they had been suggested by J. Pierpont Morgan?

A. I think I know what you want, and I am perfectly willing to state that I supposed they were nominated by Mr. Morgan; I hadn't the slightest doubt of it, but I didn't know anything about it. Nobody told me that fact.

Q. Well, you relied upon the information that you got from 659 the newspapers, did you, Mr. Mellen?

A. I don't think I did.

Q. You were not, of course, a mind reader?

A. Not exactly, but I voted for those men because there was no objection to them, and because I generally understood that they had been nominated in accordance with the newspaper reports by Mr. Morgan, and there seemed to be no objection on the part of anybody to their election, and there was none on my part.

Q. The partners of J. Pierpont Morgan, at least one of them, 660 were present and taking part in the proceedings of the board?

A. I am pretty sure there were, but the record would show better than my memory.

Q. There were at that time two partners of Mr. Morgan?

A. Yes, sir; Mr. Bacon and Mr. Steele.

Q. James J. Hill never had been a director of the Northern Pacific?

A. Not till that day.

Q. He was at that time president of the Great Northern 661
Railway Company?

A. He was.

Q. At that time did you know that, under the laws of the State of Minnesota, he was not eligible as a director of the Northern Pacific?

Mr. KELLOGG. That is objected to; he is not a judge of the laws of the State of Minnesota.

Mr. LANCASTER. I don't ask him to be. I ask him whether or not he did know of such a law in the State of Minnesota.

Mr. KELLOGG. I object to it. He may have known what 662 the statute was, if he ever read it. What the law is is a question for the court and not for Mr. Mellen to decide.

A. I was advised after the meeting that he was ineligible. Indeed, he told me so himself.

Mr. KELLOGG. He declined to serve?

A. He said he should decline to serve.

Q. But he lingered until fall?

A. He didn't attend any meeting until November 13, after he had been elected by the stockholders.

Q. It was certainly a radical change in the policy of the 663
Northern Pacific Railway Company up to that time, was it not, to place on the board the head and front of its chief rival?

A. It was certainly the first time to my knowledge that the president of the Great Northern had been a director of the Northern Pacific.

Q. You knew at that time that Mr. Harriman was the head and front of the Union Pacific interests, did you not?

A. I so understood it.

Q. And his name was among the list nominated at that meeting? 664

A. It was.

Q. And the Union Pacific was at that time a competitor of the Burlington, which your road had just purchased a half interest in?

A. The Union Pacific was a competitor of the Burlington.

Q. Well, that was a radical change in the policy of the road, was it not?

665 A. There never had been any Union Pacific man, that I was aware of, director of the Northern Pacific up to that time.

Q. The Union Pacific was also to a considerable extent a competitor of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, was it not?

A. Well, it was a part of a line that was a competitor. The Union Pacific strictly is not a competitor.

Q. Didn't it strike you as being rather a remarkable thing, Mr. Mellen, that all at once five men should resign and five put in their places and that two of them should be the leading spirits 666 in two rival lines?

A. It struck me as a very remarkable time and a time to do rather remarkable things.

Q. It struck you as a remarkable thing at a remarkable time?

A. It struck me as being a remarkable time and it was necessary to do something, and I supposed somebody had undertaken to do the best thing they could.

Q. You supposed and understood that there was a good reason for putting on the board of the Northern Pacific the 667 president and a director of the Great Northern, did you not?

A. I never gave that matter the slightest thought.

Q. Now, Mr. Mellen, shortly after that you learned that Mr. Harriman was elected a director of the Burlington Railroad, did you not?

A. In the same way I learned a lot of things, through the newspapers; I had no personal knowledge.

Q. And, later on, he was elected a director of the railway company. You learned that fact?

A. I have learned it in the testimony here.

668 Q. Mr. Mellen, are you able to give the names of the gentlemen who constituted the voting committee or the voting trust of the Burlington stock?

A. I didn't know there was any, except this agreement here which you have.

Q. There is a provision for one in there. Mr. Hill didn't know.

A. I will tell you this: I know when the annual meeting of the Burlington road occurred the question of representation of the Northern Pacific was referred to the executive committee, 669 and just what action was taken by the committee I am not certain; I don't think I was present when the matter was acted upon.

Q. Mr. Mellen, when did you first learn of any proposed action with reference to the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I have heard that discussed at various times during my whole connection with the property, but the question of the imminent retirement of it was discussed on or about the time of the dissolution of the voting trust, along, I should say, early in 670 the winter of 1901, and I can not say that it was particularly discussed then; I heard it mentioned.

Q. Well, when did you first learn of some proposed action to be taken with reference to the retirement of the preferred stock on January 1, 1902?

A. The first official information I had was, of course, the action of the board of directors. I had heard Mr. Morgan say it was going to be retired. I talked of it occasionally with various directors and asked the question if it was to be retired and if they were proposing to retire it, and the answer from all 671 sources seemed to be that it would be retired on the 1st of January.

Q. Now, at that time did you understand that there would have to be issued, in order to retire that stock, $75,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness?

A. I understood there would have to be $75,000,000 raised, and I knew there would have to be some kind of security issued to raise that money.

Q. What did you understand at that time was the particular reason for retiring that preferred stock? 672

A. It was to make the common stock more valuable and to help the corporation by getting rid of the preference which existed on the preferred.

Q. And also getting rid of Mr. Harriman?

A. I never heard that discussed.

Q. Did you hear a rumble anywhere?

A. I heard more rumbling to-day about it than ever before.

Q. Didn't you read the newspapers during that time?

673 A. Yes.

Q. And you never heard anything about it till to-day?

A. I didn't see very much in the newspapers about it.

Q. Do you mean to say that you never heard anything about that till to-day?

A. I say I heard more of it to-day than any other time and gave it more attention.

Q. You knew, Mr. Mellen, at that time that Mr. Harriman held, either in his own right or representing other interests, more than a majority of the capital stock outstanding of the 674 Northern Pacific Railway Company, didn't you?

A. I never knew how much stock Mr. Harriman or people in his interest held until the publication of the annual report of the Union Pacific disclosed the fact.

Q. And that disclosed the fact that the Union Pacific held $78,104,000?

A. Substantially that. I don't mean to be understood as having no general knowledge through the press and through hearsay and all that; I had seen a great deal in the press of claims and counterclaims as to the control of the property by 675 ownership of stock, but what the facts were I never knew.

Q. Did you learn from any source outside of the newspapers as to how much stock Mr. Hill and J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. held of the common stock?

A. Only from Mr. Hill, Mr. Harriman, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Bacon, and various people; a matter of hearsay entirely.

Q. You say you did hear from them?

A. Oh, certainly. I am in the habit of meeting them every few days.

Q. You understood that J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and Mr.
676 Hill and associates held a clear majority of the common stock?

A. I understood they claimed so.

Q. And you understood perfectly well that by the retirement of the preferred stock that Mr. Harriman and his interests would be retired from the control of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I understood the moment I learned with reasonable sureness that Mr. Morgan and his friends and Mr. Hill and his friends controlled over 40,000,000 of the common stock that they controlled the company.

Q. They didn't control the company, Mr. Mellen, until the 677 preferred stock was retired, did they?

A. Yes; but I was aware all the time from my connection with the company of the right of the company to retire the preferred stock.

Q. You understood that as a condition precedent to their controlling the road they must get rid of the preferred stock?

A. That I knew they had the power to do at any time.

Q. And you knew that in order to control the company with their 40,000,000 of common stock that they must retire the preferred? 678

A. I knew if the preferred stock was not retired it had the right to vote the same as the common.

Q. Mr. Mellen, were you consulted by anybody with reference to the retirement or the proposed retirement of the preferred stock which was to take place on January 1, 1902, previous to the meeting of the board of directors which passed the resolution?

A. I saw drafts of the resolution which were presented to the board on November 13, some time previously. I know they were submitted to me for correction and suggestion, and I knew 679 of the proposed method of raising the money for the retirement of the stock and of the offering of rights to the stockholders to subscribe for the new securities, and was conferred with. I heard that through Mr. Bacon, through Mr. Steele, through Colonel Lamont, and through Mr. Stetson, the counsel. I suppose you would call that conferring with me.

Q. You understood that the purpose of retiring the preferred stock was for the purpose of giving the common stockholders the absolute control of the company?

A. I understood that the retirement of the preferred stock was 680 for the interest of the company, and I knew necessarily the result must be that the common stock would control if the preferred stock was retired.

Q. And you understood that as a part of this transaction, and in order to finance it and carry it through, an issuance of the certificates of indebtedness to the extent of $75,000,000 by the Northern Pacific Railway Company would be necessary?

681 A. Certainly.

Q. And you understood the provisions with reference to the subscriptions for those certificates?

A. Certainly.

Q. And with reference to their being converted into common stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the provisions with reference to turning in the common stock of the Northern Pacific in exchange for Northern Securities Company stock?

682 A. I didn't know anything about that except in this general way. I had no personal knowledge. I never saw any circular. I never exchanged any stock. I have absolutely only the same knowledge that you have or any other citizen that comes in contact with people who have these transactions at heart, and through the columns of the public press.

Q. On November 13, 1901, when this meeting was held, the meeting of the board of directors approving of the retirement and authorizing the retirement of the preferred stock, didn't you know that the Northern Securities Company was organized?

683 A. On or about that time; whether it was organized then or not I can't say as to that. On or about that time I heard of it.

Q. Didn't you understand at that time that the Northern Securities Company was a necessary adjunct to this scheme of retirement?

A. I never knew that it had anything to do with it.

Q. And you had nothing to do with the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Not the slightest.

Q. Not consulted in reference to it?

684 A. Not the slightest.

Q. Did you own at the time of the meeting common stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. I did.

Q. Any considerable amount?

A. One hundred shares, I think.

Q. And did you subscribe for the certificates of indebtedness?

A. I did.

Q. Did you convert them into common stock?

A. I did. 685

Q. Did you convert your common stock into Northern Securities Company stock?

A. No; I hold all of it yet. I undoubtedly shall.

Q. You are one of the very few who have not surrendered up to date?

A. I have not; but I have told Mr. Hill he could have it any time he wanted it. He said it didn't make any difference; to keep it if I wanted it.

Q. He has got 152,000,000 or 153,000,000; more than enough.

A. That is true. He said he didn't care anything about it. 686 It is a sort of sentimental matter with me to hold on to it.

Q. The same as it is with Mr. Hill to hang on to two or three million of the Great Northern?

A. Very likely. I wish my sentiment was large enough to hold that amount.

Q. Mr. Mellen, prior to May 9, 1901, had the Northern Pacific under contemplation any extensions of its lines?

A. Yes, I think so. It has extensions in contemplation all the time.

Q. And have the extensions, or any of those extensions that 687 you had under contemplation prior to May 9, 1901, been abandoned by the road?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And have those extensions been undertaken by the railroad company up to date?

A. Some of them are in progress.

Q. And what has been done with the balance?

A. It is not exactly the time of year, you know, to progress with those matters; it is a little early in the season. They are still in that state that they can be taken up when the weather 688 will permit.

Q. Has there been any action with reference to the abandonment or proposed abandonment of any of the extensions which were on tap May 9, 1901?

A. I think the situation is precisely the same to-day as it was May 9, 1901.

Q. That is, there has been nothing done, do you mean?

A. Yes, there has been something done between May 9 and 689 the close of the season. This is not the time of year, you understand, we would naturally be doing anything in the line of extensions.

Q. Wouldn't you undertake something between May and cold weather?

A. We have done a great deal; we have completed several extensions and we are at work on others.

Q. Mr. Mellen, who financed the retirement of the preferred stock?

A. My recollection is the Standard Trust Company.

690 Q. Who paid the Standard Trust Company for financing that deal?

A. I am very sure the Northern Pacific has never paid anything up to the present time, and I am unaware of any obligation it is under to pay anything.

Q. So far as the Northern Pacific Company itself is concerned, you are sure that it has never paid anything, and you are not aware up to the present time of any indebtedness incurred by it in that transaction?

A. That is the best of my recollection.

691 Q. Is it your understanding that the Standard Trust Company undertook that for nothing and carried it out for nothing?

A. I never had any understanding about that other than the contract which I signed with the Standard Trust Company. That constitutes all the understanding I have in the premises.

Q. That was a transaction, was it not, primarily of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And didn't you as president of the company make any inquiries as to the expense of the part being taken by the 692 Standard Trust Company?

A. That was a matter handled during my absence from New York and by members of the executive committee, and the contract required my signature as president and was approved in due form by counsel and the committee and I executed it. I had nothing to do with the transaction whatever; never met an officer of the Standard Trust Company.

Q. And the matter of the expense of financing that deal never has been called to your attention as president of the company or otherwise?

A. It never has reached my attention. I do not mean to be 693 understood as saying there may not have been expense in connection with that transaction, but I mean to be understood as saying they have not been called to my attention.

Q. Mr. Mellen, do you know who financed the Burlington purchase?

A. J. P. Morgan & Co., I think.

Q. Do you know what they received for that undertaking?

A. I couldn't recall; I don't recall.

Q. Do you know that the Northern Pacific paid half of the expense of that proceeding? 694

A. I am very sure they did.

Q. Can you ascertain the amount of that?

A. My impression would be that would be in New York, that information.

Q. I suppose you mean by that the assistant treasurer?

A. It naturally would have been handled by the vice-president, in New York. It was a transaction at that end.

Cross-examination by Mr. KELLOGG:

Q. Why did you approve of the purchase of the Burlington?

A. I thought it was a good thing for the Northern Pacific. 695

Q. Mr. Mellen, is there any difference in the management of the Northern Pacific road before and the management since the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. None whatever.

Q. Or any difference in the management of the Northern Pacific and its policies before and since the time Mr. Harriman was put on the board?

Mr. LANCASTER. You have opened up something we have not gone into at all.

A. I know of no change. 696

Q. Well, was there any understanding?

A. None that has come to my knowledge.

Q. Speaking about competition, Mr. Mellen. Now, take between the head of the lakes and Minneapolis and St. Paul, the rates of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific are the same, are they not?

A. Yes.

Q. Must be the same?

697 A. Yes.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and I move to strike out the answer.

Q. You said there was active competition. Do you mean by that each road is struggling to get all the business it can?

A. Yes.

Q. And that competition is active to-day, is it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is it possible in railroad management for the rates between the same points to be different over one line from 698 another line between the same points?

Mr. BOUTELLE. The same objection.

A. Yes; if you want the business all to go by the line with the lowest rate.

Q. If each company does business, the rates have to be the same?

A. Substantially the same.

Q. As between all competing points between the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern the rates are the same, are they not?

699 A. They are.

Q. And have always been the same since you have been there?

A. So far as I know.

Q. Then you mean by competition each line is struggling by soliciting business and getting business to get all it can?

A. Yes; offering superior facilities and bringing pressure to bear and influence, personal and otherwise, and every way you can.

Redirect examination by Mr. BOUTELLE:

700 Q. Do you mean to say that the conditions that you have just testified to were due to business conditions, to natural conditions, or to agreements and understandings reached between traffic managers and officials of the lines?

A. Both.

Q. Well, isn't the main factor in the conditions you have testified to the fact that the roads, for the purpose of preventing competition, have made a tacit agreement to maintain certain rates?

A. No. 701

Q. That is not the fact?

A. No.

Q. Did you hear the testimony taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. I did.

Q. Did you hear the testimony of Darius Miller, who was the vice-president formerly of the Great Northern?

A. I did.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Miller testify that rates were demoralized during 1901 and came together during the fall? 702

A. Yes.

Q. Was that the fact?

A. I don't know.

Q. Isn't it frankly the fact that rates are demoralized?

A. Yes; not particularly so in the territory served by the Northern Pacific.

Q. Isn't that because they have usually had an agreement and understanding to maintain rates?

A. There is no agreement except a general conference we have to have with everybody that does a competing business. 703 We have to know what our neighbors are doing.

Q. I don't mean a formal agreement, but a tacit understanding as to rates.

A. There is only the general understanding that nobody will do anything that affects his neighbor unfavorably without advising the neighbor before doing it, and that agreement is no different with the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern than it is with the Northern Pacific and the Chicago and Northwestern, or any other railroad connecting, competitive, or otherwise.

Q. I understand that, but the basis of those conditions is this 704 general agreement or understanding to which you have testified?

A. There is no general agreement or understanding, if you mean by an understanding any agreement by which any party is bound for five minutes.

Q. I do not at all. I mean that those conditions are due to the fixing of rates by mutual understanding.

A. No.

Q. What do you mean by understanding, a contract?

705 A. No; we have no contracts.

Q. Are not the rates, and have they not been for a number of years between the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, understood between those companies and maintained to a certain given point?

A. The rates between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern are frequently misunderstood, I am very sorry to say, to the detriment of both companies and the public, and I find no difference in the conditions to-day from what I found when I came here, and I don't expect there will be any difference in 706 the conditions if I should stay here for ten years to come.

Q. I will ask you whether or no the foundation for the rates and the maintenance of the rates is not due to a tacit understanding or agreement or conference, whatever you may term it, between the officials of the lines to keep the rates up?

A. No. I should attribute it to the better judgment of railroad managers to-day as compared with the days when different customs prevailed.

Q. When different customs prevailed each road mapped out its own rates and proceeded its own independent way, didn't it?

707 A. I don't know. I have been railroading for thirty-three years and I don't know of any difference in the way of doing business to-day from when I started.

Q. What did you refer to a few moments ago when you said the old way?

A. The better judgment of men. They have found that they must do business, as they must live, in good-fellowship with their neighbors.

Q. What does that good-fellowship consist in?

A. In being decent and behaving themselves.

708 Q. And one step further, in maintaining rates, doesn't it?

A. Why, yes, in this sense. It means maintaining rates, that they shouldn't cut rates, make secret cuts; but there is no understanding or agreement to prevent any railroad from putting out a tariff that the judgment of its officers felt was necessary; but there is that courtesy among officers to-day that didn't exist; that if we were to put out a tariff to-morrow that affected my neighbor, before that became effective I would courteously notify my neighbor I contemplated such action.

Q. And that is precisely, in a general form, what the rail- 709 roads have been attempting to do by specific agreements for and during the last eight or ten years, isn't it?

A. I don't know.

Q. You were familiar with the Trans-Missouri Traffic Association?

A. I used to be a member of it.

Q. You knew something about the detail of that agreement?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, in a general way, while not carried out in the same amount of detail, this good judgment that you speak of and 710 good-fellowship is practically the same thing so far as rates are concerned, isn't it?

A. I don't think so. There, under that agreement, if there was to be a change in rates, all the parties had to get together and confer, and if one party objected the rate could not go in.

Q. I am asking you about results, not the minor details. Doesn't it result in the same?

A. The results to-day are a great deal better than they used to be.

Recross-examination, by Mr. KELLOGG: 711

Q. The rates, of course, have to be published?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have to publish those rates a certain time before they go into effect under the law?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of any way that the Great Northern can have a published tariff or have a rate that is less that the Northern Pacific between two common points and the Northern Pacific get any business?

A. No, I don't know how it can be done. 712

Q. Isn't it a positive necessity that makes rates between the same termini of competing railroads the same? Isn't it a positive necessity?

A. Yes.

By consent of all parties, further proceedings were adjourned until February 21, 1902, at 10 o'clock.

The following is a copy of volume 2 of special examiner's transcript in Peter Power case, containing the testimony of 713 J. S. Kennedy, G. W. Perkins, W. P. Clough, Jacob H. Schiff, Charles Steele, and J. P. Morgan, and here offered by complainant as original evidence in this case:

JOHN S. KENNEDY, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows, in answer to questions by Mr. Lancaster:

Q. Your name is John S. Kennedy?

A. Yes.

Mr. KELLOGG. The defendant objects to any testimony and to each and every question and answer on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and that the bill in 714 equity states no ground for equitable relief and no cause of action against the defendant company, and further, that no relief can be had in this cause affecting the interests of the Northern Securities Company without said company, or any of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway, each being made parties to the bill. Now, may it be stipulated that this objection may be renewed as to every question?

Mr. LANCASTER. Certainly.

Mr. KELLOGG. May not be renewed, but may be considered as made to each and every question.

715 Mr. LANCASTER. Certainly.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, you reside in New York?

A. Yes.

Q. And have for many years?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have been a stockholder of the Great Northern Railway Company since its organization?

A. Yes.

Mr. KELLOGG. That is especially objected to as wholly irrelevant to this issue.

716 Q. You may answer, Mr. Kennedy.

A. I have answered this.

Q. Have you ever been a director in the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. No, sir; never.

Q. You have always been a large stockholder in the Northern Pacific since its reorganization?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have been a director in the Northern Pacific 717
Railway Company since its reorganization.

A. Yes, since its reorganization.

Q. How long have you been a director in the Northern Pacific?

A. I think, according to my recollection, it was two years ago last summer that I was elected.

Q. I asked you if you had been a stockholder in the Great Northern Railway Company, and you stated that you had. You have been one of the largest individual stockholders in the Great Northern road since its reorganization in 1889, have you 718 not?

A. I have been a large stockholder; whether one of the largest, I can not say.

Q. Is it not a fact that you and Mr. Hill and Lord Mount Stephen and Lord Strathcona and George F. Baker have been the largest individual stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I think probably we have.

Q. You are also at the present time a director in the Northern Securities Company? 719

A. Yes.

Q. Can you state the date of your election to the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I can not. I think it was some time in November.

Q. You are also a director in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember the date of your election as such director?

A. I do not; it was some time, I think, in the autumn, or lat- 720 ter part of last year, but I do not remember the date.

Q. In 1896, upon the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, did you and Mr. Hill, Mr. Baker, D. Willis James, Lord Mount Stephen, and Lord Strathcona purchase in the neighborhood of $26,000,000 of Northern Pacific stock?

A. I don't remember the amount that was purchased, nor who all the parties that were united in the purchase, but there was a block of stock sold at that time, and I took an interest in the purchase.

721 Q. Do you remember the amount, Mr. Kennedy?

A. I do not.

Q. Approximately?

A. Not even approximately.

Q. Mr. Hill, in his testimony, referred to you and Mr. Baker—George F. Baker—and D. Willis James, Lord Mount Stephen and Lord Strathcona, and J. A. Livingston, J. W. Sterling, and Oliver Payne, and, I think, Mr. Cannon, as being the associates in the Great Northern, and also his associates in the purchase of a large block of the Northern Pacific at the 722 time of the reorganization. Is that your recollection, that you gentlemen were associated together?

A. As far as I am concerned it was not purchased by an association. I was told that a block of stock was purchased, and I was asked to take an interest in it, which I did, but who all the parties were that purchased it I don't know.

Q. Did you take an equal interest, or did you buy a certain portion of that stock yourself individually?

A. I don't remember how it was divided up, but I got a certain portion of it. I was asked to take a certain portion of that 723 stock, and I took it and paid for it.

Q. Do you remember Oliver Payne and H. W. Cannon as being two of the associates?

A. I don't know; I never had any communication with them on the subject, or either of them.

Q. Did you have your dealings, Mr. Kennedy, directly with Mr. Hill in that matter?

A. I don't remember whether it was Mr. Hill or Messrs. Morgan, but I think I paid the money for the stock to the Chase National Bank. I was asked to pay there.

724 Q. Well, do you remember having negotiated with Mr. Hill in connection with this purchase of this Northern Pacific stock upon the reorganization?

A. All I remember is that he told me that Messrs. Morgan & Co. wished to dispose of a certain block of stock, and he asked me if I would take an interest in it, and after I conferred with him I told him I would.

Q. Now, did you hold that stock continuously down to November and December, 1901?

A. I held the greater part of it. I sold a little of it some 725 time after, but by far the larger portion o :t I held right along and hold it now.

Q. Can you give us approximately the amount ot stock you yourself took in 1896?

A. I think the amount I took was between 39,000 and 40,000 shares of the common, and I can't recall the amount of the preferred, but I think 3,000 or 4,000 shares. It may be more, but as near as I can remember I think it was 3,000 or 4,000 shares.

Q. That was in 1896?

A. I don't remember the exact date. I think it was about 726 that time.

Q. Did you sell any of the common which you got at that time prior to May 9, 1901?

A. I did, but a very long time ago.

Q. And any considerable amount?

A. No; not a very large amount.

Q. Could you give us approximately the amount which you sold?

A. I can't—not more than 2,000 or 3,000 shares—maybe 4,000. 727

Q. About what number of shares of the common stock did you hold between the 1st of May and May 9th, 1901?

A. Thirty thousand.

Q. Of the common?

A. Of the common.

Q. Did you at that time hold any of the preferred?

A. Yes.

Q. And about how many?

A. Eight thousand shares.

Q. During the time that you have been a stockholder in the 728
Great Northern from 1889 down to the present time, or down, we will say, to December 31, 1901, has Mr. Hill held your proxy upon all that stock?

A. I have always given him my proxy for an election.

Q. And he has always, to your recollection, now, has always had this proxy at every annual election?

A. So far as I can remember, unless I was absent in Europe. Some of those years I was not here to give it, but as far as I remember he has always had my proxy for every election.

729 Q. Personally you have never attended the stockholders' meetings of the Great Northern?

A. No, sir, I never did; at least I have no recollection of it. I do not think I ever did.

Q. I think you stated two years ago you were a member of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific during the year 1901?

A. Yes.

Q. When was the proposed purchase of the Burlington first brought to your attention?

730 A. It was some time in the month of March.

Q. 1901?

A. 1901.

Q. Was it brought to your attention before the matter was submitted to the board of directors?

A. I heard that negotiations were proceeding with a view of making the purchase, and, so far as I know, before it was brought before the board of directors.

Q. You knew the plan of purchase, did you not, before it was submitted?

731 A. I knew indefinitely, and I may explain to you here that negotiations were proceeding when I went to Europe and I was not here when the matter was consummated.

Mr. KELLOGG. What board did you refer to?

Mr. LANCASTER. The board of directors of the Northern Pacific.

Q. I am referring to the board of directors of the Northern Pacific, Mr. Kennedy.

A. I so understood.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, did Mr. James J. Hill consult with you in 732 reference to the proposed purchase of the Burlington?

A. He did.

Q. And the general plan of the purchase was outlined by him to you?

A. The general plan was outlined by him to me. What he thought of doing, or thought could be done.

Q. And at that time you were a director of the Northern Pacific and a large holder of stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. And also a large holder of stock in the Great Northern? 733

A. Yes.

Q. I understand you to say you were absent in Europe at the time the matter was submitted to the board of directors of the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes; I was absent in Europe.

Q. At that time what were your individual holdings in the Great Northern?

A. At that time my individual holdings in the Great Northern, I think, were about 96,000 shares.

Q. What time did you return from Europe, Mr. Kennedy? 734

A. I returned from Europe on Saturday, I think it was the 8th of June.

Q. Did you purchase any Northern Pacific in the spring and early summer prior to June—did you purchase any additional stock?

A. No, sir; not a share.

Q. Did you sell any?

A. Not a share.

Q. Prior to your departure for Europe—I think you gave us the date that you left for Europe? 735

A. I left on the morning of the 2d of April.

Q. Prior to your departure for Europe on the 2d of April, had you had any conversation with Mr. James J. Hill in reference to the syndicate purchasing a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. No.

Q. Had the matter been discussed by you at all with Mr. Hill?

A. I have no recollection of the discussion of any such matter as that? 736

Q. Was such a thing suggested to you by Mr. Hill?

A. No, sir; I have no recollection of him making any such suggestion.

Q. At the time Mr. Hill suggested a purchase of the Burlington, the joint purchase of the Burlington by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, was the matter of the control of the Northern Pacific discussed by Mr. Hill with you?

A. No, sir; it was not. I think the impression he gave me 737 was that he and some other gentlemen in England, Lord Strathcona and others, and Messrs. Morgan & Co. had substantially the control of the road.

Q. And was that shortly prior to your going to Europe?

A. Yes; prior to my going to Europe.

Q. Will you give us all the names, Mr. Kennedy, that you understood Mr. Hill to refer to as having a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. I can't give you all the names. I can mention some of them.

738 Q. Give those that you remember.

A. There was himself and myself, and there was Mr. D. Willis James and Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen; but as to the others I could not say.

Q. You don't remember his mentioning any others?

A. I don't remember his mentioning any others.

Q. But you do remember his telling you at that time that these gentlemen whom you have named, together with himself and yourself, had a controlling interest of the common stock?

A. The impression he gave me was that with our holdings 739 we had a majority of the common stock of the company—that is my impression. I do not say he stated so. I say that is the impression I gathered from what conversation took place. It is only an impression.

Q. Among the associates he mentioned J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. were included?

A. I understood that they were holders of the stock, but when you talk of associates I don't know what you mean by that.

Q. Mr. Hill used the term, Mr. Kennedy, that is here 740 referred to—myself and his associates—and he stated that yourself and Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen, and George F. Baker and D. Willis James, and possibly one or two others, constituted what he called his associates.

A. We were simply individual holders, the same as shareholders in any other company.

Q. You mean by that that you were acting in harmony so far as the voting of your stock was concerned?

A. It was a harmonious body and each were stockholders in the company, and everything was going harmoniously amongst us. 741

Q. As a matter of fact, you each, for a number of years, acted together in entire harmony?

A. Yes.

Q. Both with reference to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. At the time of your departure, or previous to your departure for Europe, Mr. Kennedy, had you any information that Mr. Harriman, or Kuhn, Loeb & Co., representing Mr. 742 Harriman, or representing the Union Pacific, were endeavoring to buy up a majority of stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. None whatever.

Q. When did you learn of such an attempt?

A. The first I learned of such an attempt was when I was in France, about the early part of May—I forget the particular date.

Q. Did you learn that from Mr. Hill?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you learn it from Mr. Morgan? 743

A. I did; I did not know who the parties were, and he didn't tell me who the parties were, but that there were parties apparently endeavoring to get control of the company.

Q. Did you have a personal interview at that time with Mr. Morgan, Mr. Kennedy?

A. I did.

Q. Did Mr. Morgan at that time inform you that Mr. Hill and his associates had agreed not to sell any of their common stock?

A. He did not; at least I have no recollection of his saying 744 anything of the kind.

Q. Were you requested by Mr. Morgan to make any disposition of your holdings of common stock?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you volunteer the statement at that time that you would not make any disposition?

A. I told him I would not, and I could not if I would. I was in France, I wasn't here to deliver the stock if I sold it.

Q. The stock was in New York?

745 A. The stock was in New York.

Q. This you say was the first part of May?

A. The early part of May; I can't fix the date—it probably was about, I should think, the 5th, 6th, or 7th of May—I can't remember the precise date.

Q. Did Mr. Morgan inform you at that time that his firm had purchased a large block—two blocks—two separate blocks of stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. No, sir; I have no recollection of his saying anything to me about that.

746 Q. Did you, prior to May 9, agree to purchase any of the stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Morgan inform you that he was purchasing common stock for Mr. Hill?

A. No, sir; he did not.

Q. Did he inform you that he was purchasing it for himself?

A. I have no recollection of his saying anything about making purchases at all.

Q. Did Mr. Morgan say anything to you at that time about 747 purchasing the stock in Europe for himself and Mr. Hill and their associates?

A. No, sir; he never said a word to me of the kind.

Q. And you don't recall now that he mentioned Mr. Harriman?

A. I don't remember his mentioning Mr. Harriman's name.

Q. Did he inform you that it was the Union Pacific that was trying to purchase it?

A. No, sir; all that I remember about it is that there were parties evidently purchasing the stock in New York, and he 748 seemed to think it was with a view of getting control.

Q. As I understand you, then, at that time, Mr. Kennedy, you didn't have any idea who the parties were?

A. No.

Q. You don't know whether they were connected in any way with the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line?

A No, sir; I did not know who they were.

Q. And Mr. Morgan didn't volunteer any information in that respect?

A. I can't recall the slightest reference to anything of that 749 kind.

Q. Well, very soon after that you did learn that it was Mr. Harriman, or Kuhn, Loeb & Co., acting with Mr. Harriman and the Union Pacific?

A. After Mr. Morgan left I learned that in the newspapers; it was in the London Times—in the cable correspondence of the London Times; it had very full cable news every day, and I saw it there.

Q. Upon your return from Europe, Mr. Kennedy, did you acquire additional common stock in the Northern Pacific? 750

A. Not immediately upon my return.

Q. How soon after?

A. It was some time in the autumn; I think it was the month of August.

Q. From whom did you get that stock?

A. From J. P. Morgan & Co.

Q. Did you get that stock from him individually or in connection with Mr. Hill?

A. I got the stock from J. P. Morgan & Co. and paid J. P. Morgan & Co. for it. 751

Q. How many shares of the common did you purchase at that time?

A. I purchased 10,000 shares.

Q. How did you come to make that purchase, Mr. Kennedy?

A. I was in New York, and I was told that they wished to sell some of their stock, and I was asked if I would take any of it, and I agreed to take 10,000 shares.

Q. Had Mr. Hill spoken to you about this purchase prior to your making the purchase?

A. He admitted to me that J. P. Morgan & Co. would like 752 to dispose of some of their holdings.

Q. Did you understand at that time, Mr. Kennedy, that J. P. Morgan & Co. had purchased $16,000,000 or $18,000,000 of the stock, par value of the common, between May 1 and May 9, 1901?

A. I had no knowledge as to when they acquired it or how they acquired it.

Q. You do know, however, that J. P. Morgan & Co. had 753 purchased a very considerable amount of that stock shortly previous to May 9, 1901, did you not?

A. I don't know when they purchased it.

Q. Well, did you not purchase this $1,000,000 par value, or 10,000 shares, of Mr. Morgan at Mr. Hill's suggestion and request?

A. Mr. Hill asked—I believe suggested—if I would like to purchase any more stock, and said that they had some which they were willing to part with, and I told him that I would purchase some of it, and finally I agreed to take 10,000 shares.

754 Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, that other gentlemen whom you have mentioned here as associates—D. Willis James, Lord Strathcona, Lord Mount Stephen, and Mr. Hill—about the same time purchased from J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. That I didn't know anything about.

Q. Do you know now whether or not they made purchase about the same time you did from J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. All I remember is Mr. James telling me he had taken some of the stock about the same time I did—I think in October. I might say to you, to save you trouble, that when I 755 returned on the 8th of June I left the city again on the 10th of June, and except for three or four days in the beginning of August I was not here again until the beginning of October.

Q. Did you negotiate for the purchase of this stock from J. P. Morgan & Co. personally, Mr. Kennedy?

A. I bought it from that firm and I paid them for it, as I have already stated.

Q. I mean did you conduct the negotiation yourself, or did Mr. Hill for you?

A. Mr. Hill spoke to me about it, and I told Mr. Morgan, or 756 some of his partners, I would take the stock. Mr. Hill had suggested they wanted to sell some, and I would take that much.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, when was the first suggestion made to you or by you with reference to the organization of a Central Securities Company or a Holding Securities Company? I don't know as the name was agreed upon at that time.

A. Such a thing had been talked of for a long time—some years, I think; but at the time it was first spoken of to me it only had application to the Great Northern Railway stock.

Q. When you say a long time you mean—— 757

A. Some years.

Q. How many years?

A. I can't recall how many; it was a matter Mr. Hill had talked to me about and I to him about repeatedly.

Q. What was the purpose and object of the securities company that was to be formed that you first discussed? Will you state in your own way just what the object and purpose of that company was?

A. It was simply to hold the stock which some of the principal stockholders held in one block. 758

Q. Will you give the names of the principal stockholders?

A. I have already done so, so far as I can.

Q. Then they are the same gentlemen, Mr. Kennedy, whose names you have just given here?

A. Yes, and others; I can't recall them all.

Q. And there were others included in the list, then?

A. I never saw a list, but it was talked about that the principal stockholders way back for many years, that they were getting old and might pass away, and in order to carry on the continuous policy of the company it might be well to keep the stock 759 in one block.

Q. Those gentlemen had controlled the management, had they not, of the Great Northern road for many years?

A. I don't know what you mean by control.

Q. Well, they had had a majority of the stock, had they not?

A. I don't think they had a majority, but they had a considerable amount of it; I don't know whether it was a majority.

Q. Hadn't those gentlemen, Mr. Kennedy, dictated the policy of the Great Northern road for many years?

A. There wasn't any dictation about it; they were stock- 760 holders, and were working in harmony, and had a large holding in the property so far as we were shareholders, and had a right to vote; we voted and elected our directors.

Q. And you had voted together?

A. I always sent my proxy to Mr. Hill, and I suppose the others did the same. I had no knowledge on the subject.

Q. You are unable to state whether or not those gentlemen whose names you have mentioned there controlled or held a majority of the stock in the Great Northern or not?

761 A. I can not say.

Q. Now, since 1889, Mr. Kennedy, so far as you know, had there been any opposition to the policy of the road as Mr. Hill had been conducting it? Had there?

A. No; so far as I know.

Q. And Mr. Hill in connection with yourself and other persons whose names you have given here suggest the names of the directors?

A. No, sir; I never did.

Q. Didn't?

762 A. No, sir.

Q. There never had been any contest over any election of directors of the Great Northern road to your knowledge?

A. Not so far as I know.

Q. Was it the object and purpose of this securities company to own and hold a majority of stock in the Great Northern as originally outlined?

A. There was no determination what it would be. The object was to offer the stockholders an opportunity to come in when the thing was first talked of some years ago; it was thought 763 of forming a holding company to hold the stock of the principal holders, and I don't remember who, but it was suggested to offer every stockholder the same opportunity. The idea was to give them an opportunity to come in or not, just as they pleased.

Q. Do you mean to say, Mr. Kennedy, that the plan has matured so far as it related to the Great Northern road was concerned was to form this securities company and give every stockholder a chance to turn in his stock to the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes; if he chose to do so.

764 Q. And to take in return therefor stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir; that was not the original plan.

Q. I understand.

A. But as finally consummated.

Q. I don't mean as finally consummated, Mr. Kennedy, but up to the time when you and Mr. Hill first discussed the question of taking in the Northern Pacific, up to that time had you matured your plan to that point where you would allow all the stockholders of the Great Northern to come into the securities company? 765

A. I don't remember when that was determined; but it was finally determined to offer them that opportunity.

Q. Would there have been any object, as you understand it, in having formed the Northern Securities Company merely for the purpose of having all of the stock of the Great Northern turned into that company? Would you simply have another company without any particular object?

A. I don't understand your question.

Q. As I understand you, Mr. Kennedy, the original proposition was to form a central company for the purpose of holding the shares of some of the old stockholders who had for many years acted in harmony and together? 766

A. Yes.

Q. That is correct, is it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now I want to know, if prior to the time when you had agreed upon a company for the purpose of taking in the Northern Pacific, you had agreed among yourselves not to allow all the stockholders of the Great Northern, if they saw fit to come in and turn in their stock to the Northern Securities Company and take stock therefor? 767

A. I can't tell when that thing was determined on, but it was determined on finally, as I have already told you, and gave an opportunity to all the stockholders to come in if they wished to do so.

Q. Let me suggest this: Didn't they determine to give an opportunity for all the stockholders of the Great Northern to come in? Didn't that agreement on your part and your friends come up after you had made up your mind to take in the stockholders of the Northern Pacific? Isn't that the way that came about? 768

A. Well, I can't remember the time when it was done.

Q. Do you remember when the matter of taking in the Northern Pacific stockholders was first suggested?

A. I don't remember when it was first suggested.

Q. Approximately?

769 A. It was some time in the autumn of last year.

Q. You at that time knew that Mr. Hill, yourself, and J. P. Morgan & Co., and these other gentlemen whom you have mentioned as your associates, you knew at that time that those gentlemen held a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific, did you not?

A. I didn't mention these gentlemen as my associates. You say that.

Q. Well, I used Mr. Hill's language. I will call them Mr. Hill's associates.

770 A. Call them anything you like but my associates.

Q. All right, we will not dispute about that. [The question was read to the witness.]

A. I was so informed.

Q. Now, do you remember who suggested taking in the stockholders of the Northern Pacific?

A. I do not.

Q. Now, Mr. Kennedy, is it not a fact that in the autumn of 1901 Mr. Hill, J. P. Morgan & Co., D. Willis James, George F. Baker, Lord Strathcona, and Lord Mount Stephen held a 771 majority of the stock of the Great Northern and of the Northern Pacific?

A. I can't speak as to a majority of the Great Northern; I I don't think they hold a majority of the Great Northern; I am pretty sure they don't, but we did hold a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific; at least, I was so informed.

Q. Now, at that time the suggestion came up of making a securities company, organizing a securities company for the purpose of carrying the stocks of you gentlemen in both roads, did it not?

772 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And later on it was decided to throw the privilege open to any and all stockholders of the Great Northern, was it not?

A. Yes, sir; I think that was it.

Q. It was the expectation and purpose of you gentlemen at that time, when you conceived the idea of organizing the Northern Securities Company, to acquire the stocks of both roads. I say it was your expectation and intention and purpose to have the new securities company acquire a majority of the stocks of both roads, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, was it not? 773

A. It was our intention to have a majority of the Northern Pacific, but as to the Great Northern, it was simply an intention to let the members in who chose to come in, and it remained to be seen whether it would be a majority or minority.

Q. Why did you plan on getting a majority of the Northern Pacific and not of the Great Northern, Mr. Kennedy?

A. Well, my idea was in consequence of what took place last May; we didn't want to be subject to such an attack as took place last year. 774

Q. You wanted to have a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific where you could absolutely control it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Under all circumstances?

A. Under all circumstances.

Q. And so far as the Great Northern road was concerned, it was regarded as practically certain to all intents and purposes that Mr. Hill, yourself, J. Pierpont Morgan, and George F. Baker controlled the Great Northern?

A. I don't remember anything of the kind ever coming up. 775

Q. Mr. Kennedy, it was practically certain that Mr. Hill, yourself, and a few others controlled the Great Northern?

A. I suppose we had enough stock to have controlled an election if there had been no combination against us.

Q. You had no fears, Mr. Kennedy, that the Union Pacific nor the Canadian Pacific, nor any other railroad company could go into the market and buy up a majority of the Great Northern?

A. I don't remember thinking anything about it.

Q. Well, why did you distinguish? You say you wanted a majority of the Northern Pacific where you could absolutely control it so as to prevent another such occurrence as that of May 9. 776

A. Yes.

Q. Weren't you equally anxious to prevent the possibility of such an occurrence with reference to the Great Northern?

A. I think those who were called Mr. Hill's associates had enough stock to prevent anything of that kind.

Q. That is what I am getting at, so that when you planned 777 absolutely to hold a majority of the Northern Pacific and have that turned into the securities company, and to turn in the stock of yourself and Mr. Hill's associates in the Great Northern, you knew that you were controlling enough stock of the Great Northern so it could not be purchased by a rival interest?

A. I don't know that absolutely.

Q. You felt pretty certain of it?

A. I thought it was probable.

Q. You were just as anxious to prevent an attempt to buy up a majority of the Great Northern by a rival interest as you 778 were to prevent an attempt to buy up a majority of the Northern Pacific, weren't you?

A. I didn't want an attack in either case.

Q. That is what I am getting at—that is, a purchase by a rival interest of a majority of the stock of either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific was a thing which you were trying to prevent, was it not?

A. Yes, sir; that was our idea; at least, that was my idea; I speak for myself.

Q. And wasn't that idea discussed, Mr. Kennedy, between 779 you and Mr. Hill and others at the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I have no recollection of any discussion on that point.

Q. You say you had that idea; didn't you discuss that matter with Mr. Hill?

A. No; I don't remember any discussion of it.

Q. Didn't you hear any reference made by any of your friends, or by Mr. Hill's associates with reference to the object and purpose of preventing another attack on either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific?

780 A. I remember that being talked of in connection with the Northern Pacific, but I have no recollection of it in connection with the Great Northern.

Q. It was a fact, Mr. Kennedy, that so far as your own feelings went you were perfectly satisfied that a successful attack could not be made on the Great Northern?

A. I was satisfied of this, that if we held the controlling majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific the chances were remote that they would make an attack on the Great Northern.

Q. Now, it was finally determined, Mr. Kennedy, after it 781 was decided to take in a majority or more of the stock of the Northern Pacific, to throw open the privilege to all the stockholders of the Great Northern to go into the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that done for the purpose of placing a majority of the stock of the Great Northern in the Northern Securities Company, as well as a majority of the Northern Pacific?

A. I think not. The idea was to give the Great Northern stockholders who might desire to come in an opportunity to 782 come in, that they might not feel that they were not fairly treated if certain persons went in and other persons left out.

Q. Now, you gentlemen, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Hill, and his associates and yourself, at the time you conceived and agreed upon the plan of organizing the Northern Securities Company, agreed among yourselves to turn in a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific into the securities company, did you not?

A. I don't remember of any special agreement made on that subject. I think it was understood they would turn it in.

Q. So as to place a majority of the Northern Pacific abso- 783 lutely in the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir; that was my idea.

Q. And so far as you know that was the idea of the other gentlemen associated with you?

A. I suppose it was. I have no information on that point.

Mr. STETSON. Northern Pacific common or preferred, or what?

Q. Common. Was it the purpose or intention of you gentlemen at the time you organized the Northern Securities Company to place the stock of that company upon the market for miscellaneous purposes? 784

A. I don't remember that being suggested or discussed.

Q. Was it the object or purpose of the Northern Securities Company—that is, was it talked over and agreed among you gentlemen that the Northern Securities Company was to acquire other stocks beside the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

A. That was spoken of as a possibility.

Q. But the primary object and purpose was to acquire the stocks of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

785 A. That was the first object.

Q. And that was practically the only object that was discussed, wasn't it, Mr. Kennedy, at that time?

A. Well, there were discussions about what might take place afterwards in regard to other properties, but nothing definite was arrived at; but such things were suggested as a possibility.

Q. You were a director, Mr. Kennedy, of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated, but I have forgotten, when you were 786 elected; I think, in November?

A. I think it was some time in November.

Q. Have you attended the meetings of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company since its organization?

A. I attended one meeting of the directors.

Q. And only one?

A. Only one of the directors; possibly two meetings of the executive committee.

Q. Are you a member of the executive committee?

A. Yes, sir.

787 Q. How much stock of the Great Northern Railway Company has been turned in and exchanged for the stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I don't know.

Q. You know approximately, don't you?

A. No, sir; I don't.

Q. Well, do you know whether it is 50,000,000, or 75,000,000?

A. It would be a mere guess; I don't know.

Q. Well, have you turned in all of your stock, Mr. Kennedy?

788 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when?

A. I turned it in shortly after the formation of the company.

Q. And you had at that time 96,000 or so?

A. About 96,000 of the Great Northern and 40,000 of the Northern Pacific.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Kennedy, how much of the Northern Pacific stock, the common, has been turned in in exchange for Northern Securities Company?

A. Only by hearsay; I understand about 150,000,000 out of 789 155,000,000.

Q. Haven't you heard anything about the number of shares of the Great Northern turned in?

A. No, sir.

Q. Haven't you made any inquiry?

A. No, sir; I have been out of town. I have not been in the office for the past four weeks.

Q. Was there a large amount of stock of the Great Northern turned in immediately after the organization of the securities company? 790

A. I don't know how much was turned in. I turned in mine, and I heard that others had turned in stock, but how much I do not know.

Q. Is it a fact that that stock, yours and your friends, was turned in immediately after the organization of the company?

A. I don't know how soon it was. I turned mine in very soon after the organization of the company.

Q. Has there been any stock of the Great Northern Road turned into the Northern Securities Company since the 31st day of December, 1901? 791

A. I don't know.

Q. Have you ever attended a meeting of the executive committee where it was decided and determined not to receive stock of the Great Northern?

A. I have no recollection of such a matter being suggested at any meeting I have attended.

Q. Has it ever come to your knowledge, Mr. Kennedy, that the stock that has been offered by holders of the Great Northern has been turned in in blank?

A. I know nothing whatever about that. 792

Q. Do you know of any stock of the Great Northern Road being held by people outside as trustees of the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir; I never heard of such a thing.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, are you able to state, of your own knowledge, that a man holding Great Northern stock can go to the Northern Securities Company to-day and turn in his stock at $1.80 and get stock of the Northern Securities Company?

793 A. I don't know, sir, whether he can or can not. I think, in a circular that was issued, a time limit was put on it. Whether that has been extended or not I don't know.

Q. How long has it been since you attended a meeting of the executive committee?

A. It must be more than a month ago. I left the city on the 19th of February, and I have not been to the company's office since, nor attended any meetings since.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, up to the time of the last meeting, did you know that the stock which had been turned in or offered, all 794 stock which had been offered by holders of the Great Northern, had been received by the securities company, and held by the securities company; do you understand what I mean?

A. No; I don't understand what you mean.

Q. I suppose, Mr. Kennedy, the stock which you yourself turned in was indorsed to the Northern Securities Company, was it?

A. Yes, sir; I transferred it to them.

Q. Now, the other stock, as you understood it at the time, that was turned in immediately on the organization of the com-795 pany was transferred by the holders direct to the Northern Securities Company?

A. I suppose so.

Q. Now, I want to know if up to the time of the last meeting, which you say was about a month ago, which you attended——

A. No; I said I went out of the city a month ago, and I do not remember when the last meeting previous to that time was. I think it must have been one or two weeks before.

Q. Well, up to the time of the last meeting that you attended, had the stock which had been tendered to the Northern Securities 796 Company, by different holders, been indorsed direct to the securities company?

A. I don't know that, sir; I know nothing about it. I have no knowledge of that matter and know nothing about it.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, did you have anything to do, as a member of the board of directors or as a member of the executive committee, with electing some of the vice-presidents for the purpose of transferring the stock or issuing stock?

A. I remember there were certain persons appointed to sign certificates of stock, but I can not recall the names. I remember it came up. I think at a meeting of the executive committee. 797

Q. Do you remember how many you appointed?

A. I do not remember, but I remember there were some appointed in case they might be needed and I think they were never used.

Q. Were there four appointed?

A. I do not remember.

Q. But you do remember the fact that there were some gentlemen appointed? 798

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Simply to issue stock?

A. To sign certificates.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Kennedy, that stock has been turned in and delivered to the Northern Securities Company in blank and without being indorsed and the stock of the Northern Securities Company issued in payment for it?

A. I have no knowledge of it and never heard of such a thing.

Q. And you are not aware that any such stock to any amount has ever been turned in by anybody and so held by the Northern Securities Company? 799

A. No, sir; I never heard of such a thing.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Kennedy, whether or not there are any outsiders holding Great Northern stock which in reality belongs to the Northern Securities Company?

A. I do not, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the purchase of the Northern Pacific common made by Mr. Hill of J. P. Morgan & Co. in November or December of last year. 800

A. No; nothing to do with that.

Q. Did you know, Mr. Kennedy, of Mr. Hill's purchasing some eleven or twelve millions of the Northern Pacific Company of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. I remember his telling me he had purchased a block of stock, but I do not remember the amount.

Q. Was it not somewhere in the neighborhood of ten or twelve millions?

801 A. I really can not remember.

Q. But you had nothing to do with that?

A. Nothing to do with it.

Q. And took no part in it?

A. I told you I took 10,000 shares; that is all the stock I took.

Q. That was earlier, was it not?

A. That was in August. What was purchased since then I know nothing about.

Q. You purchased no other stock of the Northern Pacific 802 from August to the present time?

A. No, sir; not a single share. Well, I will not say that. Of course I got my share of the certificates that were issued to the common stockholders. I got that, certainly, if you call that a purchase, but I purchased no stock in the market.

Q. At the time of the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred you took advantage of the subscriptions offered to holders of the common?

A. Yes, sir; I did.

Q. And you turned in those certificates directly to the 803 Northern Securities Company, and took your stock from the Northern Securities Company?

A. No; my recollection is that I turned them into the Great Northern Railroad Company, and took the certificate of stock and transferred that.

Mr. STETSON. You mean the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes; I mean the Northern Pacific, and then turned the stock into the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Was the stock of the Northern Pacific Company actually issued to you, Mr. Kennedy, personally?

804 A. My recollection is it was.

Mr. LANCASTER. Was that uniformly done, Mr. Stetson?

Mr. STETSON. I think so. I do not know. This was a stockholders' transaction, and I do not know anything about it.

Q. Well, so far as your recollection goes, Mr. Kennedy, you would state that the Northern Pacific Company issued to you your proportionate share of the new issue of common stock?

A. They issued my proportionate share of certificates of indebtedness, which were convertible into common stock.

Q. Now, did they issue the common stock? 805

A. My recollection is that I surrendered those and got the common stock, and I sold that to the Northern Securities Company and got their certificates for it.

Q. So, originally, your proportionate share of common stock was issued to you personally?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. And turned in by you to the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in return therefor you received your proportionate 806 share of the new stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. That is the transaction as I remember it.

Q. Mr. Kennedy, were you consulted by Mr. Hill with reference to the purchase of Mr. Harriman's stock, or the stock held by the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line, in the Northern Pacific?

A. I was not.

Q. Did you know anything about such purchase?

A. No; nothing whatever about it.

Q. Did you know anything about any agreement between 807 Mr. Hill or his representative and Mr. Harriman or Kuhn, Loeb & Co. with reference to the disposition of the common stock held by Mr. Harriman?

A. I knew nothing at all about it.

Q. Did you know anything about the purchase by Mr. Morgan of any of the Harriman stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. All I remember is hearing—I don't know whether from Mr. Hill or J. Pierpont Morgan—that that interest had agreed to turn in their stock; but that is all I know about it and all I remember about it. 808

Q. Had agreed to turn it into what?

A. I think to turn it in to J. P. Morgan & Co. I think it was sold to J. P. Morgan & Co., as I remember it.

Q. So that you did know, during the summer or fall of 1901, that the Harriman interests were to dispose of their holdings in the Northern Pacific to J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. I remember hearing something said about it; but that is all. I knew nothing about it, except that they had turned their stock in to J. P. Morgan & Co.

809 Q. Didn't Mr. Hill confer with you about financing or assisting in financing that transaction?

A. No, sir; he never consulted me, nor said anything with regard to it. He may have mentioned the matter casually, but I have no recollection of it.

Q. Did you know how much of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Mr. Harriman had?

A. I remember hearing that he, or parties whom he represented, had about $37,000,000 of the common stock; I think a fraction over.

810 Q. And that common stock, you understood, was to be taken by J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. I have no recollection what was to be done with it, except I understood arrangements had been made with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Q. Now, you returned from Europe June 8, you stated?

A. Yes, sir; that is my recollection; the second Saturday in June. I think it was the 8th.

Q. Were you present at a meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific, held on July 23, 1901?

811 A. I was not, sir; I was not in the city then, as I have already told you.

Q. Were you consulted with reference to the resignations which took place at that time, July 23, 1901?

A. No, sir; I was not.

Q. You know, as a matter of fact, there were four or five resignations on the board?

A. Yes; of course I knew that.

Q. And you were consulted with reference to who should be put on in place of those men?

812 A. No, sir; I was not.

Q. You had nothing whatever to do with the substitution or election of the new men?

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. When did you first learn that Mr. Harriman was put on the board?

A. I first saw it in the newspapers.

Q. Did you attend the annual meeting of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company at the last annual meeting?

A. No, sir; I did not—not the Chicago, Burlington and 813
Quincy Railroad Company.

Q. Railway Company?

A. I was not aware that they had had an annual meeting. If they had, I had not heard of it.

Q. I guess that is so; that is the new company. Did you have anything to do with suggesting the name of Mr. Harriman for a director on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. No, sir; nothing whatever.

Q. Do you know how he happened to be placed on the board? 814

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know how he happened to be placed on the board of the Northern Pacific on July 23, 1901?

A. I do not know, except I believe he was nominated by Mr. Morgan. I think there was some understanding that Mr. Morgan was to constitute the board, after the troubles of last May, and in nominating some new members of the board he named Mr. Harriman as one of them. That is all I know about it.

Q. Did Mr. Morgan nominate him for a director of the Chi- 815 cago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know how he came to be nominated there?

A. I do not.

Q. He was not a large holder in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, was he?

A. I do not know what he holds.

Q. As a matter of fact, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern holds all the stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, don't it; they were the joint owners of all 816 the stock of that company?

A. Whatever stock was issued, I believe they were the joint owners, but I know nothing about the details.

Q. You did not understand that Mr. Harriman was interested in any way, shape, or manner in the Burlington road?

A. I don't know what his interest is.

Q. Well, you understood, Mr. Kennedy, that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company—that all of that stock 817 had been put up and was placed as collateral to the joint bonds of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railroad in the hands of the Central Trust Company?

A. I understand that a large majority was put up and placed in the hands of the Standard Trust Company——

Q. That is right——

A. And a joint bond was issued by the two companies, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, in payment.

Q. When you say a large majority, you mean 98 or 99 per cent?

818 A. I do not know what the percentage is, but practically the whole of it.

Q. Did you understand that Mr. Harriman held any of the balance of the 1 or 2 per cent?

A. I had no knowledge on the subject.

Q. You knew that Mr. Harriman was made a member subsequent to May 9, 1901, of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, too?

A. I was not aware of that.

Q. Didn't you know that Mr. Schiff was also made a mem-819 ber of the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

A. I think he is a member of that board.

Q. And did you know that Mr. Mortimer L. Schiff was also a member of the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And knew he was the son of Jacob H. Schiff?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge how either Mr.
820 Harriman or Mr. Schiff, Mortimer or Jacob H., came to get on those boards?

A. I do not.

Q. You don't know that either one of them held any stock in either of the roads?

A. I know nothing on that subject whatever.

Q. You knew that Mr. Harriman was a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also Mr. Jacob H. Schiff? 821

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they turn the Northern Pacific common in exchange for the stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I don't know what they turned in.

Q. Do you know whether or not they were stockholders of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I think they must be, or they would not be on the board of directors.

Q. Do you know whether they held merely enough to qualify or are large holders? 822

A. I don't know.

Q. Were you consulted with reference to their being on the board?

A. No, sir.

Q. Don't know about them being placed on the board?

A. I think at the time the board was elected the list was submitted to me of the names to be on the board, and their names were on that list.

Q. Who submitted the names to you?

A. As near as I remember, I think it was Colonel Clough. 823 I won't be certain; I think it was.

Q. Did you make any inquiries as to why Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff were on that board?

A. No, sir.

Q. You didn't understand that either one of those gentlemen were interested in the Northern Pacific, did you?

A. As an impression, I would say my impression was that they were interested in the Northern Securities Company through stock that had either belonged to them, or a portion belonged to them, that had been transferred to the Northern Securities Com- 824 pany, but I don't know; I have no knowledge on the subject.

Q. Didn't Mr. Harriman sell his stock to J. P. Morgan & Co. in the Northern Pacific in the fall previous?

A. I understood he had, or the greater portion of it.

Mr. STETSON. You are continually referring to the summer and fall. Ask Mr. Kennedy the direct question whether he knows the time.

Q. Do you know the time, Mr. Kennedy, when Mr. Harriman sold his stock in the Northern Pacific to J. P. Morgan & Co.?

825 A. I do not.

Q. Approximately?

A. I think it was some time in the autumn last year.

Q. Did you understand, Mr. Kennedy, that at the time the Northern Securities Company was organized, and this board of directors, and this list submitted to you by Mr.—Colonel Clough——

A. Or whoever it was——

Q. I know, but you suggested him.

A. I qualified that.

826 Q. Do you know whether or not at that time Mr. Harriman was the owner and holder of any stock in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. He must have been a holder of stock, because he was a director.

Q. I mean anything more than to qualify as a director.

A. That I don't know.

Q. Did you know whether or not Jacob H. Schiff held or owned any stock in the Northern Pacific Railroad Company?

A. I don't know that, either.

827 Q. Now, Mr. Kennedy, was not there some explanation given to you as to why E. H. Harriman and Jacob H. Schiff were submitted on that list to you as directors in the Northern Securities Company?

A. I have no recollection of anything being said to me about it.

Q. You do not remember anything being said?

A. No, sir; except they were suggested as directors.

Q. Did you know that there had been any understanding or agreement with reference to the Union Pacific and the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific and the Burlington with 828 reference to the division of territory, etc.?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you ever hear from your associates or from any source that any such understanding had been reached?

A. No, sir; I know nothing whatever about it.

Q. Well, in this list that was submitted to you, the name of James J. Hill appears?

A. Yes.

Q. He was a large stockholder, and had been for many years, in the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. Yes, sir; I believe so. 829

Q. And in that list, John S. Kennedy—that is yourself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had always been a large owner in the stocks of both roads?

A. Yes.

Q. George F. Baker was also on that list?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. He had been a large owner and holder of stock in both roads?

A. I don't know about the Great Northern, but he had been 830 in the Northern Pacific.

Q. And D. Willis James had also been a large holder?

A. Yes.

Q. And you understood that George W. Perkins and Robert Bacon were both members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. There is a Mr. Perkins and a Mr. Bacon, both members of that firm.

Mr. LANCASTER. It is conceded, is it not, that G. W. Perkins is a member of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.?

The WITNESS. I don't know his initials. 831

Mr. STETSON. There is a firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., but not J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

Q. You understood at that time that both Mr. Perkins and Mr. Bacon were members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. Yes.

Q. And that J. P. Morgan & Co. were large holders and owners of Northern Pacific stock?

A. I supposed they were.

Q. You knew Samuel Thorne?

A. Yes. 832

Q. Was he an owner and holder of stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. I don't know about Northern Pacific. He was in the Great Northern.

Q. And Daniel S. Lamont?

A. I don't know whether he held stock in the Great Northern, but he did in the Northern Pacific.

Q. Colonel Clough?

833 A. I don't know about his holding. He was a stockholder in the Great Northern for years.

Q. And Mr. Lamont had been identified with the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And James Stillman—who was he?

A. President of the City Bank. I supposed everybody knew him.

Q. No; I don't know him. Was he a stockholder, Mr. Kennedy?

834 A. He must have been a stockholder of the Northern Pacific, because he is a director. What his holdings are I know nothing about.

Q. He had been a stockholder of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. He must have been, because he was director from the time of reorganization and since.

Q. He has been actively identified with the Northern Pacific for several years?

A. I don't know whether he has been or not. He has been 835 a director; that is all I know.

Q. At the time when this list was shown to you it contained names of men who had been to a greater or less extent identified as directors or large stockholders in both the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, except Jacob H. Schiff and E. H. Harriman?

A. I don't know whether the others were largely connected with both roads or not. I don't think you have mentioned all the names.

Q. Nicholas Terhune. I find he is a transfer agent of the 836 Great Northern Railway Company.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I never heard of him before, and I find that counsel of the Northern Pacific never did so. I conclude that he has not been very active with either of them?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know who he is?

A. He is transfer agent and holds some official position in the Great Northern office.

Q. I think I have named them all, Mr. Kennedy, except 837
E. H. Harriman and Jacob H. Schiff, and I say that all of those men had been either actively identified with the Northern Pacific or Great Northern in its management or had been large stockholders in those roads, excepting those two men.

A. Mr. Schiff was a large stockholder in the Great Northern, and was, at the time you refer to, a director in the Great Northern.

Q. Did you know what time he resigned?

A. I do not know that he ever resigned, but at the last election his time had expired and somebody else was elected in his 838 place—last autumn.

Q. He was a director, then, up to the time——

A. Of the last election, and had been for some time previously.

Q. I omitted George C. Clark. Do you know who he is?

A. Yes. He is Mr. Clark of the firm of Clark, Dodge & Co., bankers.

Q. Was he an owner and holder of stock in either road?

A. I don't know; I suppose he was, but I don't know.

Q. You don't know anything about that?

A. I do not. 839

Q. Well, you understood that at the time you saw this list here of names proposed, including Mr. Harriman and Mr. Schiff, that there was a complete understanding between the rival interests of the Union Pacific on one side and the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and Burlington on the other?

A. I had no information on the subject.

Q. And you made no inquiry?

A. No.

Q. You accepted the list as all right, without making in- 840 quiries?

A. Yes, sir; I accepted it as all right, and that they were the men to be elected, and that it was all right.

Q. You say that Mr. Schiff had been a director of the Great Northern for some years?

A. I think for two or three years. I think the directors are elected for three years, one-third each year. I think he had been a director for three years and that his term expired last autumn.

841 Q. You knew Mr. Schiff's and Mr. Hill's relations were somewhat unfriendly at that time, didn't you, in the autumn of 1901?

A. I don't know.

Q. Don't you know that their relations had become strained, and badly so?

A. I don't know. Mr. Hill, I believe, dined with Mr. Schiff a while ago. A man would not invite another to dine at his house if they were not friendly.

Q. I am not referring to their making up. I am referring 842 to last fall, and ask you if you know that their relations were not somewhat strained?

A. Yes, sir; I do. I think there had been some friction between them.

Q. Mr. Schiff was a member of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

A. Yes, sir; I think he is the senior member of that firm.

Q. And you understood that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had attempted the purchase of the Northern Pacific stock for Mr. Harriman.

A. I don't know that. I was not here, I told you. I was not here and know nothing about it.

843 NEW YORK, Thursday afternoon, March 28, 1902.

JOHN S. KENNEDY, being recalled in behalf of the defendant, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Kellogg:

Q. Mr. Kennedy, referring to your testimony as given by you on direct examination, you stated in substance that Mr. Hill, Mr. Baker, D. Willis James, Lord Mount Stephen, and Lord Strathcona purchased in the neighborhood of 26,000,000 of Northern Pacific stock. Did you mean that those four gentlemen purchased the whole 26,000,000?

A. No, sir; I think I said "about." I could not tell the 844 amount of that block of stock, but I understood that these gentlemen, with others, united in purchasing that stock.

Q. Now, did they unite in a joint purchase, or did each one buy the stock for himself?

A. Oh, each one for himself.

Q. That is, each one bought it separately?

A. I bought mine for myself, and paid for it, and nobody else.

Q. It was an individual holding and not a joint holding? 845

A. Yes, sir; an individual holding. Not a joint holding.

Q. On page 218 of your testimony as paged in the copy that I have, referring to this same Northern Pacific stock which you purchased, your answer is, in substance, that you may have sold a little, and your answer is as follows: "I held the greater part of it. I sold a little of it some time after, but by far the larger portion I held right along and hold it now."

A. I meant I held it till I sold it to the Northern Securities Company.

Mr. BULKLEY. I think he explained that afterwards. 846

Mr. KELLOGG. No; I read it carefully and he didn't explain it.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I think he said he turned it all in to the Northern Securities Company.

Mr. KELLOGG. I guess he intended to say that.

Q. Did you hold any stock in the Northern Pacific jointly with anybody else, or did you have any agreement or understanding with anybody as to how you should handle or sell or vote your stock in the Northern Pacific?

A. No, sir; never did. 847

Q. So far as you held and these other gentlemen, do you know whether they held theirs individually or as joint purchases?

A. I don't know, but I suppose as an individual purchase.

Q. Well, as far as you know, was there any agreement between these gentlemen in their Northern Pacific purchases that they should act together, or sell together, or vote together, or handle it together in any way?

A. There was none on my part. I never heard of any agreement of that sort with anybody.

Q. You referred to the holdings of the company occasionally 848 when you referred to the Northern Securities Company. Did you mean simply to hold stocks or to own it?

A. To own it.

Q. In the transfer or sale of your stock to the Northern Securities Company you sold it absolutely, did you?

A. I sold it absolutely to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. You have no control over it?

A. No control over the stock. I have over the Northern 849 Securities Company stock, of course, but not over the stock that I sold them.

Q. The stock that you received from the Northern Securities Company you own yourself?

A. Individually; yes.

Q. Have you any agreement or arrangement as to how you shall vote or handle that?

A. None whatever. Never heard such a thing suggested.

Q. You stated in your direct examination that the stockholders of the Great Northern Railway Company acted in har-850 mony. What do you mean by that?

A. I mean by that that, that so far as I am aware, there never was any question at an election, or any question ever came up or a difference between the different stockholders; at every annual meeting when an election was held that the stockholders were perfectly harmonious.

Q. They were satisfied, were they, with the management of Mr. Hill?

A. Satisfied with the management of Mr. Hill.

Q. In referring to the stock that you bought of J. P. Mor-851 gan & Co., at the suggestion of Mr. Hill, the 10,000 shares, did you buy that individually for yourself or did some one else have an interest in it?

A. I bought it for myself.

Q. The same answers would apply to that——

A. No one had any in it whatever except myself.

Q. On page 229 of the testimony, in stating one of the purposes of the securities company, you said it was simply to hold the stock which some of the principal stockholders held in one block. Did you mean by that that the securities company was 852 to hold it in one block or the principal stockholders of the Great Northern held it in one block?

A. I don't remember saying that, but what I undoubtedly meant was that they were the large shareholders in the Great Northern Railroad, and so far as I know had always sent their proxies to Mr. Hill, and they were agreed to put their stock into this securities company.

Q. You did not mean by that that the large shareholders of the Great Northern held their stock together by any community of interest?

A. No, sir. 853

Q. On pages 233 and 234 of the testimony this question was asked you, Mr. Kennedy:

"Now, Mr. Kennedy, is it not a fact that in the autumn of 1901, Mr. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., D. Willis James, George F. Baker, Lord Strathcona, and Lord Mount Stephen held a majority of the stock of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

"A. I can not speak as to a majority of the Great Northern; I don't think they held a majority of the Great Northern; I am pretty sure they don't; but we did hold a majority of the stock 854 of the Northern Pacific; at least, I was so informed."

Did you mean that those gentlemen held a majority of the Northern Pacific?

A. Not those gentlemen, but others who were friends of Mr. Hill; who they all were I don't know.

Q. That was the common stock?

A. The common stock.

Q. You didn't mean the total stock?

A. No, no; the common stock.

Q. Did you understand that the formation of the securities 855 company was in any way conditioned upon its acquiring a majority of the stock of both railroad companies?

A. No, sir; no such condition.

Q. Well, was it or was it not decided to form it whether it procured——

A. Whether it procured a majority or whether it did not.

Q. Was there ever any agreement, so far as you know, between the stockholders of the Northern Securities Company that any set of men, so far as you know, were to control the Northern Securities Company? 856

A. I never heard of such a thing.

Q. Or any control over it other than comes through a majority of the ownership of the stock?

A. That is the only way. Each man owns his own stock and can do as he likes with it.

Q. Did you know of any agreement between the majority stockholders of the Northern Pacific Company that they would all turn their stock in or sell it to the Northern Securities Company?

857 A. I know of no such agreement; never heard of it.

Q. So far as you know, did or did not the stockholders act individually as they saw fit?

A. They all acted individually.

Q. In selling their stock to the Northern Securities Company?

A. Certainly; I did, I know, and I suppose all the others did the same.

Q. When you say that Mr. Hill, yourself, and a few others had Great Northern stock enough so that by acting together an election could be controlled, or might prevent an adverse 858 combination, do you mean by that that you owned stock enough to vote a majority of the Great Northern stock, you and Mr. Hill and your friends?

A. No, sir; I did not mean that.

Q. What did you mean?

A. I meant that the affairs of the company had always been conducted harmoniously. I never heard of any trouble at any election, and Mr. Hill and the other gentlemen you have named and myself had such a large amount of stock that it would be very apt to control any election, unless some hostile parties 859 came in and were successful in securing the balance of the stock, which constituted a majority.

Q. Do you know whether the Great Northern stock was what you would call a speculative stock that changed hands rapidly or not?

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is objected to as not proper cross-examination and immaterial.

A. No, sir; it was not a speculative stock.

Q. Now, in the organization of the Northern Securities Company, or previous to the organization of the Northern Securities 860 Company, was there any question made or any discussion that that company was organized for the purpose of acquiring a majority of the stocks of both those railroads for the purposes of maintenance of rates, railroad rates, suppression of competition, or controlling competition or commerce on those roads?

Mr. BOUTELLE. Objected to as not proper cross-examination and incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. I have never heard of such a thing. I never heard such a thing suggested in any quarter whatever.

Q. Do you know whether a majority of the stockholders of 861 each of those companies, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, ever got together and agreed to form the Northern Securities Company? Did you ever hear of anything of that kind?

A. I never heard such a suggestion. I never heard of such a meeting. I don't believe, so far as I can judge, I ever heard of any such meeting having taken place.

Q. Or any agreement between them?

A. Or any agreement between them.

Q. State whether the organization of the Northern Securities 862
Company had any relation to or anything to do with the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific.

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Do you know whether it had any relation or anything to do with the purchase of the Harriman stock?

A. Not so far as I know. I believe it had not, and never heard of such a thing.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Hill had anything to do with the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred stock?

A. Not so far as I know. 863

Q. Was the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred stock undertaken for the purpose of giving the Northern Securities Company an opportunity to acquire the majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. It was not.

Q. Was the retirement of that stock a part of any scheme or plan to allow the Northern Securities Company, or anyone else, to obtain a control of the majority of the Northern Pacific stock?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, what did you understand had been the understand- 864 ing about the Northern Pacific preferred stock from the time of its issue?

Mr. BOUTELLE. Objected to as immaterial, not proper cross-examination, irrelevant, and incompetent.

A. I understood at the time the Northern Pacific was reorganized there was some question about issuing bonds or stock, and it was finally arranged to issue preferred stock with the right of redemption on the part of the company at any time—I think, for twenty years—on any 1st of January, either in whole or in part.

Q. Now, that voting trust was dissolved about what time?

A. I think it was about the beginning of last year, as near as I remember.

Q. And the annual meeting of the Northern Pacific was in what month? Do you remember?

A. The annual meeting was, I think, early in October.

Q. Why was the directors' meeting which passed the resolution for the retirement of the preferred stock held on the 13th of November, 1901? Do you know?

A. That is the regular meeting day. I think the by-laws provide that the board shall meet on the second Wednesday of every month, and I think that was the regular meeting day.

Q. Was that the first meeting after the election?

A. Yes; I believe that was the first meeting after the election. There was no meeting held in October because it was found they could not get a quorum, so that was passed over, and the first meeting after the election was held the second Wednesday in November. I don't remember the date, but I think it was the 13th.

Redirect examination by Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. Mr. Kennedy, when you speak of a number of parties who had acted harmoniously with Mr. Hill for a number of years past in connection with the affairs of the Great Northern road, do you refer to the parties whom Mr. Hill mentioned and to whom your attention was called on your direct examination—yourself, Mr. Baker, Lord Strathcona, Lord Mount Stephen, Mr. D. Willis James, Oliver Payne, and H. W. Cannon?

A. I am referring to the stockholders as a whole, not to a few, or those you have named, some of whom I do not know; but I refer to the stockholders as a whole.

Q. Was it a fact, Mr. Kennedy, that those parties whom I have mentioned had acted for years together in the affairs of the Great Northern road?

A. I can only answer you by saying that every meeting, so far as I can remember, when I was in this country, I sent my proxy to Mr. Hill. I had full confidence in him and his management, and I think I testified the other day when I was up that I believed the other stockholders who had a large majority did the same. 869

Q. You testified on your direct examination that a number of the holders of Great Northern stock who had always acted in harmony had talked over for a number of years the plan and scheme of organizing a securities or holding company. Now, whom do you refer to as those parties?

A. I think my testimony was I had talked with Mr. Hill. I don't remember. I would like to have it read to me if I made such an answer.

Q. Was your familiarity, or understanding, or conference in respect to the organization of a securities company when it was first brought up confined to your talks with Mr. Hill? 870

A. So far as I remember my talks were with Mr. Hill. I may have explained to Mr. James or to some other gentlemen about it. So far as I can recollect now I can only recall conversation with Mr. Hill about it.

Q. Well, you understood at that time, did you not, who those parties were that were going into that holding or securities company?

A. I did not, except I believed Mr. Hill's friends, the gentlemen you have named, and possibly others. 871

Q. On your direct examination, as I recall it, you testified, in substance, that the original plan contemplated taking in a number of gentlemen who had always acted together and in harmony into this holding company, and that afterwards the plan or scheme was enlarged so as to give all stockholders equal opportunity.

A. I believe I testified substantially that.

Q. Now, you must have had in mind at the time that the original plan of forming a securities company was talked over certain parties who were to go into that? 872

A. Well, in talking with Mr. Hill I always took it for granted that some of the gentlemen you have named—and some you have named I don't know—were willing to go into such an organization.

Q. So that it was generally understood between all of you when this plan of forming a securities company was organized that those were the parties that were to go in?

873 A. Those were some of them.

Q. Now, were those the same parties who made the purchase of the $26,000,000 from the Northern Pacific at the time that the latter road was organized?

A. That I can not tell you, for I do not know who they all were. I think I stated in my other testimony that I could not answer that question.

Q. Well, do you know who the parties were, besides yourself and Mr. Hill, who purchased parts of that $26,000,000?

A. The only one I know of is Mr. D. Willis James. He 874 told me he had purchased some. The others I can not speak for at all.

Q. Do you know by whom the purchase of that block of Northern Pacific stock was suggested?

A. I don't know who suggested it. No; I don't know that.

Mr. KELLOGG. Do you mean, suggested to him?

Q. Yes; by whom it was suggested to you.

A. No, sir; I don't remember that.

Q. Do you know by whom the negotiations for that purchase were inaugurated and who conducted the negotiations?

875 A. I don't know, but I think it was Mr. Hill, but I won't be certain.

Q. Aren't you quite positive, Mr. Kennedy, that Mr. Hill engineered that purchase and suggested it, and that it was carried out by you gentlemen who had acted in harmony, as you stated in your cross-examination, from the beginning?

A. I can not say.

Q. Now, coming down to the stock flurry in 1901, who conducted the negotiations with Mr. Morgan for the purchase of the $10,000,000 of stock that was taken up from him?

876 Mr. KELLOGG. He explained that before. He said he bought a million of it at Mr. Hill's suggestion.

A. I told you the whole story.

Q. So that the same parties that you have already referred to were the parties who purchased that additional block of $10,000,000?

A. That I don't know. I only know what I purchased myself.

Q. When the matter of organizing the present Northern Securities Company—I am not speaking now of the old company that was in the air, but the matter of organizing the securities company that was actually organized—was first brought to your attention, did you gentlemen who considered that subject not know pretty definitely in regard to then present holdings of Northern Pacific stock? 877

A. Of course we knew about how the stock was held.

Q. And was it not then generally understood between you that the parties who were acting with you and had acted with you during this flurry, and who had stood together, were agreed on the general plan or policy of putting their holdings into the securities company? 878

A. I don't recall any general agreement about it.

Q. I am not asking for an agreement, but wasn't it understood that that was the policy, inclination, or purpose, or wish of all of these parties?

A. Personally I supposed the majority of that stock would go into the securities company of the Northern Pacific common stock.

Q. You talked that subject over with Mr. Hill quite thoroughly, did you not? 879

A. I don't know what you would call thoroughly. We talked two or three times about it.

Q. And he informed you that he had conferred with the other parties in reference to it?

A. I have no recollection of his making any such statement as that.

Q. From whom did you obtain your personal impression that all these parties would go into the Northern Securities Company?

A. It was partly from Mr. Hill and partly from conversations with Mr. Perkins or Mr. Steele, of J. P. Morgan & Co. 880 No, I think it was Mr. Perkins.

Q. Of Morgan & Co.?

A. Yes.

Q. So that at the time you planned the organization of this present securities company it was pretty generally understood that all of you gentlemen would put your holdings in there?

A. I supposed they would. I had no positive information on the subject. They were free to do as they pleased.

881 Q. And it was your plan and purpose, and the plan and purpose of those who organized this securities company, to have the stock go in there?

A. If the people chose to sell it. We couldn't compel it.

Q. I understand that; but wasn't that your wish and purpose?

A. We thought it probable that they would. I have testified to that.

Q. And you acted upon that supposition in going ahead and organizing?

882 A. I don't know whether other people did or not.

Q. But you did?

A. That was my idea.

Q. Now, was the plan of retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred explained to you before it was put through?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Under the plan of retirement adopted by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, you gentlemen who had laid out this plan of Northern Securities Company received a majority of the common stock, did you not?

883 A. When was that? I don't just get that.

Q. I say, when the plan was put through, you received a majority of the common stock.

A. Which plan?

Q. The plan that was actually put through.

A. The plan of redemption of the preferred stock?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. What did you say after that?

Q. I say, you gentlemen received a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific—of the common stock?

884 Mr. KELLOGG. Whom do you refer to?

Mr. BOUTELLE. I am speaking of these same gentlemen who have been acting together all through. I don't think the witness misunderstands me.

A. I do misunderstand you. I don't think it is clear.

Q. You have already explained to us there was a number of gentlemen that had conferred together in regard to the organization of this Northern Securities Company, and that that discussion——

A. I did not tell you that, sir.

Q. Didn't you state you had talked with Mr. Hill and understood from him that all you gentlemen were favorable to that? 885

A. All which gentlemen?

Q. All the gentlemen I have referred to.

A. I told you some of them I didn't know and couldn't answe

Q. As far as you talked, that was the understanding.

A. That some of those gentlemen were willing to come in.

Q. And that was all?

A. You mentioned gentlemen's names here that I don't know. I never conferred with them. 886

Q. Didn't Mr. Hill state to you and give you to understand so that you felt practically sure that a majority of that stock was going in before the securities company was organized.

A. The impression I got was that a majority would go in, but when you ask for knowledge, I don't know.

Q. Now, Mr. Kennedy, did you understand that the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company, when that company was organized, would handle its property, or operate its property, or use its property in any other or different way from any other similar organization? Explain how similar 887 organizations would do.

A. I can not answer that.

Q. Do you understand that the Northern Securities Company, or its board of directors, would operate or control its property in any other way than any ordinary corporation would?

A. They would certainly control their property under the terms of the charter.

Q. Did you understand that they would control their property in the way that corporations ordinarily control the property that they own? 888

A. I am not familiar with the way corporations control their property.

Q. You have been a member of corporations for a great many years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have been a member of boards of directors of railways for many years?

A. Yes, sir.

889 Q. And been a stockholder in various corporations?

A. Yes.

Q. What I want to know is whether you understood that the Northern Securities Company was going to control its affairs and property any different from any other corporation?

A. I supposed it would control its affairs like any corporation organized for such purposes would do.

Q. Now, what was the purpose?

A. You have got it in the articles of incorporation.

Q. Can you state any peculiarity in its purposes that would 890 take it out of the run so far as control was concerned or proprietorship, or so far as management was concerned?

A. Take it out of what?

Q. The ordinary run of corporations?

A. It would conduct business as corporations organized for similar purposes would do.

Q. Can you suggest any difference between this corporation and any ordinary corporation, so far as operating and controlling its properties are concerned?

Mr. KELLOGG. You are asking Mr. Kennedy's opinions about 891 legal questions.

Mr. BOUTELLE. I don't think so. I think this is legitimate in view of your cross-examination.

MARCH 20, 1902 (2 o'clock in the afternoon).

All parties appeared, pursuant to adjournment, and the following proceedings were had, to wit:

GEORGE W. PERKINS, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Lancaster:

Mr. KELLOGG. The defendant objects to any testimony and to each and every question and answer on the ground that it is 892 incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and that the bill in equity states no ground of equitable relief and no cause of action against the defendant company. Further, that no relief can be had in this case affecting the interests of the Northern Securities Company or any of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company without said company and said stockholders each being made parties to the bill.

It is stipulated that this objection may be considered as made to each and every question without renewing the same as the 893 questions are asked, and it is also stipulated that this may apply to each witness without repeating the objection.

Q. J. P. Morgan & Co. is a copartnership, I believe?

A. It is; it is a private banking house.

Q. Are you a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. Yes, sir; I am.

Q. How long have you been a member?

A. About one year.

Q. And you were a member during the summer and—spring and summer of 1901? 894

A. Yes, sir; the late spring and summer.

Q. Had you been connected with that firm prior to the time you were admitted as a partner?

A. No, sir.

Q. Never had any connection with it prior to that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. I understand you were never connected before that time?

A. In no way whatsoever.

Q. Can you give us the date when you were admitted into the firm? 895

A. I can not, but about March of last year.

Q. March of 1901?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Perkins, between May 1 and May 9, 1901, did your firm purchase a large number of shares of the Northern Pacific common stock?

A. I believe they purchased more or less. The question of a large amount is relative.

Q. How much Northern Pacific common stock did the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. purchase during that period between 896
May 1 and May 9?

A. I do not know.

Q. Can you give us the amount so purchased, approximately?

A. No, I can not. I went into the firm in March, as I have stated. During that time—in April and May—I was getting in touch with the general business of the firm, and went abroad about the 1st of July, so that the immediate daily routine of 897 the firm's business was scarcely in my hands at the times you speak of.

Q. At that time—from May 1 to May 9—was Mr. Morgan abroad?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when did he return?

A. Early in July.

Q. And what time did he go abroad?

A. I think—I am not certain as to this—I think early in April.

898 Q. Did Mr. Morgan purchase some of the Northern Pacific common stock while he was abroad; that is, purchase it in the market?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. You never knew or learned from your partners that such transactions were taking place?

A. No, sir; I did not.

Q. How many shares of the Northern Pacific common stock did the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. hold on May 1, 1901?

A. I don't know.

899 Q. Do you know approximately?

A. I do not; no, sir.

Q. Will the books of J. P. Morgan & Co. show exactly how much stock they owned on May 1, 1901?

A. I could not say whether they would or not, but you may get to that later on. That is, some other questions.

Q. Will you give the names of the gentlemen constituting the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.—who constitute it now and who constituted it on May 1, 1901?

A. There has been no change during that time. I could not 900 give all of the firm.

Mr. STETSON. I can.

Mr. LANCASTER. I think we had better have that if you will give it to us.

Mr. STETSON. I will write it out. You go on, and I will fill this in.

Q. Who was in general charge of the firm's business during Mr. Morgan's absence?

A. Mr. Robert Bacon.

Q. And who else next to him?

A. Charles Steele. 901

Q. Mr. Bacon is now abroad, is he not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And has been for some time?

A. Since the last fall.

Q. So that Mr. Bacon, as I understand it, was in general charge of the firm's business, and next to him Mr. Steele?

A. Mr. Steele; yes, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Bacon have special charge of the Northern Pacific transactions, Mr. Perkins?

A. So far as they related to our firm's business, do you mean? 902

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Steele have anything to do with those transactions, Northern Pacific transactions, at that time?

A. I don't know, as I said, what you mean by Northern Pacific transactions.

Q. The purchase or sale of Northern Pacific stock, purchased for the firm or sold on behalf of the firm?

A. I think not.

Q. You think Mr. Steele had nothing to do with it? 903

A. I think nothing; if he had it was very, very little.

Q. Mr. Perkins, have you any doubt but that the books of your company would show the amount of Northern Pacific interest held by your firm on May 1, 1901?

A. They probably would.

Q. And your books, would they show the purchase between May 1 and May 9, on account of your firm?

A. I can not say as to that.

Q. Well, in the ordinary course of business whatever is purchased for the firm, or by the firm, for its own account, or sold 904 by the firm on its own account, would necessarily appear on your books?

A. I should think so.

Q. I am merely getting at it, Mr. Perkins?

A. Yes; I appreciate it. I was a very new member of the firm, and a great part of that I don't know. I am not definite about that, not being there at the time.

Q. Were you present at any conference held between your 905 firm or any of the members of your firm and Mr. Harriman, Mr. Schiff, Mr. Hill, and a number of others immediately after May 9, a few days after May 9, 1901?

A. No, sir; I was not.

Q. Did the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. purchase or agree to purchase Northern Pacific common stock of Mr. Harriman, or of Mr. Schiff, or the Union Pacific Railway Company, or of the Oregon Short Line Railway Company subsequent to May 9, and, say, prior to November 1?

A. No; not to my knowledge.

906 Q. As a matter of fact, did the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. purchase on its own account, or for its own account, or on account of others, Northern Pacific common stock of either Mr. Schiff, Mr. Harriman, or the Union Pacific, or the Oregon Short Line subsequent to May 9, 1901?

A. You have asked to cover up to November 1. What do you mean now? I do not get the difference between the two questions.

Q. I say up to November 1?

A. I have answered that, that they did not.

907 Q. Subsequent to November 1, 1901, did your firm, or any of the members of the firm, for your own account and for the account of other parties, purchase of either Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff, or the Union Pacific, or the Oregon Short Line, Northern Pacific common stock?

A. Yes, sir; we did.

Q. And how much?

A. Between $75,000,000 and $78,000,000 to $80,000,000; somewhere along there; I don't remember the exact amount.

Q. Common stock, you mean?

908 A. Yes, sir; I say common. I mean common and preferred.

Q. Your firm purchased from whom?

A. Well, we purchased from, I think, what was commonly known as the Union Pacific interests—Mr. Harriman and Mr. Pierce. I think the stock was in the name of Harriman and Pierce. I am not sure as to that.

Q. And did that purchase which you speak of, which included both common and preferred, amount to about $78,000,000?

A. I think so, between $75,000,000 and $80,000,000.

Q. Did that purchase include, as you understood it at the time and understand it now, all the stock, common and preferred, held by the Union Pacific interests? 909

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by the Union and Pacific interests you would include Mr. Harriman, Mr. Schiff, and the Oregon Short Line?

A. I don't know that I am bound to testify as to that, but in my own mind I would say, yes, sir.

Q. Well, when you use the term Union Pacific interests in that connection I understand you to mean, Mr. Perkins, both the Union Pacific, a corporation, the Oregon Short Line, and Mr. Harriman and Mr. Schiff? 910

A. As I understand it; yes, sir.

Q. What was the date of that purchase of the entire holdings, both common and preferred, in the Northern Pacific road, from what you term the Union Pacific interests?

A. I can not give you the date, but it was subsequent to the organization of the Northern Securities Company.

Mr. LANCASTER. The Northern Securities Company was organized, I think, November 13, was it not, Mr. Stetson?

Mr. KELLOGG. I think that was the date; the articles were filed on that date. 911

Q. Mr. Perkins, had the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. any agreement or understanding with either Mr. Harriman, Mr. Schiff, or the officers of the Union Pacific, or of the Oregon Short Line, for that purchase prior to the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Not to my knowledge. I believe not.

Q. Had you any personal knowledge of the negotiations which led up to the actual purchase which you have described?

A. Yes, sir. 912

Q. You were selected by members of your firm?

A. I conducted those negotiations.

Q. Now, when did they commence?

A. I can not give you the date, but after the Northern Securities Company was organized and in existence.

Q. And no negotiations, to your knowledge, were had by your firm with either Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff, or any of the officers of the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line 913 prior to the actual formation and incorporation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Not to my knowledge; no, sir.

Q. Were the stocks of the Union Pacific interests, amounting, as you say, to between $75,000,000 and $80,000,000 of both common and preferred stock; were those stocks bought for cash?

A. Partly.

Q. How much?

A. I do not recollect. I should say something like $10,000,000 cash.

914 Q. And the balance, how were they to be paid for?

A. In stock of the Northern Securities Company, if we could get it for them.

Q. All of the preferred stock held by the Union Pacific interests were subsequently retired?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that stock which you purchased from the Union Pacific interests, the preferred stock, was that to be paid for, or any portion of it, by the stock of the Northern Securities Company?

915 A. It is difficult to answer that. There were three separate transactions going on about this time.

Q. What do you mean; with the Union Pacific interests?

A. Well, in a general way, not specially with the Union Pacific interests. Perhaps I should have said two transactions. There was the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific and the question of the organization of the Northern Securities Company. Our business was with the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific.

Q. Now, do you remember the number of shares of the 916 common stock which was turned over by the Union Pacific interests to your firm?

A. No; it was less than one-half.

Q. About $37,000,000?

A. I think so; something like that.

Q. And the balance of the common stock, amounting to about $41,000,000, was held by your firm, Mr. Hill and Mr. Hill's associates?

A. Something over $41,000,000.

Mr. STETSON. What do you mean by the term associates? 917
You had it out with Mr. Kennedy yesterday, but you have not had it with Mr. Perkins yet.

Q. No. Mr. Perkins, you answered the question that it was held by yourself and Mr. Hill and his associates. Whom did you understand in answering that question his associates to be? That is merely to explain your answer?

A. Mr. Hill and Mr. George F. Baker, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, and several other gentlemen. I do not recollect who they all were.

Q. Lord Strathcona? 918

A. Yes, an English gentleman.

Q. And Lord Mount Stephen?

A. Yes, sir; I believe their names were also in the list.

Mr. KELLOGG. You did not want to say that they held the whole 41,000,000?

A. No, I did not understand that.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is leading the witness a little, Mr. Kellogg.

Mr. KELLOGG. I should not think you gentlemen would raise that question. 919

Q. You understood, Mr. Perkins, at the time of the purchase from the Union Pacific interests that a clear majority of the Northern Pacific common was held by your firm, Mr. Hill and his associates?

A. Well, it hardly seems to me that the word associates is the proper word. People that we knew and were friendly with, and that sort of thing.

Q. Use it in that sense then.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the common stock that was turned over by the 920
Union Pacific interests was entitled under the retirement scheme to its proportionate share of the new common stock to be issued?

A. Yes.

Q. And that new common stock was issued to those interests; that is representing those interests?

A. Yes.

Q. You bought the Union Pacific interests, both common and preferred?

921 A. Yes.

Q. And you handled the common stock so purchased from the Union Pacific interests as you would any other purchase in your own interests? You used that stock and took your proportionate share of the new issue of common stock?

A. I do not understand that question.

Q. You took the common stock that you purchased from the Union Pacific interests and used it as a basis for subscriptions to the certificates of indebtedness issued by the Northern Pacific Company, didn't you?

922 A. I do not understand that. I am very stupid, but I do not see it.

Q. Mr. Perkins, you purchased the common and preferred stock of the Union Pacific interests, amounting to between $75,000,000 and $80,000,000, shortly after the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what did you ultimately do with all of that stock?

A. We sold it to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. And when?

923 A. I should say two or three weeks after the company was organized.

Q. And for what?

A. For their stock and for money.

Q. How much money did the Northern Securities Company pay?

A. My recollection is something like $8,000,000 or $10,000,000.

Q. You paid on this purchase from the Union Pacific interests how much cash to the Union Pacific interests? You 924 have already stated that?

A. Yes, sir; I have.

Q. About how much?

A. Something approximating $10,000,000; I do not recollect exactly.

Q. Did you pay to the Union Pacific interests in cash just the amount that you received in cash from the Northern Securities Company on the sale?

A. It is my recollection we did.

Q. In other words, in conducting that sale or purchase from 925 the Union Pacific interests you took the stock into your own hands, and then turned it over to the Northern Securities Company on precisely the same terms that you purchased from the Union Pacific interests?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Paying to the Union Pacific interests in cash the same amount that the Northern Securities Company paid to you when you turned the stock into them afterwards?

A. Yes, sir; that is my recollection.

Q. Mr. Perkins, did your firm in conducting that purchase 926 from the Union Pacific interests act for yourself as principals or as brokers?

A. We acted for ourselves as bankers. I don't know as you can say as brokers.

Q. Did you purchase that stock upon your own account or did you purchase it as a broker, with a previous agreement with the Northern Securities Company as to what should be done with it?

A. We had no previous agreement with anyone save the Union Pacific people, who wanted us to make this transaction, which we finally completed for them. They were desirous of securing 927 the Northern Securities stock.

Q. And at the time of the purchase from the Union Pacific interests it was understood that you were to turn this stock over to the Northern Securities Company, and the stocks and cash of the Northern Securities Company was to be turned over to you and by you to the Union Pacific interests?

A. If we could get it. If we could make the transaction.

Q. The Northern Securities Company was in existence and had a board of directors at the time you purchased this stock of the Northern Pacific, both common and preferred, was it not? 928

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And had you any arrangement or agreement with the Northern Securities Company with reference to this large purchase from the Union Pacific at the time you made that purchase?

A. We had not, and we almost failed to make the exchange.

Q. So that at the time you made the purchase from the Union Pacific interests, Mr. Perkins, you had no contract or agreement or understanding as to the disposition of that stock to the Northern Securities Company?

929 A. No, sir; not to my knowledge.

Q. And all negotiations with reference to the subsequent disposition of that stock—common and preferred—to the Northern Securities Company were had after the conclusion of the deal with the Union Pacific interests?

A. We did not close any deal with the Union Pacific interests.

Q. Well, at the time you purchased from the Union Pacific interests did you pay part cash?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you pay any cash at the time you made the deal with 930 them?

A. We undertook to get them a certain amount of stock from the Northern Securities Company—a certain sum of money in exchange for their holdings.

Q. Was this stock absolutely transferred by the Harriman or Union Pacific interests to your firm, or simply transferred to you for the purpose of making a disposition of it to the Northern Securities Company?

A. I do not know what the transfer books will show.

Q. Well, what was the fact?

931 A. I do not know. That would simply be a matter of clerical work.

Q. What was your understanding or arrangement in case you had failed to make a deal with the Northern Securities Company for the turning in of all this stock to it; would you have had it on your hands—78,000,000 or 80,000,000 of preferred stock?

A. No, sir; the Union Pacific would have had it.

Q. So that in that transaction throughout your firm was acting as a broker for the disposition of that stock or for the turn-932 ing of that stock in or for the sale of that stock to the Northern Securities Company, was it not?

A. I don't know that the word "broker" is the proper word. I don't what you would call it. We were negotiating for the Union Pacific for this transaction, a very common position for us to be in.

Q. I have no doubt of it. I understand that, Mr. Perkins, but you were negotiating a sale of that stock for the Harriman or Union Pacific interests.

A. For something else, if we could get that something else 933 delivered.

Q. And if you had failed to make that sale to the Northern Securities Company you would not have had that stock on hand, but it would have belonged to the Union Pacific interests?

A. I suppose we might have, or take something else for it.

Q. It would have to be a new trade?

A. Further negotiations; yes, sir.

Q. Did your firm, as a matter of fact, agree absolutely to take this stock from the Union Pacific interests and obligate yourselves for the purchase price, regardless of further negotiations 934 with the Northern Securities Company?

A. Hardly, I should think.

Q. Now, in November, 1901, how much Northern Pacific common did your firm hold or own on its own rights?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know approximately?

A. I do not.

Q. Did your firm during November or December, 1901, sell some $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 of Northern Pacific common to Mr. J. J. Hill? 935

A. I don't know.

Q. If there was any such transaction, you had no personal knowledge of it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Had you anything to do in the conferences or negotiations that were had between leading stockholders of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific with reference to the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did your firm, in the summer and fall of 1901, hold stock 936 in the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I don't know whether we did or not. The Great Northern?

Q. Yes. Did your firm turn in any of the common stock of the Northern Pacific into the Northern Securities Company and take the stock of the Northern Securities Company in payment therefor?

A. I don't know. That was not a part of my business.

937 Q. Does your firm hold or own any of the Northern Securities Company stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when did they acquire it?

A. I don't know. After the company was organized, I suppose, in November or December. I don't know as to that.

Q. Did they purchase it for cash, or did they exchange Northern Pacific or Great Northern stock for it?

A. I don't know.

Q. Does your firm own any of the stock of the Great North-938 ern Railway Company now?

A. I don't know whether we do or not.

Q. Well, do they own any of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company?

A. All these are details of bookkeeping and schedules. It is very difficult to carry in one's mind.

Q. Now, whatever stock the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. hold in the Northern Securities Company, did they acquire it immediately upon the organization of that company, or within a few weeks thereafter?

939 A. I can not say; no, sir.

Q. Mr. Perkins, I understood you to say that you did not know whether your firm held any Great Northern Railway Company stock at the present time?

A. That is what I said, sir.

Q. You understood me to mean by that to own the stock absolutely?

A. Exactly.

Q. Do you know whether your firm hold a large amount of the Great Northern stock as collateral securities for loans?

940 A. It is impossible to tell.

Q. You don't know?

A. No, sir.

Q. Does your firm hold any of the Great Northern stock at the present time, or since January 1 has it held any as trustee for the Northern Securities Company?

A. I don't know. That would come under the same general list, of course.

Q. You don't know whether it has or has not?

A. No, sir. 941

Q. You are a director of the Northern Securities Company, Mr. Perkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were elected a director, when?

A. When the company was organized.

Q. And that was on or about or prior to November 13?

A. About that time. The middle of November, I should say.

Q. Have you attended the meetings of the board of directors since that time?

A. When I have been in the city. 942

Q. Are you a member of the executive committee?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember the names of the executive committee?

A. I don't think I could name them all now.

Q. Has there been a meeting of the board of directors which you have attended within the last four weeks?

A. No, sir.

Q. When was the last meeting which you attended?

A. I do not recollect. It was a number of weeks ago.

Q. Six weeks? 943

A. Yes; I should say more than that.

Q. Probably eight weeks ago, Mr. Perkins?

A. I should think as long ago as that; yes.

Q. You are also a member of the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were elected immediately after the organization of that company last summer or fall?

A. I believe so.

Q. Mr. Perkins, you say that you do not yourself know the amount of stock or number of shares in either the Great Northern or Northern Pacific or Northern Securities Company that your firm hold now or held during the summer and fall or early winter of 1901? 944

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who of your firm does know the number of shares in each of those companies?

A. I am sure I do not know. I am sure I do not know who would know that. It is rather a large organization.

945 Q. Mr. Perkins, is it true that you would be unable yourself to ascertain the number of shares of stock owned by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. at the present time in these different companies which I have mentioned?

A. I would not know until I tried as to that.

Q. Is Mr. Steele more familiar with those matters than yourself?

A. I don't know that he would be on the point that you name. The way you put it, it does not occur to me that that information would be wanted by anyone in that shape.

946 Q. Mr. Perkins, do you now know that your firm purchased some 16,000,000 or 18,000,000 of the Northern Pacific Company stock between May 1 and May 9, 1901?

A. No, sir.

Q. You neither knew of that fact at the time nor have you learned of it since. Is that right?

A. I don't know if it was a fact then or now; yes.

Q. You don't know, then, of your own knowledge whether your firm purchased any stock either for its own account or for others; that is, stock in the Northern Pacific Railway Company, 947 during that period?

A. Well, I know in a general way that we purchased Northern Pacific stock. I was only just in the firm and went away immediately after that, you see, and was not in active management of any part of the business at any time you refer to.

Mr. STETSON. I think on this particular question you had better ask Mr. Steele.

The WITNESS. Yes; he was here then.

Q. Mr. Perkins, whenever any stock is bought on account of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. for its own account, in the ordi-948 nary course of business, there would be an entry made of that fact on your books, wouldn't there?

Mr. STETSON. I keep warning you, Mr. Lancaster, that Mr. Perkins don't know any more about it than you do, or I do. If you wait until Mr. Steele comes, he will tell you.

A. It pertains to the bookkeeping department, you see. It is a pretty big organization.

Q. Will you look over that list, so we can have that put into the record as the members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. I believe that is correct. I would not want to swear that 949 is all the members of the firm, but all those are members.

Q. And those members of the firm against whose names is written Philadelphia are residents of Philadelphia, are they?

A. I believe they are. I have heard they were.

Q. And that list may be taken as a correct list of the members of the firm?

A. I said to the examiner that these gentlemen are all members of the firm, but whether it is all the members of the firm or not, I don't know.

Mr. STETSON. I represent Mr. Perkins and the firm, and also 950 the Northern Pacific Railway Company, of New York. Can you produce Peter Power for examination, your client?

Mr. LAMB. Certainly.

Mr. STETSON. Will you, so we can fill up some of the gaps?

Mr. LAMB. Certainly; I will have him here by to-morrow afternoon.

NOTE.—By stipulation between the parties the following questions and answers by Mr. Perkins are inserted as his cross-examination, to have the same force and effect as questions and answers propounded and given before the master: 951

Cross-examination by Mr. STETSON:

Q. Did any plan or proposition, of which you have any knowledge, for the retirement of the preferred stock have any relation to or any connection with any agreement, or any statements with, by, or to Mr. Hill?

A. Absolutely none.

Q. I ask you the same with reference to Mr. Schiff?

A. I make the same answer.

Q. The same with reference to Mr. Harriman?

A. The same answer. 952

Q. The same question with reference to the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. The same answer.

Q. The retirement of the preferred stock, to your knowledge, was wholly independent of these persons and this corporation, and any connection therewith?

A. Absolutely.

953 Q. When was there first brought to your attention the adoption or the formation of any company, whether called the Northern Securities Company or any other name, to hold the stock of the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. The idea of a holding company to hold the stock of the Northern Pacific Company was brought to my attention after my return from Europe in the autumn of 1901.

Q. You have stated that the so-called Harriman stock, purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co., as bankers, was sold to the 954 Northern Securities Company after that company was organized. Can you be any more specific in your statement of the date?

A. My recollection is that the terms of sale were finally agreed upon upon or about Monday, November 18, 1901.

Q. You have stated that you had not completed any arrangement or agreement with the Northern Securities Company with reference to this large purchase from the Union Pacific Company at the time you made the purchase, and you further stated that you had almost failed to make the exchange. What do you mean by that?

955 A. I mean that there was quite a hitch which arose from the fact that in our talk with Mr. Harriman and his friends we had assumed that their holdings of preferred and common stock were somewhat larger than they actually proved to be, and we had negotiated with the Northern Securities Company upon that basis. When they came to deliver the stock, which was the first time that we knew accurately just how many shares of stock they held, it turned out that they did not have so much as we had supposed in the negotiations and had represented to the Northern Securities Company that we could deliver. Of 956 course, the Northern Securities Company refused to take that amount of stock on the same basis that they had agreed upon for the amount which they had supposed was to be delivered. We succeeded in effecting a compromise, under which the Northern Securities Company accepted the amount of stock which Mr. Harriman and his friends were able to deliver. Afterwards a substantial reduction of the price was made, owing to the fact that the amount was not as great as the Northern Securities Company had supposed it would be. This was upon or about Monday, November 18, 1901.

Q. I understand, then, Mr. Perkins, that you did not know, until after the Northern Securities Company was organized, how much Northern Pacific common Mr. Harriman and his friends held? 957

A. That is right.

Q. I understand you, Mr. Perkins, that when the Northern Securities Company was organized the so-called Harriman stock had not been purchased by you or by anyone for that company?

A. That is right.

Q. And, as far as you know, no arrangement for its sale to the Northern Securities Company had ever been made? 958

A. No, sir; there had been some negotiations, but there had been no final agreement.

Q. Well, as far as you know, was there any connection between the organization of the Northern Securities Company and the acquisition of the Harriman stock?

A. None whatever.

Q. Was the fact of the acquisition of a majority of the stock of both or of either the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern Railway Company made a condition of the organization of the Northern Securities Company, as far as you know? 959

A. Not to my knowledge, sir.

Q. Was there any agreement between J. P. Morgan & Co. or J. P. Morgan and his associates, and Mr. Hill and his associates, to organize the Northern Securities Company and to transfer to it the ownership of a majority of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway Company stock?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Was there any agreement of any such character?

A. Not to my knowledge. 960

Q. So far as you know, or as was known to your firm, so far as you know, in the organization of the Northern Securities Company, or in the transfer thereto of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, or of the Great Northern Railway Company, was there any purpose or intent to suppress competition, or in any way to control competition, or to restrain trade or commerce between the States, or within the States, or within any State?

961 PLAINTIFF'S COUNSEL. That is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial and not proper cross-examination, going into a subject not covered by the direct.

A. I answer there was not.

Q. Or was there any purpose or intent in such organization or in connection therewith, as far as known to you, to regulate rates or to maintain rates upon railroads?

PLAINTIFF'S COUNSEL. The same objection as the last.

A. There was not.

Q. In any plan discussed for the retirement of the preferred 962 stock, was there any question ever raised, to your knowledge, or any doubt expressed, that such retirement should be for the benefit of the common stockholders and effectually and finally should withdraw all interests of the preferred stockholders?

A. No; none to my knowledge.

Q. And the discussion as to the plan for the retirement of the preferred stock, to which you have made reference, concerned only the way of effecting that retirement, and not the terms that should be offered to the holders of preferred stock?

A. There never was any discussion as to anything being offered 963 to the preferred stockholders except par in cash.

Q. As stated in their contract?

A. Yes.

W. P. CLOUGH, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Lancaster:

Q. Mr. Clough, you are a resident of New York City at the present time—an actual resident?

A. My legal residence, I suppose, is yet in St. Paul, Minn.

Q. You are at present one of the directors of the Northern Securities Company?

964 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have been such director since the organization of that company?

A. From a time, I think, within a few days afterwards; not from the very beginning of the organization.

Q. You were, prior to the organization of the Northern Securities Company, also a director and vice-president of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. For a number of years before the Northern Securities Company was organized I was a director of the Great Northern and also its vice-president, but at some date last fall, about the time of the organization of the Northern Securities Company, whether just before or just after I can not remember now, because I do not try to carry it in my mind, I resigned all official connection of every kind with the Great Northern Railway Company and have not been connected with it in any manner since that time. 965

Mr. KELLOGG. Make the same objection and stipulation as to the other witnesses. 966

Mr. LANCASTER. Yes, sir.

Q. You are a vice-president of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have been since shortly after the organization?

A. Since within a few days from the time of the organization I have been fourth vice-president.

Q. You are also a member of the executive committee of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir. 967

Q. And as vice-president of the company are you in charge of the office of the Northern Securities Company here in New York?

A. In general charge. I don't think I am in general charge of the office in the sense of having power to decide upon its business affairs.

Q. Who is in charge of the offices of the company here in New York?

A. The board of directors and executive committee.

Q. You have been devoting most of your time, have you not, Colonel, since the organization of the Northern Securities Company, to the affairs of that company? 968

A. A very large part, yes, sir, of every day.

Q. What amount of stock, what number of shares of the Great Northern Railway Company, does the Northern Securities Company hold and own?

A. I do not remember the exact figures, because I do not try to carry those things in my mind. My recollection, subject to 969 correction by examining the data, is that transfers of Great Northern stock to the Northern Securities Company have been completed to the extent of about 50,000 shares.

Q. Fifty thousand?

A. Of about 50,000 shares, yes, sir; where the transfers have been completed.

Q. And when were those transfers completed?

A. At various times, running through the months of November, December, and January.

Q. What do you mean by transfers have been completed, Mr.
970 Clough?

A. The by-laws of the Great Northern Railway Company provide that stock shall be transferred only in a given way, and that is upon the records of the Great Northern Railway Company.

Q. And you mean by that——

A. What I mean is, by the word "completed" that about that number of shares had been transferred to the Northern Securities Company in a way that the Great Northern Railway Company by its by-laws recognizes as transfers, so as to vest 971 the title of the property in the securities company.

Q. Well, now, there has been actually turned in and deposited with the Northern Securities Company a very large number of shares of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, for which the stock of the Northern Securities Company has been issued in payment, has there not?

A. There are a certain number of other shares of stock, the number of which I did not try to retain in my mind, which have been negotiated for—that is, of Great Northern stock which have been negotiated for—but the transfers of which to the 972 Northern Securities Company have never been completed.

Q. And can you give us an approximate idea as to the amount or number of such shares?

A. I do not try to carry that in my mind.

Q. Well, you have a pretty correct idea, haven't you, Colonel?

A. Why, yes; I am reasonably familiar with the company's business, and still, for many years, being accustomed to deal with numbers and figures very largely, I have omitted the effort to carry numbers in my mind.

Q. Well, do you know whether it is five hundred shares or a million shares? 973

A. Excuse me a moment. I would like to ask the examiner to read my answer as to the number of shares that had been transferred fully of the Great Northern.

The EXAMINER. Fifty thousand.

The WITNESS. I meant five hundred thousand. Fifty million I want to say; just change that.

Q. Colonel Clough, what I would like to get at would be as near a correct estimate as you could give of the number of shares which had been negotiated for by the Northern Securities Company, in which the transfers have not been completed. 974

A. Subject to correction, I should say it must be in the neighborhood of three or four hundred thousand shares.

Q. Of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Of the Great Northern Railway Company; yes, sir.

Q. Those shares of stock have been deposited with the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And has the Northern Securities Company stock in payment therefor been delivered? 975

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To the parties turning them in?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All that remains to be done then——

A. Either to the party or if they were presented by an agent to the agent of the party; either to or for the party.

Q. All that remains, then, is to have those certificates properly transferred upon the books of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. All that remains for what do you mean? 976

Q. To completely vest, according to your idea to complete the deal and vest the title absolutely in the Northern Securities Company?

A. According to the by-laws of the Great Northern Railway Company there has been no transfer of those shares at all.

Q. I understand. We will not argue the legal proposition, but I am simply getting an explanation of what you mean when you say there are 500,000 shares in which the transfers have 977 been completed; in other words those transfers have been made according to the by-laws of the Great Northern upon the books of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. That is what I said; yes sir.

Q. Now, there are about 300,000 shares——

A. Three or four hundred thousand——

Q. Three or four hundred thousand shares which have been turned into the Northern Securities Company, for which the Northern Securities Company has issued its own stock in payment and has transferred that stock to either the parties turning 978 it in or to their agents?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I say the only thing now that remains in order to complete those transfers is to have the transfers properly made upon the books of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. If those shares were transferred to the Northern Securities Company upon the books of the Great Northern Railway Company, then the transfer of the shares of the Northern Securities Company would be completed, if that is what you mean.

Q. Now, Mr. Clough, the capital stock of the Great Northern 979 is $125,000,000, I think?

A. Yes, sir; 1,250,000 shares, of which about 1,230,000 have been issued.

Q. Now, all that amount of stock the Northern Securities Company at the present time holds in completed transfers, and in transfers which are not completed, as you have explained, between 800,000 and 900,000 shares?

A. The Northern Securities Company has the relation to the Great Northern shares that I have mentioned in my testimony before; what those relations are is a matter part of computation 980 and legal inference. I have stated the facts.

Q. I understand, but I am summarizing this matter, Colonel, and I want to know if that does not fairly summarize the statement that the Northern Securities Company now holds and owns all the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, including the transfers completed and those incompleted, between 800,000 and 900,000 shares?

A. I have stated the facts, and I do not know that it belongs to me to draw any inferences whatever.

Mr. KELLOGG. You can do that, too, Judge Lancaster. 981

Mr. LANCASTER. That is a fair question, Mr. Kellogg. I am simply summarizing the statement.

Q. Has the Northern Securities Company made any request to the Great Northern to have these between three and four hundred thousand shares transferred upon its books?

A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. Are you making requests to have stock transferred from time to time?

A. I don't know that I can speak on that subject.

Q. The transfer books of the Great Northern Railway Com- 982 pany are here at the general offices of the Great Northern Railway Company, are they not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the offices of the Northern Securities Company is in the same building, is it not?

A. Yes, sir; temporarily.

Q. Well, at the present time?

A. Yes, sir; temporarily.

Q. How long, Colonel Clough, has it been since any stock which had been turned into the Northern Securities Company, 983 stock of the Great Northern Company, how long has it been since any of that stock has been properly transferred on the books of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I don't know.

Q. Has any of it been transferred since the 1st of January, 1902?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you have any recollection as to about the time when the last block or lot of stock was so transferred on the books?

A. I have never looked it up, so I could not answer it. 984

Q. I understand you mean by that that you don't know?

A. No, that is it; I don't know.

Q. Do you know of any reason why the Northern Securities Company can not secure a proper transfer of these three or four hundred thousand shares upon the books of the Great Northern Railway Company at any time?

A. I don't know of any reason, if it should request the transfer, why the Great Northern should refuse to make it.

985 Q. Colonel Clough, can you state approximately the number of shares of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company which has been turned into the Northern Securities Company?

A. It is upward of one hundred and fifty millions, but the precise figures I do not try to carry in my mind.

Q. I asked you the number of shares and you mean one hundred and fifty millions, par value?

A. One hundred and fifty millions par value, which would be about 1,500,000 shares.

986 Q. Mr. Clough, you were a director and vice-president of the Great Northern Railway Company in the spring of 1901. Were you located in New York at that time?

A. Yes, sir, I have been here practically continuously since the middle of March a year ago.

Q. Did you take part in the negotiations which were conducted by Mr. Hill on behalf of the Great Northern, for the joint purchase; that is, the purchase and joint account of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, of the Burlington?

A. Yes, sir.

987 Q. You were familiar with all the details of that transaction?

A. Yes, sir; practically all of them. Of course there were negotiations that were conducted in places when I was not present, as for instance, in Boston, and I could not say that I was present at all negotiations, but I am familiar with all of the details of the negotiations, and myself on behalf of the Great Northern Company; signed nearly all of the papers in the negotiations as first vice-president.

Q. About what time, Colonel Clough, did you first learn of the attempt on the part of the Union Pacific interests, or Mr.
988 Harriman, or Kuhn, Loeb & Co., to purchase a majority or controlling interest in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I first heard of it in the forepart of May. I think perhaps as early as the 5th, or 6th, or 7th of May, but I can not undertake to give dates precisely. It might have been two or three days earlier or two or three days later.

Q. Were you present at any conference held between Mr. Hill and Mr. Schiff, or Mr. Harriman, and different members of J. P. Morgan & Co., immediately after May 9?

A. No, sir; I was not present at any conference at which Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff or any of those gentlemen were present. 989

Q. Did you know of your own knowledge of the negotiations or what took place leading up to the arrangement that was made to have the Union Pacific interests leave its proxies, or Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff leave their proxies with Mr. Morgan?

A. That was a matter directly between the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, of which I was not one, and I had nothing whatever to do with it. 990

Q. And as a matter of fact, Colonel Clough, you not only did not take part in any of those conferences and were not present and in fact knew nothing of any such conferences or negotiations?

A. Except as a mere matter of hearsay. I had no personal knowledge. It was entirely outside the line of my duties.

Q. Did you know of your own knowledge how it came about that Mr. Harriman was placed upon the directory of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, and of 991 the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and later on directory of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Well, that is putting a great many questions on unrelated topics, disconnected topics, into one. If you will be kind enough to divide those four questions into one and put them one at a time, I will do the best I can to answer them.

Q. I shall be glad to, or you can divide them yourself, Colonel.

A. I prefer to have you do it, Judge, as you are asking the question. 992

Q. That is all right. Do you know, Mr. Clough, how it came about that Mr. Harriman was placed upon the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know how it came about that Mr. Schiff was placed on the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. No, sir.

993 Q. Do you know how it came about that Mr. Harriman was placed upon the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company?

A. In a way, I do.

Q. Well, will you state it?

A. Yes, sir. I can give you my understanding of why he was put there. The membership of the board of directors of that company was discussed several times by the parties in interest, and an endeavor was made to select men to occupy that position whose knowledge of the railway business and whose 994 place in the financial world would make their services on the board valuable to the Burlington Company and Burlington property, and my understanding was that Mr. Harriman was selected for the reason it was supposed that he was a suitable man under those conditions.

Q. Can you explain how it came about that Mortimer L. Schiff was placed on the same board, along with Mr. Harriman?

A. Mr. Mortimer L. Schiff is a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., which is one of the largest financial houses in this country, and it had previously and since considerable dealings 995 with the securities of the Burlington property, and it was considered that a representative from that house on the board of the Burlington would be of valuable assistance to it in its financial matters. That is my understanding.

Q. Did you understand that there was any arrangement, or understanding, or agreement, shortly after May 9, 1901, by which Mr. Harriman, representing the Union Pacific interests, was to give a proxy to Mr. Morgan and to allow Mr. Morgan to name the directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and also to place Mr. Harriman upon the board of the Northern 996 Pacific Railway Company, and also upon the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company and Railway Company? Do you know of any such agreement or understanding between Mr. Hill, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Harriman, and Mr. Schiff, or any of those gentlemen?

A. I don't know of any such arrangement or understanding, and I have never heard of any.

Mr. KELLOGG. You mean as to all those parties you never heard of it?

The WITNESS. That is the question he asked me. I am 997 answering the question he asked me.

Q. Did you understand that there were any arrangements at the time, shortly after May 9 or about May 9, at the time Mr. Schiff and Mr. Harriman agreed to turn over their proxies to J. P. Morgan & Co., that either Mr. Harriman or Mr. Schiff should be placed upon the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I heard, and I believe it to be a fact, that stockholders in the Northern Pacific Railway Company, some time in May, 1901, agreed to give their proxies to Mr. Morgan for the next annual 998 meeting of the Northern Pacific Railway Company. I never heard of any arrangement that ran any further than that simple proposition.

MARCH 24, 1902.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Mr. Kellogg, in connection with Mr. Clough's examination, may it be stipulated that you gentlemen will furnish for us a copy of the by-laws of the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. KELLOGG. Oh, yes.

Mr. CLOUGH. I will either give you a printed copy of the 999 by-laws or a copy of that pamphlet of the Interstate Commerce Commission, one of the two, but it will be correct.

(It was stipulated that the same was to be sent to the special examiner, to be marked "Complainant's Exhibit K.")

W. P. CLOUGH, being recalled in behalf of the complainant, testified as follows to questions by Mr. Boutelle:

Q. Mr. Clough, what is the number of directors of the board of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Fifteen.

Q. And are they reelected, one-third every year? 1000

A. Yes.

Q. That is, there are three classes, the third, second, and first, so to speak?

A. For the first board, and after that five go out each year and are replaced by five others.

Q. Can you give us, Mr. Clough, the names of the directors of the first board who would be in the third-year class?

1001 A. I don't remember that; I can get it, though.

Q. Will you furnish us a list of the directors by classes showing the third, second, and first year's class?

A. I will.

Q. And, Mr. Examiner, that may be attached or incorporated as Plaintiff's Exhibit M—that list to be furnished?

Mr. KELLOGG. Yes.

By consent of all parties further proceedings were adjourned until March 21, 1902, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEW YORK, Thursday afternoon, March 28, 1902.

1002 W. P. CLOUGH, being recalled for further examination in behalf of the complainant, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Lamb:

Q. Colonel Clough, I think you have already testified that you are the vice-president of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I am one of the vice-presidents; yes, sir. There are four.

Q. And you are familiar with its affairs, of course?

A. I think I am quite familiar with its affairs; still I don't try to carry all the details in my mind.

Q. You testified on your direct examination that the North-1003 ern Securities Company held a large block of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company which had not been transferred of record on the books of the Great Northern Company.

A. Whatever I testified to in that respect the minutes of the special examiner will show.

Q. Do you remember your testimony?

A. I do in a general way.

Q. Well, do you remember testifying to that?

A. I remember that I testified to the fact that all purchases by the Northern Securities Company of about 500,000
1004 shares of Great Northern stock had been completed, and that negotiations were in progress for the acquisition of about 300,000 or 400,000 more which had not yet been completed.

Q. Well, you testified that that had not been transferred of record?

A. That is what I testified; yes, sir.

Q. When was the last dividend declared by the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. It was paid on the regular dividend day, which was at or 1005 about February 1 of this year. The Great Northern regular dividend days are February, May, August, and November.

Q. Did the Northern Securities Company receive that dividend?

A. I am not called on to state that, am I?

Mr. KELLOGG. It is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial—nothing to do with this controversy.

Q. Will you answer it?

A. No; I will not answer it. I decline to answer it.

Q. Was the dividend of this stock not transferred of record 1006 and paid to the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. KELLOGG. That is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is the stock you have already referred to as not completed, Colonel?

A. That I decline to answer.

By Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. Colonel Clough, it was testified to by Mr. Hill on his examination in this case, that, according to his understanding, the Northern Securities Company had given a proxy or proxies 1007 for voting its holdings in the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, but Mr. Hill was unable to state who held that proxy or the parties composing it. Can you give us that information?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state that so the examiner can get it down?

A. Yes, sir. There have never been any meetings of stockholders of either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern companies since the acquisition by the Northern Securities Company of stock in either of those companies, but as a corporation can 1008 only act by proxy, and such a proxy was deemed necessary, or advisable at least, to come from the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company, and as that is a large board and somewhat difficult to get a quorum together, the board has provided, temporarily, and until further action on its part, because the proxies are purely temporary, that at meetings of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company its proxies shall be Charles Steele, George F. Baker, jr., and A. B. Hep-

1009 burn, of New York City, or whichever one or more of them shall happen to be present at the meeting. My memory is not so good as to the names of the proxies of Great Northern stock, but, subject to correction, it is that proxies for Great Northern stock are James N. Hill, Edward Sawyer, and E. T. Nichols, which or whichever one or more of them should be present.

Q. Now, Colonel, can you give us approximately when that action was taken?

A. It was some time after the securities company had acquired the stocks of each of these two companies.

1010 Q. Has there been more than one action or resolution adopted as respects these proxies?

A. There never has been but one set of proxies created so far in respect to either company, and the proxies that I have mentioned were those that were first created and have since stood. But they are all revocable, of course, at any time, like all other proxies, and can be changed whenever convenient.

Q. Colonel, can you state how much of the Northern Securities Company stock has been issued—the total amount, approximately?

1011 A. Yes; it is about $350,000,000—in that neighborhood. It may be a little more or little less.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, March 21, 1902.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon all parties convened, pursuant to adjournment, and by consent of the solicitors for the respective parties and the witness subpœnaed, further proceedings were adjourned until the following afternoon, March 24, 1902, at 2 o'clock.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, March 24, 1902.

All parties appeared, pursuant to adjournment, represented by 1012 the same solicitors, and the following proceedings were had, to wit:

JACOB H. SCHIFF, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows, in answer to questions by Mr. Boutelle:

Q. Mr. Schiff, you are a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of this city, are you not?

A. I am.

Q. And how long have you been connected with that firm?

A. About twenty-seven years. 1013

Q. Located during all the time and doing business in this city during that time?

A. Yes.

Q. You are a member of the board of directors of the Union Pacific Railroad?

A. I am.

Q. When were you elected to that position, approximately?

A. As far as I can remember, it was the latter part of 1897.

Q. You are also a member of the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company? 1014

A. Yes; I am.

Q. And your son, Mortimer L. Schiff, is a member of the board of directors of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company?

Mr. BULKLEY. It is just the reverse.

Q. Is it the reverse?

A. Yes; I think it is the reverse.

Q. You are a member of the board of the railroad and your son of the railway. Is that right, gentlemen?

Mr. CLOUGH. That is right. 1015

Q. You are also, Mr. Schiff, a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company, are you not?

A. I am.

Q. When were you elected to your official position in the Burlington?

A. As far as I can recollect, in the latter part of 1901.

Q. And when were you elected as a director of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I believe also in the latter part of 1901.

Q. You were formerly, I believe, Mr. Schiff, a member of the 1016 board of directors of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I was.

Q. You or your firm have been comparatively large holders of the stock of that company for a number of years, have you not?

A. We have.

Q. What is the amount or what was the amount of your holdings in the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company in 1901, approximately?

1017 A. As far as I can recollect, I have not been a holder of stock in the Great Northern Railroad Company after the summer of 1901.

Q. And will you give it a little more exact as to time? The month, I mean.

A. I can not.

Q. And when you say you were not a stockholder in the Great Northern, do you include your firm?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your firm has not been a stockholder of the Great Northern 1018 Railroad Company for many years, so that the holdings of Great Northern securities have been your individual holdings?

A. Instead of my partners'.

Q. Did you retire from the board of directors of the Great Northern Railway Company at the same time that you disposed of your holdings?

A. My term of office expired last autumn.

Q. Did you formally resign from the Great Northern board, Mr. Schiff?

A. There was no necessity for my resignation.

1019 Q. That was not my question. Did you formally resign?

A. Not as I remember.

Q. Are you positive in regard to that?

A. I think I am.

Q. In 1896, Mr. Schiff, you were one of a number of gentlemen interested in the Great Northern who bought comparatively large holdings in the Northern Pacific, were you not?

A. I do not think I was.

Q. Were you not one of Mr. Hill's associates, either you or your firm, in a purchase of some $26,000,000 of the Northern 1020 Pacific common stock in 1896, at the time of the reorganization?

A. I do not think that was in 1896; I think that was in 1897, as far as I can remember.

Q. Then, as a matter of fact, in 1897 you were one of a number of parties interested in Great Northern who purchased a comparatively large block of the Northern Pacific common?

A. I think I was.

Q. And do you recall what gentlemen were associated with you in that purchase?

A. There was no one associated with us. 1021

Q. Do you recall who the gentlemen were, the gentlemen connected with the Great Northern, who purchased Northern Pacific stock at that time?

A. I do not.

Q. Was Mr. Hill one?

A. Mr. Hill can tell you best.

Q. Do you know?

A. Mr. Hill simply invited us to buy some stock and we bought it for ourselves.

Q. I understand that, but what I wish to get at is who were 1022 the gentlemen that thus bought for themselves besides you?

A. I do not know.

Q. You know as a matter of fact that Mr. Hill took a portion of that, do you not?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. You know as a matter of fact that Mr. Kennedy took a portion of it, do you not?

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you mean that you are unable to tell any one besides yourself who took any part of that $26,000,000? 1023

A. I am unable.

Q. How much of that $26,000,000 did you take at that time?

A. As far as I can recall, $2,500,000.

Q. And how long did you continue to hold that?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Have you no recollection upon that subject at all?

A. No.

Q. Do you hold it at the present time?

A. No.

Q. Did you hold it in 1901? 1024

A. No.

Q. It was all sold previous to that time, was it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Schiff, had you or your firm at any time previous to your election as a member of the board of directors of the Burlington been a holder or holders of Burlington securities?

A. Yes.

1025 Q. Of what character?

A. Of stock and bonds.

Q. When did you hold that stock?

A. For several years we have had some Burlington stock as far as I know.

Q. And how much did it amount to?

A. I should think as a maximum, 20,000 shares.

Q. And was that prior to the time of the purchase of the Burlington by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific combined?

1026 A. It was.

Q. Was that an individual holding or a firm holding?

A. It was an individual holding.

Q. In 1900, the latter part of the year, or the early part of the year 1901, was your firm or you individually engaged in the purchase of Burlington stock in the market?

A. We were.

Q. For whom were those purchases made at that time?

A. I decline to disclose the business of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Q. You refuse to answer, then, I understand, for whom you 1027 purchased the stock at that time?

A. Unless I am so directed by the court.

Q. How much stock, Mr. Schiff, did your firm purchase in the Burlington at that time?

A. Twenty thousand shares for itself.

Q. No; I am speaking of how much outside of your individual purchases?

A. I decline to answer unless directed by the court.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Schiff, your firm acted as the representative of the Harriman or Union Pacific interests in 1028 the purchase of that stock, did they not?

A. It did not.

Q. Well, for whom did they act?

A. I decline to answer unless I am compelled to by the court.

Q. At whose instigation or request were those purchases made by your firm?

A. I might as well say to you here that I shall decline any answer, as it was the business of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Q. If you simply answer the question, or decline to answer 1029 specific questions——

A. I have given you my answer.

Q. You decline to answer?

A. I decline to answer any questions as to the business of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. except directed by the court.

Q. Now, will you kindly answer the question just asked you or decline to answer that question?

A. You have received my answer already.

Q. You decline to answer that question, do you?

A. You have received my answer already. 1030

Q. Those purchases, Mr. Schiff, were made by you or your firm in an effort or attempt to buy up, in behalf of the Union Pacific Railway, or allied interests, a controlling interest in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, were they not?

A. They were not.

Q. Were they made in behalf of any railroad interests?

A. They were not.

Q. Were they made in behalf of the interests of your firm alone?

A. You have received my answer on that. 1031

Q. I don't think we have, Mr. Schiff. I would prefer that you should decline if you think my question is improper.

A. They were made for our firm and some of its customers.

Q. And that is as definite an answer as you care to make to my question, is it?

A. It is.

Q. When did you ascertain, Mr. Schiff, that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific were in the market attempting to acquire control of the Burlington?

A. I do not know as I ascertained that at any time. 1032

Q. You know now as a fact that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific purchased a very large majority of the stock of the Burlington, do you not?

A. I do know it now.

Q. Now, do you recall when your information to that effect was first obtained?

A. After they had acquired it.

Q. Was that the first intimation you obtained in reference to the matter?

1033 A. The first positive information.

Q. You did receive some information that was not positive, did you not?

A. I did receive information that large amounts were bought—large amounts of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy stock were bought.

Q. And at about that time, Mr. Schiff, you had a conference with Mr. Hill, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. And at about that time your interests and connection with 1034 the Great Northern were severed, were they not?

A. They were not.

Q. How long subsequently were your interests with the Great Northern severed?

A. As a director, I should say six or seven months subsequently.

Q. And as a stockholder?

A. I do not recall.

Q. Was it before or subsequently?

A. Subsequently.

1035 Q. And you are unable to state how long subsequently?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Did you, Mr. Schiff, at any time subsequent to the acquisition by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific of a controlling interest in the Burlington represent the Union Pacific interests?

A. I have been a director of the Union Pacific since 1897 and am still.

Q. I mean, Mr. Schiff, did you represent them as a banker or broker in the market?

1036 A. We never represented the interests of the Union Pacific as a banker or broker.

Q. Did you represent the interests of the Oregon Short Line in the market?

A. We never represented the interests of the Oregon Short Line in the market.

Q. Did you ever represent the interests of Mr. Harriman in the market?

A. I decline to answer.

Q. Or Mr. Harriman and Mr. Pierce? 1037

A. I decline to answer.

Q. After your ascertainment of the fact of the Burlington purchase by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific combined did you have any connection or take any part in the attempts by the Harriman interests or the Oregon Short Line interests or the Union Pacific interests in attempting to put into that purchase and to take interest in it?

A. I did not.

Q. Do you know whether your firm did or not?

A. They did not. 1038

Q. Were you aware of the fact at that time, Mr. Schiff, that the Union Pacific interests or the Harriman interests or the Oregon Short Line interests—they all mean practically the same to us—sought to obtain a part in the Burlington purchase and to come into the Burlington purchase, so to speak?

A. To help you out I might as well say to you, if you ask the question whether Kuhn, Loeb & Co. sought to obtain part in it; yes, they did.

Q. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. did?

A. Yes. 1039

Q. Was that, Mr. Schiff, an individual or firm matter, or was it in behalf of customers of the firm?

A. As an attempted transaction it was an original transaction, and was at that time only intended for Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Q. And had no reference and no connection with any of the customers of the firm at that time?

A. It had not.

Q. Did it subsequently?

A. Well, it was never carried into effect.

Q. Were those negotiations, Mr. Schiff, exclusively conceived and carried on as a matter of the interest of your firm alone? 1040

A. They were.

Q. Without any connection with either the Harriman interests, the Oregon Short Line interests, or the Union Pacific interests?

A. They were.

Q. That request, I believe, was refused, Mr. Schiff?

A. It was.

1041 Q. In any event you did not obtain that interest?

A. No.

Q. How long after that, Mr. Schiff, did your firm go into the market to buy up Northern Pacific after the refusal to permit you to come into the Burlington deal?

A. I do not exactly recollect.

Q. For whom were your firm acting when the Northern Pacific transactions in the purchase of the Northern Pacific common and preferred?

A. For themselves.

1042 Q. Were there no other interests for which they were acting in those purchases?

A. No.

Q. How much of that stock did you purchase in the spring of 1901, and previous to May 9?

A. As far as I can recollect, about $78,000,000.

Q. And that was an individual purchase of your firm?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware, Mr. Schiff, that the report of the board of directors of the Union Pacific, of which you appear to be a 1043 member, states that that was the purchase by the Oregon Short Line financed by the Union Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the connection then? Did they take it off from your hands?

A. We sold it to them.

Q. You went into the market, then, individually?

A. Yes.

Q. Or as a firm?

A. Yes.

1044 Q. Without any connection with the railway interests?

A. Yes.

Q. Or the Harriman interests?

A. Yes.

Q. And immediately upon obtaining this stock you transferred it to the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line?

A. Not immediately.

Q. How long?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Well, you can give us approximately? 1045

A. Some weeks.

Q. And there was no connection between your purchase of the stock originally and your sale or transfer to the Oregon Short Line?

A. There was not.

Q. How was this stock that you purchased divided as common and preferred?

A. As far as I can remember, about $37,000,000 common and about $41,000,000 preferred.

Q. Making $78,000,000 in all; and that entire block of stock, 1046 common and preferred, was within a few weeks transferred to the Oregon Short Line?

A. It was the Union Pacific or Oregon Short Line.

Q. After the transfer by your firm to the Union Pacific or Oregon Short Line, did you have any further connection with the handling or disposition of that stock?

A. I had not.

Q. Did you attend at any conference at which the subject of the disposition of that stock was up?

A. I did not. 1047

Q. Did you attend at the conference at Mr. Morgan's office, either on May 9 or shortly subsequent, at which the matter of leaving the selection of the board of directors to Mr. Morgan was passed on?

A. I did not attend any conference at Mr. Morgan's office.

Q. Did you attend any conference at anybody's office where that subject was brought up?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was that conference held?

A. At Mr. Harriman's office. 1048

Q. You had at that time disposed, as I understand it, of all of your interest in this stock?

A. I am not quite certain of that, but I believe so.

Q. What was the reason or occasion of your being present at that conference, Mr. Schiff?

A. There was a great strain in the financial markets, and the conference was held in an endeavor to find ways and means how public apprehension could be allayed.

1049 Q. Who was present at that conference?

A. Mr. Harriman, I believe Mr. Steele, I think Mr. Hill, and myself.

Q. Was the subject of that conference confined to the matter of adjusting the matter of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific?

A. It was confined to the discussion of finding ways and means by which the public apprehension could be allayed.

Q. Was that all there was to it, beyond the selection of Mr. Morgan to appoint the directors of the Northern Pacific?

1050 A. As far as I can recollect, yes.

Q. Was the matter of the holdings of the Northern Pacific brought up or discussed by the factions that had been attempting to get control?

A. Only passingly.

Q. Will you give us how that was brought up passingly, as you describe it, and what was said in reference to that?

A. I can't recollect.

Q. Was it at the conference, Mr. Schiff, that you stated that you or the Harriman interests claimed to have a controlling in-1051 terest in the Northern Pacific under your purchase?

A. I listened. I made no statement.

Q. You made no statement?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was such a statement made at that conference by anybody representing the Union Pacific interests?

A. Possibly, but I do not recollect. It was a passing conversation. It was a general conversation.

Q. Do you recall what was said in answer to that claim?

A. I do not recollect.

1052 Q. Was it at that conference that Mr. Steele or Mr. Bacon stated that they did not admit that the Union Pacific interest held a majority?

A. I do not recollect that any such statement was made.

Q. Were you present at any conference at which that subject was brought up and discussed?

A. As far as I can recall, it may have been stated that Mr. Hill and his friends held control of the common stock of the Northern Pacific.

Q. What I want to ascertain, Mr. Schiff, is this: At which of 1053 these conferences was there a show down of holdings or a discussion of the question of the holdings of these two factions?

A. I do not believe there was at any time a show down, as you call it.

Q. At any of these conferences were there no statements made by either party or by either faction as to their holdings?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Was no statement made in your presence as to the holding of the Hill and Morgan factions, if I may so call it?

A. Not to my recollection. 1054

Q. How many conferences did you hold before the matter of the disposition of the Union Pacific interests in Northern Pacific were finally decided upon?

A. I can't understand your question.

Q. Well, were there several conferences between Mr. Harriman and yourself and Mr. Hill and Mr. Morgan, or their interests?

A. I do not remember more than two at which I was present.

Q. Now, the first one you have given us; will you give us what transpired at the second? 1055

A. The second was simply a continuation of the first.

Q. Well, let's have it a little more in detail.

A. I have told you all I know about it.

Q. Was it at that conference that the question was brought up, Mr. Schiff, in regard to proposed Burlington extension into Union Pacific territory?

A. That question, to my knowledge, was never brought up.

Q. You never heard that brought up?

A. No.

Q. When did you hear Mr. Hill make a statement that they 1056 were not developing in Union Pacific territory?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Do I understand, Mr. Schiff, that you were only present at two conferences at or about this time?

A. As far as I can recollect, I was only present at two regular conferences. Business men meet almost every day, but conferences—I only recollect two.

Q. I understand it perfectly, Mr. Schiff, but what I want to find out is—you can term it a conference or a business man's meeting—but I want to ascertain when those discussions, or conferences, or talks that were had between the Hill-Morgan side of this controversy and the Union Pacific side relative to the settlement of their differences and the adjustment of them took place.

A. I only recollect two distinct conferences, as you call them, at which I was present.

Q. Well, do you recollect having any talks with Mr. Hill or Mr. Morgan in reference to the disposition of Union Pacific holdings?

A. Mr. Morgan was in Europe.

Q. Well, when I say Mr. Morgan, I mean any of the members of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. I do not recollect that I had any such talk.

Q. Had no conferences or interviews with them at all?

A. Not as to the disposition of what you call the Northern Pacific holdings.

Q. Did you have any conferences or interviews with them relative to the affairs of the Northern Pacific?

A. I had not.

Q. Did you have any talks or interviews with them relative to the policy in the Burlington?

A. I had not.

Q. Did you have any part, or take any part, Mr. Schiff, in the negotiations which resulted in the Union Pacific selling out their Northern Pacific holdings?

A. I did not.

Q. You had nothing to do with that?

A. I went to Europe late in July and did not return until the latter part of October.

Q. Did any member of your firm, as far as you know, have anything to do with it?

A. Nothing at all.

Q. When do you say you returned?

A. During October.

Q. At that time do you know whether the Union Pacific had disposed of their Northern Pacific holdings?

A. I do not think so.

Q. Did you take any part personally, or did your firm, in the 1061 arrangements that were ultimately consummated for the selling of the Union Pacific holdings?

A. We did not.

Q. You had nothing whatever to do with that?

A. No.

Q. Were you cognizant with the facts connected with those transactions?

A. With which transaction?

Q. The sale by the Union Pacific of its Northern Pacific holdings. 1062

A. I became cognizant of them when it was brought before the board of the Union Pacific Railroad Company.

Q. That is, you are speaking now of the matter of the sale by the Union Pacific being brought before the board?

A. That is what I stated—the Union Pacific or Oregon Short Line.

Q. To whom did the Union Pacific sell its holdings in the Northern Pacific?

A. As far as I can recall, to Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co.

Q. Was that sale made for cash? 1063

A. Partly cash and partly securities.

Q. When was the matter of the sale brought before the board of the Union Pacific?

A. As far as I can recall, in November of 1901.

Q. And was that the first intimation you had in relation to the subject of the sale?

A. It was the first positive information; yes.

Q. Well, what other information did you have, Mr. Schiff?

A. Simply that negotiations were going on.

Q. And when did you obtain knowledge that negotiations 1064 were going on?

A. Shortly before they actually culminated.

Q. And that sale was made, you say, to whom?

A. To Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., as far as I know.

Q. Well, when you say as far as you know—the matter was submitted to the directors of the Union Pacific, was it not?

A. It was so stated that it was.

Q. How much cash entered into the consideration of the sale, Mr. Schiff?

1065 A. As far as I can recollect, some nine or ten millions.

Q. And how much securities?

A. I believe something over eighty millions.

Q. And in what form were those securities?

A. Stock of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. And that sale was actually consummated about that time?

A. As far as I can recollect, yes.

Q. Now, in that transaction as reported and passed upon by the board of the Union Pacific, were there any other conditions attached? Was there anything agreed upon in reference to the 1066 representation by parties connected with the Union Pacific?

A. Nothing whatsoever, as far as I know.

Q. Was anything said about the composition of the board of the Burlington?

A. Not at that time.

Q. When was it said first to your knowledge?

A. When the board were about to be elected.

Q. And when was that, as near as you can fix it?

A. Somewhere between the 1st of November, 1901, and the 1st of January, 1902.

1067 Q. Was the matter of your representation on the Burlington fixed by your election to those boards before you sold out the stock to J. P. Morgan & Co.?

A. So far as I can recollect it was not.

Q. Are you positive in regard to that?

A. I am quite positive.

Q. Was anything said in regard to your representation on the board of the Northern Securities Company?

A. As far as I can recollect, nothing was said.

Q. Was that brought up at any time to your knowledge in 1068 connection with this sale of the Union Pacific holdings?

A. Not in connection with that sale—certainly not.

Q. When was it first brought up?

A. I think Mr. Hill asked me whether I would be willing to go on the Northern Securities Company board.

Q. And at the time that he asked you if you would be willing to go on the Northern Securities Company board were these negotiations for the Union Pacific holdings in progress?

A. I can't recollect that.

Q. Does your firm hold at the present time any stock in the 1069
Burlington Railroad or the Burlington Railway Company?

A. My firm does not.

Q. Do you individually?

A. Yes.

Q. And to what extent?

A. In the Burlington Railroad Company?

Q. And to what extent?

A. A small amount.

Q. Do you know of any movement or action in the market during the early winter of 1901 looking to the buying up of the 1070
Burlington Railroad stock?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know whether there was an attempt to buy, outside of the purchases that you made yourself, the stock upon the market?

A. In the early winter of 1901?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Schiff, when the first negotiations were had between Mr. Harriman, or parties representing the Union 1071
Pacific interests, for the sale of their holdings in Northern Pacific?

A. I do not know. I was away from the office.

Q. Do you now know when the first negotiations were had?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know with whom those negotiations were had?

A. I presume with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Q. That is based upon the fact, I suppose, that they ultimately bought the stock?

A. Yes. 1072

Q. It is a mere presumption. Do you now know how early the negotiations opened between Harriman and J. P. Morgan & Co. for the sale of the Northern Pacific holdings?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know anything about the details of those negotiations?

A. I do not.

Q. Were you never informed in reference to those other than you have given here?

1073 A. I was not.

Q. Mr. Schiff, returning to the first conference that you had with the Morgan and Hill interests, about May 9, will you state what was said relative to Mr. Morgan being made the arbitrator for the purpose of designating the board of directors of the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes. As I have already said to you, the apprehensions of the public were great, and Mr. Morgan was in Europe. It was said we all had confidence in Mr. Morgan's fairness and good judgment, and that we would leave it to him, how the 1074 board of the Northern Pacific should be constituted; absolutely to him.

Q. That was the substance of it?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there anything said at that time relative to the composition of the board?

A. There was not.

Q. When did you first learn of the plan of retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred?

A. When the directors acted upon it.

1075 Q. Was that the first information you had relative to that?

A. I learned in a general way from members of the Stock Exchange that the directors contemplated retiring the preferred stock, but knew nothing actually about it until it had been retired.

Q. You were not consulted in any way relative to the plan that was adopted?

A. No.

Q. And you don't know whether Mr. Harriman, or Mr. Harriman's interests, were consulted in reference to that plan?

1076 A. You had better ask Mr. Harriman. I don't know.

Q. I am asking you, Mr. Schiff?

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know now, or did you know then, why the plan of retirement was adopted in such a way as to cut the preferred stockholders out of any right to subscribe for convertible certificates?

A. The directors of the Northern Pacific Railway claimed that the company had the right to retire the stock, and they retired it, as I understand.

Q. That is the way you understand it, is it? The board of 1077 directors of the Northern Pacific at that time were recognized to be friendly to the Morgan interests, were they not?

A. I do not know.

Q. You do not know that?

A. No; I am not here to express opinions, I think.

Q. I understand that perfectly. Were you informed at any of the conferences you had that if it were necessary to carry out the plan of retirement of the preferred stock the board of directors would postpone the annual election over January 1?

A. I did not. 1078

Q. You never heard anything about that, nor heard it brought up?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know how the Harriman interests, after purchasing 78,000,000 of the Northern Pacific, changed their policy and sold that entire interest out? How they happened to do that?

A. I am not aware that the Harriman interest bought any.

Q. Well, the Union Pacific or Oregon Short Line. I say the Harriman interests, because I understand Mr. Harriman was 1079 the spokesman and representative all through, to save repeating those three terms.

A. They sold out because they thought it was a good thing. The Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific no doubt sold it out because they thought it was a good thing to take a profit on their stock.

Q. I see. How did you happen, and what was the occasion of going into the market at that time, Mr. Schiff, and buying in that 78,000,000 of stock?

A. Because I thought—my firm thought—it was a very val- 1080 uable thing to acquire, if it were possible.

Q. And the purpose of that purchase was to obtain a controlling interest in the Northern Pacific, was it not?

A. Not immediately.

Q. Well, ultimately?

A. As large an interest as possible.

Q. Ultimately that was the object?

A. As large an interest as possible.

1081 Q. And was it sold to the Union Pacific or Oregon Short Line for the same purpose?

A. It was sold because we received a good offer for it from the Oregon Short Line or Union Pacific.

Q. Was it not claimed by the parties who purchased that interest, Mr. Schiff, that they had obtained a control of the Northern Pacific thereby?

A. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had bought, as I said, 78,000,00 of stock; the total capital was 155,000,000.

Q. Was it not claimed by the Union Pacific Railway that 1082 they had by that purchase acquired a controlling interest in that stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. I do not know that the Union Pacific Railway ever made any claim at all.

Q. Well, then we will substitute the Oregon Short Line?

A. Or the Oregon Short Line.

Q. You do not know that a claim of control was ever made by them?

A. I have told you before that I left for Europe at the end of July last year, and did not return until October.

1083 Q. Wasn't the matter, Mr. Schiff, of the relative interests and the control fully decided and disposed of to the satisfaction of the Oregon Short Line interests, and you and Mr. Harriman before you left for Europe, as to who had the actual control of the Northern Pacific?

A. There was nothing at all decided.

Q. And no conferences were held at which you were present?

A. I have told you already of the two conferences at which I was present.

Q. Those were the entire ones, were they?

1084 A. As far as I can recollect, yes.

Q. Previous to the time that you left for Europe, had the matter of the retirement of the preferred stock been brought up?

A. That is a very vague question.

Q. You left for Europe in July, 1901?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, previous to the time that you left—we will say between the 1st of May and the time of your departure—had the matter of the retirement of the preferred stock been discussed or brought to your notice?

A. Not that I know of. 1085

Q. What's that?

A. By whom.

Q. By anybody?

A. That is rather a peculiar question. I am discussing every day questions with people of which I don't remember anything.

Q. Yes; but suppose you give us your recollection in regard to that?

A. If you will ask me a definite question I can answer then. If you ask me vague questions I can not answer them.

Q. Was the matter of the plan of retirement of the preferred 1086 stock of the Northern Pacific brought to your attention between May 1 and the time you left for Europe?

A. By whom?

Q. By anybody. I will find out from whom by you.

A. Yes; I think I was down at the end of Florida last winter, and somebody spoke about the Northern Pacific preferred stock. That is the only answer I can give such a question.

Q. Who was the somebody?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Was that matter made the subject of any conference here 1087 in New York?

A. No.

Q. And you, before you went away, had no information nor no knowledge that it was intended to retire the preferred stock?

A. I had not.

Q. And the plan had not been brought to your notice?

A. It had not.

Q. Had any plan or had the fact of the intention to retire the preferred stock been brought to your notice?

A. It had not. 1088

Q. Mr. Schiff, when was the subject of the organization of the Northern Securities Company first brought to your attention?

A. When I saw it in the newspapers.

Q. That is a little bit indefinite.

A. The actual organization?

Q. Was the matter of the organization of the Northern Securities Company brought up at either of the conferences that you attended with Mr. Morgan or Mr. Hill?

1089 A. No; Mr. Hill had spoken to me years ago that he intended to form such a company.

Q. Yes, we have heard of that; but I am speaking about this——

A. Why do you ask me, sir?

Q. Between May 1 and the time you left for Europe?

A. No.

Q. Nothing had been said in regard to the organization of the holding company?

A. No.

1090 Q. Mr. Schiff, I asked you, did I not, when you were first requested to become a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company—at what time?

A. Somewhere between the 1st of November and the end of December, 1901.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I had not.

Q. And your first connection with the company or with the affairs of the company was when you were requested to go on as 1091 member of the board?

A. It was.

Q. Have you attended any meetings of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I have.

Q. Are you a member of the executive committee?

A. I am not.

Q. How many meetings of the board have been held?

A. I do not know.

Q. How many have you attended, Mr. Schiff?

1092 A. I think three or four.

Q. When was the matter of your becoming a member of the board of directors of the Burlington Railroad first brought to your attention?

A. As far as I can recollect, between the beginning of November, 1901, and the end of December.

Q. And who brought that matter to your attention?

A. I do not recollect.

Q. Was it Mr. Hill?

A. Possibly; but I do not recollect. 1093

Cross-examination by Mr. STETSON:

Q. Did you say that you held some of the stock of the Burlington Railway?

A. I think I hold 10 shares.

Q. Ten shares?

A. I think.

Q. Not a hundred?

A. I don't think—I don't know; I don't think so.

Q. No one has advised you how much it is necessary to keep out to bring a suit? 1094

A. No.

Mr. BOUTELLE. There is no objection to that last question.

Q. Mr. Schiff, did we correctly understand you as saying that your first purchase of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company was an individual purchase by you, and not as a part of a syndicate?

A. That is correct.

Redirect examination by Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. Mr. Schiff, I will ask you one more question. Would the books of your firm show on whose account the purchases made 1095 of Northern Pacific were made; that is, whether on firm account or for customers?

A. I have already stated to you that they were made for the account of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Q. Does that appear upon the books?

A. Yes.

Q. I am not asking what does appear, but would the books show whether it was a firm transaction or a transaction for a customer?

A. Yes. 1096

Q. And who is the party in charge of the records of your firm, or the books of your firm, that would show that fact?

A. One of the bookkeepers; I don't know exactly which one.

Q. Who is the head bookkeeper of the firm?

A. Mr. Holden.

Q. And his initials or first name?

A. I do not know.

1097 CHARLES STEELE, being first duly sworn, testified as follows to questions asked by Mr. Boutelle:

Mr. Steele, you are a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., of this city?

A. I am.

Q. And how long have you been a member of that firm?

A. Since early in 1900.

Q. Were you in this city during the first six months of 1901?

A. I was.

Q. We have got somebody that was here, finally.

1098 A. I think I was here most of it.

Q. Did you have any part in representing your firm in the transaction connected with the purchase of the Burlington road by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

A. I had some little to do with it; yes.

Q. And when did your connection with that begin—at what time?

A. I could not give you the exact date; it was, I think, in the early winter. The first connection I had with it was an interview with the committee in Boston who represented the 1099 Burlington road; that was along in the early winter.

Q. In the early winter?

A. Yes; in the early part of the year 1901.

Q. Now, did you represent your firm in the further negotiations that were had in respect to the purchase of the Burlington; did you act for your firm in that matter?

A. No; I did not act directly.

Q. Who did act for your firm in that transaction?

A. Mr. Bacon was the principal actor.

Q. Mr. Bacon, I believe, is in Europe now?

1100 A. He is, unfortunately. I should say, Mr. Boutelle, I was with Mr. Bacon almost every day, and I could give you the results.

Q. Well, were you cognizant of the details of the transaction as it progressed?

A. Not any of the minute details.

Q. Your firm financiered that deal, did they, Mr. Steele? That is, your firm furnished the money for putting that deal through?

A. No; I should hardly say that. May I explain what the 1101 arrangement was?

Q. Certainly.

A. The result finally reached was that the gentlemen who constituted the committee of the Burlington road issued a circular to the shareholders stating that options would be given to take joint bonds of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific for their stock, or to take part in cash, or to take all cash, provided a certain amount accepted the offer. It was made a condition by the Burlington committee that $50,000,000 of cash should be provided as part of the negotiations for the purchase 1102 of the entire amount of stock. My firm organized a syndicate who agreed to provide that amount of cash.

Q. That is, you had what is ordinarily termed an underwriting agreement?

A. To the extent of $50,000,000 of the bonds.

Q. Now, you had the negotiations, did you, Mr. Steele, with the committee or trustees or directors of the Burlington road?

A. I had one meeting with the committee. That was the only personal part I took in it.

Q. And who was that committee? 1103

A. Mr. Hunnewell, Mr. Paine, Mr. Forbes, and Mr. Olney.

Q. Mr. Perkins?

A. Mr. Perkins.

Q. Five?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Mr. Paine's first name?

A. I am not sure about that.

Mr. STETSON. Charles J.

Q. When was that Burlington transaction completed, Mr. Steele? 1104

A. I could not recollect the date. It would be shown by the circular which that committee issued. It was completed just prior to the issuance of that circular.

Q. You mean subsequent, do you not?

A. You said the negotiations.

Q. Did I say the negotiations? I meant to say, when was the purchase consummated?

A. I think within a month or six weeks after the circular was issued.

1105 Q. At the time negotiations were being had for the purchase of the Burlington, at that time was the composition of the Burlington board under advisement, to your knowledge?

A. It was not, sir.

Q. Do you mean it was not, to your knowledge, or it was not in fact?

A. It was not, to my knowledge. I think I should have known of it if it had been.

Q. Do you know how much cash actually went into that Burlington transaction?

1106 A. My recollection is that a large part of the $50,000,000 went in.

Q. And that was furnished by the underwriters?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who furnished the consideration for that underwriting agreement?

A. The Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway companies.

Q. Combined?

A. Combined.

1107 Q. Do you know, Mr. Steele, how much stock of the Burlington had been bought up previous to the time of the issuance of the circulars by the trustees or committee, as you have termed them, in the market?

A. So far as I am aware, there was none whatever, Mr. Boutelle.

Q. As a matter of fact, had there not been during the forepart of that year or the late winter of the year previous an attempt made by the Union Pacific to buy up the Burlington?

A. I do not know, sir.

1108 Q. Had there not been eight or nine million bought up in that manner.

A. That I can not tell.

Q. Do you know the occasion, or what it was started the Great Northern and Northern Pacific to make this attempted combined purchase?

A. I don't know what you mean by a combined—oh, a combined purchase of the Burlington?

Q. Of the Burlington?

A. I think I do. It was their desire to procure a connection 1109 with the east and southeastern country, which was the largest market for the agricultural, timber, and mineral products of the Burlington and Northern Pacific roads.

Q. Those conditions had existed for some time previous as well as that particular time, had they not, Mr. Steele?

A. They had, sir.

Q. Can you explain what was the immediate occasion—why it was that just at that time this combined purchase was attempted?

A. There was no other reason than that I have stated that I 1110 know of.

Q. By whom, Mr. Steele, was the matter of the proposed purchase first brought to your attention?

A. I couldn't say. I think the suggestion arose probably in our own office; as far as I know that was the first suggestion made about it.

Q. Then it originated in J. P. Morgan & Co.'s office?

A. Yes.

Q. You were largely interested, or your firm was, at that time 1111 in the Northern Pacific?

A. We had a substantial interest; yes.

Q. And you also had an interest by representation that was very considerable, did you not, through foreign connection and clientele?

A. Well, up to that time, if I may explain, Mr. Boutelle, the 1st of January, 1901, the stock of the Northern Pacific road was embraced in a voting trust, of which there were five trustees, of whom Mr. Morgan was one. The voting trust elected the directors each year, and there had been no occasion to ask for proxies, if that was what was in your mind, so I could not say 1112 we had any representation.

Q. When was that voting trust dissolved?

A. January 1, 1901.

Q. That was after the annual election held in the fall of 1900?

A. Yes.

Q. And as I recall it, the annual elections of the Northern Pacific are in October, are they not?

1113 A. That is my recollection; they are in the autumn at any rate.

Q. Was there to your knowledge a pool or syndicate formed for the purchase of Burlington stock previous to the time of those negotiations with the committee or trustees?

A. Absolutely there was not to my knowledge.

Q. Did I ask you, Mr. Steele, in what month that purchase was completed?

A. You did, and I answered that I thought it was about a month or six weeks after the circular was sent out; I do not 1114 recall the exact date.

Q. That would be sometime about April—no, a little earlier than that I guess?

A. If you can give me the date of the circular——

Q. Well, that is in the record, it will show for itself.

A. It was a month or six weeks, I think, after that.

Q. When was it first brought to your attention, Mr. Steele, that active efforts were being made in the market by certain interests to acquire control of the Northern Pacific?

A. I think I should have to answer that that was never 1115 brought to my attention. It was in the late winter and spring of 1900 that we were aware that large transactions in Northern Pacific stock were taking place in the market, but no one had called our attention to it in the way you suggest.

Q. Well, when did you first ascertain that the Union Pacific, or interests allied with it, had acquired $78,000,000 of the Northern Pacific stock?

A. I think that the first knowledge that I had of that was when the annual report of the Union Pacific Railway Company was published, and it was then stated that that stock had been 1116 bought for the Oregon Short Line. As I originally said, I think that was in the autumn of 1901.

Q. Were you not aware, Mr. Steele, earlier than that time, that previous to May 1, 1901, there had been an effort made to buy up the Northern Pacific in the market?

A. I was aware, as I have stated, that there had been large purchases of Northern Pacific stock made.

Q. Now, when was it that your firm and Mr. Hill had their first conference relative to standing together in the matter of their Northern Pacific holdings?

A. I do not recollect that I have testified that there was such 1117 a conference.

Q. I don't say you did. I ask you when it was Mr. Hill testified to that?

A. I am unable to say, sir.

Q. Well, were you present at any such conference at or about May 1, 1901?

A. I don't recall any conference. I know the question was discussed by my firm; whether Mr. Hill was there or not, I can not undertake to say. But the question was discussed that there were large purchases of Northern Pacific stock being made, 1118 and that we would probably be looked to by the minority shareholders or outstanding shareholders to protect the Northern Pacific road from going into control of anybody else.

Q. And it was pretty definitely known and understood about that time that somebody else was trying to obtain control, wasn't it?

A. It was conjectured——

Q. Quite strongly conjectured?

A. I can not say. It was very well known.

Q. What I want to get at is whether you were present at a 1119 conference that was held at or about the 1st of May between some members of your firm and Mr. Hill?

A. Regarding what, Mr. Boutelle?

Q. Regarding Mr. Hill's holding or retaining his holdings in Northern Pacific—Mr. Hill and his friends, so termed?

A. I certainly had conferences with Mr. Hill on that subject about that time myself.

Q. Will you state to us the substance of that conversation or those conversations?

A. The substance of it was that there had been large pur- 1120 chases of Northern Pacific stock in the market and we were questioning whether ourselves and Mr. Hill and our friends held an actual majority of the stock, either common or preferred.

Q. Was that all there was to it?

A. That was all there was at that immediate time; later on—well, it was within a few days—later on we feared that some of our friends had not held their stock. The stock had advanced 1121 quite sharply in the market and they had been tempted to sell, and we were not quite satisfied that taking Mr. Hill and ourselves and our friends together that we held a majority of the Northern Pacific common stock; we thereupon decided—I don't know whether Mr. Hill had anything to do with that or not—that it was important, and there was a moral obligation upon us to endeavor to secure that stock, and my firm proceeded to purchase Northern Pacific common stock.

Q. What I am more particularly anxious about at the present time is these conferences your firm had with Mr. Hill, and just 1122 what agreement or understanding you reached at those conferences between you, as you say, representing yourselves and friends, and Mr. Hill speaking for himself and friends?

A. I don't think there was any agreement at all. It was understood, and we certainly expected that Mr. Hill and his friends and our friends would hold their Northern Pacific common stock. There was no agreement with them to do so, and there was no obligation to do it if they didn't want to.

Q. I am not speaking about an obligation in the sense of a contract based upon a legal consideration, but an understanding 1123 of some kind was reached between your firm and Mr. Hill at that time that they would hold or retain their holdings, was there not?

A. It was certainly stated by Mr. Hill that he intended to, and it was stated by us that we intended to. That is all there was to it, Mr. Boutelle. I am not trying to dodge your question.

Q. I think you are one of the fairest witnesses, Mr. Steele, we have had, and I am sure I do not intend to insinuate you were dodging.

1124 A. I am trying to save you the trouble of asking so many questions about it. We certainly expected Mr. Hill and ourselves and our friends that they would hold their common stock together and not sell it. That question was discussed and talked of, and it was understood by all of us that that would be done, but there was no agreement or understanding on the subject. That is all I want to get in your mind.

Q. Now, Mr. Steele, was there nothing more to this conference than the matter of holding and of selling common stock?

A. No; that was the only thing, Mr. Boutelle. 1125

Q. Was it not at one of those conferences—one of the earliest of those conferences—stated by Mr. Hill that if he retained his stock and did not sell out that the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific must be retired.

A. No, sir; that was decided long prior to the year 1901, when the voting trust went out.

Q. I understand that, but I am getting down now to whether or no that matter was discussed at or about this time?

A. It may have been stated that we were going to retire the voting trust, that the board was expected to retire it, and it was 1126 expected that they would.

Q. Refreshing your recollection to that extent, was it not quite positively stated, and stated by Mr. Hill, that he would retain his holdings, but that the preferred stock must be retired?

A. I do not recall any such condition as that, Mr. Boutelle. May I add that I do not think it would be necessary, for we understood it, and Mr. Hill understood it, that the preferred stock was going to be retired.

Q. Was it understood that any particular plan was to be adopted for the retirement of that preferred stock? 1127

A. I think not at that moment.

Q. Was it understood that a plan was to be adopted that would absolutely freeze out the preferred stockholders?

A. I don't think any plan was even discussed at that time, Mr. Boutelle.

Q. Was the matter brought up and talked over during those conferences at which you decided to make an attempt to obtain control?

A. It was not discussed in any way except it may have been mentioned that that was going to be done, as I above previously 1128 stated.

Q. Wasn't it furthermore stated directly that it would be done, so that while it may not have been equivalent to a formal agreement that there was a perfect understanding between you gentlemen that that retirement was to be had that fall?

A. It was certainly understood by J. P. Morgan & Co. that the retirement would be in the autumn.

Q. Was it not so stated? I am not trying to get at what was in somebody's mind.

1129 A. I think it was stated a great many times.

Q. At these conferences with Mr. Hill?

A. I could not say positively as to that, but either then or later or before. It was a thing thoroughly well understood to both of us.

Q. How much Northern Pacific did you and your friends, exclusive of Mr. Hill, control at that time, Mr. Steele?

A. What time are you now speaking of?

Q. The 1st of May, 1901.

A. I could not say as to our friends; we had at that time 1130 about $4,000,000 or $5,000,000.

Q. That is, you mean your firm?

A. My firm.

Q. Shortly after your conferences with Mr. Hill and some informal agreements or understandings were brought up, your firm went into the market and purchased additional Northern Pacific, did you not?

A. Shortly after the 1st of May we did. I must dissent from the conclusions of your questions, Mr. Boutelle.

Q. I don't want you to dissent from my conclusions. The 1131 court will be able to do that.

A. I don't want to be understood as agreeing to the conclusions that you put in your question.

Q. Well, is it not a fact, Mr. Steele, that subsequent to your conference with Mr. Hill your firm did go into the market and purchased large amounts of the common stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. We purchased large amounts—we thought they were fairly large amounts of the Northern Pacific stock between the 1st of May and the 7th.

1132 Mr. KELLOGG. Didn't I hear you objecting to leading questions?

Mr. BOUTELLE. Yes; but we are up against adverse witnesses right straight along, Mr. Kellogg, and you must make a little bit of allowance.

Mr. KELLOGG. We want to give you all the latitude in the world, Mr. Boutelle.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is appreciated, I assure you.

Mr. STETSON. And all longitude.

Mr. KELLOGG. I simply suggested you were making some 1133 objections; that is all.

Q. Mr. Steele, when did your conference—or the first conference with Mr. Hill—at or about May 1, take place?

A. I can not give the exact date. It was somewhere about May 1.

Q. How many of these conferences did you have at or about that time?

A. I could not say; I probably saw Mr. Hill every day, at least if he was in town at that time. My recollection is, he was there about a week or ten days, and I saw him probably every 1134 day.

Q. And was there any conference with him, or conferring with him relative to the condition of the market, particularly as relating to the Northern Pacific?

A. No; I don't think—about the condition of the market. We may have told him of the purchase we had made.

Q. Between May 1 and May 7, how much Northern Pacific common did you or your firm purchase?

A. I can't give you round figures, about $15,000,000.

Q. Was that stock purchased, Mr. Steele, on account of J. P. 1135
Morgan & Co. or on account of customers?

A. On account of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Q. Absolutely?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And J. P. Morgan & Co. paid for that stock then, without holding any securities back of it?

A. J. P. Morgan & Co.?

Q. Yes.

A. We did, sir.

Q. Was there any agreement or understanding at that time 1136 relative to the disposition of that additional stock you were then acquiring?

A. No; there was not.

Q. And that stock was not bought at the request of any third person?

A. It was not, sir.

Q. You held then, with these additional purchases that you made, from $19,000,000 to $20,000,000 in round numbers of common stock.

1137 A. Roughly, around $20,000,000.

Q. And how long did you continue to hold that?

A. We held it all until about the middle of the summer. I think it was the latter part of July or perhaps the 1st of August when we sold about $10,000,000 to Mr. Hill and to some of his friends, and to some of our own friends as well.

Q. And did you retain the remainder of your holdings down to the fall of 1901?

A. Yes.

Q. The only modification in your holdings was the sale of 1138 these $10,000,000, was it?

A. That is all.

Q. And that left you about $12,000,000 of Northern Pacific common?

A. I think about ten, or under ten.

Q. Do you still hold that, Mr. Steele?

A. We do not.

Q. What disposition was made of that $10,000,000?

A. That we held?

Q. Yes, sir.

1139 A. We sold it to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Was that a sale to the Northern Securities Company in exchange for its stock?

A. We sold it to the Northern Securities Company and they paid us in their stock.

Q. Do you still retain that stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. We do, I think, all of it.

Q. There was no agreement in reference to any disposition by you of that $10,000,000 to any other interest than the North-
1140 ern Securities Company?

A. There was no agreement with the Northern Securities Company either. There was no agreement with anybody about it.

Q. And you still hold the Northern Securities Company stock?

A. We do.

Q. Is that stock held by you absolutely, or held as collateral?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And you have no obligation back of that purchase? 1141

A. None whatever.

Q. Were you present, Mr. Steele, at the conference of May 9, at which it was decided to leave the selection of board of directors of the Northern Pacific to Mr. Morgan?

A. I was present at this conference, but it wasn't May 9.

Q. It was May 11, wasn't it?

A. Oh, no, I think it was about a week or two later.

Q. Who were present at that conference, Mr. Steele?

A. Mr. Hill and Mr. Harriman, Mr. Schiff, Mr. Bacon, and myself, I think. 1142

Q. Was Mr. Baker there? George F. isn't it?

A. Mr. Baker? No, he was not there.

Q. Mr. Bacon?

A. That was my partner.

Q. That is the gentleman who was in Europe. When was the next conference you had with either Mr. Schiff or the Harriman interests?

A. I don't recall any other conference I had with either Mr. Schiff or Mr. Harriman.

Q. Or any one representing the Oregon Short Line interests? 1143

A. No, sir.

Q. What was the substance of the negotiations that were had at that conference that you have referred to?

A. I shall have to go back a little to answer your question fully, Mr. Bouteile. On the 9th of May there was a great disturbance in the stock market here, and the newspapers were full of stories of great contest for control of the Northern Pacific between important financial interests. They had succeeded in creating a condition of great excitement in financial circles. People were in danger of failure. There was a lack of confi- 1144 dence around, and the purpose of this conference was to devise a statement that could be made public, assuring the public generally that they were mistaken and there was no such trouble on hand. The conference was very brief—I think it lasted not more than ten or fifteen minutes—and Mr. Harriman, I think it was, suggested that the purchase of Northern Pacific stock, or the Northern Pacific stock which had been purchased by or in their interests, they were quite willing to give Mr. Morgan a 1145 proxy and let him fix the composition of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific in the autumn, and they thought that would remove any question in the public mind about any friction or contest between different interests.

Q. Was there anything stated at that time as to the amount of the respective holdings?

A. There was not; no, sir.

Q. That was not discussed?

A. Not discussed at all.

Q. Did you have or were you present at any other conference 1146 with the Harriman or Oregon Short Line interests subsequent to that?

A. I don't recall any until possibly late in the autumn. Sometime in November. I think I had one conference at which Mr. Harriman was present regarding the sale of the Northern Pacific stock which they held.

Q. Between those dates, then, you know nothing of the negotiations that were had between Mr. Harriman, the Oregon Short Line interests, Mr. Hill, and Mr. Morgan.

A. I don't think there were any.

1147 Q. I am not asking you about what you think, I am asking you if you know of any.

A. I don't know of any.

Q. How much were the holdings of the Oregon Short Line in Northern Pacific?

A. I never knew exactly what they were. Roughly it was discussed as being about 78,000,000. I say I never knew until late in the summer of 1901 when that stock was transferred into the names of Mr. Harriman and Mr. Pierce, and we assumed that that was the stock which they had been talking of, and 1148 that gave us the amount as about 78,000,000.

Q. Were you present, Mr. Steele, at the time the plan of retirement of Northern Pacific preferred as ultimately carried out was under discussion?

A. I am a member of the Northern Pacific board, and I was undoubtedly present when it was discussed there.

Q. That is not what I mean. The plan, as ultimately carried out, was already drawn up and submitted to the board and simply formally p sed, was it not, as a board? Were you present at the confer ces when that plan was decided upon?

A. The plan was made up in my office. My firm were the 1149 fiscal agents of the Northern Pacific Company, and they looked to us to suggest some plan for financing this action that they had determined upon, and we suggested this plan.

Q. Well, when was that plan suggested, Mr. Morgan?

A. Mr. Morgan?

Q. Or, Mr. Steele, pardon me.

A. You flatter me, sir. It was very shortly before the meeting of the board, at which the matter was to be presented to the board. That meeting was about the middle of November, and I think this plan was gotten up about a week before. 1150

Q. I am not asking you in regard to when it was formerly drawn up, but when it was first discussed.

A. That is what I mean, Mr. Boutelle. It was first discussed, I think, about a week or ten days before a meeting of the board.

Q. And you intended by that, Mr. Steele, to state that matter was not discussed earlier in your office to your knowledge?

A. Not that I recollect.

Q. When was the plan of the organization of the Northern Securities Company first brought to your attention? 1151

A. I think early in the year 1900, as soon as I was in the office, almost.

Q. In 1900 the Northern Securities Company was brought to your notice; early in the year, was it?

A. Perhaps I am wrong under that title. I think that was brought to my notice—it was the autumn of 1901. I could not come very close to it.

Q. When was the plan of transferring to the Northern Securities Company, the stock in the Northern Pacific, first brought to your attention? 1152

A. May I ask what stock in the Northern Pacific you mean, Mr. Boutelle?

Q. All the stock that could be obtained?

A. I never heard any such plan as that at all.

Q. Will you modify that question by saying any stock of the Northern Pacific, then?

A. That was brought to my attention about midsummer of 1153 1901. It came about shortly after Mr. Morgan's return from Europe, which was early in July. The question of transferring that stock to the Northern Securities Company I am not sure was discussed at that time. The question of forming some sort of a holding company to hold the Northern Pacific stock, which we had bought and which was held by our friends at that time, was discussed about then.

Q. Did your firm have anything to do with the organization of the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir.

1154 Q. That was a deal entirely outside?

A. Outside; yes.

Q. The matter of organizing a securities company, you say, was first brought to your attention in the summer?

Mr. STETSON. He didn't say that. He said in the early part of 1900.

Q. I am getting at his last answer just before this. Did I state that incorrectly, Mr. Steele?

A. In this, Mr. Boutelle. I said in the summer of 1901 the matter of putting the Northern Pacific stock which we held into 1155 a securities company was first brought up.

Q. That is what I mean. What I was coming at is wasn't the matter of the retirement of the preferred stock discussed and the plan under advisement at the same time as the plan for organizing a securities company to turn over the N. P. stock?

A. No, sir. The matter of retiring the preferred stock was never under discussion. It was considered a settled thing, as far as we were concerned, and the question of the particular plan I don't think came up until shortly before the directors' meeting at which it was to be acted on.

1156 Q. Do you know how Mr. Hill and certain parties interested with him happened to buy the 10,000,000 of your 15,000,000 or 16,000,000 purchase?

A. I do not, except I think they thought it was a good investment.

Q. I want to know if you know the facts?

A. I don't know, sir. My knowledge of the facts would be confined to the simple statement that they wanted to buy it, we were willing to sell, and we sold it.

Q. When the plan or discussion as to the retirement of the 1157 preferred stock was first brought up, who was present?

A. Do you speak now of the retirement of the preferred stock or the plan?

Q. No; I am speaking about the discussion of a plan—formulating a plan.

A. I couldn't say. It was, I think, in our office, and I think it was discussed by Mr. Bacon and myself, probably.

Q. Was Mr. Hill a party to any of those discussions or conferences?

A. That I couldn't say. I am quite sure he knew what the 1158 plan was to be.

Q. And that plan was made up as a result of conferences held between you and Mr. Hill and the parties that represented him?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are you positive in regard to that?

A. Quite positive, sir.

Q. What did your firm have to do with the purchase of the Harriman interests in the Northern Pacific, Mr. Steele?

A. My impression is it was my firm that conducted that 1159 negotiation entirely.

Q. Will you state what those negotiations were?

A. I will as nearly as I can, and I think I know the substance of them, Mr. Boutelle. It was after the meeting of the Northern Pacific board, as I recollect it, at which it was resolved that the preferred stock was to be retired. Whether the suggestion came from Mr. Harriman or not, I couldn't quite say, but the question was taken up between Mr. Harriman and ourselves as to the disposition of the Northern Pacific stock which they had. 1160

Q. When was this, pardon me?

A. I think it was a little after the middle of November, after the meeting of the Northern Pacific board, at which it was resolved to retire the Northern Pacific stock. They expressed a desire to be allowed to part with their stock. It had become, or would become, by the retirement of the preferred stock, a minority interest, and it was rather an unsalable commodity, as the stock had practically been withdrawn from the market, and

1161 they asked us if we wouldn't undertake—I say they asked us, it came up between us, I am not sure which one suggested it—undertake to get the Northern Securities Company to buy their stock. We finally agreed upon a basis by which they agreed to sell their stock for a lump sum, which was to be payable partly in cash and partly in stock of the Northern Securities Company. At that time Mr. Harriman—I shall have to apologize whenever I say Union Pacific, because I never really knew whether that was so—Mr. Harriman and his friends held both common and preferred stock, in the proportion, I think, of 1162 about 37,000,000 common to 41,000,000 preferred, in round figures, and their proposition was to sell us that stock in one block for a fixed sum which was to be paid partly in cash and partly in Northern Securities Company stock, and we undertook to try and get the Northern Securities Company to buy that stock on those terms, we acting as bankers between them.

Q. You acted then in that transaction, as I understand it, as middle men?

A. As bankers.

Q. That is, it was not a purchase outright by your firm?

1163 A. No.

Q. Or a purchase in which your firm obligated themselves to pay a fixed amount of cash?

A. No; it was only a purchase by us if we succeeded in getting the Northern Securities Company to take it, and the terms were that we were to turn over just exactly what we got.

Q. You were really, then, in negotiation with the Northern Securities Company; you were really negotiating for the Union Pacific, or Harriman, or Short Line interests?

A. We were bankers in between. I wouldn't say we repre-1164 sented either side particularly. We were very often put in that position.

Q. You were financial agents and you were requested or instigated to make the transaction or attempt the transaction by the Harriman interests?

A. Well, we did undertake it for them.

Q. And at their request?

A. With their approval, at any rate.

Q. Well, it was a little more than with their approval, was it not? How did you happen to undertake the negotiation at all? 1165

A. I say I am not quite sure which side suggested it first, whether they asked us to do it or we suggested it to them, but it was one or the other, and as a matter of fact we did undertake it for them.

Q. And whatever you obtained as a result of those negotiations from the Northern Securities Company was what you turned over to the Oregon Short Line?

A. Well, we turned it over to Mr. Harriman.

Q. Was there any written memorandum or agreement of that purchase? 1166

A. No, sir.

Mr. STETSON. It was too large for that, Mr. Boutelle. It was a good thing, too, because writings are bad things to have floating around.

Q. Are you a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I am not, sir.

Q. Are you a member of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific? 1167

A. I am.

Q. And of the Burlington—either lines?

A. No, sir.

Q. Neither railroad nor railway?

A. Neither.

Q. Did you attend the meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific on July 23, 1901?

A. I couldn't recollect the date, Mr. Boutelle, but I probably did, as I was here that time.

Q. Was there any meeting either of the executive committee or the board of directors of the Northern Pacific between May 9 and July 23? 1168

A. Well, I presume there was; I couldn't recall any particular meeting.

Q. You were not present at any such meeting?

A. I think probably I was. The board meets monthly, and I think the monthly meetings were held. I am not a member of the executive committee.

1169 Q. Not a member of the executive committee of the Northern Pacific?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware, Mr. Steele, whether there were any negotiations with Mr. Harriman, or the Oregon Short Line interests, previous to this in November?

A. With reference to what, Mr. Boutelle?

Q. The sale of the Northern Pacific holdings.

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Were you aware that at the time Mr. Harriman was placed 1170 on the board of the Northern Pacific?

A. Was I aware that he was put upon the board?

Q. Were you aware of that fact at the time it was done?

A. I was. I think I was present at the meeting when he was elected.

Q. That was five directors that resigned or retired at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And five new ones selected and appointed by Mr. Morgan?

A. Well, suggested by Mr. Morgan.

1171 Q. And what you suggested went as a matter of fact, didn't it?

A. It happened to at that time.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Steele, whether there was any controversy or understanding relative to Mr. Harriman's being placed on the Northern Pacific board prior to that time?

A. I do know absolutely there was not.

Q. Do you know how he happened to be placed on the board of directors of the Burlington?

A. I do, sir.

Q. Will you state how it was?

1172 A. You only want the Burlington now?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. There had been some apprehension, I think, in the minds of Mr. Harriman and some of his friends that difficulties might arise through the fact that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific had purchased the Burlington road and it was a menace to the Union Pacific. I talked it over, I think, with Mr. Morgan, and said, "Why not let us suggest that Mr. Harriman go on the board, and he can see there is nothing intended as a menace in any way?" and he approved of the idea; and I don't know 1173 whether I made the suggestion or whether Mr. Bacon did, when the Burlington meeting came around, that Mr. Harriman should be elected a director of that board, and he was, at any rate, elected at that meeting. That, I think, was quite late in the autumn.

Q. Did the same thing hold good in the election of George J. Gould to the same board?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Gould is also a member of the Union Pacific board, is he not? 1174

A. I think he is.

Q. Did the same thing hold good in regard to the election of Jacob H. Schiff to the Burlington boards?

A. I don't know whether Mr. Schiff would be considered so much as representing Union Pacific interests as Mr. Harriman, but Mr. Schiff had been one of Mr. Harriman's associates, as we understood it.

Q. During this contest that had been going on during the spring?

A. I never knew there was any contest going on, Mr. Bou- 1175 telle. I will say during the spring. There was never any contest, except in the newspapers.

Q. We will call it this friendly bout that was had here along about May.

A. I should say during the spring of 1901.

Q. Were all these Union Pacific gentlemen placed on those boards, according to your understanding, merely to show Mr. Harriman that the Burlington was not a menace?

A. You say those boards; do you mean the Burlington boards?

Q. Yes, sir. 1176

A. That was absolutely the only reason, to my knowledge.

Q. Mr. Harriman was also made a member of the Northern Securities board, was he not?

A. I think he was, Mr. Boutelle.

Q. And a member of its executive committee?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Were you present at a conference where both Mr. Hill and Mr. Harriman was present, when the subject of Burlington extensions into Union Pacific territory was brought up?

1177 A. No; I don't recall any such.

Q. Was the subject of Burlington extensions brought up at any conference at which you were present?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Nor any interference with Union Pacific territory by the Burlington?

A. No.

Q. You don't recall that subject having been brought up or discussed?

A. Not at any meeting where I was present.

1178 Q. Previous to the winter of 1900–1901 had your firm either purchased or financed any considerable amount of the Burlington stock?

A. I don't think we ever had anything to do with it, Mr. Boutelle.

Q. No transaction whatever in Burlington?

A. No; nothing of any consequence, at any rate. I couldn't say positively that some customer might not have bought a 100 shares, but nothing of any consequence.

Q. You neither bought yourself, nor bought for anyone, nor 1179 financed any transaction in Burlington stock during that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Previous to what you have testified to?

A. No.

Q. When was the time that the ratio at which the stocks of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern were to be turned into the Northern Securities Company first brought to your attention?

A. The only time it ever came to my attention was when the suggestion was made that the stocks which we hold—the Northern Pacific which we hold, or our friends—should go in.

1180 Q. You personally had nothing to do with the fixing of that ratio?

A. As a member of my firm, I may have had a little to do with it.

Q. I mean aside from that—aside from the particular deal that your firm had—you had nothing to do with fixing that ratio?

A. No.

Q. Do you know, as a matter of fact, when that ratio was fixed, the per cent at which Great Northern and Northern Pacific should be turned in?

A. I don't think it was ever absolutely fixed, Mr. Boutelle, 1181 so far as the Northern Pacific was concerned. The negotiations which we had with the Northern Securities Company with regard to the stock which we had was a transaction by itself; the subsequent negotiations under which they took in the stocks which Mr. Harriman held, at our suggestion, was taken on a different basis.

Q. Hadn't the basis on which the Harriman stock was to be turned in been decided a considerable time before the Harriman negotiations were actually consummated?

A. No, sir. 1182

Q. On what basis was the Harriman common stock turned in?

A. There were no pro rata basis. It was a round lump sum for all the common and preferred stock.

Q. And what did you say that was?

A. The amount?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't think I have testified to that before. I give it to you as nearly as I can. It was, in round figures, about $90,000,000 for all.

Q. For the $78,000,000? 1183

A. Yes; of common and preferred; and that was paid partly in securities and partly in cash.

Q. Did you or your firm hold any of the preferred?

A. Do you mean at this time?

Q. Yes.

A. No; we did not then, I am sure.

Q. Did you hold it during the summer of 1901?

A. I think not.

Q. Your holdings are almost exclusively in the common stock?

A. Yes. 1184

Q. Do you represent, as a firm, Mr. Steele, any other common-stock holders than your own holdings?

A. I don't think so, Mr. Boutelle. I don't recall that we did, unless, perhaps, Mr. Baker.

Q. Did you, as a matter of fact, act for or represent any other holders of Northern Pacific common in negotiating transfers to the Northern Securities Company?

A. I don't think we did. We made our negotiations with 1185 the understanding that it was to apply to stock held by our friends, if they wanted it, and they accepted it.

Q. When you speak of your friends, that is a little bit indefinite. Who were they, or what was the amount of their holdings?

A. Well, they held, together with what we had, and I include Mr. Hill in the list, between $41,000,000 and $42,000,000 of common stock.

Q. And that included Mr. Hill's holdings, did it?

A. Yes; and Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Baker and Mr. Jones
1186 and those gentlemen.

Q. They held originally about $18,000,000 or $19,000,000, did they not—that is, in May, 1901?

A. I don't know, though they must have held at least that much, probably a little more, because with our purchase, which, added to the previous holdings, was something like $20,000,000, added to the stock of the gentlemen whom I called my friends, we had about $41,000,000 or $42,000,000.

Q. The ratio at which your Northern Pacific common was turned in was 115?

1187 A. Yes.

Q. And you don't know when that ratio was first decided upon, or by whom?

A. Yes; I tried to answer. I think that was decided upon between Mr. Hill and ourselves, and it was along in the late summer of 1901.

Q. When was it decided and by whom as to the ratio at which the Great Northern should be turned in?

A. That I don't know, sir.

Q. Did you surrender or turn in your stock in the Northern 1188 Pacific without knowledge as to the basis at which the Great Northern was to be acquired at?

A. No; we had knowledge; it was to be 100.

Q. That had been fixed and determined?

A. Yes.

Q. But you did not know when nor by whom that had been fixed in that manner?

A. I do not know, sir.

Q. When was the matter or subject of turning in the Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock to the Northern Securities 1189

Company first brought to your attention?

A. The subject of turning in the Great Northern into a holding company had been brought to my attention a year or more before.

Q. We have heard of that.

A. Just when it was called the Northern Securities Company I do not know. I knew a holding company was to be formed, into which I assumed that Mr. Hill and his friends were going to put their Great Northern stock. The first time that my attention was called to the fact that the Northern Pacific stock 1190 would be taken in as well was when we made our negotiation to put in our Northern Pacific stock which our friends held, as to which I have testified.

Q. That was when?

A. That was late in the summer of 1901—September or October.

Q. And that was before the Northern Securities Company had been organized?

A. The papers had not been filed at that time.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Steele, the entire plan of taking 1191 over the stocks of both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific had been outlined and fully decided upon during that summer, had it not?

A. Not to my knowledge, sir.

Cross-examination by Mr. STETSON:

Q. Mr. Steele, I would like to get some dates. Do you remember when Mr. Morgan went to Europe in the spring of 1901?

A. It was about the end of March.

Q. Do you know when he returned? 1192

A. It was early in July; I should say about the first week in July.

Q. Was it not the 4th of July?

A. I think it was.

Q. It was on the 4th of July. Did Mr. Morgan go to California in the autumn?

A. He did.

Q. Do you know when he went?

1193 A. I don't recollect exactly; I think it was sometime in September.

Q. Do you know when he returned?

A. My recollection is it was pretty nearly in November, or late in October.

Q. Was it not the very end of October?

A. I think so.

Q. You have been asked something as to the time of the formulation of the plan for the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific. Wasn't that plan formulated entirely 1194 after his return from California?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you happen to know that I came back at the same time?

A. I recollect it, sir.

Q. And were all the papers with reference to the plan drawn wholly either by you or by me?

A. Yes, and all after that time.

Q. All after that date. Now, do you know when Mr. Bacon went to Europe?

1195 A. It was early in November.

Q. How early with reference to election day?

A. I don't remember the date of election day.

Q. Was it not the 6th or 7th of November?

A. My recollection is it was the 6th.

Q. And was not the formation of the Northern Securities Company entirely after Mr. Bacon's departure?

A. Altogether; yes.

Q. Mr. Bacon has not been in this country since that time, has he?

1196 A. He has not?

Q. Mr. Bacon was not here at the time of the conclusion of the plan, or the adoption of the plan, for the retirement of the preferred stock, was he?

A. Not when it was adopted by the board of the Northern Pacific Company.

Q. Did any plan or proposition of which you have any knowledge for the retirement of the preferred stock have any relation to, or any connection with any agreement, or any statements with, by, or to Mr. Hill?

A. Absolutely none. 1197

Q. I ask you the same question with reference to Mr. Schiff.

A. I make the same answer.

Q. The same question with reference to Mr. Harriman.

A. The same answer.

Q. The same question with reference to the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. The same answer.

Q. The retirement of the preferred stock to your own knowledge was wholly independent of these persons and this corporation, and any connection therewith? 1198

A. Absolutely.

Mr. BOUTELLE. You make a first-class witness, Mr. Stetson.

Mr. STETSON. I am cross-examining your witness.

Q. When was there first brought to your attention the adoption or the formation of any company, whether called the Northern Securities Company, or by any other name, to hold the stock of the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. The question of a holding company for the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company was brought to my attention, 1199 I think, in the spring of 1900, almost the first time that I went into the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. The idea of a holding company to hold stock of the Northern Pacific Company was brought to my attention along about the latter part of the summer of 1901.

Q. You state that the purchase of the so-called Harriman stock by J. P. Morgan & Co., as bankers, was made with the idea of a resale thereof, or an arrangement for the resale thereof to the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. BOUTELLE. I must object to your putting words into my 1200 witness's mouth.

Q. I am going to bulldoze your witness. Well, having listened to the colloquy between Mr. Boutelle and myself, will you now proceed to state the facts in that regard?

A. I have stated that the idea of the purchase by J. P. Morgan & Co. of the Northern Pacific stocks held by Mr. Harriman and his friends was with the idea and understanding that they were to be offered to the Northern Securities Company on terms exactly the same as those upon which they were taken by 1201 J. P. Morgan & Co., and that the proceeds of the sale received by J. P. Morgan & Co., if the sale was consummated, were to be turned over to Mr. Harriman and his associates, and this is what was done.

Q. Do you know of any hitch or difficulty in the completion of doing what was done?

A. There was quite a hitch, which arose from the fact that in our talk with Mr. Harriman and his friends we had assumed that their holdings of preferred and common stock were somewhat larger than they actually proved to be, and we had negoti-1202 ated with the Northern Securities Company upon that basis. When they came to deliver the stock, which was the first time that we knew accurately just how many shares of stock they held, it turned out that they did not have quite so much as we supposed in the negotiation, and had represented to the Northern Securities Company that we did have. The Northern Securities Company consequently refused to take that amount of stock on the same basis that they had agreed for the amount which they supposed was to be delivered. We succeeded in effecting a compromise under which the Northern Securities Company 1203 accepted the amount of stock, which Mr. Harriman and his friends were able to deliver, but a substantial reduction in the price was made owing to the fact that the amount was not as great as the Northern Securities Company had supposed it would be.

Q. Do you remember the date on which that compromise price was decided upon, and the transfer actually made? Not the transfer actually made, but the sale completed?

A. No; I couldn't remember the date; it was toward the latter part of November.

1204 Q. Do you remember the day of the week?

A. No; I can't remember the day of the week.

Mr. BOUTELLE. You are not trying to make my witness say it is Sunday, are you?

Mr. STETSON. Now, if you have got so much objection to the way I testify, I am going to let Mr. Kellogg ask some questions.

By Mr. KELLOGG:

Q. I understand you, Mr. Steele, that when the Northern Securities Company was organized, the so-called Harriman stock had not been purchased by you, or by anyone for that company. 1205

A. It had not been purchased by us.

Q. And, so far as you know, no arrangements for this sale to the Northern Securities Company had ever been made?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, was there, as far as you know, any connection between the organization of the Northern Securities Company and the acquisition of the Harriman stock?

A. None whatever.

Q. In dealing with the Northern Securities Company for the sale of stock, did the Nothern Pacific stockholders act separately or in a body? 1206

A. As to that I can only state what I think I have already testified to—that my firm made the negotiations as to the price at which the stock which we held should be sold to the Northern Securities Company, and it was understood that our friends, by which I intend to mean the same persons that I tried to describe to Mr. Boutelle, were to have the right to put their stock in at the same figure. There was no binding agreement on our part that they should, and we had no authority to obligate them to do so. It was a matter for individual determination by each Northern Pacific stockholder, and extended only to those whom I have included as our friends, constituting in amount about 41,000,000 or 42,000,000. 1207

Q. Was the fact of acquiring a majority of the stock of both or either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern Railway companies made a condition of the organization of the Securities Company, so far as you know?

A. Not to my knowledge, sir.

Q. Well, do you know that it was determined to form the Northern Securities Company without knowing whether they would acquire a majority of either one of the companies, either the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern? 1208

A. I have always understood that it was intended to form that company anyhow independently of getting any Northern Pacific stock whatever, and independently of getting a majority of the Great Northern stock, as I have already testified. I understood that company was to be formed originally to hold 1209 the Great Northern stock which was owned by Mr. Hill and some of his associates, which I understood amounted to about $30,000,000 or $35,000,000.

Q. Was there any agreement between J. P. Morgan & Co. or J. P. Morgan and his associates and Mr. Hill and his associates to organize the Northern Securities Company, and to transfer to it the ownership of a majority of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies' stocks?

A. None whatever.

Q. Was there any agreement of any such character?

1210 A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. In the organization of the Northern Securities Company did your firm speak for a majority of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific or act at all other than for your personal interests—your own interest—or did you have anything to do with organizing the Northern Securities Company other than to sell to it your stock?

A. I was about to answer that I have already testified that we had nothing to do with the organization of the Northern Securities Company, and the first connection that we had with 1211 it was the negotiation by which we sold to it the Northern Pacific common stock which we held.

Mr. STETSON:

Q. So far as you know, or as was known to your firm, so far as you know, in the organization of the Northern Securities Company, or in the tranfer thereto of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, or the Great Northern Railway Company, was there any purpose or intent to suppress competition or in any way to control competition or restrain trade or commerce between the States or within the States or within 1212 any State?

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not proper cross-examination, going into a subject not covered by the direct. I suppose I should state to my witness that the examiner does not rule and he ought to answer.

A. I answer there was not.

Mr. STETSON:

Q. Or was there any purpose or intent in such organization or in connection therewith, so far as known to you, to regulate 1213 rates or to maintain rates upon railroads?

Mr. BOUTELLE. The same objection as the last. I suppose my previous objection can be taken to the question as amended.

Mr. KELLOGG. Oh, yes; and considered as renewed to each question.

A. There was not.

By Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. Mr. Steele, I understood you to say on cross-examination that this plan of retirement as ultimately carried out was brought up and considered first sometime in the fall just pre- 1214 vious to the meeting of the board of directors?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. Do you know how it happened that a plan of retirement was adopted that prevented the preferred stockholders from participating in the benefits and obtaining convertible certificates? Do you know how or why that plan was adopted?

A. I know how it was adopted. It was adopted by a vote of the board of directors.

Q. Yes; that was an unfortunate way of putting it by me.

A. Why it was adopted was, it was considered by us, my 1215 firm, who were fiscal agents, and by the board of directors, as a fair, equitable, wise, and expedient plan to pursue.

Q. And it was also considered by your firm that if any other plan was adopted, or if the preferred stockholders were given equal privileges in the retirement, that it would throw the control into this other interest that had the $78,000,000, was it not?

A. No, sir.

Q. That was not considered at all?

A. We never took that in consideration at all. 1216

Q. As a matter of fact, that would have been the effect, would it not, Mr. Steele?

A. That I couldn't say.

Q. Well, it is a matter of mere arithmetical computation, isn't it?

A. It depends entirely upon what the plan had been. I think you could draw that conclusion as well as I.

1217 Q. That preferred stock had been outstanding since the date of the organization?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And previous to May 9, 1901, no plan had been proposed or acted upon for its retirement, had it?

A. No definite plan had been proposed.

Q. Do you know why it happened to be taken up and acted upon at this particular time?

A. I do. It had been intended from the time of the organization to retire the preferred stock as soon as the company became 1218 financially able to do so. The voting trust by its terms continued until January, 1902, I think it was, but in the fall of 1900 the company had become very prosperous, it was very strong, and it was deemed by the voting trustees that they had fulfilled the purposes of their trust, and that they could properly dissolve the voting trust on the 1st of January following which was 1901. The only uncompleted object of the reorganization was the retirement of the preferred stock, and they intended at the time that the voting trust was dissolved that the preferred stock should be retired on the 1st of January, 1219 1902, that being the first date after the retirement at which it it could be retired under the provision of the charter, by-laws, and stock certificate.

Q. Was there any such action as that taken by the board of directors in the early part of 1901 at the time the voting trust expired?

A. I think not, sir.

Q. And, so far as you know, the first action that was taken was taken after these conditions occurred that you have already described in the market?

1220 A. The first action taken by the board was on the 13th of November, 1901.

Q. You state that the company was financially able. As a matter of fact the plan of retirement as carried out was practically a paper plan, was it not?

A. I don't know exactly what you mean by a paper plan. I thought it was a very good plan.

Q. What I mean is simply this: That the common stockholders took the certificates of indebtedness and converted the certificates of indebtedness into common stock, so that there is precisely the same amount of stock outstanding in the Northern 1221

Pacific to-day that there was before?

A. That is true; there is the same amount of stock outstanding to-day as there was before.

Q. The only difference is that the Northern Pacific has converted preferred stock which it could retire at any time into common stock, and has paid an immense commission to somebody for underwriting and putting through that deal. That is the financial part of it, isn't it?

A. No, I shouldn't say it was.

Q. They didn't have that deal put through without any com- 1222 missions, did they?

A. My impression is it didn't cost them anything.

Q. Who paid for the underwriting?

A. There was nothing paid for it; it was considered a sufficient inducement to the underwriters to take the convertible bonds at par. The plan was this——

Q. I understand the details of the plan.

A. I want to explain the reason why there was no commission.

Q. Was there commission to the Standard Trust Company? 1223

A. No; I think not to the Standard Trust Company either.

Q. So it was gratuitous all the way around?

A. Not at all, sir.

Q. Let us hear where it was not.

A. That is what I wanted to explain to you. The Northern Pacific Company had to raise $75,000,000 cash to pay $75,000,000 of preferred stock, they being advised by counsel, learned in the law, that the only thing the preferred stockholders were entitled to was to receive their cash. In order to raise that they decided to issue $75,000,000 of convertible debentures, 1224 and in order to give the common stockholders a chance to get those debentures at par they made a contract with the Standard Trust Company—I think you have that in evidence—under which that company agreed to buy all those debentures at par, but agreed also to offer them on the same terms to the common stockholders. Now, their chance of profit was that some of the common stockholders wouldn't take them, and they were quite willing to underwrite those debentures at par, because it would 1225 have been a profitable thing to get them at par if the stockholders had not taken them. That was the consideration for the underwriters.

Q. So that those certificates were considered worth more than par?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Then what was the profit?

A. They were considered as worth par.

Q. What was the profit in buying something at par that was worth par?

1226 A. It might ultimately go higher. It was pretty well considered it would go higher, and my opinion was that it would go higher.

Q. And that, in your opinion, was the consideration for this Standard Trust Company's agreement, instead of a commission?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Notwithstanding this so-called benefit that you have referred to from taking the certificates at par, the Standard Trust Company, before that agreement was carried out, did have a collateral underwriting agreement, didn't it, to furnish this 1227 money?

A. Yes.

Q. And the same consideration and inducement moved to the underwriters that moved to the Standard Trust, did it?

A. I think so, sir.

Q. The obligations, counting stock as an obligation, of the Northern Pacific had not then changed? There was $155,000,000 out before and there is $155,000,000 out now; that is correct, isn't it?

A. That is correct; yes.

1228 Q. But you have, by this plan of retirement, put those who held the preferred stock to one side and coppered the entire issue of the common stock for the common-stock holders?

A. I can not quite yield to the epithets of counsel in regard to the transaction. The undoubted result was that the preferred stock was paid off in cash at par, and the common-stock holders, through taking the convertible certificates and exchanging them into common stock, have got practically all of the additional common stock.

Q. We understand that. That was the purpose and intent 1229 of the people in the Northern Pacific who put this plan of retirement through to prevent the preferred-stock holders having any part in the issue of the common?

A. It was not their purpose to prevent it; it was their purpose not to offer it to them.

By Mr. STETSON:

Q. How long have you been familiar with the affairs of the Northern Pacific?

A. Ever since my connection with the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., which was early in the year 1900. 1230

Q. Had you not previously made a careful study of the plan of reorganization of the Northern Pacific?

A. I had read it and studied it on several occasions. I think I used it as a model in some others.

Q. Had you ever heard or known of any plan for the retirement of preferred stock which did not exclude the preferred stockholders and operate to the benefit of the common-stock holders?

Mr. BOUTELLE. Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and not proper cross-examination. 1231

A. I had not, sir.

Q. In the plan discussed for the retirement of the preferred stock was there any question ever raised to your knowledge, or any doubt expressed, that such retirement should be for the benefit of the common-stock holders, and effectually and finally should withdraw all interest of the preferred-stock holders?

A. None to my knowledge; never.

Q. And these discussions as to the plan of retirement of the preferred stock, to which you have made reference, concerned only the way of effecting that retirement and not the terms 1232 that should be offered to the holders of preferred stock?

A. There never was any discussion as to anything being offered to the preferred-stock holders except par in cash.

Q. As stated in their contract?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, was it practicable to retire the preferred stock until the common stock reached par, or until the company could 1233 make a sale of bonds bearing interest at a rate of less than 4 per cent?

Mr. BOUTELLE. It seems to me that is immaterial. I will interpose an objection there.

A. It would certainly have been inexpedient and unwise financiering.

Q. Was not the plan adopted one which gave to every common-stock holder an equal right to participate in the benefit of the retirement?

A. It did.

1234 Q. Did any of the underwriters or the Standard Trust Company have any right or benefit that was not open equally ratably to every common holder of stock?

A. They did not, sir.

Q. And the holder of even 100 shares of common stock could have gotten his proportion of that benefit equally ratably with J. P. Morgan & Co., or any underwriter?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And if he did not choose to put it in it was because he saw some way of making his stock more valuable, or else 1235 because he didn't know of his opportunity.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Good testimony.

Q. Is that it?

A. I should assume so.

Q. Has the whole $75,000,000 been paid in?

A. The whole $75,000,000 for convertible certificates?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir; it has.

Q. Was there any profit upon or resulting to the underwriters or the Standard Trust Company except such profit as they 1236 might have the chance of making off from new common stock which the old common stockholders might take and decline to take?

A. They had no chance of any profit except in taking the convertible certificates which some old common stockholders might decline to take, and either selling those or converting them into common stock and keeping them?

Q. So there was no arrangement for profit that was not publicly disclosed and open to every common stockholder ratably?

A. Absolutely none. If the common stockholders availed 1237 themselves of their entire privilege there would have been no profit of any kind to the Standard Trust Company or underwriters.

Q. And that was offered to every common stockholder?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And availed of by most of them?

A. Oh, I think almost all—very little of it—didn't take it.

Q. Do you know how much common stock failed to avail of it?

A. I think there was about $200,000 or $300,000 of the cer- 1238 tificates which were not taken by the common stockholders.

Q. That would be about 2,000 shares of the common stock?

A. Yes.

Q. Of which we know of the existence of about a hundred?

A. I don't know of the existence of any of it.

Mr. BULKLEY. You are not well informed.

A. Oh, I forgot that hundred.

By Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. Was any offer made to the preferred stockholders to issue common for their preferred stock on an even exchange? 1239

A. None whatever, sir.

Q. How much more difficult would it have been, as we are getting into hypothetical states of facts, to have offered that to the preferred stockholders than it was to carry out this somewhat complicated scheme that you devised?

A. I couldn't answer the first part of your question. As to the second, I don't think it was complicated.

Q. As a matter of fact you did not attempt in any way, shape, or manner to offer to retire the preferred stock by substituting with the preferred stockholders an issue of common 1240 stock at par?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Steele, during the time you have testified that Mr. Morgan was absent on the Continent, was your office constantly in communication with him by cable?

A. Frequently; a good part of the time.

It was agreed that the examination of Mr. J. P. Morgan should occur March 26, at 11.30 in the morning, and that of 1241 Mr. George F. Baker upon March 27, at 11 o'clock, and that the complainant should be produced for examination by the defendants before the testimony closed.

WEDNESDAY, March 26, 1902—11.30 o'clock a. m.

All parties convened pursuant to adjournment, and the following proceedings were had, to wit:

J. PIERPONT MORGAN, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Lamb:

Q. Mr. Morgan, you are engaged in business in the city of New York under the firm name of J. P. Morgan & Co.?

1242 A. Yes, sir; I am.

Q. And you are the senior member of that firm?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And no transaction of any magnitude could take place without your approval?

A. I am not prepared to say that. If I am not here I don't attend to it.

Q. We have the cable and lately the wireless telegraph.

A. I mean to say——

Q. Generally speaking?

1243 A. Yes.

Q. No transaction of any great magnitude would take place without consulting with you?

A. I shouldn't think so. It would be perfectly satisfactory to me if they did.

Q. J. P. Morgan & Co. do business in other cities, do they not, abroad?

A. They have transactions with houses abroad; yes.

Q. But these houses abroad, in other cities, are in direct communication with J. P. Morgan & Co.?

1244 A. Direct correspondents, yes.

Q. But not necessarily?

A. The house in Philadelphia and the house here are the same. These two houses are identical. The other houses are correspondents.

Q. And the house in London in which your name appears?

A. I am a partner in that house.

Q. But that has nothing to do with the house here?

A. Nothing to do with the house here. 1245

Q. Now, Mr. Morgan, you have been familiar, of course, with the northwestern railroad situation for a great many years?

A. I have.

Q. With all of the roads, their financial status and physical condition, and matters pertaining to them for a great many years?

A. Yes; up to a certain point. I don't pretend to keep the run of all the roads except those with which I have direct communication.

Q. Well, for instance, you have been for many years thor- 1246 oughly familiar with all matters pertaining to the Great Northern Railroad Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or the Northern Pacific?

A. The Northern Pacific, yes.

Q. And in a general way, of course, as a well-informed man in financial affairs, you have information of the conditions relating to the Great Northern?

A. Not particularly; no.

Q. You have never had any occasion to study its physical 1247 condition?

A. I have done that.

Q. And its finances—have you known anything about them?

A. I have kept no record of those at all.

Q. And of the Union Pacific—have you paid any attention to their matters?

A. Not any of the details; no.

Q. No. But as a banker, for instance, you understand, whose duty it would be to keep himself informed?

A. I try to. 1248

Q. And of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy?

A. Also.

Q. You would know all that you could about that?

A. All that I could or had the time to do.

Q. Would you mind telling us what the nature of the business of J. P. Morgan & Co., of this city, is?

A. They do any financial business that is creditable and which comes to them in the shape that can be transacted.

1249 Q. You mean that they deal in railroad and other securities for customers?

A. Yes.

Q. Do they engage in any speculative enterprises for their own account?

A. Not to any extent; no, sir. On the contrary, we carefully avoid them.

Q. They would not, for instance, purchase 78,000,000 of a stock of a railroad on their own account?

A. They would if they wanted to.

1250 Q. They would not as a rule?

A. I don't know that; I could not tell you that.

Q. That would not be the general policy of the house?

A. I am not prepared to say that, even.

Q. Their business is dealing in stocks and securities, largely for the benefit of customers?

A. Yes.

Q. And then of financing any good enterprises that may present themselves and be requested?

A. If they wished to do so.

1251 Q. Yes; of course; and they would, for instance, furnish money for that purpose; loan it?

A. Yes.

Q. For their own account and for the account of others?

A. Yes.

Q. You were a member of the voting trust committee of the Northern Pacific, were you not, Mr. Morgan?

A. I was.

Q. And you had to do very largely with the reorganization of the Northern Pacific?

1252 A. We had the absolute control of the organization.

Q. The absolute control?

A. Yes.

Q. That was in 1896?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, previous to that time, had you had to do with the finance of the Northern Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. You had not been a director?

A. I was a director at one time; yes. 1253

Q. When was that?

A. I could not remember the exact year; it was back in 1891 or 1892; along there, I suppose.

Q. But you had absolute charge of the reorganization of the Northern Pacific?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And may I ask you to give us a very brief outline of that reorganization—what the bonds of the new company were issued against, and the preferred stock and common stock?

A. In order to do that I should have to give you the plan of 1254 reorganization. I have not one with me. I could not tell you to save my life. I couldn't go into the details of that matter.

Q. Not in such a tremendous transaction?

Mr. STETSON. He can not remember the whole of it.

Q. Just those three things, what the bonds were issued against?

A. If you will allow me, I will put in, as an answer to that, the plan of reorganization, which gives all the details.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is all right.

A. That is a matter of record, and I will produce that if you wish it. 1255

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is all in print, Mr. Lamb.

Q. Are you a director of any railroads, Mr. Morgan?

A. I would be very glad to have it put in; I think it is desirable that it should be put in.

(It was stipulated that the plan of reorganization should be marked by the special examiner as "Complainant's Exhibit N," when furnished by the witness.)

Q. You know Mr. James J. Hill, of course?

A. I do, sir.

Q. And is it in your recollection that at the time of the reor- 1256 ganization there was sold to Mr. Hill and his friends $26,000,000 par value in stock of the Northern Pacific, or about that amount?

A. The exact amount I could not tell you.

Q. About what amount?

A. It was quite a block of it.

Q. About $26,000,000?

A. I couldn't say, sir.

Q. I mention that to you because that is the amount Mr. Hill testified to.

1257 A. I have no doubt whatever he said was correct.

Q. Who conducted that negotiation for that large amount of money, Mr. Morgan?

A. I did.

Q. With whom?

A. With Mr. Hill.

Q. With Mr. Hill directly?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you meet any of the associates of Mr. Hill?

A. Yes.

1258 Q. The men that he refers to?

A. What?

Q. You know the different original Great Northern stockholders, Lord Strathcona and his friends?

A. I met Lord Mount Stephen. I saw him at that time and I saw Mr. Kennedy.

Q. So the parties who purchased that great block of stock of the Northern Pacific were all Great Northern stockholders, were they not?

A. I don't know.

1259 Q. Well, Mr. Hill was?

A. Mr. Hill was.

Q. And did Mr. Hill say to you who his associates were?

A. All of them? No.

Q. Some of them?

A. I don't remember that he did.

Q. Can you tell us anyone that he named as an associate?

A. Well, I don't remember the details of the conversations that may have occurred at that time.

Q. Well, it was a very great transaction?

1260 A. I don't think so; it didn't seem very much to me.

Q. $26,000,000?

A. It was not twenty-six millions of money; twenty-six millions of par value were sold at $16. I don't think it came to that.

Q. It was sold at $16 a share?

A. Whatever it was sold at. I don't remember the exact figure, but it was a low price, because at that time the stock was of very little value. I mean the market value when I say value.

Q. So that Mr. Hill, the president of the Great Northern, conducted those negotiations with you for the purchase of this 1261

Northern Pacific stock and consummated them?

A. He did.

Q. And what was the consideration of that purchase?

A. The money.

Q. Do you remember how much money?

A. I have not the data here with me. I will give it to you with great pleasure.

Q. Will you give it to us? Thank you.

Mr. STETSON. We will have that stipulated, shall we, that the amount of cash paid for the purchase of Northern Pacific stock 1262 in 1896, amounting approximately to $26,000,000, shall be furnished?

A. I said approximately; whatever it was. Whatever it was—the transaction.

Mr. STETSON. Whatever the amount was. If you want to know what amount was sold and the price?

Mr. LAMB. Yes.

Mr. STETSON. There is no use finding one without finding the other.

Q. Did you or your firm purchase any Northern Pacific com- 1263 mon at that time?

A. I think it is very likely.

Q. Do you think it is very likely that you bought a large block?

A. I do not.

Q. Your relations as a banker, I mean. Of course, the relations of your firm have continued with the Northern Pacific from 1896, have they not?

A. They have. We have been their fiscal agents.

Q. Now, to save time, would you mind telling us what that 1264 term means; what you did for them?

A. Whatever they required in a financial way came under our charge.

Q. Do you mean to say that all their financial business was conducted through your house?

A. Not all of it, but we are their New York representatives.

NOTE.—The amount of common stock sold to J. J. Hill and Lord Mount Stephen February, 1897, was 258,341 shares, at $16 per share, making $4,133,456.

1265 Q. Oh, you are their New York representatives of the Northern Pacific?

A. Of the Northern Pacific, and are to-day.

Q. So that if the Northern Pacific issued any new securities since that time it would be financed through your house?

A. It would.

Q. And if it was necessary to raise money for the building of extensions and improvements or for the purpose of branch lines, that transaction, or those transactions, would probably be financed from your house?

1266 A. I should expect them to be.

Q. Of course, the detail of the financial matters of the railroad would be handled by themselves?

A. Of course.

Q. But all these larger matters would be handled by your house?

A. They would. At least, I should so expect them to be.

Q. Was any member of your firm detailed to look specially after the finances of the Northern Pacific?

A. In the house itself?

1267 Q. Yes.

A. No, sir.

Q. It was a matter that came generally under the attention of any——.

A. Of any partner who at the time happened to be running the machine.

Q. I suppose that during that period you have loaned the Northern Pacific large sums of money?

A. At times; yes.

Q. Or obtained large loans for them. Now, have those 1168 loans been——

Mr. STETSON. You have no answer to that.

Q. Those loans, then, were generally for the account of your house and not for others?

A. I could not tell you that. The transactions have been made; that is all.

Q. Well, I take it as a matter of course, that since that time it was necessary to raise large loans, and I am simply asking whether the house of J. P. Morgan & Co. did it for their own account, or whether it was for the account of others.

A. I don't feel called upon to answer that question. We 1269 have negotiated other loans.

Q. I didn't ask that.

A. You asked me for whose account they were made. I can not tell you that, of course. We have been the fiscal agents and have raised the money wherever we could get it.

Q. Sometimes you have loaned it yourself and sometimes obtained it for them?

A. We have formed syndicates to raise it for them.

Q. And the Northern Pacific has, of course, paid from time to time for those services? 1270

A. I suppose so.

Q. I suppose each time that an underwriting syndicate is formed there is a commission paid to the banker, and there is some profit to the underwriter?

A. Not always.

Q. Not always, but generally. Usually that would be the case, would it not?

A. We should expect it to be; otherwise the transaction would not be made.

Q. You would expect as bankers, of course, to have a rail- 1271 road company pay you a regular sum for your services?

A. Not always; no.

Q. Do you mean to say that when you negotiate a loan for a railroad you don't make the railroad pay your house for its work?

A. Not always.

Q. You do it sometimes without a consideration?

A. We do.

Q. Can you explain that, Mr. Morgan?

A. Certainly; because it may not be desirable to make a 1272 charge. It depends upon the character of the transaction. In a great many cases no charge whatever is made.

Q. So that you do that work for nothing?

A. Do that work for nothing.

Q. In the matter of purchasing branch lines, or completing extensions, who would generally negotiate or usually negotiate for the Northern Pacific those purchases?

A. The company.

Q. The company directly?

1273 A. Certainly.

Q. Not through your house?

A. No, sir.

Q. And do you know what special officer of the company would have that matter in charge?

A. That depends upon the by-laws.

Q. I thought perhaps you might know of your own personal knowledge.

A. I have not been a director of the Northern Pacific since it was reorganized.

1274 Q. No; but you have had a very thorough and clean knowledge of its affairs?

A. I have got a natural inference, but I have no knowledge. If you ask for my knowledge, I say no; I do not know anything about it.

Q. Have you taken a great interest in the road?

A. A great deal.

Q. Since the time you reorganized it?

A. I have.

Q. And you would take special care to know just how its 1275 business was being conducted?

A. I should not. I should know probably the result and the policy, but I have never attempted to follow the details of all the transactions. I should have time for nothing else if I did.

Q. I don't speak of the details, Mr. Morgan.

A. I have told you, Mr. Lamb, that I have known the policy of the Northern Pacific.

Q. In a general way?

A. In a general way, and I don't think that any large transaction would be made without my knowledge, but there is 1276 nobody under obligations to keep me advised. If they made transactions without my knowledge, I should think they had a perfect right to do so.

Q. But they wouldn't naturally do so?

A. I don't know; I am not prepared to say that. I think I have answered that question.

Q. What has been the general policy of the road since 1896? Has it not been to conduct its affairs as an independent organization; that is, from 1896 to prior to 1901?

A. Up to date I would say it has.

Q. And it has never formed any alliance with any other 1277 trunk line?

A. In what way?

Q. Or any other railroad?

A. What kind of alliance, sir?

Q. Any kind of alliance.

A. That is a pretty broad term. I don't understand that. You mean——

Q. I mean it has been conducted as an absolutely independent organization?

A. It has, to my knowledge. 1278

Q. And has entered into no alliance with other roads?

A. I don't know.

Q. That is, for instance, an alliance covering rates and railroad rates?

A. I should not think so. I don't know.

Q. You do not think it has?

A. That I don't know anything about—about rates.

Q. But it has not been the policy of the road to enter into alliances—that is, from 1896 to the 1st of January, 1901—for the division of traffic with other railroads? 1279

A. That I know nothing about.

Q. To your knowledge, Mr. Morgan—and, of course, I think you have a very thorough knowledge of the affairs of the company—has its stock from 1896 to the first of 1901, ever been controlled by any other organization?

A. Never.

Q. Any other railroad, or otherwise?

A. No; none.

Q. So that its policy from 1896 to 1901 was to pursue an absolutely independent course? 1280

A. Absolutely.

Q. And to operate its affairs without reference to any other railroad?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Since you reorganized the company its affairs have been very prosperous, have they not?

A. They have.

Q. It has paid dividends right along?

1281 A. How can I answer that?

Q. Of course we know that it has.

A. Then what is the use of asking the question?

Q. I mean to say——

A. That is all right. I will answer any question, Mr. Lamb.

Q. Simply to get them on the record?

A. I could not answer that because I should tell you I don't know when they paid their dividends.

Q. You do know that the market value of its securities have steadily advanced in public favor?

1282 A. They have.

Q. Since the reorganization?

A. Ever since then.

Q. They have steadily gone upward?

A. With some few reactions.

Q. The Great Northern Railway Company is a competitor in many respects with your Northern Pacific, is it not?

A. To a certain extent, yes.

Q. And there is, as I know, and as you know, and we all know, pretty sharp competition sometimes at some places?

1283 Mr. STETSON. If you know, what is the use of asking him?

Mr. LAMB. I want it on the record.

Mr. STETSON. Then ask him the question instead of making your confession of faith.

Q. I will put the question over again. Is there not at various points sharp competition or has there not been for traffic between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific?

A. I should say yes. I can not imagine anywhere where it would be greater than it is there to-day.

Q. And the Great Northern Railroad Company, from the 1284 period since you reorganized the Northern Pacific, has several times increased its capital stock, has it not?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know in a general way how prosperous the Great Northern has been in recent years?

A. From common reports I should consider it very prosperous. I have already said to you the details of the Great Northern I know nothing about.

Q. Not the details, but in a general way?

A. I told you from common reports I should consider it had been. 1285

Q. You don't know about the great increases in their capital stock?

A. I don't know. I have no doubt that they have been made; but when you ask for my knowledge, I know nothing.

Q. When was it first decided to dissolve the voting trust of the Northern Pacific?

A. I think in October, 1900.

Q. Why was that decided, Mr. Morgan?

A. Because I came to the conclusion that the condition of the company was such that it could be safely turned over to the stockholders, and for the reason that I thought the time was approaching when it would be desirable to retire the preferred stock, and I preferred that that question should come up before the stockholders then rather than the voting trustees, and that was one of the leading reasons which induced me. 1286

Q. Was the question of retiring the preferred stock ever submitted to the stockholders?

A. No; but I mean that they should act upon it—that the voting trustees as such, if you will allow me to explain to you—— 1287

Q. Yes, do.

A. I will explain how that came up; the retiring of the preferred stock, of course, was in the hands of the directors, but those directors were elected by the voting trustees. There was an election in October, 1901, to elect directors. I preferred that that election should take place by the stockholders themselves, rather than simply by the voting trustees voting.

Q. So that the responsibility for the retiring of the preferred stock should fall upon the stockholders? 1288

A. No; so that the directors who should decide that question should be the nominees of the holders of the stock themselves and not of the voting trustees.

Q. Didn't you think, carry out your thought, there, that the stockholders should themselves decide that it might have been well to submit the question to the stockholders as a whole?

A. Decidedly not, and if you wish me to I will go on and tell you why.

1289 Q. No; never mind.

Mr. KELLOGG. We will ask you why, if they do not wish it. I think it would be more convenient to take it now.

Q. Very well, Mr. Morgan, will you explain why the question of retiring the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific was not submitted to the stockholders?

A. No; that is another question. Because the directors had the power, that was the reason. I will tell you—you asked me the question before and I would like to answer that question, but this question is a different matter. The directors had the 1290 absolute power to retire the preferred stock. Consequently it is not for me to say whether they could have done it or not.

Q. Answer it in your own way, Mr. Morgan.

A. No; I won't. Ask me the question to suit you. If you will ask me to tell you why I didn't, I will explain to you the reasons for my decision, why the thing should have been done by the directors and not the stockholders, and the situation. I will do it in a few words, if you wish that statement.

Q. Certainly, we would like to hear it.

A. When the Northern Pacific was reorganized the times
1291 were very bad and the indebtedness of the Northern Pacific—of the old company—was very large. It was not possible—it was not desirable—it was not desirable and I don't think it would have been possible at that time, with the credit of the Northern Pacific in the market, or the public opinion of the value of the property, to get a syndicate up large enough to raise an almost indefinite amount of money. At the same time provision had to be made to take up bonds and stock of the old company under the reorganization. Consequently, in making up the plan Mr. Coster and myself, together with Mr. Stetson, 1292 who advised us on the legal points of the question, decided this point—that if we could issue a preferred stock which would be a temporary security upon which we would not have to pay interest unless the road earned it, and which at any time we could retire if we wished to, that that would be a safe transaction, and that plan was decided upon and such a security was issued in the shape of the preferred stock. That preferred stock, as you will see by the plan of reorganization which I have agreed to submit to you, was used to take up obligations in the shape of bonds, notes, and old debts of the original Northern 1293 Pacific Company, and it was successful, and from the day that that plan of reorganization was issued we never had one moment's doubt that within a very few years and before the expiration of the time fixed for the voting trust, that the common stock would have reached a point in its price where it could be sold at par or better and the preferred stock retired, which restricted not only the income of the property, but also restricted certain lands which were set aside and upon which the preferred stock was, to a certain extent, a lien. Consequently, it was always considered and always known by every- 1294 body connected with the Northern Pacific that the amount of preferred stock which was outstanding was simply a temporary loan until we should issue the common stock at par and take it up, and consequently, in dealing with the question, the question simply was when the directors of the Northern Pacific should decide that it was expedient to do it.

Q. Then it became necessary to raise a great deal of money to retire this preferred stock?

A. It did.

Q. And did your house provide that money? 1295

A. We did not. The stock was offered to the stockholders—the common-stock holders. The new common stock for an amount sufficient to pay off that preferred stock was issued to the common-stock holders.

Q. Did you, as fiscal agent, manage it?

A. We financed the transaction.

Q. And you at that time—your house and Mr. Hill—were such large holders of common stock that practically the taking of a majority of this new common stock fell upon you and Mr. Hill? 1296

A. And the other stockholders, whoever they were.

Q. The other minority stockholders?

A. The stockholders—whoever the stockholders were of record—took them up; at least, they took convertible bonds which were convertible into stock.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Convertible certificates?

A. Yes; convertible certificates.

Q. And this $75,000,000 was raised in cash?

1297 A. It was.

Q. Now, were there a large number of stockholders of the Northern Pacific at that time?

A. Quite a number; yes.

Q. How many would you think?

A. Oh, I couldn't tell you that.

Q. I mean just roughly.

A. I couldn't tell you to save my life.

Q. Is it not a fact that most of the stock was held in very large blocks?

1298 A. Yes; in large amounts.

Q. In very large amounts?

A. The transfer books of the company will show you exactly now it was.

Q. I would like to see them.

A. I say there is a record of the list of the stockholders. I suppose you have got the power to get it. I don't know.

Q. Well, they usually try to obstruct us——

Mr. STETSON. Have you had any obstruction here, in this case?

1299 Mr. LAMB. No; I don't think we have, Mr. Stetson.

The WITNESS. Then I don't think it is fair to make that remark.

Q. I wish to explain that. That was a side remark, speaking generally.

A. That goes on record. I try to give you everything that I can. I don't think a statement of that kind is right or fair.

Q. Strike it all out. I must say we have been met with unexpected frankness in this matter.

A. There is nothing under heaven connected with the trans-
1300 action that I know of that I won't tell you, and I will tell you how to get the rest.

Q. For managing that transaction, of course the Northern Pacific paid your house?

A. They paid nothing whatever. That is one of the transactions I spoke of a little while ago, it just occurs to me, where things had to be done for nothing.

Q. What time was that Mr. Morgan? Can you recall the date?

A. The stock was paid on the 1st of January, 1902. 1301

Mr. STETSON. We know that.

A. Owing to the peculiarities of the law of the State of New York, we were obliged to have the money ready on January 1. It was a legal holiday.

Q. And it was decided to pay that off when?

A. I don't know. By the directors at their meeting, whenever it was.

Mr. STETSON. The 13th of November.

Q. That is the same day that the Northern Securities Company was organized, was it not? 1302

A. I don't know. I think the record will show that. It was a busy day, I know.

Q. I don't doubt it. Well, you gave, under that plan of issuing convertible certificates, privilege to the common-stock holders of the Northern Pacific to acquire this new common stock?

A. To acquire the convertible certificates; yes.

Q. Convertible at the option of the company into common stock?

A. After the 1st of January. 1303

Mr. STETSON. Convertible at the option of the company at any time, and by the holder, after the 1st of January.

Q. Yes; that is right. Now, as your house was a very large holder of common stock at that time, that privilege was really one that you conferred upon yourself, to a great extent, was it not?

A. We didn't confer it upon anybody.

Q. Who did?

A. The Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Q. But then you managed its affairs? 1304

A. No, sir; I beg your pardon, the board of directors managed its affairs.

Q. And Mr. Hill, of course, being a large holder of common stock, received great benefits under that?

A. Every stockholder received it.

Q. Mr. Morgan, when did you first hear of the proceeding or negotiation to purchase the entire capital stock, or endeavor to do so, of the Burlington by the Northern Pacific?

1305 A. When it was first started.

Q. When was that?

A. That I can not tell you. I haven't any memorandum here to give you the date. Some time last summer, or before that—long before that—before I went to Europe. I went to Europe the end of March, and it was before that.

Q. Who first suggested that to you, Mr. Morgan?

A. If you will allow me to state you the history of that in my own words, I will tell you the transaction from beginning to end.

Q. Yes.

1306 A. I think it was fully two years ago, or more—time has flown on since then. I think it was 1899; it may have been 1898. I made up my mind that it was essential that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company—railway, or whatever you call it—what is it?

Mr. STETSON. Railway.

WITNESS (continuing). Railway should have its eastern terminus practically in Chicago, and in the same manner that the New York Central, of which I am a director, at that time, or soon after, decided the same thing with regard to their line, that 1307 the western terminus of their line should be in Chicago, practically by acquiring the Lake Shore; in other words, that the transcontinental line should come to Chicago, and that eastern line should go to Chicago, so that was to be the central point, and I talked it over with a great many people interested in the Northern Pacific, and I found they all agreed with me, and the question came up as to how it could best be done. Of course, we were confronted with the question which is always arising and repeats itself, as to whether a line that you want is an independent line or whether it is a competing, and—what is the other 1308 term?

Mr. STETSON. Parallel.

WITNESS (continuing). Parallel and competing line, and from a study of the case I came to the conclusion that there were but three lines available. In other words, there was the St. Paul, there was the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and there was the Wisconsin Central. Of course we would not have taken the last one anyway. That was not the question involved. Consequently we came down to the question of the

St. Paul. I made up my mind that of the two I would rather 1309 have the St. Paul. Soon after that I met Mr. Hill, and I said: "Mr. Hill, I think that the best thing that we can do—I think your line perhaps is in the same condition—I think we had better go to work and secure the St. Paul road, or a road to Chicago, and if you will share with us we will do it together," and he said: "All right." So he said: "Who would take it up?" I said: "I will; I think we had better take the St. Paul." He said he thought we had better take the Burlington. I said I would rather have the St. Paul, because the financial responsibility to take the St. Paul would be less. He did not agree with 1310 me, but he acquiesced in my decision, and we discussed that question. I took up negotiations, not in any secret manner—we went directly to the directors of the road and told them what we wanted. We found some of them disposed to make the transaction. Others were not. Well, right here I will tell you what my reasons were for taking the St. Paul in preference to the Burlington. Mr. Hill's opinion—I will give you what I understood to be his opinion—and that was that the Burlington system offered a better market for the coarse freight we were hauling from the Pacific coast for distribution than the St. 1311 Paul, and he wanted the Burlington because he thought that would have been open for the freight from the Pacific to greater advantage than the St. Paul. However, as I say, he acquiesced in my decision. Those negotiations, as I said, went on for some time, and, finally, the directors of the St. Paul asked me for a conference, and then they told me very frankly that they had decided they would not let us have the road on any terms. They would not even name terms. I could not have it in that way; and being unwilling I didn't attempt to buy stock in any way, shape, or manner. I said: "Well, we will abandon the trans- 1312 action." Then I went to Mr. Hill and told him: "You can go ahead and see what you can do with the Burlington;" and he took up negotiations with the Burlington, which were carried through successfully. That is the whole story.

Q. When did these negotiations for the purchase of the St. Paul commence?

A. I don't keep a journal of all these dates. It is a question of common knowledge—it was not done in secret—it was 1313 a question that was going on for months and perfectly well known. Every paper in New York published every day how it stood.

Q. You know sometimes they are right——

Mr. STETSON. This was about the date published in the daily press, was it not?

A. It was in October, 1899.

Mr. BOUTELLE. What I was asking about was in reference to the time when the negotiations with the St. Paul fell through and when he directed Mr. Hill to start in on the Burlington 1314 approximately?

A. Perhaps some one can tell me here. Do you know, Mr. Clough?

Mr. STEELE. It was the first of 1901 or last of 1900.

Mr. CLOUGH. It was a little after the middle of March when the negotiations began, and the circular of the Burlington committee was sent out on the 27th of April, requiring the stock to be deposited by May 20.

A. But the transaction was practically closed; that is, it was understood to be closed before I went to Europe in March.

1315 Mr. STETSON. Yes; it was. That is what I say. It was the 15th of March.

Mr. STEELE. It began a few weeks before that.

Mr. BOUTELLE. That one transaction followed the other?

A. They did absolutely.

Mr. STETSON. The termination of the St. Paul matter was in December, 1900, and the other was taken right up, and was practically concluded in March, 1901. Is that about right, Mr. Morgan?

A. I should think so. As you will see, I—allow me to say—

1316 you will see from that that that transaction was done for a specific object—to get to Chicago. It was a transaction made independent of everybody and everything. It was simply an understanding and a desire on the part of Mr. Hill and myself. Take the Atchison road, for instance: All these roads seem to center in Chicago. It was the desire that the Northern Pacific on my part, and the Great Northern on his, should terminate there; that is, practically, that the two roads should end in Chicago. It was a transaction entirely independent of all other transactions that you may have in mind or anything of the kind. 1317

It was a perfectly independent transaction, and it was done to attack nobody or to do anything. It was simply to bring those two Northern lines to Chicago.

Q. And so negotiations for the purchase of the St. Paul were solely with Mr. Hill?

A. No, no; what do you mean? I didn't have any negotiations with Mr. Hill. Mr. Hill simply agreed if we took the St. Paul, we would take it together.

Q. And then you negotiated with the directors of the St. Paul?

A. With the directors of the St. Paul road. 1318

Q. And made no attempt whatever to purchase any stock in the market?

A. I don't think we bought a share. I want to say to you gentlemen that when J. P. Morgan & Co. are acting in a fiduciary capacity they are not speculating in the stock market.

Q. We all believe that, Mr. Morgan.

A. You asked me a question a little while ago and I want to say that——

Q. It did not occur to me to ask that question as a breach, or even indicating a breach of a fiduciary trust, but as an actual 1319 thing, that interests desiring to control would go into the market and purchase every share of the stock they could before they began negotiations.

A. That is not our way of doing business.

Q. I only wanted you to understand my motive.

A. I understand; I am quite satisfied with your question, Mr. Lamb.

Q. And the negotiations for the purchase of the Burlington, were they made by Mr. Hill or your house?

A. Exclusively by Mr. Hill, except such influence as we 1320 could bring to bear on people who were interested in the Burlington, believing that it was the thing to do. But as to the negotiations—when I say negotiations I mean the man that sits down and is responsible to me and to everybody else in regard to the situation, the same as I was with the St. Paul—they were made by Mr. Hill.

Q. Who negotiated with the directors?

A. Mr. Hill negotiated with the directors for the purchase of the Burlington road.

1321 Q. Mr. Morgan, you say the price of $200 a share for the Burlington was determined between Mr. Hill and the directors of the Burlington road? I mean that in view of the fact that its market price had for so many years been and was then so much less.

A. Yes, sir; we simply couldn't get it any cheaper.

Q. You had nothing to do with fixing the price?

A. We agreed to pay it.

Q. Mr. Hill fixed the price?

A. No; the Burlington directors fixed the price.

1322 Q. And you ageed to pay that price?

A. When Mr. Hill said we must pay $200 a share, I said certainly, pay it.

Q. Have you any knowledge of the basis of value on which that amount was determined, or was it simply because that was the only price at which it could be bought?

A. It was the only price at which it could be bought, and we had great difficulty getting it at that, and, in the next place, I felt, and Mr. Hill must have felt also—because he is not in the habit of making transactions he don't think are profitable—that 1323 it was worth a great deal more than that for the purpose for which we wanted it, and it would pay a large profit. He thought it would pay both the Northern Pacific and Great Northern a profit on that price.

Q. Yes; for the purpose for which you wanted it.

A. No; I say it would pay a profit in itself.

Q. Do you mean in operating?

A. In operating it; yes, sir.

Mr. STETSON. You put it both ways.

A. I say both ways.

1324 Q. Up to that time the traffic of the Burlington had been shared by both roads, had it not—by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. Not to any great extent; perhaps somewhat.

Q. Those were connecting lines?

A. I want to say to you right here when you come to questions of traffic you are dealing with questions I know nothing about.

Q. I am speaking of the general question?

A. I can not answer questions on that subject, because I 1325 know nothing about them.

Q. Do you not know that the Northern Pacific was competing with the Great Northern for the business of the Burlington?

A. Not that I ever knew of, no; no more than they do for everything.

Q. Yes; engaged in general competition?

A. I never knew two roads yet that didn't compete.

Q. But now they operate the road jointly?

A. No; not at all.

Q. They own it? 1326

A. The road is operated independently to-day.

Q. But they own it—the two roads own it?

A. What?

Q. Of course——

A. The Burlington road to-day is worked as independently as any other road in the United States, in my opinion.

Q. But its entire revenue goes to its owners, of course?

A. Naturally, all roads do.

Q. Couldn't the Burlington have been purchased by the Northern Pacific alone? 1327

A. Undoubtedly.

Q. Wouldn't that have been a better transaction for the Northern Pacific to a certain extent?

A. Yes. The reason we didn't was that the amount of two hundred odd million dollars—I don't think that the Northern Pacific cared to take all that obligation, when they could get the Great Northern to assume half of it.

Q. Have you ever read the trust indenture, Mr. Morgan, relating to the issuance of those bonds?

A. No, sir. 1328

Mr. STETSON. You mean the joint bonds of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

Mr. LAMB. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of the condition existing therein whereby, in the event of the failure of the Northern Pacific to pay interest, the entire stock of the Burlington would become the property of the Great Northern?

A. And vice versa.

Q. Yes.

1329 A. Of course, that is always the case, I suppose, if a person has joint collateral. If one partner has to pay all the debt he takes the collateral.

Q. So that one man or one interest dominating both roads might wreck one at the expense of the other?

A. I beg your pardon. It would be absolutely impossible.

Q. In the event of a dispute, Mr. Morgan, between these two roads, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, as to matters relating to the Burlington, it would be arbitrated, I suppose?

1330 A. The trust indenture says that, doesn't it? Mr. Steele can tell you better than I can. I am not up on that question.

Q. Now, I suppose, the fact that these roads through their directors entered into a transaction for the purchase of the Burlington tended to bring them together a little and to enhance the friendly relations between the directors?

A. I don't think so, not necessarily.

Q. No; but they met frequently, of course?

A. No; they didn't meet.

Q. I understand that shortly after that the Northern Securi-1331 ties Company was organized?

A. The Northern Securities Company was not organized for six months or more after that.

Q. In November, and the trust indenture was in July?

A. No; this was in November previous, the year before. The negotiations with the St. Paul were certainly a year before, more than a year before the Northern Securities Company was ever thought of. So far as the Northern Pacific Company was concerned nobody thought of the Northern Securities Company at that time, or dreamed of it.

1332 Q. When did you first hear of the Northern Securities Company, Mr. Morgan?

A. Just a few days before it was organized.

Q. You hadn't been consulted about it previous to that time?

A. In what way, about the Northern Securities Company?

Q. Yes; about the advisability of forming such a company.

A. No; do you want me to tell you about the Northern Securities Company? Have you got through with the Burlington? I mean let us finish one. Don't you think it would be as well to finish one thing? There is no connection between them; 1333 consequently I would prefer it.

Q. Yes, I know.

A. I don't want to convey the impression there is any connection between the two, because there is no more connection between the Burlington and the Northern Securities Company than there is between New York and Kamschatka. I would like to finish one subject before I take up the other, if it is agreeable to you; that is all.

Q. Did Mr. Hill ever consult you about the danger of some other interests buying in the Burlington? 1334

A. No; not that I know of.

Q. Or to your knowledge—any member of your firm?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Or anybody representing Mr. Hill?

A. I don't know that I have any recollection or any knowledge of it.

Q. It never came to your knowledge that Mr. Harriman, or the Union Pacific, or the Oregon Short Line had at one time attempted to buy the Burlington?

A. Oh, a long time before. 1335

Q. But at this time, or about this time, you had not been consulted by Mr. Hill?

A. I was consulted by Mr. Hill about buying the Burlington.

Q. I mean about the danger of Harriman or his interests, the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line?

A. That went without saying. We kept very quiet as long as we could, on account of buying the Burlington, because we knew perfectly well what the possibility was—if somebody wants a thing another man wants it, too.

Q. Did you know at that time that these rival interests had a 1336 great deal of the stock, or were attempting to buy it?

A. At that time, no.

Q. Or shortly before, or about that time?

A. Oh, no; it must have been a year or so before that. I don't remember the date. But it was a common story at one time. In fact, I would like to point out to you that for months at that time, nearly every day, somebody was negotiating for some line or buying, or trying to buy, a railroad.

1337 Q. I remember the time.

A. I say you remember the time I am speaking about, and I think we bought every road in the United States, within a few days, at one time.

Q. I was asking simply on the basis of a statement made by Mr. Hill, that the purchase of the Burlington was presented rather by the fact that the other people were trying to get it.

A. I have no doubt myself. You asked my opinion of it. If we had been the sole buyers we probably could have bought it cheaper; that was not the question. The question was that 1338 you could buy it. There was no attempt on our part—there was no connection between that purchase and any views of any other road, or of any man, woman, or child living. I have told you the exact facts of that transaction from beginning to end, as I know them.

Q. Just to summarize the Burlington matter, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Hill conducted the negotiations with the Burlington people?

A. Yes.

Q. With the directors? Then he submitted the plan to you, and you approved it?

1339 A. Yes; that is, he submitted this question to me: Shall we take the Burlington at $200 a share, payable in 4 per cent bonds. We had already decided, you know, before that, if we couldn't get the St. Paul we would try for the Burlington. I was consulted a long time before on the general principle, not with regard to what we would have to pay for it, but when it came down to the question—the question submitted to me simply was: Shall we pay $200 a share, payable in 4 per cent bonds, and my opinion was decidedly yes. I told Mr. Hill that, and that being the case there was a tacit understanding that the transac-1340 tion was closed, and, of course, all the details of it were taken up by the board of directors of the companies, and with that I had nothing to do; in fact, I went to Europe the next day.

Q. The plan was submitted to the various boards of directors and approved and carried out?

A. No; I beg your pardon. The terms were submitted and then the two companies went to work—the three companies rather—to complete the papers.

Q. Yes; but the directors, after that, approved it?

A. Of course. We had no power, of course, neither Mr. 1341
Hill or I, to bind the roads. We had the moral influence. We told the directors we thought it was the thing to do; but I mean I had nothing to do with the detail you are speaking of; in fact, it wasn't done at once. It took six months, didn't it?

Mr. STEELE. We got the bonds out in September.

Q. We have heard a little in this court room about a contest some time last May for the purchase of Northern Pacific stock. When did you first hear that somebody else was trying to buy the stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. Do you men the Union Pacific interest? 1342

Q. Yes. When did you hear of that?

A. Oh, it must have been about the last of April or the first of May.

Q. Not before then?

A. I didn't hear they were trying to buy it. I heard that it was understood, and, in fact, thought it practically settled, that they had control when it came to me. It was not an imaginary fact; it was a complete transaction, as I was informed. There was no contest in the matter.

Q. I was alluding now to the famous 9th of May. 1343

A. That was after it was bought. That was when the thing was done.

Q. Now, directly, you heard that the Union Pacific interests—you understand when I refer to them it means Harriman or the Oregon Short Line?

A. I don't understand anything of the kind. I know nothing about that. I know no man, woman, or child, except the Union Pacific interests. I don't know what Mr. Harriman did. I don't want to be misunderstood. When I speak of the Union Pacific interests it may have been Mr. Harriman, or Mr. Pierce, 1344 or Mr. Schiff, or somebody else. I know nothing about the names. I only know I heard in Aix, where I was, that the Union Pacific interests had acquired control of the Northern Pacific.

Q. And you, having been the fiscal agent of the Northern Pacific, took steps at the same time to protect the control of the road, undoubtedly?

A. In that connection I will tell you that part of it here now.

1345 Q. You might just as well.

A. When I heard that, I felt in this position: We had reorganized the Northern Pacific. We had placed all the securities of the Northern Pacific, and I knew, as I had always supposed, that there were people—friends of ours and other people—who held practically enough Northern Pacific—we always supposed we had with us people upon whom we could depend to protect our moral control of the property—and consequently when that news came to me I hadn't any doubt about the fact of the matter, and at the same time this news came so strong, whoever had 1346 acquired it, I felt something must have happened. Somebody must have sold. I knew where certain stocks were, and I figured it up. I feel bound in all honor when I reorganize a property and am morally responsible for its management to protect it, and I generally do protect it; so I made up my mind that it would be desirable to buy 150,000 shares of stock, which we proceeded to do, and with that I knew we had a majority of common stock, and I knew that actually gave us the control and they couldn't take the minority and have it sacrificed to the Union Pacific interests.

1347 Q. You had to pay very high prices for that stock that you bought at that time, did you not?

A. I did not. Higher than I wished to, but not very high.

Q. Higher than the market price?

A. I did not.

Q. You bought that stock in the market?

A. I did, sir; every share of it.

Q. None of it was bought by private negotiation abroad?

A. No, sir; it was all bought in the market.

Q. But the market price had by force of these circumstances 1348 become greatly in excess of the actual value?

A. No, sir; not at that time. It did when they came to deliver their stock, but not when we bought it.

Q. Would you mind telling us the highest price?

A. No, sir; I could not tell you that.

Q. All right, sir. I have no right to ask it. What was the market price between the 1st and 7th of May, Mr. Morgan?

A. Send for a stock list; I couldn't tell you.

Q. Roughly?

A. I don't know. I think up to the 7th—I don't think it 1349 went above 120.

Q. The prices day by day and hour by hour are stamped on the memories of some?

A. I was not here. You must remember I was in Europe; but that is my impression.

Q. Now, you bought that $15,000,000 of stock, Mr. Morgan, for the account of the railroad, or for the account of your house?

A. Bought it for the account of my house.

Q. Absolutely? 1350

A. Absolutely.

Q. And not at the request of the railroad or anybody representing it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was it at the request of Mr. Hill?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was not there an understanding between yourself and Mr. Hill that you would buy this stock, or some of it, so as to protect the control of the railroad?

A. I was not here. I could not tell you anything about 1351
that.

Q. The matter, then, must have been negotiated by junior members of the firm?

A. I don't know that there was anything of the kind. There was no negotiations to it. I told you we did it for ourselves.

Q. They didn't report to you that they bought it in pursuance of an understanding?

A. I told you exactly there was no understanding that I know of.

Q. What time did you return, Mr. Morgan? 1352

A. I returned in July some time.

Q. What did you ascertain the situation to be upon your return?

A. The situation in what?

Q. As to the dissensions that had arisen and as to the control of the road and matters pertaining thereto.

A. And the situation as regards the control of the road?

Q. Yes, as to who had control.

1353 A. We had control.

Q. You knew that on your return?

A. As I believed, yes.

Q. That is, that you had control of the common stock?

A. Well, there was no other.

Q. Yes, the other stock was to be paid off in January. When you say "we" you mean, of course, yourself and Mr. Hill and his friends?

A. I don't mean anything of the kind. I mean J. P. Morgan & Co. and their associates—whoever acted with them in 1354 the matter.

Q. Did Mr. Hill act with you?

A. He generally did.

Q. In that matter?

A. Certainly; that is to say, his interests were the same as ours.

Q. Do you recall the famous remark of Mr. Hill, alleged to have been made by him to you, that he would stand without hitching in that matter?

A. I don't remember any such remark. It is barely possible.

1355 Q. He says he made it.

A. I think it is very likely. I don't remember any such remark.

Q. Now, on your return did you have any conference with Mr. Hill, or Mr. Hill and his friends?

A. On that subject?

Q. On the subject of the control of the Northern Pacific and of any arrangement to quell the uneasiness that had been in the stock market?

A. Now you come to another subject—the public feeling in 1356 relation to the transaction.

Q. Yes, I know. They were anxiously awaiting your return.

A. Well, as I have told you before, we bought that stock in good faith, feeling bound in honor to protect the minority stockholders. We didn't know who they were or anything about it. We knew perfectly well that if the Union Pacific was to acquire or had acquired a majority, there was certainly a minority we were bound to protect, and this stock was purchased for that purpose. But subsequently came up another question. The people at large, those who didn't know Northern Pacific, or 1357 Union Pacific, or anything else became very much alarmed, fearing that there was going to be a great contest over this thing, which would bring in active antagonism what they deemed the important financial elements of the street; that is, what they talked about. They were going to have a battle in Wall street, and I don't know—well, they were going to have all sorts of things, and it had spread to such an extent that it became absolutely essential that something should be done. That was before I returned. It had taken some shape. Something should be done to allay that public excitement and they had several 1358 conferences. I was not here and don't know anything about how they were brought about, or whether they were held, or who was present, or anything of the kind in relation to them. But finally a paper, at least not a paper but an agreement or whatever it is—an understanding was arrived at which was published in the papers, that there was nothing of that kind; that the election to be held in October of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific would be left to me to decide. Subsequently the "Morgan interests," as they were called, should be left independent to manage that property, and that was decided 1359 upon. When I got back I found that this feeling had not entirely subsided, and there was still a great deal of anxiety, so I thought it was best to act at once, and I drew up a paper. I drew up a letter stating who I thought should compose that board and sent it to the Union Pacific interests, or the people that had signed this, J. P. Morgan & Co. and others, and that was carried out. It was thought best, too, that the thing should not wait until October; in other words, better have the changes made at once in order to show there was no hostility, and con- 1360 sequently I suggested to some of the directors that they had better make the change then in the board instead of waiting until October, and that was done, and that seemed to suit the people's mind a good deal, and the thing simmered and died out—that public excitement.

Q. So that you found upon your return that it had been left to you to designate a new board?

A. I did.

Q. And if that agreement had not been reached the Union

1361 Pacific, having the preferred stock, with its voting power, could have elected its own board; that is a fact, is it not?

A. That is a legal question; I am not prepared to say.

Q. I understand there is no question of law as to the voting power of the preferred stock, and as it is accepted by everybody and testified to here, I think, that the Union Pacific had a majority of both classes of stock?

A. No, sir; they had a majority of the whole.

Q. I mean a majority of the whole; so that if that agreement had not been reached they might have elected their own board?

1362 A. I am not prepared to say that. I will explain to you why; because if the board of directors had then and there declared the preferred stock payable on the 1st of January, I doubt very much if they could have voted on it.

Q. Don't think they could have voted on it?

A. I don't think so if it was declared payable, but still I am only telling you. You asked me my opinion. At any rate, happily, that has all been settled since, and we have not got to decide those questions.

Q. On your return or thereafter, did you meet Mr. Schiff or 1363 Mr. Hill, or Mr. Harriman?

A. I think it is very likely. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember meeting Mr. Schiff?

A. I don't remember. I have no doubt I did. I don't know what point you have.

Q. I mean about this matter; about the question of the election?

A. Oh, no; I did it myself. I sent the letter on.

Q. Did you consult Mr. Hill about that?

A. I told him what I was going to do.

1364 Q. You did not consult with him?

A. No, I should not; I did not think anybody had anything to say about it but myself. They had been kind enough to trust me in the matter, and I did not consult Mr. Harriman, and I don't think I consulted anybody; at least, if I did, I did not consider it in any way that made it a factor of the case at all. I wanted to be in a perfectly independent place. I felt that I was acting in a fiduciary capacity, to allay this feeling, and I was acting without any influence from anybody. I don't think I satisfied anybody, but I accomplished the object.

Q. Mr. Morgan, you know that the Union Pacific, of course, 1365 was a competing line with the Burlington. You know that it had attempted to wrest your property away from you; what was the object in putting their representatives on the board?

A. Simply to show that there was nothing that the Northern Pacific management, or J. P. Morgan & Co., or anybody, which had bought the Burlington, to show that they were acting under what we know as a community of interest principle, and that we were not going to have that battle on Wall street. There was not going to be people standing up there fighting each other.

Q. What is community of interest? 1366

A. The community of interests is that principle that a certain number of men who own property can do what they like with it.

Q. But they sha'n't fight one another?

A. There is no fighting about it. If they choose to fight their own property—but people don't generally do that.

Q. Is not this community of interest idea one of working harmony?

A. Working in harmony—yes.

Q. Even though they own competing and parallel lines?

A. No; they own them all. 1367

Q. And they will work in harmony together?

A. No, no; I think the language is sufficient to tell you. It is not an idea of my creation. I have only used it because I felt you would understand what I meant.

Q. There never had been a representative of the Union Pacific on the board of the Northern Pacific before, had there?

A. No; and I think that the people that were more than surprised that they were put on were the Union Pacific interests themselves.

Q. It was a most unusual thing to put opposing interests on 1368 the board?

A. It was; it showed that we had nothing to fear from it, that was all.

Q. Was there any special object in putting Mr. Gould on the board?

A. He was in the Union Pacific interests at that time.

Q. Mr. Gould and one other?

Mr. STETSON. He never was put on the Northern Pacific board.

1369 A. I have forgotten now who I put on. I don't think he was put on.

Q. No, I was mistaken. Now we come, Mr. Morgan, to the famous 13th of November, when they organized the Northern Securities Company.

A. I think you had better go back a little.

Q. When did you first hear of the plan to organize the Northern Securities Company, or a securities company of any kind, or a holding company?

A. A securities company in connection with the Northern 1370 Pacific?

Q. And Great Northern—yes.

A. No; in connection with the Northern Pacific or Great Northern.

Q. Take the Northern Pacific.

A. That was after I came back.

Q. How long after you came back?

A. Oh, a long time after I came back.

Q. By whom was the matter first brought to your attention?

A. I think it was rather in my own mind, as far as the North-1371 ern Pacific was concerned.

Q. Well, as far as the Great Northern was concerned, when was that first suggested?

A. I had heard it discussed for a year or two.

Q. Had you talked with Mr. Hill generally about it?

A. I think I had. That is, not in any detail, with the exception of being to a certain extent a stockholder in the Great Northern. I talked to him on that subject.

Q. And that was a separate holding company for the Great Northern?

1372 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you had that in your own mind to have a holding company for the Northern Pacific?

A. That came up after I came back. When we found ourselves in this position, with the danger, having escaped as I thought at that time from what I thought was a great danger; that is to say, our property being absorbed by a competing line without our knowledge or consent. It occurred to me something ought to be done to prevent that, because, while we chose to defend the property, I did not want it to go on indefinitely, 1373 and I thought the best plan was to go to some trust company. My idea was first to go to some trust company to take the Northern Pacific stock and hold it.

Q. That is, to hold control?

A. Hold control of the stock. Just to surrender it to them and take their receipt.

Q. For the purpose of keeping control in one place?

A. No; not alone to keep it one place, but to keep it so that the policy of the company upon which its future depended could be continued. We didn't want convulsions going on. You 1374 can not take a company with three or four hundred millions of securities and do one thing one day and another thing another. It destroys confidence in the first place, and everything of that kind. What I wanted to accomplish was to put that stock so that it could be protected—to maintain the policy of the company as it then existed.

Q. Held in one hand, in other words?

A. No; not in one hand, because it could be held in third hands. I wanted it so that I could go to Europe and not hear next day that somebody had bought it for the Boston and Maine, 1375 or I don't know what other company. I wanted the Northern Pacific stock put where nothing could interfere with the policy I had inaugurated and for the carrying out of which we were perfectly satisfied and morally responsible.

Q. It being the idea that the control would be in your hands?

A. It was not a question of control. It is a moral control.

Q. I know.

A. It was not a question of that kind. It was a question of moral control.

Q. When did the idea of putting the control of both these 1376 roads in one place come up; after your return?

A. I suggested to Mr. Hill "why not." I think I did, at any rate. If it was not, it may have been by Mr. Steele. Whether I did it or J. P. Morgan & Co., I think we are responsible for having made that suggestion.

Q. When was that?

A. I suppose in October.

Mr. STETSON. You returned from Europe the 4th of July, didn't you, and went to California in October?

1377 A. In October.

Mr. STETSON. The latter part of September or the first week in October?

A. Yes.

Mr. STETSON. And you were in California all the month of October?

A. Then it must have been just before I went to California.

Q. How long had that matter been under consideration with Mr. Hill?

A. Oh, I don't know.

1378 Q. I mean between you and Mr. Hill?

A. I only knew it as a moderate stockholder in the Great Northern. That was his idea, as it is with a great many of these companies. That was his idea with the Great Northern road, because there were side companies, and all of that he had, and he seemed to think that was the way to manage it. I did not follow it any more. It was not a question of my device; it was his.

Q. In other words, he owning one road and you the other?

A. No, sir; I beg your pardon; not at all.

1379 Q. You know what I mean?

A. Mr. Hill, I say, for the Great Northern road, had had in his mind, evidently, as I understood it, for sometime, all that question of putting all the securities of the Great Northern road itself, and all its allied companies—I don't know just what he has got; all sorts of things—steamboats.

Mr. CLOUGH:

Q. Subsidiary companies?

A. All those subsidiary companies, putting them all into a holding company and creating a voting trust. He had some 1380 company out in the West; what is the name of that thing?

Mr. STETSON:

Q. St. Peter Company.

Q. So you and Mr. Hill discussed that question during the summer?

A. What?

Q. The question of the formation of a holding company.

A. No, no. Mr. Hill and I—I think it was two years ago

Mr. Hill first talked to me about the Great Northern road, 1381 when I took stock, and that sort of thing—the little stock I had, 1,000 or 2,000, 5,000 shares—but it had nothing to do with the Northern Pacific road in any way, shape, or manner. Mr. Hill, I have no doubt, thought at one time he could buy up the Northern Pacific road and do something. I told him then if he could not we could work in harmony; but the law was against him, and he found that out afterwards and abandoned it, and that was settled years ago, when the Supreme Court decided that case.

Q. In the Pearsall case? 1382

A. Yes; that dismissed any question in my mind of that kind. Everything, so far as the Northern Pacific road is concerned, and a holding company, all occurred to my mind subsequent to the 9th of May. My idea was, I can't live forever, and J. P. Morgan & Co. may be dissolved. I wanted this affected, so that the policy we have incorporated and created shall be continued on that property if the stockholders chose to put the stock there.

Q. How soon after your return did you meet Mr. Hill?

A. I don't know. 1383

Q. Very soon?

A. No; Mr. Hill, I don't think, was here when I came back. I don't remember about that.

Q. Did you exchange ideas with him on this subject during the summer?

A. Not to any extent; no.

Q. To some extent?

A. No; I don't remember talking with him until when we came to discuss this question when I made up my mind to do this thing. He was a large stockholder of the Northern Pacific, 1384 and I said I think that has got to be done. I will not take the responsibility of going through anything of this kind again. If a man has got 10,000 shares of stock, and acts with you, and he is your friend, to-morrow somebody comes on and offers him 100 per cent profit, and he will sell his stock, and you will find yourself left in a box. The consequences are too serious. I said "It can't go on that way."

Q. What was the result of your talk with Mr. Hill?

1385 A. The result of it was that we decided that the Northern Pacific, so far as I was concerned as a stockholder in the Northern Pacific, I would put my stock in provided that he would take everybody else's into this thing that he had proposed to arrange for the Great Northern.

Q. That is this Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes.

Q. That is, provided he would go in himself?

A. Yes; of course. Well, I didn't care whether he went in or not. We had a majority without him. I wanted a majority 1386 of the Northern Pacific stock in that securities company; I didn't care who went in, provided there was enough there to protect the Northern Pacific.

Q. You could not have a majority without Mr. Hill, could you?

A. I don't know—the books will tell you—yes, I could.

Q. Could you?

A. Yes; very easily at that time.

Q. You had, anyway; it was agreed between you, and that was done?

1387 A. I mean to say, now that you have raised that question—it never occurred to me before, by the way—Mr. Hill has not got any control in the Northern Pacific and did not have then.

Q. Oh, no; but yours and his holdings put together constituted a control?

A. No, sir; it did not do anything of the kind.

Q. I mean him and his friends—Mr. Strathcone and all those folks?

A. He and all the other stockholders did; yes.

Q. His little coterie, I mean?

1388 A. He has got no coterie. Mr. Kennedy, you speak of, is a great friend, and I think Mr. Kennedy's interest, if anything, in the Northern Pacific was greater than his interest in the Great Northern. He was just as much a friend of mine, and has been for forty years. Mr. Kennedy and I were in Aix. He came down to see what in the mischief all this meant. I said I didn't know. He said, "I am going to cable over to tell them to put my stock into your office." I said, "There is no use, because you can not sign the power," and he said, "Whatever you want done I want done with my Northern Pacific," and that is the way people treated me in the Northern Pacific. 1389

Whatever I was willing to do they wanted, and they wanted to put the stock just where I said to keep it safe. That is what they wanted. Well, I appreciated that. I can not help but being touched by a thing of that kind. Consequently, it is not Mr. Hill and his coterie. It was a question of who held stock in the Northern Pacific, and the men in the Northern Pacific wanted my policy or our policy from the organization carried out. Take, for instance, which is a case in point, which I suppose you will get at with me pretty soon—that is, how I came to buy the Union Pacific interests in the Northern Pacific. 1390
Supposing I had bought the Northern Pacific—I mean the Union Pacific—interests in Northern Pacific and added it to mine, where would Mr. Hill have been? He would not have had any control at all. I am only speaking to you to show you this. You ask questions. Of course that is all right. You will get the point I want to convey, you know.

Q. Yes; I had always had that thought, that you could have done without him.

A. Mr. Hill and I worked together. I would work with him on anything, but when you say to me—Mr. Hill and I, we 1391 worked simply because he was a stockholder of the Northern Pacific and I was a stockholder; but I was independent of Mr. Hill in that transaction. I wanted simply to keep the stock of the Northern Pacific safe beyond question.

Q. As a matter of fact, there was some sort of an understanding with Mr. Hill that he would do it. You would have been very much surprised if he had not?

A. Simply because I know he wanted to make the most he could out of the Northern Pacific.

Q. And you agreed to work in unison in that thing? 1392

A. He would give me his stock and I could do what I liked with it. In that connection, Mr. Lamb, I would have given him all my Great Northern stock. He could have done what he liked with that, because I had confidence in him, and he has confidence in me, but it is not a coterie or anything of that kind.

Q. You sold Mr. Hill quite a lot of your stock, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. About how much?

A. I don't know. I don't remember now.

1393 Q. About $10,000,000?

A. I don't remember anything about that.

Q. About when was that sold?

A. What?

Q. This $10,000,000 of Northern Pacific to Mr. Hill?

A. I didn't say there was.

Mr. BOUTELLE. Mr. Hill testified to that, Mr. Morgan.

Q. Mr. Steele, too.

A. I don't know anything about that. Any stockholder that chose to take part of my stock could do so. I bought that stock, 1394 as I have testified ($15,000,000), for the benefit of the protection, and these stockholders came in. I remember one gentleman came in and said, "Mr. Morgan, you took a good deal of burden in that thing. I want to relieve you of 10,000 shares of that stock." I said, "All right; it cost so much. Make your check and you can have the stock."

Q. So you gave it to him at the price you paid for it?

A. I gave it to him at what it cost, and I gave it to everybody else who wanted it at the same price.

Q. The price you paid for it under this condition?

1395 A. Whatever the stock cost was the price they paid.

Q. Do you remember who conducted the negotiations with Mr. Hill for a sale to Mr. Hill of that stock?

A. There was no negotiation.

Q. It is a big amount, $10,000,000?

A. You may think so, but when you are talking about a thing where there is 300,000,000 or 400,000,000—10,000,000 of stock is not a very large amount nowadays. I don't consider a purchase of $10,000,000 of stock very much.

Q. To a struggling lawyer it seems so.

1396 A. I told Mr. Hill and all these stockholders whatever I paid for the stock they could have it for, if they wanted it; they said they did not think we ought to take the whole responsibility of the thing, and whatever we paid for it they took it at. There was no negotiation about it. If they took it they took it; if they didn't we kept it. We have the balance of it to-day; at least we did have it.

Q. These conferences about turning in stock, were they prior to the sale or subsequent to it?

A. What?

Q. I mean the conferences about turning in the stock of the 1397
Northern Pacific into a holding company?

A. There was no connection between the two; one was not dependent on the other in any way, shape, or manner.

Q. I mean merely in reference to time?

A. They were all since my return.

Q. Well, about that time these conferences were being held?

A. About that time; yes.

Q. Did you see a circular sent out by Mr. Hill to the stockholders of the Great Northern advising them to turn their stock into the Northern Securities? 1398

A. Oh, yes; I got one of those as a stockholder, and I turned mine in.

Q. And you approved of the plan of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I did.

Q. And gave it the benefit of your influence?

A. I did.

Q. You assisted in the organization of the company?

A. I had nothing to do with it.

Q. I mean in the way of consultation or advice? 1399

A. No. Oh, I don't know; I may have been asked about it, but I was not an incorporator or director, or anything about it.

Q. Were you ever consulted as to the men who were to be directors?

A. I don't think I ever knew; I don't know to-day who are the directors.

Q. You were never consulted about them?

A. I don't think I was; at any rate it made no impression on my mind.

Q. Well, who fixed the ratio of 180 for the Great Northern 1400 and 115 for the Northern Pacific?

A. I suppose the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Well, you must have been consulted by them?

A. I think it is very possible I was. I can tell you gentlemen that is just what the stock cost us that we had bought; that is the way the 115 came from the Northern Pacific; it cost just that—the stock we bought to protect the stock, etc.

1401 Q. Then, of course, your house was a large holder of stocks bought before at the time that the company was in distress?

A. That has nothing to do with the other.

Mr. STETSON. That was the market price of the stock.

A. That was practically the last market price.

Mr. STETSON. Of the stock actually delivered prior to the 9th of May.

Q. How did they arrive at the price of $180 for the Great Northern?

A. That was about what the market price was at that time.

1402 I had nothing to do with that.

Q. Was that determined before the securities company was organized?

A. I suppose so. I know nothing about what the Great Northern did.

Q. The Northern Pacific price was agreed upon before the Northern Securities Company was organized?

A. That I don't know, either. I doubt it. Not before it was organized. It may have been at the same time. I don't know.

1403 Q. You would not care to put in your stock to the Northern Securities Company without knowing what they were going to pay for the Great Northern?

A. I didn't. But when you say before it was organized—organizing a company is one thing and receiving stock is another. I knew what the price of the two stocks were to be before I put in my stock, but whether it was before or after the organization—legal organization of the company—I don't know.

Q. You would not have put in this stock unless you had been satisfied that the Great Northern's price was a fair one?

1404 A. I didn't know how much they would get for the Great Northern, but, of course, I would not—you are quite right—unless I had been satisfied with the price. But whether that price was known before or after the legal organization of the company I don't remember, and it did not seem to me material, because before I put in my stock I would know the two prices and the relative value. But a company might have been organized and no stock put in. My impression is that the price was not fixed until after the legal organization, but I am not sure.

Q. But you would not put your stock in unless you were satisfied? 1405

A. There was no use fixing a price until we knew the company was going through, and all that sort of thing. That is why I believe that the price of the stock was fixed afterwards. I knew the price at which both stocks were to be taken, certainly, before I put in anything I had.

Q. Did the relative proportion seem to you a fair one?

A. It did.

Q. One hundred and eighty dollars Great Northern and one hundred and fifteen for Northern Pacific? 1406

A. It did. If anything, I thought the Great Northern was a little low.

Q. You, then, did acquaint yourself with the standing of the Great Northern and its history?

A. If you take the dividend and the market price of the Great Northern and the uncertainty as to the price of the Northern Pacific—because you must remember that when this was formed, and all that sort of thing, we did not know whether we were going to be able to settle definitely with the Union Pacific interests, and we did not know either if we were going 1407 to get through the 1st of January without legal contest—and we found out from you gentlemen we came very near not doing it—consequently I say the Northern Pacific got their fair share of that deal.

Q. So the stocks did not go in on the basis of actual certainties?

A. They went in as near as possible on what we considered the market price.

Q. Market price is regulated?

A. By the stock markets. 1408

Q. And the fear of lawsuits?

A. Oh, no; I beg your pardon.

Q. And the possibility of trouble with the Union Pacific people?

A. That is just what I said I didn't do.

Q. I have made some analysis of the subject myself, and I thought the Great Northern got a little the best of it.

A. Probably that is because you had Great Northern. I had 1409 both. What I mean to say is this: You had control of the suits, you see. You could remove the suit, and probably that is why you thought the Northern Pacific would go in cheaper. But that was not the case with the other. But what I say is simply this: At 180 and 115, I think, the Northern Pacific, if anything, got a little better of the trade. But that was fixed, because it was the price at which we bought this stock. Undoubtedly, if that stock had not cost quite as much we would not have received as much.

Mr. STETSON. You mean the stockholders of the Northern 1410 Pacific and the Great Northern when you say the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. Oh, no; I mean the stockholders in the companies; the stockholders in the Great Northern did not get quite as much relatively as the stockholders of the Northern Pacific.

Q. When was it first decided between you and Mr. Hill to put both stocks of these companies into one holding company?

A. Mr. Hill did not decide the Northern Pacific. I told him I thought if he was willing we would take it; and that was probably some time either just before or just after I re-1411 turned from California.

Q Then you agreed to do it?

A. No, sir; I told him that would be my decision if everything went smooth. We could not tell at that time if we were going to be able to get our charter.

Q. That was satisfactory to him?

A. It was satisfactory to me if it was to him.

Q. Did he say it was satisfactory to him?

A. Yes.

Q. And you both agreed to it?

1412 A. We both agreed to it.

Q. If you could get your charter and all the legal formalities could be carried out?

A. He was acting for his stock and I for mine, with the condition that if the Northern Securities Company was organized the holders of the Northern Pacific stock should have the right to put in their stock the same as we did.

Q. When was it decided between you or agreed between you that the Great Northern would come in?

A. They were in before; I had nothing to do with that; 1413 that was all fixed.

Q. That they would come into the Northern Securities Company?

A. I have already said to you that the Great Northern Company and a holding company was a thing of Mr. Hill's plan. The question simply was whether J. P. Morgan & Co. should select the Northern Securities Company as the custodian for our Northern Pacific stock or not, so that it was really Mr. Hill's plan, and the Great Northern went in before I did. I told you before he had arranged that for his road and subsidiary 1414 companies, at least that or some holding company, so that was long before this thing came up.

Q. You have explained that it was your idea that it would be a good plan to put the control of the Northern Pacific into a trust company or into a holding company and Mr. Hill apparently held the same theory as to his stock.

A. Not at the same time.

Q. No; not at the same time; he had worked that out years ago in his mind. You had both been working the same thing out. Why was it agreed to put the stock of both of these com- 1415 panies in one holding company?

A. It seemed to me the better way of putting it.

Q. But why?

A. Why, on the face of it, it did not make any difference to me.

Q. Why put the stocks of both of these companies into one holding company?

A. In the first place this holding company was simply a question of custodian, because it had no other alliances.

Q. It does own other properties?

A. What? 1416

Q. The Northern Securities Company.

A. The Northern Securities Company may own other properties some time, but they do not now.

Q. It owns several companies?

A. I say those are Mr. Hill's companies.

Q. Yes.

A. That is all right. Those are Great Northern companies. It doesn't hold anything. It is an investment or trust company

1417 which can hold securities that Mr. Hill may put in, and we put ours in the same boat.

Q. Putting both companies into one holding company, whoever gets control of the holding company may wrest the stock away from one or the other.

A. That is another advantage which I took into account, and that was that the capital of the Northern Securities Company was so large I did not believe in a night or week anybody would ever be able to get control of it.

Q. They might. It is only $400,000,000.

1418 A. You said just now $10,000,000 was a large amount. If that is so, I think $400,000,000 would be much more.

Q. Can you tell me what special benefits accrued from putting them both in one company?

A. Because it seemed to me the best remedy. The company is so large. For instance, supposing I had gone to the United States Trust Company and they had issued to me some securities for the Northern Pacific (the persons who put their stock in a holding company would desire to have something for it—trust certificates or other securities). Supposing we had put our 1419 securities in the United States Trust Company, and they had given me something or other. They have 2,000,000 of stock. Somebody could get hold of that and do what they liked with it. I wanted to put it in a company with capital large enough that nobody could ever buy it, and that is the only one I know of. It is the only investment or trust company that I knew of of that kind where the stock was large enough so that in all human probability I felt that if it was not safe there it was not safe anywhere.

Q. It is a fact, however, that a number of the larger holders

1420 of Northern Securities Company stock acting together would control both roads?

A. No, sir; I do not think it would be possible. If you go and select all the stockholders, of course. I have no doubt if you had a list of the stockholders, and take all the largest until you got over $200,000,000, those people would control; but there is no interest that I know of to-day that can control the Northern Securities Company.

Q. When did you first meet Mr. Harriman on your return from Europe?

A. I could not tell you; some time during the summer. It 1421 was some time after I had returned, I know.

Q. What conversation did you have with him?

A. I don't think I had any.

Q. Relative to the holding of Union Pacific in Northern Pacific?

A. I had no interview with him on that subject.

Q. Or with Mr. Schiff?

A. Or with Mr. Schiff.

Q. To your knowledge, did any member of your firm have an interview with him on that subject? 1422

A. I had no interview with Mr. Harriman.

Q. When did it come to your knowledge that Mr. Harriman was apprehensive that the purchase of the Burlington might jeopardise his interest?

A. I never knew it at all.

Q. Did you ever have a conversation with him about that?

A. No. On the contrary, I thought they were perfectly satisfied.

Q. And no members of your firm ever had any conference with him? 1423

A. Not that I know. I do not know of any. I never had any. I always supposed they were perfectly satisfied until that was assigned as a reason.

Q. How much of the Northern Securities Company stock does your house own now?

A. I decline to answer that question. I will answer any question that is fair, but I do not think that is fair. I have no objection to answering it; but I do not think in a case of this kind—a corporate thing, you know—questions of a personal character should be omitted. I am perfectly willing to answer 1424 any questions that are public. We own about 164,000 shares of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Did you hear that the Union Pacific interests sold their Northern Pacific holdings to the Northern Securities Company?

A. I did not. We bought it; J. P. Morgan & Co. bought it. J. P. Morgan & Co. made the negotiation with the Securities company. Supposing we had kept that stock that we had bought? That is an illustration of what I was showing you just now.

1425 Q. And that stock was sold at once to the Northern Securities Company?

A. Afterwards.

Q. Will you give us the basis of that transaction and the terms of it?

Mr. STETSON:

Q. Are you doing this for the purpose of establishing a discrepancy? Mr. Perkins has testified to it, and Mr. Steele.

A. Mr. Morgan was not here personally. It was not far from 1426 $90,000,000, Mr. Steele told you, of which about $9,000,000 was in cash.

Mr. BULKLEY:

Q. And they turned it over to the Northern Securities Company on the same terms on which they bought it?

A. On the same terms exactly as those on which they bought. That is another of those transactions I was speaking about.

Q. In regard to those transactions with the Union Pacific interests, Mr. Steele has testified that they agreed at one time to pay one price, and they subsequently ascertained that the 1427 Union Pacific had less stock than they thought they had.

A. Than we thought they had.

Q. And than they thought they had, or you thought they had. I was putting it in a kindly way for the Union Pacific—and that another price was ultimately paid. Will you tell us what the first price was and what the second price was?

A. There was no price about it. I have forgotten what the first agreement was. That never came to anything, because no transaction was ever based on it. I don't remember the figures at all. I could not tell you, to save my life; I had nothing to 1428 do with it.

Q. Have you heard of or authorized recent purchases of Burlington at very high prices?

A. Me?

Q. Your house.

A. I do not know. I do not think I have bought a share of Burlington stock for two years; at least not for a long time.

Q. And, to your knowledge, no purchases have been made by your house within the last few months?

A. I never heard of them. I can not imagine what they 1429 want to buy any more for. They have all they want now, and more, too.

Cross-examination by Mr. STETSON:

Q. Your present amount of holding in the Northern Securities Company—about 164,000 shares, as you testified—is substantially the same amount that you have held from the beginning?

A. Yes, sir; substantially; that is, originally we held 172,000 shares, and now we hold 164,000 shares.

Q. Mr. Morgan, referring to the purchase of Northern Pacific 1430 stock in 1896 by Mr. Hill and other gentlemen, you referred to them, or the questioner referred to them, as being Mr. Hill's associates. I would like to know of you, were these sales made to Mr. Hill and to other purchasers as an association, or were they made to a number of gentlemen separately?

A. They were made to Hill, as I understood it. I do not remember how the transaction was made. I understood when the company was reorganized there was a certain amount of stock left over in the hands of the reorganization committee, and it was that stock which I sold to Mr. Hill. What he did 1431 with it at that time I did not know. It was not until afterwards that I ever knew, by looking at the registry books, how that was done.

Q. You were asked as to the custom of your house in reference to transactions for the Northern Pacific and the acquisition of branch lines and extensions, etc. It was suggested to you that your usual method was to form an underwriting syndicate for that purpose. Is that a fact?

A. We never had any extension lines that I know of; if we did I don't remember. 1432

Q. You have no recollection of any underwriting syndicate that you formed for the Northern Pacific since the reorganization in 1896?

A. I don't remember anything at the moment, but I mean to say that is our way of doing business; if we make a large loan we form a syndicate to carry it out.

Q. Voting trust ended in December, 1900, I understand?

A. 1901; January, 1901.

1433 Q. It terminated in January, 1901, which was a year before the time fixed for its expiration?

A. Yes.

Q. You have from time to time been asked and have answered concerning your carrying on negotiations, or making arrangements for the Northern Pacific. Who actually completed the arrangements and carried them into effect?

A. I don't know.

Q. You or the board of directors?

A. The board of directors; I never carried any into effect.

1434 Q. What was the meaning of that statement, you did this or that?

A. We did whatever the board of directors requested us to do?

Q. At all times one or two of your partners were members of the board?

A. They were.

Q. And the conference in your office on this subject was between you and the directors of the Northern Pacific who were in your firm?

A. No, sir; I mean negotiations with the Northern Pacific, 1435 except, as I say, a certain amount of conversation in regard to what I called moral responsibility. I would talk that with any director, but when it comes down to the course between J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Northern Pacific, J. P. Morgan & Co. act with the officials of the company authorized by the by-laws.

Q. I mean the daily conference between you and the members of your firm who were directors, that was the way you got your advice as to the wishes of the board?

A. They would tell me what the board wanted, but I did not deal with them as members of the board, I was not acting with 1436 them in that capacity.

Q. I understood that, but I mean as channels of communication?

A. Channels of communication; yes.

Q. The question was put to you two or three times in different forms as to why you recommended these gentlemen for the board of the Northern Pacific in July, 1901. Was it your intention to be understood as saying these gentlemen were put on here not for the interest of the company itself?

A. My impression is that the names that I proposed would 1437 be a sufficient answer to that.

Q. But the question was put several times. Did you consider these proper and suitable directors for the interests?

A. I never put anybody on any board I did not think was capable of filling it.

Q. And it was to the interests of the Northern Pacific to have these gentlemen?

A. Certainly.

Q. In referring to the Northern Securities Company by way of illustration you have used the example United States Trust 1438 Company once or twice. Are you to be understood that the Northern Securities Company held the several certificates in the nature of a trustee or as owner?

A. As owner; but what I meant is this, while the Northern Securities Company as such issued stock for this, a trust company would have issued a receipt, we have issued stock, consequently we could control it. I say, if I had put them in a company with $2,000,000 of stock it could have been easily controlled, but in the Northern Securities Company, which the only company I know of up to this time where the stock itself 1439 is represented, you can not control that stock without buying a majority of $400,000,000 or more of stock.

Q. Did or did not the organization of the Northern Securities Company have any relation to the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Was there, or was there not, in any way any connection between the organization of the Northern Securities Company and the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific?
1440

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Was the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Securities Company undertaken for the purpose of giving to the Northern Securities Company an opportunity to acquire a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Company and thereby control that company?

A. Nothing whatever, because they already had it.

Q. Was the retirement of said stock the part of any scheme

1441 or plan to allow the Northern Securities Company to obtain a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific, or any of the stock of said company?

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is the same question just asked.

Q. Did Mr. Hill, so far as you know, have anything to do with the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific except voting thereon as a director?

A. I don't think he was a director at the time that was passed; he had nothing to do with it.

Q. Was the retirement undertaken in good faith in pursuance 1442 of the long-established understanding that the stock should be retired?

A. I have testified to that already.

Q. Was there any scheme or plan entered into by anyone, so far as you know, whereby the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred stock was to be used to vest in the Northern Securities Company, or in anyone else, the control of the Northern Pacific?

A. Certainly not.

Q. Was the fact of acquiring a majority of the stock of both 1443 or either the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway Company made a condition of the organization of the Northern Securities Company, so far as you know?

A. Nothing at all. On the contrary, we only wanted one.

Q. Was it, or was it not, determined, so far as you know, to form the Northern Securities Company without knowledge whether the company would, or could, acquire a majority of either or both of these stocks?

A. Nothing whatever. We had a majority of the Northern Pacific; we knew that.

1444 Q. Was it agreed by anyone, so far as you know, before the Northern Securities Company was organized that the so-called Harriman or Union Pacific stocks in the Northern Pacific should be placed in the Northern Securities Company?

A. No; we did not require it.

Q. And you did not know that it would be done until after the consummation?

A. Not until after.

Q. In the organization of the Northern Securities Company, or previous to this organization, so far as you know, was there 1445 any agreement or understanding of any kind between J. P. Morgan & Co., or any firm, and Mr. Hill, or any gentleman acting with him, that the said company would be organized for the purpose of acquiring the control of the stocks of the two railway companies for the purpose of maintenance of railway rates, suspension of competition and control of competition, or the restraint of trade and commerce in any manner whatever?

A. It never entered our head.

Q. Was the question of controlling and competition and regulating rates, or maintaining rates, or fixing rates in any 1446 way, one of the objects in forming the Northern Securities Company, so far as you have ever heard?

Mr. LAMB. I shall have to object to that question.

A. No.

Q. In selling the stock in Northern Pacific belonging to J. P. Morgan & Co. to the Northern Securities Company did your firm act by agreement with other stockholders, or did you act individually?

A. We acted individually, with the understanding that every other stockholder should have the same right, at the same price 1447 that I have testified to already.

Q. Do you remember what were the terms of the circular of the Great Northern to which you have referred? You have spoken that the Great Northern asked you to come in. Did they ask you to come in or offer an opportunity?

A. They offered me the opportunity at $150.

Q. But they did not ask you to?

A. Oh, no.

Redirect examination by Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. The plan of retirement of the preferred stock of the 1448
Northern Pacific as ultimately adopted and passed upon by the board of directors was arranged and agreed upon before it was submitted to the board, was it not?

A. Do you mean the financial plan?

Q. No; the general plan and scheme was outlined and thereafter submitted to the board approved by them, was it not?

A. Adopted by the board; yes.

1449 Q. Now, how long before it was actually submitted to the board was that plan gotten up?

A. Oh, my own impression is that it was the very day.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Morgan, whether the preferred stockholders were ever offered the opportunity of converting their preferred into common stock?

A. Certainly not. They had nothing to do except take their money.

Q. What was the reason for adopting the plan that was adopted in such a way as to deny the preferred stockholders the 1450 right to convert their stock into common?

A. It never was denied; it never was even thought of.

Q. If that plan had been adopted and an offer had been made to the preferred stockholders to convert their preferred stock into common, the Union Pacific interests would have had a control, would they not?

A. No; the stock belonged to the Northern Securities Company at the time; they would have got it all.

Q. No; before the plan of retirement, Mr. Morgan.

A. When was that put out?

1451 Q. The 13th of November. Do you recall, Mr. Morgan, what the amount of the Union Pacific holdings were?

A. No, I don't—about $78,000,000.

Q. In refreshing your recollection, was it not subsequently $37,000,000 of common and $40,000,000 of preferred?

A. That is what I remember—about that.

Q. And it was claimed by the Union Pacific, and I understood you to testify, that they had a majority in there at that time?

A. No, no. If you added the two stocks together.

Q. That is what I mean.

1452 A. Adding their holdings of both stocks together they had at that time a majority, but that did not give them control.

Q. Well, what ordinarily controls a corporation besides a majority of the stock?

Mr. STETSON. The board of directors.

A. The board of directors and the conditions under which the stock is issued.

Mr. STETSON. So the Supreme Court has decided.

Q. Was the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company submitted to you before it was adopted?

A. I don't think it was. I do not remember, and I don't 1453 know who are directors of it.

Q. You don't recall the fact of its having been discussed with you who should compose that board?

A. I don't think it ever was.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the composition of the Burlington and Quincy boards, either railway or railroad?

A. I don't think I did. I don't remember to have done so. It is possible that I may, but I don't remember; I didn't care about it.

Q. Do you recall whether you were consulted or informed 1454 before those boards were elected as to how they should be composed?

A. I don't think so.

Recross-examination by Mr. STETSON:

Q. In the conduct of your firm did you generally rely upon some of your associates and partners for the details?

A. I relied on them entirely.

Q. You don't pay much attention to the details, except something in which you have a particular interest?

A. I keep a pretty good lookout for the details; yes. 1455

Q. But as to these dates and amounts?

A. Oh, that I don't remember.

Q. You pass upon questions of policy and determine the course of business?

A. I help them along.

Q. You returned from California the very end of October, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. The plan for the retirement of the preferred stock was adopted by the board of directors on the 13th of November? 1456

A. Yes.

Q. Now, so far as your knowledge or participation in the completion of that plan, it was between those dates, was it not? Between your return from California and the 13th of November?

A. Of course; it could not have been otherwise.

Q. I mean it was not taken up before you went to California?

A. Oh, no; I think we finished it up the day we issued it.

Q. Yes; you did finish it up then, but the discussion was between those dates?

1457 Re-redirect examination by Mr. BOUTELLE:

Q. You have stated in your examination that it had been understood from the first that when conditions were ripe that the preferred stock issued on the organization of the Northern Pacific would be retired?

A. Yes.

Q. But up to 1901, the time when this plan that was finally consummated was adopted, no plan had been devised for the retirement of that stock, had it?

A. No; but it was always the idea that the time would come 1458 whenever the credit of the company reached a point when the common stock to meet it could be sold at par or above it.

Q. But there was no specified plan of retirement until this time?

A. Oh, no; there was no other way of doing it but the one we adopted.

Q. Was it impossible to have offered to the preferred stockholders to convert their stock into common?

A. It was the right of the company——

Q. Was it impossible, Mr. Morgan?

1459 A. Certainly, it was.

Q. I am not speaking about the question of right as between the two classes of stockholders.

A. Absolutely impossible. That is the only way it could be done. Under the plan of reorganization the common stockholders were entitled to the benefit of retiring that preferred stock.

Q. But the question of possibility and policy may be different?

A. Oh, no; it is the same with us.

Q. Do you know that the preferred stockholders would have 1460 refused to convert their stock into common?

A. At what time?

Q. At the time that you actually retired that stock.

A. Certainly not; they would have converted it with great pleasure.

Re-recross-examination by Mr. STETSON:

Q. Would it have been just to Mr. Power and the other common stockholders to have given all of this common stock to the preferred stockholders?

Mr. BOUTELLE. That is objected to as calling for a conclusion. 1461

A. What I mean to say is this. I did not finish my remark on that subject. There is so much interest in this case, and with all these questions published we like to understand it, and in addition I want to say this. What I say is, that under the plan of reorganization that right to retire the preferred stock became in fact the right of the common stockholders. That is to say, it was the common stockholders who would benefit by the retirement. Supposing they had attempted against my judgment to have done what you say—that is, offered the preferred stockholders the right to convert into common stock. I, as a com- 1462
mon stockholder, would have immediately got out an injunction to stop it. The preferred stockholders were only entitled to par and interest at 4 per cent. That is all they could claim under that law, and those were the only rights they had.

Q. Then you agree with Judge Scott and Judge Lochran in their holdings to that effect?

A. I don't remember what they held.

By consent of all parties further proceedings were adjourned until 1.30, March 27, 1902.

1463

NEW YORK, Thursday afternoon, March 28, 1902.

The following proceedings were had, to wit:

Mr. Mortimer H. Boutelle, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Mr. A. W. Bulkley, of Chicago, Ill., appearing in behalf of the complainant, and Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, of St. Paul, Minn., appearing in behalf of the defendant.

Mr. KELLOGG. Before we go on with the cross-examination of Mr. Kennedy, I furnish the by-laws of the Northern Securities Company, which the master had marked as "Exhibit K," and there is an extra copy for you gentlemen.

1464

I also furnish a list of the directors of the Northern Securities Company, classified by years, which the examiner had marked as "Exhibit M." I will bring the plan of reorganization the next time. I have forgotten it.

JOHN S. KENNEDY, recalled.

(Testimony inserted at page 37.)

W. P. CLOUGH, recalled.

(Testimony inserted on page 85.)

Mr. BOUTELLE. So far as Mr. Morgan's testimony is con-

1465 cerned, you may enter this stipulation in behalf of counsel, that if Mr. Morgan has any corrections they may be made and incorporated in the record without any further appearance before the examiner.

Mr. KELLOGG. That is satisfactory, but that wouldn't cover the examination of Mr. Perkins. We want to examine him. It is understood that the testimony of Mr. Morgan may be corrected by him and sent to the examiner, and as to Mr. Perkins we may ask him any further questions at any other time?

Mr. BOUTELLE. Yes, sir. And before any notary, at the 1466 convenience of yourself, Mr. Kellogg, and Mr. Perkins.

It was stipulated by and between the several solicitors for the respective parties to this cause that any rules of the circuit court requiring testimony to be signed by the witness should be and was in all respects waived.

Whereupon further proceedings were adjourned subject to the call of the special examiner.

Members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.:

J. Pierpont Morgan.
George S. Thomas, Philadelphia.
1467 Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia.
Robert Bacon.
Charles Steele.
George W. Perkins.
James W. Paul, Philadelphia.
John Pierpont Morgan, jr.
Temple Bowdoin.
Edward T. Whitney.
Edward M. Robinson, Philadelphia.
William Pierson Hamilton.

The following is a copy of volume 3 of special examiner's 1468 transcript in Peter Power case, from page 1 to 88, inclusive, and here offered by complainant as original evidence in this case:

United States circuit court, district of Minnesota, fourth division.

PETER POWER, COMPLAINANT,
v.
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, DEFENDANT. } Defendant's testimony.

Pursuant to the agreement of counsel for the respective parties, proceedings in the above-entitled cause in behalf of the 1469 defendant came on to be heard at the office of the general counsel of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in the city of St. Paul, county of Ramsey, and State of Minnesota, in the third division and district, on Thursday morning, July 24, A. D. 1902, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at which time appeared before me William A. Lancaster, esq., counsel for and in behalf of the complainant, and C. W. Bunn, esq., and Frank B. Kellogg, esq., of the firm of Davis, Kellogg & Severance, counsel for and behalf of the defendant, whereupon the following proceedings were had, to wit: 1470

R. H. RELF, after being first duly sworn, testified as follows in answer to questions by Mr. Kellogg:

Q. Mr. Relf, state whether you are the assistant secretary of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

A. I am.

Q. How long have you been?

A. Since September 4, 1900.

Q. I will ask you if the book I show you is the record of the proceedings of the stockholders' and directors' meetings of the Northern Pacific Railway Company? 1471

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence the proceedings of the stockholders' meeting of July 1, 1896, containing a resolution of the stockholders of said company increasing the capital stock, which reads as follows and is marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 4."

1472 DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 4.

Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company.—Stockholders' meeting, July 1, 1896.

MADISON, WISCONSIN,
OFFICE OF SPOONER, SANBORN, KERR & SANBORN,
July 1, 1896—2 o'clock p. m.

The holders of record of all outstanding capital stock of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company being present this day at the time and place above stated, as follows:

A. H. Gillard, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Gillard, which was presented and filed;

1473 Walter B. Horn, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Horn, which was presented and filed;

Charles F. Cooney, owning twenty-four shares, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Cooney, which was presented and filed;

Charles F. Coaney, assignee C. W. Reed estate, owning one share, by John G. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Coaney, which was presented and filed;

Mortimer F. Smith, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy

1474 of said Smith, which was presented and filed;

Edward D. Adams, owning eleven shares, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Adams, which was presented and filed;

Henry E. Lord, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Lord, which was presented and filed;

H. B. Bodine, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Bodine, which was presented and filed;

W. Paxton Little, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said

1475 Little, which was presented and filed;

John W. Almy, junior, owning one share, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, holding the written proxy of said Almy, which was presented and filed;

Each of said proxies being identical, except as to names, with the following:

The undersigned, being a stockholder of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, a corporation of the State of Wisconsin, does hereby make, constitute, and appoint John C. Spooner,

A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, jointly and severally, his attor- 1476
neys and proxies in his behalf and in respect of all stock of said company owned or held by the undersigned to attend at a meeting of the stockholders of the said company to be held in the State of Wisconsin on the first day of July, at two o'clock, in the afternoon, and then and there, in behalf of the undersigned, to vote in respect of all stock held or owned by the undersigned for a change in the name of said company to "Northern Pacific Railway Company," and to an increase of the capital stock of said company to the aggregate sum of $155,000,000; to be divided into preferred stock to the aggregate amount of $75,000,000, and common stock to the aggregate amount of $80,000,000; hereby giving and conferring to said attorneys 1477 and proxies, either at said meeting or at any adjournment or adjournments thereof, authority to vote for the propositions aforesaid, and also to vote in respect of any and all matters that may come before such meeting at any adjournment thereof; and also to sign upon the books of the company or elsewhere a waiver of notice of any stockholders' meeting, and a consent that meetings shall be held without notice and business fully transacted thereat as if said meeting had been duly called, all with the same force and effect as though the undersigned were personally present and cast such vote.

In witness whereof the undersigned has hereunto subscribed his name this 27th day of June, 1896. 1478

EDWARD D. ADAMS.

All of the stockholders being present and with the proxies as aforesaid, and it being desired to hold a meeting of the stockholders for the transaction of important business, and as section five of the by-laws provides as follows:

"At all meetings of the stockholders every registered owner of shares may vote in person or by proxy," the stockholders did thereupon, by their attorneys and proxies, as aforesaid, execute and sign the following waiver of notice and consent to the holding of this meeting:

MADISON, WISCONSIN, July 1, 1896.

We, the undersigned, owning and holding of record all of the 1479 outstanding capital stock of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, and being, therefore, all of the members of the said corporation, and deeming it important that a stockholders' meeting be now held, and no notice of such meeting having been given, do hereby waive notice of this meeting and consent to the holding of a stockholders' meeting at this time and place for the purpose of changing the name of the company to "Northern Pacific Railway Company," and for the purpose of increasing 1480 the capital stock of the company to the aggregate sum of $155,000,000, to be divided into preferred stock to the aggregate amount of seventy-five millions of dollars, and common stock to the aggregate amount of eighty millions of dollars, and for the transaction of any business at said meeting which could lawfully be transacted at any meeting of the members of such corporation regularly called and notified.

	Shares.
A. H. Gillard, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
Walter B. Horn, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
Charles F. Coaney, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	24
Charles F. Coaney, assignee C. W. Reed estate, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
Mortimer F. Smith, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
Edward D. Adams, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	11
Henry E. Lord, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
H. B. Bodine, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
W. Paxton Little, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1
John W. Almy, junior, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his proxies	1

1482 Whereupon on motion of John C. Spooner, seconded by H. C. Reed, A. L. Sanborn was chosen chairman of the stockholders' meeting.

On motion of John C. Spooner, seconded by A. L. Sanborn, H. C. Reed was elected secretary of the meeting.

Whereupon Mr. Spooner offered the following resolution and moved the adoption of the same:

"Resolved, That the corporate name of this corporation be, and the same is hereby, changed from the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company to Northern Pacific Railway Company, which latter name is hereby adopted as the corporate name of this corporation."

1483 The motion being seconded by Mr. Reed, on the stock vote the resolution was unanimously voted, 43 shares of stock voting therefor.

On motion of Mr. Spooner, seconded by Mr. Reed, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the secretary of the corporation be, and he is hereby, instructed to file in the office of the secretary of the State of Wisconsin a copy of the foregoing resolution, and of the record of its adoption, certified under his hand and the corporate seal of the corporation, and to publish a like certified copy of said resolution for three successive weeks in the Wisconsin State Journal, the official State paper, as provided by 1484 section 1835 of the Revised Statutes of Wisconsin for 1878."

Mr. Spooner offered and moved the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions:

"Whereas by section fifteen of the original charter of the corporation it was provided that its capital stock should be in the first instance five millions of dollars, and that the same might be increased to any sum, not exceeding ten millions of dollars, said capital stock to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, no increase of said capital stock ever having been made under said charter provisions; and

"Whereas by chapter 244 of the laws of the State of Wisconsin for the year 1895, approved April 15th of said year, it 1485 is provided by section 10, among other things, as follows:

"SECTION 10. Section 11 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"SECTION 11. The capital stock of said company may be increased from time to time to such an amount as may by its stockholders be deemed necessary for the construction, acquisition, or operation of any of its railroad or railroads by a vote of the owners of record of at least a majority of all its outstanding stock, in person or by proxy, at any annual meeting or at any meeting called for the purpose by a notice in writing to each stockholder, etc.;

"And whereas section 1826, applicable to railroad corpora- 1486
tions organized under chapter 87 of the Revised Statutes of 1878, is as follows:

"SECTION 1826. The capital stock of any such corporation may be increased to such an amount as may, by its stockholders, be deemed necessary for the construction or operation of its road by a vote of the owners of at least two-thirds of all its stock, in person or by proxy, at any annual meeting or at any meeting called by its directors for that purpose by a notice in writing to each stockholder, to be served on him personally or by depositing the same in the post-office, postage paid, properly directed to him at the post-office nearest the usual place of residence, at least twenty days prior to such meeting. Such notice shall state 1487 the time and place of such meeting, its object, and the amount to which it is proposed to increase such capital stock. No vote in favor of such increase shall take effect until the proceedings of such meeting, showing the names of all the stockholders voting therefor and the amount of stock owned by each, shall be entered upon the records of such corporation.

"And whereas section 1829 of the Revised Statutes is as follows:

"SECTION 1829. All existing or future railroad corporations within this State, including such as were originally organized 1488 under chapter seventy-three (73) of the Revised Statutes of 1858, shall respectively have and possess all of the powers and privileges, and be subject to all of the duties, liabilities, and restrictions prescribed by this chapter, and shall also have all peculiar rights and privileges granted to them respectively by their charters or any special law not inconsistent with these statutes.

"The said several statutes conferring upon the stockholders of this corporation full power to increase its capital stock; and

"Whereas the stockholders deem it necessary for the construction, acquisition, and operation of the railroads authorized by its charter and by the general laws of the State of Wisconsin to be 1489 by it acquired within and without the State of Wisconsin, and intended by it to be acquired by construction, purchase, or otherwise, within and without said State, that the capital stock of the corporation shall be increased one hundred and fifty millions of dollars, so that the aggregate of the capital stock of the corporation shall be one hundred and fifty-five millions of dollars, the said capital stock to be divided into shares of the par or face value of one hundred dollars each; and

"Whereas it is deemed necessary to the interests of the corporation, and to the carrying out of its business and lawful purpose, that of said aggregate of one hundred and fifty-five millions of dollars of the capital stock seventy-five millions thereof shall 1490 be preferred stock and eighty millions thereof shall be common stock;

"Now, therefore, be it first resolved, That the capital stock of this corporation be, and the same is hereby, increased from five millions of dollars to one hundred and fifty-five millions of dollars, and the same shall consist of one million five hundred and fifty thousand shares of the par or face value of one hundred dollars each, and of said stock, as the same is so hereby increased, seventy-five millions of dollars, or seven hundred and fifty thousand shares, shall be preferred stock, and eighty millions of dollars, or eight hundred thousand shares, shall be common stock, and the five millions of present authorized capital, 1491 including the shares now outstanding, shall be a portion of said common stock.

"Second. Resolved, That each share of the said preferred stock shall be entitled to noncumulative dividends for each fiscal year when and as declared by the board of directors of the company to the extent of four per cent per annum, payable quarterly, on the first days of March, June, September, and December, out of any surplus of net profits of the company as determined by said board before any dividend shall be declared or paid in such fiscal year on the common stock; and without deduction for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States or by any State or municipality thereof that this railway company may at any time be required to pay or to retain therefrom. 1492

"Third. Resolved further, That dividends on the common stock may be declared and paid out of any surplus net profits remaining from any previous fiscal year or years from which the full dividends at the rate of four per cent per annum shall have been paid on the preferred stock; but after dividends to the extent of four per cent shall have been declared for any one fiscal year on all the stock of the company, the common as well as preferred, any further dividends for that fiscal year shall be declared only for the equal ratable benefit of all the stock, whether preferred or common. No dividends shall be paid on the common stock out of the surplus net profits of any year for which the full dividend shall not have been paid on the preferred stock. 1493

"Fourth. Resolved further, That the company shall not put a mortgage upon its property at any time theretofore embraced in the system of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, nor shall the amount of the preferred stock be increased except after obtaining in each instance the consent of the holders of a majority of the whole amount of the preferred stock given at a meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose and the consent of the holders of a majority of such part of the common stock as shall be represented at such meeting, the holders of each class of stock voting separately. 1494

"Fifth. Resolved further, That whenever the full and regular quarterly dividends of two successive quarterly periods after July 1, 1897, upon the preferred stock, at the rate of four per cent per annum, shall not have been paid in cash, then, and in that event, at the next annual meeting such number, and only such number, of directors as will constitute a majority of the whole board shall be elected by a separate ballot of the holders of the preferred stock present or represented at such meeting, and the remainder of the board shall be elected by the separate ballot of the holders of the common stock present or represented at such meeting. In every case each share to be entitled to one vote. 1495

"Sixth. Resolved, That such preferred stock shall be issued upon the condition that, at its option, the company may retire the same, in whole or in part, at par from time to time upon any first day of January prior to 1917.

"Seventh. Resolved, That certificates for preferred stock registered in New York may be exchanged in any manner as the company may prescribe for similar certificates registered with the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, and all dividends declared on the preferred stock registered in Berlin shall be payable at the rate of 4.20 marks per dollar.

"Eighth. Resolved further, That the board of directors be, and they are hereby, authorized to make such provision as to the registration and transfer of said stock, either in this or foreign countries, or both, and as to the rate at which dividends upon stock registered in foreign countries shall be there collected, as may be deemed by said board for the best interests of the corporation.

"Ninth. Resolved further, That the said board of directors be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to prescribe the form of certificates to be issued for said common and preferred stock, and to incorporate in said certificates or to endorse upon the same such conditions and regulations as to the voting power thereof and otherwise as shall in their judgment best subserve the interests of the corporation."

The motion was seconded by Mr. Reed, and a stock vote being demanded thereon by Mr. Sanborn, the following stockholders voted in favor thereof:

A. H. Gillard, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

Walter B. Horn, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

Charles F. Coaney, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, 24 votes in favor of the resolution.

Charles F. Coaney, assignee C. W. Reed estate, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

Mortimer F. Smith, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

Edward D. Adams, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, 11 votes in favor of the resolution.

Henry E. Lord, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

H. B. Bodine, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

W. Paxton Little, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of the resolution.

John W. Almy, junior, by John C. Spooner, A. L. Sanborn, and H. C. Reed, his attorneys and proxies, one vote in favor of 1500 the resolution.

Forty-three shares of stock, being all of the outstanding stock of the corporation, having been voted in favor of the adoption of said resolution, the same was declared unanimously adopted.

On motion of Mr. Reed, seconded by Mr. Spooner, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, all of the shares on a roll call voting therefor, to wit:

"Tenth. Resolved, That of the lines of railroad which this corporation is authorized by law to construct, acquire, operate, and maintain, the board of directors be, and they are hereby, authorized and instructed to cause to be immediately located upon a route satisfactory to and to be adopted by said board a railroad 1501 commencing at such point on the bay of Superior as shall be approved by said board and extending to such point or points on the Minnesota State line as the said board shall select or deem desirable, and shall also, at the same time, cause to be located a portion of the line from said point of commencement on the bay of Superior, toward Prescott, on the Mississippi River, as provided by the original charter and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and the said board is authorized and instructed to provide for the immediate construction of that portion of the road as rapidly as possible from the Minnesota State line to the bay of Superior.

"Eleventh. Resolved further, That the board of directors be, 1502 and they are hereby, authorized and empowered, through the officers of the company, to cause this corporation to enter into an agreement to use or connect with the railroad of any railroad company or association built, or partly built, running in the direction of the line of railroad which this company is authorized to construct from the State line to the bay of Superior, as aforesaid, and the board of directors are duly authorized and empowered, having agreed to connect with or use any such railroad built, or partly built, along said line, as aforesaid, to lease or purchase the same for such sum and upon such terms as to the said board shall seem wise, and as by the said board or to the executive officers of the corporation thereunto authorized by the board 1503 shall have been agreed upon."

Upon motion of Mr. Spooner, seconded by Mr. Reed, the following resolution was adopted:

"Twelfth. Resolved, That the board of directors be, and they are hereby, authorized and instructed to cause to be fully complied with all the conditions and requirements imposed by the laws of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and the Dominion of Canada, and all the provinces thereof, to enable this corporation to acquire railroads and railroad property therein, to exercise its franchises as a railroad corporation, and to carry on the business of the same in the States or in the Dominion of Canada and of the provinces thereof."

On motion of Mr. Spooner, seconded by Mr. Reed, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas it is the purpose and intention of this company, in the exercise and accomplishment of its legal powers, to construct or acquire and maintain and operate a railway to the Pacific coast; and

"Whereas the railroad property and franchises of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company are about to be sold under decrees of foreclosure in United States circuit court for the eastern district of Wisconsin in certain proceedings therein pending between The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company and others, plaintiffs, and the Northern Pacific Railroad Company and others, defendants, entered April 27th and April 28th, 1896; and also in pursuance of the decree ancillary thereto; and

"Whereas, pursuant to a certain plan and agreement with the holders of the securities of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company dated March 16, 1896, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company, as reorganization managers under the said plan and agreement, have acquired and now hold the securities of the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company in amount constituting a very large proportionate part of the several issues of such securities, which securities the said J. P. Morgan & Company, as reorganization managers, propose to use in the purchase of the said railroad franchises and property of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company at such sale thereof under the foreclosure decrees, which upon the request of the company, and in exchange for its capital stock and bonds as hereinafter, propose to transfer such securities to this company to enable this company at such foreclosure sale to become the purchaser of the rights, property, and franchises of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company; and

"Whereas it is for the interest of this company to acquire and receive such securities of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for the purpose of making use thereof to such extent as may be necessary in the purchase of the railroad property and franchises of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company:

"Now, therefore, it is hereby

"Thirteenth. Resolved, That the board of directors be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed, and empowered from time to time to take and to make such provisions and agreements as to them shall seem reasonable and proper to acquire securities of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company from Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company, and also to use the same, or any part thereof, or any other funds of this company, in the purchase and acquisition of the railroad property and franchises (or any part thereof) of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and specifically to enter into an agreement with Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company 1508 in the form of that now submitted to this meeting, and to be appended to the minutes thereof.

"Fourteenth. Resolved, That the president and secretary of this company be, and they are, and each of them is, hereby severally authorized and empowered to attend at the judicial sales of the rights, property, privileges, and franchises of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company to be held under the decrees above mentioned, and in the name and in behalf of this company to bid for the whole or any part of such rights, privileges, franchises, and property when offered at such judicial sales to the extent of the securities of such company then controlled by this company and in the name and behalf of the Northern 1509 Pacific Railway Company to purchase each and every of such rights, property, and franchises of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and in payment thereof to transfer and deliver any or all of the stocks, bonds, or other securities of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company when possessed or owned by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and generally to do and perform all acts and execute and deliver all writings and undertakings necessary or proper to carry this resolution into effect; these powers intending to be, and being, continuing powers.

"Fifteenth. Resolved, That the by-laws of this company be, and they are hereby, amended so as in all particulars to read as the copy thereof submitted to this meeting, and to be annexed 1510 to the minutes of the proceedings thereof; and that the board of directors be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed to take all such action and proceedings as shall be necessary to fully accomplish the purpose of this resolution."

On motion, the meeting was adjourned to Monday, July 13, 1896, at 2 o'clock p. m.

A. L. SANBORN,
Chairman.

_____

Secretary.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence the proceedings of the meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Rail- 1511 way Company of July 8, 1896, reading as follows, and which is marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 5."

1512 DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 5.

SUPERIOR AND ST. CROIX RAILROAD COMPANY.

Northern Pacific Railway Company, directors' meeting, July 8th, 1896.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, held at the office of the president, in the city of New York, on Wednesday, July 8th, 1896, at half past three o'clock in the afternoon, the following directors were present:

1513 Edward D. Adams, president; W. Paxton Little, Harry B. Bodine, A. H. Gillard, John W. Almy, jr., Walter B. Horn, Mortimer F. Smith.

In the absence of Charles F. Coaney, George H. Gardiner was appointed secretary pro tem.

The minutes of the meeting of the board held October 31, 1895, were read and approved.

The resignation of Mr. Charles F. Coaney as secretary of the company was then presented, and Mr. George H. Gardiner was elected in the place of Mr. Coaney, resigned.

The resignation of Mr. Charles F. Coaney as director of the company was then presented, and Mr. C. H. Coster was elected 1514 in his place.

Mr. Coster thereupon appeared and took his place as a director.

The resignation of Mr. Harry B. Bodine as director of the company was presented, and Mr. F. L. Stetson was elected in his place.

Mr. Stetson thereupon appeared and took his place as director.

The resignation of Mr. Henry E. Lord as director of the company was then presented, and Mr. George H. Gardiner was elected a director in his place.

Mr. Gardiner then appeared and took his place as director.

The resignation of Mr. Walter B. Horn as director was then presented, and Mr. Victor Morawetz was elected a director in 1515 his place.

Mr. Morawetz thereupon appeared and took his place as director.

The chairman then laid before the board the minutes of the proceedings of the stockholders of the company held July 1, 1896, at Madison, Wisconsin.

Thereupon it was unanimously

"Resolved, That the proceedings of the stockholders at their meeting of July 1, 1896, as so reported be accepted and so far as the same require the action of the board of directors, the same are hereby adopted by the board of directors of the Superior and

St. Croix Railroad Company, and the secretary is directed to 1516 append the same to the minutes of this meeting."

Upon motion, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the corporate name of this company be, and the same is hereby, changed from the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company to 'Northern Pacific Railway Company,' and the latter name is hereby adopted as the corporate name of the corporation.

"Resolved, That the secretary of the corporation be, and he is hereby, instructed to file in the office of the secretary of state of Wisconsin a copy of the foregoing resolution and of the record of its adoption, certified under his hand and the corporate seal of 1517 the corporation, and to publish a like certified copy of said resolution for three successive weeks in the Wisconsin State Journal, the official State paper, as provided by section 1835 of the revised statutes of Wisconsin for 1878.

"Resolved, That the capital stock of this corporation be, and the same is hereby, increased from five million dollars to one hundred and fifty-five million dollars, and the same shall consist of one million five hundred and fifty thousand shares of the par or face value of one hundred dollars each, and of said stock, as the same is so hereby increased, seventy-five million dollars, or seven hundred and fifty thousand shares, shall be preferred stock, and eighty million dollars, or eight hundred thousand 1518 shares, shall be common stock; all as directed by the stockholders' meeting of July 1, 1896.

"Resolved, That the form of certificate to be issued for said common and preferred stock, and the conditions and regulations to be incorporated therein and endorsed thereon as in the judgment of the board of directors may best subserve the interests of the corporation shall be as follows:

Northern Pacific Railway Company.
Capital stock, $155,000,000.
Preferred stock, $75,000,000.
Common stock, $80,000 000.
Shares, $100 each. 1519

No. —— Shares ——

"This is to certify that ——— is the owner of —— fully paid and nonassessable shares, of the par value of one hundred dollars each, in the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, transferable only in person or by attorney upon the books of the company at its transfer office in the city of New York upon surrender of this certificate.

"The holders of the preferred stock of the company shall be entitled to noncumulative dividends for each fiscal year, when and as declared by the board of directors of the company, to the 1520 extent of four per cent per annum, payable quarterly on the first days of March, June, September, and December, out of any surplus net profits of the company as determined by said board before any dividends shall be declared or paid for or in such fiscal year on the common stock, and without deduction for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States or by any State or municipality thereof that the railway company may at any time be required to pay or to retain therefrom.

"Dividends on the common stock may be declared and paid out of any surplus net profits remaining from any previous fiscal year or years for which the full dividends at the rate of four per cent per annum shall have been paid on the preferred stock;
1521 but after dividends to the extent of four per cent shall have been declared for any one fiscal year on all of the stock of the company (common as well as preferred), any further dividends for that fiscal year shall be declared only for the equal, ratable benefit of all the stock, whether preferred or common.

"No dividends shall be paid on the common stock out of the surplus net profits of any year for which the full dividends shall not have been paid on the preferred stock.

"Whenever the full and regular quarterly dividends for two successive quarterly periods after July 1, 1897, upon the preferred stock at the rate of four per cent per annum shall not have been paid in cash, then and in that event at the next annual meeting 1522 such number, and only such number, of directors as will constitute a majority of the whole board shall be elected by a separate ballot by the holders of the preferred stock present or represented at such meeting, and the remainder of the board shall be elected by a separate ballot by the holders of the common stock present or represented at such meeting; in every case each share to be entitled to one vote.

"The company shall not put a mortgage upon its property formerly embraced in the system of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, nor shall the amount of the preferred stock be increased except after obtaining, in each instance, the consent of the holders of a majority of the whole amount of the preferred 1523 stock given at a meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, and the consent of the holders of a majority of such part of the common stock as shall be represented at such meeting, the holders of each class of stock voting separately.

"The company shall have the right, at its option, and in such manner as it shall determine, to retire the preferred stock, in whole or in part, at par from time to time upon any first day of January prior to 1917.

"This certificate is not valid unless registered by the registrar of transfers of the company in New York.

"Certificates of preferred and common stock registered in 1524
New York may be exchanged in such manner as the company may prescribe for similar certificates registered at the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, and all dividends declared on preferred stock registered in Berlin will be payable there at the rate of 4.20 marks per dollar.

"In witness whereof the said company has caused this certificate to be signed by its president, or one of its vice-presidents, and its secretary or assistant secretary.

"New York.

"_____ _____,
"Secretary.

"_____ _____, 1525
"President.

"Entered.
"Registered.

"_____ _____,
"Transfer Clerk,
"Central Trust Company of New York.
"By _____ _____."

Whereupon the meeting adjourned until Saturday, July 11, 1896, at half past one o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. You will note that the resolution just introduced fixes the form of the certificates of common and preferred stock to be issued by the Northern Pacific Railway Company. Were all 1526 of the certificates that have been issued issued in that form?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you a form of common stock and a form of preferred stock, marked by the examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit 2" and "Defendant's Exhibit 3." Are those the forms of the certificates of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are all the certificates that have ever been issued in the same form?

A. Yes, sir. 1527

Judge BUNN. Are these exhibits the engraved certificate as it was actually?

The WITNESS. Yes, sir. It is the engraved certificate itself.

Mr. KELLOGG. The defendant offers in evidence the Exhibit No. 2 and Exhibit No. 3, being the engraved certificate showing the form of certificate for the preferred and common stock.

1528 Exhibit No. 2 and Exhibit No. 3 of the defendant, as above offered, are as follows:

EXHIBIT No. 3

NEW YORK CERTIFICATE
COMMON STOCK.
No. 00000.

———— Shares
Issued to
_____
_____
———— 190 ——

1529 Received the above-described certificate.

———— 190 ——
_____
_____

Certificate for less than one hundred shares. New York No. 00000. Common stock.

Northern Pacific Railway Company

Certificate for less than one hundred shares. Certificate. ——— Shares. Common stock.

This is to certify that ——— is the owner of ——— fully paid and nonassessable shares, of the par value of one hundred 1530 dollars each, in the common capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, transferable only in person, or by attorney, upon the books of the company at the office of its transfer agents in the city of New York, upon surrender of this certificate. The holders of the preferred stock of the company shall be entitled to noncumulative dividends for each fiscal year, when and as declared by the board of directors of the company, to the extent of four per cent per annum, payable quarterly on the first days of March, June, September, and December, out of any surplus net profits of the company, as determined by said board, before any dividend shall be declared or paid for or in such fiscal year on the common stock, and without deduction for any 1531 tax or taxes imposed by the United States or by any State or municipality thereof that the railway company may at any time be required to pay or to retain therefrom. Dividends on the common stock may be declared and paid out of any surplus net profits remaining from any previous fiscal year or years for which the full dividends at the rate of four per cent per annum shall have been paid on the preferred stock; but after dividends to the extent of four per cent shall have been declared for any one fiscal year on all the stock of the company (common as well as preferred), any further dividends for that fiscal year shall be declared only for the equal ratable benefit of all the stock, whether preferred or common. No dividends shall be paid on 1532 the common stock out of surplus net profits of any year for which the full dividends shall not have been paid on the preferred stock. Whenever the full and regular quarterly dividends for two successive quarterly periods after July 1st, 1897, upon the preferred stock at the rate of four per cent per annum shall not have been paid in cash, then, and in that event, at the next annual meeting such number, and only such number, of directors as will constitute a majority of the whole board shall be elected by a separate ballot by the holders of the preferred stock present or represented at such meeting, and the remainder of the board shall be elected by a separate ballot by the holders of the common stock present or represented at such meeting, in 1533 every case each share to be entitled to one vote. The company shall not put a mortgage upon its property formerly embraced in the system of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, nor shall the amount of the preferred stock be increased except after obtaining in each instance the consent of the holders of a majority of the whole amount of the preferred stock given at a meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, and the consent of the holders of a majority of such part of the common stock as shall be represented at such meeting, the holders of each class of stock voting separately. The company shall have the right at its option, and in such manner as it shall determine, to retire the preferred stock in whole or in part, at par, from 1534 time to time, upon any first day of January prior to 1917.

All dividends declared on the preferred stock registered in Berlin will be payable there at the rate of 4.20 marks per dollar. This certificate is not valid unless duly registered by the registrar of transfers of the company in the city of New York.

Witness the signatures of the president, or one of the vice-presidents of said company, and of J. P. Morgan & Co., its transfer agents in the city of New York.

New York————		(Specimen.) 1535
Transfer agents.		Vice-president.

STATE OF Capital stock, $155,000,000. Preferred stock, $75,000,000. Common stock, $80,000,000. WISCONSIN.

1536

Tens.	Units.
1	1
2	2
3	3
4	4
5	5
6	6
7	7
8	8
9	9
0	0
Shares.

Shares $100 each.

Registered:

1537 CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
Registrar.
By ——— ———, Secretary.

Endorsed:

For value received —— hereby sell, assign, and transfer unto ——— shares of the capital stock represented by the within certificate, and do hereby irrevocably constitute and appoint ——— attorney to transfer the said stock on the books of the within named company, with full power of substitution in the premises.

——— ———.

Dated ———, 19—.

1538 In presence of ——— ———.

Notice.—The signature to this agreement must correspond with the name as written upon the face of the certificate in every particular, without alteration or enlargement, or any change whatever.

EXHIBIT No. 2.

NEW YORK CERTIFICATE

PREFERRED STOCK.

No. 00000

Ten shares

1539 Issued to

———————————

———————————

————————, 190—.

Received the above-described certificate

————————, 190—.

———————————

———————————

10 NORTHERN 10 1540

Shares. RAILWAY COMPANY. Shares.

PACIFIC

New York Certificate.

No. 00000 10 Shares

Preferred Stock. Preferred Stock.

This is to certify that ——— is the owner of ten fully paid and nonassessable shares, of the par value of one hundred dollars each in the preferred capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, transferable only in person, or by attorney, upon the books of the company, at the office of its transfer agents 1541 in the city of New York, upon surrender of this certificate. The holders of the preferred stock of the company shall be entitled to noncumulative dividends for each fiscal year, when and as declared by the board of directors of the company, to the extent of four per cent per annum, payable quarterly on the first days of March, June, September, and December, out of any surplus net profits of the company, as determined by said board, before any dividends shall be declared or paid for or in such fiscal year on the common stock, and without deduction for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States or by any State or municipality thereof that the railway company may at any time be required to pay or to retain therefrom. Dividends on the common stock may 1542 be declared and paid out of any surplus net profits remaining from any previous fiscal year or years, for which the full dividends at the rate of four per cent per annum shall have been paid on the preferred stock; but after dividends to the extent of four per cent shall have been declared for any one fiscal year on all the stock of the company (common as well as preferred), any further dividends for that fiscal year shall be declared only for the equal ratable benefit of all the stock, whether preferred or common. No dividends shall be paid on the common stock out of surplus net profits of any year for which the full dividends shall not have been paid on the preferred stock. Whenever the full and regular quarterly dividends for two successive quarterly 1543 periods after July 1st, 1897, on the preferred stock at the rate of four per cent per annum shall not have been paid in cash, then and in that event at the next annual meeting such number, and only such number, of directors as will constitute a majority of the whole board shall be elected by a separate ballot by the holders of the preferred stock present or represented at such meeting, and the remainder of the board shall be elected by a separate ballot by the holders of the common stock present or represented at such meeting, in every case each share to be entitled to one vote. The company shall not put a mortgage upon its property formerly embraced in the system of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, nor shall the amount of the preferred stock be increased except after obtaining in each instance the consent of the holders of a majority of the whole amount of the preferred stock given at a meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, and the consent of the holders of a majority of such part of the common stock as shall be represented at such meeting, the holders of each class of stock voting separately. The company shall have the right at its option, and in such manner as it shall determine, to retire the preferred stock in whole or in part, at par, from time to time, upon any first day of January prior to 1917.

All dividends declared on the preferred stock registered in Berlin will be payable there at the rate of 4.20 marks per dollar. This certificate is not valid unless duly registered by the registrar of transfers of the company in the city of New York.

Witness the signatures of the president or one of the vice-presidents of said company, and of J. P. Morgan & Co., its transfer agents in the city of New York.

New York.....	(Specimen.)
Transfer agents.	Vice-president.

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

Capital stock, $155,000,000.
Preferred stock, $75,000,000.
Common stock, $80,000,000.

Shares $100 each. Shares $100 each.

Registered:

CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
Registrar.

By ——— ———, Secretary.

Endorsed:

For value received —— hereby sell, assign, and transfer unto ——— shares of the capital stock represented by the within certificate, and do hereby irrevocably constitute and appoint ——— attorney to transfer the said stock on the books of the within-named company, with full power of substitution in the premises.

——— ———.

Dated, ———, 19—.

In presence of ——— ———.

NOTICE.—The signature to this agreement must correspond 1548 with the name as written upon the face of the certificate, in every particular, without alteration or enlargement, or any change whatever.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence a resolution of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, adopted at their meeting of November 13, 1901, which reads as follows, and which has been marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 6:"

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 6. 1549

The following preamble and resolutions, offered by Mr. Kennedy and seconded by Mr. Baker, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, under and pursuant to an agreement dated July 13, 1896, the Northern Pacific Railway Company did acquire from Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Company, a copartnership in the city of New York (in said agreement called reorganization managers), certain stocks, bonds, and other property representing the system formerly of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and in consideration of such agreement and transfer did issue and deliver to the reorganization managers certificates for seven hundred and fifty thousand shares of its fully paid and nonassessable preferred stock, and eight hundred thousand shares of its 1550 fully paid and nonassessable common stock of the character described in a certain plan and agreement for the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad system, dated March 16, 1896; and, furthermore, did agree at all times and in all ways and particulars to cooperate with the reorganization managers and to assist them in carrying into effect and in accomplishing the purposes of the said plan and agreement of reorganization; and

Whereas, in and by the said plan and agreement of reorganization, it was expressly provided that the right would be reserved by the new company (being the Northern Pacific Railway Company) to retire this preferred stock, in whole or in part, at par from time to time upon any first day of January 1551 during the twenty years succeeding the date of said reorganization agreement—it being the purpose and intent of the said agreement that the ultimate control of the new company should be held and be exercised by the holders of the common stock—and that the preferred stock should, as soon as practicable, be liquidated and be paid off in cash at par; and

Whereas, upon the first day of July, 1896, at a meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, each and every stockholder being present and voting in favor

thereof, a resolution was duly adopted providing for the issue of eighty million dollars of common stock and seventy-five million dollars of preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and expressly prescribing that such preferred stock should be issued upon the condition that, at its option, the company might retire the same, in whole or in part, at par from time to time upon any first day of January prior to 1917; and

Whereas, at a meeting of the directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, duly held on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1896, a form of certificate for the preferred stock of the company, with the conditions and regulations to be incorporated therein or endorsed thereon, was duly adopted by the unanimous vote of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, including the following provision:

"The company shall have the right, at its option, and in such manner as it shall determine, to retire the preferred stock, in whole or in part, at par, from time to time, on any first day of January prior to 1917;" and

Whereas, at a meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, duly held upon July 13, 1896, the said resolution of the board of directors adopting the said form of stock certificate to be issued for the preferred stock was duly ratified and approved by the affirmative vote of every stockholder of the company; and

Whereas, each and every certificate for the seventy-five million dollars of preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, containing the express provision for the retirement thereof from time to time thereafter, was issued under and pursuant to the provisions of the said resolution of July 1, 1896, and each and every certificate for stock now outstanding contains such express provision for the retirement thereof; and

Whereas, under and pursuant to section 8 of the act, chapter 244 of the private and local laws of Wisconsin, approved April 15, 1895, it was expressly provided that all the affairs of this company should be managed by a board of directors who should be stockholders, and who thereby were invested with all the power of the corporation, save as thereinafter provided; and

Whereas, in and by section 11 and section 12 of the said act, chapter 244 of the laws of 1895, it was expressly provided that this company might make this portion of the stock convertible into common stock upon such terms and conditions as should be fixed by the board of directors, and that it might in its corporate name, execute and deliver its notes, bonds, debentures and other evidences of indebtedness in such form as from time to time should be prescribed by the board of directors, and in such amount as should be deemed from time to time by said board expedient, and might make the same convertible into its capital stock of any class upon such terms and conditions as to 1556 the board of directors might seem advisable; and

Whereas, the holders of a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company have requested the board of directors to take all such action as may be requisite to retire the whole of the preferred stock upon the first day of January, 1902, and have given satisfactory assurances that the necessary moneys for that purpose will be furnished, and that all action requisite for that purpose will be taken by the holders of the common stock; and

Whereas, in the judgment of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company it is desirable that this company should now exercise the option to retire the preferred 1557 stock in whole upon the first day of January, 1902:

Now, therefore, it is hereby unanimously resolved:

1. That the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in exercise of its rights specifically expressed in each and every certificate of stock in this company, has determined, and hereby does determine, to retire the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in whole, at par, upon the first day of January, 1902;

2. That notice of the retirement of the preferred stock substantially in the form of that annexed to the minutes of this meeting be published in the manner prescribed by the by-laws for notice of a stockholders' meeting, and that a copy thereof 1558 be mailed to every stockholder of this company.

3. That, for the purpose of raising the funds necessary to retire the preferred stock, this company will make and will issue its negotiable bonds dated November 15, 1901, for the aggregate principal sum of seventy-five million dollars, payable January 1, 1907, in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness, at this company's office in the city of New York, with interest in like gold coin at the rate of four per cent per annum from January 1, 1902, payable semiannually at said office.

Every such bond shall be convertible into shares of the common stock of this company at the rate of one share of one 1559 hundred dollars for each one hundred dollars of the principal sum of such bonds remaining unpaid at the date of such conversion; and upon surrender to it of any such bond this company will issue to the holder of such surrendered bond shares of this company's common stock at the rate aforesaid. Such conversion may be made by the company, at its option, at any time after November 15, 1901, and shall be made at the demand of any holder of any such bonds at any time on or after the first day of January, 1902. Such bonds shall be coupon bonds or registered bonds in denominations each of one thousand 1560 dollars, or some multiple thereof, and shall be in such form as shall be determined by the president or vice-president of this company. Every such bond shall be subscribed by the president or a vice-president, and by the secretary or an assistant secretary, and shall be issued under the corporate seal.

4. That the president and vice-president of this company, and each of them, be, and hereby they are, authorized and empowered to contract to sell and to sell all or any of said bonds at a price not less than par and accrued interest, and in such contract to provide for the delivery of all or any part of said bonds upon receiving such payment therefor on or prior to or after December 31st, A. D. 1901; and also to covenant and agree that 1561 any and all moneys received for said bonds shall be specifically appropriated and used exclusively for the retirement of the preferred stock at par. And, accordingly, it is hereby expressly declared that all of such proceeds shall be set apart and shall be held as a trust fund for such purpose.

Any such contract for delivery of such bonds prior to January 1, 1902, may provide for the payment of the whole or any part of the purchase price of any bonds, with allowance of interest at a rate not exceeding four per cent per annum from the time of the receipt of the price of such bonds until January 1, 1902, the date when such bonds begin to bear interest.

Any and every such contract shall contain a provision giving 1562 to the holder of every share of this company's common stock now outstanding suitable opportunity, on demand, to receive through or from the purchaser of said bonds under said contract, at a price not exceeding par and accrued interest, such bonds (or a like amount of common stock received upon conversion of said bonds, if thereafter converted) to an amount equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of said common stock at such time owned by such holder; and for the purpose of providing for subdivision of interests, suitable certificates representing fractional interests in bonds from time to time may be issued, and may be redeemed in such manner as shall be determined by the president or the vice-president.

1563 5. That the proper officers of this company be, and hereby they are, directed, out of the proceeds of said bonds, and out of any other moneys in the company's treasury available for that purpose, to pay at the company's New York office to each holder of record of the preferred stock of this company on and after January 1, 1902, upon surrender of the certificate for such stock, one hundred dollars for each and every of the shares of preferred stock for which the certificates shall be so surrendered.

6. That all of the preferred stock of this company be, and hereby it is declared to be, retired from and after December 31st, A. D. 1901; and that from and after that date all of the authorized capital stock of this company, fixed at one hundred and 1564 fifty-five million dollars by resolution of this company's stockholders at a meeting thereof held on the first day of July, 1896, be of one kind, and be without preference in favor of any part thereof, and the total authorized capital of the stock of this company continue to be one hundred and fifty-five million dollars as so fixed at said meeting.

7. That the president, the vice-president, the treasurer, and the secretary of the Northern Pacific Railway Company be, and hereby they are, authorized from time to time to take all proceedings and to do all acts necessary or suitable to carry these resolutions fully into effect.

8. That for the purposes of the retirement of the preferred 1565 stock the transfer books of the stock of this company be closed at 3 o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, December 10, 1901, and that the transfer books of the common stock be reopened upon Thursday, January 2, 1902, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence a copy of a notice for the retirement of the preferred stock, which reads as follows, and which has been marked by the special examiner as the "Defendant's Exhibit No. 7:"

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 7.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

RETIREMENT OF PREFERRED STOCK. 1566

To the holders of preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company:

Notice hereby is given that, in the exercise of the power reserved by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and specifically declared in every outstanding stock certificate, the company has duly determined to retire the preferred stock, and the same will be retired in whole at par upon the first day of January, 1902.

Accordingly each and every holder of preferred stock is notified to present and surrender his certificate for such preferred stock at the office of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, 1567
49 Wall street, in the city of New York, on and after the first day of January, 1902, and upon such surrender to receive payment in cash of the par amount thereof.

For the purpose of such retirement the transfer books of the Northern Pacific Railway Company will close at three o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, December 10, 1901, and the transfer books 1568 of the common stock will reopen Thursday, January 2, 1902, at ten o'clock a. m.

By order of the board of directors.

GEORGE H. EARL,
Secretary.

Dated November 13, 1901.

Q. Mr. Relf, is that the notice which was sent to the stockholders of the retirement of the preferred stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence the proceedings of the 1569 meeting of the board of directors of December 11, 1901, containing a copy of the convertible certificate scrip issued for the retirement of the preferred stock, which proceedings have been marked by the special examiner as the "Defendant's Exhibit No. 8," and which proceedings read as follows:

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 8.

The chairman submitted a form of convertible certificate scrip which had been prepared to meet the requirements of the fourth of the series of resolutions of November 13, 1901.

1570 On motion, it was resolved that the president, or any vice-president, and the secretary, or any assistant secretary, be, and hereby they are, authorized and directed from time to time to execute in such amounts as may be necessary convertible certificate scrip in the following form, to-wit:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

No. .... $....

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

FOUR PER CENT CONVERTIBLE CERTIFICATE SCRIP.

1571 This certifies that the holder hereof is entitled, on the first day of January or of July, in any year until January 1, 1907, to receive ——— dollars, par value, in the four per cent convertible certificates of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, duly authorized November 13th and 15th, 1901, on presentation and surrender of this and like certificates in the aggregate representing the even sum of one thousand dollars, or of some even multiple thereof, at the office of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in the city of New York.

This scrip bears four per cent annual interest, payable in cash semiannually, July first and January first, until January first, 1907 (unless called for exchange prior to that date), and 1572 the said convertible certificates, when received in exchange for scrip of this issue, will bear four per cent interest from the date of such exchange.

The Northern Pacific Railway Company, at its option, may deliver certificates for fully paid shares of its common stock at par (instead of convertible certificates) in satisfaction and redemption of this scrip at par. In no event will the principal of this scrip be redeemable or payable in money.

In witness whereof the Northern Pacific Railway Company has caused this certificate to be signed by its president, or one of its vice-presidents, and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, and to be attested by its secretary, or assistant secretary, this —— 1573 day of ———, 19—.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
By ——— ———, Vice-President.

[L. S.] Attest: ——— ———, Secretary.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence the proceedings of the meeting of the board of directors of January 8, 1902, commencing with the words: "The president submitted the following forms of notices which had been duly published," marked by the special examiner as the "Defendant's Exhibit No. 9," and which reads as follows:

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 9.

The president submitted the following forms of notices which 1574 had been duly published, to wit:

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

NOTICE THAT PREFERRED STOCK HAS BEEN RETIRED.

To the holders of certificates of the Northern Pacific Railway Company:

Notice is hereby given that in the exercise of the power reserved by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and specifically declared in every stock certificate issued and outstanding prior to November 15th, 1901, the company has retired the preferred stock, and the same was retired at whole on the first day of January, 1902. Each and every holder of the certificate for preferred stock not heretofore surrendered is notified that, on 1575 presentation and surrender of this certificate at the office of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, 49 Wall street, in the city of New York, he will receive payment in cash for the par amount of such certificate.

No holder of any certificate of preferred stock now has, or hereafter will have, any right as stockholder, nor any claim against the company, except to receive payment for certificates surrendered at the rate above stated.

Dated January 2, 1902.

By order of the directors.

GEORGE H. EARL,
Secretary.

Mr. KELLOGG. I also offer in evidence part of the proceedings of the same meeting of the board of directors showing the sale of the convertible certificates for the retirement of the preferred stock, which has been marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 10," and which reads as follows:

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT NO. 10.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

NOTICE TO THE HOLDERS OF FOUR PER CENT CONVERTIBLE CERTIFICATES.

JANUARY 2, 1902.

Notice is hereby given to all holders of four per cent convertible certificates of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, dated November 15, 1901, and issued under and pursuant to resolutions of the directors of this company adopted November 13, 1901, that the railway company has elected to require, and hereby does require, the holder of every such certificate to convert the same into common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company at the rate of one share of one hundred dollars for each one hundred dollars of the unpaid principal of the certificate, and upon presentation and surrender of such certificate at the office of this company, 49 Wall street, in the city of New York, the holder will be entitled to receive therefor common stock of the railway company at the rate aforesaid. No interest will accrue or be payable upon or in respect of any such certificate from and after the first day of January, 1902.

By order of the directors.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
DANIEL S. LAMONT,
Vice-President.

Attest:
GEORGE H. EARL,
Secretary.

The president reported that, pursuant to the resolutions and 1580 instructions of the directors, $75,000,000 of convertible 4 per cent certificates were sold by the officers of the company at par, and the proceeds deposited with the fiscal agents of the company for the retirement of the whole of the preferred stock certificates, which were duly retired January 1, of which certificates for 713,410 shares have already been redeemed and canceled, and that the entire issue of $75,000,000 of convertible certificates have been exchanged by its owner for a like amount of the common stock of the company at par, making the present capital of the company consist of 1,550,000 shares of com- 1581 mon stock at $100 each.

Q. Were all the convertible certificates, to wit, $75,000,000 thereof, which were issued for the purpose of retiring the preferred stock, issued and sold?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the preferred stock all retired on the 1st day of January?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many shares of preferred stock are there still outstanding which have not been turned in pursuant to the pro- 1582 ceedings retiring the preferred stock?

A. At the close of business on the 15th day of July, 1902, the number of shares of preferred stock still outstanding was 4,055.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence the original agreement between the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Standard Trust Company of New York, dated the 15th day of November, A. D. 1901, marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 11."

Q. Is this agreement which I have offered in evidence, and 1583 which I show you, the original agreement?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that Mr. Mellen's signature?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I don't know whether you know the signature of the trust company?

A. No; I don't.

Judge BUNN. Well, it has the seal of the company on it.

1584 DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 11.

Memorandum of agreement, made this 15th day of November, A. D. 1901, by and between Northern Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Wisconsin, of the first part, and the Standard Trust Company of New York, a corporation of the State of New York (hereinafter termed the "Trust Company"), of the second part,

Witnesseth, that the parties hereto have mutually agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I.

On January 1, 1902, Northern Pacific Railway Company agrees to sell and deliver to the Trust Company, and the Trust 1585 Company agrees to buy from Northern Pacific Railway Company, at their face value, all the convertible certificates of indebtedness of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, for the aggregate principal sum of seventy-five million dollars ($75,000,000), of the issue authorized by vote of the directors of said company passed November 13, 1901, except such of said certificates as shall be purchased by the holders of the common stock of said corporation, as recited in Article III of this agreement.

Such convertible certificates are to be dated November 15, 1901, and to be payable on January 1, 1907, in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness, at 1586 said company's office in the city of New York, and to bear interest in like gold coin at the rate of four per cent per annum from January 1, 1902, payable semiannually at said office. Every such certificate shall be convertible into shares of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company at the rate of one share of one hundred dollars ($100) par value for each one hundred dollars ($100) of the principal of such certificate remaining unpaid at the date of such conversion; and upon surrender to it of any such certificate said railway company will issue to the holder of such surrendered certificate shares of its common stock at the rate aforesaid. Such conversion may be made by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, at its option, 1587 at any time after November 15, 1901, and shall be made at the demand of any holder of any such certificate at any time on or after January 1, 1902. Such certificates shall be in denominations each of one thousand dollars, or some multiple thereof, and shall be substantially of the tenor of the draft thereof, marked "Exhibit A," hereto attached.

Until engraved or lithographed certificates can be prepared, temporary certificates, in form satisfactory to the Trust Company, shall be deliverable hereunder, which temporary certificates shall be exchangeable for engraved or lithographed certificates as soon 1588 as the same shall be ready for delivery.

ARTICLE II.

Northern Pacific Railway Company covenants and agrees with the Trust Company that all moneys received for such certificates shall be specifically appropriated and used exclusively for the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company at par, and shall be set apart as a trust fund for such purpose.

ARTICLE III.

It is understood and agreed that suitable opportunity shall be given to every holder of common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company registered at the closing of the transfer books 1589 on December 10, 1901, to purchase and to pay for, at the price hereinafter stated, an amount of such certificates (subject to a proper adjustment for fractional amounts of certificates) equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of such common stock owned of record by such stockholder.

At any time prior to the sale and delivery of such certificates to the Trust Company, the Northern Pacific Railway Company may sell and deliver, at the price hereinafter stated, to any such holder of common stock, the amount of such certificates which such holder of common stock is to be given such opportunity to purchase; but in case any such sale be made to any stockholder prior to the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901, 1590 such arrangement shall be made as will prevent any transfer of such stock before the reopening of the transfer books on January 2, 1902, except subject to the condition that the transferees and subsequent holders of such stock, prior to such reopening of the transfer books, shall release any and all right to purchase any of such certificates from the Northern Pacific Railway Company. As soon as practicable, the Northern Pacific Railway Company by notice, shall extend to each holder of its common stock registered at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901, suitable opportunity, until January 1, 1902, to purchase, at the price hereinafter stated, an amount of such certificates (subject to adjustment as aforesaid) equal to seventy-five 1591 eightieths of the par amount of such common stock owned of record by such stockholder.

After the sale and delivery to the Trust Company of such of said certificates as shall not have been purchased by the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the Trust Company will give to every holder of common stock of said company registered at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901 (other than holders of common stock how previously shall have purchased, or shall have had suitable opportunity to purchase, a ratable share of such certificates, as aforesaid), suitable opportunity, not later than March 1, 1902, to receive, on demand, through or from the Trust Company, upon payment to the Trust Company of the price hereinafter stated, an amount of such certificates (subject to adjustment as aforesaid) equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of such common stock owned of record by such stockholders (or a like amount of common stock received upon conversion of such certificates if theretofore converted).

The price payable for all such certificates sold under this article on or before January 1, 1902, shall be a sum equal to the principal thereof. The price payable for all such certificates sold and delivered under this article after January 1, 1902, shall be a sum equal to the principal thereof and the interest accrued thereon. The price payable for any stock received upon conversion of such certificates shall be the same as the price which would have been payable for a corresponding amount of such certificates.

Under the provisions of this article every such holder of common stock shall only be given the opportunity to purchase, either from the Trust Company or from the Northern Pacific Railway Company, such amount of such certificates (or stock) as in the aggregate shall be equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of the common stock owned of record by such stockholder at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901.

ARTICLE IV.

In case the Northern Pacific Railway Company shall fail to sell and to deliver such certificates to the Trust Company at the times and in the manner herein provided, or shall fail to comply with all its agreements herein contained, or in case the Northern Pacific Railway Company shall fail to issue its common stock in exchange for all certificates delivered hereunder to the Trust Company when and as demand therefor shall be made by the Trust Company or other holder, then and in any such case the Trust Company, at its option, by notice delivered at the office of the Northern Pacific Railway Company in the city of New York, may forthwith rescind this agreement, and thereupon the Northern Pacific Railway Company, upon surrender to it of any of such certificates, shall be bound to repay to the Trust Company or other holder the price paid for such certificates hereunder, with proper allowance of interest.

This agreement shall be deemed strictly inter partes, and shall not give any rights to any person or corporation except the Trust Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Com- 1596 pany, except as provided in the certificates themselves.

In witness whereof the parties hereto have caused these presents to be signed by their officers duly authorized the day and year first above written.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
By C. S. MELLEN, President.

[CORPORATE SEAL.]

Attest:
GEO. H. EARL,
Secretary.

THE STANDARD TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 1597
By WM. C. LANE, President.

[CORPORATE SEAL.]

Attest:
WM. C. COX,
Secretary.

EXHIBIT A.

No. ——. $——.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY. 1598

Temporary four per cent convertible certificate.

Northern Pacific Railway Company (hereinafter termed the "Railway Company"), for value received, promises to pay to bearer, or to the registered holder of this certificate, if the same shall be registered, on the first day of January, 1907, upon presentation and surrender of this certificate for cancellation at its office in the city of New York, ——— dollars, in the gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness, and to pay interest thereon at the rate of four per cent per annum from January 1, 1902, such interest being payable at said office, in like gold coin semiannually, on 1599 the first day of January and the first day of July in each year, to the bearer or to the registered holder of this certificate, upon presentation of the certificate and endorsement of such payment thereon. Both the principal and interest of this certificate are payable without deduction for any tax or taxes which the Railway Company may be required to pay or to retain therefrom under any present or future law of the United States or of any State, county, or municipality therein.

Upon demand of the holder of this certificate at any time after January 1, 1902, and upon presentation and surrender of this certificate for cancellation, this certificate shall be convertible into common stock of the Railway Company, at the rate of one share of $100 for each $100 of the unpaid principal of this certificate, and upon such demand and such presentation and surrender of the certificate, the Railway Company will issue to the holder its common stock at the rate aforesaid. In case the Railway Company shall fail to make such conversion, then and in every such case, at the option of the holder, the principal of this certificate shall become and be forthwith due and payable, with the interest accrued and unpaid.

At any time after the date hereof, at its election, the Railway Company may require the holder of this certificate to convert the same into common stock of the Railway Company, at the rate of one share of $100 for each $100 of the unpaid principal of this certificate, and upon advertisement by the Railway Company of such election in either the New York Times or the New York Tribune, newspapers published in the city of New York, the holder shall, upon presentation and surrender hereof, be entitled to receive common stock of the Railway Company at the rate of one share of $100 for each $100 of the unpaid principal of this certificate; and from and after such advertisement no interest shall accrue or be payable upon or in respect of this certificate from the interest day next preceding the date of such advertisement, and the principal of this certificate shall not be payable in cash, but the holder shall be entitled only to receive common stock of the Railway Company in exchange for this certificate as hereinbefore provided.

This temporary certificate is exchangeable for an engraved or lithographed certificate when the same shall be ready for delivery, and is one of a series of similar certificates of the Railway Company issued and to be issued for the aggregate principal sum of $75,000,000, such issue having been authorized by resolution of the board of directors of the Railway Company, passed November 13, 1901, to which reference hereby is made. All moneys received for the certificates of said issue have been specifically appropriated, and will be used exclusively for the retirement at par of the preferred stock of the Railway Company, and will be set apart as a trust fund for such purpose.

This certificate may be registered in the owner's name on the books of the Railway Company, at its office or agency at the city of New York, such registry being noted on the certificate by the certificate registrar of the Railway Company. After such registration no transfer shall be valid unless made on the Railway Company's books by the registered owner, and similarly noted on the certificate, but the same may be discharged from registry by being transferred to bearer, and thereafter transferability by delivery shall be restored, but this certificate again 1604 from time to time may be registered or transferred to bearer as before.

In witness whereof The Northern Pacific Railway Company has caused these presents to be signed by its president or one of its vice-presidents, and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed and to be attested by its secretary or assistant secretary, this fifteenth day of November, 1901.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,

[L. S.] By ——— ———, President.

Attest: ——— ———, Secretary.

(Endorsed:) 1605

No. .... $....

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

TEMPORARY FOUR PER CENT CONVERTIBLE CERTIFICATE.

Interest due January and July.

Registered in the name of—	Date.	Registrar.

1606

Q. I show you also a contract, dated the 18th day of November, between the Standard Trust Company and certain underwriters, composed of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and others. Is that the original contract?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer in evidence the two contracts. 1607

Contract of November 18, marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 12."

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 12.

Agreement made this 18th day of November, 1901, between the Standard Trust Company of New York (hereinafter called the "Trust Company"), party of the first part, and the other signers of this agreement, or of counterparts thereof (hereinafter called the "Subscribers"), parties of the second part.

The Trust Company, at the request of the Subscribers, has made or is about to make an agreement with the Northern Pacific Railway Company of even date herewith (a copy of which is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit A"), upon the express condition that the subscribers hereto enter into this agreement.

In consideration of the premises, the parties have agreed as follows:

I. The Subscribers hereby severally agree with the Trust Company and with each other to pay to the Trust Company upon its demand, in the proportions set opposite their respective signatures hereto, such sums of money as the Trust Company may from time to time require to meet its obligations under this agreement with Northern Pacific Railway Company, and the Subscribers further agree in such several proportions to hold the Trust Company harmless from any loss, liability, or expense under or by reason of said agreement with the Northern Pacific Railway Company, or because of any distribution hereunder of the securities to be received by the Trust Company under said agreement.

II. The Subscribers shall severally be entitled to share, in the proportions set opposite their respective signatures hereto, in the benefits of said agreement and in all convertible certificates and common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company which shall remain with the Trust Company after the performance of its obligations under said agreement.

III. The Trust Company shall issue to the Subscribers suitable certificates of participation referring to this agreement, upon which certificates any payments made by the Subscribers shall be endorsed. The Trust Company shall be entitled to reimbursement for its expenses and to reasonable compensation. The written advice of counsel shall be full protection to the Trust Company, as against the Subscribers, for any action it may from time to time take hereunder or in connection with said agreement. This agreement shall bind the executors and administrators of the respective Subscribers.

In witness whereof The Standard Trust Company of New York has caused this instrument to be executed, and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed by its proper officers, and the parties of the second part have hereunto set their hands the day and year first above written.

THE STANDARD TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
By WM. C. LANE, President.

[CORPORATE SEAL.]

Attest:
W. C. COX, Secretary.

Signature of subscriber.	Proportion of entire obligation taken by subscriber.	1612
Kuhn, Loeb & Co.	One-third (1/3) or twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000).
J. P. Morgan & Co.	One-third (1/3) or twenty-five million dollars.
Jas. J. Hill	One-ninth (1/9) } or
Geo. F. Baker	One-ninth (1/9) } 1/3
John S. Kennedy	One-ninth (1/9) }

EXHIBIT A.

Memorandum of agreement, made this —— day of November, A. D. 1901, by and between Northern Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Wisconsin, of the first part, and The Standard Trust Company of New York, a corporation of the State of New York (hereinafter termed the 1613 "Trust Company"), of the second part.

Witnesseth, that the parties hereto have mutually agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I.

On January 1, 1902, Northern Pacific Railway Company agrees to sell and to deliver to the Trust Company, and the Trust Company agrees to buy from Northern Pacific Railway Company, at their face value, all the convertible certificates of indebtedness of the Northern Pacific Railway Company for the aggregate principal sum of seventy-five million dollars ($75,000,000), of the issue authorized by vote of the directors of said company passed November 13, 1901, except such of said certificates as shall be purchased by the holders of the com- 1614 mon stock of said corporation, as recited in Article III of this agreement.

Such convertible certificates are to be dated November 15, 1901, and to be payable on January 1, 1907, in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness, at said company's office in the city of New York, and to bear interest in like gold coin at the rate of four per cent per annum from January 1, 1902, payable semiannually at said office. Every such certificate shall be convertible into shares of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company at the rate of one share of one hundred dollars ($100) par value for each one hundred dollars ($100) of the principal of such certifi- 1215 cate remaining unpaid at the date of such conversion; and upon surrender to it of any such certificate said railway company will issue to the holder of such surrendered certificate shares of its common stock at the rate aforesaid. Such conversion may be made by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, at its option, at any time after November 15, 1901, and shall be made at the demand of any holder of such certificate at any time on or after January 1, 1902. Such certificates shall be in denominations each of one thousand dollars, or some multiple thereof, and shall be substantially of the tenor of the draft thereof, marked "Exhibit A," hereto attached.

Until engraved or lithographed certificates can be prepared, temporary certificates, in form satisfactory to the Trust Company, shall be deliverable hereunder, which temporary certificates shall be exchangeable for engraved or lithographed certificates as soon as the same shall be ready for delivery.

ARTICLE II.

Northern Pacific Railway Company covenants and agrees with the Trust Company that all moneys received for such certificates shall be specifically appropriated and used exclusively for the retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company at par, and shall be set apart as a trust fund for such purpose.

ARTICLE III.

It is understood and agreed that suitable opportunity shall be given to every holder of common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company registered at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901, to purchase and to pay for, at the price hereinafter stated, an amount of such certificates (subject to a proper adjustment for fractional amounts of certificates) equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of such common stock owned of record by such stockholder.

At any time prior to the sale and delivery of such certificates to the Trust Company, the Northern Pacific Railway Company may sell and deliver, at the price hereinafter stated, to any such holder of common stock, the amount of such certificates which such holder of common stock is to be given such opportunity to purchase; but in case any such sale be made to any stockholder prior to the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901, such arrangements shall be made as will prevent any transfer of such stock before the reopening of the transfer books on January 2, 1902, except subject to the condition that the transferees and subsequent holders of such stock prior to such reopening of the transfer books shall release any and all right to purchase any of such certificates from the Northern Pacific Railway Company. As soon as practicable the Northern Pacific Railway Company, by notice, shall extend to each holder of its common stock registered at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901, suitable opportunity until January 1, 1902, to purchase at the price hereinafter stated an amount of such certificates (subject to adjustment as aforesaid) equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of such common stock owned of record by such stockholder.

After the sale and delivery to the Trust Company of such of 1620 said certificates as shall not have been purchased by the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the Trust Company will give to every holder of common stock of said company registered at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901 (other than holders of common stock who previously shall have purchased or shall have had suitable opportunity to purchase a ratable share of such certificates as aforesaid), suitable opportunity, not later than March 1, 1902, to receive, on demand, through or from the Trust Company, upon payment to the Trust Company of the price hereinafter stated, an amount of such certificates (subject to adjustment as aforesaid) equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of such common stock 1621 owned of record by such stockholder (or a like amount of common stock received upon conversion of such certificates if theretofore converted).

The price payable for all such certificates sold under this article on or before January 1, 1902, shall be a sum equal to the principal thereof. The price payable for all such certificates sold and delivered under this article after January 1, 1902, shall be a sum equal to the principal thereof, and the interest accrued thereon. The price payable for any stock received upon conversion of such certificates shall be the same as the price which would have been payable for a corresponding amount of such certificates.

Under the provisions of this article every such holder of com- 1622 mon stock shall only be given the opportunity to purchase, either from the Trust Company or from the Northern Pacific Railway Company, such amount of such certificates (or stock) as in the aggregate shall be equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of the common stock owned of record by such stockholder at the closing of the transfer books on December 10, 1901.

ARTICLE IV.

In case the Northern Pacific Railway Company shall fail to sell and to deliver such certificates to the Trust Company at the times and in the manner herein provided, or shall fail to comply with all its agreements herein contained, or in case the Northern Pacific Railway Company shall fail to issue its common stock 1623 in exchange for all certificates delivered hereunder to the Trust Company when and as demand therefor shall be made by the Trust Company or other holder, then and in any such case the Trust Company, at its option, by notice delivered at the office of the Northern Pacific Railway Company in the city of New York, may forthwith rescind this agreement, and thereupon the Northern Pacific Railway Company, upon surrender to it of any of such certificates, shall be bound to repay to the Trust Company or other holder the price paid for such certificates hereunder, with proper allowance of interest.

This agreement shall be deemed strictly inter partes, and shall not give any rights to any person or corporation except the Trust Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company, except as provided in the certificates themselves.

In witness whereof the parties hereunto have caused these presents to be signed by their officers duly authorized the day and year first above written.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,

By ——— ———.

THE STANDARD TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,

By ——— ———.

Mr. KELLOGG. I offer now the charter of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, together with the proceedings of the stockholders and officers changing the name of the corporation to the Northern Pacific Railway Company, which has been marked by the special examiner as "Defendant's Exhibit No. 13," and which reads as follows:

The proceedings of the stockholders and officers changing the name to Northern Pacific Railway Company appears in defendant's Exhibit No. 4 and defendant's Exhibit No. 5.

DEFENDANT'S EXHIBIT No. 13.

CHARTER OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY

(Formerly Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company)

AND LAWS RELATING THERETO.

CHAPTER 326.

(Published April 6, 1870.)

AN ACT to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company.

The people of the State of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That I. W. Gates, R. G. Coburn, E. W. Anderson, jr., Hiram Hayes, S. H. Clough, Hiram Robbins, D. W. Maxon, John J. Tallmadge, H. L. Palmer, S. B. Dresser, O. S. Powell, and such other persons as may be associated with them who shall become stockholders in the association or corporation hereby created, in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall be, and they hereby are, created a body corporate and 1628 politic by the name and style of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, and by that name shall have perpetual succession, be competent to contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, defend and be defended, in any court whatever. That the corporation may make, have, and use a common seal, which it may alter or renew at pleasure; it shall be capable of acquiring by deed, lease, or other conveyance, a fee simple or any less estate in lands, tenements or easements in the same, and of conveying any such estate or interest by deed, lease, or other conveyance, or of holding such estate or interest, or any other estate necessary for the use of the said railroad, either real, personal, or mixed, and shall 1629 have and enjoy all the privileges incident to a corporation, and may do and perform all and singular the acts and matters which to any corporation it shall lawfully appertain to do and perform for the well-being of said corporation.

SECTION 2. The said company by this act created is hereby authorized and empowered to survey, locate, and from time to time alter, change, and relocate (so as not materially to change the route), and to construct and complete, perpetually to have, use, and enjoy, maintain and operate the said railroad with one or more tracks or lines, over and along the following routes, that is to say: Beginning at some convenient point on the west shore of the bay of Superior or on the south shore of the bay 1630 of St. Louis, in the county of Douglas; running thence southerly, by a route as direct as may be practicable, through the counties of Douglas, Burnett, Polk, St. Croix, and Pierce via St. Croix Falls and Hudson to Prescott, with a branch or extension running westerly from the above-designated place of beginning in Douglas County to such point on the Minnesota boundary north of the Nemadji River as may be deemed desirable by the directors of said railroad company.

SECTION 3. The company hereby created shall have the perpetual right, power, and authority to transport, take, and carry property and persons upon said railroad by steam or other power, and to receive and store away any property in any of its depots 1631 or other buildings, and to make, construct, maintain, and use all such switches, turn-outs, and side tracks as it may deem necessary, and also to construct, erect, and maintain all such depots, station houses, warehouses, car houses and shops, engine houses, and all other buildings, fixtures, and things for the accommodation of said company and its roads and those using the same; and said railroad company shall have power to connect its road with any other railroad, and to operate the same, or to run in connection with any such railroad in such manner as may be agreed upon between the boards of directors of this company and any such railroad; and any railroad company or association having a railroad, built or partly built, running in the direction of the line of railroad which the railroad company hereby created is authorized to construct and operate, which this company by this act created shall agree to use or connect with, is hereby authorized to make such lease or sale to this company or corporation, perpetually or for a limited time, of the whole or any part of their railroad so constructed or partly constructed, together with the rolling stock, machinery, buildings, tenements, or fixtures, and all other property, real, personal, or mixed, of the said company or association, together with its franchises, rights, privileges, and immunities, or to sell the same, and in consideration of such lease or sale to take and receive such rents or payments as may be agreed upon.

SECTION 4. The said company shall have the right, authority, and power, and it is hereby authorized and empowered, to construct its railroad along and upon, across, under, and over any public or private highway, roads, streets, plank roads, or railroad, if the same shall be necessary; but the said company shall put such highway, road, street, plank road, or railroad in such condition and state of repair as not to impair or interfere with the free and proper use, and also to erect and maintain all necessary bridges for the use of their railroad over any stream of water or water course at such points of crossing the same as said road may be located, with all necessary abutments, piers, arches, and foundations.

SECTION 5. It shall be lawful for the company hereby created, and it shall have the right, power, and authority, by its officers, engineers, agents, servants, and workmen, to enter upon any land for the purpose of exploring, surveying, locating, and determining the routes of said railroads; and when the said routes or any portion thereof shall be determined by resolution adopted by its board of directors, it shall be lawful for said company, and it shall have the right, power, and authority, by its officers, engineers, agents, contractors, surveyors, servants, and workmen, at any time, to enter upon, take, possess, occupy, and use any land along and including the line of said route, not exceeding one hundred feet in width. It shall also be lawful for said company, and it shall have the right, power, and authority at any time, to enter upon, take, possess, and occupy and use any other lands beyond said limits of one hundred feet which the directors shall, by resolution adopted by them (a copy of which shall be recorded at the expense of said company in the office of the register of deeds in the county in which said lands are located), declare to be necessary for the use of said company for the purposes of erecting depot buildings, station houses, machine shops, freight houses, engine houses, warehouses, or buildings or fixtures of any kind, or ground about the same, for 1636

the convenient operation of the road, or for making drains or giving proper direction to water courses, or of directing or changing the channel of water courses, or for the purpose of removing such substances or things as may endanger, obstruct, or interfere with the free use of said road, or for the purpose of depositing earth, gravel, stone, timber, or other material for embankments, structures, or superstructures necessary to the construction, repair, or removal of said road. Said company shall, however, at such time and in such manner as is provided by and in this chapter and act, be liable to pay the full value of all earth, gravel, stone, timber, and land which may be so as aforesaid taken, possessed, occupied, or used for any of the purposes afore- 1637 said, which is the private property of either persons or corporations, which value (unless the owner thereof and said company shall agree as to the same) shall be ascertained and determined in the manner hereinafter provided; and whenever the same shall have been paid, tendered or deposited as provided in this act, an estate in and to all and every such lands in fee simple absolute forever shall be and become vested in said company by virtue thereof, and of the provisions of this act, and by the same means a complete title shall vest in said company in and to all such earth, gravel, stone, and timber; and whenever said company shall deem that such property or any part or portion of such property shall no longer be necessary for the purposes for 1638 which the same were taken, it is hereby authorized and empowered, by deed or other instrument in writing, to lease or sell the same or any part thereof.

SECTION 6. On the completion of said road or any part thereof it shall be lawful for said company, and it is hereby authorized and empowered, to demand and receive such sum or sums of money for the transportation of persons and of property and for the storage of property as it shall from time to time deem reasonable.

SECTION 7. Said company hereby created shall also have full power and authority to transport persons and property in boats, vessels, barges, and other water craft on any of the navigable 1639 waters which its said railroad or roads run into or connect with, and to receive and collect reasonable compensation for the same, and for that purpose may build or purchase, own, and use such boats, vessels, barges, and other water craft as it may require.

SECTION 8. The company hereby created shall be capable in law of taking and holding any land granted to it by the Government of the United States or of this State, or by individuals or corporations, to aid in the construction of its road, and may also pledge, mortgage, and otherwise dispose of all their rights, 1640 title, and interest in and to said lands, and in any other estate, real, personal, or mixed, of which they may be seized at the time of the execution of such mortgage, or which they may acquire subsequently thereto, in such manner and on such terms as the directors may think proper.

SECTION 9. All the affairs of said company shall be managed by a board of directors, who shall be stockholders, and who are hereby invested with all the powers of the corporation. They shall be chosen annually by ballot, by the stockholders, at the annual meeting of the company, which shall be held on such notice and at such time as shall be prescribed by the by-laws, and at such place as shall be prescribed by the board of directors 1641 and stated in such notice. At all meetings of the stockholders every stockholder shall be entitled to one vote for each share of stock held by him or her and may vote in person or by proxy duly authorized, and no business shall be transacted at any meeting of the stockholders unless a majority of the stock subscribed is represented. In all elections of directors those stockholders equal to the number to be elected having the greatest number of votes shall be deemed and declared duly elected. The elections shall be conducted in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of the company; and if from any cause an election of directors shall not be had at the time when, by the provisions of this act or of the by-laws, it should be had, the same may be held 1642 at any other time, on notice to be given as aforesaid; and until such election be had the directors of the preceding year shall continue to act, and the corporation hereby created shall not forfeit or lose any of its privileges, franchises, or immunities for a less period than ten consecutive years. The board may at any time increase or diminish the number of directors to be elected at the next annual meeting of the stockholders, and the number to be elected shall be specified in the notice of election, but shall never be less than five or more than eleven.

SECTION 10. A majority of the board of directors shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business. They shall meet at such times and places and be convened in such manner 1643 as they shall decide upon. They shall elect one of their own number to be president, and one to be vice-president. The president shall, when present, preside at all meetings of the board and of the stockholders, and when absent, the vice-president shall discharge the duties of the president, and when both are absent, the directors may appoint a president pro tem. The board of directors shall have power to appoint an executive committee and prescribe its powers and duties; to appoint a secretary, treasurer, and such engineers, superintendents, agents, and other officers as they may deem necessary, and remove them at pleasure; prescribe their duties and compensation, and may demand adequate security for the discharge of their respective duties and 1644 trusts.

SECTION 11. The persons named in the first section shall be the first directors, and shall hold their offices until the first Wednesday of May, A. D. 1871, and until others are chosen in their places, and in case of a vacancy in the directors by reason of the death or resignation of any director, or of his ceasing to be a stockholder, it may be filled by the remaining directors until the next annual election or until some other person shall be elected to fill the same. The directors herein named may appoint three persons, who shall be stockholders, to be inspectors at the first election, after which the stockholders shall choose three such inspectors at the annual elections. If no inspectors 1645 are chosen, the directors may appoint three from time to time. If at any time an election of directors shall not take place on the day appointed by this act, the corporation shall not for that cause be dissolved, but an election may be held on another day, in such manner as shall be prescribed by the directors or provided for by the by-laws.

SECTION 12. The said company shall have authority and power, and it is hereby authorized and empowered in its corporate capacity, to borrow any sum of money from any person or persons, corporation, or body politic of any kind, and may make, execute, and deliver all necessary writings, notes, bonds, mortgages, and other papers and securities in amount and kind, as 1646 may be deemed expedient by said corporation in consideration of any such loan, or in the discharge of any liabilities it may incur in the construction, repair, equipment, or running of said road; and the powers of said corporation for the purposes aforesaid, and for all purposes necessary to carrying out the objects of said company, viz, the construction of a railroad from and to the points aforesaid, are hereby ratified and confirmed, and the contracts and official acts of said company declared binding in law and equity upon said corporation and upon all other parties to said contracts. Said company shall also have authority and power, and is hereby authorized and empowered in its corporate capacity to make, execute, issue, and deliver its bonds and obli- 1647 gations from time to time, and at any time, in such an amount that all the bonds of the company outstanding at any one time will not exceed the amount of the capital stock of said company. The directors of said company are hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe by resolution to be by them adopted the sum or sums for which each of said bonds shall be issued, the time or times and place or places when and where the principal and interest of the same shall be payable, and whether payable to order or to bearer, or how otherwise negotiable, the rate of interest which such bonds shall bear, and the manner and form in which the interest coupons annexed to them shall be executed; and to secure the payment of any and all such bonds the said corporation is hereby authorized and empowered, in its corporate capacity, to make, execute, and deliver a mortgage or deed of trust upon the whole or any part of its railroad, constructed or authorized to be constructed, and of any or all of its estate, real, personal, or mixed, in possession or expectancy, owned and acquired, or to be thereafter owned and acquired by said corporation; and the said company is also hereby authorized and empowered, in and by such mortgage or deed of trust, to confer upon the trustees or mortgagees full and ample powers to enter into and upon, and to take possession of, have, use, and enjoy, or to sell and dispose of the whole or any part of said railroad or its estate, together with the functions appertaining to said railroad, and all corporate and other franchises, rights, and privileges of said corporation; and the directors of said company are hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe, by resolutions to be adopted by them, all matters relating to the forms and terms of any such mortgage or deed of trust, and of its execution and delivery; and they are authorized to provide for the periodical payments to such trustee or receiver as they shall appoint a certain sum to create a sinking fund, with which to pay off or discharge at or before maturity any or all of the bonds by them authorized to be issued; and also to provide the manner in which such trustee or receiver shall pay out or dispose of said sinking fund, and to authorize him to designate, by lot or in any other suitable manner, the bond or bonds to the payment of which such sinking fund or any part of it shall be applied, and the said board of directors are hereby authorized and empowered to sell, pledge, hypothecate, or otherwise dispose of, either for money, work, or material to be used in the construction and equipment of said railroad, all or any portion of such mortgage, bonds, or other securities or bonds received from any county, town, village, or city, at par or at such price less than par as the said directors may by resolution, to be by them adopted, deem advisable; any such mortgage or deed of trust and every discharge or satisfaction thereof, may be recorded in the office of the secretary of state, in a proper book kept for that purpose, and the certificate of such recording endorsed on such mortgage or deed of trust, shall have the same effect as if such mortgage or deed of trust was recorded in the several counties through which such road may run, and such record in the office of the secretary shall be sufficient notice to all persons.

SECTION 13. The company hereby created shall for all and every of the lands and property which it shall appropriate, take, possess, occupy or use (unless the same be donated to them), pay the value thereof, at the time and in the manner herein pro- 1652

vided; and such value shall be ascertained, fixed, and determined by mutual agreement between the said company and the owner of such land and property, respectively, or by and through the medium and appraisement and determination and award of commissioners appointed as hereinafter provided.

SECTION 14. When the said corporation shall not agree with the owner or owners of such required land for the purchase thereof or as to the compensation to be paid therefor, or when by reason of the legal incapacity or of the absence of such owner or owners no such agreement can be made, then and in that case it shall be lawful for any judge of the supreme, circuit, or county courts of the State on application of the said company, 1653
or the owner or owners of such land, and at the cost and charge of said company, to appoint three disinterested persons residing in the county through which the said road runs, whose duty it shall be to view and examine the lands so taken, with the buildings and improvements if any thereon, and to estimate the value of the lands so taken and required by said company, and all the damages which the owner or owners thereof shall sustain or may have sustained by reason of the taking of the same for the construction and use of said road or works appertaining thereto. And it shall be the duty of said company, or of the owner or owners aforesaid, as the case may be, to give three weeks' notice of their application to the judge of the supreme, circuit, or county 1654 courts for the appointment of said commmissioners, to be published for three successive weeks in a newspaper published (if there be any) in the county in which such land may be situated, and the affidavit of the printer or publisher shall be sufficient legal evidence of such publication; and the persons so appointed, before entering upon the discharge of such duties, shall take an oath before some justice of the peace or other person competent by law to administer oaths faithfully and to the best of their ability to examine the lands so taken or required by said company, and impartially to estimate and appraise the value of the same, and the damage or injury which the owner or owners thereof shall have sustained or may sustain by reason 1655 of the taking and use thereof by said company, whereupon such commissioners shall proceed to examine the premises and estimate the value of such land and the amount of damage, and they or a majority of them shall make a report in writing of such valuation, under their hands and seals, to the circuit court of the county wherein the land lies, and shall return the same within ninety days after their appointment to the clerk of the circuit court of the county where they reside, and it shall be the duty of the said clerk to immediately file the same; and in case no appeal shall be made within thirty days after the filing of the said report, as hereinafter provided, then the said clerk shall record the same at the expense of said company, and judgment of the said court shall be entered thereon on motion of either party at any term of said court: provided, that either party may appeal to said court within thirty days after said report shall have been filed in the clerk's office, and such appeal may be tried in the same manner as other issues on trial in said court; and the jury empanelled to try the same shall find the value of the land so taken as required by said company and the damages which the owner or owners thereof shall have sustained by the taking of the same, and the judgment of the said court shall be entered accordingly: provided also, that it shall not be lawful for the said commissioners or said court to proceed in the assessment of damages, or in the valuation of any lands or materials as aforesaid, in the absence of the owner or owners, his, her, or their agents or attorneys, unless it be shown to them by competent testimony that the said owner or owners shall have had at least five days' notice of the time and place at which such assessment or valuation was to be made, or that the said owner or owners were absent from the State of Wisconsin; and if the said owner or owners shall be minors or non compos mentis, or absent from the State, the service of notice may be made on the guardian or trustee if there be any, or in such manner as the court may direct: provided, also, that upon the making and filing of the report as aforesaid, and payment in legal tender of the amount of any valuation or appraisal specified therein, to the owner or owners of any such lands, his, her, or their legal representatives, on payment thereof into the circuit court of the county in which such land shall be situated, for the owner or owners thereof, the said company, their agents, or the contractor for making or repairing said railroad, may immediately take and use the same without awaiting issue of any appeal brought thereon; and provided also, that in case of an appeal as aforesaid by the owner or owners of such land the said company, immediately on notice of the perfection of such appeal, shall pay into court, to abide the judgment therein, the amount awarded by such commissioners; and in case of any appeal by the company, it shall be the duty of such company to execute a bond, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, conditioned to pay any judgment that may be rendered therein, and to abide by the order of the court in the premises; such bond shall be filed at the time of entering the appeal, and in case of neglect or refusal, unless further time so to do shall have been granted by the court, the appeal may be dismissed on motion. Whenever any judgment shall have been entered as herein provided, for the value of any lands, or for any damages for taking and using the same, and the amount specified in such judgment shall have been paid or tendered to the owner or owners of such land, his, her, or their legal representatives, the said company shall be entitled to the estate and interest in the same, as fully as if it had been conveyed in fee simple; and if such valuation be not received when tendered, it may at any time thereafter be received, or may be collected from said company by action at law, at the cost and expense of the person or persons entitled to the same: provided, that the costs of any proceedings and judgment specified in the last preceding section shall be taxed by the court and paid by such company, except in cases when upon appeal the verdict of the jury shall be for the same or for a less sum than that reported by the commissioners. 1660

SECTION 15. The capital stock of the company hereby created shall in the first instance be five million dollars, which capital stock may be increased to any sum not exceeding ten million dollars; the said capital stock to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each. 1661

SECTION 16. The several counties, towns, villages and cities upon or contiguous to the line of the said road by this act authorized to be constructed, as the same may hereafter be located and established, are, and each of them hereby is, authorized to aid in the construction of said railroad by subscribing to the stock of the company and paying for the same in money, and levying a special tax to raise money for that purpose, or by issuing bonds to said company in payment for said stock, and levying taxes to pay the interest as it accrues upon said bonds, and to establish a sinking fund for the gradual redemption and ultimate full redemption of said bonds at maturity; and for these purposes the board of supervisors or officers of such counties or towns, the boards of trustees of such villages, and the common council of such cities, respectively and severally, shall have power to negotiate and arrange the terms and conditions upon which such aid shall be granted; to enter into all proper contracts with said company in relation to the same, and to adopt such ordinances and regulations pertaining thereto, or to the taxes to be levied under this act, as may be expedient and proper and consistent with law; provided, that before any such aid shall be granted or contracted for by any such county, town, village, or city the question of granting the same shall be submitted to a vote of the electors thereof, respectively, as hereinafter provided. 1662 1663

SECTION 17. Whenever the president and secretary of the said Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company shall certify under their hands and the seal of the said company to the authorities of any such county, town, village, or city that the route of said railroad has been located through or contiguous to such county, town, village, or city it shall be the duty of the authorities thereof, hereinbefore mentioned, to call a special election to determine the question whether aid shall be granted to said company in the manner prescribed in the preceding section of this act. Such election shall be called, notice thereof shall be given, the form of ballots shall be prescribed, and all regulations relating to the same be determined by the proper authorities hereinbefore mentioned of such counties, towns, villages, and cities, so that the question be fairly submitted to a vote of the electors. In case at any such election the majority of votes shall be against granting such aid, the proper authorities may afterwards, in their discretion, call another election upon the same subject, and the same shall be conducted in a like manner.

SECTION 18. If at any election authorized by this act any such county, town, village, or city shall vote in favor of granting such aid by a majority of the votes cast at such election, then the authorities thereof shall have and exercise, in their discretion, the powers conferred upon them by the preceding sections of this act, and all contracts made by them by virtue thereof shall be valid and enforceable according to the true intent and meaning thereof.

SECTION 19. The several counties, towns, villages, and cities which shall subscribe for the stock of said company, as authorized by this act, are hereby authorized severally to own, control, and dispose of the same in the same manner as an individual might do, and to vote upon the same by agent duly authorized, at an election held by the stockholders of the said company.

SECTION 20. All property which the company hereby created is authorized to appropriate, take, possess, hold, or use, by making payment therefor, is hereby declared to be for public use as soon as the company shall so appropriate, take, possess, hold, or use the same.

SECTION 21. It is hereby declared that in the judgment of the legislature of this State, the object of the corporation hereby created can not be attained under the general laws.

SECTION 22. This act is hereby declared to be a public act, and the same, immediately after the passage thereof, shall be printed by the State printer, and be in full force and effect from and after its passage.

Approved March 15, 1870.

CHAPTER 2. 1668

AN ACT to amend chapter 326 of the private and local laws of 1870, entitled "An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company."

The people of the State of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section one of chapter 326 of the private and local laws of 1870 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: "F. W. Gates, R. G. Coburn, E. W. Anderson, jr., Hiram Hayes, S. H. Clough, Hiram Robbins, D. W. Maxon, John J. Tallmadge, H. L. Palmer, S. B. Dresser, O. S. Powell, James Edwards, and Peter E. Bradshaw, and such other persons as may be associated with them, who shall become stockholders in the association or corporation hereby created in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall be and they are hereby created a body corporate and politic by the name and style of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, and by that name shall have perpetual succession, be competent to contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, defend and be defended, in any court whatever. The said corporation may make, have, and use a common seal, which it may alter or renew at pleasure; it shall be capable of acquiring by deed, lease, or other conveyance a fee simple or any less estate in lands, tenements, or easements in the same, and of conveying any such estate or interest by deed, lease, or other conveyance, and of holding such estate or interest, or any other estate necessary to the use of the said railroad, either real, personal, or mixed, and shall have and enjoy all the privileges, franchises, and immunities incident to a corporation, and may do and perform it shall lawfully appertain to do and perform for the well being of said corporation."

SECTION 2. Section eleven of said chapter is hereby amended so as to read as follows: The persons named in the first section shall be the first directors, and, unless sooner superseded by an election of directors at the first annual meeting of the company, shall hold their offices until the first Wednesday of May, A. D. 1871, and until others are chosen in their places; and in case of vacancy in the directors, by reason of the death or resignation of any director, or of his ceasing to be a stockholder, it may be filled by the remaining directors until the next annual election, or until some other person shall be elected to fill the same. The directors herein named may appoint three persons, who shall be stockholders, to be inspectors at the first election, after which the stockholders shall choose three such inspectors at the annual election. If no inspectors are chosen, the directors may appoint three from time to time. If at any time an election of directors shall not take place on the day appointed by this act, the corporation shall not for that cause be dissolved, but an election may be held on another day, in such manner as shall be prescribed by the directors or provided for by the by-laws.

SECTION 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved January 20, 1871.

CHAPTER 328.

AN ACT to amend section 2, chapter 326, of the private and local laws of 1870, approved March 15, 1870, entitled "An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company."

The people of the State of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section two of said act is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 2. The company by this act created are hereby authorized and empowered to survey, locate, and from time to time alter, change, and relocate (so as not materially to change the route), and to construct and complete, perpetually to have, use, and enjoy, maintain and operate the said railroad, with one or more tracks or lines, over and along the following routes, that is to say: Beginning at some convenient point on the west shore of the Bay of Superior, or on the south shore of the Bay of St. Louis, in the county of Douglas, running thence southerly by a route as direct as may be practicable through the counties of Douglas, Burnett, Polk, St. Croix, and Pierce, via St. Croix Falls and Hudson, to Prescott, with a branch or extension running westerly from the above-designated place of beginning, in Douglas County, to such point on the Minnesota boundary, north of the Nemadji River, as may be deemed desirable by the directors of said railroad company: Provided, said company shall have the right to construct its line of road along the westerly shore of the Bay of Superior, from the extreme end of Connors Point to the southerly end of said bay, or such point thereof as may be deemed advisable by the directors of said railroad company, and shall have the authority to construct and maintain a bridge across the St. Louis River at any point at or above Connors Point, in said county of Douglas, whenever the same shall be assented to by resolution by the board of supervisors of the town of Superior.

SECTION 2. This act shall be in force after its passage and publication.

Approved March 16, 1871.

(Published April 19, 1895. No. 400 S.)

CHAPTER 244. 1676

AN ACT to amend chapter 326 of the private and local laws of 1870, entitled "An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company," and chapter 328 of the private and local laws of 1871, entitled "An act to amend section 2, chapter 326, of the private and local laws of 1870, approved March 15, 1870, entitled 'An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company.'"

The people of the State of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 2 of chapter 326 of the private and local laws of 1870, entitled "An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company," as amended by chapter 328 of the private and local laws of 1871, entitled "An act to amend section 2, chapter 326, of the private and local laws of 1870," 1677 approved March 15, 1870, entitled "An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company," is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 2. The said company is hereby authorized and empowered to survey, locate, and construct, and to acquire, by purchase or otherwise, and to equip, maintain, operate, and perpetually to have, use, and enjoy a railroad or railroads, with one or more tracks, from a point or points on the Bay of Superior, at the west end of Lake Superior, in Douglas County, Wisconsin, to be selected by the board of directors, upon such route or routes as such board shall adopt, to such point or points on the Minnesota State line as such board shall select, and thence westward upon such route or routes as such board shall 1678 adopt, to such point or points on the Pacific coast as such board shall select; and from said point or points in Douglas County easterly, upon such route or routes as such board shall adopt, to or near Ashland, in the county of Ashland, in the State of Wisconsin, and thence by such route or routes and to such point or points in the State of Michigan, as such board shall select; also from said point or points in Douglas County, upon such route or routes as such board shall adopt, through the counties of Douglas, Burnett, Polk, St. Croix, and Pierce, or any of them, to Prescott on the Mississippi River, with a branch from some point in one of said counties, to be selected by the board of directors, to St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minnesota, or to either 1679 of said places; also from said point or points in said Douglas County, or from some point to be selected by such board on any railroad or railroads which the said company is or hereafter may be authorized to construct or otherwise acquire upon such route or routes as such board shall adopt, through the States of Wisconsin and Illinois to or into the city of Chicago, in the county of Cook, in said last-named State. And the said company is further authorized and empowered to survey, locate, construct, and to acquire, by purchase or otherwise, and to equip, maintain, and operate, and perpetually to have, use, possess, and enjoy branch lines of railroad from its main line or lines in and into or through any State or Territory of the United States, or extending into or lying within the Dominion of Canada, or any portion or province thereof, from and to such points as shall be determined by such board of directors.

SECTION 2. Section 3 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 3. The said company shall have the perpetual right, power, and authority to transport, take, and carry property and persons upon such railroad or railroads, by steam or other motive power, and to receive and store any property in any of its depots or other buildings, including elevators, and to make, construct, maintain, acquire, and use all such switches, turn-outs, side tracks, spur and other tracks as it shall deem necessary; also to construct, erect, acquire, and maintain all such depots, station houses, warehouses, car houses, shops, engine houses, elevators, and other buildings, fixtures, structures, and things necessary or convenient for use by said company in the operation of its railroads and in the transaction of its business as a carrier of freight and passengers. And said company shall have power to connect its railroad or railroads with any other railroad or railroads, and to operate the same under lease or otherwise, or to run in connection with any such railroad or railroads, in such manner as may be agreed upon between the board of directors of said company and the board of directors of the company or companies owning or operating any such connecting railroad or railroads. And any railroad company, person, association, or corporation having a railroad or railroads, constructed or partly constructed, running in the direction of the line or lines of railroad which the said company is by this act or may hereafter be authorized to construct, acquire, and operate, which said company shall agree to use or connect with, is hereby authorized to make to said company (created by said chapter 326) a lease, sale, or trackage arrangement, perpetual or for a time limited, of the whole or any part of said railroad or railroads so constructed or partly constructed, together with the rolling stock, machinery, buildings, tenements, or fixtures, and all property, real, personal, or mixed, of the said railroad company, person, association, or corporation, together with its or their franchises, rights, privileges, and immunities, and in consideration of such lease, use, or sale to take or receive such rent, commutation of rental, payment, or other consideration as may be agreed upon.

SECTION 3. Section 4 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 4. Said company shall have the right, authority, and power, and it is hereby authorized and empowered, subject to the provisions of section 1836 of the

Revised Statutes, to construct, maintain, and operate its railroad 1684
or railroads across, along, or upon any stream of water, water course, street, highway, plank road, turnpike, or canal which its route or routes shall intersect or touch; to carry any highway, street, turnpike, or plank road which it shall touch, intersect, or cross over or under its tracks, as may be most expedient for the public good; to change the course and direction of any highway, street, turnpike, or plank road, when made necessary or desirable to secure more easy ascent or descent by reason of any embankment or cut made in the construction of its railroad or railroads, and to take land necessary therefor, provided such highway or road be not so changed from its original course more than six rods, nor its distance thereby lengthened more than five 1685 rods; and the said company shall also have power, and it is hereby empowered, to cross, intersect, join, and unite its railroad or railroads with any railroad now or hereafter constructed, at any point on its route, and upon the grounds of such railroad corporation, with the necessary turn-outs, sidings, and switches and other conveniences in furtherance of the objects of its connection. And the said company shall also have power, and it is hereby empowered, to erect, purchase, and maintain all necessary bridges for the use of its railroad or railroads, main and branch, over any stream of water or water course at such point or points of crossing the same as said railroad or railroads may be located or constructed, together with all necessary abutments, piers, 1686 arches, foundations, and other structures.

SECTION 4. Section 5 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 5. It shall be lawful for the said company, and it is hereby authorized and empowered by its officers, engineers, servants, and workmen, to enter upon any land or lands for the purpose of exploring, surveying, locating, and establishing the route or routes of said railroad or railroads; and when the said route or routes or any portion thereof shall be determined by resolution adopted by its board of directors, it shall be lawful for said company, and it is expressly authorized and empowered, to purchase and hold such land or lands for right of way, side tracks, spur tracks, water tanks, construction 1687 of roadbed and maintenance of same, station houses, warehouses elevators, engine houses, shops, and for such other purposes as may be necessary, usual, or convenient for the operation of said railroad or railroads or in connection therewith; and whenever said company can not agree with the owners and other parties interested in any such land upon the price to be paid therefor, or for the occupation thereof, or for any interest therein, it shall have the right, and it is hereby expressly authorized and empowered, to acquire the same by condemnation proceedings, to the extent and in the manner provided by sections 1845 to 1856, inclusive, of the Revised Statutes of 1878.

SECTION 5. Section 6 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 6. Upon the completion or acquisition of said railroad or railroads, or any part thereof, it shall be lawful for said company, and it is hereby authorized and empowered, to demand, collect, and receive such sum or sums of money for the transportation of persons and property, and for the storage of property, as shall be reasonable.

SECTION 6. Section 7 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 7. Said company shall also have full power, and it is hereby expressly authorized, to carry and transport persons and property in boats, steamships, vessels, barges, and other water craft upon any of the navigable waters which its railroad or railroads shall run to, over, or connect with, and to demand, receive, and collect such compensation for the same as it shall from time to time deem reasonable, and for that purpose the said company is authorized and empowered to build, lease, purchase, own, and use, either directly or through a corporation or corporations organized by it or otherwise for the purpose, and whose stock in whole or in part it shall own, such boats, steamships, vessels, barges, and other water craft as in its judgment may be necessary or convenient for its use.

SECTION 7. Section 8 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 8. The said company shall be capable in law of taking, holding, and selling any lands granted to it, or to any company whose property it shall acquire, by purchase or otherwise, by the Government of the United States, or by this State, or by any State or Territory through or in which it shall acquire in any manner, and operate, any railroad or railroads, wherever the said lands may be situated, or by grant by persons, companies, corporations, or associations, within or without this State, to aid in the construction or operation of any railroad or railroads by it constructed or otherwise acquired, or authorized to be by it constructed or acquired; and the said company may also pledge, hypothecate, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of all of its right, title, and interest in and to said lands, or any part thereof, and in and to any other estate, real, personal, or mixed, of which it, the said company, may be seized at the time of the execution of any mortgage or deed of trust, or of which it may become seized subsequent to the execution and delivery of any such instrument or instruments, including its franchise to be a corporation and to own, maintain, and operate such railroad or railroads; and the said company may sell or lease any of its branch roads, however acquired, whenever it shall be declared by resolution of the board of directors, subject to the approval of the holders of record of a majority of the outstanding capital stock, that the interests of 1692

the company and its stockholders will be thereby subserved.

SECTION 8. Section 9 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 9. All of the affairs of said company shall be managed by a board of directors, who shall be stockholders, and who are hereby invested with all the powers of the corporation, save as hereinafter provided. They shall be chosen annually by ballot by the stockholders at the annual meeting of the company, which shall be held on such notice and at such time as shall be prescribed by the by-laws, and at such place, within or without the State, as shall be prescribed by the board of directors, and stated in such notice. At all meetings of the stockholders each stockholder shall be entitled to one vote 1693 for each share of stock held by him, under such conditions and regulations as may be prescribed or referred to in the certificates thereof, and may vote the same in person or by proxy duly authorized, and no business shall be transacted at any meeting of the stockholders unless a majority of the stock subscribed and outstanding is represented. In all elections of directors those stockholders having the greatest number of votes shall be deemed and declared duly elected. Elections shall be conducted in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of the company, and if for any cause an election of directors shall not be had at the time when by the provisions of this act or by the by-laws it should be had, the same may be held at any other 1694 time, on notice to be given as aforesaid, and until such election be had the directors of the preceding year shall continue to act until their successors are duly elected and qualified. The company may at any time increase or diminish the number of directors to be elected at the next annual meeting of the stockholders, and the number to be elected shall be specified in the notice of meeting, but shall never be less than five nor more than seventeen; and the said company may, by a vote of a majority of the stockholders present or represented at any annual meeting, classify its directors into three classes, each of which shall be composed as nearly as may be of one-third of the directors, the term of office of the first class to expire in one year, of the 1695 second in two years, and of the third in three years. At each annual election thereafter a number of directors shall be elected for three years equal to the number whose term of office shall then expire. All vacancies shall be filled in accordance with the by-laws.

SECTION 9. Section 10 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 10. A majority of the board of directors shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business. They shall meet at such times and be convened in such manner as the by-laws shall prescribe, and at such places as the board shall decide upon. Whenever all of the members of the board of directors are present at any meeting it shall be competent for them, having signed upon the minutes a waiver of notice of meeting, to transact business as fully to all intents and purposes as if the said meeting had been duly convened pursuant to notice. They shall elect one of their own number to be president and one to be vice-president, and they may elect additional vice-presidents and such other officers of the board, and impose upon them such duties and confer upon them such powers, as the board may by resolution prescribe. The duties of the president and other officers at meetings of the board and stockholders shall be prescribed by the by-laws. The board of directors shall have power to appoint an executive committee and to confer upon and to delegate to said committee the full power of the board of directors when the latter is not in session; and the board may appoint a secretary, treasurer, comptroller, and such other officers and agents as it may deem necessary, and it may remove them at pleasure, prescribe their duties and compensation, and may demand adequate security for the discharge of their respective duties.

SECTION 10. Section 11 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 11. The capital stock of said company may be increased from time to time to such an amount as may by its stockholders be deemed necessary for the construction, acquisition, or operation of any of its railroad or railroads, by a vote of the owners of record of at least a majority of all its outstanding stock, in person or by proxy, at any annual meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, by a notice in writing to each stockholder, to be served upon him personally, or by depositing the same in the post-office, postage paid, properly directed to him at the post-office nearest his usual place of residence, at least twenty days prior to such meeting. Such notice shall state the time and place of such meeting, its object, and the amount to which it is proposed to increase such capital stock. No vote in favor of such increase shall take effect until the proceedings of such meeting, showing the names of the stockholders voting therefor and the amount of stock owned by each, shall be entered upon the records of said corporation, and the said company may at any such time, by a vote of the holders of record of two-thirds of said outstanding stock, classify its said stock into common and preferred, and it may further classify its said stock by dividing its preferred into different classes, and it may make any or all of said classes of preferred stock cumulative or noncumulative as to dividends thereon, and any or all of said preferred stock may be with or without preference over any other stock or classes of stock in the event of the liquida- 1700

tion of the company's affairs, either through insolvency or otherwise. And the said company may make such preferred stock convertible into common stock, upon such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the board of directors.

SECTION 11. Section 12 of said chapter 326 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 12. The said company is hereby expressly authorized to borrow from time to time such sums of money, and upon such terms, as the corporation or board of directors shall agree upon or authorize as necessary and expedient; and in its corporate name to execute and deliver its notes, bonds, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness in such form as shall be from time to time prescribed by the board of 1701
directors, and in such amount as shall be deemed from time to time by said board expedient; and may make the same convertible into its capital stock of any class, upon such terms and conditions as to the board of directors may seem advisable, and it may pledge or hypothecate such notes, bonds, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness as collateral security for loans made to it by any person or persons, corporation, association, or body politic, and it may sell such notes, bonds, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness, at such prices and upon such terms as the board of directors shall prescribe; and it may deliver the same in discharge of any liabilities which it may have incurred, or proposes to incur, in the construction, purchase, 1702 or other acquisition of any railroad or railroads or other property which it is or may hereafter be by law authorized to construct, purchase, or acquire, and in the repair, equipment, or operation of its railroad or railroads, main line or branch, or of any part or parts thereof, or of any steamships, steamboats, barges, ferries, or other water craft acquired or owned by it, or which it desires to acquire by construction or purchase; and it may exchange the same for the stocks, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness of any railroad company whose railroad or railroads it is or may hereafter be authorized to purchase, and it may generally use the same in such manner as shall in the judgment of the board of directors subserve and promote the cor- 1703 porate purposes; and the powers of said company for the purposes aforesaid, and for all purposes necessary for the carrying out of the objects, or any thereof, of said company, are hereby ratified and confirmed; and the said company may, and it is hereby expressly authorized and empowered, in order to secure the payment of any such notes, bonds, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness, execute and deliver from time to time collateral trust indentures or other security, agreements, or indentures, and it may from time to time execute and deliver trust deeds, or mortgages, or both, as occasion may require, of and upon any of its railroad or railroads or parts thereof, constructed or thereafter to be constructed or in process of construction, and it may by any such mortgage or trust deed convey and mortgage all or any of its railroad track or tracks, rights of way, depot grounds, rights, privileges, franchises, immunities, exemptions, machine houses, rolling stock, furniture, tools, bridges, elevators, steamboats, steamships, and all appendages and appurtenances, and all other property, real, personal, and mixed, in any manner whatever then belonging to the corporation, or which it may thereafter acquire; and it may include in any such mortgage or trust deed any grant or grants of land, or any parts thereof, owned or held by it, or in which it may be or may become interested; and it may also grant, convey, and transfer by any such mortgage or deed of trust its franchise to be a corporation and its franchise to have, possess, maintain, and operate the railroad or railroads and other property described in any such instrument and covered thereby; and it may also give and grant to individual bondholders the right and power to vote at meetings of stockholders upon all such questions, other than the election of directors, as may come before such meetings; and every such mortgage, deed of trust, collateral trust indenture, or security agreement to be executed by said company shall be in such form and contain such provisions as the corporation or board of directors shall think proper. And in any such mortgage, deed of trust, collateral trust indenture, or security agreement there may be inserted provisions limiting the right of individual holders of the bonds, notes, or evidences of indebtedness secured thereby to sue or recover upon any such bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, or upon any coupon annexed thereto secured by said instrument, either at law or in equity, except through the trustee or trustees to whom or to which or with whom or with which such instrument is made, and every such provision shall be binding upon the holders of said bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, and all thereof, and upon any court whose jurisdiction and aid may be invoked in foreclosing the lien or liens created thereby. And every such mortgage or mortgages, deed or deeds of trust or collateral trust indenture, and every discharge of satisfaction thereof, may be recorded in the office of the secretary of state, in a proper book kept for that purpose, and the certificate of such recording, indorsed on such instrument, shall have the same effect as if such instrument were recorded in the several counties in which such railroad or railroads may be located, and such record in the office of the secretary of state shall be sufficient notice to all persons of the existence and lien created by said instrument, and of the property covered by the same.

SECTION. 12. The said company may lease or purchase, and 1708 take a conveyance or assignment of the railroad or railroads, franchises, immunities, and all other properties and appurtenances, and the stocks or bonds, or both thereof, of any other railroad corporation, or any portion thereof, within or without this State, when their respective railroads can be lawfully connected and operated together to constitute a continuous line, or when the railroad or railroads so leased or purchased will constitute branches or feeders of any railroad or railroads maintained and operated by such leasing or purchasing company; and the said company may purchase and hold the stock and bonds, or either thereof, or any railway company to which it has furnished the money for the construction of its railway, or may purchase 1709 for the money so furnished, or for such other consideration as may be agreed upon between the companies by their respective boards of directors, and take a conveyance of the whole or any portion of the franchise of said corporation, and of the railway property and appurtenances thereof.

SECTION 13. And the said company may, and it is hereby expressly authorized and empowered to, purchase or otherwise acquire and hold the stock or bonds, or both thereof, of any corporation (wherever organized) the franchises, functions, or operations of which may or would in any wise be utilized for the convenient or more economical or safe operation of its railroad or railroads, or of any thereof; and the said company may 1710 guarantee the principal or interest, or both thereof, of the bonds, or may endorse the same, or may guarantee the dividends upon the stock, or the rentals or obligations of any lease or traffic contract of any corporation which it may control by virtue of the ownership of its stock or otherwise, and may endorse the notes of any such company, or other evidences of indebtedness of any such company, and may guarantee, by endorsement or otherwise, the bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, and the dividends upon the stock, or the rentals or obligations of any lease or traffic contract of any corporation or corporations whose property the said company may now or hereafter be authorized by law to acquire by purchase or lease of the physical property 1711 thereof, or by purchase of the stock thereof.

SECTION 14. The said company shall, in addition to the special powers conferred upon it by said chapter 326, and by this act, have, possess, and enjoy all of the rights, powers, privileges, and immunities conferred upon railroad corporations by chapter 87 of the Revised Statutes of 1878, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and shall be subject, save where inconsistent herewith, to the restrictions, duties, and liabilities imposed upon railroad corporations by said chapter, and all amendatory and supplementary acts.

1712 SECTION 15. Sections 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19 of said chapter 326 are hereby repealed.

SECTION 16. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with or in any manner contravening the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

SECTION 17. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Approved April 15, 1895.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, held at the office of John C. Spooner, in the city of Madison, State of Wisconsin, on the 8th day of October, 1895, at 10 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, all 1713 of the stockholders being present, in person or by proxy, the following resolutions were duly and unanimously adopted, by a stock vote, to wit:

Resolved, That the action of Hiram Hayes, secretary, in applying for and procuring the amendment to the charter of the company made by chapter 244 of the laws of 1895, entitled "An act to amend chapter 326 of the private and local laws of 1870, entitled 'An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company,'" and chapter 328 of the private and local laws of 1871, entitled "An act to amend section 2, chapter 326, of the private and local laws of 1870, approved March 15, 1870, entitled 'An act to incorporate the Superior and St. Croix 1714 Railroad Company,'" be, and the same is hereby, ratified and approved.

Resolved further, That this company does hereby accept the said chapter and each and every part thereof.

Resolved, That the president and secretary of the company be, and they are hereby, authorized and instructed to execute, on behalf of the company, and under its corporate seal, and to file with the secretary of state, a certified copy of the foregoing resolution accepting said chapter 244 and the amendments to the charter therein and thereby made.

STATE, COUNTY, AND CITY OF NEW YORK, ss:

We, Edward D. Adams, president, and George H. Gardiner, 1715 secretary, of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby jointly and severally certify that we have compared the foregoing with the originals thereof as they appear upon the records of the company, and that the same are true and correct copies of said originals, and of the whole thereof, and that the same were adopted at a meeting of said company duly held as in the caption hereof stated and set forth.

In witness whereof we have hereunto, pursuant to the instructions of the stockholders, as aforesaid, set our hands and 1716 caused the common corporate seal of the company to be hereto affixed.

EDWARD D. ADAMS,
President.

[CORPORATE SEAL.] GEORGE H. GARDINER,
Secretary.

[Indorsed.]

STATE OF WISCONSIN, DEPARTMENT OF STATE, ss:

Received this 10th day of July, A. D. 1896, and recorded in volume 8 of R. R. Inc. and Res., on page 625.

G. E. VANDERCOOK, 1717
Assistant Secretary of State.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, duly held at the office of Spooner, Sanborn, Kerr & Spooner, in the city of Madison, State of Wisconsin, on the 1st day of July, A. D. 1896, at 2 o'clock p. m., all of the holders of record of the capital stock of said company being duly represented at said meeting, the following, among other proceedings, were duly had, to wit:

On motion of Mr. Spooner, seconded by Mr. Reed, the following resolution was, by a stock vote, unanimously adopted, every share of the outstanding stock of said company voting 1718 therefor, to wit:

Resolved, That the corporate name of this corporation be, and the same is hereby, changed from the "Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company" to "Northern Pacific Railway Company," which latter name is hereby adopted as the corporate name of this corporation.

STATE, COUNTY, AND CITY OF NEW YORK, ss:

I, George H. Gardiner, secretary of the Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company, and the custodian of its books, records, and common corporate seal, do hereby certify that I have compared the above and foregoing with the original resolution, and 1719 with the record of its adoption above set forth, and that the same is a true and correct copy of the said resolution, and of the whole thereof, and of the record of the adoption thereof, at a meeting of the stockholders of said company duly held as in the caption hereof set forth.

In witness whereof, I have, pursuant to the order of the stockholders in this behalf duly made, hereunto set my hand and affixed the said corporate seal this 8th day of July, A. D. 1896.

[CORPORATE SEAL.] GEORGE H. GARDINER,
Secretary Superior and St. Croix Railroad Company.

1720 [Indorsed.]

STATE OF WISCONSIN, DEPARTMENT OF STATE, ss:

Received this 10th day of July, A. D. 1896, and recorded in Vol. 8 of R. R. Inc. & Res., on page 624.

G. E. VANDERCOOK,
Assistant Secretary of State.

The following is a copy of laws constituting charter of Great 1721
Northern Railway Company, offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT A.

LAWS CONSTITUTING CHARTER OF GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

CHAPTER CLX.

Laws of 1856.

AN ACT to incorporate the Minneapolis and Saint Cloud Railroad 1722
Company.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the Territory of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. John H. Stevens, William Hanson, Franklin Steele, Alfred E. Ames, R. P. Russell, J. P. Wilson, J. L. Crocker, George F. Brott, J. M. Winslow, A. M. Fridley, John Banfil, and all such other persons as shall hereafter become stockholders in the company hereby incorporated, shall be and are hereby made a body politic and corporate, by the name and 1723 style of the "Minneapolis and Saint Cloud Railroad Company," and by and under that name and style shall be capable of suing and being sued, impleading and being impleaded, defending and being defended against in law and equity, in any and all courts and places whatsoever as fully as natural persons; and the said corporation may make and use a common seal and alter and renew the same at pleasure, and by their corporate name and style shall be capable of contracting and being contracted with, 1724 and by acquiring by purchase, gift, grant, devise, or otherwise, and of holding and conveying all such estate and property, real and personal, as may be necessary or convenient to carry into effect the object and purposes of this act and of the said corporation.

SEC. 2. The said corporation is hereby authorized and empowered, and it is hereby declared to be the objects and purposes thereof, to survey, locate, construct, complete, maintain, use, and operate, and at their pleasure alter the line thereof, a railroad with one or more tracks or lines of rails, from a point to be selected by this company, in Minneapolis, in the county of Hennepin, in the Territory of Minnesota, by the most feasible and practicable route to Saint Cloud, in the county of Stearns, on the Mississippi River, and also a main line of road by way of Mille Lac to a point at or near the mouth of the Saint Louis River, together with all necessary and proper stations, depots, turn-outs, engines, cars, and other appurtenances and furniture of a railroad.

SEC. 3. The capital stock of the corporation hereby created shall be two millions of dollars, and shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, which shall be deemed personal property, and shall be transferable in such manner as the corporation by its regulations or by-laws shall prescribe, but no share of said stock shall be transferred while there shall be any installments assessed thereon unpaid; and the directors of said corporation may, with the consent of the holders of a majority of the stock thereof, increase the capital stock thereof to such sum as may be necessary or convenient to carry into effect all the rights and privileges hereby granted thereto, not exceeding thirty millions of dollars. The shares of any increase of stock shall be the same and transferable in the same manner as the shares of the original stock.

SEC. 4. The said company is hereby authorized to borrow money to be expended in the construction and equipment of their said road and its appendages, and to issue bonds for the payment thereof in the usual form; such bonds not to exceed in the aggregate at the period of the completion of said road three-fourths of the whole amount actually expended on said road and its appendages aforesaid; and may make and execute in the corporate name of said company all necessary mortgages, writings, notes, bonds, or other papers, for any liability that it may incur in the construction or equipment of said road.

SEC. 5. The said company is hereby authorized and empowered to construct their said railroad and its branches in sections as fast as they may obtain the means for so doing; and the franchise of the portions so completed and put in operation shall vest in said company the same as though the whole was com- 1729 pleted.

SEC. 6. Said company is hereby authorized and empowered to connect its road by branches with the road of any railroad company or companies in the Territory or future State of Minnesota that are now chartered or may hereafter be chartered, or to become part owner or lessee of any railroad in said Territory; and any railroad company in said Territory of Minnesota duly organized or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of said Territory or future State of Minnesota may connect its road with the road of said company, and may in like manner, 1730 with the consent of said company, become part owner or lessee of the road of said company, or of any of its branches, or any portion thereof, situated in this Territory; and the said company are hereby authorized and empowered to run a branch of said road from Minneapolis, by way of West St. Paul to some point to be selected by said company on the Iowa State line.

SEC. 7. The said corporation shall have the right of way upon and may appropriate to its own use and control, for the purpose of the said railroad and its appurtenances, land not exceeding two hundred feet in width throughout its entire length, and 1731 may, by its engineers, agents, and contractors, enter upon and take possession of and use all and singular any lands, streams, timber, and materials of any and every kind, for the purpose of making the survey and location of said railroad, and of all stations, depots, turn-outs, and other things necessary, proper, or convenient for the same, and the full use and protection thereof, and of all its appendages and appurtenances.

SEC. 8. The said corporation may take and hold for the said purposes, or any of them, such additional lands as may be requisite or convenient therefor, but unless such lands taken 1732 by said corporation for any of said purposes shall be purchased of or voluntarily given by the owner or owners thereof, full and proper compensation therefor shall be made by said corporation to the owner or owners thereof, which compensation shall be ascertained and determined in the manner following:

The said party or parties interested may present to a court, in the county in which the lands or real estate proposed to be taken shall be situate, having jurisdiction competent to entertain, adjudicate, and determine questions of title to real estate, a petition signed by him or them, describing with reasonable certainty and accuracy by map, plat, survey, or otherwise the lands or real estate so proposed or required to be taken and setting forth the name of each and every owner, incumbrancer, and other persons interested in the same, or any part thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained by the legal records affecting the same and by view of the premises or other inquiry touching the occupation thereof, and praying the appointing of three competent disinterested persons, who shall be freeholders in said county, as commissioners to ascertain and determine the compensation to be made to the said owner or owners, respectively, and to all tenants, incumbrancers, and others interested for the taking or injuriously affecting such land or real estate. A copy of such petition, with a notice of the time and place, when and where the same will be presented to the court, shall be served on each and every person named therein as owner, incumbrancer, tenant, or otherwise interested therein, at least ten days previous to the time designated in such notice for the presentation of such petition. Such service shall be made by delivering such copy of petition and notice to each of the persons so named therein, if a resident of this Territory, or, in case of the absence of such person, by leaving such copy of petition and notice at his or her usual place of abode, with some person of sufficient age and understanding to comprehend the object thereof, which shall be communicated to such person with a request to deliver the same to the individual for whom it is thus left at the earliest opportunity. In case there shall be any persons named in such petition who are not residents of this Territory and upon whom service can not be made in the manner above prescribed, a notice stating briefly the objects of the petition, a description of the lands proposed to be taken, and the time and place of the presenting the petition to the court, and directed to such person or persons, shall be published in the newspaper published nearest the location of such lands, and in a newspaper published at the seat of government of the Territory or State in which the said lands shall be situate, once in each week for six consecutive weeks previous to the time designated for presenting such petition. The court to whom such petition shall be presented shall not make any order 1737 for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain and determine the compensation to be paid to any owner or person who shall not appear in person or by attorney or counsel, except upon proof by affidavit and to the satisfaction of the court of the service of the petition and notice in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, but may do so upon the appearance of the party or parties, or upon such proof of service in the absence of a party or parties. The court may, upon the application of the said corporation or of any owner or party interested, for reasonable causes adjourn the proceedings from time to time, and may 1738 order new or further notice to be given to any party whose interest may be affected thereby. When the court shall have proof satisfactory that all parties interested in any parcel of land have been duly served with the petition and notice in the manner herein prescribed, and of the nature and extent of the interest or estate of each and every party in the same, the court may make an order, to be recorded in the minutes thereof, appointing three disinterested competent persons commissioners to ascertain and determine the amount to be paid by the said corporation to each of such persons as compensation for his in- 1739 terest or estate in such parcel or parcels of land, and specifying the time and place of the first meeting of such commissioners. Said corporation shall without delay procure and deliver to each of such commissioners a copy of such order. Before the said commissioners shall enter upon the discharge of their duties they shall respectively take and subscribe an oath that they will faithfully and impartially, and without fear, favor, reward, or the hope or promise of reward, discharge their duties as commissioners to ascertain and determine the compensation to be paid by the Minneapolis and Saint Cloud Railroad Company 1740 (here insert the name of the person whose property is to be appraised) for lands or interest in lands to be taken for the use of said company. Such oath may be taken before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths. Whenever the place of any commissioner shall become vacant, the court may, upon such notice to the parties as he may prescribe, and by like order, supply the place by the appointment of another person as such commissioner, who shall be in like manner served with a copy of the order appointing him, and take the like oath. The commissioners shall meet at the time and place specified in the order appointing them, and in the order supplying any vacancy in such commission. When met and all present [they] may proceed to the hearing of the proofs and allegations of the parties present or reasonably notified by the company to be present and authorized to administer oaths to witnesses before them; and before making any report they shall, if requested by the party interested, or by either of their number, view the premises for which compensation is to be made, and the amount of which they are to determine. The commissioners may, as the exigency of any case, or the convenience of the parties or themselves may require, adjourn from time to time and to such places as may, in their judgment, be most conductive to the purposes of their investigations. No proceedings shall be had by the said commissioners unless all of them be present, except to adjourn, but any and every question submitted to them may be decided by a majority, and shall be valid. The said commissioners shall keep minutes in writing of all their proceedings, in which they shall enter the time and place of their meetings and adjournments, the names of parties appearing before them in person or by attorney, the substance of the testimony of witnesses sworn and examined before them, and all disputed questions which shall be submitted to them, and their decisions thereon. They shall make and sign a report which shall contain a description by metes and bounds survey, map, or plat of each separate parcel of land proposed to be taken by the said company for its use, and the compensation for which they shall ascertain and determine, and the amount (if anything) to be paid by said company to each person whose interests are to be affected thereby. They shall, as soon as their report shall be made, attach thereto their minutes and oaths of office and file the same in the office of the clerk of the court appointing the said commissioners, and notify the parties interested in such report that the same is made and filed. In case the said company or any person interested in such report shall deem the same unjust in any manner affecting the amount of the compensation to be paid, the company or such party may appeal therefrom at any time within twenty days after the service of notice of filing of said report. The party 1745 appealing shall file a notice of such appeal with the clerk of the court with whom the report shall have been filed, stating the grounds of the appeal, and serve a copy thereof on the opposite party, within the time above prescribed for taking appeal, and by giving a bond in such penalty as the judges of the same court shall prescribe, conditioned to prosecute the appeal without unnecessary delay, to abide the order the court may make on such appeal, and pay the costs of appeal if he shall fail to sustain the grounds of error or injustice prescribed in his notice of appeal. Upon the filing of the notice and bond for appeal 1746 with proof by affidavit of the service of such appeal, as above prescribed, all further proceedings on the report shall be stayed until the further order of the court, and the cause upon such appeal shall be entered, proceeded in, and determined in the same manner as cases on appeal from courts of justices of the peace; and in case the appeal shall involve the determination of any question of fact, the same shall be tried by jury, unless the jury shall be waived by both parties. The report of the commissioners shall be final and conclusive, unless appealed from in the manner above prescribed. 1747

Whenever the company shall take an appeal from any report of commissioners, such appeal shall not stay the work on the road or other structure on the premises or lands involved in the appeal, provided the company shall deposit in court the amount awarded or assessed by the report, or part or portion of the report, appeal from, to abide the order to be made by the court on the appeal. An appeal from any report, or part or portion of a report, of commissioners by or on the part of any person interested in any parcel of land or real estate proposed to be taken by the company shall stay all work on the road or other 1748 structure on the premises in question, unless the company shall deposit in court the amount of money claimed by such appellant before the commissioners, to abide the order of the court on the said appeal. Whenever any report or part of report of commissioners shall have become final, and whenever any appeal from such a report shall have finally determined, the said corporation shall, upon the payment to each party interested the sum thereby determined to be due to him or her as a compensation for property taken, or deposit the same in the court for his or her use, become invested and seized of the title to the lands or real estate for which such payment or deposit shall have been made, and entitled to the full, free, and perfect use and occupation of the same for the purposes aforesaid, which are, for all the objects of this act, hereby declared to be public purposes. The said commissioners shall be entitled to receive three dollars per day for their services; and their compensation, and all the fees of officers previous to and including the filing of the report of the commissioners, shall be paid by the said company. In case the title thus acquired to any lands by the said company for their use in the manner hereinbefore mentioned or otherwise shall prove defective, they are hereby authorized to take the proceedings prescribed in this section to procure the title from the real owner.

SEC. 9. If the incorporators named in this act determine to accept this charter, they shall appoint three or more of their number, and such other person or persons as they may deem proper, as agents or commissioners to receive the subscriptions to the stock of this corporation and direct the times and places when and where the books for receiving such subscription will be opened; and such books may be opened by different agents or commissioners at different places at the same time. Every person who shall subscribe for any stock of this corporation shall, at the time of subscribing, pay to the agent or commissioners two per cent on the amount of stock so subscribed.

SEC. 10. Whenever a hundred thousand dollars shall have been subscribed to the stock of this corporation, and two per cent thereon paid as aforesaid, the stockholders shall meet in person or by proxy, at such time and place as the holders of a majority of the stock shall prescribe, and proceed to elect twelve directors from among the stockholders, each share of stock being entitled to one vote by the holder thereof, which shall be cast in person or by proxy. The directors shall elect one of their number to be president of the board of directors, and he shall preside at all the meetings thereof at which he shall be present. The directors shall also elect one of their number a vice-president, who shall preside in the absence of the president. The directors shall also elect some suitable and competent person to be secretary. They shall also elect a treasurer, who shall give such security for the safe-keeping and payment of the moneys of the company as the directors shall 1753 require. At a meeting of the directors, seven shall form a quorum for the transaction of business; and all the affairs and business of the said company shall be conducted by or under the directions of the board of directors, and they are authorized for the purposes specified in this act to make and establish regulations and by-laws, and to do all things necessary to be done, and not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States, or by the laws of this Territory, or this act.

The directors first elected shall by lot divide into three classes. The first class shall hold their offices one year, and 1754 until their successors shall be elected and enter upon their duties; the second class shall hold their offices two years, until their successors be elected and enter upon their duties; and the third class shall hold their offices three years and until their successors are elected and enter upon their duties; and thereafter there shall annually be elected, in the manner hereinbefore specified, four directors of the said corporation, who shall hold their offices three years and until their successors shall be elected and enter upon their duties. Vacancies which may from any cause occur in said board of directors may be filled 1755 by appointment by the majority of the directors in office; and such appointment shall continue until the next annual election of directors, when all vacancies shall be filled by election. The annual election shall be held at the office of the secretary of said company, and the secretary and two disinterested persons, to be appointed by the board of directors, shall be the inspectors of elections, and shall canvass the votes, and make and sign a certificate of the result, and the secretary shall immediately notify the persons elected of their election.

SEC. 11. The board of directors may, at such times as they 1756 may deem necessary or proper, assess upon the stock subscribed an installment of not less than five or more than twenty per cent, and require payment of such installment within a reasonable time, not less than thirty days from notice thereof, under the penalty of a forfeiture of the stock upon which the assessment was made.

SEC. 12. The said corporation shall locate at least thirty miles of said road between Minneapolis and Saint Cloud (by way of Manhattan) and commence work thereon within two years from the time this act shall take effect, and shall complete and equip at least one track from Minneapolis and Saint Cloud, with suitable and safe switches and turn-outs, within seven years from the same time; and the said corporation are hereby authorized and empowered to connect with any railroad running in the same direction with this road, and where there may be any portion of another road which may be used by this company. This company shall not be bound to build such portions of road so long as they may use the portions of any other road which may answer the same purpose.

SEC. 13. For the purpose of constructing and using said railroad the said corporation is authorized to construct their said railroad and the necessary bridges across and over public highways and navigable streams: Provided, That it be so done as not to obstruct the highways, or to materially obstruct or impede the navigation of any navigible stream. And the said corporation is hereby authorized to contract with any other railroad company or corporation with whose road their road may come in contact for the crossing or connection of such roads and for the joint use thereof.

SEC. 14. If any person shall wilfully obstruct, or in any way injure, spoil, or destroy the railroad, or any part of the railroad, or anything affixed or appurtenant thereto and necessary or convenient for its free and safe use, or any of the materials for the construction thereof, or any building, fixture, or other structure, or carriage, engine, or car, erected or kept for the use thereof, such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to be indicted and punished therefor in the Territorial prison, for not more than ten years and for not less than five years, and shall also be liable to pay the company twice the amount of the damage occasioned thereby. And in case the death of any person shall be produced by or in consequence of any wilful or malicious obstruction or injury to the said railroad, or to any engine or car thereon, the person who shall so obstruct or injure the said railroad, or car or engine thereon, shall be deemed guilty of murder in the second degree.

SEC. 15. Every conductor, baggage master, or other agent or servant of the said company, and who shall be engaged in the ticket office or on the cars on said railroad, shall wear upon his hat or cap a plain badge which shall indicate his office or station; 1761 and no conductor or collector shall demand or be entitled to receive any fare or toll from any freighter or passenger, or exercise any control or direction in his station, or be authorized or allowed to interfere with any passenger, baggage, or freight without wearing such badge.

SEC. 16. Every locomotive engine on said railroad shall be furnished with a good and sufficient alarm bell or whistle, and be fully sounded at least eighty rods distant from every highway crossing, while the engine, either with or without a train of cars, shall be passing over said road; and for every violation 1762 of this section the said company shall forfeit and pay to whomsoever shall prosecute for the same the sum of one hundred dollars.

SEC. 17. This act is hereby declared to be a public act, and may be amended by any subsequent legislative assembly in any manner not destroying or impairing the vested rights of said corporation.

SEC. 18. This act shall take effect immediately after its passage.

CHARLES GARDNER, 1763
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
JOHN B. BRISBIN,
President of the Council.

Approved March 1, 1856.

CHAPTER V.

Laws of 1864.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company," passed March 1, 1856.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That the first section of said act, to wit, an act 1764 to incorporate the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

That E. M. Toby, Francis Morrison, B. B. Meeker, H. C. Burbank, J. P. Wilson, O. S. Freeman, H. C. Waite, R. C. Corbett, Charles A. Gilman, R. M. Richardson, J. J. Porter, and Henry Hill, their assigns or survivors, and all such persons as shall hereafter become stockholders in the company hereby incorporated, shall be and are hereby made a body corporate, by the name and style of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, and by and under that name and style shall be capable of suing and being sued, impleading and being impleaded, defending and being defended, in any and all courts of law and equity as fully as natural persons; and the said corporation may make and use a common seal, alter and renew the same at pleasure, and by their corporate name and style shall be capable of contracting and being contracted with, and of acquiring by purchase, gift, grant, or otherwise, and of holding and conveying, all such estate and property, real or personal, as may be necessary or convenient to carry into effect the object and purposes of this act and of the said corporation.

SEC. 2. That the second section of said act to which this is an amendment shall be and read as follows: The said corporation is hereby authorized and empowered to survey, locate, construct, complete, maintain, use, and operate a railroad from Minneapolis to St. Cloud, and from St. Cloud to the navigable waters of Lake Superior, with all necessary and proper stations, depots, turnouts, engines, cars, and other appurtenances and furniture of a railroad. The said corporation are also authorized and empowered to survey, locate, build, and operate a branch railroad from St. Cloud to some point on the Minnesota River between township ranges twenty-five and thirty-one, west of the fifth principal meridian, with like privileges for stations, depots, turnouts, engines, cars, and the usual furniture of a first-class railroad.

SEC. 3. That section twelve of said act to which this is an amendment be repealed, and in the place thereof it is enacted: That said E. M. Toby, Francis Morrison, B. B. Meeker, H. C. Burbank, J. P. Wilson, O. S. Freeman, H. C. Waite, R. C. Corbett, Charles A. Gilman, R. M. Richardson, J. J. Porter, and Henry Hill, their assigns, survivors, and each of them, be, and are hereby, declared directors of said company or corporation for the term of one year from the passage of this act, and until one hundred thousand dollars stock is subscribed and taken, when the stockholders shall choose a new directory, who shall organize in the manner and for the purpose set forth in the tenth section of the act herein amended. And the said directors first above 1769 named shall choose a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, whose powers, duties, and manner of proceeding shall be in conformity to said tenth section of said amended act, till they are superseded by the directors to be chosen by the stockholders, as required by this section: Provided, That they accept this charter as amended by organizing for the purpose of executing and carrying the same into effect within six months from the passage of this act.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the said "act to incorporate the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company" is 1770 hereby declared to be in full force and effect except so far as the same is repealed or modified by this act.

Approved February 23, 1864.

CHAPTER III.

Laws of 1865.

AN ACT granting swamp lands to aid the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company in building branches to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad and the Winona and St. Peter Railroad, or any other railroad in southern Minnesota.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota: 1771

SECTION 1. That there be, and are hereby, granted to the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, incoporated by and organized under an act of the legislature of the late Territory of Minnesota, approved March 1, 1856, to aid said company in the construction of a branch railroad from St. Cloud to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad (or any other road connecting with the waters of Lake Superior) at some point between Chengwatana and the head of Lake Superior, to be determined by said company, all the swamp lands belonging to or that may hereafter belong to the State of Minnesota, which 1772 have not been otherwise appropriated in the sections designated by odd numbers and lying within the several counties through or into which said branch road may run, not exceeding four sections per mile of said branch road, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter specified.

SEC. 2. That to aid said company in constructing a branch road from said St. Cloud to connect with the Winona and St.

1773 Peter Railroad, or any other railroad running in southern Minnesota from east to west, and to strike the Minnesota River at St. Peter or some point between St. Peter and the mouth of Redwood River, there be and are hereby granted to said company all the swamp lands belonging to or that may hereafte-belong to said State in the sections designated by odd numbers, and lying within the counties through or into which said branch road may run, not exceeding four sections per mile of said branch road, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter specified.

SEC. 3. And if upon the completion of either of said branch 1774 roads it shall be found that there shall not be an amount of odd-numbered sections of said swamp lands within the counties through or into which said branch road may pass, equal to four full sections per mile of said branch roads, then the said company shall have the right to and may select from the swamp lands then belonging to said State, and within the several land districts through or into which said branch roads shall pass, other swamp lands designated by odd numbers equal to such deficiency, and the lands so selected by said company shall be certified and conveyed to said company by the governor of the 1775 State.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, that whenever and as often as either of said branch roads shall be continuously graded and ready for the ties throughout all of that portion thereof lying in any one or more of the counties through or into which the same may pass, it shall be the duty of the governor to execute, on behalf of the State, a deed of conveyance to said company of the swamp lands designated as aforesaid, and lying within the said county or counties, and to be selected by said company, equal to two sections per mile of the road so graded; and when-1776 ever, and as often as either of said roads is so far completed through any one or more of the counties through which it may pass as to be ready for the rolling stock, in the judgment of a competent engineer whom the governor shall appoint to report thereon, it shall be the duty of the governor aforesaid to execute a deed of conveyance on behalf of the State to said company for two additional sections of said swamp lands in said county or counties for each mile of the road so finished. And whenever either of said branch roads shall be ready for the rolling stock throughout its entire length, it shall be the duty of 1777

the governor so to deed and convey to said company all the swamp lands designated as aforesaid, in the counties and land districts aforesaid, not exceeding four sections per mile of said branch road: Provided, always, That this act shall not be construed to interfere with the vested rights previously acquired by any other company under the laws of this State or the United States, or with grants for school or other purposes by Congress: Provided, That if said company shall not within five years construct and equip for business with the cars running thereon, at least ten miles of said road, or either of its branches, and the residue 1778 within seven years from the passage of this act, then and in that case all the lands hereby granted, pertaining to the unbuilt portions of said road, or either of its branches, shall be forfeited to the State, except such as are by this act granted to said company for and upon the grading of its line or lines or portions thereof, as herein provided, which last-mentioned lands shall revert to the State, unless the grading is done within the time hereinbefore mentioned for the completion of said road: And provided further, That this grant shall not prejudice or apply to any grant heretofore made to the Southern Minnesota Railroad 1779
Company: And provided always, That this act shall not be construed to interfere with the vested rights previously acquired by any other company under any laws of this State, or the United States, or with grants for schools, asylums, or other charitable purposes made by Congress or the State legislature.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved February 11, 1865.

CHAPTER IV.

Laws of 1865. 1780

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company," approved March first, 1856, and to repeal certain portions of an act amending the charter of said company, passed February 23, 1864.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That whereas the incorporators or persons named in the first section of the act of the legislature of the late Terri-

1781 tory of Minnesota entitled "An act to incorporate the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company," and approved March first, 1856, did, in the manner prescribed by said act, open books and receive subscription to the capital stock of said railroad company to an amount exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, upon which said stock so subscribed the amount or sum of two per cent was actually paid in on or before the 15th day of March, 1857. And whereas the said stockholders of said company have ever preserved and maintained the status given to them by their said several subscriptions and payments (no 1782 further assessments having been made on the said stock), and whereas the holders of said stock have since organized said company by the election of a board of directors, and the other officers named in said act, in the manner therein pointed out, and have received additional subscriptions to the capital stock of said company, upon all of which, two per cent thereof has been actually paid into the treasury of said company, and said company is and ever has been desirous of availing themselves of all the franchises granted by said act. And, whereas, without the consent of said stockholders, or said company, the legis-
1883 lature of the State of Minnesota, by an act approved February 23, 1864, and entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to incorporate the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company,' passed March 1, 1856," did undertake to amend said first-mentioned act by inserting as corporators persons other than those named as corporators in said first mentioned or original act, and other than the stockholders aforesaid; and did, also, in said amendatory act, in like manner, declare the said persons named therein, their assigns, survivors, and each of them, directors of said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad 1784 Company, or said corporation, for the term of one year from the passage of said amendatory act, and until one hundred thousand dollars stock should be subscribed and taken, when the holders of the stock so subscribed and taken were directed to choose a new directory, and to organize in the manner set forth in said original act, and also directing said persons therein named as such directors to choose all the other officers pertaining to said company, and empowering them to act as such until superseded by the directors chosen by the said stockholders, with a proviso, however, that the said persons named in said amendatory act should accept the charter as thus amended, by 1785 organizing for the purpose of executing and carrying the same into effect within six months from the passage thereof; and whereas no stock has been ever subscribed to the capital stock of said railroad company under or pursuant to or by virtue of said amendatory act. Therefore, the first and third sections of said amendatory act are, and each of them is, hereby repealed, and all power or authority conferred or attempted to be conferred by said sections or either of them, as against the incorporators, or persons named in the act thereby amended, or their associates, successors, or the organization in this act first named, 1786 is hereby revoked and annulled.

SEC. 2. The first section of said act, entitled "An act to incorporate the Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad Company," passed March 1, 1856, is hereby reenacted the same as if it was here repeated at length; but the reenactment thereof shall not in any manner injuriously affect the organization of said company first mentioned and referred to in this act, which said organization of said company is hereby in all respects legalized and confirmed, and declared to be the only legal representative of said company or corporation, and shall be recognized and 1787 treated as such in all courts or tribunals in this State or elsewhere; and the several directors and officers thereof, of said organization, and their successors, shall, whenever it shall or may become necessary or important to the interests of said company, be deemed the successors of the persons named as directors in said amendatory act, and of each and every of the officers by said persons chosen under the provisions of said amendatory act. Provided, that no provision in this act or the act to which this act is an amendment shall be so construed as to interfere with the rights, privileges, and franchises of any 1788 other land grant railroad company in this State existing at the time of the passage of this act or of the act to which this is an amendment.

SEC. 3. That the twelfth section of the said act, entitled "An act to incorporate the Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad Company," approved March 1, 1856, is hereby reenacted and amended so as to read as follows:

1789 "SEC. 12. The said corporation is hereby authorized and empowered to connect with or adopt as its own, on such terms as may be agreed upon between the parties or companies interested, any other railroad running in the same general direction with either of its main lines or any branch road which said corporation is authorized to construct, and where there may be any portion of another railroad which may be so used by this company or corporation, it shall not be bound to build such portion of its own road or branches so long as it may use the portion of any other road which may answer the same purpose."

1790 SEC. 4. That section two of said charter or incorporating act is hereby amended by striking out the words "by way of Mille Lac," where they occur in said section.

SEC. 5. That section ten of said act incorporating said company is hereby amended by adding thereto the following:

The said board of directors shall have power at any meeting thereof, upon the written request of the holders of a majority of the stock, to increase or diminish the number of directors therein: Provided, however, That any change so made shall equally effect each class of directors herein provided for. And 1791 in case the number is at any time reduced by virtue hereof, that the director or directors who shall go out of office shall, unless otherwise agreed upon, be determined by lot, by the directors belonging to either class, if they shall be present; and if any one or more shall be absent, the presiding officer at said meeting may appoint some stockholder to act for such absent director. A majority of the directors of the board, after any such change, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

SEC. 6. The said Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad Company shall also have power, in such manner as may be provided

1792 by resolution of its board of directors, to open books and receive subscriptions for stock pertaining solely to any one or more of its main lines, or branch roads, or to any portion of either, in any amount necessary and within the limits prescribed by its charter, and to provide for issuing certificates therefor; and whenever fifty thousand dollars of stock shall be so subscribed, the said stockholders may meet in person or by proxy, at such time and place as said company shall have prescribed, or a majority of the holders of said stock may prescribe, and proceed to elect a subboard of directors, not exceeding nine nor less than five in number, each share of said stock being entitled to one 1793 vote by the holder thereof, which shall be cast in person or by written proxy. The said subdirectors shall elect one of their number to be president of said subboard of directors, and he shall preside at all the meetings thereof at which he shall be present. The said directors shall also elect one of their number vice-president of said subboard, who shall preside in the absence of the president. They shall also elect some suitable person to be secretary, and some suitable person to be treasurer, who shall give such security for the payment of the moneys entrusted to him as such officer as the directors may from time to time re- 1794 quire. A majority of said subdirectors shall form a quorum for the transaction of business. All the affairs of the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, pertaining to the line or branch for the construction of which said stock may be subscribed as aforesaid, shall be conducted by or under the direction of said subboard of directors, and their successors in office, after the organization of said subboard; and the said subboard are hereby authorized for the purposes in this section specified to make and establish regulations and by-laws for their government, and the government of the line or branch to which their 1795 said stock may pertain as aforesaid, and shall have and may exercise all the powers over said line or branch which the board of directors of the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company could have exercised over the same had such subboard of directors been organized; and may do all things necessary to be done in the premises, not inconsistent with the laws of the State or the charter of said company or of this act. The number of subdirectors which shall constitute said subboard after the first organization, their terms of office, the term of office of each of the other officers herein provided for, and the manner 1796 of filling vacancies, shall be regulated by the stockholders, and their compensation by said subboard. From and after the organization of such subboard of directors, all the rights, privileges, franchises, and immunities granted by this or any other act of the legislature of the State or Territory to said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company pertaining to the line or branch for which said subboard of directors may be organized, as aforesaid, and all right, title, interest, or claim of said company in and to all lands granted by any act of the legislature and also pertaining to said line or branch, shall vest in said subboard of directors for the use and benefit of the stockholders represented by said subboard; but the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company shall remain vested with all its other rights, powers, privileges, franchises, lands, and other property. The said subboard may adopt by resolution any name which may designate the particular line or branch of road which they may propose to construct, and by and under such name the stockholders in said line or branch shall be capable of suing and being sued, impleading and being impleaded, defending and being defended against in law or equity, in any and all courts or tribunals as fully as natural persons; and may make and use a common seal, and alter and renew the same at pleasure, and by said name and style shall be capable of contracting and being contracted with, and of acquiring by purchase, gift, grant, or otherwise, and of holding and conveying all such estate and property, real and personal, as may be necessary or convenient to carry into effect the object and purposes of this section and of the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, so far as may concern said line or branch. And neither the stockholders mentioned in this section, nor the line, road, or branch which they may construct by virtue hereof, shall be liable for any debt or liability contracted by said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, after the organization of said subboard of directors, or said subcompany; nor shall any of said stockholders be liable on stock subscribed or held by them for debts, or liabilities incurred after he shall have transferred the same; nor shall said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company be held to answer for any debt, demand, or liability incurred by or under the management of any subboard of directors authorized by this section, except it should become a stockholder therein, and then only to the same extent as other stockholders in said line or branch.

SEC. 7. That any association of persons, corporation or alleged corporation, to whom or to which any legislature of the State or late Territory of Minnesota have granted or shall grant any swamp lands, or the right, title, interest, or claim of the State or said Territory in or to any lands donated by the Congress of the United States to the said Territory or State to aid in the 1801 construction of any railroad or line of railroad where or over a route which the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company is authorized by its charter to build and construct either a main line or branch railroad, may, and is hereby authorized, by deed authorized by a vote of the board of directors of such association, company, or corporation, duly signed by the president, and sealed with the corporate seal thereof, if such association, company, or corporation shall have adopted a seal, to surrender or transfer to said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, or to any branch or line thereof then having a separate 1802 organization, or subboard of directors, as provided by this act, all the right, title, interest, and claim of such association, company, or corporation to any or all lands so granted and applicable or pertaining to said line or branch road, or to any part thereof.

And the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, and each line or branch thereof having a separate organization as in this act provided, are, and each of them is hereby, made capable of accepting and receiving such surrender or transfer of any such grant of lands, or the interest of the Territory or State therein, and of acquiring title to said lands upon the same terms 1803 and conditions as were or may be imposed on the original grantees or association, company, or corporation so surrendering such grant, lands, or interest, except that the time or times which may be limited by such original grant for grading or completing the road or line to which said grant may apply shall commence to run from the date of the said surrender or transfer. And the governor of the State is hereby authorized and required after such surrender, when notification thereof is filed in the office of the secretary of state, to deal in all things concerning said grant with said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, or the 1804 line or branch thereof to whom or to which said surrender shall be made as aforesaid; and to that end he is hereby authorized and required, upon proper written demand, to convey from time to time directly to said company, or the separate line or branch thereof entitled thereto, all the lands embraced in said grant and surrender to which said company, line, or branch may become entitled by virtue hereof, and of said original grant, the same as he may have been authorized to convey to said original grantee or grantees had such surrender not been made.

SEC. 8. The said the Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad Company, and each of its branches, being organized as aforesaid, shall have power to consolidate the whole or any portion of its capital stock with the capital stock or any portion thereof of the road or branch road of any other railroad corporation or company, road of any other railroad corporation or company, having the same general direction or location, or to become merged therein, by way of substitution, upon such terms or conditions as the two companies may agree, by the consent of a majority of the stockholders of each company, and the two companies, when such consolidation has been made, shall control and manage, by the board of directors of both companies acting jointly, such consolidated road until the first election of directors of said consolidating companies, when the stockholders of said companies shall choose at such time and place as they shall agree upon a board of directors, not to exceed eleven in number, who shall have power to adopt a name for such consolidated road and by which they shall be known and recognized; to adopt a common seal; to sue and be sued; contract and be contracted with, and shall have and enjoy all and singular the rights, right of way, privileges, and immunities of said consolidating companies, or either of them, as to such consolidated line before consolidation, which said agreement of consolidation shall be in writing, signed by the president of said consolidating companies, respectively, and a copy thereof filed in the office of the secretary of state.

SEC. 9. The said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company may consolidate any portion of its road and property, and each branch being organized as aforesaid, may consolidate the whole or any portion of its branch road and property, with the franchises of any other railroad company or any portion thereof, upon such terms and conditions as said companies, or a majority of the directors thereof, with the consent of the holders of a majority of the stock, respectively, may agree:

Provided, that said consolidated road shall not be affected by or subject to any liens, judgments, deed of trust, or mortgage, created upon or growing out of any subsequent agreements, liabilities, or transactions connected with any other portion of said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad, or of the road or branch with which it may be so consolidated.

SEC. 10. The Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, 1809 and each of its branches organized as herein provided, shall have power to create and issue in such manner and on such terms as it may deem expedient, one or more classes of preferred stock and special stock, and to make such agreements as it may deem proper with the respective holders thereof as to the dividends thereon, and the securities for such dividends, and to make such agreements as it may deem proper with the holders of any special or preferred stock for the appropriation of the net earnings of any portion of the railroad which it may construct or otherwise acquire, to the payment of dividends on such stock as may be 1810 issued in respect thereto, which appropriation, as made by such agreement shall be effectual to secure to the said and future holders of such stock the application of such net earnings as in the said agreement provided, against any future act of the company or branch or any of its general liabilities. And the said company or branches may make such agreement as it may deem proper with the holders of any such special stock as to the administration of the portion of said railroad and any land grant appertaining thereto to which said stock may pertain and for the separate organization of the holders of such special stock 1811 for the purpose of that administration and enabling them or directors chosen by them separately or in conjunction with the other directors, to exercise in respect to the portion of the road to which such special stock may pertain all the powers of the company subject to the provisions of such agreement when made and entered into.

SEC. 11. The Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, and each of its branches so organized, shall have power to provide in any mortgage or deed of trust which it may issue covering any portion of its road now built, or hereafter to be built, 1812 that the holders of the bonds secured by such deeds of trust or mortgage, shall have the right to vote at any meetings held for the election of directors of said company or branch or for any other purpose, and such voting power to be to such extent as may be provided for, either in such deed of trust or mortgage, or in the bonds issued by said company. And all meetings both of directors or stockholders of said company or branch, may be held either within or without the State of Minnesota, or any of the United States, in the city of London, England, or any foreign state or country, as shall be provided for by the by-laws of said company or branch, and all or any of the directors may be residents of the city of London aforesaid, or of any foreign country.

SEC. 12. The Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, and each branch thereof having a separate organization as above provided for, may consolidate the whole or any portion of its main lines or branch railroads, and all the property, rights, powers, franchises, grants, and effects pertaining to such roads, with the rights, powers, franchises, grants, and effects of any other railroad company either within or without this State, upon such terms and conditions as such company or branch organization, or a majority of the directors thereof, may respectively agree, and the railroad company in which such railroad shall become vested by such consolidation, shall thereafter hold and enjoy all rights, grants, and powers, and franchises in respect to such with the company or branch possessed before the consolidation, but the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company or branch organization thereof shall remain vested with all its other rights, powers, privileges, and franchises.

SEC. 13. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved February 28, 1865.

CHAPTER LVI.

Laws of 1869.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act granting swamp lands to aid the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company in building branches to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad and the Winona and St. Peter Railroad, or any other railroad in southern Minnesota."

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

That section one of the said act be amended so as to read as follows:

SEC. 1. That there be, and there hereby are, granted to the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, incorporated by and organized under an act of the legislature of the late Territory of Minnesota, approved March 1, 1856, to aid the said company in the construction of a branch railroad from St. Cloud to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad (or 1817 any other road connecting with the waters of Lake Superior) at some point between Snake River and the head of Lake Superior, to be determined by the said company, an amount of swamp lands belonging to, or that may hereafter belong to the State of Minnesota not otherwise granted, equal to ten (10) full sections for each mile of the said road; provided that this grant of lands shall not prejudice or affect the rights of any other railroad company, any asylum, charitable institutions, or school to any lands heretofore granted.

SEC. 2. Whenever any ten consecutive miles of the said rail- 1818 road shall be completed and ready for the rolling stock, it shall be the duty of the governor to execute on behalf of the State a deed of conveyance to the said company, the full quota of said lands for the portion of said road so completed: Provided, That if the said company shall not construct and equip for business, with cars running thereon, at least ten miles of the said road within three years from the first day of December, A. D. 1869, and the residue within six years from the last date aforesaid, then and in that case, all the lands hereby granted pertaining to the unbuilt portion of the said road shall be forfeited to the State.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and 1819 after its passage.

Approved March 5, 1869.

CHAPTER LIII.

Laws of 1869.

AN ACT to amend the charter of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That the name of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, and that of any of its branches, or any division or portion of its roads, subject to the control of said company, may be changed by a resolution of the board of directors of said company, to any other name or names; and upon filing 1820
a duly authenticated copy of such resolution in the office of the secretary of state, the said company, or branch, division, or portion of said road shall be known by the names or names respectively adopted and designated in such resolution, and the 1821 stockholders may, by resolution, increase their directors to any number not exceeding fifteen or decrease the number to seven.

SEC. 2. The times limited for the grading and completing the respective portions of said road is hereby extended for the period of four years.

SEC. 3. Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the board of directors, by resignation or from any other cause, the vacancies shall be filled for the unexpired term by the president and secretary of said company.

SEC. 4. The said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Com-
1822 pany are hereby authorized to survey, construct, operate, and maintain, under the provisions and restrictions of their charter, a branch road from St. Cloud up the Sauk Valley to some point upon the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, or to some point on the Red River of the North, by the way of Alexandria, and all the rights, franchises, privileges, and immunities heretofore granted to said company upon the main line or any branch thereof shall apply to said branch road, as fully to all intents and purposes as the rights and privileges heretofore granted to said company.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and 1823 after its passage.

Approved March 6, 1869.

CHAPTER LII.

Laws of 1870.

AN ACT to amend the charter of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That in consideration of an annual payment of a per centum upon the gross earnings of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad as herein provided, the road, its appurtenances 1824 and appendages, and all other property, estate, and effects of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, which they have already acquired or which they may hereafter acquire, purchase, hold, possess, enjoy or use for, in or about the construction, equipment, renewal, repair, maintaining, or operating its railroad, as also the stock and capital of said company, shall be and hereby are forever exempt from all assessments and taxation; and in consideration of the grants made to and privileges and franchises conferred upon said company, and of the exemp- 1825 tion contained in this section, the said company shall, during the first three years after thirty miles of said railroad shall be completed and in operation, on or before the first day of March of each and every year, pay into the treasury of the State one per cent on the gross earnings of said railroad, the first payment to be made on the first day of March next after the said railroad shall be completed and in operation, and shall, during the seven years next ensuing after the expiration of the three years aforesaid, pay into the treasury of this State on or before the first day of March of each and every year 1826 two per cent on the gross earnings of said railroad; and shall, from and after the expiration of ten years from the completion of thirty miles of said railroad, on or before the first day of March of each and every year, pay into the treasury of this State three per cent of the gross earnings of said railroad. And the payment of such per centum annually, as aforesaid, shall be and is in full of all taxation and assessment whatever. And for the purpose of ascertaining the gross earnings aforesaid, an accurate account of such earnings shall be kept by said company, an abstract whereof shall be furnished 1827 by said company to the treasurer of this State on or before the first day of February in each year, the truth of which abstracts shall be verified by affidavits of the secretary and treasurer of said company; and for the purpose of ascertaining the truth of such affidavits and the correctness of such abstract full power is hereby vested in the governor of this State or any other person appointed by law to examine under oath the officers and employees of said company or other persons, and if any person so examined by the governor or other authorized person shall knowingly or willingly swear falsely concerning the matter 1828 aforesaid, every such person is declared to have committed perjury. And for securing to the State the payment of the aforesaid per centum, it is hereby declared that the State shall have a lien upon the railroad of said company and upon all the property, estate, and effects of said company whatever, real, personal, or mixed, and the lien hereby secured to the State shall take and have precedence of all demands, decrees, and judgments against said company.

1829 SEC. 2. The provisions of the foregoing section are hereby extended to the said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad and all its branches.

SEC. 3. This act shall take affect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved, March 2, 1870.

CHAPTER CCCXXV.

Laws of 1879.

AN ACT to extend the time for the construction and completion of a branch of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad.

1830 Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That the time for the construction, completion, and equipment of that branch of the Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad from St. Cloud, to connect with the Winona and St. Peter Railroad, or any other railroad running in southern Minnesota from east to west, and to strike the Minnesota River at St. Peter or some point between St. Peter and the mouth of Redwood River, being the same branch road mentioned and referred to in section two of chapter three of the special laws of 1831 the year 1865, approved February 11, 1865, be and the same is hereby extended until the 25th day of December, 1885, and all the rights, privileges, franchises, and immunities heretofore granted to the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company are hereby continued and extended until the said 25th day of December, A. D. 1885. And if the said branch road shall at the date last aforesaid be fully completed and equipped, then and in such case the said rights, privileges, franchises, and immunities shall continue and be perpetual, as is in and by the 1832 original act of incorporation of said railway company and the acts amendatory thereof provided.

SEC. 2. This act shall not take effect or be in force until a consolidation shall have been perfected in the manner prescribed in chapter four of the special laws of the year 1865, approved February 28, 1865, of the capital stock representing and controlling the said branch road, with the capital stock of the Mankato and St. Cloud Railroad Company, now organized or being organized as a corporation under General Statutes of this State by articles of incorporation bearing date on the 20th day 1833 of February, A. D. 1879; and from and after such consolidation this act shall take effect and be in force.

Approved March 11, 1879.

CHAPTER 123.

Laws of 1881.

AN ACT to amend chapter fifty-six (56) of the special laws of 1869, page 249, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled An act granting swamp 1834 lands to aid the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company in building branches to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad and the Winona and St. Peter Railroad, or any other railroad in southern Minnesota."

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SECTION 1. That section one (1) of chapter fifty-six (56) of the special laws of A. D. 1869, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled An act granting swamp lands to aid the Minneapolis 1835 and St. Cloud Railroad Company in building branches to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad and the Winona and St. Peter Railroad, or any other railroad in southern Minnesota," be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to allow and authorize said Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, under the provisions of its charter, and the amendments thereto, and of said act to which this is amendatory, to construct and operate its said branch in said section mentioned, so as to con- 1836 nect with any other railroad at Wyoming or any point north thereof.

SEC. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 7, 1881.

1837

CHAPTER 81.

Laws of 1885.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act granting swamp lands to aid the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company in building branches to connect with the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad and the Winona and St. Peter Railroad, or any other railroad in southern Minnesota," approved February 11, A. D. 1865, as amended.

Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Minnesota:

SEC. 1. Section two (2) of the act mentioned in the title hereof, being chapter three (3) of the special laws of 1865, as amended by section one (1) of chapter sixty-five (65) of the special laws of 1881, special session, is hereby amended so as 1838 to read as follows:

SEC. 2. That to aid said company, its successors or assigns, in constructing a branch road from St. Cloud to the Southern Minnesota Railroad, so called, to run by the way of the villages of Litchfield and Hutchinson and the city of Mankato and the city of Austin, there be, and are hereby, granted to said company, its successors or assigns, all the swamp lands belonging to, or that may hereafter belong to the State of Minnesota, in the sections designated by odd numbers, and lying within the counties through or into which said branch road may run, not exceed-1839 ing four (4) sections per mile of all that part of said branch railroad extending from St. Cloud to the Southern Minnesota Railroad, so called, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter specified in sections two (2) and three (3) of said chapter three (3) of said special laws of 1865, as amended by section two (2) of chapter sixty-five (65) of the special laws of 1881; and the said act is hereby further amended by inserting the words "its successors or assigns," after the word "company," wherever said word occurs in said sections.

SEC. 3. That whenever the St. Cloud, Mankato and Austin 1840 Railroad Company, its successors or assigns, shall, before December 25, A. D. 1887, to which time the swamp land grant of said company is hereby extended, construct and equip for the transportation of freight and passengers any one (1) or more sections of twenty (20) continuous miles of any part of that branch of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad, now known as the St. Cloud, Mankato and Austin Railroad, substan- 1841 tially upon the survey made via the villages of Litchfield and Hutchinson by said company, then and in such case the governor shall certify and convey to said company, its successors or assigns, eighty (80) sections of the swamp lands heretofore granted for the construction of said road, and so on as often as any further continuous sections of ten (10) miles as extensions thereof shall be so completed and equipped, then the governor shall in like manner certify and convey to said company, its successors or assigns, a further quantity of forty (40) sections of the swamp lands granted as aforesaid, until the full completion 1842 of said road: Provided, That this act shall not operate to affect any lands not heretofore granted.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 10, 1885.

We, James J. Hill, president, and Edward Sawyer, secretary of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, hereby certify that at a meeting of the board of directors of this company, duly held at the office of this company, in the city of St. Paul, on September 16, 1889, the following resolution was duly 1843 adopted by the said board:

"Resolved, That the name of this company be, and the same hereby is, changed to the 'Great Northern Railway Company.'

"Resolved further, That the president and secretary of this company file with the secretary of state of the State of Minnesota a copy of this resolution, certified under their hands and the seal of this company."

In testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed the seal of the said company on this 16th day of September, A. D. 1889. 1844

[CORPORATE SEAL.] JAS. J. HILL, President.
E. SAWYER, Secretary.

Filed in this office for record Sept. 18th, A. D. 1889, at 4 o'clock p. m.

H. MATTSON,
Secretary of State.

1845 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

State of Minnesota, Department of State:

I, P. E. Hanson, secretary of state of the State of Minnesota, do hereby certify that I have compared the annexed copy with the original acts in my office of special laws, being chapter 160, laws of 1856; chapter 5, laws of 1864; chapters 3 and 4, laws of 1865; chapter 56, laws of 1869; chapter 53, laws of 1869; chapter 52, laws of 1870; chapter 325, laws of 1879; chapter 123, laws of 1881; chapter 81, laws of 1885, and resolution of the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company, as 1846 filed September 18, 1889, and that said copy is a true and correct transcript of said original special acts and resolution, and of the whole thereof.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State at the capital in St. Paul, this 20th day of Sept., A. D. nineteen hundred and two.

[SEAL.] P. E. HANSON,

Secretary of State.

The following is a copy of the Twelfth Annual Report of the 1847
Great Northern Railway Company, offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT B.

TWELFTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, FISCAL YEAR ENDED JUNE 30, 1901.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

DIRECTORS.

James N. Hill (term expires 1901)	St. Paul.
Jacob H. Schiff (term expires 1901)	New York.
Henry W. Cannon (term expires 1901)	New York. 1848
James J. Hill (term expires 1902)	St. Paul.
W. P. Clough (term expires 1902)	St. Paul.
Samuel Hill (term expires 1902)	Minneapolis.
R. I. Farrington (term expires 1903)	St. Paul.
Edward Sawyer (term expires 1903)	St. Paul.
M. D. Grover (term expires 1903)	St. Paul.

OFFICERS.

J. J. Hill, president	St. Paul.
W. P. Clough, vice-president	St. Paul.
D. Miller, second vice-president	St. Paul. 1849
J. N. Hill, third vice-president	St. Paul.
E. Sawyer, treasurer and assistant secretary	St. Paul.
E. T. Nichols, secretary and assistant treasurer	New York.
R. I. Farrington, comptroller	St. Paul.
M. D. Grover, general solicitor	St. Paul.
F. E. Ward, general superintendent	St. Paul.
F. B. Clarke, general traffic manager	St. Paul.
J. F. Stevens, chief engineer	St. Paul.
N. Terhune, transfer agent	New York.

TWELFTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY. 1850

To the stockholders:

The president and directors submit the following report for the year ended June 30th, 1901:

FINANCIAL.

CAPITAL STOCK.

The authorized share capital of the Great Northern Railway Company June 30th, 1900, as shown in last year's report, was	$99,000,000.00

1851 At an adjourned annual meeting, held October 16th, 1900, the stockholders approved the action taken by the board of directors April 20th, 1900, and authorized an increase of $1,000,000.00 in the share capital, the additional shares to be issued only to the Great Northern Employes' Investment Company, Limited, in accordance with the terms of contract with said company, and as explained on page 7 of last year's report.

At a meeting February 27th, 1901, the directors adopted resolutions authorizing an increase of the capital stock by..... 25,000,000.00

1852 "for the purpose of acquiring the several bonds or stocks, or both, to an aggregate amount of not less than $25,000,000.00 principal, of the following named companies:

1. St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company.
2. The Dakota and Great Northern Railway Company.
3. The Montana and Great Northern Railway Company.
4. The Kootenay Railway and Navigation Company, Limited.
5. The Washington and Great Northern Railway Company.
6. The Seattle and Northern Railway Company.

1853 7. The Great Northern Steamship Company."

On March 18th, 1901, the president issued a circular to the stockholders asking their assent to this proposed increase in share capital, and offering the additional shares for subscription by them at par, payments to be made as specified in the circular.

Assents having been received from the holders of more than seventy-five per cent of the stock outstanding, it was announced, on April 17th, 1901, that all subscriptions had become binding and effective, thus making the Authorized share capital, June 30th, 1901 ..... $125,000,000.00

Of the capital authorized there had been issued prior to 1854 June 30th, 1900 (page 5, last year's report)..... $98,413,500.00

There have been issued during the year

182½ shares, amounting to..... 18,250.00 in exchange for 146 shares of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company, making the total number of shares of that company now held by the Great Northern Company 195,454 ($19,545,400).

2,800 shares, amounting to 280,000.00 have been transferred to the Great Northern Employes' Investment Company, Limited, under the contract mentioned.

Total outstanding June 30th, 1901 ..... $98,711,750.00

Shares of the Great Northern in number 5,682½ are held in 1855 the treasury of the company, not used in acquiring the outstanding 4,546 shares of Manitoba stock, and Shares in number 7,200 are also held in the treasury to be issued only to the investment company as subscribed for.

The average date of payment for the 250,000 shares of stock referred to in circular of March 18th, 1901, having been August 1st, 1901, the stock has been issued as of that date, and the net cash payments received prior to July 1st, 1901, on account of same, $8,358,708.00, are taken up on the balance sheet (page 35) as "Net paid subscriptions to additional capital stock." 1856

As the bonds of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company to be acquired in accordance with the terms of the resolution above quoted are to be paid for by assignment of the equities of the stockholders therein, which assignment was not completed until final payment was made for the new stock, September 25th, 1901, they are not included on the balance sheet, page 35, in "Cost of properties and securities owned by the Great Northern Railway Company." For the same reason the cost of the improvements covered by these bonds has not been transferred from "Cost of additions, etc., to property 1857 leased from the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company, etc.," to "Cost of railway, equipment, and lands owned by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company."

These adjustments will appear in the accounts for the year ending June 30th, 1902.

Of the securities of the Kootenay Railway and Navigation Company, Limited, there had been acquired June 30th, 1901, substantially all of the £500,000 common stock and £219,717 10s. of the £480,000 debenture stock issued. The cost of same 1858 is included in the item "Cost of properties and securities owned by the Great Northern Railway Company" on the balance sheet.

The properties owned by the Kootenay Company and by the Seattle and Northern Railway Company, as well as the several lines of railway now under construction, are described hereinafter under the head of "New lines."

BONDED DEBT.

There has been a net reduction of $594,000 during the year in the bonded debt of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba

1859 Railway Company, as will be seen by reference to table on page 34, made up as follows:

Consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent bonds redeemed and canceled by the trustee through the operation of the sinking fund, as per detail on pages 40 and 41		$718,000
Less bonds issued:
On account of construction of Spring Park Extension	$123,000
On account of first-mortgage bond redeemed September 15th, 1899	1,000
1860 In exchange for St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company's second-mortgage bonds surrendered and canceled	140,000
In exchange for St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company's Dakota extension mortgage bonds surrendered and canceled	51,000
Total issued		$315,000
Net reduction in consolidated mortgage 4½ per cent bonds		$403,000
Second-mortgage six per cent bonds, canceled as above		$140,000
Dakota extension mortgage six per cent bonds, canceled as 1861 above		51,000
Total reduction in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company's bonded debt		$594,000

The Montana Central Railway Company issued during the year $700,000 of its first-mortgage five per cent bonds to pay for additional equipment and facilities for and improvements of its railway. The issue of $10,000,000 bonds authorized under this mortgage is now completed. The new bonds were turned over to the Great Northern Railway Company in part payment of advances made by that company for the purposes mentioned, 1862 and they are now held in its treasury.

PURCHASE OF BURLINGTON STOCK.

The Great Northern Railway Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company have jointly purchased 1,075,772 shares ($107,577,200) of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company (being 96.79 per cent of the total authorized issue), and in payment for same have issued their joint collateral trust bonds and scrip to the amount of $215,154,400. Further bonds of the same series, up to a total of $222,400,000, may be issued for acquiring the residue of the stock. The bonds are dated and draw interest from July 1st, 1901; they mature July 1st, 1921, but may be redeemed on the 1863 first day of any January or July after January 1st, 1906, at 105 per cent with accrued interest; and draw interest at the rate of four (4) per cent per annum, payable January 1st and July 1st in each year on coupon bonds, and January 1st, April 1st, July 1st, and October 1st, in each year on registered bonds.

The shares of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad stock thus acquired have been deposited with the Standard Trust Company of New York, as trustee, under a collateral trust indenture securing the above bonds, and a contract has been entered into between the Great Northern and the Northern 1864 Pacific companies defining the rights and responsibilities of the companies growing out of the acquisition of the stock.

As this transaction was not completed until after the close of the fiscal year, neither this company's interest in the Burlington stock acquired, nor its liability on the joint collateral bonds issued, are taken up in the accounts shown in this report.

The map published herewith shows the relation to each other of the lines of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and Burlington systems.

The Burlington system includes 7,992.60 miles of standard 1865 gauge railroad (on which are 423.15 miles of second track, making 8,415.75 miles of standard gauge single track) and 178.77 miles of narrow gauge railroad. It is located in the States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, and Montana, a territory of great extent; rich in all resources except timber; already well populated and developed and containing many large cities.

The Burlington is favorably located, with ample terminals in the important traffic centers of this territory, including Chicago,
St. Louis, Peoria, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Omaha, Denver, St. 1866
Paul, Minneapolis, Burlington, and Des Moines. The territory served by the Burlington produces most of the machinery and implements used on the farms, in the forests, mines, and mills of the tier of States reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. It also produces a large part of the iron and steel products exported to Asia via the Pacific Ocean. Chicago, Kansas City, St. Joseph, and Omaha are the largest provision centers in the country. At St. Louis it connects with the chief cotton carrying lines of the South and Southwest. On the other 1867 hand the Burlington territory takes for fattening the live stock raised on the Northern and Western farms and ranches. It consumes lumber in all shapes on a large scale.

The timber of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will soon be gone. The forests of the State of Washington must hereafter, to an increasing extent, supply the demand for lumber in the prairie States of the Middle West. Those forests are now the most extensive and most available body of sawing timber standing in the United States. The Great Northern penetrates them in many places and should be in a position to reach a market 1868 and secure the haul of the vast tonnage they are capable of affording. The size and value of this traffic will constantly increase.

In addition to outstanding and authorized stock of the Burlington, averaging approximately $13,139 per mile of track, there are outstanding in the hands of the public, after deducting sinking funds in the treasury, bonds on the system amounting approximately to $15,829 per mile, making the capitalization of the system approximately $28,968 per mile of standard gauge track.

1869

GENERAL.

Expenditures were made during the year on the capital accounts of proprietary companies for work completed or under construction, as follows:

Eastern Railway Company of Minnesota	$2,266,706.87
Montana Central Railway Company	424,879.03
Willmar and Sioux Falls Railway Company	517,357.33
Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Railway Company	1,776.60
Seattle and Montana Railroad Company	181,344.38
Duluth Terminal Railway Company (Credit)	3,000.69
1870 Park Rapids and Leech Lake Railway Company	14,924.77
Minneapolis Union Railway Company (Credit)	2,331.12
Total	3,401,657.17

The entire balance of income account for the year, amounting, as per table on page 30, to $1,689,064.28, has been transferred to "Fund for permanent improvements and renewals;" and there has been charged against that fund $1,898,878.53, the cost of improvements (other than those charged to operation) made during the year to the property leased from the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company.

NEW LINES. 1871

Of the new lines referred to in last year's report as being built by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company, the following were completed and opened for traffic:

August 1st, 1900: Extension of Lake Minnetonka line from Spring Park to St. Bonifacius, Minn., 8.22 miles.

October 7th, 1900: Line through Everett, Washington, 3.63 miles.

December 20, 1900: Line through Cascade Tunnel, including approaches, 3.52 miles.

June 14, 1901: Line through Spokane, Washington, 5.09 1872 miles of main track and 1.19 miles of second track.

The completion of these lines permitted the abandonment and removal of—

Line from Hopkins to St. Bonifacius, Minn., 19.66 miles, and Switchback over Cascade Mountains, 12.66 miles. Also the surrender of trackage rights over 4.80 miles of track in Spokane, Washington, and 5.25 miles between Lowell and Everett, Washington, belonging to other companies.

The line of the Eastern Railway Company of Minnesota from Stony Brook north, also mentioned last year, is 46.49 miles in 1873 length, and was opened for traffic August 1st, 1901.

The Dakota and Great Northern Railway Company is now building a line extending about thirty miles northerly from Lakota, North Dakota, and a line extending from Bottineau, North Dakota, about twelve miles northwest. It is expected that these two lines will be completed in time to move this year's crop.

The Montana and Great Northern Railway Company is building from Jennings, Montana, northerly along the Kootenay River, about fifty-one miles, to the international boundary, 1874 where it will connect with a line being built by the Crow's Nest Southern Railway Company to the coal fields of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, at Fernie, B. C. The length of the lines from Jennings to Fernie, including spurs, will be about one hundred miles.

Crow's Nest Pass coal and coke are of a superior quality. The coal company's plant is being enlarged and the output increased. In addition to furnishing coal for company use and 1875 for commercial and domestic purposes in the Northwest, these mines are expected to supply the smelters at Great Falls, Butte, Anaconda, Northport, and Everett, and will furnish a heavy and profitable traffic.

Since the close of the fiscal year the Montana and Great Northern Railway Company has purchased the line of the Great Falls and Canada Railway, extending from Great Falls, Mont., to Sweet Grass on the international boundary, 134.37 miles. This line is now narrow gauge, and, until widened to standard gauge during the current fiscal year, it will be operated 1876 by the Great Falls and Canada Railway Company. The map published herewith shows the material reduction in length of haul on shipments between points west of Shelby Junction and south of Great Falls, resulting from the acquisition of this line.

As a portion of a projected extension, the Montana and Great Northern Railway Company has built 10.32 miles of line from Kalispell, Mont., south to Flathead Lake.

The Washington and Great Northern Railway Company in the State of Washington, and the Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern Railway and Navigation Company, Limited, in British 1877 Columbia, are now building lines of railway that will form a through line from Marcus, Washington, on the Spokane Falls and Northern Railway, to Republic, Washington, via Kettle River and Cascade, B. C., a total distance, including branches, of about 108 miles. This line will afford transportation to several large, rich, and already well-developed mining camps, and its opening for traffic will be followed by the development of many properties that have been waiting for rail transportation. It is expected that this line will add largely to the company's traffic and revenue.

1878 The line of the Seattle and Northern Railway Company extends from Anacortes to Rockport, Washington, 57.4 miles, crossing this company's existing lines at Burlington, Washington. This line runs through a heavily timbered country and will develop a large lumber and coal traffic.

The properties owned by the Kootenay Railway and Navigation Company, Limited, are:

The Kootenai Valley Railway, in the State of Idaho, and the Bedlington and Nelson Railway, in British Columbia, together forming a line of standard-gauge railway from Bonners Ferry, 1879

Idaho, to Kuskonook, British Columbia, 41.25 miles, with trackage rights over 8.70 miles of track of another company;

The International Navigation and Trading Company, Limited, operating steamers on Kootenay and Duncan Lakes and the Duncan River; and

The Kaslo and Slocan Railway, owning and operating a line of narrow-gauge railway from Kaslo to Cody and Sandon, British Columbia, 31.80 miles.

All of the above lines are shown on the map published herewith. 1880

Good progress has been made during the year on the two steamships referred to on page 28 of last year's report, being built for the Great Northern Steamship Company by the Eastern Shipbuilding Company at New London, Conn.

REVISION OF LINES.

Reference was made on page 24 of last year's report to the revision of lines for the purpose of reducing grades and curvature.

Changes of this character completed during the year were:

Between the summit of the Rocky Mountains and Havre, Mont., 41.73 miles of new in place of 42.88 miles of old line, 1881 reducing maximum grade from one per cent to eight-tenths of one per cent, and materially reducing curvature. This mileage includes the 9.12 miles at Durham and Midvale mentioned last year as under construction.

Between Teton and Tunis, Montana, 16.65 miles of new in place of 13.04 miles of old line, reducing grades from two and two-tenths per cent to six-tenths of one per cent, besides reducing curvature.

At Sydney, Montana, 2.05 miles of new in place of an equal length of old line, reducing grades from one per cent to six- 1882 tenths of one per cent, and reducing curvature.

Between Wickes Tunnel and Boulder, Montana, on the Montana Central Railway, 9.04 miles of new in place of 9.29 miles of old line, reducing grade from two and two-tenths per cent to one per cent.

The work on these three lines was referred to last year, and has been very heavy.

In addition, the alignment has been changed along the Wenatchee River, 2.26 miles of new being built in place of 2.39 miles of old line. In connection with this work steel bridges have been erected over the three crossings of the Wenatchee River.

The grades between Galena and Espanola., Wash., on the Cascade Division have been reduced from one per cent to eight-tenths of one per cent.

The work of changing the line between Huntley Coulee and Great Falls, Mont., 22.62 miles, referred to last year, has been continued, and, it is expected, will be completed by November 1st, 1901. On this line steel bridges are being erected over the north fork of Portage Coulee and over the Missouri River near Great Falls.

Work is now in progress improving the alignment on the Cascade Division by building 2.89 miles of new line between Harrington and Moscow and 1.42 miles of new line between Moscow and Edwall, Wash.

A new line is being built from Belleville to Fairhaven, Wash., on the Seattle and Montana Railroad, 18.90 miles, reducing the maximum grade from two and one-half per cent to one-half of one per cent.

EQUIPMENT.

The following equipment has been sold or taken out of service during the year:

11 light Great Northern Railway locomotives.

2 light locomotives acquired by the Eastern Railway in 1898 in purchase of Duluth, Superior and Western Railway.

42 small flat cars taken over with the Sioux City and Western Railway, January 1st, 1900, and

1 small steam shovel acquired by the Eastern Railway in 1899 in purchase of Duluth, Mississippi River and Northern Railroad.

The report for last year stated that of the equipment previously ordered 26 locomotives, 1 official car, and 1,250 freight-service cars had not been received and taken into account at the end of the year.

During the present year orders were placed for 60 locomotives and 62 passenger-service cars, of which none had been received and taken into account at the end of the year, and 2,300 freight- 1887 service cars.

Of the total new equipment undelivered at the close of last year and ordered this year, the following had been received and taken into account at the close of this year:

23 twelve-wheel freight engines, 19" x 32" cylinders, weighing 148,000 pounds on drivers.

2 six-wheel switch engines, 19" x 28" cylinders, weighing 137,000 pounds on drivers.

1 six-wheel switch engine, 19" x 26" cylinders, weighing 137,000 pounds on drivers. 1888

1 business car.

300 thirty-six feet 60,000 pounds capacity box cars, for the Willmar and Sioux Falls Railway.

200 forty-feet 100,000 pounds capacity gondola cars.

100 forty-feet 100,000 pounds capacity sand cars.

200 forty-feet 80,000 pounds capacity flat cars.

400 thirty-six feet 100,000 pounds capacity wooden ore cars.

250 twenty-two feet 100,000 pounds capacity hopper-bottom steel cars.

100 thirty-one feet 100,000 pounds capacity hopper-bottom 1889 steel ore cars.

The above freight-service equipment is all equipped with air brakes and automatic couplers.

The remaining 2,000 freight-service cars are now being delivered.

There were also purchased during the year:

2 sample box cars,

1 sample ore car, and

1 wrecking car.

There were built at the company's shop for additional equip- 1890
ment:

37 four-wheel caboose cars, and

8 cars for Lidgerwood unloaders.

There was expended during the year for equipment $1,720,570.55, of which amount $1,460,301.62 was charged to "equipment account."

As equipment is destroyed or taken out of service operating expense is charged and "fund for replacement of equipment"

1891 is credited with the cost of replacing same. When equipment for replacements is purchased the cost of same is charged to the account last mentioned.

ADDITIONS AND IMPROVEMENTS.

Interlocking plants have been put in at Manley, Minnesota, and Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Pneumatic crossing gates have been placed at Monroe street and Twenty-fifth avenue S. E., Minneapolis.

The terminal of the Montana and Kalispell divisions has been changed from Blackfoot to Cut Bank, Montana, and there 1892 have been built at the latter point, in addition to an adequate yard, a 15-stall brick roundhouse with heating and steam plant, boiler house 30′ x 33′, machine shop 25′ x 44′, 66′ steel turntable, 70′ cinder pit, 20-pocket coaling station, permanent water supply plant, and a frame boarding house 35′ x 87′ to accommodate the company's employes.

The yard at Willmar, Minn., has been revised and enlarged and the following new buildings erected: 26-stall brick roundhouse with boiler house, heating and steam plant, machine shop, 66′ steel turntable, 70′ cinder pit, brick storehouse 30′ x 40′, 1893 brick oil house 24′ x 26′, 20-pocket coaling station and improved water-supply plant. A new ice house, 26′ x 150′ has been built to accommodate the increasing traffic.

The work of building a new yard at Havre, Montana, and of erecting standard shops and buildings for a division point, in place of the present buildings, which have been outgrown, is now in progress.

A new yard is being built at Everett, Washington; also a line between Lowell and a point of connection with the coast line above Everett, including steel overhead bridges and draw bridge 1894 over Snohomish River, brick roundhouse, boiler house, machine shop with full equipment, coaling station, etc., etc.

The yard at Sioux City, Iowa, has been increased by four tracks and by a connection with the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway.

Three additional tracks have been laid in the yard at East Spokane, Washington.

The double track on the Eastern Railway of Minnesota has been extended 1.09 miles between Boylston, Minn., and State Line and 3.38 miles between Cloquet and Carlton, Minn. 1895

The change of line through Cloquet, Minn., including double track and yard, is practically completed.

The laying of additional passing tracks 3,000′ long and the extension of old tracks to that standard length, have been continued during the year, and in addition many house tracks and tracks for local industries have been laid. The net increase in side-track mileage during the year, including these tracks and such tracks in the new yards previously mentioned as were laid June 30th, is as follows: 1896

Line leased from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Co	49.44 miles
Line leased from Park Rapids and Leech Lake Railway Co	.30 "
Seattle and Montana Railroad	3.60 "
Eastern Railway of Minnesota	8.28 "
Duluth Terminal Railway	.01 "
Montana Central Railway	.86 "
Willmar & Sioux Falls Railway	2.53 "
Spokane Falls and Northern Railway system	1.38 "
Total	66.40 miles

1897

During the year 67.13 miles of main line tracks have been relaid with 80-pound rail and 68.35 miles with 68-pound in place of lighter rails taken out and used in the construction of passing, yard, and other tracks.

Between Williston and Glasgow, Montana, 150 miles of 77½-pound rail are being laid in place of 60-pound rail.

On all new tracks built and tracks relaid, tie plates are being used, they are also being regularly put in all main tracks. During the year 1,825,442 of them were placed, making the number now in track 4,479,442.

A permanent lining of the Wickes tunnel, on the Montana Central Railway, is being completed. 1898

A tie-treating plant has been built at Flathead Lake, about ten and one-half miles south of Kalispell, Montana, for the purpose of preserving ties by the Wellhouse modification of the ordinary burnettizing process. When fully in operation it is expected this plant will treat 4,000 ties per day. This process increases the life of ties and the use of treated ties will materially reduce the annual charges for tie renewals.

1899 A brick addition 75′ x 200′ has been made to the coach paint shop at St. Paul, Minnesota.

A brick freight house 50′ x 600′ has been built at Spokane, Washington, and is being used by both the Great Northern and Spokane Falls and Northern railways. A brick passenger station at this place is under construction, to be completed December 31st, 1901. A brick freight house has been built at Everett, Washington.

On account of change of line between Teton and Tunis, the station at Benton, Montana, has been relocated and a new depot, freight shed, wool warehouse, and two section houses have been 1900 built.

New depots have been built at the following stations:

New Germany, Minn.	Baker, Minn.	Maza, Nor. Dak.
Spring Park, Minn.	Wolverton, Minn.	Penn, Nor. Dak.
St. Bonifacius, Minn.	McLean, Nebr.	Chester, Mont.
Kandiyohi, Minn.	Rauville, So. Dak.	Browning, Mont.
Ihlen, Minn.	Cavalier, Nor. Dak.	Newport, Wash.
Donnelly, Minn.	Barton, Nor. Dak.	Odessa, Wash.
Halloway, Minn.	Edinburgh, Nor. Dak.	Old Mission, Wash.
Borup, Minn.	Granville, Nor. Dak.

Numerous other depots have been altered and enlarged.

1901 Freight sheds were built at Nevis, Minn., and Wenatchee, Wash.

Section houses have been built at the following stations:

Spring Park, Minn.	Coram, Mont.	Mt. Vernon, Wash.
Cascade, Mont.	Kalispell, Mont.	Richmond Beach, Wash.
Craig, Mont.	Libby Creek, Mont.	Snohomish, Wash.
Dearborn, Mont.	Troy, Mont.	Sultan, Wash.
Hardy, Mont.	East Spokane, Wash.	Stanwood, Wash.
Mitchell, Mont.	Edmonds, Wash.	Silvana, Wash.
Silver, Mont.	Harrington, Wash.	Trinidad, Wash.
Ulm, Mont.	Mukilteo, Wash.	Wenatchee, Wash.
1902 Wolf Creek, Mont.	Leavenworth, Wash.
Blackfoot, Mont.	Marysville, Wash.

Stock yards have been built at:

Leaf River, Minn.	Cambridge, Minn.	Reynolds, No. Dak.
Morris, Minn.	Bancroft, So. Dak.	Cando, No. Dak.
Bethel, Minn.	Vienna, So. Dak.	Galata, Mont.

The stock yards at Doon, Iowa; Hinsdale, Mont.; Wenatchee, Wash., and Wilson Creek, Wash., have been enlarged by building additional pens. Six yards have been furnished with stock scales and four with water plants.

Two additions, 291′ x 300′ and 233′ x 300′, and a hay barn 1903
50′ x 80′ have been added to the feeding yards at Minot, Nor. Dak. Other stock yards have been remodeled and improved.

Additional coaling stations, equipped with lifting engines, and the necessary tracks have been built—one at Chester, Mont., ten pockets, and one at Trinidad, Wash., twelve pockets. At St. Cloud, Minn., a coaling station has been built in place of one burned.

Permanent improvements in the water supply are being continued, numerous plants, both additional and replacing others, having been built. 1904

Many loading platforms have been built during the year.

Right of way fence has been built during the year as follows:

Great Northern Railway	144.90 miles
Eastern Railway of Minnesota	1.39 "
Montana Central Railway	.34 "
Willmar and Sioux Falls Railway	7.26 "
Total	153.89 miles

and 4.69 miles of permanent snow fence between Havre, Mont., and Cut Bank, Mont.

Banks have been widened and raised on 235.30 miles of track, 1905 banks widened and tracks ballasted with gravel on 41.22 miles, and track ballasted with gravel on 378.85 miles. Widening and raising embankments is now in progress between Swan River and Deer River, Minn., on the Eastern Railway, and ballasting on the Breckenridge, Northern and Dakota divisions, and on the Montana and Kalispell divisions, east and west of Cut Bank, Mont.

The replacement of bridges and trestles with steel, or filling them so as to make solid embankments, has been actively followed during the year, the record being: 1906

Length of bridges built:
Great Northern Railway (on old lines)	5,030 feet
Montana Central Railway	106 "
In addition, steel railway bridges were built on new line through Spokane, in approaches to Cascade Tunnel, and on new line between Teton and Tunis	3,885 feet
And steel street bridges in Spokane	823 "
Total length of steel bridges built	9,844 feet

1907 Lineal feet of bridges filled:

Great Northern Railway	11,980 feet
Seattle and Montana Railroad	1,587 "
Eastern Railway of Minnesota	700 "
Montana Central Railway	450 "
Willmar and Sioux Falls Railway	5,406 "
Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Railway	178 "
Total	20,301 feet

To provide the necessary waterways in place of bridges filled as above, 71 stone culverts, 7 brick arch culverts, 47 pipe culverts, and 8 box culverts were put in.

1908 The wooden bridging on the line was still further reduced during the year by removal or relocation of lines as follows:

Great Northern Railway:
Changes of line at Durham, Midvale, and between Teton and Tunis	1,336 feet
Removal of switchback over Cascade Mountains	5,672 "
Eastern Railway of Minnesota:
Removal of additional track between Brace Junction and Cloquet	3,351 "
1909 Total	10,359 feet

The following is a close approximation of the quantities of material moved during the year in changes of line, reduction of grades, widening and raising banks, bridge filling, and ballasting:

In change of line and reduction of grades	1,588,550 cu. yds.
In widening and raising embankments, and generally restoring banks	759,762 " "
For filling bridges	1,082,192 " "
For ballasting (gravel)	1,051,994 " "
For new lines through Cloquet, Spokane, Cascade Tunnel, and Everett	836,820 " "
1910 Total	5,319,318 cu. yds.

There were also placed:

Masonry	25,531 cu. yds.
Concrete	21,595 " "
Riprap	66,305 " "
Total	113,431 cu. yds.

Following the plan of previous years, only such amounts as represented cost of actual additions to the property have been charged to "Additions and improvements," and the entire amount charged to that account during the year on account of the line leased from the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba 1911

Railway Company, or $1,898,878.53, has been transferred to "Fund for permanent improvements and renewals," so that the Great Northern Railway Company is not carrying on its books, as an asset, the cost of any additions and improvements.

All replacements, renewals, etc., have been charged to operating expenses. The amount included in "Maintenance of road and structures" this year, for extraordinary improvements, etc., is $1,236,204.75.

The permanent improvement of the property has been continued to a greater extent than ever before, and the track is 1912 constantly being made better. The equipment and facilities for handling the company's traffic have been largely improved and increased.

VOLUME OF TRAFFIC AND RATES.

On account of the crop failure last fall, the company hauled during the year 31,863,372 bushels less wheat and flax than during the previous year, and its earnings from these two commodities were reduced by $2,897,747.25. As the farmers received less money from their crops, their purchases were reduced and there was a falling off in receipts from westbound 1913 merchandise, etc., on the eastern section of the line; how much can not be accurately measured.

The earnings from the iron-ore traffic of the Eastern Railway of Minnesota increased $136,651.75. The freight earnings of the system decreased but $909,365.98. There was, therefore, an increase in earnings from traffic other than wheat, flax, and iron ore of $1,851,729.52. By far the larger part of this increase came from business to and from the Pacific coast. The revenue ton mileage of that portion of the system east of Minot, N. D., decreased 142,233,003 ton miles, while that of the sys- 1914 tem west of Minot increased by 119,191,316 ton miles.

The average receipts per ton per mile were reduced $\frac{28}{1000}$ of a cent, or 3.1146 per cent. On the ton mileage hauled during the year this reduction amounted to about $695,000.

While the ton mileage of revenue freight was reduced less than one per cent, the mileage of loaded freight cars was reduced 1.1065 per cent; of empty freight cars, 12.1430 per cent, and mileage of freight trains 7.2899 per cent, resulting in 1915 an increase of 24.514 tons (6.8709 per cent) in the average number of revenue tons per freight train mile, making the average train load of revenue freight 381.294 tons.

The earnings of passenger trains increased $304,434.96, or over five per cent, of which $257,241.58 came from passenger fares, $21,925.24 from sleeping cars, $15,647.71 from transportation of mails, $6,561.78 from transportation of express, and the balance from miscellaneous sources. The average earnings per passenger per mile decreased 3.7 per cent and are now 2.29 cents. Effective July 1st, 1900, the local rates in Washington 1916 and Idaho were reduced to three cents per mile.

It is gratifying to note that the immigration referred to in the last report has continued with increasing volume. Never in the history of the company has there been so great a movement of settlers upon its lines as during the past year. The settlement has not been confined to any particular locality, but has been general. The larger part of the immigration comes from the Middle West and is of a character which will rapidly develop the new country in which it has located.

The company's policy of making low rates to its western ter-1917 ritory has enabled settlers to avail themselves of the cheap lands of the West. This increase in the settlement of the lands lying along its line is evidenced by the increased volume of the company's general traffic. If the United States Government would undertake an intelligent and comprehensive plan of irrigation for the purpose of reclaiming the semiarid lands of the West, their immediate settlement would follow. The public domain is in charge of the Government, whose duty it is to put it in condition for use. It belongs to the people.

The board respectfully call the attention of the shareholders 1918 to the report of the comptroller, with the customary balance sheet and statistical tables, and to the report of the land commissioner.

JAMES J. HILL, President.

COMPTROLLER'S REPORT.

Mr. JAMES J. HILL, President.

DEAR SIR: Herewith I beg to submit statements showing results of operation of the Great Northern Railway Company and its proprietary companies for the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1919 1901.

These statements are made in the same form and on the same basis as those submitted with last year's report.

The statements on the pages next following, 26 and 27, show the earnings, operating expenses, taxes, etc., of the railway system exclusive of the Spokane Falls and Northern Railway system, which is operated separately. The statement on page 28 shows the division of those amounts between the several railways, and includes as a separate item the same information for the Spokane Falls and Northern Railway system. On pages 29 and 30 are 1920 given the revenue and income accounts of the Great Northern Railway Company.

The change in "1900" figures for "Tons of freight carried" and "Passengers carried," as shown on pages 32 and 33, is fully explained in note at foot of page 33.

The balance sheet on page 35, like the one published last year, presents a complete statement of the property, capitalization, and finances of what is known as the Great Northern Railway Line. The finances, etc., of the Spokane Falls and Northern system and of the Northern Steamship Company are not included, those 1921 properties being operated and their finances kept separate and distinct from those of the balance of the system.

R. I. FARRINGTON, Comptroller.

Gross earnings, operating expenses, taxes, and net earnings of the railway system, and per mile of road operated, for the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1901, compared with the previous fiscal year.

NOTE.—These figures do not include the Spokane Falls and Northern Railway system

GROSS EARNINGS.

Per cent.	1901.	Class.	1900.	Per cent. 1922
76.2721	$21,623,653.95	Freight	$22,533,019.93	77.9398
17.3164	4,909,332.74	Passenger	4,652,091.16	16.0912
2.7906	791,144.86	Mail	775,497.15	2.6824
1.0912	309,369.60	Express	302,807.82	1.0474
2.5297	717,188.60	Miscellaneous	647,373.20	2.2392
	28,350,689.75	Total	28,910,789.26

1923 Gross earnings, operating expenses, taxes, etc.—Continued.

OPERATING EXPENSES.

Per cent.	1901.	General accounts.	1900.	Per cent.
48.9246	$7,751,339.13	Conducting transportation	$7,122,817.04	47.8762
14.8599	2,354,311.46	Maintenance of equipment	2,114,408.41	14.2120
27.7854	4,402,157.25	Maintenance of road and structures	4,330,359.09	29.1066
8.4301	1,335,613.22	General expenses	1,309,993.38	8.8052
	15,843,421.06	Total	14,877,577.92

SUMMARY OF EARNINGS AND EXPENSES.

1901.		1900.
1924 $28,350,689.75	Gross earnings	$28,910,789.26
15,843,421.06	Operating expenses	14,877,577.92
$12,507,268.69	Net earnings	$14,033,211.34
969,642.31	Taxes	990,798.26
$11,537,626.38	Income from operation	$13,042,413.08
55.88	Operating expenses, per cent of gross earnings	51.46
59.30	Operating expenses and taxes, per cent of gross earnings	54.89
$5,449.64	Gross traffic earnings per mile of road	$5,695.74
3,045.46	Operating expenses per mile of road	2,931.04
$2,404.18	Net earnings per mile of road	$2,764.70
5,202.31	Average miles of road under operation	5,075.86

Statement showing the revenues for the year ended June 30th, 1901, of the Great Northern Railway and all proprietary companies.

Companies.	Gross earnings.	Operating expenses.	Taxes.	Income from operation.	Miscellaneous income received.	Total.
Great Northern Railway	$20,881,051.48	$12,108,956.68	$745,224.19	$8,026,870.61	$1,155,591.13	$9,182,461.74
RAILWAYS.
Eastern Ry. of Minnesota	3,735,019.68	1,571,470.08	122,787.37	2,040,762.23	390,457.63	2,431,219.86
Montana Central Ry	2,196,550.32	1,180,211.41	33,937.45	982,401.46	28,279.77	1,010,681.23
Wilmar and Sioux Falls Ry	1,481,586.97	938,542.39	62,132.82	480,911.76	8,490.30	489,402.06
Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Ry	56,481.30	44,240.50	5,560.48	6,680.32	208.50	6,888.82
Total railway system proper	$28,350,689.75	$15,843,421.06	$969,642.31	$11,537,626.38	$1,583,027.33	$13,120,653.71
OTHER COMPANIES.
Spokane Falls and Northern Ry. System	855,900.26	547,107.62	26,060.86	282,731.78	27,061.90	309,793.68
Minneapolis Union Ry	227,001.70	54,308.10	937.17	171,756.43	9,673.38	181,429.81
Minneapolis Western Ry	57,214.00	32,044.57	1,158.63	24,010.80	12.75	24,023.55
Duluth Terminal Ry	39,470.75	25,970.75	.....	13,500.00	.....	13,500.00
Northern Steamship Co. [a]	1,034,110.50	795,831.29	.....	238,279.21	.....	238,279.21
Total for system	$30,564,386.96	$17,298,683.39	$997,798.97	$12,267,904.60	$1,619,775.36	$13,887,679.96

[a] For year ended December 31st, 1900.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

DIVIDENDS.—Out of the net income of the companies named the following dividends have been declared:

Eastern Railway Company of Minnesota	$1,920,000.00
Montana Central Railway Company	500,000.00
Wilmar and Sioux Falls Railway Company	350,000.00
Spokane Falls and Northern Railway System:
Columbia and Red Mountain Railway Co	18,508.00
Red Mountain Railway Co.	38,120.00
Minneapolis Union Railway Company	25,000.00
Northern Steamship Company	240,000.00
Total	$3,091,628.00

which amount is not included in the "Miscellaneous income" of the Great Northern Railway as given by the above table, but is added to the "Miscellaneous income" in the income account on page 30.

DULUTH TERMINAL RY. CO.—This company is the owner of the railway used by the Eastern Railway of Minnesota to secure entrance into Duluth and of extensive yards in Duluth. Its stock and bonds are all owned by the Eastern Railway. Under the franchise of the Duluth Terminal Railway its earnings derived from trackage are limited to 6 per cent on its stock and bonds. The interest and dividend paid, amounting to $13,500, are not included in the "Miscellaneous income" of the Eastern Railway as above shown.

29284

1926 REVENUE ACCOUNT.—GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Earnings from operation of St. P., M. and M. Ry.'s leased lines and line of Seattle and Montana Railroad Company, year ended June 30, 1901.

Earnings:
Freight	$15,367,999.28
Passenger	3,943,926.90
Mail	694,658.50
Express	261,088.69
Miscellaneous	613,378.11
Gross earnings		$20,881,051.48
1927 Operating expenses:
Conducting transportation	$5,820,792.72
Maintenance of equipment	1,800,215.26
Maintenance of road and structures	3,457,416.18
General expenses	1,030,532.52
Total operating expenses	12,108,956.68
Taxes	745,224.19
		12,854,180.87
Income from operation		8,026,870.61
From which have been paid:
Rentals:
1928 To St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co.—
Guaranteed interest on St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co.'s bonds, paid and accrued	$3,456,805.68
(For details see page 34.)
Guaranteed dividends of 6 per cent on capital stock of St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co	1,200,000.00
Maintenance of organization of St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co	6,798.12
1929 Other rentals	196,309.09
Total rentals	4,859,912.89
From which deduct amount received by Great Northern Ry. Co., as dividends paid and accrued on stock of St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co., obtained by it in exchange for stock of Great Northern Ry. Co	1,172,256.50
Net charges		3,687,656.39
Balance transferred to income account		4,339,214.22

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT B. 487

INCOME ACCOUNT.—GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY. 1930

Year ended June 30, 1901.

Balance transferred from revenue account		$4,339,214.22
Other income:
Interest on bonds owned	$395,548.37
Dividends on stocks owned	3,126,503.75
Rental of lines leased	172,752.38
Bills receivable (land notes)	2,014.57
Rental of equipment and car service	100,741.01
Profit on securities sold during year	337,554.33
Income from other sources—ground rents, miscellaneous items, etc.	112,104.72	4,247,219.13	1931
Total income		8,586,433.35
From which have been paid dividends as follows:
August 1, 1900, 1¾ per cent on $98,413,500	$1,722,236.25
November 1, 1900, 1¾ per cent on $98,417,250	1,722,301.88
February 1, 1901, 1¾ per cent on $98,621,750	1,725,880.63
May 1, 1901, 1¾ per cent on $98,682,875	1,726,950.31	6,897,369.07	1932
Balance		1,689,064.28

DETAILS OF OTHER INCOME.

Interest of bonds owned:
Town of Wadena bonds	$300.00
Town of Sandness bonds	120.00
Town of Leaf River bonds	120.00
Town of Hutchinson bonds	330.00
Town of Minnesota Falls bonds	120.00
Montana Central Ry. Co. bonds	80,000.00
Willmar and Sioux Falls Ry. Co. bonds	1,050.00
Minnesota Transfer Ry. Co. bonds	235.87		1933
Butte, Anaconda and Pacific Ry. Co. bonds	50,000.00
Spokane Falls and Northern Ry. Co. bonds	154,800.00
Nelson and Ft. Sheppard Ry. Co. bonds	77,992.50
Columbia and Red Mountain Ry. Co. bonds	17,460.00
Red Mountain Ry. Co. bonds	13,020.00
Total		$395,548.37

1934	Dividends on stocks owned:
	Northern Steamship Co. stock	$240,000.00
	Great Northern Ry. Co. stock	2,850.75
	St. Paul Union Depot Co. stock	2,625.00
	Montana Central Ry. Co. stock	500,000.00
	Minneapolis Union Ry. Co. stock	25,000.00
	Eastern Ry. Co. of Minnesota stock	1,920,000.00
	Willmar and Sioux Falls Ry. Co. stock	350,000.00
	Red Mountain Ry. Co. stock	38,120.00
	Columbia and Red Mountain Ry. Co. stock	18,508.00
1935	Butte, Anaconda and Pacific Ry. Co. stock	29,400.00
	Total	$3,126,503.75

Statistics of freight and passenger traffic on system (but not including Spokane Falls and Northern Railway system) for the year ended June 30th, 1901, compared with the previous year.

	Description.	1901.	1900.	Decrease.
				Amount.	Per cent.
	FREIGHT TRAFFIC.
	Mileage of freight trains	5,627,697	6,092,623	464,926	7.6310
	Mileage of mixed trains	881,061	927,924	46,863	5.0503
	Total	6,508,758	7,020,547	511,789	7.2899
1936	Mileage of locomotives employed in "helping" freight and mixed trains	304,331	268,452	Increase. 35,879	Increase. 13.3651
	Percentage of "helping" to revenue train mileage	4.6757	3.8238	7.0105
	Mileage of loaded freight cars	154,527,689	156,256,650	Decrease. 1,728,961	Decrease. 1.1065
	Mileage of empty freight cars	44,468,558	50,614,698	6,146,140	12.1430
	Total car mileage	198,996,247	206,871,348	7,875,101	3.8068
	Tons of freight carried, revenue	9,925,811	a 9,676,771	Increase. 249,040	Increase. 2.5735
	company	1,592,440	1,511,268	81,172	5.3711
	Total	11,518,251	a 11,188,039	330,212	2.9515
1937	Tons of revenue freight carried one mile	2,481,751,195	2,504,792,882	Decrease. 23,041,687	Decrease. 0.9199
	Earnings from freight traffic	$21,998,491.43	$22,860,725.26	$862,233.83	3.7717
	AVERAGES.
	All cars hauled per freight train mile	30.57	29.46	Increase. 1.11	Increase. 3.7678
	Tons revenue freight hauled per train	381.294	356.780	24.514	6.8709
	Total revenue freight hauled per loaded car	16.060	16.030	.030	.1871
	Earnings per freight train mile	$3.38	$3.26	$0.12	3.6810
	Earnings per ton per mile	Cents. .871	Cents. .899	Decrease. Cents. .028	Decrease. 3.1146

Statistics of freight and passenger traffic on system (but not including Spokane Falls and Northern Railway system) for the year ended June 30th 1901, compared with the previous year—Continued. 1938

Description.	1901.	1900.	Decrease. Amount.	Decrease. Per cent.
PASSENGER TRAFFIC.
			Increase.	Increase.
Mileage of passenger trains	4,284,900	4,010,799	274,101	6.8341
Mileage of locomotives employed in "helping" passenger trains	52,862	25,417	27,445	107.9789
Percentage of "helping" to revenue train mileage	1.2337	.6337	10.0127	.....
Passengers carried	2,717,851	a2,407,311	310,540	12.8999
Passengers carried one mile	214,392,859	195,585,382	18,807,477	9.6160
Earnings of passenger trains	$6,325,873.69	$6,021,438.73	$304,434.96	5.0559 1939
AVERAGES.
Earnings per passenger train mile	$1.2245	$1.2192	$0.0053	0.4347
			Decrease.	Decrease.
Earnings per passenger per mile.	Cents. 2.290	Cents. 2.378	Cents. 0.088	3.7006
TOTAL TRAINS.
Mileage of freight and passenger trains	10,793,658	11,031,346	237,688	2.1547
Earnings from freight and passenger trains	$28,324,365.12	$28,882,163.99	$557,798.87	1.9313
			Increase.	Increase.
Earnings per train per mile	2.63	2.62	.01	0.3817
Expenses per train per mile	1.47	1.35	.12	8.8889
Net traffic earnings per train per mile	1.16	1.27	Decrease. .11	Decrease. 8.6614 1940

NOTE.—The train, locomotive, and car mileage figures given above have been compiled and all computations based upon them made in accordance with the rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

a Separate statistics are prepared for each of the railways forming the system. The "Tons of freight carried" and "Passengers carried," as shown in previous reports, have been arrived at by adding together those figures for each of the roads in the system, thus causing a duplication when a shipment or passenger traveled over two or more of the roads. To avoid this duplication, system statistics have been prepared this year, and last year's figures revised, the corrected figures being given above.

Statement of bonds and stock outstanding in the hands of the public for which the Great Northern Railway Company is responsible directly or under guarantee.

Outstanding July 1, 1900.	Bonds.	Outstanding July 1, 1901.	Annual charges paid 1900–1901.
	St. P., M. & M. Ry.:		1941
$8,000,000.00	Second mortgage, 6 per cent	$7,860,000.00	$477,900.00
5,676,000.00	Dakota extension, 6 per cent	5,625,000.00	340,050.00
13,344,000.00	Consolidated mortgage, 6 per cent	13,344,000.00	800,640.00
21,159,000.00	Consolidated mortgage, 4½ per cent	20,756,000.00	940,117.50
7,907,000.00	Montana extension, 4 per cent	7,907,000.00	316,280.00
14,545,454.54	Pacific extension, 4 per cent	a14,545,454.54	581,818.18
	Total shown on page 29		3,456,805.68
	Eastern Ry. of Minnesota:
4,700,000.00	First Division, first mt'ge, 5 per cent.	4,700,000.00	235,000.00
5,000,000.00	Northern Div., first mt'ge, 4 per cent.	5,000,000.00	200,000.00

1942 Statement of bonds and stock outstanding in the hands of the public for which the Great Northern Railway Company is responsible directly or under guarantee—Continued.

Outstanding July 1, 1900.	Bonds.	Outstanding July 1, 1901.	Annual charges paid 1900–1901.
	Montana Central Ry.:
$6,000,000.00	First mortgage, 6 per cent	$6,000,000.00	$360,000.00
3,300,000.00	First mortgage, 5 per cent	4,000,000.00	200,000.00
	Willmar & Sioux Falls Ry.:
3,646,000.00	First mortgage, 5 per cent	3,646,000.00	182,300.00
	Minneapolis Union Ry.:
2,150,000.00	First mortgage, 6 per cent	2,150,000.00	129,000.00
650,000.00	First mortgage, 5 per cent	650,000.00	32,500.00
	Minneapolis Western Ry.:
1943 500,000.00	First mortgage, 5 per cent	500,000.00	25,000.00
96,577,454.54	Total bonds	96,683,454.54	4,820,605.68
	STOCK.
469,200.00	St. P., M. & M Ry.—6 per cent guaranteed, unexchanged	454,600.00	[b]Net 27,743.50
97,046,654.54	Total	97,138,054.54	4,848,349.18
98,413,500.00	Great Northern Railway Company, outstanding	98,711,750.00	6,897,369.07

Bond outstanding, as above	$96,683,454.54
Outstanding capital stock of Great Northern and St. P., M. & M. Ry. companies	99,166,350.00
1944 Total capitalization of system	$195,849,804.54
Mileage of track in system, including second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth tracks, covered by above capitalization, as shown on page 38	5,529.02
Stocks and bonds per mile of main track	$35,422.15
Mileage of main tracks covered by bonds in hands of public	4,740.40
Bonded debt outstanding per mile of main track covered thereby	$20,395.63

[a] Not including £3,000,000 St. P., M. & M. Ry. Co.'s Pacific extension bonds in treasury of Great Northern Railway Company.

[b] Difference between amount of rental accrued under lease and dividends received or accrued on St. P., M. & M. Ry. stock owned by Great Northern Railway Company.

Of the bonds above listed, there are held as free assets in the Great Northern Ry. Co.'s treasury:

$1,300,000 Montana Central Ry. Co.'s first mortgage bonds, and 21,000 Willmar & Sioux Falls Ry. Co.'s first mortgage bonds.

1945 Condensed general balance

Being a consolidation of the general balance sheets of that date of the St. Ry. Co. of Minnesota, Montana Central Ry. Co., Willmar and Sioux Falls R. R. Co., Park Rapids and Leech Lake Ry. Co., Minneapolis Union Ry.

DR.

RAILWAY PROPERTY.

	To Cost of railway, equipment, and lands owned by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co	$116,497,251.53
1946	Cost of additions and improvements made by the Great Northern Ry. Co. to property leased from the St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co. and paid for from "Fund for permanent improvements and renewals"	7,593,321.06
	Total cost to June 30th, 1901, of property leased from St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co		$124,090,572.59
	Cost of the following properties controlled by the Great Northern Ry. Co. through ownership of their entire share capital:
	Eastern Railway of Minnesota—railway, equipment, elevators, etc	$25,377,884.89
1947	Montana Central Ry.—railway and equipment	15,344,999.01
	Willmar and Sioux Falls Ry.—railway, equipment, and real estate	9,016,935.61
	Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Ry	2,209,598.02
	Seattle and Montana R. R.—railway and equipment	12,983,817.72
	Minneapolis Union Ry.—union depot, railway, etc	3,154,722.27
	Minneapolis Western Ry.—railway and equipment	743,497.26
		68,831,454.78
1948	Cost of the following properties, the bonds and capital stock of which are owned by the Eastern Ry. Co. of Minnesota:
	Park Rapids and Leech Lake Ry.—railway and equip't	1,015,060.19
	Duluth Terminal Ry	389,965.83
			70,236,480.80
	Total cost of property operated by "The Great Northern Ry. Line"		194,327,053.39

sheet, June 30th, 1901. 1949

Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co., Great Northern Ry. Co., Eastern Ry. Co., Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Ry. Co., Seattle and Montana Co., Minneapolis Western Ry. Co., and Duluth Terminal Ry. Co.

		Cr.
CAPITAL STOCK.
By authorized capital stock of the Great Northern Ry. Co., issuable June 30th, 1901	$100,000,000.00
Less amount held in treasury of company, as explained on page 7	1,288,250.00		1950
Capital stock of Great Northern Ry. Co., issued and outstanding	98,711,750.00
Capital stock of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co. $20,000,000.00
Less owned by the Great Northern and Ry. Co. (see contra) 19,545,400.00
Outstanding	454,600.00
Total capital stock outstanding in hands of public		$99,166,350.00	1951
Net paid subscriptions to additional capital stock		8,358,708.00
FUNDED DEBT IN HANDS OF PUBLIC.
St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co.'s bonds, the principal and interest of which are guaranteed by the Great Northern Ry. Co	$70,037,454.54
Bonds of proprietary companies, principal and interest guaranteed by Great Northern Ry. Co	26,646,000.00		1952
Total (for details see table on page 34)		96,683,454.54
CAR TRUST OBLIGATIONS.
Car trust notes assumed by Eastern Ry. Co. of Minnesota, upon purchase of Duluth, Superior and Western Ry., due in February and August of each year until February 1, 1906		146,868.70
Total capital liabilities		204,355,381.24

1953 Condensed general balance sheet,

DR.

OTHER PROPERTIES, SECURITIES, AND INVESTMENTS.

	To Cost of stocks and bonds owned by the Eastern Ry. Co. of Minnesota in addition to those of the Park Rapids and Leech Lake Ry. and the Duluth Terminal Ry. companies		$1,649,700.00
	Cost of stock of Sioux City and Western Ry. Co. owned by W. and S. F. Ry. Co		2,500,000.00
1954	Wisconsin Central Ry. Co.'s Minneapolis Terminal bonds owned by Minneapolis Union Ry. Co		247,500.00
	Cost of properties and securities owned by the Great Northern Railway Company		106,885,667.21
	Total		111,282,867.21
	Less par value of the following securities owned by the Great Northern Ry. Co. and not shown contra:
	The entire capital stock of the—
1955	Eastern Ry. Co. of Minnesota	$16,000,000.00
	Montana Central Ry. Co	5,000,000.00
	Willmar and Sioux Falls Ry. Co	7,000,000.00
	Seattle and Montana R. R. Co	12,500,000.00
	Minneapolis Union Ry. Co	500,000 00
	Minneapolis Western Ry. Co	250,000.00
1956	Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Ry. Co.	730,000.00
	And the entire issue of bonds of the Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Ry. Co	1,375,000.00
	Total	43,355,000.00
	195,454 shares of capital stock of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co.	19,545,400.00

June 30th, 1901—Continued. 1957

		Cr.
ST. P., M. AND M. RY. CO.'S BONDS REDEEMED THROUGH OPERATIONS OF SINKING FUNDS.
First mortgage land-grant bonds	$5,928,400.00
Consolidated mortgage bonds	2,389,000.00
		$8,317,400.00
CURRENT LIABILITIES
Of land department, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co.:
Audited vouchers unpaid	$8,077.43
Unpaid pay rolls	1,361.65	1958
Due to other companies and individuals	3,908.33
		13,347.41
Sinking fund applicable to the redemption of bonds		15,672.99
Of Great Northern Ry. Co. and proprietary co.'s above named:
Audited vouchers unpaid	$1,387,877.94
Unpaid pay rolls	1,341,847.48
Unpaid coupons, including those due July 1, 1901	1,545,423.91	1959
Unpaid dividends on Gt. Northern Ry. Co.'s stock	17.34
Unpaid dividends on St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co.'s stock	30.00
		4,275,196.67
DEFERRED LIABILITIES.
Accrued taxes, not due	$493,431.50
Bond interest accrued, not due	125,691.66
Rental of St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co., accrued, not due, less accrued dividends on St. P., M. and M. Ry. stock owned by Great Northern Ry. Co.	205,052.67	1960
		824,175.83
Bills payable		6,000,000.00
CONTINGENT LIABILITIES.
Cost of additions and improvements made by the Great Northern Ry. Co. to property leased from the St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co. and paid for from "Fund for permanent improvements and renewals"	$7,593,321.06

1961

DR. Condensed general balance sheet,

OTHER PROPERTIES, SECURITIES, AND INVESTMENTS—cont'd.

	Less par value of the following securities owned by the Great Northern Ry. Co. and not shown contra—Continued.
	£3,000,000 St. P., M. and M. Ry. Co.'s Pa-
1962	cific extension mort- gage bonds	$14,545,454.55
			$77,445,854.55
	Cost of properties, securities and investments after deducting par value of stocks and bonds not shown contra		$33,837,012.68
	Total capital assets		228,164,066.05

CURRENT ASSETS

	Of land department, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co.:
1963	Cash	$28,366.75
	Due from other companies and individuals	653.65
			29,020.40
	Of Great Northern Ry. Co. and proprietary co.'s above named:
	Cash in St. Paul office	$477,345.35
	Cash in New York office	4,955,390.35
	Cash in London office	286,373.89
	Due from agents	749,332.10
1964	Due from U. S. Post-Office Department	197,437.14
	Due from U. S. transportation	32,686.68
	Due from Canadian post-office department	148.80
	Advanced charges	34,957.03
	Bills receivable	2,194,107.11
	Due from other companies and individuals	1,205,397.72
			10,133,176.17
	Value of material and fuel on hand		1,979,925.76
			240,306,188.38

June 30th, 1901—Continued. 1965

CR.

CONTINGENT LIABILITIES—continued.

Of Great Northern Ry. Co. and proprietary co.'s above named—Continued.

Unexpended balance of fund for permanent improvements and renewals	$1,005,749.88
Total amount deducted from income to provide for future improvements and renewals	$8,599,070.94	1966
Fund for replacement of equipment	332,972.07
Insurance fund	322,436.77
Surplus funds of proprietary companies deposited with Great Northern Ry. Co	249,947.53
		$9,504,427.31

PROFIT AND LOSS.

Balance, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Co	$1,974,039.91	1967
Great Northern Ry. Co. and above-named proprietary companies	5,026,547.02
		7,000,586.93

1968

240,306,188.38

1969 Equipment of Great Northern Railway and proprietary lines for year ended June 30th, 1901, as compared with year ended June 30th, 1900.

Class.	1901.	1900.
Locomotives	563	550
Passenger equipment:
Sleeping cars	50	50
Parlor cars	5	5
Dining cars	12	12
Buffet smokers	8	8
Coaches	163	164
Tourist cars	24	24
Passenger and baggage	35	37
Baggage, mail, and express	110	110
Business cars	18	17
Total passenger equipment	425	427
1970 Freight equipment:
Box cars	14,582	14,291
Combination box and stock cars	750	750
Transfer freight cars	50	50
Furniture cars	1,152	1,152
Hay cars	6	6
Refrigerator cars	209	209
Stock cars	627	627
Flat and coal cars	3,312	2,949
Sand cars	600	500
Ore cars (wood)	1,101	700
Ore cars (steel)	600	250
Ballast cars	764	764
Caboose cars	340	302
1971 Cinder cars	53	53
Boarding cars	51	51
Derrick and tool cars	47	45
Steam shovels	19	20
Lidgerwood unloaders	12	10
Ditching cars	1	1
Pile drivers	10	10
Rotary snow plows	6	6
Snow dozers	15	14
Flangers	1	1
Logging trucks	100	100
Other work equipment	85	73
Total freight and work equipment	24,493	22,934

Track statement. Great Northern Railway and proprietary lines.

Lines leased from St. P. M. and M. Ry. Co.:	Main track, miles.	Total miles.
Terminals division	84.55
1972 Fergus Falls division (not including line leased from Park Rapids and Leech Lake Railway Co.)	530.13
Willmar division	77.94
Breckenridge division	701.72
Northern division	561.94
Dakota division (not including line leased from Eastern Ry. Co. of Minn.)	461.18
Montana division	692.06
Kalispell division	388.97
Cascade division (not including line of Seattle and Montana R. R. Co.)	304.49
Total first main track	3,802.98	3,802.98

	Miles.	Main track, miles.	Total miles.
Lines leased from St. P. M. and M. Ry. Co.—C't'd.				1973
Second track	30.61
Third track	9.28
Fourth, fifth, and sixth tracks	13.05		52.94
Total main tracks covered by lease			3,855.92
Side tracks			669.33
Total tracks covered by the bonded debt of the St. P. M. and M. Ry. Co., as shown on page 34			4,525.25
Other tracks leaseed by Great Northern Ry. Co.:	Side track, miles.
Eastern Ry. of Minnesota—Fosston to Cass Lake	15.62	59.77	75.39	1974
Park Rapids and Leech Lake Ry.—Park Rapids to Cass Lake	6.96	49.04	56.00
Tracks operated by the Great Northern Ry. Co.:
Seattle and Montana R. R. Co.—Seattle, Wash., to South Westminster, B. C.	28.15	143.10	171.25
Spur to Flathead Lake, at Kalispell			10.32
Main line operated by Great Northern Ry. Co		4,054.89
Proprietary companies:	Side track.	Main track.
Eastern Ry. of Minnesota	146.87	457.31		1975
Less leased to Great Northern Ry Co	15.62	59.77
	131.25	397.54	131.25	397.54
Second track			25.49
Line Barclay Junction to Virginia			6.12	18.78
Duluth Terminal Ry			3.63	1.82
Montana Central Ry			52.42	260.51
Willmar and Sioux Falls Ry			47.86	433.41
Leased tracks between Sioux City, Ia., and South Sioux City, Neb.				3.32
Duluth, Watertown and Pacific Ry			4.08	69.84
Minneapolis Union Ry			4.73	2.63
Second track			2.63
Minneapolis Western Ry			5.04	1.69
Total first main track proprietary lines		1,189.54
Total second main track proprietary lines			1,189.54
Total side track proprietary lines	28.12
	255.13		283.25
Total miles of road in system as operated June 30, 1901		5,244.43
Total miles of track, all kinds, in system as operated			6,311.00

		Side track, miles.	Main track, miles.	Total miles.
1977	Add—Mileage of Spokane Falls and Northern Ry. system	21.51	203.03	224.54
	Mileage owned by Seattle and Montana R. R. Co., but leased to Seattle and Northern Ry. Co	2.09	3.82	5.91
	Total miles of road in system, including lines operated separately		5,451.28
	Total miles of track, all kinds, in system, including lines operated separately			6,541.45
1978	Total main tracks St. P., M. and M. Ry		3,855.92
	First main track Seattle and Montana R. R. (owned)		146.92
	First main line track proprietary companies (including S. F. and N. Ry. system)		1,498.06
	Second main track proprietary companies		28.12
	Total main tracks covered by capitalization			5,529.02
	NOTE.—Total mileage of road in system as operated June 30th, 1901, as shown on page 37		5,244.43
	Total mileage of road in system June 30, 1900, as per report for that year		5,202.17
	Increase in mileage			42.26
1979	This increase is made up as follows:
	Eastern Ry. of Minnesota:
	Stony Brook line (constructed)	46.49
	Barclay Junction to Virginia (operated)	18.78
	Duluth Terminal Ry., extension in Duluth	.04
			65.31
	Less decrease—track at Brace Junction removed		.13
	Net increase			65.18
	Decreases:
	St. P., M. & M. Ry.:
1980	Switchback over Cascade mountains removed	12.66
	Track between Hopkins and St. Bonifacius, Minn., removed (account extension Spring Park line)	19.66
	Portion of line between Halsted, Minn., and Alton, N. D., taken up	.55
	Changes in line at Willmar and on the Montana and Kalispell divisions	1.95
	Sundry corrections	.06
			34.88

Decreases—Continued.		Main track, miles.	Total miles.	1981
St. P., M. & M. Ry.—Continued.
Less increases in mileage for—
Change of line between Teton and Tunis.	3.61
New line through Spokane, constructed.	4.74
New line through Cascade Tunnel and approaches	3.52
New line through Everett, constructed.	3.63
Extension of Spring Park line to St. Bonifacius, constructed	7.95
		23.45		1982
Net decrease		11.43
Montana Central Ry.:
Fair Grounds and Red Mt. branches at Helena, removed	1.19
Distance shortened by change of line, Boulder Hill	.25
		1.44
Great Northern Ry.:
Trackage rights over other roads in Spokane and between Lowell and Everett, Wash., surrendered.		10.05		1983
Total deduction			22.92
Net increase in mileage			42.26

LAND COMMISSIONER'S REPORT.

Mr. JAMES J. HILL, President.

DEAR SIR: I respectfully submit the following report regarding the Minneapolis & St. Cloud land grant for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1901:

Amount of Minneapolis & St. Cloud R. R. land grant—	Acres.
Earned between St. Cloud and Hinckley	425,664.00
Earned between St. Cloud and Roscoe	51,200.00	1984
Total	476,864.00

	Acres.
Total acreage selected to date	169,501.38
Total acreage deeded to company	154,672.82
Total acreage sold prior to June 30th, 1901, less sales canceled	[a]121,483.84
Value of same	[a]$794,873.88
Average price per acre	[a]6.54
Remaining unsold June 30th, 1901	355,380.16

[a] Includes adjustments account previous years.

1985 OPERATIONS DURING THE YEAR.

Sales, acres	36,021,775
Amount sold for	$366,207.24
Average price per acre	10.17
Receipts of land department	116,551.19
Disbursements of land department	23,721.51
Amount of deferred payments due company which are bearing interest at six and seven per cent	487,372.69

CHARLES H. BABCOCK,
Asst. Land Commissioner.

St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company's sinking fund account consolidated mortgage bonds.

1986 June 30th, 1901. By credits during the year:

From land department, as per land commissioner's report on page 43	$852,112.63
Revenue Todd County lands	3,451.46
Total credits	855,564.09

Debits:

To bonds purchased by trustee and canceled:

	Date.	Amount.	Price.	Cost.
	August 13, 1900	$5,000.00	114⅜	$5,718.75
	August 13, 1900	30,000.00	114	34,200.00
	September 11, 1900	22,000.00	114¼	25,135.00
	October 4, 1900	21,000.00	114½	24,045.00
1987	October 10, 1900	22,000.00	114¼	25,135.00
	October 19, 1900	18,000.00	114¼	20,565.00
	November 1, 1900	22,000.00	114⅜	25,162.50
	November 12, 1900	21,000.00	114⅜	24,097.50
	November 22, 1900	95,000.00	116⅛	110,318.75
	January 2, 1901	3,000.00	115¼	3,457.50
	January 4, 1901	1,000.00	115¼	1,152.50
	January 18, 1901	5,000.00	115½	5,775.00
	January 21, 1901	15,000.00	115½	17,325.00
	January 22, 1901	8,000.00	115½	9,240.00
	January 31, 1901	2,000.00	115½	2,310.00
1988	February 14, 1901	3,000.00	115¾	3,472.50
	February 16, 1901	1,000.00	116	1,160.00
	February 19, 1901	14,000.00	116⅛	16,257.50
	February 20, 1901	1,000.00	116⅛	1,161.25
	February 21, 1901	2,000.00	116¼	2,322.50
	April 2, 1901	16,000.00	116⅜	18,660.00
	April 2, 1901	50,000.00	117	58,500.00
	April 4, 1901	100,000.00	117	117,000.00
	April 11, 1901	15,000.00	117	17,550.00
	April 12, 1901	6,000.00	117	7,020.00
	April 15, 1901	1,000.00	116½	1,165.00

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT B. 503

Date.		Amount.	Price.	Cost.
April	17, 1901	$30,000.00	116⅜	$34,912.50	1989
April	24, 1901	6,000.00	116⅜	7,005.00
April	26, 1901	4,000.00	116⅝	4,665.00
April	26, 1901	5,000.00	117	5,850.00
April	30, 1901	2,000.00	116⅞	2,337.50
May	17, 1901	14,000.00	116¼	16,275.00
May	17, 1901	3,000.00	116⅜	3,502.50
May	21, 1901	10,000.00	116¼	11,625.00
May	24, 1901	1,000.00	116	1,160.00
May	28, 1901	1,000.00	116⅛	1,161.25	1990
June	7, 1901	5,000.00	116½	5,825.00
June	7, 1901	13,000.00	116¾	15,177.50
June	8, 1901	50,000.00	117	58,500.00
June	11, 1901	7,000.00	116	8,120.00
June	12, 1901	7,007.00	116¾	8,172.50
June	13, 1901	5,000.00	116¾	5,837.50
June	14, 1901	13,000.00	115⅞	15,063.75
June	17, 1901	12,000.00	115⅞	13,905.00
June	21, 1901	4,000.00	116⅞	4,675.00
June	24, 1901	8,000.00	116⅞	9,350.00
June	25, 1901	5,000.00	116¼	5,812.50	1991
June	26, 1901	12,000.00	117	14,040.00
June	29, 1901	2,000.00	116⅞	2,337.50
	Total.....	718,000.00	Costing	833,216.25
Repayment of amount advanced to sinking fund during year ended June 30th, 1900, as per page 45, last report.....				6,674.85
Total debits					839,891.10
June 30th, 1901, balance, being funds applicable to further redemption of bonds.....					15,672.99

REPORT OF LAND COMMISSIONER, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS AND MANITOBA RY. CO. 1992

To Mr. SAMUEL HILL,

President St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Ry. Co.

DEAR SIR: I respectfully submit the following report of operation of the land department for the year ended June 30th, 1901:

	Acres.	Acres.
Total acreage of land grant computed at ten sections for each mile of road, as formerly construed by the State of Minnesota.....		3,848,000.00
Total acreage of land grant, as construed by United States General Land Office.....		3,479,611.36

	Acres.	Acres
Total acreage deeded to company prior to June 30th, 1901	3,220,760.30
Less decreed to Northern Pacific R. R. Co. by Supreme Court United States, March 2d, 1891	365,860.92
Decreed to Northern Pacific R. R. Co. in accordance with terms of settlement of November 1st, 1897	48,916.08
Redeeded to United States	3,330.02
	418,107.02
Net acreage deeded	2,802,653.28
Total acreage sold prior to June 30th, 1901	2,843,081.18
Less sales canceled	302,074.98
		2,541,006.20
Remaining unsold June 30th, 1901		938,605.16

Owing to sales and other disposals of land within the limits of the grant by the United States prior to the time at which this company's right attached, a final adjustment of the grant by the Government, which is approaching completion, will reduce the above area by about 600,000 acres.

During the year ended June 30th, 1901, 221,532.52 acres of land were sold for $1,978,214.87, an average of $8.93 per acre. There were also sold 341 town lots for $10,013.50, an average price per lot of $29.36.

The number of land sales during the year was 2,140, with an average of about 103.52 acres to each purchase.

Cash receipts of land department for year ended June 30th, 1901.

Cash sales and installments of principal on new land contracts	$235,859.60
Amount of principal received on old contracts	516,210.78
Amount received for trespass, stumpage, grass sales, etc	6,844.15
Amount received for interest on old and new contracts	180,077.56
Amount received for principal and interest on town-lot contracts	16,526.50
	955,518.59
Less expense of land department and trustee	103,405.96
Net receipts	852,112.63
Amount of deferred payments due this company on land contracts, bearing interest at 7 and 6 per cent	3,178,435.57
Amount of deferred payments due this company on town lots, bearing interest at 7 and 6 per cent	16,285.56
	3,194,701.13

MAP(S) IS/ARE TOO LARGE TO BE FILMED

Referring to that portion of report for the year ending June 1997
30th, 1893, relating to lands lying within the limits of the grant on the Dakota side of the Red River, the company has reconveyed to the United States a total of 63,477.92 acres, for which the company is authorized to locate an equivalent amount elsewhere. The company has selected, to June 30th, 1901, 47,325.95 acres in lieu of a part of the above amount.

The following are the sales during the year covered by the Dakota grant, viz:

1,365.91 acres for $13,461.64, an average per acre of	$9.85
1 lot for $500.00, an average per lot of.....	500.00	1998
Receipts during the year.....		$26,850.44
Taxes paid, expenses of examination and selection of land and other disbursements made during the year in connection with grant.....		1,496.16

The remaining lands are in process of adjustment with the Government.

CHARLES H. BABCOCK,
Ass't Land Commissioner.

The following is a copy of trust indenture securing Northern Pacific-Great Northern, C., B. & Q. collateral, 4 per cent joint 1999 bonds, offered in evidence by complainant.

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT C.

TRUST INDENTURE SECURING NORTHERN PACIFIC-GREAT NORTHERN, C. B. AND Q. COLLATERAL, 4 PER CENT JOINT BONDS. JULY 1, 1901.

INDEX.

Recitals:	Page.
Coupon bond—form	4
Registered bond—form	8
Coupon—form.....	11
Trustee's certificate—form	12	2000
Granting clauses:
Specification of stock pledged.....	12

ARTICLE ONE.

Issue of bonds:
Sec. 1. Total authorized issue, $222,400,000.....	14
Certification by trustee	14
2. Present issue, $213,320,000	14
3. Reserve for additional stock pledged	15

2001 Issue of bonds—Continued.

Page.

Sec. 4. Registered bonds—exchanges 16
5. Bonds mutilated or destroyed 17
6. Temporary printed bonds 18
7. Rights limited to parties and bondholders 18

ARTICLE TWO.

Covenants of railway companies:
Sec. 1. To make payment, free from tax, &c 19
To maintain New York and Boston agencies 19
2. To provide for registration of bonds 20
3. Particular covenants 21

2002

ARTICLE THREE.

Concerning pledged stock:
Sec. 1. Shares to be transferred to trustee 24
2. Voting power until default 24
3. Collection of dividends until default 26

ARTICLE FOUR.

Bonds redeemable at 105 after 1906 26

ARTICLE FIVE.

Remedies of trustee and bondholders:
Sec. 1. Detached coupons—lien subordinated 28
2003 2. Declaration of maturity of principal 29
3. Collection of dividends after default 30
4. Voting of pledged stock after default 31
5. Power of sale 32
Suit to foreclose, &c 32
Distribution of pledged stock 32
6. Bondholders may direct trustee 33
7. Adjournment of sale 34
8. Assignments to purchaser 34
9. Receipt to purchaser, a discharge 35
2004 10. Maturity of principal in case of sale 35
11. Distribution of proceeds of sale 35
12. Purchaser may pay in bonds 36
13. Bondholders not entitled to sue 37
14. Trustee's delay or omission no waiver 37

ARTICLE SIX.

Immunity of officers, directors, and stockholders 38

ARTICLE SEVEN.

Sec. 1. Authentication of instruments 39
2. Apparent title to bonds 39

ARTICLE EIGHT. 2005

Concerning the trustee: Page.
Sec. 1. Immunities and compensation 40
2. Resignation or removal 42
3. Appointment of successor trustee 42

ARTICLE NINE.

Reversion on payment of bonds 43

ARTICLE TEN.

Sundry provisions:
Notices, &c., of railway companies 44
Definitions of terms 44 2006
Railway companies may assign rights 45

An indenture, made this first day of July, A. D. 1901, by and between

Northern Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Wisconsin, hereinafter termed the "Northern Pacific Company," and the Great Northern Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Minnesota, hereinafter termed the "Great Northern Company" (said companies together being hereinafter termed "the Railway Companies"), parties of the first part; and 2007

The Standard Trust Company of New York, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, hereinafter termed the "Trustee," party of the second part.

Whereas the Northern Pacific Company operates a railroad extending from St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and also from a point on Lake Superior, in the State of Wisconsin, to Puget Sound on the Pacific coast, together with various branch lines and extensions; and

Whereas the Great Northern Company operates a railroad extending from St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and from 2008 Duluth, in the State of Minnesota, to Puget Sound on the Pacific coast, together with various branch lines and extensions; and

Whereas the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, hereinafter termed the "Burlington Company," operates a railroad extending from Chicago, Illinois, to St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and from Chicago, Illinois, to Billings, in the State of Montana, together with various other lines, branches, and extensions; and

Whereas said railroad of the Northern Pacific Company and said railroad of the Burlington Company are connected at St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and also at Billings, in the State of Montana, and can be operated together so as to constitute one continuous main line with branches; and said railroad of the Great Northern Company and said railroad of the Burlington Company are connected at St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and can be operated together as one continuous main line with branches; and

Whereas the shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company now issued or to be issued under existing contracts do not in the aggregate exceed 1,112,000 shares of the par value of $100 each; and

Whereas the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company each has corporate power to purchase the shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company and each has corporate power to issue its obligations in payment for the shares so purchased; and

Whereas the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company each desired to acquire an interest in the capital stock of the Burlington Company, but it was found impracticable to acquire a substantial amount of such stock except by the purchase thereof jointly and by the issue in payment therefor of the joint bonds of the Northern Pacific Company and of the Great Northern Company, as hereinafter provided; and, therefore, said companies agreed with each other:

(a) That they would purchase all, or not less than two-thirds, of the entire capital stock of the Burlington Company, on terms agreed upon between them; and that in payment for such stock they would issue their joint bonds, at the rate of one thousand dollars, par value, of such joint bonds for each five hundred dollars, par value, of the stock so purchased;

(b) That all the stock so purchased should be assigned and transferred to the Trustee under an indenture of the tenor of these presents, as security for the payment of the principal and interest of such joint bonds;

(c) That each of the Railway Companies should pay, or should cause to be paid, one-half of the entire principal and one-half of the entire interest of such bonds; that each should bear one-half 2013 of all other obligations imposed upon said companies by the terms of such indenture; and that if either of said Railway Companies should default in its obligations to the other in respect of such bonds by reason of bankruptcy, insolvency, or other cause disabling it from performing the same, the purchased stock belonging to such company so in default thereafter should become and be the property of the company not in default, which thenceforth should be liable in severalty upon all covenants in the said bonds contained; and

(d) That the respective rights, interests, and obligations of 2014
the Railway Companies, as between each other, in respect of all the shares of stock so acquired, and in respect of such joint bonds, should be defined in and by an agreement between said Railway Companies, subject in all respects to the prior lien and obligation of such trust indenture; and

Whereas at a meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Company, held on the 21st day of June, 1901, this indenture was submitted and read, and it was duly resolved that the same be executed and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president and the secretary or an assistant secretary in 2015 behalf of said company, and that the same be delivered to the Standard Trust Company, of New York, the trustee therein named; and

Whereas at a meeting of the board of directors of the Great Northern Company, held on the 29th day of June, 1901, this indenture was submitted and read, and it was duly resolved that the same be executed and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president and the secretary or an assistant secretary in behalf of said company, and that the same be delivered to the Standard Trust Company, of New York, the trustee therein 2016 named; and

Whereas the bonds to be secured by this indenture are to be coupon bonds of the denomination of one thousand dollars each, numbered consecutively from 1 upwards, and registered bonds of the denomination of one thousand dollars, of five thousand dollars, and also of any multiple of five thousand dollars that the Railway Companies from time to time may prescribe, every such bond to bear a distinctive number or designation; and all such bonds from time to time are to be executed in the name and on behalf of each of the Railway Companies, and under its corporate seal, by its president or any vice-president and by its secretary or any assistant secretary, and are to be issued, certified, and delivered as in this indenture provided, and are to be substantially of the following tenor, to wit:

[Form of coupon bond.]

No. .... $1,000.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC—GREAT NORTHERN

Four per cent joint bond.

C., B. and Q. collateral.

The Northern Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Wisconsin, hereinafter termed the Northern Pacific Company, and the Great Northern Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Minnesota, hereinafter termed the Great Northern Company, for value received, jointly promise to pay to bearer, or, if registered, to the registered holder of this bond, on the first day of July, 1921, in the city of New York or in the city of Boston, Mass., at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., or of such other fiscal agent or agents as shall be appointed by said Railway Companies, one thousand dollars gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness, and to pay interest thereon from the first day of July, 1901, at the rate of four per cent per annum, such interest to be payable at such office in New York or in Boston in like gold coin semiannually on the first day of January and the first day of July in each year, but only upon presentation and surrender of the annexed coupons therefor as they severally mature.

The principal and interest of this bond are payable without deduction for any tax or taxes which said railway companies may be required to pay or to retain therefrom under any present or future law of the United States, or of any State, county, or municipality therein.

This bond is one of a duly authorized series of coupon bonds and registered bonds issued and to be issued by said Railway Companies jointly in payment of the purchase price of certain shares of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy

Railroad Company, of which shares one-half shall belong to the 2021
Northern Pacific Company and one-half to the Great Northern Company; all such shares having been acquired under an agreement between the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company, that if either of said Railway Companies shall default in its obligations to the other in respect of the bonds of this issue, by reason of bankruptcy, insolvency, or other cause, disabling it from performing the same, the pledged shares belonging to such company so in default thereafter shall become and be the property of the company not in default, which thenceforth shall be liable in severalty upon all covenants 2022 herein contained.

All such bonds have been issued, or are to be issued, under and in pursuance of, and are to be secured ratably by and are subject to, an indenture dated July 1, 1901, duly executed by the Northern Pacific Company and by the Great Northern Company, jointly, to the Standard Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, under which indenture all such shares of stock of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company so purchased by said Railway Companies shall be deposited with said Trustee; and hereby reference is made to said indenture with the same 2023 effect as if herein fully set forth.

The aggregate amount of bonds of this issue is limited, so that never at any one time shall there be outstanding such bonds for an aggregate principal sum in excess of $222,400,000, nor in excess of twice the par value of all shares of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company that shall have been assigned and transferred to the trustee under said indenture in exchange for bonds certified thereunder.

This bond is subject to redemption, as stated in said indenture, on the first day of any January or July after January 1, 2024
1906, by payment of the principal of the bond, together with a premium of five per cent thereof and the interest then accrued.

As provided in said indenture, this bond may be registered as to principal in the name of the owner on the books of the trustee at its office in the city of New York, or on the books of an agent to be maintained in the city of Boston, Mass., such registration being noted by the registrar on the bond, and thereafter no transfer shall be valid unless made on such books and similarly noted on the bond; but the bond may be discharged from registration by similar transfer to bearer, and from time to time it may be registered or transferred to bearer in like manner. Such registration, however, shall not affect the transferability of the coupons by delivery merely, and payment to the bearer thereof shall discharge the railway companies in respect of the interest therein mentioned, whether or not the bond shall have been registered.

This bond also, as provided in said indenture, may be exchanged for a registered bond without coupons, bearing interest payable quarterly on each first day of January, April, July, and October.

Neither this bond, nor any coupon for interest thereon, shall become or be valid until the bond shall have been authenticated by the certificate, endorsed hereon, duly signed by the trustee under said indenture.

In witness whereof the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company each has caused these presents to be signed by its president or one of its vice-presidents, and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed and to be attested by its secretary or one of its assistant secretaries, and coupons for said interest, authenticated by the engraved facsimile signature of its treasurer, to be attached hereto, this first day of July, 1901.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,

[L. S.] By ——— ———,
Vice-President.

Attest:

———— ————,
Assistant Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY,

[L. S.] By ——— ———,
Vice-President.

Attest:

———— ————,
Assistant Secretary.

No. ——. [Form of registered bond without coupons.] $——. 2029

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

NORTHERN PACIFIC—GREAT NORTHERN

Registered four per cent joint bond.

C., B. AND Q. COLLATERAL.

The Northern Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Wisonsin, hereinafter termed the Northern Pacific Company, and the Great Northern Railway Company, a corporation of the State of Minnesota, hereinafter termed the Great Northern Company, for value received, jointly promise to pay to ——— or registered assigns, on the first day of July, 1921, 2030 in the city of New York, or in the city of Boston, Mass., at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., or of such other fiscal agent or agents as shall be appointed by said Railway Companies, ——— dollars gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness, and to pay interest thereon from the first day of January, April, July, or October next preceding the date hereof, at the rate of four per cent per annum, such interest to be payable at such office in New York or in Boston in like gold coin quarterly on each first day of January, April, July, and October. 2031

The principal and interest of this bond are payable without deduction for any tax or taxes which said Railway Companies may be required to pay or to retain therefrom under any present or future law of the United States, or of any State, county, or municipality therein.

This bond is one of a duly authorized series of coupon bonds and registered bonds issued and to be issued by said Railway Companies jointly in payment of the purchase price of certain shares of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, of which shares one-half shall belong 2032 to the Northern Pacific Company, and one-half to the Great Northern Company; all such shares having been acquired under an agreement between the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company, that if either of said Railway Companies shall default in its obligations to the other in respect of the bonds of this issue, by reason of bankruptcy, insolvency, or other cause, disabling it from performing the same, the pledged shares belonging to such company so in default thereafter shall become and be the property of the company not in default, which thenceforth shall be liable in severalty upon all covenants herein contained.

All such bonds have been issued, or are to be issued, under and in pursuance of, and are to be secured ratably by and are subject to an indenture dated July 1, 1901, duly executed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and by the Great Northern Railway Company, jointly, to the Standard Trust Company, of New York, as Trustee, under which indenture all such shares of stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company so purchased by said Railway Companies shall be deposited with said Trustee; and hereby reference is made to said indenture with the same effect as if herein fully set forth.

The aggregate amount of bonds of this issue is limited, so that never at any one time shall there be outstanding such bonds for an aggregate principal sum in excess of $222,400,000, nor in excess of twice the par value of all shares of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company that shall have been assigned and transferred to the Trustee under said indenture in exchange for bonds certified thereunder.

This bond is subject to redemption, as stated in said indenture, on the first day of any January or July after January 1, 1906, by payment of the principal of the bond, together with a premium of five per cent thereof and the interest then accrued.

This bond is transferable only in the manner prescribed in said indenture on the Trustee's books provided for that purpose at its office in the city of New York, or on the books of an agent to be maintained in the city of Boston, Mass., upon surrender and cancellation of this bond; and thereupon a new registered bond will be issued to the transferee in exchange therefor on payment of the charge provided for in said indenture. This bond also, in the manner prescribed in said indenture, and upon payment of the charge therein provided, is exchangeable for coupon bonds of the same aggregate principal sum.

This bond shall not become obligatory for any purpose until it shall have been authenticated by the certificate, hereon endorsed, of the Trustee under said indenture.

In witness whereof, the Northern Pacific Railway Company 2037 and the Great Northern Railway Company each has caused these presents to be signed by its president or one of its vice-presidents, and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed and to be attested by its secretary, or one of its assistant secretaries, the ———

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,

[L. S.] By ——— ———,

Vice-President.

Attest:

——— ———, 2038

Assistant Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY,

[L. S.] By ——— ———,

Vice-President.

Attest:

——— ———,

Assistant Secretary.

And whereas, there are to be attached to said coupon bonds at the time of the issue thereof coupons representing the semi-annual installments of interest which shall become due thereon, 2039 each of which coupons is to be substantially of the following tenor, viz:

[Form of interest coupon.]

$20. No. ....

On the first day of ——— the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company, jointly promise to pay to bearer, in the city of New York, or in the city of Boston, Mass., at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., or of such other fiscal agent or agents as said Railway Companies may appoint, twenty dollars gold coin, without any deduction 2040 for taxes, being six months' interest, then due on their four per cent. joint bond No. ——, subject to the terms of said bond and of the indenture therein mentioned.

——— ———,

Treasurer.

——— ———,

Treasurer.

And whereas, each of the coupons to be attached to such coupon bonds is to be authenticated by the engraved fac-simile signature of the present treasurer or of any future treasurer of the Northern Pacific Company and of the present treasurer or of any future treasurer of the Great Northern Company, and each of said companies may adopt and use for that purpose the engraved fac-simile signature of any person who shall have been its treasurer, notwithstanding the fact that he may have ceased to be such treasurer at the time when such bonds shall be actually certified and delivered, and such coupons shall be attached to the bonds; and

Whereas, on each of said coupon bonds and on each of said registered bonds without coupons there is to be endorsed a certificate of the Trustee under this indenture that it is one of the bonds issued hereunder, and no bond shall be secured by this indenture or be obligatory for any purpose unless such certificate shall have been executed by such trustee, such certificate to be substantially of the following tenor, viz:

[Form of trustee's certificate.]

This bond is one of the series of bonds described in the within-mentioned indenture executed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company to the undersigned as Trustee.

THE STANDARD TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
Trustee,

By ——— ———.

Now, therefore, this indenture witnesseth:

That, in order to secure the payment of the principal and interest of all such bonds at any time issued and outstanding under this indenture, and the performance of all the covenants and conditions herein contained, and in consideration of the premises and of the purchase and acceptance of such bonds by the holders thereof, and of the sum of one dollar to each of them duly paid by the Trustee at the ensealing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged,

The Railway Companies, parties of the first part, have assigned and transferred, and by these presents do assign and transfer unto the Trustee, party of the second part, its successors and assigns, one million and sixty-six thousand and six 2045 hundred (1,066,600) shares of the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, the certificates for which have been delivered to the Trustee, and all additional shares of the capital stock of said company in exchange for which bonds hereby secured shall be certified and delivered hereunder.

To have and to hold the said shares of capital stock and all additional property that hereafter shall become subject to this indenture unto the Trustee and its successors and assigns, in trust for the equal and proportionate security of all present and 2046 future holders of bonds and interest obligations issued, and to be issued, under and secured by this indenture, and for the enforcement of the payment of said bonds and interest obligations when payable, and the performance of and compliance with the covenants and conditions of this indenture, without preference, priority, or distinction as to lien or otherwise of any one bond over any other bond by reason of priority in the issue or negotiation thereof; so that each and every bond issued and to be issued, as aforesaid, shall have the same right, lien, and privilege under this indenture and so that the principal and inter- 2047 est of every such bond shall, subject to the terms hereof, be equally and proportionately secured hereby as if all had been made, executed, delivered, and negotiated simultaneously with the execution and delivery of this indenture, it being intended that the lien and security of this trust deed shall take effect from the day of the execution hereof without regard to the day of actual issue, sale, or disposition of said bonds, as though upon such day all of said bonds were actually issued, sold, and delivered to the purchasers for value.

And hereby it is covenanted and declared that all such bonds 2048 with the coupons for interest thereon are to be issued, certified, and delivered and that said stock is to be held by the Trustee subject to the further covenants, conditions, uses, and trusts hereinafter set forth; and it is covenanted between the parties hereto as follows, viz:

ARTICLE ONE.

SECTION 1. From time to time the bonds to be secured hereby shall be executed by the Railway Companies and by them shall be delivered for certification to the Trustee; and thereupon, as provided in this article and not otherwise, the Trustee shall certify and shall deliver the same. At the option of the Railway Companies, from time to time any of such bonds may be executed, certified, and delivered originally either as coupon bonds or as registered bonds.

The amount of bonds hereby secured which may be executed by the Railway Companies and which may be certified by the Trustee is limited so that never at any time shall there be outstanding bonds hereby secured for an aggregate principal sum exceeding $222,400,000, nor in excess of twice the par value of all shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company that shall have been assigned and transferred to the Trustee under this indenture in exchange for bonds certified and delivered hereunder.

Before certifying or delivering any coupon bond hereby secured, the Trustee shall detach and shall cancel all coupons thereof then matured, and every registered bond shall be dated on the day of the actual certification thereof.

Only such of said bonds as shall bear thereon a certificate substantially in the form hereinbefore recited, duly executed by the Trustee, shall be secured by this indenture or shall be entitled to any lien or benefit hereunder. Every such certificate of the Trustee upon any bond executed by the Railway Companies shall be the conclusive and the only evidence that the bond so certified was duly issued hereunder and is entitled to the benefit of the trust hereby created.

SEC. 2. Upon the execution of this indenture and upon delivery to the Trustee of the certificates for said 1,066,600 shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company, accompanied by duly executed instruments of assignment and transfer thereof, the Trustee, without any further action on the part of the Railway Companies, shall certify and shall deliver to the Metropolitan Trust Company of the city of New York, or to its agent, the Old Colony Trust Company (of Boston, Mass.), as may be ordered in writing by Francis W. Hunnewell, Charles J. Paine, and J. Malcolm Forbes, or any two of them, bonds hereby secured for the aggregate principal sum of $213,320,000.

SEC. 3. The remaining $9,080,000, par value, of bonds authorized to be issued under and secured by this indenture shall be reserved, to be executed, certified, and delivered as follows and 2053 not otherwise:

Whenever, after delivery to the Trustee of the certificates for said 1,066,600 shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company under section 2 of this article, the Railway Companies shall tender or shall cause to be tendered to the Trustee the certificates accompanied by duly executed instruments of assignment and transfer for any of the remaining shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company issued and outstanding at the date hereof, or for any shares of said company which under existing obligations it is to issue and deliver (the aggregate 2054 par value of all such shares already issued and to be issued under existing obligations being not more than $111,200,000), the Trustee shall receive the same and in exchange therefor shall certify and shall deliver, upon the order in writing of the president or a vice-president of the Northern Pacific Company and of the president or a vice-president of the Great Northern Company, $1,000 par value of the bonds reserved under this section for each $500 par value of such shares of the Burlington Company so received by the Trustee under this section.

The Trustee may receive a certificate signed by the president 2055 or a vice-president of the Northern Pacific Company or of the Great Northern Company as sufficient evidence that any certificates for shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company tendered to the Trustee hereunder are such certificates for shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company in exchange for which bonds may be certified and delivered by the Trustee hereunder.

SEC. 4. Whenever any coupon bond or bonds, issued under and secured by this indenture, together with all unmatured coupons thereto belonging, shall be surrendered for exchange for 2056 registered bonds without coupons, the Railway Companies shall execute and the Trustee shall certify, and in exchange for such coupon bond or bonds shall deliver, a registered bond or registered bonds, without coupons, for the like aggregate principal sum. If such exchange shall be made more than three months after the date of maturity of the last matured coupon of such surrendered coupon bonds the Railway Companies at the time of such exchange, in adjustment of the interest on such bonds, shall pay a sum equal to one quarterly installment of interest on such registered bond or bonds without coupons.

Whenever any registered bond without coupons issued under and secured by this indenture shall be surrendered for exchange for a coupon bond or bonds, the Railway Companies, upon payment of the charges therefor, shall issue and the Trustee shall certify, and in exchange for such registered bond shall deliver, a coupon bond or coupon bonds for the like aggregate principal sum, with the coupons maturing on and after the first day of January or the first day of July next after the date of such exchange; but if such exchange shall be made less than three months prior to any first day of January or first day of July the holder of such surrendered registered bond at the time of such exhange, in adjustment of the interest on such bonds, shall pay to the Trustee to the credit of the Railway Companies a sum equal to the quarterly installment which shall have matured on such registered bond in respect of the interest represented by the coupon next maturing upon such coupon bond or bonds.

In every case of such exchange the Trustee forthwith shall cancel the surrendered bond or bonds and coupons and shall deliver the same to the Railway Companies.

Whenever any registered bond or bonds without coupons shall be surrendered, transferred, and canceled, the Railway Companies, upon request therefor, shall issue to the transferee, and the Trustee shall certify and shall deliver registered bonds, or one registered bond, without coupons, for a like aggregate principal sum.

Nevertheless, no coupon bond shall be exchangeable for a registered bond without coupons after such coupon bond shall have been drawn for redemption or after notice of redemption thereof shall have been advertised as provided in article four hereof; and no registered bond without coupons shall be transferable, or shall be exchangeable for a coupon bond after such registered bond without coupons shall have been drawn for redemption or after notice of redemption thereof shall have been advertised as provided in said article.

Except as hereinafter provided in section 6 of this article, the Railway Companies, for any exchange of coupon bonds for registered bonds, and (2) for any transfer of registered bonds without coupons, and (3) for any exchange of registered bonds 2061 without coupons for coupon bonds, at their option, may require the payment of a sum sufficient to reimburse them for any stamp tax or governmental charge, and in addition thereto such further sum as may be necessary to meet other expense connected therewith, such further sum, however, not to exceed one dollar for each new coupon bond or registered bond without coupons issued upon such exchange or transfer.

SEC. 5. In case any coupon bond issued hereunder with the coupons thereto appertaining, or any registered bond without coupons, shall become mutilated or be destroyed, the Railway 2062
Companies, in their discretion, may execute, and thereupon the Trustee shall certify and deliver, a new bond of like tenor and date (including coupons in case of a coupon bond) bearing the same serial number, in exchange and substitution for, and upon cancellation of, the mutilated coupon bond and its coupons, or the mutilated registered bond, or in lieu of and substitution for the coupon bond and its coupons or the registered bond so destroyed, upon receipt of evidence satisfactory to the Railway Companies and to the Trustee of the destruction of such coupon bond and its coupons, or of such registered bond, and upon 2063 receipt also of indemnity satisfactory to the Railway Companies and to the Trustee.

SEC. 6. Until the bonds to be issued under and secured by this indenture can be engraved, the Railway Companies may execute, and upon their request the Trustee shall certify and deliver, pursuant to sections 2 and 3 of this article, in lieu of such engraved bonds, printed registered bonds of any denomination, substantially of the tenor of the registered bonds to be issued as hereinbefore provided. Upon surrender of such printed bonds for exchange, the Railway Companies, at their 2064 own expense and without making any charge therefor, shall issue, and upon cancellation of such surrendered bonds the Trustee shall certify and deliver, in exchange therefor, engraved coupon bonds or registered bonds without coupons of any denomination or denominations hereinbefore provided for the same aggregate principal sum as the printed bonds surrendered; and until so exchanged each of such printed bonds shall be entitled to the same security as an engraved bond issued hereunder.

SEC. 7. Nothing in this article contained, or in any other article of this indenture, or in the bonds issued hereunder, expressed or implied, is intended, or shall be construed, to give to any stockholder of the Burlington Company or to any other person or corporation, except the parties hereto and the holders of bonds issued under and secured by this indenture, any legal or equitable right, remedy, or claim under or in respect of this indenture, or under any covenant, condition, or provision herein contained, all its covenants, conditions, and provisions being intended to be and being for the sole and exclusive benefit of the parties hereto and of the holders of the bonds hereby secured.

ARTICLE TWO.

SECTION 1. The Railway Companies covenant that duly and punctually they will pay the principal and interest of every bond issued and secured hereunder, at the dates and the place and in the manner mentioned in such bonds or in the coupons thereto belonging, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, without deduction from either principal or interest for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States or any State or county or municipality thereof which the Railway Companies may be required to pay or to retain therefrom under or by reason of any present or future law. The interest on the coupon bonds shall be payable only upon presentation and surrender of the several coupons for such interest as they respectively mature, and when paid such coupons shall forthwith be canceled.

The interest on the registered bonds without coupons shall be payable only to the registered holders thereof, and the Railway Companies shall cause cheques for such interest to be remitted by mail to all holders of registered bonds without coupons, who shall file suitable written orders therefor with the fiscal agent of the Railway Companies in New York or in Boston at whose office such interest is payable.

The principal and interest of such bonds shall be payable in the city of New York or in the city of Boston, Mass., at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., or of such other fiscal agent or agents as shall be appointed by the Railway Companies for that purpose. At all times, until the payment of the principal of the bonds hereby secured, the Railway Companies will maintain a fiscal agency in the city of New York and in the city of Boston where 2069 bonds and coupons may be presented for payment and where notices or demands in respect of said bonds and coupons may be served, and from time to time the Railway Companies will give written notice to the Trustee of any change of any such agency. In case the Railway Companies should fail to maintain such agency or should fail to give such notice of any change thereof, presentation and demand may be made and notices may be served at the office of the Trustee in the city of New York.

SEC. 2. The Railway Companies hereby appoint the Trustee registrar in the city of New York, and at all times they will 2070 maintain an agency in the city of Boston for the registration and transfer of bonds issued hereunder. At each of such places of registration the Railway Companies will cause to be registered, subject to reasonable regulations, in books to be kept for that purpose, any bonds without coupons, and, upon presentation thereof for such purpose, any coupon bonds issued hereunder; and the Railway Companies, by instrument in writing, from time to time may appoint a new registrar in the city of New York or in the city of Boston in place of any registrar previously appointed.

Upon presentation at the office of either bond registrar at its 2071 office in the city of New York or in the city of Boston of any such coupon bond registered at the same office, accompanied by delivery of a written instrument of transfer executed by the registered holder, such bond shall be transferred upon such bond register and such transfer shall be noted by such registrar upon the bond. The registered holder of any such registered coupon bond also shall have the right to cause the same to be registered as payable to bearer, in which case transferability by delivery shall be restored, and thereafter the principal of such bond when due shall be payable to the person presenting the bond; but any 2072 such coupon bond registered as payable to bearer may be registered again in the name of the holder with the same effect as a first registration thereof. Successive registrations and transfers as aforesaid may be made from time to time as desired; and each registration of a coupon bond shall be noted by the bond registrar on the bond.

Registration of any coupon bond, however, shall not restrain the negotiability of any coupon thereto belonging, but every such coupon shall continue to pass by delivery merely, and shall remain payable to bearer.

Any registered bond or bonds without coupons may be transferred upon such register by surrender of such bond or bonds for cancellation accompanied by delivery of a written instrument of transfer duly executed by the registered holder of the bond or bonds; and thereupon a new registered bond, or new registered bonds, for an equivalent principal sum shall be issued to the transferee or transferees, as provided in section 4 of article one hereof.

SEC. 3. The Railway Companies covenant:

(a) That in case hereafter there shall be issued any shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company, in addition to the shares that now are outstanding or that may be issued in exchange for the convertible debentures of said company now outstanding, or that may be issued to the holders (other than the Burlington Company) of the shares of other corporations whose franchises and property have been purchased by the Burlington Company or that may be issued to any other party or parties now entitled to demand stock of the Burlington Company, then the Railway Companies will assign and transfer, or will cause to be assigned and transferred, to the Trustee, by it to be held subject to the trusts of this indenture, such part of such additional capital stock as shall bear a like proportion to the part of the entire capital stock of the Burlington Company previously assigned and transferred to the Trustee hereunder;

(b) That they will not by affirmative vote or by abstaining from voting sanction or permit the issue of any bonds by the Burlington Company, except for the refunding of its existing obligations, or for the acquisition of additional properties, or for betterments or improvements, or for other lawful purposes of the Burlington Company;

(c) That no proceeds of any bonds that may be issued by the Burlington Company (except such proceeds to an amount not exceeding any undivided surplus that shall have been accumulated by the Burlington Company after July 1, 1901) shall be used to pay any part of the bonds secured by this indenture unless all the bonds hereby secured shall then be paid;

(d) That no part of the surplus of the Burlington Company existing on July 1, 1901, in which surplus are included the shares of other corporations now in the treasury of the Burlington Company whose franchises and property have been purchased by the Burlington Company, as also any shares of said Burlington Company that might be issued in exchange for such shares of such other corporations, shall be distributed as a dividend among the stockholders unless all the bonds secured by this indenture shall then be paid; 2077

(e) That they will cause all repairs, renewals, and replacements necessary to maintain the railroads, structures, locomotives, cars and other equipment, tools and other property of the Burlington Company in their present good order and condition 2078 to be made out of the earnings of said railroads and other property, and will consent and do hereby consent that the said railroads and other property and the books of account of the Burlington Company may be from time to time inspected personally by any member of the present executive and finance committee of the Burlington Company with any necessary clerical assistance, and such members, upon their request, shall be furnished with free transportation over all the lines of the Burlington system;

(f) That the following provision in the bonds secured by this 2079 indenture, to wit:

"all such shares having been acquired under an agreement between the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company, that if either of said Railway Companies shall default in its obligations to the other in respect of the bonds of this issue by reason of bankruptcy, insolvency, or other cause, disabling it from performing the same, the pledged shares belonging to such company so in default thereafter shall become and be the property of the company not in default, which thenceforth shall be liable in severalty upon all covenants herein contained," 2080 may be enforced against either or both of said Railway Companies by the Trustee in the interest and for the benefit of bondholders by any such action and by any such legal proceedings as may be deemed necessary and appropriate;

(g) That neither of said Railway Companies will additionally encumber its existing lines of railway by any new mortgage thereon, except by way of further security for bonds issued under existing mortgages of said railways, or to secure bonds issued to refund bonds secured by existing mortgage of said railways, unless by the terms of such new mortgage it shall be provided that any balance that the mortgagor shall be bound to pay on account of the bonds secured by this indenture after the application of the stock pledged hereunder shall be included in the debt secured by said new mortgage;

(h) That they will not sanction or permit the execution by the Burlington Company of any lease of the railways in its system unless such lease be made subject to termination by the Burlington Company in case the shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company held by the Trustee hereunder shall be sold because of any default by the Railway Companies hereunder, or shall be retaken by the holders of the bonds hereby secured in exchange for their bonds pursuant to section 5 of article five hereof; and

(i) That they will not sanction or permit the sale by the Burlington Company of the railways in its system or of any essential part thereof, or of the securities representing the same, unless provision be made that so much of the consideration for such sale as is or may be receivable by the holders of the shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company pledged hereunder, upon the pro rata distribution thereof among all the stockholders of the Burlington Company, shall be delivered to the Trustee hereunder by it to be held as further security for the bonds hereby secured.

ARTICLE THREE.

SECTION 1. The Trustee shall cause to be transferred into its name as Trustee under this indenture all shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company the certificates for which shall be delivered to the Trustee hereunder.

SEC. 2. Until and unless there shall be some default in the payment upon demand of the interest or of some part of the interest on any bond hereby secured and such default shall have continued for a period of three months, or in the payment of the principal or of some part of the principal of any bond hereby secured, (1) the Trustee from time to time, upon the written demand of the Railway Companies, authorized by resolution of the board of directors of each of the Railway Companies, shall execute and deliver its powers of attorney appoint- 2085

ing such person or persons as the Railway Companies from time to time jointly shall so designate in writing as attorney and proxy to vote at meetings of the stockholders of the Burlington Company upon all said shares of stock for the election of directors and for all purposes not in violation of the provisions of section 3 of article two hereof; and (2) in case the Railway Companies shall fail jointly so to designate in writing such person or persons the Trustee, by one of its officers or by an attorney or proxy by it selected, shall vote upon all such stock at elections of directors of the Burlington Company for the election of five persons 2086 to be nominated in writing by the Northern Pacific Company, for the election of five persons to be nominated in writing by the Great Northern Company, and for the election of an eleventh person so to be nominated in writing by both of said Railway Companies; but if the Railway Companies shall not, at least five days prior to the date of such election, jointly so nominate a person to be such eleventh director, then the Trustee shall vote upon all such stock for the election of such person as eleventh director as shall be nominated in writing by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., who shall act as umpire for that purpose. Upon 2087 all questions other than the election of directors, if the Railway Companies shall have failed to designate an attorney or proxy, the Trustee shall vote upon such stock in accordance with any written directions that may so be given to it by both of said Railway Companies, or, in the absence of written direction so given by both of said Railway Companies, then in accordance with any written directions that may be so given by either one of the Railway Companies and by said firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., who shall act as umpire for that purpose. By written agreement, of which a copy (authenticated by resolution of the 2088 board of directors of each of the Railway Companies) shall be delivered to the Trustee, the Railway Companies may appoint any other person or persons to act as umpire in place of J. P. Morgan & Co. under the foregoing provisions; and also may make any provision in lieu of the foregoing provisions in respect of the voting upon any of the stock pledged hereunder, until and unless there shall be some default in the payment upon demand of the interest, or of some part of the interest, on any bond hereby secured, and such default shall have continued for a period of three months, or in the payment of the principal, or of some part of the principal, of any bond hereby secured—notice of any such substituted provision to be given to the Trustee; but in no event shall any vote be cast upon any of said shares in violation of the provisions of section 3 of article two hereof.

SEC. 3. Until and unless there shall be some default in the payment upon demand of the interest or principal, or of some part of the interest or principal, of any bond hereby secured, each of the Railway Companies and its assigns shall be entitled to receive and to collect the dividends on one-half of the stock held by the Trustee hereunder, and the Trustee, upon demand of either of the Railway Companies, from time to time, shall execute and deliver such assignments, orders, or other instruments as may be required to enable each of the Railway Companies and its assigns to collect and receive one-half of all dividends that may be declared or may become payable upon all of such stock held by the Trustee hereunder, and the Trustee shall pay over to each of the Railway Companies and its assigns one-half of all sums that may be received or collected by the Trustee as dividends upon such stock.

ARTICLE FOUR.

From time to time, upon previous advertisement of notice of call, as hereinafter provided, the Railway Companies shall have the right, on the first day of any January or July after January, 1906, to redeem and to pay off the bonds hereby secured at 105 per cent of their par value and the interest accrued to the date of redemption specified in such notice; but not less than $1,000,000, par value, of such bonds shall be called for redemption at any one time, and no registered bonds without coupons issued and outstanding under this indenture shall be called for redemption until after all coupon bonds then outstanding shall have been called for redemption. If at any time the Railway Companies shall desire to redeem less than all of the outstanding coupon bonds or less than all of the outstanding registered bonds without coupons, they shall request the Trustee to draw by lot bonds for a specified aggre- 2093 gate principal sum, and thereupon the Trustee shall draw by lot the distinctive numbers of the coupon bonds or of the registered bonds without coupons for such aggregate principal sum. Before any such bonds shall become redeemable, the Railway Companies in each case shall advertise at least once in each calendar month for three successive calendar months in two newspapers published in the city of New York and in two newspapers published in the city of Boston a notice addressed to the holders of bonds secured by this indenture, stating that the Railway Companies have called for redemption bonds specified in such 2094

notice, and that upon a date therein designated (which date shall be on the first day of January or July next after such notice shall have been advertised for the period aforesaid) there will become and be due and payable upon each of the bonds specified in such notice the principal thereof with a premium of five per cent of such principal, and the accrued interest to the date of redemption so designated. If less than all the outstanding coupon bonds, or less than all the outstanding registered bonds without coupons, shall be called for redemption, the distinctive numbers of the bonds drawn by the Trustee for redemption 2095 shall be specified in such notice, but if all the bonds of either class shall be called, it shall be sufficient to indicate that fact in the notice.

Upon such advertisement of such notice the bonds therein specified shall become and be due and payable in the city of New York, or in the city of Boston, Mass., on the date designated in such notice at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., or of such other fiscal agent or agents as shall be appointed by the Railway Companies, at par, with a premium of five per cent of their par value and the interest accrued from the last matured 2096 interest installment. The sum payable for principal and premium of each coupon bond shall be payable to the bearer of such coupon bond unless it shall have been registered, and if it shall be registered, then to the registered holder of such coupon bond, but in no case except upon surrender of such bond and of all coupons for interest thereon not due at the date of redemption designated in such notice. All interest installments upon coupon bonds which shall have matured on or prior to the date of redemption designated in such notice shall continue to be payable to the bearers severally and respectively of the coupons for such installments. The sums so due upon the registered bonds without coupons for principal, premium, and for such accrued interest from the maturity of the last interest installment prior to such date of redemption shall be paid to the registered holders of such bonds, but only upon surrender thereof.

All bonds that shall be redeemed and paid hereunder shall be canceled and no new bond shall be issued in substitution therefor.

From and after the date of redemption designated in any notice so advertised (unless the Railway Companies shall make default in paying the same upon demand as herein provided), no further interest shall accrue upon any of the bonds so called for redemption; and anything in such bonds or in such coupons or in this indenture to the contrary notwithstanding, any coupons for interest maturing after such date shall become and be null and void.

ARTICLE FIVE.

SECTION 1. Neither any coupon belonging to any bond hereby secured, nor any claim for interest on any registered bond, which in any way, at or after maturity, shall have been transferred or pledged separate and apart from the bond to which it relates, shall, unless accompanied by such bond, be entitled, in case of a default hereunder, to any benefit of, or from, this indenture, except after the prior payment in full of the principal of the bonds issued hereunder, and of all coupons and interest obligations not so transferred or pledged.

SEC. 2. In case (1) default shall be made in the payment upon demand of any interest on any bond secured by this indenture, and such default shall continue for a period of three months, or in case (2) default shall be made in the due observance or performance of any other covenant or condition herein required to be kept or performed by the Railway Companies, and any such last-mentioned default shall continue for a period of six months after written notice thereof shall have been given to the Railway Companies by the Trustee, then, during the continuance of any such default, upon the written request of the holders of a 2101 majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured then outstanding, the Trustee, by notice in writing delivered to the Railway Companies, shall declare the principal of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding to be due and payable immediately, and upon such declaration the same shall become and be immediately due and payable, anything in this indenture or in said bonds contained to the contrary notwithstanding. This provision, however, is subject to the condition that if, at any time after the principal of said bonds shall have been so declared due and payable, all arrears of interest upon all such bonds, with interest 2102 at the rate of four per cent per annum on overdue installments of interest, shall either be paid by the Railway Companies or be collected out of the pledged stock, or be paid before any sale of the pledged stock shall have been made, or if any default in the observance or performance of any covenant or condition of this indenture not relating to the payment of interest on any bond shall be cured or satisfaction deemed by the Trustee to be adequate shall be made therefor, then and in every such case the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured then outstanding, by written notice to the Railway Companies 2103 and to the Trustee, may waive such default and its consequences; but no such waiver shall extend to or affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereon.

In case the Trustee shall have proceeded to enforce any right under this indenture, by foreclosure or otherwise, and such proceeding shall have been discontinued or abandoned because of such waiver, or for any other reason, or shall have been determined adversely to the Trustee, then and in every such case the Railway Companies and the Trustee shall be restored to their former position and rights hereunder in respect of the 2104 shares of stock pledged hereunder, and all rights, remedies, and powers of the Trustee shall continue as though no such proceeding had been taken.

SEC. 3. In case (1) default shall be made in the payment upon demand of any interest on any bond hereby secured, or in case (2) default shall be made in the due and punctual payment of the principal of any bond hereby secured, or in case (3) default shall be made in the due observance or performance of any other covenant or condition herein required to be kept or performed by the Railway Companies and any such last-mentioned default shall continue for a period of six months after written notice thereof shall have been given to the Railway Companies by the Trustee, then and in every such case, during the continuance of such default, the Trustee may revoke all assignments, orders, or other instruments by it executed enabling the Railway Companies to collect and to receive dividends on such stock of the Burlington Company held hereunder, and the Trustee, for the benefit of the holders of the bonds hereby secured, shall be entitled to receive and collect all dividends that shall become payable upon said stock.

All sums so received or collected by the Trustee as dividends upon such stock, after deducting therefrom all proper charges, costs, and expenses payable to the Trustee by the Railway Companies hereunder, shall by the Trustee be applied as follows:

In case the principal of the bonds hereby secured shall not have become due, to the payment of the interest in default, in the order of the maturity of the installments of such interest, with interest thereon at the rate of four per cent per annum, such payments to be made ratably to the persons entitled thereto, without discrimination or preference.

In case the principal of the bonds hereby secured shall have become due, by declaration or otherwise, first to the payment of the accrued interest (with interest on the overdue installments thereof at the rate of four per cent per annum) in the order of the maturity of the installments, and next to the payment of the principal of all bonds hereby secured; in every instance such payment to be made ratably to the persons entitled to such payment, without any discrimination or preference.

These provisions, however, are not intended in any wise to modify the provisions of section 1 of this article five, but are subject thereto.

SEC. 4. In case (1) default shall be made in the payment upon demand of any interest on any bond hereby secured, and such default shall continue for a period of three months; or in case (2) default shall be made in the due and punctual payment of the principal of any bond hereby secured; or in case (3) default shall be made in the due observance or performance of any other covenant or condition herein required to be kept or performed 2109

by the Railway Companies and any such last-mentioned default shall continue for a period of six months after written notice thereof shall have been given to the Railway Companies by the Trustee, then and in every such case during the continuance of such default the Trustee may vote upon all such shares of stock and may revoke any powers of attorney or proxies which it may have executed at the request of the Railway Companies.

SEC. 5. In case (1) default shall be made in the payment upon demand of any interest on any bond hereby secured, and any such default shall continue for a period of six months; or 2110
in case (2) default shall be made in the due and punctual payment of the principal of any bond hereby secured; or in case (3) default shall be made in the due observance or performance of any other covenant or condition herein required to be kept or performed by the Railway Companies, and any such last-mentioned default shall continue for a period of six months after written notice thereof shall have been given to the Railway Companies by the Trustee, then, and in each and every such case of default, the Trustee, in its discretion, either

(a) may sell or cause to be sold to the highest and best bidder 2111 in one lot and as an entirety all and singular the shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company then held by the Trustee hereunder, which sale shall be made at public auction at such place in the city of New York, and at such date and at such time and upon such terms as the Trustee may determine, and as shall be specified in a notice of such sale, which shall be published in a newspaper in the city of New York and also in a newspaper in the city of Boston, Mass., at least twice in each calendar week for four successive calendar weeks prior to the date of such sale; or

2112

(b) may proceed to protect and enforce its rights and the rights of the bondholders under this indenture by a suit or suits in equity or at law, whether for the specific performance of any covenant or agreement contained herein or in aid of the execution of any power herein granted, or for the foreclosure of this indenture, or for the enforcement of any other appropriate legal or equitable remedy as the Trustee, being advised by counsel learned in the law, shall deem most effectual to protect and enforce any of its rights hereunder.

Nevertheless, if thereunto requested by the holders of three-fourths in amount of the bonds hereby secured then outstanding, the Trustee, in lieu of selling such stock or of enforcing any of its rights or remedies hereunder by reason of such default, shall cause to be transferred to the respective holders of such bonds, in exchange for such bonds, with all unmatured coupons for interest thereon and upon surrender thereof to the Trustee for cancellation, $500, par value, of such stock of the Burlington Company for each $1,000, par value, of the bonds so surrendered in exchange. Such written request executed during the continuance of any such default by the holders of three-fourths in amount of the bonds hereby secured at the time outstanding shall bind all the holders of bonds and coupons hereby secured, whether or not such holders shall have executed any such written request, and after the delivery to the Trustee of such written request, executed by the holders of three-fourths in amount of the bonds hereby secured, no holder of any such bond or of any coupon not then matured shall have any right or claim by reason of such bond or coupon, except to receive in exchange for and upon cancellation of each bond with its unmatured coupons $500, par value, of said shares of capital stock of the Burlington Company for each $1,000, par value, of the bonds so surrendered. All the bonds and coupons so surrendered shall by the Trustee be canceled and be delivered to the Railway Companies.

SEC. 6. Upon the written request of the holders of twenty-five per cent in amount of the bonds hereby secured, in case of any such continuing default, it shall be the duty of the Trustee, upon being indemnified, as hereinafter provided, to take all steps needful for the protection and enforcement of its rights and the rights of the holders of the bonds hereby secured, and to exercise the powers herein conferred, or to take appropriate judicial proceedings by action, suit, or otherwise, as the Trustee, being advised by counsel learned in the law, shall deem most expedient in the interest of the holders of the bonds hereby secured; but, anything in this indenture to the contrary notwithstanding, the holders of seventy-five per cent in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, from time to time, shall have the right to direct and control the action of the proceedings for any sale of the pledged stock, or for the foreclosure of this indenture, or for the appointment of a receiver, or of any other proceedings hereunder.

Trustee and the method and place of conducting any and all 2117

SEC. 7. From time to time the Trustee may adjourn any sale to be made by it under the provisions of this indenture, by announcement at the time and place appointed for such sale, or for such adjourned sale or sales; and without further notice or publication it may make such sale at the time and place to which the same shall be so adjourned.

SEC. 8. Upon the completion of any such sale under this 2118 indenture the Trustee shall transfer to the accepted purchaser all such shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company and shall deliver to such purchaser the certificates therefor, and the Trustee hereby is appointed the true and lawful attorney irrevocable of the Railway Companies, and of each of them, in their name and stead to make all necessary assignments and transfers of the shares of capital stock thus sold, and may substitute any one or more persons with like power, the Railway Companies hereby ratifying and confirming all that their said attorneys or such substitute or substitutes shall lawfully do by 2119 virtue hereof.

Any such sale made under or by virtue of this indenture, whether under the power of sale hereby granted and conferred or under or by virtue of judicial proceedings, shall operate to divest all right, title, interest, claim, and demand whatsoever, either at law or in equity, of the Railway Companies, and of each of them, of, in, and to the shares of capital stock sold, and shall be a perpetual bar, both at law and in equity, against the Railway Companies, and each of them, and their successors and assigns, and against any and all persons claiming or to claim the 2120 shares of the capital stock sold, or any part thereof, from, through, or under the Railway Companies, or either of them, or their successors or assigns.

SEC. 9. The receipt of the Trustee shall be a sufficient discharge to any purchaser of the property or any part thereof sold as aforesaid for the purchase money; and no such purchaser or his representatives, grantees, or assigns, after paying such purchase money and receiving such receipt, shall be bound to see to the application of such purchase money upon or for any trust or purpose of this indenture, or in any manner whatsoever be answerable for any loss, misapplication, or non-application of any such purchase money or any part thereof, or be bound to inquire as to the authorization, necessity, expediency, or regularity of any such sale.

SEC. 10. In case of such sale, whether made under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, the whole of the principal sums of the bonds hereby secured, if not previously due, shall at once become due and payable, anything in said bonds or in this indenture to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 11. The purchase money, proceeds or avails of any such sale, whether under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, together with any other sums which then may be held by the Trustee under any of the provisions of this indenture as part of the trust estate or the proceeds thereof, shall be applied as follows:

First. To the payment of the costs and expenses of such sale, including a reasonable compensation to the Trustee, its agents, attorneys, and counsel, and of all expenses, liabilities, and advances made or incurred by the Trustee hereunder and of all charges upon said shares of stock superior to the lien of these presents.

Second. To the payment of the whole amount then owing or unpaid upon the bonds hereby secured for principal and interest, with interest at the rate of four per cent per annum on the overdue installments of interest; and in case such proceeds shall be insufficient to pay in full the whole amount so due and unpaid upon the said bonds, then ratably to the payment of such principal and interest, without preference or priority of principal over interest, or of interest over principal, or of any installment of interest over any other installment of interest, subject, however, to the provisions of section 1 of this article.

Third. One-half of any surplus remaining shall be paid over to each of the Railway Companies, its successors or assigns, or to whosoever may be lawfully entitled to receive the same.

SEC. 12. Upon any such sale by the Trustee or pursuant to judicial proceedings, any purchaser, for or in settlement or payment of the purchase price of the property purchased, shall be 2125 entitled to use and apply any bonds, and any matured and unpaid coupons hereby secured, by presenting such bonds and coupons in order that there may be credited thereon the sums applicable to the payment thereof out of the net proceeds of such sale after making any deductions which may be made from the proceeds of sale for costs, expenses, compensations and other charges; and such purchaser thereupon shall be credited, on account of such purchase price payable by him, with the sums applicable out of such net proceeds to the payment of, and credited on, the bonds and coupons so presented; and at any such 2126 sale any bondholders may bid for and purchase such property, and may make payment therefor as aforesaid, and upon compliance with the terms of sale, may hold, retain, and dispose of such property without further accountability.

SEC. 13. No holder of any bond or coupon hereby secured shall have any right to institute any suit, action, or proceeding in equity or at law for the foreclosure of this indenture, or for the execution of any trust thereof, or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder, unless the holders of twenty-five per cent in amount of the bonds hereby secured, 2127 then outstanding, shall have made written request upon the Trustee to take action in respect of the matter complained of and shall have afforded to it a reasonable opportunity, either to proceed to exercise the powers hereinbefore granted or to institute such action, suit, or proceeding in its own name; or unless also they shall have offered to the Trustee adequate security and indemnity against the costs, expenses, and liabilities to be incurred therein or thereby; and such notification, request, and offer of indemnity are hereby declared, in every such case, at the option of the Trustee, to be conditions precedent to the 2128
execution of the powers and trusts of this indenture and to any action or cause of action, for foreclosure or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder; it being understood and intended that no one or more holders of bonds and coupons shall have any right in any manner whatever to affect, disturb, or prejudice the lien of this indenture by his or their action, or to enforce any right hereunder, except in the manner herein provided, and that all proceedings at law or in equity shall be instituted, had, and maintained in the manner herein provided, and for the equal benefit of all holders of such outstanding bonds and coupons.

SEC. 14. No delay or omission of the Trustee, or of any holder of bonds hereby secured, to exercise any right or power accruing upon any default, continuing as aforesaid, shall impair any such right or power, or shall be construed to be a waiver of any such default, or of any subsequent default, or an acquiescence therein; and every power and remedy given by this article to the Trustee, or to the bondholders, may be exercised from time to time, and as often as may be deemed expedient, by the Trustee or by the bondholders.

ARTICLE SIX.

No recourse under or upon any obligation, covenant, or agreement contained in this indenture, or in any bond or coupon hereby secured, or because of the creation of any indebtedness hereby secured, shall be had against any stockholder, officer, or director of either of the Railway Companies, or of any successor corporation, either directly or through either of the Railway Companies, by the enforcement of any assessment or by any legal or equitable proceeding by virtue of any statute or otherwise; it being expressly agreed and understood that this indenture, and the obligations hereby secured, are solely corporate obligations, and that no personal liability whatever shall attach to, or be incurred by, the stockholders, officers, or directors of either of the Railway Companies because of the incurring of the indebtedness hereby authorized, or under or by reason of any of the obligations, covenants, or agreements contained in this indenture, or in any of the bonds or coupons hereby secured, or implied therefrom; and that any and all personal liability of every name and nature, and any and all rights and claims against, every such stockholder, officer, or director, whether arising at common law or in equity, or created by statute or constitution, are hereby expressly released and waived as a condition of, and as part of the consideration for, the execution of this indenture and the issue of the bonds and interest obligations secured hereby.

ARTICLE SEVEN. 2133

SECTION 1. Any request or other instrument, required by this indenture to be signed and executed by bondholders, may be in any number of concurrent instruments of similar tenor, and may be signed or executed by such bondholders in person or by agent appointed in writing. Proof of the execution of any such request or other instrument, or of a writing appointing any such agent, and of the holding by any person of coupon bonds transferable by delivery, shall be sufficient for any purpose of this indenture, and shall be conclusive in favor of the Trustee with regard to 2134 due action taken by it under such request or other instrument if made in the following manner:

The fact and date of the execution by any person of any such request or other instrument or writing may be proved by an affidavit of a witness to such execution, or by the certificate of any notary public or other officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds to be recorded in New York, that the person signing such request or other instrument acknowledged to him the execution thereof.

The amount of coupon bonds transferable by delivery held 2135 by any person executing any such request or other instrument as a bondholder, and the amounts and issue numbers of the bonds held by such person and the date of his holding the same, may be proved by a certificate executed by any trust company, bank, bankers, or other depositary (wherever situated), if such certificate shall be deemed by the Trustee to be satisfactory, showing therein that at the date therein mentioned such person had on deposit with such depositary the bonds described in such certificate. The ownership of registered coupon bonds or of registered bonds without coupons shall be proved by the registers of such 2136 bonds.

SEC. 2. The Railway Companies and the Trustee may deem and treat the bearer of any coupon bond hereby secured which shall not at the time be registered as hereinbefore authorized, and the bearer of any coupon for interest on any such bond, whether such bond shall be registered or not, as the absolute owner of such bond or coupon as the case may be, for the purpose of receiving payment thereof and for all other purposes; and neither the Railway Companies nor the Trustee shall be affected by any notice to the contrary.

The Railway Companies and the Trustee may deem and treat the person in whose name any registered bond without coupons issued hereunder shall be registered upon the books of the Railway Companies, as hereinbefore provided, as the absolute owner of such bond for the purpose of receiving payment of or on account of the principal and interest of such bond and for all other purposes, and may deem and treat the person in whose name any coupon bond shall be so registered as the absolute owner thereof for the purpose of receiving payment of or on account of the principal thereof, and for all other purposes, except to receive payment of interest represented by outstanding coupons; and all such payments so made to any such registered holder for the time being, or upon his order, shall be valid and effectual to satisfy and discharge the liability upon such bond to the extent of the sum or sums so paid.

Article Eight.

Section 1. The Trustee shall not be answerable for the default or the misconduct of any agent or attorney appointed in pursuance hereof, if such agent or attorney shall have been selected with reasonable care; nor shall the Trustee be responsible for anything whatever in connection with this trust, except willful misconduct or gross negligence. The Trustee shall not be under any obligation to take any action towards the execution or enforcement of the trusts hereby created, which, in the opinion of the Trustee, shall be likely to involve expense or liability, unless one or more of the holders of the bonds hereby secured shall, as often as required by the Trustee, furnish reasonable indemnity against such expense or liability; nor shall the Trustee be required to take notice of any default hereunder, unless notified in writing of such default by the holders of at least five per cent in amount of the bonds hereby secured then outstanding, or to take any action in respect of any default unless requested to take action in respect thereof by a writing signed by the holders of not less than twenty-five per cent in amount of the bonds hereby secured, then outstanding, and tendered reasonable indemnity as aforesaid, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding; but the foregoing 2141 provisions of this section are intended only for the protection of the Trustee, and shall not be construed to affect any discretion or power by any provision of this indenture given to the Trustee to determine whether or not it shall take action in respect of any default without such notice or request from bondholders, or to affect any other discretion or power given to the Trustee.

The Trustee shall be reimbursed for, and be indemnified against, any liability or damages which may be sustained by it in the premises, and shall have a lien secured hereby upon the 2142 property covered by this indenture, for its compensation and expenses, and also for any such liability or damages.

The Trustee shall not be responsible in any manner whatsoever for the validity hereof, or for the security afforded by the property covered hereby, or for the recitals herein or in said bonds contained; nor shall the Trustee be accountable for the use of any bonds certified and delivered by the Trustee hereunder or for the application of the proceeds of such bonds.

The Trustee shall be entitled to reasonable compensation for all services rendered by it in the execution of the trusts hereby 2143 created, and the Railway Companies agree to pay such compensation as well as all expenses necessarily incurred or disbursed by the Trustee hereunder.

SEC. 2. The Trustee may resign, and be discharged from the trusts created by this indenture, by giving to the Railway Companies and to the bondholders notice by publication of such resignation, specifying a date when such resignation shall take effect, which notice shall be published at least once on a day not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days prior to the date so specified, in a newspaper at that time published in New York, 2144
N. Y., and in a newspaper published in Boston, Mass. Such resignation shall take effect on the day specified in such notice, unless previously a successor trustee shall be appointed as hereinafter provided, in which event such resignation shall take effect immediately upon the appointment of such successor trustee.

Any trustee hereunder may be removed at any time by an instrument in writing filed with the Trustee and executed by the holders of two-thirds in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding.

SEC. 3. In case at any time the Trustee shall resign or shall be removed or otherwise shall become incapable of acting, a successor may be appointed by the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured then outstanding, by an instrument or concurrent instruments signed by such bondholders or their attorneys in fact duly authorized; but until a new trustee shall be appointed by the bondholders as herein authorized, the Railway Companies, by an instrument executed by order of their respective boards of directors, may appoint a trustee to fill such vacancy: Provided, however, That every such successor trustee shall always be a trust company having a capital and surplus aggregating at least $2,000,000, if there be such a trust company willing and able to accept the trust upon reasonable or customary terms. After any such appointment by the Railway Companies, they shall cause notice of such appointment to be published once in each of four successive weeks in a newspaper published in New York, N. Y., and in a newspaper published in Boston, Mass.; but any new trustee so appointed by the Railway Companies shall immediately and without further act be superseded by a trustee appointed in the manner above provided by the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured.

Any successor trustee appointed hereunder shall execute, acknowledge, and deliver to the Railway Companies an instrument accepting such appointment hereunder, and thereupon such successor trustee, without any further act, deed, or conveyance, shall become vested with the title to the pledged shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company, and with all the rights, powers, trusts, duties, and obligations of its predecessor in the trust hereunder with like effect as if originally named as trustee herein; and the trustee ceasing to act shall assign and transfer to the successor trustee all said pledged shares of the capital stock of the Burlington Company and shall deliver to such successor trustee the certificates therefor. Upon request of such successor trustee the Railway Companies shall execute and deliver such instruments of assignment and further assurance that may reasonably be required for more fully and certainly vesting and confirming to such successor trustee all the right, title, and interest of the Trustee in and to such shares and such rights, powers, trusts, duties, and obligations.

ARTICLE NINE. 2149

If, when the bonds hereby secured shall have become due and payable, the Railway Companies shall well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, the whole amount of the principal moneys and interest due upon all of the bonds and coupons for interest thereon hereby secured, then outstanding, or shall provide for such payment by depositing with the Trustee hereunder, for the payment of such bonds and coupons, the entire amount due thereon for principal and interest, and also shall pay, or cause to be paid, all other sums payable hereunder by the Railway Companies, and shall well and truly keep and perform all the things 2150 herein required to be kept and performed by them according to the true intent and meaning of this indenture, then and in that case all said shares of stock and all property then held hereunder shall revert to the Railway Companies and the estate, rights, title, and interest of the Trustee shall thereupon cease, determine, and become void, and the Trustee in such case shall transfer and deliver to each of the Railway Companies, its assigns or nominees, at its or their cost and expense one-half of all said shares of stock and other property.

ARTICLE TEN. 2151

Any written demand, request, notice, designation, direction, or nomination to be made by the Railway Companies or by either one of them, under any of the provisions hereof, shall be deemed sufficiently made and executed if signed by the president, or by a vice-president, of the Railway Companies, or of the railway company in whose behalf the same shall purport to be made. The Trustee may receive a certificate signed by the secretary, or by an assistant secretary, of either railway company as sufficient evidence of the passage of any resolution by the board of directors or by the executive com- 2152 mittee of such railway company.

The terms "Northern Pacific Company," "Great Northern Company," and "Railway Companies," wherever used in this indenture, shall be held to include such company or companies and its or their respective successors and assigns; and all the covenants hereof binding upon or for the benefit of the Railway Companies shall bind and shall enure to the benefit of their respective successors and assigns. The term "the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.," when herein used, shall include and mean not only said firm as now constituted, but also any successor firm, however constituted.

Subject in all respects to the prior and paramount lien of this indenture and to all rights and provisions thereof for the benefit of the holders of the bonds hereby secured, each railway company may assign and transfer its interest in said pledged stock, including its rights under sections 2 and 3 of article three hereof, to collect dividends and to vote upon said pledged shares, and the Railway Companies from time to time, by agreements between themselves, may adjust and readjust or modify their respective rights and interests in respect of such pledged shares.

The term "Trustee," when herein used, shall be held and construed to mean the trustee for the time being, whether original or successor; and the words "Trustee," "bond," "bondholder," and "holder" shall include the plural as well as the singular number.

In witness whereof, on the day and year first above written, the Northern Pacific Company, the Great Northern Company, and the Trustee, each respectively has caused this indenture to be signed by its president or by one of its vice-presidents, and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed, and the same to be attested by the signature of its secretary or one of its assistant secretaries.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,

[SEAL.] By DANIEL S. LAMONT, Vice-President.

Attest:

GEO. H. EARL, Secretary.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY,

[SEAL.] By W. P. CLOUGH, Vice-President.

Attest:

EDWD. T. NICHOLS, Secretary.

THE STANDARD TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee,

By L. L. STANTON, Vice-President.

Attest:

WM. C. COX, Secretary.

STATE OF NEW YORK, 2157
City and County of New York, ss:

Be it remembered that on this twelfth day of July, A. D. 1901, before me, the subscriber, personally came Daniel S. Lamont, the vice-president, and George H. Earl, the secretary, of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, each of whom is to me well known, who, being by me severally duly sworn, each of them for himself did depose and say that the said Daniel S. Lamont resides in the city of New York, in the State of New York, and is vice-president of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, one of the corporations described in and which executed the forego- 2158
ing instrument, and that the said George H. Earl resides in Jersey City, in the State of New Jersey, and is secretary of said corporation; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument as the seal of said corporation is the corporate seal thereof, and that it was affixed by authority of the board of directors of said corporation; that the said Daniel S. Lamont signed his name thereto as vice-president and the said George H. Earl signed his name thereto as secretary by like authority; and they severally acknowledged to me that the same was so done as the free and voluntary act and deed of said corporation. 2159

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and notarial seal this twelfth day of July, 1901.

[SEAL.] WM. H. BRUDER,
Notary Public, County of New York, N. Y.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
City and County of New York, ss:

Be it remembered that on this twelfth day of July, A. D. 1901, before me, the subscriber, personally came William P. Clough, the vice-president, and Edward T. Nichols, the secretary, of the Great Northern Railway Company, each of whom 2160 is to me well known, who, being by me severally duly sworn, each of them for himself did depose and say that the said William P. Clough resides in the city of St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, and is vice-president of the Great Northern Railway Company, one of the corporations described in and which executed the foregoing instrument, and that the said Edward T. Nichols resides in Morristown, New Jersey, and is secretary of said corporation; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument as the seal of said corporation is the corporate seal thereof, and that it was affixed by authority of the board of directors of said corporation; that the said William P. Clough signed his name thereto as vice-president and the said Edward T. Nichols signed his name thereto as secretary by like authority; and they severally acknowledged to me that the same was so done as the free and voluntary act and deed of said corporation.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and notarial seal this twelfth day of July, 1901.

[SEAL.] WM. H. BRUDER,
Notary Public, County of New York, N. Y.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
City and County of New York, ss.:

Be it remembered that on this twelfth day of July, A. D. 1901, before me, the subscriber, personally came Louis L. Stanton, the vice-president, and William C. Cox, the secretary of the Standard Trust Company, of New York, each of whom is to me well known, who, being by me severally duly sworn, each of them for himself did depose and say that the said Louis L. Stanton resides in the city of New York, in the State of New York, and is vice-president of the Standard Trust Company, of New York, one of the corporations described in and which executed the foregoing instrument, and that the said William C. Cox resides in the city of New York, and is secretary of said corporation; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument as the seal of said corporation is the corporate seal thereof, and that it was affixed by authority of the board of directors of said corporation; that the said Louis L. Stanton signed his name as vice-president and the said William C. Cox signed his name thereto as secretary by like authority, and they severally acknowledged to me that the same was so done as the free and voluntary act and deed of said corporation.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and notarial seal this twelfth day of July, 1901.

[SEAL.] WM. H. BRUDER,
Notary Public, County of New York, N. Y.

The following is a copy of lease of Chicago, Burlington and 2165
Quincy Railroad Company to Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT D.

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON AND QUINCY RAILROAD COMPANY TO CHICAGO, BURLINGTON AND QUINCY RAILWAY COMPANY. LEASE. NOVEMBER 20, 1901.

Indenture made on November 20, A. D. 1901, between the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, a corporation under the laws of the State of Illinois, hereinafter called the lessor, and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy 2166 Railway Company, a corporation under the laws of the State of Iowa, hereinafter called the lessee.

ARTICLE I.

(a) The lessor owns certain lines of railway, hereinafter called the "owned lines," situated in the States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wyoming, South Dakota, and Montana, having an aggregate length of about 5,443.92 miles, together with stations, yards, side tracks, shops, and other usual appurtenances of railways, and an equipment of engines, cars, machinery, tools, and furniture for the maintenance and operation of said railways. A list of said lines, which is intended to 2167 include all lines of railway owned by the lessor, will be hereto annexed.

(b) The lessor also holds leases for terms of long future duration of certain other lines of railway, owned by other companies and hereinafter called the "lease-hold lines," situated in the States of Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, and Wyoming, having an aggregate length of about 2,265 miles, together with stations, yards, side tracks, shops, and other usual appurtenances of railways, and an equipment of engines, cars, machinery, tools, and furniture for the maintenance and operation of the 2168 same. A list of said lines, which is intended to include all lines of railway for which the lessor holds leases, will be hereto annexed.

(c) By means of ownership of stocks or bonds, or both, the 2169 lessor controls certain other railways, hereinafter called the "controlled lines," situated in the States of Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, and Colorado, having an aggregate length of about 229.35 miles, standard gauge, and about 228.87 miles, narrow gauge. A list of said lines, which is intended to include all lines of railway controlled by the lessor, through ownership by it of stocks, or bonds, or both, will be hereto annexed.

(d) The lessor also owns or otherwise controls stocks and bonds of certain bridge, depot, and terminal companies. A list 2170 of the said stocks and bonds will be hereto annexed.

(e) The lessor holds and uses rights to run its trains over the tracks and bridges of other companies, said rights being hereinafter called "trackage rights." A list of the contracts and other instruments conferring such rights will be hereto annexed.

(f) The lessor also holds and exercises rights to the use of stations, yards, and other terminal facilities belonging to other companies and hereinafter called "station rights." A list of the contracts and other instruments conferring such rights will be hereto annexed.

2171 (g) The lessor also owns, jointly or in common with other companies, certain other railways, tracks, structures, and other facilities, hereinafter called "joint properties." A list of said "joint properties" will be hereto annexed.

(h) The lessor holds certain unexpired contracts with sundry parties relating to telegraphs, express service, sleeping-car service, and other matters connected with the operation of its railways and the transportation business thereon. A list of said contracts will be hereto annexed.

(i) There have been issued, and are outstanding at this date,
2172 several series of interest-bearing bonds, some of which are secured by mortgages, or deeds of trust, forming liens upon portions of the railways hereinbefore mentioned. A list of said several series of bonds will be hereto annexed.

(j) There are outstanding, in sundry parties, rights to the use of portions of the tracks, and other plant, of the railways hereby leased, created by the grants and contracts of the lessor and its predecessors in interest. A list of the said grants and contracts will be hereto annexed.

ARTICLE II. 2173

SECTION 1. The lessor hereby leases to the lessee all and singular the said "owned lines" of railway, referred to in clause (a) of Article I, together with all the rights, privileges, immunities, and franchises appertaining thereto, and all right of way, yard grounds and yards, station grounds and stations, grounds acquired and held for use in connection with the said lines, or any of them, whether acquired or held in the name of the lessor or in the name of some other person or corporation for its use; side tracks, spur tracks, machine shops and repair shops, and 2174 the machinery, tools and implements therein, or used in connection therewith; roundhouses, turntables, water-supply plant and equipment; warehouses, depots and the furniture and fixtures thereof; fuel sheds, and all tools, implements and tackle designed for use in connection therewith; stationary and portable engines, locomotive engines, cars of all descriptions; snow plows, steam shovels; electric plants, apparatus and equipment of all descriptions; track tools and engineering tools and instruments; also all buildings owned by the lessor and used for offices, storage or other purposes, with the furniture and fixtures thereof; also all 2175 other property, tools, implements, machinery, equipment, fixtures and appurtenances owned by the lessor, and acquired or held for use in connection with its railways, or any of the same, save as hereinafter excepted.

To have and to hold the same unto the lessee, its successors and assigns, for and during the full period of ninety-nine (99) years, from and after twelve o'clock, midnight, of September 30th, A. D. 1901; subject to the rentals, terms, conditions, exceptions, and limitations hereinafter set forth.

SECTION 2. The lessor hereby also sublets to the lessee all 2176 and singular the said "lease-hold lines" mentioned in clause (b) of Article I, and assigns to the lessee for the term hereinafter mentioned all the rights of the lessor therein, together with all the rights, immunities and franchises appertaining thereto, and all right of way, yard grounds and yards, station grounds and stations, grounds acquired and held for use in connection with the said lines, or any of them, whether acquired or held in the name of the lessor, or in the name of some other person or corporation for its use; side tracks, spur tracks, machine shops and repair shops, and the machinery, tools and implements therein, or used in connection therewith; roundhouses, turntables, water-supply plant and equipment; warehouses, depots and the furniture and fixtures thereof; fuel sheds, and all tools, implements and tackle designed for use in connection therewith; stationary and portable engines, locomotive engines, cars of all descriptions; snow plows, steam shovels; electric plants, apparatus and equipment of all descriptions; track tools and engineering tools and instruments; also all buildings owned by any of the companies owning any of the said "lease-hold lines," and covered by the leases of said lines to the lessor, with the furniture and fixtures thereof; also all other property, tools, implements, machinery, equipment, fixtures and appurtenances owned by the lessor, or covered by any lease to the lessor, and acquired or held for use in connection with the said "lease-hold lines" of railway, or any of them, save as hereinafter excepted.

To have and to hold the same unto the lessee, its successors and assigns, for and during the full period of ninety-nine (99) years, from and after midnight of September 30th, A. D. 1901, unless any lease to the lessor herein of any of said "leasehold lines" should expire prior to the expiration of said term; in which event this lease as to such line shall expire simultaneously with that to the lessor herein.

The lessor herein is owner of a majority, or of the whole, of the capital stock of the several companies owning the said "lease-hold lines," and hereby agrees, in case of the expiration of the lease to it of any of the said lines, prior to the expiration of the said term fixed by this instrument, to cause the company owning the railroad covered by such expired lease to execute a new lease or new leases thereof to the lessee herein covering the unexpired portion of the term fixed by this instrument.

SECTION 3. Until otherwise agreed by the parties hereto, all rolling stock of all kinds hereby leased shall continue to be numbered in accordance with the system of numbers therefor now in use.

All other machinery, tools, implements, furniture, and apparatus coming under the operation of this lease, so far as may from time to time be required by the board of directors or executive committee of the lessor herein, shall have placed and maintained thereon such distinctive marks, to indicate the own- 2181 ership thereof, as such board or committee shall designate; and all locomotive engines, cars, machinery, tools, implements, furniture, or apparatus furnished by the lessee herein for replacing similar articles so leased shall also be numbered or marked in like manner.

SECTION 4. During the term of the lease made by this instrument the lessee shall operate the railways hereby leased in a prudent, diligent, and faithful manner, and in such manner as to furnish reasonable accommodation to the public, giving due 2182 regard to the development of traffic, and shall maintain the leased railways and properties so that the same shall, at all times, be in a state of efficiency at least as high as at the present time, whenever, and as often as may be necessary, renewing and replacing the same, and the several parts thereof, with others at least as efficient for the uses for which the same are kept as those replaced thereby.

The title to each item of property procured or furnished by the lessee, in replacement of a similar item hereby leased, shall at once, and without further act, vest in the owner of the item 2183 replaced and become subject to all liens to which such replaced article was subject at the time of such replacement, if so provided in the instrument or instruments creating such liens.

SECTION 5. Should any item of portable property hereby leased become obsolete or unnecessary or undesirable for use in connection with the maintenance or operation of the leased railways, or some of them, the lessee may, with the assent of the board of directors or executive committee of the lessor, and with the assent of the trustee or trustees in any mortgage or mortgages covering the same, sell such items at a fair and reasonable price; 2184 and in the event of such sale the proceeds thereof shall belong to the company owning the sold item at the time of sale, and shall, at the request of the lessee herein, if made within a reasonable time, be reinvested in other articles of property necessary or desirable for use in connection with the leased railways; which articles shall, upon acquisition, belong to the lessor, free and clear of liens, other than such as may have been created by the lessor itself, and shall become subject to this lease.

If the lease shall fail, within a reasonable time, to request reinvestment, as above stated, of the proceeds of any such sale, such proceeds shall be faithfully applied by the lessor as follows:

Firstly. To retirement, for cancellation, of outstanding bonds secured by mortgages forming liens upon the property sold, at the time of sale, and upon such proceeds after sale, in order of priority, by disposing of such proceeds in the manner provided by such mortgages; or in absence of such provisions by purchase of such bonds in the open market or by tender.

Secondly. To retirement, for cancellation, of any other outstanding interest-bearing bonds or forms of obligations for indebtedness of the company owning such item of property at the time of sale, in manner provided by such bonds, or other obligations, or by any instrument creating a lien securing the same; or in absence of such provisions by purchase in the open market or by tender.

All purchases of bonds or other obligations for retirement and cancellation shall be made under such rules and regulations and in such markets as shall seem most likely to insure the lowest prices and most favorable terms for the bonds, or other obligations, to be purchased; but the judgment of the board of directors or executive committee, as the case may be, of the lessor, shall be final upon all such matters.

SECTION 6. The lessee may make all betterments of and additions to the tracks, structures, and plant of the railways hereby leased that may lawfully be required by public authority, or that, in its own judgment, may be necessary or desirable for the prompt and efficient handling of the traffic of said railways. The title to such part of such betterments and additions as shall be located upon property belonging to an owner of the railways hereby leased shall vest in such owner; and the fair value of the same to the leased railways, not exceeding the cost of the same to the lessee, shall be repaid by the lessor to the lessee.

SECTION 7. The lease made by this instrument is subject to the liens created by the said trust deeds and mortgages mentioned in Article I, and also subject to any now existing rights of any person, partnership, or company, in, to, or upon the leased property, or any portion thereof, growing out of any lawful grant or contract made by the lessor or by any of its predecessors in the ownership of any part of the leased properties.

SECTION 8. While the lease made by this instrument remains 2189
in force, all the said stock and bonds of the companies owning the "controlled lines," mentioned in clause (c) of Article I, now held, or that may hereafter be acquired by the lessor, shall be held and managed by the lessor for the benefit of the lessee, and none of the said stocks or bonds shall be sold, pledged, or otherwise disposed of without the written consent of the lessee; and at all meetings of the stockholders of any of said companies the stock held by the lessor shall be voted for such persons and for such lawful measures as the lessee shall, in writing, request.

The lessee shall not, however, without the express consent of 2190 the board of directors of the lessor, to be given at a regular or a specially called meeting of such board, direct any vote to be cast for the alienation of the said "controlled lines," or any part thereof, or for the alienation of any other property belonging to any of the said lines necessary for the proper and efficient handling of the business thereof.

All net income and other benefits accruing to said stock and bonds, during said period, from the operation or other business of the said "controlled lines," shall belong and be paid over to the lessee. 2191

At any time, upon written request of the lessee, the lessor shall cause to be duly executed, by any company owning any part of said "controlled lines," such instrument or instruments as shall suffice to make the whole or any designated part of the lines of such company a portion of the properties covered by this lease.

The lessee shall cause to be applied to the maintenance of each of the said "controlled lines" so much of the revenue thereof as may be necessary for keeping such line, its equipment, and facilities in a state of efficiency for the proper 2192 handling of the traffic thereof.

SECTION 9. While the lease made by this instrument remains in force, all the said stocks and bonds of the said bridge, depot, and terminal companies, mentioned in clause (d) of Article I, now held, or that may hereafter be acquired, by the lessor, shall be held and managed by the lessor for the benefit of the lessee, and none of the said stocks or bonds shall be sold, pledged, or otherwise disposed of, without the written consent of the lessee; and at all meetings of the stockholders of any of the said companies, held during said period, the stock in such company held by the lessor shall be voted for such persons for directors and officers, and for such lawful measures, consistent with the charter of such company, as the lessee shall, in writing, direct.

The lessee shall not, however, without the express consent of the board of directors of the lessor, to be given at a regular or a specially called meeting of said board, direct any vote to be cast for the alienation of any part of the properties of either of the said companies, necessary for the proper and efficient handling of the business thereof.

All net income and other benefits accruing from said stocks and bonds during said period shall belong and be paid to the lessee.

SECTION 10. The lessor also hereby assigns to the lessee all and singular the said "trackage rights" mentioned in clause (e) and all the said "station rights" mentioned in clause (f) of Article I, for the period of time that the lease of railways made by this instrument shall remain in force, if such "trackage rights" and "station rights" shall continue to exist for that length of time, and, if any of said rights should expire before the expiration of said lease, then for the full period of the existence of such right.

Said rights shall be held and enjoyed by the lessee, upon like terms and conditions as those under which the same are, by the instruments creating such rights, to be held and enjoyed by the lessor, or under such modified terms and conditions as may hereafter be lawfully agreed upon by the parties interested; which terms and conditions the lessee hereby accepts, and agrees to perform and abide by, and to relieve the lessor therefrom, while the lease of railways made by this instrument shall remain in force.

SECTION 11. The lessor also hereby leases to the lessee, for the period of time the lease made by this instrument shall remain in force, all the right, title, interest, and share of the lessor, in the said joint properties mentioned in clause (g) of Article I; the same to be held and enjoyed by the lessee as parcel of said leased railways, and on like conditions as are hereinbefore expressed in regard to said railways.

SECTION 12. The lessor also hereby assigns and transfers to 2197
the lessee all its right and interest in the said unexpired contracts mentioned in clause (h) of Article I, which assignment and transfer the lessee hereby accepts, and assumes all liabilities and obligations that may or can arise under said contracts, or under any of them, during the time the lease of railways made by this instrument shall remain in force, and shall save the lessor harmless on account thereof; and, so long as it continues to faithfully fulfill its obligations in this instrument contained, the lessee shall be entitled to realize and enjoy all rights, revenues, and other advantages accruing, or that might accrue, 2198 to the lessor, through or on account of the same, during the term of said lease.

SECTION 13. The lessor hereby sells and transfers to the lessee all the stocks of fuel and of materials of all kinds, acquired or intended for use or consumption in the maintenance or operation of the railways and property hereby leased, on hand at the date of this instrument, and also all contracts for the purchase of any such fuel or materials, with any and all persons and corporations, existing and unfulfilled at the date of this instrument; and the lessee hereby assumes all obligations 2199 of the lessor under said contracts, and shall hold the lessor harmless on account of the same.

Inventories of the said fuel, materials, and supplies, and a list of said contracts, shall be prepared in duplicate, as soon hereafter as may be, one copy thereof for the use of the lessor, and the other for the use of the lessee.

As further consideration of the said sale of fuel, materials, and supplies, the lessee hereby agrees that, upon the termination of the lease made by this instrument, whether by lapse of time or otherwise, the lessee will return, with the leased rail- 2200 ways, to the lessor or its assigns, stocks of fuel, materials, and supplies adapted for use in the maintenance and operation of the said railways, equal in value to the said stocks hereby sold and transferred to the lessee.

SECTION 14. The lessor hereby leases and assigns to the lessee any and all other real and personal property not hereinbefore mentioned, of whatever character and wherever situated, the same to be held and used by it pursuant to the terms of this 2201 instrument, and the lessee shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges, immunities, and franchises of the lessor, except its franchise to be a corporation.

ARTICLE III.

SECTION 1. As compensation for the leases hereby made to and the rights hereby conferred upon it, the lessee shall from time to time, during the term of the lease made by this instrument, well and faithfully make to or for the lessor the following-mentioned payments, that is to say:

First. All interest, as the same shall fall due within the said
2202 period, for which the lessor, or its property, or any other owner of any of the railways hereby leased, or its property, shall be liable, upon bonds or other obligations now outstanding, or upon bonds or other obligations that may hereafter be issued by the lessor, or by any of said other owners, for the purpose of refunding or paying off previously issued bonds to a like or a greater amount, or upon bonds or other obligations that may hereafter be issued by the lessor, or by any of said other owners, upon the written request of the lessee, for any purpose whatsoever; but such obligation of the lessee to pay interest shall not 2203 extend to any bond or other form of indebtedness held by the lessor itself, or by any other owner of any of the lines hereby leased. All such payments shall be made in the coin or currency wherein, and at the place or places whereat, such interest is made payable by the instrument providing for the payment of of the same. All such payments shall be made directly to the persons and corporations entitled to receive the same.

Second. All contributions, as the same shall become payable during said period, to sinking funds for the retirement of bonds of any of the several series mentioned in clause (i) of Article I, 2204 required to be paid by the terms of said bonds, or by the terms of any instrument securing payment of the same, to the extent of the deficiency remaining after the application thereto of the items mentioned in sections 1 and 2 of Article V of this instrument. All such contributions to the sinking funds shall be made by payment directly to the persons or corporations entitled to receive the same, and shall be made in the coin or other currency wherein the same are required to be made by the instrument requiring such payment.

Third. Quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July, 2205 and October, respectively, in each year during the said period, a sum in the lawful money of the United States, equal to one and three-fourths (1¾) per centum upon the par value of all the shares in the capital stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company now outstanding, or that may hereafter be issued under lawful contracts now existing which require the issuance thereof, and upon such additional shares in said capital stock as may be hereafter issued in compliance with the written request of the lessee. The said sums, when and as received by 2206 the lessor, shall be faithfully used by it for the sole purpose of paying, on each of the days aforesaid, a quarter-yearly dividend of one and three-fourths (1¾) per centum upon the par value of the shares in its capital stock then outstanding, as above stated.

Fourth. All valid taxes and assessments, levied or assessed during said period, upon the railways and properties hereby leased, or upon the earnings or income thereof, or upon any other properties owned by the lessor, when and as such taxes and assessments shall become due and payable; all such payments 2207 to be made directly to the officers or persons lawfully entitled to receive such taxes or assessments, and in the coin or currency in which the same are by law required to be paid.

Fifth. On the first day of each month during the term of this lease, at the office of the lessor in the city of New York, or in the city of Boston, the sum of fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500), or such portion thereof as the board of directors or executive committee of the lessor shall require to be paid, to be used by the lessor for paying the expenses of maintaining its organization and of the transaction of its necessary business. 2208

ARTICLE IV.

SECTION 1. The lessor shall not, during the term of the lease made by this instrument, without an express request in writing from the lessee, make or issue any shares of its capital stock, additional to those now outstanding, or to those required to be issued, by lawful contracts now existing.

SECTION 2. The lessor shall not, during the term of the lease made by this instrument, without an express request in writing from the lessee, make or issue any bond, or other obligation for the payment of money, in addition to those now lawfully outstanding, and to those authorized by the several mortgages mentioned in clause (i) of Article I, to be hereafter issued, except for the purpose of refunding or paying off previously issued bonds to a like or greater amount; and such additional issues of bonds so at present authorized shall be made and used solely for the purposes prescribed in the several mortgages securing the same.

SECTION 3. The lessor shall, at the request of the lessee, assent to extensions of time limited for the payment of the principal of any of its bonds, or other obligations, and to the renewal thereof, by the issue of the new bonds, or other obligations, not exceeding the principal of those to be retired thereby, secured by new mortgages or deeds of trust upon the railways and properties covered by this lease, or any part thereof, upon reasonable terms, and for any reasonable length of time, not exceeding the term of the lease made by this instrument.

The lessor shall, at the request and expense of the lessee, execute and cause to be executed, and issue and cause to be issued, all such new bonds, or other evidences of debt, and all such new mortgages or deeds of trust, upon the said railways and properties, as may reasonably be necessary for the economical and effectual accomplishment of such refunding operations, under such reasonable rules and regulations as it may see fit to adopt for the protection of its own rights and interests in the premises.

ARTICLE V.

SECTION 1. All lands granted by the United States, or by any State, to the lessor, or to any other owner of any of the railways hereby leased, and remaining unsold at the date of this instrument, and any other real estate owned by the lessor, not otherwise hereinbefore expressly mentioned and provided for, may be sold by the lessor in the customary way and converted into cash; and all moneys remaining unpaid on outstanding contracts for the sale of similar lands shall be collected by it.

The net proceeds of all such sales and collections remaining after payment of expenses of administration shall be applied, as the same shall accumulate, to the following-named purposes:

1. To the satisfaction of the liens, if any, upon the said lands or proceeds.

2. To payment into the sinking funds established by some of 2213
the mortgages mentioned in clause (h) of Article I, not forming liens upon said lands, or their proceeds, or to the retirement, in some other manner, of bonds of one or more of the classes secured by said mortgages.

3. To the payment of interest upon the bonds mentioned in said clause, or upon some of them.

SECTION 2. For purposes of adjustment of accounts between the parties to this instrument, and of providing for the disposition of current income and assets, and the discharge of current liabilities of the lessor, this instrument shall be deemed to have 2214 taken effect as at midnight of September 30th, A. D. 1901.

ARTICLE VI.

The lessee shall, from time to time, assign to the lessor, for use during the term of the lease made by this instrument, free from rent or other expense to the lessor, office room, properly heated and lighted, suitable for the transaction of its business, in the building used for offices for said railways in Burlington, Iowa, or in the building used for like purposes in Chicago, Illinois, or in both buildings, as the board of directors or executive committee of the lessor shall elect. 2215

The lessee shall also, at all times, during the said period, permit the officers of the lessor, and all its agents duly authorized for the purpose, to have free access to all parts of the railways, and all other property, hereby leased, including all stations, warehouses, machine shops, round houses, tool houses, and all other houses or buildings, wherein are kept any of the equipment, machinery, or tools hereby leased, or any equipment, machinery, or tools supplied by the lessee, for or in replacement of those hereby leased, for the purpose of examining into and ascertaining the condition of such leased property. The lessee 2216 shall also, during the said period, permit all officers, agents, and employees of the lessor traveling upon its business to ride in the passenger trains of the lessee, free of charge, between all points of the railways hereby leased, under such reasonable rules and regulations as the lessee may from time to time adopt with reference to such transportation.

2217 ARTICLE VII.

SECTION 1. If the lessee shall fail to make, in time and manner as in this instrument provided, any of the payments of money which by this instrument it has agreed to make, or shall fail to perform or fulfill, or to cause to be performed or fulfilled, any duty or obligation imposed by law upon the corporation owning or operating the lines of railway hereby leased, for failure to perform or fulfill which duty or obligation the said railways, or any portion thereof, or any of their appurtenances or equipment essential for the proper operation or maintenance 2218 thereof, or their franchises, would or might become liable to seizure or forfeiture; and, if such default shall continue for the period of six (6) months, or, in event of the lessee being or becoming in a state of declared insolvency, if such defaults shall exist for a period of sixty (60) days; or if, at any time during the term of the lease made by this instrument, the lessee shall fail or refuse to maintain and operate, or cause to be maintained and operated, either of the railways, with the equipment thereof, which it has agreed to maintain and operate in manner by this instrument provided, and such default shall continue
2219 after the expiration of a reasonable time for compliance with the valid final award of any board of arbitrators, constituted and acting in pursuance of the provisions hereof, or for compliance with the final order or judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction, requiring the doing by the lessee of the act or acts, the omission to do which shall have constituted such default; in every such case the lessor may, at its option, waive such default, or rescind this instrument, and reenter into and resume possession, control, and ownership of all railways and properties hereby leased. The remedies reserved to the lessor
2220 by this article shall be deemed cumulative only, and shall not deprive the lessor of the right to resort to any other remedy that shall be afforded by the laws, nor of the right to use such other remedies simultaneously and concurrently with the remedies afforded by this article.

The rescission by the lessor of this instrument shall not excuse the lessee from the obligation to pay any sum of money which has become payable by it before the date of such rescission.

SECTION 2. If there shall remain upon the grounds hereby 2221 leased, at the time of any rescission of this instrument, made as provided in the next preceding section, any permanent tracks, structures, or other improvements, placed there originally by the lessee, and not by way of replacement of tracks, structures, or plant existing thereon at the date hereof, for which the lessee shall not previously have been paid, the lessor shall pay the actual and fair value thereof, for use in connection with the leased railways, not in any event exceeding the actual, original cost thereof.

Such payment shall be made: 2222

First. To the holder or holders of any lien or liens upon the leased property, or the interest of the lessee therein, or upon such track, structure, or improvement, for labor or materials furnished to the lessee for constructing or maintaining the said track, structure, or improvement.

Secondly. To the lessee, to the extent of any residue remaining after payment of such liens.

Any dispute arising between the parties interested concerning the fair value of any such track, structure, or improvement shall be submitted to and be decided by arbitration, as provided by 2223
Article VIII of this instrument.

ARTICLE VIII.

Any and all questions that shall or may arise touching the construction of this instrument, or any part thereof, or the rights of the parties thereunder, or covering the business, or manner or mode of transacting the business, to be carried on under the provisions thereof, upon which the parties can not agree, shall be submitted to the arbitrament and award of a board of three (3) disinterested persons experienced in railway management, one to be selected by the lessor, its successors or assigns, and one by 2224
the lessee, its successors or assigns. If either party shall refuse or neglect to appoint an arbitrator within twenty (20) days after written notice from the other of its appointment of an arbitrator on its part, the arbitrator so appointed by the party so giving such notice may, and shall, select and appoint a disinterested person experienced in railway management to act as arbitrator for and on behalf of the party so notified and refusing or neglecting to appoint. The two thus appointed shall select a third, and the board so appointed shall hear and determine the matter in controversy, upon reasonable notice to both parties of the time and place of hearing; and the decision and award of said board, or of any two of them, in the premises shall be binding and conclusive upon said parties, their successors and assigns, with respect to the matter submitted to and decided by them.

ARTICLE IX.

Any difference or controversy that may in good faith arise between the parties hereto as to the construction or carrying out of this instrument, or the rights of the parties thereunder, or the transaction of business under the provisions thereof, shall not interrupt the performance of the agreements therein contained or the continuance of business thereunder; but such business shall continue to be transacted and settlements and payments made thereunder in the same manner in which the same had been transacted and made prior to the arising of such difference or controversy; and thereupon such payments or restitutions shall be made by the respective parties as may be required by the decision of the arbitrators.

ARTICLE X.

The leases and other transfers made by this instrument shall be subject to determination by the lessor at will at any time after the shares in the capital stock of the lessor, held by the trustee in a certain indenture, bearing date July 1, A. D. 1901, made by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company jointly to the Standard Trust Company of New York, as trustee, shall have been sold because of any default by the last-named companies in the requirements of said indenture, or at any time after said shares shall have been retaken by the holders of the said bonds secured thereby, pursuant to the provisions of said indenture.

ARTICLE XI.

The provisions of this instrument shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of the successors and assigns of the lessor and lessee, respectively.

ARTICLE XII. 2229

The lessor agrees that it will from time to time, upon the request of the lessee, make and execute any additional assignment, supplemental lease or assurance, and perform any act that may be required to carry into effect this lease according to its true intent and meaning, and hereby authorizes the lessee, in the management and use of the demised property, or for any lawful purpose in connection therewith, to use the corporate name, seal, and franchises of the lessor.

In testimony whereof the parties hereto have caused this instrument to be subscribed by their respective presidents or 2230 vice-presidents, and to be sealed with their respective corporate seals, attested by the signatures of their respective secretaries, on the day and year last above written.

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON AND QUINCY RAILROAD COMPANY, [SEAL.] (Signed) By GEO. B. HARRIS, President.
Attest:
(Signed) T. S. HOWLAND, Secretary.

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON AND QUINCY RAILWAY COMPANY, [SEAL.] (Signed) By W. W. BALDWIN, President.
Attest:
2231
(Signed) H. E. JARVIS, Secretary.

STATE OF NEW YORK, County of New York, ss:

Be it remembered, that on this 20th day of November, A. D. 1901, before me, a notary public in and for said county and State, personally appeared Geo. B. Harris, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, personally known to me, and to be the same person whose name is subscribed to, and who executed, the foregoing instrument as such president, who, being by me duly sworn, did say 2232 that he is president of the said Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company; that he knows the corporate seal of said company; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument is the corporate seal of said company; that it was affixed by order of the board of directors of said company; that said instrument was signed and sealed in behalf of said corporation by like order as president of said company; and the said Geo. B.

Harris acknowledged said instrument, and that it was the free and voluntary act and deed of said corporation, and that he, as such president, signed, sealed, delivered, and executed said instrument as the free and voluntary act and deed of said company, and his own free and voluntary act and deed as such president, for the uses and purposes therein set forth.

My commission expires March 30th, 1903.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and official seal this 20th day of November, A. D. 1901.

[SEAL.] (Signed) GEO. H. COREY,
Notary Public in and for said County and State.

STATE OF NEW YORK, County of New York, ss:

Be it remembered, that on this 20th day of November, A. D. 1901, before me, a notary public in and for said county and State, personally appeared W. W. Baldwin, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Iowa, personally known to me, and to be the same person whose name is subscribed to and who executed the foregoing instrument as such president, who, being by me duly sworn, did say that he is president of the said Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company; that he knows the corporate seal of said company; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument is the corporate seal of said company; that it was affixed by order of the board of directors of said company; that said instrument was signed and sealed in behalf of said corporation by like order as president of said company; and the said W. W. Baldwin acknowledged said instrument, and that it was the free and voluntary act and deed of said corporation, and that he, as such president, signed, sealed, delivered, and executed said instrument as the free and voluntary act and deed of said company, and his own free and voluntary act and deed as such president, for the uses and purposes therein set forth.

My commission expires March 30th, 1903.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and official seal this 20th day of November, A. D. 1901.

[SEAL.] (Signed) GEO. H. COREY,
Notary Public in and for said County and State.

The following is a copy of agreement of J. P. Morgan & Co. 2237 with the voting trustees of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, of December 1, 1896, offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT E.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.—J. P. MORGAN & CO., REORGANIZATION MANAGERS, WITH THE VOTING TRUSTEES.—AGREEMENT.—DECEMBER 1ST, 1896.

This agreement, made in the city of New York this first day of December, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, by and between J. P. Morgan & Co. (hereinafter called the "Managers"), reorganization managers under a certain plan and agreement for the 2238 reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad system, dated the sixteenth day of March, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, parties of the first part, and J. Pierpont Morgan, Georg Siemens, August Belmont, Johnston Livingston, Charles Lanier (hereinafter called the "Voting Trustees"), parties of the second part, witnesseth as follows:

Whereas the managers have delivered to the Voting Trustees certificates for fully paid shares of one hundred dollars ($100) each of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company (a corporation organized under the laws of the State of 2239 Wisconsin), as follows, viz, 750,000 shares of the preferred stock, 798,000 shares of the common stock, which certificates, together with such other similar certificates as hereafter from time to time may be delivered hereunder, are to be held and disposed of by the Voting Trustees under and pursuant to the terms and conditions hereof;

Now, therefore:

First. The Voting Trustees do hereby promise and agree with the Managers, and with each and every holder of any certificate issued as hereinafter provided, that from time to time 2240 upon request, they will cause to be issued to the Managers, or upon their order, in respect of all stock received from them, certificates in substantially the following form:

(In New York.)

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

Preferred stock trust certificate.

This is to certify that on November 1st, 1901, ——— ——— will be entitled to receive a certificate or certificates for

2241 ——— fully paid shares of one hundred dollars each in the preferred capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and in the meantime to receive payments equal to the dividends, if any, collected by the undersigned Voting Trustees upon a like number of such shares standing in their names; and, until after the actual delivery of such certificates, the Voting Trustees shall possess and shall be entitled to exercise all rights of every name and nature, including the right to vote, in respect of any and all such stock; it being expressly stipulated that no voting right passes by or under this certificate, or 2242 by or under any agreement expressed or implied.

Any dividends on the preferred stock are payable without deduction for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States, or by any State or municipality thereof, that the railway company may at any time be required to pay or to retain therefrom.

This certificate is issued under and pursuant to the terms and conditions of a certain agreement dated December 1, 1896, by and between J. P. Morgan & Co., as reorganization managers, and the undersigned Voting Trustees. No stock certificates shall be due or deliverable hereunder before the first day of 2243 November, 1901; but the Voting Trustees, in their discretion, may make earlier delivery.

This certificate is transferable only on the books of the Voting Trustees by the registered holder, either in person or by attorney duly authorized, according to rules established for that purpose by the Voting Trustees, and on surrender hereof, and until so transferred, the Voting Trustees may treat the registered holder as owner hereof for all purposes whatsoever, except that delivery of stock certificates hereunder shall not be made without the surrender hereof.

2244 This certificate is not valid unless duly signed by J. P. Morgan & Co., as agents, and also registered by the Central Trust Company of New York, as registrar.

This certificate may be exchanged, in such manner as the Voting Trustees may prescribe, for a similar certificate registered at the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, and any dividends applicable to certificates for preferred stock so registered in Berlin will be payable there at the rate of 4.20 marks per dollar.

In witness whereof the said Voting Trustees have caused this certificate to be signed by J. P. Morgan & Co., their duly 2245 authorized agents, this —— day of ———, 189–.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN,
GEORG SIEMENS,
AUGUST BELMONT,
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON,
CHARLES LANIER,
Voting Trustees.

By their agents hereunder.

——— ———.

Registered this —— day of ———, 189–. 2246

CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
Registrar.

By ——— ———.

Entered:

——— ———, Transfer Clerk.

(In New York.)

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

Common stock trust certificate.

This is to certify that on November 1, 1901, ——— ——— will be entitled to receive a certificate or certificates for ——— 2247 fully-paid shares of one hundred dollars each in the common capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and in the meantime to receive payments equal to the dividends, if any, collected by the undersigned Voting Trustees upon a like number of such shares standing in their names; and, until after the actual delivery of such certificates, the Voting Trustees shall possess, and shall be entitled to exercise, all rights of every name and nature, including the right to vote, in respect of any and all such stock; it being expressly stipulated that no voting right passes by or under this certificate, or by or under any 2248 agreement expressed or implied.

This certificate is issued under and pursuant to the terms and conditions of a certain agreement dated December 1, 1896, by and between J. P. Morgan & Co., as reorganization managers, and the undersigned Voting Trustees.

No stock certificates shall be due or deliverable hereunder before the first day of November, 1901, but the Voting Trustees, in their discretion, may make earlier delivery.

2249 This certificate is transferable only on the books of the Voting Trustees by the registered holder, either in person or by attorney duly authorized, according to rules established for that purpose by the Voting Trustees and on surrender hereof; and until so transferred the Voting Trustees may treat the registered owner as holder hereof for all purposes whatsoever, except that delivery of stock certificates hereunder shall not be made without the surrender hereof.

This certificate is not valid unless duly signed by J. P. Morgan & Co., as agents, and also registered by the Central Trust 2250 Company of New York, as registrar.

This certificate may be exchanged, in such manner as the Voting Trustees may prescribe, for a similar certificate registered at the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, and any dividends applicable to certificates for common stock registered in Berlin will be payable there.

In witness whereof the said Voting Trustees have caused this certificate to be signed by J. P. Morgan & Co., their duly authorized agents, this —— day of ———, 189—.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN,
2251 GEORG SIEMENS,
AUGUST BELMONT,
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON,
CHARLES LANIER,
Voting Trustees.

By their agents hereunder,

———— ————.

Registered this —— day of ———, 189—.

CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Registrar.

By ———— ————.

2252 Entered:

———— ————, Transfer Clerk.

(In Berlin.)

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

Preferred stock trust certificate.

This is to certify that on November 1, 1901, ———— ———— will be entitled to receive a certificate or certificates for ——— fully-paid shares of one hundred dollars each in the preferred capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and in the meantime to receive payments equal to the dividends, if any, 2253 collected by the undersigned Voting Trustees upon a like number of such shares standing in their names; and, until after the actual delivery of such certificates, the Voting Trustees shall possess and shall be entitled to exercise all rights of every name and nature, including the right to vote, in respect of any and all such stock; it being expressly stipulated that no voting right passes by or under this certificate, or by or under any agreement expressed or implied.

This certificate is issued under and pursuant to the terms and conditions of a certain agreement dated December 1, 1896, by 2254 and between J. P. Morgan & Co., as reorganization managers, and the undersigned Voting Trustees. No stock certificates shall be due or deliverable hereunder before the first day of November, 1901; but the Voting Trustees, in their discretion, may make earlier delivery.

This certificate is transferable only on the books of the Voting Trustees by the registered holder, either in person or by attorney duly authorized, according to rules established for that purpose by the Voting Trustees, and on surrender hereof, and until so transferred, the Voting Trustees may treat the regis- 2255 tered holder as owner hereof for all purposes whatsoever, except that delivery of stock certificates hereunder shall not be made without the surrender hereof.

Any dividends on the preferred stock are payable without deduction for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States, or any State or municipality thereof, that the railway company may at any time be required to pay or to retain therefrom.

This certificate is not valid unless duly signed by Deutsche Bank in Berlin, or at its London agency, as agents of the Voting Trustees, and also registered by said bank in Berlin, or at 2256 its London agency, as registrar.

Any dividends applicable to certificates for preferred stock registered in Berlin will be payable there at the rate of 4.20 marks per dollar.

This certificate may be exchanged, in such manner as the Voting Trustees may prescribe, for a similar certificate registered by the Central Trust Company of New York.

In witness whereof the said Voting Trustees have caused this 2257 certificate to be signed by Deutsche Bank, their duly authorized agents, this —— day of ———, 189—.

J. Pierpont Morgan,
Georg Siemens,
August Belmont,
Johnston Livingston,
Charles Lanier,
Voting Trustees.

By their agents hereunder,

Deutsche Bank,
2258 ——— ———.

Registered this —— day of ———, 189—.

Deutsche Bank, Registrar.

——— ———.

Entered:

——— ———, Transfer Clerk.

(In Berlin.)

Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Common stock trust certificate.

This is to certify that, on November 1, 1901, ——— ——— 2259 will be entitled to receive a certificate or certificates for ——— fully-paid shares of one hundred dollars each in the common capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and in the meantime to receive payments equal to the dividends, if any, collected by the undersigned Voting Trustees upon a like number of such shares standing in their names; and, until after the actual delivery of such certificates, the Voting Trustees shall possess and shall be entitled to exercise all rights of every name and nature, including the right to vote, in respect of any and all such stock; it being expressly stipulated that no voting 2260 right passes by or under this certificate, or by or under any agreement expressed or implied.

This certificate is issued under and pursuant to the terms and conditions of a certain agreement dated December 1, 1896, by and between J. P. Morgan & Co., as reorganization managers, and the undersigned Voting Trustees. No stock certificates shall be due or deliverable hereunder before the first day of November, 1901; but the Voting Trustees, in their discretion, may make earlier delivery.

This certificate is transferable only on the books of the Voting Trustees by the registered holder, either in person or by attorney duly authorized, according to rules established for that purpose by the Voting Trustees, and on surrender hereof, and until so transferred, the Voting Trustees may treat the registered holder as owner hereof for all purposes whatsoever, except that delivery of stock certificates hereunder shall not be made without the surrender hereof. 2261

This certificate is not valid unless duly signed by Deutsche Bank in Berlin, or at its London agency, as agents of the Voting Trustees, and also registered by said bank in Berlin, or at its London agency, as registrar. 2262

Any dividends applicable to certificates for common stock registered in Berlin will be payable there.

This certificate may be exchanged, in such manner as the Voting Trustees may prescribe, for a similar certificate registered by the Central Trust Company of New York.

In witness whereof the said Voting Trustees have caused this certificate to be signed by Deutsche Bank, their duly authorized agents, this —— day of ———, 189—.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN, 2263
GEORG SIEMENS,
AUGUST BELMONT,
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON,
CHARLES LANIER,
Voting Trustees.

By their agents hereunder.

DEUTSCHE BANK,
———— ————.

Registered this —— day of ———, 189—.

DEUTSCHE BANK, Registrar. 2264

———— ————.

Entered:

———— ————, Transfer Clerk.

SECOND. On the first day of November, 1901, and upon surrender of any stock trust certificate then outstanding, the Voting Trustees will, in accordance with the terms hereof, deliver proper certificates of stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company. It is, however, distinctly understood and agreed that at any date the Voting Trustees may call upon the holders of stock trust certificates to exchange them for certificates of capital stock, and at or after the date to be specified in any such call they shall deliver stock certificates in exchange therefor; and also that the preferred shares are subject to the right of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, at its option and in such manner as it shall determine, to retire its preferred stock, in whole or in part, at par (i. e., $100 per share), from time to time, upon any first day of January prior to 1917.

THIRD. The term Northern Pacific Railway Company, for the purposes of this agreement and for all rights thereunder, including the issue and delivery of stock, shall be taken to mean either the Wisconsin corporation of that name, created by chapter 326 of the Private and Local Laws of Wisconsin, passed 1870, and the acts supplemental thereto, or any successor or consolidated or other railroad corporation which, with the unanimous approval of the Voting Trustees, shall be adopted to own or operate the railroad properties acquired under the said reorganization plan and agreement, dated March 16, 1896, and to carry said plan into fuller effect.

FOURTH. From time to time hereafter the Voting Trustees may receive any additional fully-paid shares, duly authorized, of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, either preferred or common, and in respect of all such shares so received will issue and deliver certificates similar to those above mentioned, entitling the holders to all rights above specified.

FIFTH. For all purposes of the payment of dividends the registration in Berlin of any stock trust certificate shall be considered and treated as the registration there of the stock therein stated, and dividends payable in respect of preferred stock for which trust stock certificates shall have been registered in Berlin shall be paid there to the holders of such stock trust certificates at the rate of 4.20 marks to the dollar, and the trustees are authorized to arrange accordingly with the railway company.

SIXTH. Any Voting Trustee may, at any time, resign by delivering to the other Voting Trustees, in writing, his resignation, to take effect ten days thereafter; and in every case of death or resignation, or of the inability of any Voting Trustee to act, the vacancy so occurring shall be filled by the appointment of a successor or successors to be made by the other Vot- 2269

ing Trustees by a written instrument, with the exception only in the case of Georg Siemens, whose successor from time to time shall be nominated by the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, and elected by the remaining Voting Trustees; and the term "Voting Trustees" as herein used shall apply to the parties of the second part and their successors hereunder.

SEVENTH. All questions arising between the Voting Trustees shall from time to time be determined by the decision of the greater number of those then acting as Voting Trustees, either at a meeting or by writing with or without meeting, and in like 2270 manner they may establish their rules of action; but they will not, nor will any of them, consent that any mortgage, additional to the prior lien mortgage and the general lien mortgage, be put upon the property formerly embraced in the system of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, nor that the amount of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company be increased, except after they shall, in each instance, have obtained the consent of the holders of a majority of the whole amount of preferred stock trust certificates given at a meeting of such certificate holders called for that purpose; and also the consent of 2271
the holders of a majority of such part of the common stock trust certificates as shall be represented at such meeting, the holders of each class of stock trust certificates voting separately.

EIGHTH. In voting the stock held by them, the Voting Trustees will exercise their best judgment from time to time to select suitable directors, to the end that the affairs of the company shall be properly managed, and in voting on other matters which may come before them at any stockholders' meeting will exercise like judgment; but they assume no responsibility in respect to such management or in respect of any action taken pursuant 2272 to their votes so cast, it being understood that no Voting Trustee incurs any responsibility for the act or omission of any agent hereunder, nor by reason of any error of law or of any matter or thing done or omitted under this agreement, except for his own individual malfeasance.

NINTH. This agreement may be simultaneously executed in several counterparts, each of which so executed shall be deemed to be an original, and such counterparts shall together constitute but one and the same instrument.

2273 Any Voting Trustee hereunder may vote in person or by proxy to any other person, whether or not a Voting Trustee.

In witness whereof the several parties hereunto have set their hands and seals the day and year first above mentioned.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN, [SEAL.]
GEORG SIEMENS, [SEAL.]
AUGUST BELMONT, [SEAL.]
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON, [SEAL.]
CHARLES LANIER, [SEAL.]
Voting Trustees.

2274 J. P. MORGAN & CO., [SEAL.]
Reorganization Managers.

The following is a copy of dissolution of the voting trust of the Northern Pacific Railway Company offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT F.

DISSOLUTION OF THE VOTING TRUST OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, NOVEMBER 12, 1900.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY
VOTING TRUSTEES,

2275 November 12, 1900.

The undersigned, being all of the Voting Trustees named in and made parties to a certain agreement made in the city of New York, December 1, 1896, by and between J. P. Morgan & Co., reorganization managers, parties of the first part, and the undersigned Voting Trustees, parties of the second part, have resolved and determined, and hereby do resolve and determine, that delivery of stock certificates under the said agreement, in exchange for stock trust certificates issued in respect thereof, shall be made before the first day of November, 1901, to wit, 2276 whenever on or after the second day of January, 1901, any such stock trust certificates may be received by the Voting Trustees for such exchange. The undersigned further have resolved and determined, and hereby further do resolve and determine, that upon the receipt of any such stock trust certificate at any time on or after the second day of January, 1901, the Voting Trustees and their agents, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. and the

Deutsche Bank, be, and hereby they are, authorized and directed 2277 from time to time to deliver certificates of stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to the amount and of the character specified in the stock trust certificate so received by them; and the Voting Trustees and their said agents are hereby authorized to do and to perform all acts reasonably necessary or proper to enable them to make such exchange and delivery; provided, that upon receipt thereof every surrendered stock trust certificate shall be canceled. Exchanges and deliveries may be made at the rate of one hundred schedules per diem.

All stock trust certificates held or received by the Voting 2278
Trustees or their agents, J. P. Morgan & Co. or the Deutsche Bank, after cancellation shall be delivered by them to the railway company as custodian to hold the same, for the protection of the Voting Trustees.

The undersigned further have resolved and determined, and hereby further do resolve and determine, that a notice and call, substantially in the form of that hereunto annexed, shall be published in one or more newspapers in each of the cities of New York, Berlin, and London, once in each week for ten weeks, beginning on or about the thirteenth day of November, 2279
1900, and that a circular stating the results of the management of the railway during the continuance of the Voting Trust be mailed to the holders of stock trust certificates.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN,
Dr. GEORG VON SIEMENS,
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON,
AUGUST BELMONT,
CHARLES LANIER,
Voting Trustees.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY VOTING TRUSTEES— 2280
NOTICE AND CALL.

Holders of stock trust certificates issued by or in behalf of the Voting Trustees under the agreement made December 1, 1896, by and between J. P. Morgan & Co., reorganization managers under a certain plan and agreement for the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad System, parties of the first part, and the Voting Trustees, parties of the second part thereto, are hereby notified that in the exercise of their discretionary powers reserved and authorized by the said Voting Trust Agreement, the Voting Trustees have resolved and determined that certificates for the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company shall and may be delivered in exchange for and upon surrender of corresponding stock trust certificates before the first day of November, 1901, to wit, at any time on or after the second day of January, 1901.

All holders of stock trust certificates issued under said agreement are hereby called upon to exchange the same for corresponding certificates of capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company at any time on or after the second day of January, 1901.

All stock trust certificates surrendered for exchange must be properly endorsed in blank by the registered holder thereof.

Stock trust certificates issued in New York must be presented for exchange to J. P. Morgan & Co., agents of the Voting Trustees in New York. Stock trust certificates issued in Berlin must be presented for exchange to the Deutsche Bank, agents of the Voting Trustees in Berlin. Such exchanges may be made on or after the second day of January, 1901; but not more than one hundred schedules per diem will be received by the agents in either city.

In exchange for all stock trust certificates so surrendered there will be delivered vouchers entitling the party therein named to receive stock certificates of the character and amount therein specified as soon as the same can be prepared for delivery.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN,
Dr. GEORG VON SIEMENS,
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON,
AUGUST BELMONT,
CHARLES LANIER,
Voting Trustees.

23 WALL STREET,
New York, November 12, 1900.

To the holders of trust certificates for the common and preferred capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company:

Pursuant to the plan for the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, dated March 16, 1896, and "in furtherance of the independent reorganization and administration of the property, and to promote and protect the value of 2285 the securities of the new company," Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., as reorganization managers, delivered to the undersigned, as Voting Trustees, under the terms of an agreement dated December 1, 1896, the common and preferred capital stocks of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, for which our trust certificates have been issued and are now outstanding.

By the receipt of these Northern Pacific shares, the Voting Trustees possessed and became "entitled to exercise all the rights of every name and nature, including the right to vote in respect of any and all such stock." 2286

As stockholders of record, the Voting Trustees have received all dividends paid upon these shares, and have caused the same to be distributed as received to the holders of the trust certificates.

In voting the stock held by them, the Voting Trustees have exercised their best judgment, from time to time, in the selection of suitable directors, to the end that the affairs of the company should be properly managed.

The annual reports issued and distributed by order of the directors during the past four years to the holders of the trust 2287 certificates and various securities of the company, have given prompt and full information to all parties in interest regarding the directors and officers selected, and the management thereby secured by the Voting Trustees in the exercise of their voting power and the administration of their trust.

Although the first day of November, 1901, was fixed as the date for the expiration of this trust, yet it was provided that at any time the Voting Trustees might call upon the holders of the stock trust certificates to exchange them for certificates of capital stock. 2288

By reason of the evidences of financial strength, conservative management, skillful and profitable operation, superior physical condition of the property, and the reasonable prospect of continued prosperity of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the Voting Trustees, in the exercise of their discretion, have decided to now terminate their trust and to distribute on January 1, 1901, the shares of stock they hold in exchange for their outstanding trust certificates.

2289 The Northern Pacific Railway Company has already declared thirteen dividends upon its preferred stock and six dividends upon its common stock. Although its published statements of earnings and cash resources give evidence that the continuance of regular quarterly dividends, now established at the rate of 4% per annum, upon both its common and preferred stocks, may be reasonably expected under its present management, yet a brief summary of the position of the company may be of interest to its proprietors at the present time.

2290 MILEAGE.

On September 1, 1896, when the Northern Pacific Railway Company received possession of its property, the railroad system consisted of a main line and branches aggregating....	4,345.69 miles
On November 1, 1900, the total mileage owned and operated amounted to.....	5,666.52 miles
An increase of.....	1,320.83 miles equivalent to an increase of 30.4 per cent in mileage owned and 2291 operated.

During the same period the miles of second track, spurs, and sidings have increased 575.39 miles, or 63.2 per cent, from 909.32 to 1,484.71 miles.

EQUIPMENT.

The increase in number of items constituting the equipment has been as follows:

Equipment.	Sept. 1, 1896.	Nov. 1, 1900.	Increase.
			Number.	%
2292 Locomotives	574	688	114	19.9
Passenger-train cars	438	582	144	32.9
Freight-train cars	18,032	25,130	7,098	39.4
Miscellaneous equipment	465	652	187	40.2
Totals	19,509	27,052	7,543	38.7

While the increase in total number is 38.7 per cent, the increased horsepower of the road locomotives is 62.2 per cent, and the increased capacity of the freight trains is 70.6 per cent, by reason of the purchase of heavier power and the reinforce- 2293 ment and purchase of cars of larger capacity.

The average train load of revenue freight increased in the same period 69.57 per cent, from 193.52 to 328.16 tons.

LAND GRANT.

Instead of holding the lands at prices that were high compared with the prices asked for adjoining Government lands, the policy of selling at much reduced rates has been vigorously carried out, with great success, thereby reducing the company's taxes, stopping the interest on "Land grant" bonds retired, and 2294 increasing the population and tonnage tributary to the railroad system.

The acreage of the lands granted by the United States to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company has been thus reduced over 34 per cent, from about 34,000,000 to about 22,000,000 of acres, as will be seen by the following details of unsold lands:

Locations.	December 1, 1896.	September 30, 1900.	Decrease in acres.
Minnesota	1,336,154	442,796	893,358
North Dakota	6,851,987	1,267,780	5,584,207
Montana	15,801,143	13,270,271	2,530,872
Idaho	1,832,493	1,633,272	199,221
Washington	8,670,333	6,129,934	2,540,399
Oregon	146,763	29,197	117,566
Total acres	34,638,873	22,773,250	11,865,623

2295

Under the terms of the mortgages issued by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the net proceeds of the land grant are now applicable to the extent of one-half, but not exceeding $500,000 in any one year, to the purchase at not exceeding 110 per cent and the cancellation of prior lien 4 per cent bonds, and 2296 when these are not obtainable, then to the purchase, at not exceeding 100 per cent and the cancellation of general lien 3 per cent bonds. The remaining half of the proceeds are to be used for betterments and additions to the mortgaged property.

Since the cancellation of all the mortgages securing the "Land grant" bonds of the old Northern Pacific Railroad Company the proceeds of land sales have been applied as above provided and $1,282,500 of prior lien bonds have been purchased and canceled.

2297 CAPITALIZATION AND FIXED CHARGES.

During the same period of increased assets and earning power the mortgage debt and fixed interest charges have been increased as follows:

Date of balance sheet.	Mortgage debt.	Average rate of interest.	Annual interest charges.
June 30, 1900	$171,346,596	3.79%	$6,497,655
September 1, 1896	156,157,500	3.98%	6,217,320
Changes	15,189,096	.19%	280,335

2298 While the mortgage debt has been increased 9.72 per cent and the fixed annual interest charges 4.51 per cent, the average rate of interest on the entire mortgage debt, both that of original issue and that assumed, has been reduced 4.8 per cent.

By reason of the application of the proceeds of land sales to the payment of "Land grant" bonds, and the acquisition and construction of additional mileage during the period from September 1, 1896, to June 30, 1900, the capitalization per mile has been reduced $11,623 per mile, or 16.16 per cent.

2299 ADVANCE IN PRIORITY OF MORTGAGE LIENS.

Since September 1, 1896, all the then outstanding bonds of the old Northern Pacific Railroad Company assumed to be paid by the new Northern Pacific Railway Company, being—

$1,776,000 Missouri River Division 6s,
16,142,000 general first mortgage 6s,

$17,918,000 in all—have been retired and their mortgages discharged of record.

The prior lien 4 per cent bonds have thus become a first lien, 2300 by direct mortgage or through the ownership of securities, upon 4,975.04 miles of main line and branches, including extensive terminal properties at the several termini on Lake Superior and Puget Sound, upon the entire Northern Pacific Railroad land grant and all the equipment of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, exclusive of the St. Paul and Northern Pacific and St. Paul and Duluth divisions, upon which, subject to their existing underlying mortgages, the new bonds likewise have 2301 subsisting liens.

The general lien 3 per cent bonds have likewise been advanced in order of lien, so that they are now secured by a second mortgage upon the same property that secures the prior lien 4 per cent bonds, and subject to the same exceptions stated.

EARNINGS.

The gross earnings for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, were	$30,021,317
For the year ending June 30, 1896, they were	19,863,159	2302
being an increase of 51.14%, or	10,158,156

The net income for the same periods increased 105.39%, being from $7,527,913 to $15,461,620.

Appropriations from net income have been made during the past three years to the extent of $5,988,328 for new equipment and additions and betterments to the property.

Dividends have been declared upon both common and preferred shares to the aggregate amount of $14,550,000.

Surplus revenues have been accumulated in cash 2303 amounting on September 30, 1900, to $7,273,248 of which $3,000,000 cash was set aside in 1898 as a special reserve until the end of 1901 to insure the continuity of dividends upon the preferred stock.

CASH WORKING CAPITAL.

On June 30, 1897, the current assets, exclusive of the betterment and enlargement funds, exceeded the current liabilities by	$5,258,592
On September 30, 1900, the current assets, exclusive of the betterment and enlargement and insurance funds, and the special reserve of $3,000,000 for continuity of dividends on preferred stock, exceeded the current liabilities by	19,540,482	2304 an increase of 271.6 per cent since June 30, 1897.

2305 CASH AND CASH ASSETS.

The cash and available assets of the company on September 30, 1900, including the betterment and enlargement, preferred-stock dividend, and insurance funds, were as follows:

Cash	$8,856,645
Accounts receivable	2,607,601
Materials on hand	2,270,928
Land contracts	2,284,990
Treasury securities:
Prior-lien bonds, $9,894,000, at 100+%	9,924,000
2306 General-lien bonds, $2,650,000, at 60 %	1,590,000
Miscellaneous bonds and stocks	7,153,854
Total present cash resources	34,688,018

With the exception of the interest on $811,000 general-lien bonds held by the insurance fund, the interest accruing upon the prior-lien and general-lien bonds held as treasury securities has not been included in either the fixed charges or the miscellaneous income of the company for the past fiscal year.

In addition to the above-described cash and convertible assets, 2307 there are the following marketable bonds available under the provisions of their respective mortgages for new construction, betterments, equipment, and other purposes.

Prior-lien 4 % bonds to the extent of not exceeding $1,500,000 per annum	$20,500,000
General-lien 3 % bonds as required for betterments, new construction, equipment, etc	4,000,000
St. Paul and Duluth division 4 % bonds for betterments and additions to this division	5,502,000
	30,002,000

2308 BETTERMENT AND ENLARGEMENT FUND.

Under the plan of reorganization a cash fund amounting to $5,073,964 was provided for early use in the betterment and enlargement of the property acquired by the new company. The entire amount of this fund has been expended for the purposes indicated.

Further cash and bonds have been received from time to time for similar improvements, pursuant to the provisions therefor under the terms of the prior-lien mortgage, to the aggregate amount of	$18,028,579	2309
During the same period there has been expended from this additional fund for new mileage, equipment, real estate, and improvements	9,564,065
leaving, September 30, 1900, still available in cash and bonds for similar expenditures	8,464,514	2310
after a total disbursement as above described of	14,638,029
	23,102,543

PHYSICAL CONDITION.

In addition to the large amounts charged to operating expenses during our period of trusteeship for improvements and additions to the property, there has been $5,988,328 appropriated from net income during the past three years for these purposes.

The following details will indicate the amount and character of the expenditures made from September 1, 1896, to November 1, 1900, to place the property, exclusive of the proprietary companies, in condition for economical operation and maintenance: 2311

Heavy steel rails laid on	1,042	miles
Added second track, spurs, and sidings	221	miles
Embankments widened to 16 feet on	1,391	miles
Roadway ballasted for	1,426	miles
Replaced	7,550,000	ties
Grades reduced, with incidental improvement of alignment and curvature, over engine districts aggregating	1,700	miles 2312
Tonnage capacity of freight-train cars increased	70.6	%
Horsepower capacity of road locomotives increased	62.2	%

OPERATING RESULTS.

The increase of net income to the extent of 103.89 per cent in the past four years, while largely due to the improvement in 2313 general business, could not have been attained in the face of voluntary reductions in freight and passenger rates but for the decrease of expenses of transportation through the intelligent application of the best methods known in the science of railroad operation and engineering. The results of such methods are shown in the following comparative statistics for that period, by which it will be seen that invested capital, labor, and fuel have been utilized with an economy and profit seldom before shown in the solution of railroad problems of this country.

Although there has been in this period of four years an in-2314 crease of 67.45 per cent in tons of revenue freight carried one mile, yet by increasing the tonnage loaded in each car 25.66 per cent and the number of loaded cars in each train 34.93 per cent, the number of revenue tons in each train has been increased 69.57 per cent, and the increase of 888,358,921 tons one mile has been transported in 1900 in trains that ran 85,181 miles less than was required for that much less tonnage under the methods and facilities of 1896.

Although the mileage of loaded freight cars increased 33.22 per cent, and the average receipts per ton per mile decreased 2315 12.65 per cent, yet the total freight earnings per train mile increased 48.29 per cent.

The following statistics are from the annual reports:

Operating units.	Year.	Tons, miles, etc.	Increase or decrease.	Per cent.
Tons of revenue freight carried one mile.	1900	2,205,317,271
	1896	1,316,958,350	888,358,921	67.45
Average tons of revenue freight in each loaded car	1900	13.42
	1896	10.68	2.74	25.66
Average number of loaded freight cars in each train	1900	24.45
	1896	18.12	6.33	34.93
Average number of tons of revenue freight in each train	1900	328.16
	1896	193.52	134.64	69.57
2316 Miles run by freight trains	1900	6,720,173
	1896	6,805,354	85,181	1.25
Mileage of loaded freight cars	1900	164,314,552
	1896	123,342,454	40,972,098	33.22
Average receipts per ton per mile revenue freight	1900	.00987
	1896	.01130	.00143	12.65
Total freight earnings per train mile	1900	3,295
	1896	2,222	1,073	48.29

Italic figures denote a decrease

The above record appears even more creditable when it is considered that 42 per cent of the mileage of the system now operated is composed of 63 separate branch lines.

SUMMARY. 2317

The strength of the Northern Pacific Railway Company in its physical and financial condition, as well as in its management, may be briefly stated in conclusion as follows:

While the mileage has been increased 30.4 per cent, the capitalization has been decreased $11,623 per mile.

The prior lien bonds have been made a first mortgage, and the lien of the general lien bonds has been correspondingly advanced to the second position.

Even with unusual charges to expenses for improvements to the property, the net income during the past three years has 2318 averaged 5.16 per cent on both preferred and common stocks.

The net cash working capital on September 30, 1900, was $19,540,482, while the total cash assets of the treasury amounted to $34,688,018.

There are additional resources for present and future requirements in $30,002,000 of bonds issuable under existing mortgages of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

The condition of the railroad and its equipment is of the first class.

The officers have given continued evidence of their ability to 2319 improve and extend the property while increasing its net revenue.

The directors have contributed, by their varied experiences and personal attention, so much to the strength and credit of the company that we consider their continuance in the guidance of its affairs to be of the greatest importance to its future prosperity.

Because of the conditions above described, we believe that the purposes of our trusteeship have been fulfilled and that we are warranted in now dissolving the Voting Trust. 2320

J. PIERPONT MORGAN,
DR. GEORG VON SIEMENS,
JOHNSTON LIVINGSTON,
AUGUST BELMONT,
CHARLES LANIER,
Voting Trustees.

2321 Traction statistics of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Statistics.	September 1, 1896.	November 1, 1900.	Increase.
			Amount.	Per cent.
Number of engines	574	688	114	19.9
Weight on drivers	41,915,565	61,756,335	19,840,770	47.3
Number of road engines	505	604	99	19.6
Weight on drivers	36,732,815	54,647,035	17,914,220	48.7
Horsepower of road engines	242,475	393,345	150,870	62.2
Number of cars in service	18,032	25,130	7,098	39.4
Total capacity in tons	368,914	629,269	260,355	70.6
Net tons per train mile [a]	234.2	[b] 451.3	217.1	92.7

[a] Including company as well as commercial freight. [b] September 1, 1900.

2322 Population of States tributary to the railroad system of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

States.	1890.	1900.	Increase.	Per cent.
Wisconsin	1,686,880	2,068,963	382,083	22.6
Minnesota	1,301,826	1,751,395	449,569	34.5
North Dakota	182,719	319,040	136,321	74.6
Montana	132,159	243,289	111,130	84.1
Idaho	84,385	161,771	77,386	91.7
Washington	349,390	517,672	168,282	48.2
Oregon	313,767	413,532	99,765	31.8
Totals	4,051,126	5,475,662	1,424,536	35.2
Alaska	32,052	44,000	11,948	37.3
Manitoba (approximate)	150,000	300,000	150,000	100.0
Totals	4,233,178	5,819,662	1,586,484	37.5

2323 The following is a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, held November 13, 1901, offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT G.

I, George H. Earl, secretary of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, hereby certify that the following is a true copy of the minutes of meeting of the board of directors held on November 13, 1901, and of the whole thereof.

Witness my hand and the seal of said company this eighteenth day of September, 1902.

_____ _____,

Secretary Northern Pacific Railway Company.

2324 NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, DIRECTORS EIGHTY-THIRD MEETING, NOVEMBER 13, 1901.

At a meeting of the board of directors held pursuant to due notice at the office of the company, No. 49 Wall street, New York City, on Wednesday, November 13, 1901, at 2 o'clock 2325

p. m., there were present the following newly elected directors (constituting a quorum) viz:

Messrs. Baker, Harriman, Hill, Ives, James, Kennedy, Lamont, Mellen, Rea, Rockefeller, Steele, Stillman, Thomas, Twombly.

On motion Mr. Ives was chosen to act as chairman. He thereupon took the chair and announced the meeting ready for organization.

The secretary then submitted the report of the inspectors of 2326 election showing that at the annual meeting of stockholders held on October 1, 1901, the following were elected directors for the ensuing year, to wit:

Robert Bacon, George F. Baker, Edward H. Harriman, James J. Hill, Brayton Ives, D. Willis James, John S. Kennedy, Daniel S. Lamont, Charles S. Mellen, Samuel Rea, William Rockefeller, Charles Steele, James Stillman, Eben B. Thomas, Hamilton McK. Twombly.

The directors then proceeded to the election of officers.

On motion, it was 2327

Resolved, That the secretary be, and hereby he is, directed to cast a ballot in favor of the election of the following-named persons to serve as officers of this company for the ensuing year, to wit:

For president, Charles S. Mellen.

For vice-president, Daniel S. Lamont.

For comptroller, Henry A. Gray.

For treasurer, Charles A. Clark.

For secretary and ass't treasurer, George H. Earl.

For assistant secretary, Richard H. Relf. 2328

For general counsel in New York, Francis Lynde Stetson.

For general counsel in Saint Paul, Charles W. Bunn.

The secretary cast the ballot as directed, and the chairman announced that the above-named persons were duly elected to the offices set opposite their names, respectively.

Mr. Ives then resigned the chair in favor of Mr. Mellen.

The resignation of Mr. Robert Bacon as a director of this company was presented, and, on motion, the same was accepted.

Mr. Samuel Spencer was nominated as a director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Bacon, and on motion, the secretary was directed to cast a ballot in favor of the election of Mr. Spencer. This was done, and the chairman announced that Mr. Samuel Spencer had been duly elected a director of this company to fill the existing vacancy.

On motion of Mr. Steele, it was Resolved, That the following directors be, and hereby they are, appointed as the executive committee of this company, viz: Messrs. Baker, Harriman, Hill, Kennedy, Spencer, and the president, or in his absence, the vice-president, exofficio.

The following preamble and resolutions, offered by Mr. Kennedy and seconded by Mr. Baker, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, under and pursuant to an agreement dated July 13, 1896, the Northern Pacific Railway Company did acquire from Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., a copartnership in the city of New York (in said agreement called the Reorganization Managers), certain stocks, bonds, and other property representing the system formerly of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and in consideration of such agreement and transfer did issue and deliver to the Reorganization Managers certificates for 750,000 shares of its fully paid and nonassessable preferred stock and 800,000 shares of its fully paid and nonassessable common stock of the character described in a certain plan and agreement for the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railroad System, dated March 16, 1896; and, furthermore, did agree at all times and in all ways and particulars to cooperate with the Reorganization Managers and assist them in carrying into effect and in accomplishing the purposes of the said plan and agreement of reorganization; and

Whereas in and by the said plan and agreement of reorganization it was expressly provided that the right would be reserved by the new company (being the Northern Pacific Railway Company) to retire this preferred stock in whole or in part at par from time to time upon any first day of January during the twenty years succeeding the date of said reorganization agreement; it being the purpose and the intent of the said agreement that the ultimate control of the new company should be held and be exercised by the holders of the common stock, and that the preferred stock should as soon as practicable be liquidated 2333 and be paid off in cash at par; and

Whereas upon the first day of July, 1896, at a meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, each and every stockholder being present and voting in favor thereof, a resolution was duly adopted providing for the issue of $80,000,000 of common stock and of $75,000,000 of preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and expressly prescribing that such preferred stock should be issued upon the condition that at its option the company might retire the same in whole or in part at par, from time to time upon any first 2334 day of January prior to 1917; and

Whereas at a meeting of the directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, duly held on the 8th day of July, 1896, a form of certificate for the preferred stock of the company, with the conditions and regulations to be incorporated therein or endorsed thereon, was duly adopted by the unanimous vote of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, including the following provision:

"The company shall have the right, at its option, and in such manner as it shall determine, to retire the preferred stock in 2335
whole or in part, at par, from time to time on any first day of January prior to 1917;" and

Whereas at a meeting of the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, duly held upon July 13, 1896, the said resolution of the board of directors adopting the said form of stock certificate to be issued for the preferred stock was duly ratified and approved by the affirmative vote of every stockholder of the company; and

Whereas each and every certificate for the $75,000,000 of preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company con- 2336 taining the express provision for the retirement thereof, from time to time thereafter, was issued under and pursuant to the provisions of the said resolution of July 1, 1896, and each and every certificate for stock now outstanding contains such express provision for the retirement thereof; and

Whereas under and pursuant to section 8 of the act, chapter 244 of the private and local laws of Wisconsin, approved April 15, 1895, it was expressly provided that all the affairs of this company should be managed by a board of directors who should be stockholders, and who thereby were invested with all the powers of the corporation save as thereinafter provided; and

Whereas in and by section 11 and section 12 of the said act, chapter 244 of the laws of 1895, it was expressly provided that this company might make its preferred stock convertible into common stock upon such terms and conditions as should be fixed by the board of directors, and that it might in its corporate name execute and deliver its notes, bonds, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness in such form as from time to time should be prescribed by the board of directors, and in such amount as should be deemed from time to time by said board expedient, and might make the same convertible into its capital stock of any class upon such terms and conditions as to the board of directors might seem advisable; and

Whereas the holders of a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company have requested the board of directors to take all such action as may be requisite to retire the whole of the preferred stock upon the first day of January, 1902, and have given satisfactory assurances that the necessary moneys for that purpose will be furnished, and that all action requisite for that purpose will be taken by the holders of the common stock; and

Whereas in the judgment of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company it is desirable that this company should now exercise the option to retire the preferred stock in whole upon the first day of January, 1902:

Now, therefore, it is hereby unanimously

Resolved, (1) That the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in exercise of its right specifically expressed in each and every certificate of stock of this company, has determined, and hereby does determine, to retire the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in whole, at par, upon the first day of January, 1902.

(2) That notice of the retirement of the preferred stock, substantially in the form of that annexed to the minutes of this meeting, be published in the manner prescribed by the by-laws for notice of stockholders' meetings, and that a copy thereof be mailed to every stockholder of this company.

(3) That for the purpose of raising the funds necessary to 2341 retire the preferred stock, this company will make and will issue its negotiable bonds, dated November 15, 1901, for the aggregate principal sum of $75,000,000, payable January 1, 1907, in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness, at this company's office in the city of New York, with interest in like gold coin at the rate of four per cent per annum from January 1, 1902, payable semi-annually at said office. Every such bond shall be convertible into shares of the common stock of this company at the rate of one share of $100 for each $100 of the principal sum of such 2342 bond remaining unpaid at the date of such conversion; and upon surrender to it of any such bond this company will issue to the holder of such surrendered bond shares of this company's common stock at the rate aforesaid. Such conversion may be made by the company at its option at any time after November 15, 1901, and shall be made at the demand of any holder of any such bond at any time on or after the first day of January, 1902. Such bonds shall be coupon bonds or registered bonds, in denominations each of $1,000, or of some multiple thereof, and shall be in such form as shall be determined by the president or 2343 the vice-president of this company. Every such bond shall be subscribed by the president or a vice-president and by the secretary or an assistant secretary and shall be issued under the corporate seal.

(4) That the president and vice-president of this company, and each of them, be, and hereby they are, authorized and empowered to contract to sell and to sell all or any of said bonds at a price not less than par and accrued interest; and in such contract to provide for the delivery of all or any part of said bonds upon receiving such payment therefor on or prior to or after 2344
December 31, A. D. 1901; and also to covenant and agree that any and all moneys received for said bonds shall be specifically appropriated and used exclusively for the retirement of the preferred stock at par; and accordingly it is hereby expressly declared that all such proceeds shall be set apart and shall be held as a trust fund for such purpose.

Any such contract for delivery of such bonds prior to January 1, 1902, may provide for the payment of the whole or any part of the purchase price of said bonds with allowance of interest, at a rate not exceeding four per cent per annum from the time of the receipt of the price of such bonds until January 1, 1902, the date when such bonds begin to bear interest.

Any and every such contract shall contain a provision giving to the holder of every share of this company's common stock now outstanding suitable opportunity on demand to receive through or from the purchaser of said bonds under said contract, at a price not exceeding par and accrued interest, such bonds (or a like amount of common stock received upon conversion of such bonds, if theretofore converted) to an amount equal to seventy-five eightieths of the par amount of said common stock at such time owned by such holder; and for the purpose of providing for subdivision of interests, suitable certificates representing fractional interests in bonds from time to time may be issued, and may be redeemed in such manner as shall be determined by the president or the vice-president.

(5) That the proper officers of this company be, and hereby they are, directed, out of the proceeds of said bonds, and out of any other moneys in the company's treasury available for that purpose, to pay at the company's New York office, to each holder of record of the preferred stock of this company, on and after January 1, 1902, upon surrender of the certificates for such stock, $100 for each and every of the shares of preferred stock for which the certificates shall be so surrendered.

(6) That all of the preferred stock of this company be, and hereby it is, declared to be retired from and after December 31, A. D. 1901, and that from and after that date all of the authorized capital stock of this company, fixed at $155,000,000, by resolution of this company's stockholders at the meeting thereof held on the first day of July, 1896, be of one kind and be without preference in favor of any part thereof, and the total authorized capitalized stock of this company continue to be $155,000,000, as so fixed at said meeting.

(7) That the president, the vice-president, the treasurer, and the secretary of the Northern Pacific Railway Company be, and hereby they are, authorized from time to time to take all proceedings and to do all acts necessary or suitable to carry these resolutions fully into effect.

(8) That for the purpose of the retirement of the preferred stock, the transfer books of the stock of this company be closed at three o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, December 10, 1901, and that 2349 the transfer books of the common stock be reopened upon Thursday, January 2, 1902, at ten o'clock a. m.

On motion, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the action of the executive committee in declaring from the net earnings of this company a dividend of one per cent on the preferred stock of this company, to be paid December 5, 1901, to the holders of record of preferred stock at the closing of the transfer books on November 8, 1901, be, and hereby the same is, ratified and confirmed.

Resolved, That there be, and hereby there is, declared from 2350 the net earnings of this company a final dividend of one per cent on the preferred stock of this company, the same to be paid on or after January 1, 1902, to the holders of record at three o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, December 10, 1901, at which time the transfer books are to be closed for the retirement of the preferred stock under the resolutions of this company.

The executive committee reported by the reading of the minutes of its meetings held October 7th and 21st and November 4th, 1901, and on motion the committee's action as reported was approved, ratified, and confirmed. 2351

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the following treasury securities be sold to the Northwestern Improvement Company as of October 31, 1901, at and for the prices named, to wit:

$330,000.00	prior lien bonds at 105	$346,500.00
1,800,000.00	general lien bonds at 70	1,260,000.00
260,000.00	St. Paul-Duluth Div. bonds at 100.	260,000.00
9,000.00	Minnesota transfer bonds at 100..	9,000.00
2,000,000.00	N. W. Improvement Co. stock at 75	1,500,000.00 2352
2,245,000.00	Wash. and Col. River Ry. inc. bonds at 40.....	898,000.00
280,000.00	Washington Central bonds at 90...	252,000.00
323,183.64	Montana R. R. notes.....	323,183.64
381,992.24	Minn. and International notes....	381,992.24
762,393.01	Brainerd and No. Minn. notes....	762,393.01
8,391,568.89		5,993,068.89

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the action of the president of this company in executing, and the action of the assistant secretary, R. H. Relf, in executing, attesting, and affixing the corporate seal to a certain bond on behalf of this company as principal, and Charles S. Mellen and Daniel S. Lamont, as sureties unto the United States of America for twenty-five thousand dollars, covering northerly 350 feet of Ocean Warehouse No. 1, situate on the water front at Tacoma, Washington, which bond bears date November 4, 1901, are hereby fully ratified and confirmed, and said bond is made hereby the valid obligation of this company.

The president submitted a map, in duplicate, of the definite location of an extension of this company's Gaylord and Ruby Valley Branch, from a point in the north line of section 34, township 3 south, range 6 west, of Montana principal meridian, thence in a generally southeasterly direction to and up the valley of the Ruby River, and to a point in the south line of section 9, township 6 south, range 4 west, of the same meridian, a distance of 19.17 miles, all in Madison County, Montana.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the map this day submitted showing the line of route of the extension of this company's Gaylord and Ruby Valley branch be, and the same is hereby, adopted as the route of definite location of the extension of said branch.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Standard Trust Company of New York, as trustee under the trust indenture securing Northern Pacific-Great Northern, C., B. and Q. collateral 4 per cent joint bonds, dated July 1, 1901, be, and hereby is, authorized to cremate from time to time, in the presence of this company's representative, coupon bonds issued under said trust indenture received and cancelled by said trustee in exchange for registered bond certificates issued under said trust indenture, provided that the said trustee shall thereupon deliver to this company a certificate of such cremation in satisfactory form, which certificate shall be accepted by this company as the delivery of the cancelled coupon bonds prescribed by section 4 of article one of said trust indenture.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as trustee under the general second, general third, and consolidated 2357 mortgages of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, be, and hereby is, authorized to cremate, in the presence of this company's representative, coupon bonds issued under any of said mortgages received and cancelled by said trustee in exchange for registered bond certificates issued under said mortgages, and to cremate in like manner all coupon bonds now in its possession engraved for issuance but never issued.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the action of the president in selling to the insurance fund the securities below mentioned be, and the same 2358 is hereby, approved, to wit:

$39,000 Northern Pacific Railway Co. general lien 3 per cent bonds, at 70	$27,300
$7,000 Northern Pacific Railway Co. prior lien 4 per cent bonds, at 105	7,350
$9,000 Northern Pacific Railway Co. St. Paul-Duluth Division 4 per cent bonds, at 100	9,000
$6,000 Washington Central Railway Co. 4 per cent bonds, at 90	5,400
	49,050

The treasurer's statement showing average bank balances for 2359 the quarter ending September 30, 1901, was submitted and ordered filed.

The following schedules showing the execution of deeds, leases, and miscellaneous documents during September, 1901, were submitted:

Schedule of land department deeds executed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, aggregating 60,446.62 acres, for $117,926.14.

Schedule of land department deeds executed by the Northwestern Improvement Company, aggregating 15,802.04 acres, 2360 for $43,806.71.

Schedule of leases of right of way and other operating department property.

Statement of miscellaneous deeds, contracts, and relinquishments.

Schedule of land department leases executed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, western division.

On motion, the execution of deeds, leases, etc., this day reported was approved, ratified, and confirmed.

2361 The following schedules showing the execution of deeds, leases, and miscellaneous documents during October, 1901, were submitted:

Schedule of land department deeds executed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, aggregating 80,648.94 acres, for $168,323.34.

Schedule of land department deeds executed by the Northwestern Improvement Company, aggregating 24,017.66 acres, for $50,007.35.

Schedule of leases of right of way and other operating depart-2362 ment property.

Statement of miscellaneous deeds, contracts, and relinquishments.

Schedule of land department leases executed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Northwestern Improvement Company.

On motion, the execution of deeds, leases, etc., this day reported was approved, ratified, and confirmed.

On motion, the meeting then adjourned.

GEO. H. EARL, Secretary.

2363 The following is copy of circular issued by Northern Securities Company, November 22, 1901, to holders of stock of Great Northern Railway Company, offered in evidence by complainant:

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT H.

[Northern Securities Company. James J. Hill, president; John S. Kennedy, first vice-president; George F. Baker, second vice-president; D. Willis James, third vice-president; W. P. Clough, fourth vice-president; E. T. Nichols, secretary and treasurer.]

27–29 PINE STREET,
New York City, November 22nd, 1901.

2364 To holders of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company:

The Northern Securities Company, incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with an authorized capital stock of $400,000,000, and with power to invest in and hold the securities of other companies, has commenced business, and has acquired from several large holders of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company a considerable amount of that stock.

A uniform price has been paid of $180 per share, in the fully paid stock of this company, at par. This company is ready to purchase additional shares of the same stock at the same price, 2365 payable in the same manner, and will accept offers made on that basis if made within the next sixty days.

Offers for sale of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company should be made upon the enclosed form, and should be accompanied by the certificates of the stock offered with transfers duly executed, having United States stamps for transfer tax of two cents per share affixed.

Upon receipt of any such offer, so accompanied, the Northern Securities Company will deliver to the seller of the stock of the 2366
Great Northern Railway Company certificates of its own stock to the amount of the purchase price above named, or, if such certificates are not then ready for delivery, its negotiable receipt, obliging it to issue and deliver such certificates as soon as ready. For fractional parts of shares scrip certificates convertible into stock in multiples of $100 will be given.

NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY,
By JAMES J. HILL, President.

To the NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY, 2367
New York:

The subscriber hereby offer to sell and deliver to the Northern Securities Company ——— shares in the capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, represented by the certificates hereto attached, for the price of one hundred and eighty dollars ($180) per share, payable in the fully paid stock of the Northern Securities Company, at par, in accordance with the terms of the circular of the latter-named company, dated November 22nd, 1901.

The stock of the Northern Securities Company to be paid in 2368 accordance with the foregoing tender should be issued as follows:

Shares.	Name.	Full address.

Dated ————, 190—.

2369 The following is copy of testimony of Edward H. Harriman, given before the Interstate Commerce Commission, at Chicago, January 25, 1902, and reported on pages 78 to 115, inclusive, of the printed report of that hearing, and offered by complainant as original evidence in this case:

EDWARD H. HARRIMAN, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. DAY. Please give the stenographer your full name.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Edward H. Harriman.

Mr. DAY. And state your official relations to the Union
2370 Pacific Railway.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Chairman of the executive committee.

Mr. DAY. Of the board of directors?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Of the executive committee, and a member of the board of directors.

Mr. DAY. And your official relations to the Oregon Short Line?

Mr. HARRIMAN. President.

Mr. DAY. And the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think that is chairman of the executive 2371 committee.

Mr. DAY. And the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. President.

Mr. DAY. And member of the board of directors?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Have you any relations to the Chicago and Alton Railway Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. A director. I am a member of the executive committee. I think I am chairman of that, too.

Mr. DAY. Are you officially related to the Chicago and Alton 2372 Railroad Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I am a director, I say.

Mr. DAY. Of the old organization?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think so.

Mr. DAY. Who appointed Mr. Stubbs, the traffic manager of your system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The various companies.

Mr. DAY. What companies?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The ones that he may be director of traffic of. It is all set out—Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Mr. DAY. What part did you take in his appointment, in 2373 selecting him, in naming him as traffic director?

Mr. HARRIMAN. One vote in the board of directors.

Mr. DAY. You simply voted for him in the board of directors?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Was his appointment agreed upon before the vote was taken?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I can not say it was agreed upon. There is a difference between agreeing and understanding.

Mr. DAY. Well, understanding? 2374

Mr. HARRIMAN. Of course, in all such matters that come before the board of directors they are not asked to be decided at once. Usually they are talked over in board meetings and decided at a future meeting. I can not say now how the selection of Mr. Stubbs was brought about.

Mr. DAY. Now, the understanding which preceded his final appointment, what was said to be the scope—what was said respecting the scope of the new office about to be created, called a traffic director?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, that is very difficult to remember 2375 just what was said. I think the intention was, if that is what you want, that Mr. Stubbs was too far away from the center of traffic controlled or too valuable a man to keep out of the Pacific slope. He could not come into contact with the other bright minds arranging the traffic of the different railroads and the methods of conducting it.

Mr. DAY. What were proposed to be the duties of the traffic director; what was said?

Mr. HARRIMAN. A general supervision of the traffic in cooperation with the various presidents of the different systems. 2376

Mr. DAY. Was he given control—direction of traffic?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. By the routes and lines of your system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. What was said in respect to that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That he should advise with the traffic officers of the various systems and presidents.

Mr. DAY. You mean the various lines comprising the system?

2377 Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Was anything said about an excess of traffic going by one route over another, or one line or route getting a less share of the traffic than some might think was its due?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Was that subject discussed at all?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. About a division of the traffic, and apportioning it fairly and justly between the lines composing your system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

2378 Mr. DAY. At no time among the members of the board of directors, so far as you know, was that discussed?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember that that subject ever came up. I think the word "director" is perhaps misunderstood. He is not director of the traffic to go by one line as against the other, but in the sense of being a director having charge of the traffic departments of the several lines, so that he could work in cooperation with the officers of those lines, just as I am a director of these various lines, but I can not direct the affairs of those companies.

2379 Mr. DAY. You are one of a number that may direct them?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Decide questions brought before them.

Mr. DAY. Mr. Stubbs is not a director of any of the railroads?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not at present.

Mr. DAY. Was the power to raise or make rates committed to Mr. Stubbs?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In cooperation with the officers of the various lines.

Mr. DAY. That was discussed?

2380 Mr. HARRIMAN. In the board of directors?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think not.

Mr. DAY. Well, whether sitting as a board or members of the board together discussing the subject, what are the limits of Mr. Stubbs's powers as traffic manager?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, I think I have answered that. He can arrange the matters pertaining to the traffic departments by advising with and cooperating with the executive officers and traffic officers of the systems.

Mr. DAY. Has he power to direct whether traffic shall go 2381 by the route of the old Southern Pacific, the most southerly route to the Pacific coast, rather than what was originally the Union Pacific and Central Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think Mr. Stubbs or any other man could direct that.

Mr. DAY. Well, there are instances where the shipper does not direct that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know of any instance. In any event, Mr. Stubbs has no more control of that now than he had before he was brought to Chicago. 2382

Mr. DAY. I remember an instance testified to in this city where many hundred carloads of traffic were consigned by the shipper over one of the trunk lines and that trunk line turned it over to a rival trunk line. The shipper had no voice.

Mr. HARRIMAN. We are not a trunk line. I do not know about those matters. But I do not know of any instance in the Southern Pacific.

Mr. DAY. I am asking you whether he has power to do that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You are giving an illustration, and I do 2383 not think it is a fair one. The affairs of the Southern Pacific have always been conducted on certain lines and are still conducted that way.

Mr. DAY. What I am endeavoring to do is to determine what those lines are on which it is now conducted. What are the powers of Mr. Stubbs? I can only know from what you say and Mr. Stubbs testifies. I have no other knowledge. I want to know the limits of his powers, what he is expected to do and does do under the direction of your board or chairman of the executive committee. 2384

Mr. HARRIMAN. I tried to answer that.

Mr. DAY. You have answered fully?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I have. I do not know that there is anything more.

Mr. DAY. Well, we will pass that. Now, the Union Pacific Railway Company; what are the relations between the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Connecting lines.

Mr. DAY. Anything else?

2385 Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Has the Union Pacific any stock interest in the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. What is that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean the amount?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir; the extent of it.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think between 35 and 40 per cent.

Mr. DAY. Of the entire capital stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

2386 Mr. DAY. How was that interest acquired?

Mr. HARRIMAN. By purchase.

Mr. DAY. Any other interest in the Southern Pacific except what results from that ownership?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. No lease?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. No guarantee of dividends?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Or bonds?

2387 Mr. HARRIMAN. Nothing whatever.

Mr. DAY. Approximately, in round numbers what does that at par value amount to?

Mr. HARRIMAN. About $75,000,000.

Mr. DAY. And the capital stock of the Southern Pacific is what?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Two hundred millions; within a million or two of that.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Is that held by the Union Pacific Company itself or the people interested in it?

2388 Mr. HARRIMAN. That is held by the Union Pacific.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. The corporation?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The corporation.

Mr. DAY. Is it carried on the books of the Southern Pacific as the property of the Union Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember whether it is or not.

Mr. DAY. Who votes the stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think that stock stands in the name of one or two directors of the Union Pacific.

Mr. DAY. As trustees? 2389

Mr. HARRIMAN. In their individual names, I think; I do not remember.

Mr. DAY. In your annual report it is carried as the property of the Union Pacific Railroad Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It so states in the report; yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Who are those gentlemen that vote that stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I am one. I know I am one. I think the other is Mr. Pierce.

Mr. DAY. Winslow?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Winslow Pierce; I think so. 2390

Mr. DAY. You are president of the Oregon Short Line, are you not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. What interest has the Union Pacific in the Oregon Short Line?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It owns its stock.

Mr. DAY. Approximately all of it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, I think approximately all.

Mr. DAY. Has the Union Pacific Company any interest in the Great Northern Railroad Company? 2391

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Proprietary, share owner, or otherwise?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Has it in the Northern Pacific Railway?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Has the Oregon Short Line any interest in the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Has the Union Pacific had any interest as a share owner in the Northern Pacific Railway Company? 2392

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Has the Oregon Short Line had?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; that states in the report that we had about seventy-eight millions of Northern Pacific stock.

Mr. DAY. When did the Oregon Short Line acquire that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Last spring. I do not remember exactly.

Mr. DAY. Prior to last spring had the Oregon Short Line any interest as owner in the Northern Pacific Railroad Company?

2393 Mr. HARRIMAN. Prior to last spring, not to my knowledge. It may have some years back. I do not know.

Mr. DAY. What is the total capital stock of the Oregon Short Line?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think between twenty-seven and twenty-eight millions.

Mr. DAY. It purchased how much stock of the Northern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Seventy-eight millions.

Mr. DAY. How did it pay for that stock?

2394 Mr. HARRIMAN. Some in cash and some by issuing its own obligations against that stock.

Mr. DAY. How much cash did it pay approximately?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Fifteen or twenty million dollars.

Mr. DAY. That came out of its own treasury?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. How was the money raised by the Oregon Short Line to acquire the balance of $60,000,000?

Mr. HARRIMAN. By issuing its own certificates of indebtedness.

2395 Mr. DAY. Who did it issue the certificates to? What I want——

Mr. HARRIMAN. What you want is to find out if the Union Pacific has any interest in that purchase?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I want to be frank about it. The Union Pacific helped the Oregon Short Line to finance it and purchased from the Oregon Short Line the certificates of indebtedness, the money for which it used in paying for the Northern Pacific stock.

2396 Mr. DAY. The sixty-one millions of that purchase money came out of the Union Pacific treasury, practically?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Directly or indirectly?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Now, the Union Pacific owns $75,000,000 of the Southern Pacific stock—a controlling interest?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Oh, no.

Mr. DAY. Practically so?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know. 2397

Mr. DAY. The Union Pacific does control it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. There are some of them members of the board of directors, but there are others also.

Mr. DAY. Speaking to the substance of the thing, rather than the legal aspects, the Union Pacific now does control it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Anybody that had seventy-five millions out of two hundred millions would have a strong influence in making up the board.

Mr. DAY. But, as a matter of fact, the Union Pacific does control the Southern Pacific system, does it not, to-day? 2398

Mr. HARRIMAN. For instance, the Union Pacific might to-morrow sell its seventy-five millions and then it would not.

Mr. DAY. I am speaking of to-day—your actual possession, irrespective of the seventy-five millions. Does the Union Pacific interest to-day control the Southern Pacific Railroad?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean without any other voice; any other interest?

Mr. DAY. Does it not operate it to the same extent it operates the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not quite. Hardly. There are other in- 2399 terests represented in the Southern Pacific, and it is not always harmonious.

Mr. DAY. But the actual control of the property?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Usually the voice of the Union Pacific representatives controls; that is, they impress on the board of directors the matters they have in hand for the benefit of the Southern Pacific or those that are best to be done. For instance, I will give an illustration of that. As you probably all know, the Union Pacific has during the last two or three years expended a very large amount in repairs, you might say, and 2400 improving its own property. It has done so to the extent of $25,000,000 or $30,000,000 and has put itself in a position where it can operate to the best advantage and give the best service in the territory served by it. In taking the Southern Pacific in hand, the Union Pacific interests considered that that same method should be adopted as to the Southern Pacific. Some of the representatives of the other stockholders thought not, but the voice of the Union Pacific representatives prevailed.

2401 There are some twenty millions to be expended this year in improving the Southern Pacific on the same basis as the Union Pacific.

Commissioner PROUTY. What part of it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It will be distributed over the lines from New Orleans to Los Angeles, and from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and from San Francisco to Ogden.

Commissioner PROUTY. Not especially between San Francisco and Ogden?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; a large amount is to be expended 2402 there; I think one-third of it. It has been carefully gone over, and I think distributed over the whole line; and there is also motive power to be distributed over the line. There are, I think, 180 engines—large locomotives—to be provided.

Commissioner FIFER. What is the character of the improvements?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Reduction of grades, elimination of curvature, and elimination of the old light equipment.

Commissioner PROUTY. How do you raise the money for that?

2403 Mr. HARRIMAN. We have not raised it at all. Perhaps we would like a little advice on that subject. It is quite a large amount.

Commissioner PROUTY. You do not seem to have had much difficulty in raising seventy-five or eighty millions when you wanted it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. There is nothing like having good credit.

Mr. DAY. Speaking of the facility for raising money, the sixteen millions that the Oregon Short Line did not get from the Union Pacific—did it get that out of its treasury or borrow it?

2404 Mr. HARRIMAN. It had a surplus in its treasury. I think it had several million surplus and it borrowed the rest.

Mr. DAY. Not on the certificates.

Commissioner PROUTY. Have you increased the mortgage obligations of the Union Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In what time?

Commissioner PROUTY. In making your improvements?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Very little. We have not issued any direct obligations of the Union Pacific to make those improvements.

When I speak of the Union Pacific I refer to the Union Pacific 2405 system that includes the Oregon Short Line as well. But most of the improvements have been made through the Rocky Mountain districts; in fact, the improvement there was really—the elimination of curvature was possibly 200 per cent and the elimination of grades was substantially 100 per cent.

Commissioner PROUTY. Is that substantially done?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Substantially done; yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. You have increased the bonded indebtedness of the Union Pacific the last year, or has it not been increased?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not understand that question. 2406

Commissioner PROUTY. I asked as to the mortgage indebtedness, I think.

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; we have not increased it.

Mr. DAY. How much of an increase in your bonded indebtedness has been effected in the past year, or to take the last year, the year preceding?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Have you the Union Pacific report there?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. You have not the one for the year previous, have you? 2407

Mr. DAY. No.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I can only speak from memory.

Mr. DAY. I will ask you this, then: How was the purchase of Southern Pacific stock financed? How was the cash acquired for the purchase of the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think we borrowed the money in the first instance.

Mr. DAY. Then did you not issue some bonds to pay for that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You refer to convertible bonds? 2408

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I am not trying to hide the fact that I issued one hundred millions of convertible bonds. That is one of the things we can not hide. There are one hundred millions of convertible bonds used in the purchase of these various securities that you see in the annual report of the Southern Pacific. I can not detail them now.

Mr. DAY. You raised one hundred millions on those bonds?

2409 Mr. HARRIMAN. About one hundred million, I think it was.

Mr. DAY. Was any of that money used for improvements?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. That was all used for the acquisition of new lines?

Mr. HARRIMAN. New lines; yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. And among others the stock of the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Some of it. I do not know whether it was altogether that. There may have been some other properties we acquired.

2410 Commissioner PROUTY. Have those bonds been actually sold?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Commissioner PROUTY. What interest do they bear?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Four per cent.

Commissioner PROUTY. Did they sell for par?

Mr. HARRIMAN. At par; yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Let me see if I understand you. The Union Pacific Railway Company owns seventy-five millions of the stock of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company or the Southern Pacific Company. The Union Pacific Company owns all, or 2411 nearly all, of the stock of the Oregon Short Line. The Oregon Short Line owns all, or nearly all, of the stock of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company.

Mr. HARRIMAN. The Union Pacific?

Mr. DAY. No; the Oregon Short Line.

Mr. HARRIMAN. The Short Line has a considerable interest in the Navigation Company. I think our report shows that the Union Pacific owns considerable interest in that company.

Mr. DAY. What the Union Pacific does not hold in the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company the Short Line does?

2412 Mr. HARRIMAN. Not all.

Mr. DAY. Practically?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Practically.

Mr. DAY. And the Oregon Short Line purchased seventy-eight millions of the common and preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company last spring?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That is about right.

Mr. DAY. How is that stock held?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In the Oregon Short Line Railroad.

Mr. DAY. In the name of that company? 2413

Mr. HARRIMAN. It is held for that company.

Mr. DAY. In whose name?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Harriman and Pierce.

Mr. DAY. As trustees?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; I think in their names.

Mr. DAY. But there is a memorandum, I suppose, of the trust under which you hold it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think there must be. There would be naturally.

Mr. DAY. Where is that memorandum? 2414

Mr. HARRIMAN. I suppose it is in the office of the Oregon Short Line.

Mr. DAY. You are president of that company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Is that stock still held in your name and that of your cotrustee, Mr. Pierce?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Now, let us jump again. What you are trying to get at is whether we sold that stock. I had a talk with Commissioner Knapp and he said he would try to let me go on the train to-day, so I want to save time. 2415

Mr. DAY. Well, proceed and tell the whole history of that transaction.

Mr. HARRIMAN. The Northern Pacific stock has been sold.

Mr. DAY. All of it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. All of it.

Mr. DAY. I thought you wanted to go ahead and tell the whole story.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, that is all you asked. There is no more story to tell.

Mr. DAY. To whom was it sold? 2416

Mr. HARRIMAN. To individuals.

Mr. DAY. Who are the individuals?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember.

Mr. DAY. When was the sale effected?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Some time during the summer, I think; the last of August or September. It has been sold since July, September, or October, or August.

2417 Mr. DAY. How long before the meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Company was it sold?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Oh, some time—I do not remember—thirty or sixty days, perhaps.

Mr. DAY. Who negotiated for the sale of that stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I did, principally.

Mr. DAY. Were you authorized to make the sale by a vote of the board of directors of the Short Line?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Your action was without consultation with your 2418 codirectors?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We had many talks.

Mr. DAY. What were the terms of the sale—what was the agreement respecting the sale?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not mean for you to understand that there was no action by the board of directors of the Oregon Short Line but the final transaction; the Oregon Short Line authorized the sale to be made on the terms that were reported to it. In this instance it took no action as to authorizing negotiations.

2419 Mr. DAY. What were the terms reported to it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The sale of the stock.

Mr. DAY. What were the terms of it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean what price we got?

Mr. DAY. No; I do not care about the price, but the terms—the conditions of the sale?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No conditions.

Mr. DAY. A price was named?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. You did not know who the purchasers were?

2420 Mr. HARRIMAN. I know to whom the stock was delivered. There were other people. I do not think it was all purchased by one house or one person.

Mr. DAY. Do you know who it was purchased for?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Who participated in the conferences with you respecting the sale of that stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Mr. Pierce, a partner of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and, I think, Mr. Hill, and, possibly, Mr. Schiff.

Mr. DAY. Where did those conferences take place? 2421

Mr. HARRIMAN. Some in the office of Morgan & Co. and some in my office.

Mr. DAY. There had been a great contest between interests with which you were personally allied and interests with which Mr. Morgan, we may say, or Mr. Hill were allied, respecting the control of the Northern Pacific Railroad last year?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I am very glad of a chance to explain that. I do not think there had been any contest. The facts are that some of us allied with the Oregon Short Line or Union Pacific thought it would be advantageous to the Oregon Short Line to 2422 have an interest in the Northern Pacific, and we went about acquiring that interest and purchased the stock that was lying loose all over this country and in Europe. I suppose it was held by 6,000 or 7,000 people, and to our mind it ought not to make any difference to any other interest whether we owned the stock or whether it was held by several thousand other people. We made no contest for the purchase of the stock and no contest for the control of the road, and I may say here that prior to the supposed contest in the market that stock was acquired, and no stock was acquired during those days of panic 2423 in it, nor were any orders given by us.

Commissioner PROUTY. You had already bought, and the question was whether the other fellow could deliver.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Who do you mean by the other fellow?

Commissioner PROUTY. I do not mean Mr. Hill and his crowd, but the man from whom you bought the Northern Pacific stock. Had not you and others bought Northern Pacific stock from people that did not own or deliver it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think this: Of course you know there are markets for American railway securities not only in this 2424 country but in Germany, Holland, and England, and some of the stock that we had purchased had not been delivered, but was on its way from those various markets. It had been purchased in those markets and agreed to be delivered in New York, and of course in the meantime they were using stock of other people to make their deliveries. It was not all coming by any means to interests; it had been delivered very largely with interests associated with me.

2425 The CHAIRMAN. Does that mean that it was not bought from persons that did not own it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; it was purchased in New York of agents who repurchased in these other markets. They tried to deliver in New York by borrowing from persons that owned it here. Then, when the contest took place and other parties went into the market and purchased Northern Pacific at very high prices and demanded delivery of the the stock, naturally those persons that purchased in other markets to deliver here found it difficult to get that stock to fill contracts in New York, 2426 and our interests in every instance gave them all the time they wanted to have the stock brought from the various markets from which they had purchased to deliver to us.

Commissioner FIFER. Were those the influences that sent Northern Pacific stock up to nearly a thousand dollars a share last year?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Which ones?

Commissioner FIFER. Northern Pacific went up very high last May in New York, did it not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

2427 Commissioner FIFER. What were the influences?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That is the contest, I think, that you gentlemen refer to. We were not in that contest and had no hand in it.

Mr. DAY. That was not the contest my question referred to.

Commissioner PROUTY. You say you did not suppose it made any difference to anybody whether you owned this stock or whether 7,000 persons owned it. If you had secured a few more millions of common stock of the Northern Pacific it would have made a difference to somebody, would it not?

2428 Mr. HARRIMAN. We could have secured it.

Commissioner PROUTY. Do you mean you did not want it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We did not want it at anything like the price eventually paid for it.

Commissioner PROUTY. You have sold that stock, the whole of it. Was that enterprise a profitable one or the reverse? I take it that finally the public has to pay for it if you lost money there; have to pay it in freight rates or in some way. Now, as bearing on the question whether railroad companies ought to have a right to speculate in stocks, I would like to 2429 know whether that enterprise was profitable?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That was not gone into by the railroad company as a speculation in any way. We thought that a dominating influence, or a large influence, in the ownership of the Northern Pacific would secure to the Union Pacific system what was already a valuable connection, and keep open avenues of traffic which we thought our interests and the interests of the public and our duty to the public demanded.

Commissioner PROUTY. And in that attempt you failed?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Oh, no; we have not failed. We feared 2430 that there might be some change in the relations of the Northern Pacific and the territory served by it and the territory served by the Union Pacific, and perhaps the territories which the Union Pacific contemplated extending into.

Commissioner PROUTY. Well, I understand that you started out to obtain a controlling interest in the Northern Pacific—a dominating interest in the Northern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Which we did do.

Commissioner PROUTY. You have disposed of that interest?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir. 2431

Commissioner PROUTY. Why did you dispose of it—because it was not sufficiently dominating?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; we disposed of it because we were satisfied that the natural conditions and the strength of the Union Pacific system in itself would protect it from any of the restrictions that might be put on the traffic originating on the lines of the Northern Pacific and prevent it from going over the natural avenues open to it.

Commissioner PROUTY. In other words, when you looked over the whole situation you thought better of it. 2432

Mr. HARRIMAN. I hardly think that is fair to put it that way.

Commissioner PROUTY. I would like to know why you changed your mind between the time you bought Northern Pacific stock and the time you sold. Did Mr. Hill convince you that he was going to do the fair thing?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think we rely on anybody's assurance that that there is going to be any fair thing done. Mr. Hill might not be in control of the properties he is in control 2433 of now. Who knows? He says he has only thirty or forty millions of it.

Commissioner PROUTY. He very likely knows where he can find a few millions more.

Mr. HARRIMAN. That may be. That is all right; and let me say Mr. Hill is all right also.

Commissioner PROUTY. You did not answer my question, and I do not know that I am disposed to insist on it if you do not want to.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I want to answer every question I can.

2434 Commissioner PROUTY. It seems to me the Union Pacific went into an attempt to buy the Northern Pacific and afterwards receded from that attempt, and it seems to me if the Union Pacific lost money——

Mr. HARRIMAN. They had accomplished it.

Commissioner PROUTY. There were certain difficulties in the way of bringing that to a permanent fruition?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; I think not.

Commissioner PROUTY. Well, I know very little about the financial operations.

2435 Mr. HARRIMAN. But you want to know.

Commissioner PROUTY. Yes, sir. I understood that in an imperfect way this was the situation: You had gone in to buy Northern Pacific stock. You had absolutely purchased a majority of that stock, but the stock of the Northern Pacific was made up of two kinds, common stock and preferred stock. You had more preferred stock, but less common stock, than Mr. Hill and his company. The preferred stock of the Northern Pacific could, under certain circumstances, be retired. I have been informed that Mr. Hill and his coadjutors threatened to 2436 retire that preferred stock, and therefore retire you out of control of the Northern Pacific, and it was in consequence of that the arrangement was finally made.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think if we go into an argument on that subject I will not catch my train.

Commissioner PROUTY. You said you wanted to tell.

Mr. HARRIMAN. That is a question, I understand, that has never been brought to issue; but I think Mr. Hill—I listened to his interesting and very clear statements yesterday—stated to you something about the agreements after meetings in my 2437 office and Mr. Morgan's office, to the effect that Mr. Morgan was to select the next board of directors of the Northern Pacific. In other words, there was a panic prevailing in the financial markets all over the world for some reason that they did not understand, and apparently for no reason at all, and when the matter was brought to our attention we disclaimed any intention of eliminating the former management of the Northern Pacific therefrom, and as evidence of that intention we agreed that Mr. Morgan should vote our stock at the next meeting.

Commissioner PROUTY. Before you came to that conclusion 2438 had this question of the right of the Northern Pacific common stock to retire the Northern Pacific preferred stock been raised?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not to our minds.

Commissioner PROUTY. Had it to your knowledge?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Only in a general way, as it has with you.

Commissioner PROUTY. Had your attorney expressed an opinion on that subject?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember that he had. I think there were various talks on that subject. But we were satisfied that the interest we had acquired in Northern Pacific would 2439 accomplish all we desired in having secured to us and to the territory of the Northern Pacific and to our territory a free movement of the traffic on the lines it would naturally go.

Commissioner PROUTY. And having secured that stock for that purpose and having got enough of it, you proceeded to perpetuate that influence by selling every share of stock you had.

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; there were various conferences, and we had offers for our interests in the Northern Pacific which we thought it was to the interest of our shareholders to 2440 dispose of. What you want to know is whether there was any understanding or agreement whereby we were to be secured in any general way by an alliance with the Northern Pacific?

Commissioner PROUTY. That is one thing.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, there was not any.

Commissioner PROUTY. Then, I would like to ask you what you gained by your purchase and sale of Northern Pacific stock? What did the Union Pacific gain?

2441 Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, I do not know. As to that, we developed the fact in our talks and conferences with these various people and with our own officers—the fact that we were strong enough to maintain our position against any other organization.

Commissioner PROUTY. Where did you develop that—in the stock market?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; in our talks and conferences with our own people and the people affiliated with the Northern Pacific.

2442 Commissioner PROUTY. In other words, you came to a better understanding of the traffic situation?

Mr. HARRIMAN. There was no understanding.

Commissioner PROUTY. You came to a better knowledge?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; we all had by conferences.

Commissioner PROUTY. To come back to my original question, when you sold that stock—you need not answer the question if you do not want to—when you sold that stock did you make or lose money as a Union Pacific Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. As an Oregon Short Line Company.

2443 Commissioner PROUTY. It is all one as a Union Pacific proposition.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I can answer that we did not lose any. We believe we did not lose any.

Commissioner FIFER. Did the Hill-Morgan influence control the board of directors of the Northern Pacific at the time of these negotiations?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know that Mr. Hill ever had any influence in the Northern Pacific. There had been a voting trust, as I understand, on the Northern Pacific, and I think 2444 that was controlled by the Morgan interests.

Commissioner FIFER. Did you believe at that time that the Morgan interests did control the directors of the Northern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It had all along.

Commissioner FIFER. Did that give them the right, or did you believe it would give them the right, to retire this preferred stock of the Northern Pacific and retire you from the control of the Northern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Will you repeat that? 2445

Commissioner FIFER. Did you understand at the time of the negotiations, and was that an inducement to you to sell the interest of the Oregon Short Line, or the Union Pacific, the interest it held in the Northern Pacific——

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean did the fact that they might retire the preferred Northern Pacific stock influence us in disposing of it?

Commissioner FIFER. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Commissioner FIFER. They controlled the board of directors, 2446 however, or at least claimed to?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, they had not had an election, you know. They controlled—I suppose they did—I presume they controlled the board of directors that was then in office.

Commissioner FIFER. Was anything said in those negotiations that if they did attempt to retire this preferred stock, you would appeal to the courts and enjoin them?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In our conferences with them?

Commissioner FIFER. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir. I do not think that question be- 2447 tween the purchasers and ourselves came up. I do not remember that it did. Of course, you understand, I do not mean to say that that never came up between ourselves.

Commissioner PROUTY. When this stock was sold were the obligations which the Union Pacific and the Oregon Short Line had assumed to purchase it paid off?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Some portion of it.

Commissioner PROUTY. Some portion of it still remains?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, the obligations—there are some that can not be paid off until maturity. 2448

Commissioner PROUTY. What was the form of certificate which the Oregon Short Line issued to raise money with which to purchase this Northern Pacific stock? What were the terms of it? It was the obligation of the Oregon Short Line, I suppose?

Mr. HARRIMAN. An agreement to pay.

Commissioner PROUTY. When was the certificate due?

2449 Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember. I think in ten or fifteen years, the larger part. Some part there was money borrowed for a short time on collateral, and since has been mostly paid off.

Commissioner PROUTY. But the certificates themselves have not yet been paid and can not be?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think they can be paid unless by agreement with the holders thereof.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. With what house or person were your negotiations made for the sale of this Northern Pacific 2450 stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Mostly with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. And it was delivered to that house?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it was. I do not have the supervision of that.

Mr. DAY. Who negotiated the sale of your stock, this stock directly owned by the Short Line?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The Northern Pacific, you have reference to?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I did.

2451 Mr. DAY. With whom did you make the negotiation?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I said that.

Mr. DAY. You said with some persons connected——

Mr. HARRIMAN. The negotiations were conducted with members of the firm of Morgan & Co.

Mr. DAY. What particular members did you carry on your negotiations with in which the terms were discussed?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, there are four or five there—nearly all the members of the firm—Mr. Steele, Mr. Perkins, Mr. Bacon, and, I think, at one time Mr. Morgan himself, and 2452 there may have been one other member of the firm. At various times they took it up, one by one and together.

Mr. DAY. Who was the attorney who acted at that time for the Union Pacific and Short Line in respect to this stock, the holdings of Northern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not quite understand that question.

Mr. DAY. You had some negotiations regarding the contest that was on?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We never went into any contest.

Mr. DAY. I used the word "contest" with respect to your 2453 effort to acquire what you say you started out to do, to get control——

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I tried to explain that we purchased the shares of the Northern Pacific prior to May 8 or 9, when there was a sudden rise. I do not consider that a contest. It never came to any contest for control of the Northern Pacific. There never was any contest.

Mr. DAY. Were not you seeking to control the Northern Pacific Railroad?

Mr. HARRIMAN. To the elimination of the people already in 2454 there?

Mr. DAY. No; to get—you sought to get a controlling interest in the Northern Pacific Railroad, did you not? Did you not say you accomplished that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We purchased a majority of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific Railroad; seventy-eight millions, I think it was, out of one hundred and fifty-five.

Mr. DAY. And you stated that the Union Pacific accomplished its object in that respect. What was its object?

Mr. HARRIMAN. To preserve to the Union Pacific system 2455 the avenues that were already open to it for exchange of traffic with the Northern Pacific system.

Mr. DAY. You told Commissioner Prouty, in reply to a question propounded by Commissioner Prouty respecting your reasons for the sale of this seventy-eight millions of stock so shortly after you purchased it, that the Union Pacific had accomplished its object in the purchase. What was that object or how did you accomplish that object? What assurances have you that you have accomplished it, if that was the only object? What assurances were given you by anyone respecting the 2456 future conduct of the Northern Pacific or those avenues of communication between it and the Oregon Short Line or the Union Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not presume that it would be possible for any individual or any combination to give any promise that would be a security to anybody else in the affairs of the operation of any railroad, the Northern Pacific or any other. For instance, these people who purchased the Northern Pacific might 2457 sell the stock to-morrow or before the next election, and still whatever assurances there were would be of no avail.

Mr. DAY. Were there any assurances?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. None at all?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Directly or indirectly, controlling the operation of the Northern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That covers a great deal of ground. We had many conferences as to what the movement by various lines
2458 would be, and, considering the whole question, the Union Pacific management determined that it was no longer necessary, as it was believed that it would be to the interest of the Northern Pacific to use the avenues open over the Northern Pacific as it had before, notwithstanding it had purchased the Burlington.

Mr. DAY. Were any assurances given you regarding the future relations of the Burlington road with the Union Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Nothing said in respect to that, as to how it should be conducted and used?

2459 Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. The Burlington touches the Union Pacific lines at a great many points?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I should think it did.

Mr. DAY. You asked no assurances regarding that and received none?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Was any inducement held out to you to enter the Northern Securities Company or take any interest in that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

2460 Mr. DAY. By any of these gentlemen?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. You are a shareholder in that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I am individually, yes, sir; but it has been purchased since—within the last month, I expect; a small interest—not in relation to this.

Mr. DAY. Are you a member of the board of directors?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Have you ever sat with the board?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I have. 2461

Mr. DAY. When.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Once or twice. I think about a month ago.

Mr. DAY. That company has only been organized about two months, has it not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember. I have not had anything to do with the organization of the Northern Securities Company.

Mr. DAY. You are also a member of the executive committee of the Northern Securities Company, are you not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I am. 2462

Mr. DAY. Has that committee had a meeting?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it has.

Mr. DAY. Did you attend it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, I do not remember. I believe I attended one meeting of the executive committee of the Northern Securities Company—I think I did—either the board of directors or the executive committee.

Mr. DAY. You wish to be understood as stating that no one representing the other half, or the minority holding, of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific made any pledges or prom- 2463
ises to you or to your colleagues in Union Pacific respecting the future operation of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, or the Burlington in the dealings of all or either with the Union Pacific system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think that is a question in another form—I thought I answered that.

Mr. DAY. I thought I would make it broad.

Mr. HARRIMAN. There is a common interest among us all, and we believe that common interest would be served, irrespective of any holding that we or anybody else might have. The 2464 common interest of the producer and the carrier, or the various carriers, would be finally adjusted on its own natural basis, irrespective of what anybody could promise or any agreement that might be made, and it would be impossible, in view of the power of the large systems that now exist, for any one to injure the other without injuring itself. Our interests are so common that we can not help but consider each other.

Mr. DAY. At any of these meetings or conferences were the 2465 terms of an adjustment of the questions outstanding between the majority and minority holders of stock of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company reduced to writing?

Mr. HARRIMAN. There was nothing, except the one just after the financial panic, in which it was suggested that we settle that once for all so as to reestablish confidence, and that was the one. I think there is a memorandum. I am not sure. I think there is a memorandum in which we agreed that we would permit Mr. Morgan to vote our stock.

Mr. DAY. Was anything else stated?

2466 Mr. HARRIMAN. It was merely a wish on our part to indicate to everybody that we had confidence in the then existing management of the Northern Pacific.

Mr. DAY. Did you have any conference with the same gentlemen subsequent to that respecting the holding of the Northern Pacific Railroad?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That conference—of course we had conferences and negotiations, because there was a desire to purchase our interests. Of course we could not sell it without negotiations being conducted by somebody.

2467 Mr. DAY. Did you attach to your negotiations for the sale of Northern Pacific stock any other conditions than the one of the money price?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr DAY. No other conditions?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No other conditions that I remember.

Mr. DAY. No other consideration except the one of the money price?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember any condition of the Union Pacific or Oregon Short Line in any way.

2468 Mr. DAY. Or the gentlemen who held the stock, yourself or your cotrustee, or your attorneys—Mr. Schiff or any member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.?

Mr. HARRIMAN. None other than I have stated.

Mr. DAY. Of the various interests?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Who has that memorandum?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know. Of course, when the election took place the whole thing fell, and that memorandum may be in existence and may not, I am not sure. I think that mem- 2469 orandum was conveyed in a published statement—published in a New York paper—to the effect that we had agreed that Mr. Morgan should vote our stock.

Mr. DAY. When you sold your seventy-eight millions of stock, did you receive cash for it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Cash and securities.

Mr. DAY. What part cash?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember; quite a large amount cash.

Mr. DAY. What proportion securities? 2470

Mr. HARRIMAN. The same thing. Of course it covered a very large amount of money. We received some securities and some cash.

Mr. DAY. What was the character of the securities you received?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Some of the securities of the Northern Securities stock.

Mr. DAY. And the cash was for your preferred stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We made no difference. We sold what we had. 2471

Mr. DAY. Had the Northern Securities Company then been organized or was it an agreement that you would take its stock when it was organized?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember that.

Mr. DAY. When was the sale made?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In September or October.

Mr. DAY. The Northern Securities Company was not incorporated until November 12. You could not have had its securities then.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, we had then the agreement to deliver 2472 us the securities of a company.

Mr. DAY. Is that agreement in writing?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Or cash. I think that is the way it was.

Mr. DAY. Is that agreement in writing?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think we made a memorandum.

Mr. DAY. Whom do you mean by "we?"

Mr. HARRIMAN. J. P. Morgan & Co., or in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., and myself.

2473 Mr. DAY. You have a copy of the memorandum?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The transaction was completed.

Mr. DAY. When did you get the securities for the balance?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think we got them in December before the year was out; I do not know. We may have secured some other securities. I do not know.

Mr. DAY. Were you aware at the time you made the agreement, which you say was in writing, to dispose of your seventy-eight millions of Northern Pacific stock——

Mr. HARRIMAN. Whether there was to be a securities com-2474 pany formed?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think there was some talk of that.

Mr. DAY. Did you then know at that time that it was proposed that the Northern Pacific Company should issue this new bond it did, this new bond and mortgage to raise the money, this convertible bond to retire the preferred stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I know nothing about what they were to do or how they were to do it.

Mr. DAY. There was nothing said to you about the seventy-2475 five millions of convertible bonds?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I can not remember that there was. It had nothing to do with our transaction. We made no difference between common and preferred stock.

Mr. DAY. I want the extent of your information at that time respecting the future policy, the plan by which the preferred stock was to be retired and bonds to the amount of seventy-five millions, convertible bonds, convertible into common stock, was to be issued in payment of the preferred stock to be retired—were you aware of that?

2476 Mr. HARRIMAN. I think not.

Mr. DAY. You were given no option to take that for your stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We had nothing to do with the securities issued.

Mr. DAY. Will you file with the Commission a copy of that memorandum?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I will try to if I can get it. I will be very glad to furnish them with any information.

Mr. DAY. Was it before or after you had taken the stock in 2477 the Northern Securities Company—I mean that you had effected the sale, completed the sale of the seventy-eight millions to Pierpont Morgan & Co. of the Union Pacific interest in the Northern Pacific road—that you were elected a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company? Was it prior or subsequent to the sale of the seventy-eight millions of stock that you were elected a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. As you say, we sold our seventy-eight mil- 2478 lions of stock.

Mr. DAY. I mean when you completed the transaction, when you actually delivered the stock and took Northern Securities stock in part payment.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think we got Northern Securities Company stock in part payment in the first instance. Our sale was made and completed, I think, before the Northern Securities Company was formed. I think there was only an agreement as to that.

Mr. DAY. When were you elected a member of the board 2479 of directors of the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember. I guess in November or December. I know I did not attend the first meetings of that company.

Mr. DAY. Who holds that stock in the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I presume the Oregon Short Line.

Mr. DAY. What was the amount of that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember.

Mr. DAY. Roughly speaking.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Oh, it was fifty or sixty millions. 2480

Mr. DAY. You think it is in the name of the Oregon Short Line?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; I think not.

Mr. DAY. Was it prior to the issue of that fifty or sixty million of stock, in which an equity belongs to the Oregon Short Line, that you were elected a member of the board of directors?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That I do not remember. These things had no bearing on each other.

2481 Mr. DAY. They had not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. They were entirely independent transactions. Your election as a member of the board of directors of the Northern Securities Company had no bearing whatever, no relation to the ownership of the $78,000,000 of the Northern Pacific Road?

Mr. HARRIMAN. My election to the Northern Pacific board?

Mr. DAY. To the Northern Securities board.

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

2482 Mr. DAY. I forgot what your answer was to my inquiry as to what your official relation was to the Chicago and Alton Railway Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I am a director; a member of the executive committee, and, I think, chairman.

Mr. DAY. Are you also a member of the old company, the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think I am.

Mr. DAY. What is the capital stock of the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company?

2483 Mr. HARRIMAN. I can not remember those figures.

Mr. DAY. Well, about?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember, really. I think, whatever it was, I think we had to pay about $40,000,000.

Mr. DAY. What is the capital stock of the Chicago and Alton Railway Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think that is $40,000,000. I may be mistaken about that. It is common and preferred stock—that can be obtained.

Mr. DAY. Both companies are subsisting corporations—the 2484 railroad company and railway company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. By what sort of title does the Chicago and Alton Railway Company hold the property of the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, formerly owned and controlled by the Chicago and Alton Railroad; lease or how?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it is by lease and ownership both. That is my recollection.

Mr. DAY. The lease was for a term of years?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it was. 2485

Mr. DAY. Is there any contract—any contractual relation—between the old company and the new company except as set out in the lease?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I believe not.

Mr. DAY. How much of the stock of the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company (meaning the old company) is owned by the new company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. All but a few millions; I think there is a million or two millions—practically all.

Mr. DAY. All but a few millions is an asset of the new com- 2486 pany?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Of the stock of the old company all but a few millions is an asset of the new company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Do you know whether the railway company guarantees any dividends on the stock of the new company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember.

Mr. DAY. If it does, is that set out in the lease?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it is all set out. 2487

Mr. DAY. Will you furnish a copy of that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; I will furnish a copy. I think the lease provides for the net earnings of the company. I am not sure.

Mr. DAY. If the capital stock of the new company is forty millions, as you suppose or approximate——

Mr. HARRIMAN. It is what the property cost. I do not know what it is. Whatever the stock cost, I think that is the capital of the railway company.

Mr. DAY. The capital stock of the new company was all paid 2488 up in cash?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Par?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; cash or its equivalent. It was issued for cash or for Chicago and Alton Railroad stock or some other property.

Mr. DAY. How was the money raised—by collateral mortgage or trust, or how did the new company raise the money—by bonds?

2489 Mr. HARRIMAN. Some bonds and some stock.

Mr. DAY. The stock was paid for in cash?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Or its equivalent—exchanged for securities purchased.

Mr. DAY. What is the amount of bonds the new company issued?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That I do not know. I could not say. I think $15,000,000.

Mr. DAY. What was the stated price of the stock of the old company that the new company paid?

2490 Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember now, but some time ago I think it was about 200.

Mr. DAY. The par value of the old stock was 100, and it paid 200?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Two hundred per cent.

Mr. DAY. Is the Union Pacific System or any of its subsidiary lines or companies interested as a share owner?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In the Chicago and Alton?

Mr. DAY. In the Chicago and Alton—any relationship between the two companies?

2491 Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. They are quite independent?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Absolutely independent.

Mr. DAY. No pecuniary interest in the Alton?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No affiliation whatever.

Mr. DAY. In either way?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In either way.

Mr. DAY. Pending the negotiations for the sale of the seventy-eight millions of Northern Pacific stock, which has been referred to, and the questions which arose respecting it from 2492 time to time among your associates, who acted as your legal counsel?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Mr. Pierce.

Mr. DAY. On what basis was such portion of the seventy-eight millions as was taken in exchange or exchanged for Northern Securities stock based or taken? What was the basis of the exchange?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We made no exchange.

Mr. DAY. I thought you said——

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; we had no transaction whatever. I 2493 think you have got a wrong impression. We had no transaction whatever with the Northern Securities Company.

Mr. DAY. You took some stock of the Northern Securities Company in part payment?

Mr. HARRIMAN. What you want to know is what price we took Northern Securities Company stock or agreed to take it at in case it was delivered to us, or any other security.

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. At par.

Commissioner PROUTY. You do not mean to say that you sold 2494
Northern Pacific stock at par?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; that question was not asked. I thought the question was whether what we took was on the basis of cash or Northern securities at par.

Mr. DAY. I understood you to say that you took some Northern Securities in part payment.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; in lieu of cash. We did not make any exchange.

Mr. DAY. You did not subscribe?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; we had no transactions with them. 2495

Mr. DAY. When you sold this seventy-eight millions of stock, were you advised or informed by any of the people you negotiated with, directly or indirectly, that that stock was to be turned over to the Northern Securities Company when organized?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not remember that we were specially advised. That was generally talked, that there was to be a securities company.

Mr. DAY. You relied on it that that would be done, did you not? 2496

Mr. HARRIMAN. That did not influence——

Mr. DAY. I am not asking that. You did rely on that, did you not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; we did not rely on it.

Commissioner PROUTY. You mean that you agreed to pay par for the stock of a company that you did not know anything about?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I thought the question was not on that basis.

2497 The question was, I think, what influence the sale of this Northern Pacific stock—that there was to be a securities company formed——

Mr. DAY. I will ask the stenographer to read the question.

The stenographer read the question, as follows: "When you sold this seventy-eight millions of stock, were you advised or informed by any of the people you negotiated with, directly or indirectly, that that stock was to be turned over to the Northern Securities Company when organized?"

Mr. HARRIMAN. That is not as I understood the question.

2498 We knew in a general way, the formation of a securities company was talked about, and we agreed to take in lieu of cash a certain amount of that stock, in lieu of cash, at par.

Mr. DAY. Then I asked if you did rely on the statement that a securities company was to be formed?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In making the sale?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. No.

Mr. DAY. I do not mean that that was the moving consideration. Would you feel that you had a cause of complaint

2499 against the gentlemen you were negotiating with if that stock had not been put into the Northern Securities Company?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think we would. I do not know any reason why we should.

Commissioner PROUTY. Of course, before you agreed to take fifty millions of that stock you knew something about what it was going to be worth. You did not expect that they had a right to put Great Northern stock in at $300 a share. You must have known in some way on what basis that company would be operated.

2500 Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; in the general talk at that time—the general talk that there was to be a securities company formed.

Commissioner PROUTY. Do you engage in transactions of fifty or sixty millions on general talk?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; very often.

Commissioner PROUTY. Perhaps you had better define what you mean by "general talk."

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean if there was any specific information given or agreement that there should be a certain amount 2501 of Northern Pacific or Great Northern stock put in?

Commissioner PROUTY. I think what Mr. Day wants and what the Commission would like to know, if it is material at all, is what agreement was made, what understanding was had, as to the organization of the securities company, of which you agreed to take the stock at par.

Mr. HARRIMAN. We agreed to take the stock at par if the securities company was formed, and the Northern Securities Company stock issued in payment for Northern Pacific stock not to exceed 115, and if Great Northern stock were put in that 2502 that should not exceed 180. That is the plan.

Mr. DAY. You understood that Northern Pacific stock was to be taken at 115 of the other, and you took it at par?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; I did not say that.

Mr. DAY. I mean the Northern Securities; you took that at par?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Oh, yes; I see I was in error.

The CHAIRMAN. As I understand Mr. Harriman, he said he negotiated the sale of this Northern Pacific stock when his com- 2503 pany decided that it was best to sell it. He reported the terms to his company and they ratified the arrangement.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. That arrangement fixed a price, and part of it was to be paid in money and the balance in securities, and included in those securities was an agreement on your part to take a certain amount of the securities of the Northern Securities Company, if organized on a certain basis?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Subsequently it was organized on that basis? 2504

Mr. HARRIMAN. And the stock was delivered and received.

The CHAIRMAN. And you took the stock of the Northern Securities Company in payment of the Northern Pacific stock that you sold?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes sir.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. When in the course of these negotiations did it become certain that the Northern Securities Company would be a practical organization—would be effected?

2505 Mr. HARRIMAN. In the first place, the talk of forming a securities company—I do not know whether it was the purpose of forming it under the name of the Northern Securities Company or under any other name, but I was generally cognizant of the fact that there had been a plan for forming a securities company for the holders of the Great Northern stock, and I think some time before we had any interest in the Northern Pacific. I think in some of my conversations with Mr. Hill that he had stated to me that he and his associates had a plan in view for forming a securities company, in which they were to 2506 put their holdings of Great Northern stock, a long time before we had any interest in the Northern Pacific.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. When did you first seriously consider taking any stock in that company yourself or for the corporations you represent?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Only when we sold the Northern Pacific stock.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. That was in September?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Whatever the date was that was the time.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. When did you procure that stock
2507 for the Oregon Short Line or Union Pacific, the seventy-eight millions?

Mr. HARRIMAN. For the Oregon Short Line?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. When did you obtain that?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think the 7th and 8th of May.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. You obtained it in the spring?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. And determined in the fall, about September or whenever it was, to take fifty or sixty millions of the proceeds of that and put it in the Northern Securities stock, 2508 not in exchange, but you would sell one and buy the other?

Mr. HARRIMAN. We agreed to take securities and stock with the understanding that it was to be a securities company, if formed.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. At the time you purchased that Northern Pacific stock you apparently must have had some substantial reason for apprehending danger to the properties you represented, as you have already stated, as I understand, that you deemed it necessary for the full and proper protection of your interests to have a dominating influence in the Northern 2509 Pacific Company. Is that a correct statement?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; that is what I said.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Now, apparently in the fall you turned that loose, so as to lose that dominating influence, so far as you had obtained it by the purchase of that stock, and there must have been some substantial impression——

Mr. HARRIMAN. May I explain that?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Certainly.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think the subsequent action of the Oregon Short Line or the people representing it in what they thought, 2510 and I think what was the prevailing influence with them was that the purchase of the Burlington Company by the Great Northern and perhaps the control of the Northern Pacific by one party might injure the Union Pacific or the territory—it might prevent the Union Pacific from properly serving, I might say, the territory through which it runs, and subsequent to the purchase of that stock, I think that our action in agreeing to give our proxy to Mr. Morgan is evidence enough that we were satisfied that there were more interests than the Great Northern or the people affiliated with the Great Northern in the Northern 2511
Pacific, and the subsequent management of the Northern Pacific is a further indication that we were right.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. When did you give Mr. Morgan that proxy?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The agreement that he should name the board of directors was given in May, about the time that there was this prevailing financial distrust, in which we had no hand, nor any interest, nor any purpose to serve, except, as I have stated before, that we should evidence to the whole financial world that there was no intention of creating a contest as against 2512
the then managers of the Northern Pacific.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Now, has not the formation of the Northern Securities Company, with an important holding in it by the Oregon Short Line, one of the corporations you represent—the interests under you—a holding in that company of fifty or sixty millions, and the identification of Mr. Hill and his associates, including the great Northern and Northern Pacific and Burlington, with this same company—all of you associated 2513 together—also gone a long way to assure you that there would be no unfriendly action on the part of the Northern Pacific in respect to the traffic?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No more than there has been in existence since the two corporations were organized.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Which two corporations?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I thought you referred to the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line and the Northern Pacific.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Well, what I mean is that since you and the interests you represent and the interests repre-2514 sented by Mr. Hill and Mr. Morgan, which include the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific, and the Oregon Short Line, and now the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, and the Burlington, are all holding stock in the way that was described yesterday, more or less, in the Northern Securities Company, and Mr. Hill being president of it and you being a member of the board of directors, is there not much less likely to be any friction or contest in the matter of traffic between the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific and its affiliated lines?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it may in this respect, that it may 2515 enable us where we are frequently brought together, or when we are brought together, whether frequently or infrequently—it has been very infrequently so far—it may enable us to so get together that we may be able to eliminate the prevailing distrust as to the various lines maintaining their tariff rates. In other words, I do not know that you have ever had before you a complaint of too high a rate, but it is a complaint as to discriminations, and that is all we are trying to eliminate from the situation to-day. I believe this, that in our association, if we will be able to influence the situation to such an extent that we 2516 will prevent, or largely prevent, discriminations as against the general shipper, and the concessions which are made or said to be made in favor of one shipper as against another—am I not right, Mr. Chairman, that the complaints mostly that come before your body are to the effect that there are discriminations, and not that rates are generally higher than they ought to be?

The CHAIRMAN. I must reserve my answer to that question to another time and place.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Will not the same power of cooperation and unity of action and financial association enable you 2517 also to prevent the reduction of the published rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know that we have power to do that, even if we wanted to.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Well, the carriers are given power to publish the rates, and they publish what they choose to as the rates at which they will carry. They are also authorized to reduce them from time to time or increase them from time to time. Of course there is a general declaration of the law that they shall be reasonable and just, and free from undue discrimination, but now you say that your principal object is to prevent the unjust 2518 discrimination.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I did not say we had an object. I said that I believed being brought together would enable us to consider these questions and prevent by our own officials and the officials of other lines their participating in discriminations and illegal—if you are a mind to—illegal practices.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Particularly deviation from the published rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Deviation from the published rates.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Now, what I want to know is this: 2519
Inasmuch as under the law you make your own rates and change them from time to time, and you have now cooperation—community of interest—financial and organized cooperation in one concern, directing more or less all these roads, by the election of officers, will it not carry with it not only the power to prevent deviations from the published rate, but also the power to hold up the published rate and prevent its reduction by the separate action of competing roads?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not quite understand what you mean by "community of interest." I think we all have a common in- 2520 terest, a common interest to increase the volume of business generally. There can not be one railroad or one community exist at the expense of the other, and it seems to me that whether we meet or happen to meet by an agreement in Chicago or in New York or in San Francisco, or whether we are brought together in a board of directors of a securities company or a bank or trust company, it makes no difference. If we wanted to practice something that was against the law it would not be necessary for us 2521 to form an organization and become directors thereof and advertise it to the world. We could meet anyhow. We have a common interest to preserve—which I think Mr. Hill explained to you yesterday—the avenues of traffic which are natural and over which traffic can be conducted and the products of the producing sections can reach the markets in some other part of the country. I understand your question to be whether it would not give us an opportunity to do something we have no right to do.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. In restraint of competition; reducing rates.

2522 Mr. HARRIMAN. May I ask a question, whether it would be any different whether we met at a specific place you may name, whether as a board of directors of a security company or as a board of directors of some corporation, or whether it was by arrangement at some other place other than where the board of directors meet, it would not give us any more opportunity than we would otherwise have were we not members of one board?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Well, the ownership of the stock in the one company would be something more potential than a mere coming together as independent representatives of inde-

2523 pendent roads. There have been many conferences between traffic managers and presidents in regard to these matters, but this is something substantially different, is it not? Here is a corporation the stock of which——

Mr. HARRIMAN. You are talking about the Northern Securities Company?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Yes, sir; the stock of which is held by these various interests.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; but it might be changed at any time. It might be all combined in one holding.

2524 Commissioner CLEMENTS. That might be. So might any pooling contract between an association of roads. It might exist to-day and not to-morrow. So long as it does exist, does it not afford a power of concentration and unity of action?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean by holding the stock?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. The holding of the stock, the joint interest in the matter, and the cooperation that comes from that.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think there are other and larger considerations which move the management of these properties other than the holding in any security company. As I have tried to 2525 explain, the matters practically control themselves in the end. There are commodities to be moved. There is productive territory. The products of one territory have to be shipped to consuming points, which may be thousands of miles away. We could not control it any more by meeting in that board of directors and having an interest—whether it was a large or small interest—in that stock any more than we could if we did not.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. In times past, when these roads have been separate in ownership and operation, they have reduced rates in order to get business, one road away from the 2526 other. That has been the operation of competition in the past. Does not this directly tend to restrain that by the cooperation brought about?

Mr. HARRIMAN. You mean reducing the published rates?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think it will, nor do I know in any case where it has.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Do you mean to say that there will be the same freedom and activity and competiton, in your judgment—is that what you state now—that there would be if these 2527 roads were entirely separate and independent of each other?

Mr. HARRIMAN. They are entirely separate and independent of each other.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. They are in a technical sense, and at the same time you are president of the Southern Pacific and also chairman of the board of the Union Pacific, as I understood your testimony.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. And president of the Oregon Short Line? 2528

Mr. HARRIMAN. President of the Oregon Short Line. They are all connecting lines and feed to each other.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Yes, sir; and they have been competing lines, have they not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not to my knowledge any more than now, and more than the situation of the lines makes it necessary.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. You do not mean to have us understand that Mr. Stubbs, as traffic director of these lines, would make one compete against another in the reduction of rates?

25529 Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know of any territory that one or the other serves that would make that necessary.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Well, the traffic from the eastern coast to the western coast could go by the Southern Pacific or the Union Pacific, or by the Oregon Short Line in connection with other roads?

Mr. HARRIMAN. On a published tariff?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know any instance where a shipment was changed in that way. I think we would hear from 25530 the shipper if it was so. Because of the interest that the Union Pacific acquired in the Southern Pacific, I believe it is going to enable the Union Pacific or the combined interests to give very much better service and enable them to improve the lines of the Southern Pacific to such an extent that it can be operated to better advantage and possibly more economically. If these matters are not brought about that way I do not see how the railroads will exist, and they will not be able to take care of an increased volume of business any cheaper or as cheap as they are to-day. You may separate all these lines that now make 25531 up these different systems. Formerly there may have been ten times more than to-day. If you want to separate them and put them into small lines I do not think the business of the country could be conducted. We are natural connections of the Southern at one point and do not interfere with it in any way at any other point. We may develop in connection with the Southern Pacific new avenues, which will reach also the Northern Pacific territory. That is a thing I had in mind. We are now extending a line of the Oregon Short Line from a point in Nevada to Southern California.

25532 It will open an entirely new avenue of traffic between the Northwest and southern California, New Mexico, and those southern points and the territory served by that portion of the Southern Pacific, and enable us to interchange commodities with points which are on the Oregon Short Line, owned by the Union Pacific, points on the Northern Pacific over the Short Line, and also new avenues of traffic and new markets for commodities in all the territories served by all those companies. How could we do that if we did not have a close affiliation?

Would it be possible to put a middle company in between the 2533 existing Short Line and the Southern Pacific in southern California?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Those matters are all interesting and instructive, and no doubt——

Mr. HARRIMAN. You are trying to find, apparently, something that was in our minds in making these affiliations.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. The change in the conditions and the opportunities that it afforded—not whether you heard particular complaints or whether or not you have raised the rate here and there, but what I am trying to get at is your judgment 2534
as to whether or not this community of interest, as it may be termed, by the holding of stock——

Mr. HARRIMAN. May I not change that into a common interest? I think we have a common interest; not only the railroads, but the producers.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Put it in that way. I mean the common interest as it is concentrated now in the Northern Securities Company. I am talking now of the interests of carriers separate from producers and shippers. Has it not placed it in such way that it will be feasible and practicable in a much 2535 great degree than before for carriers to prevent deviations from the published rate and also to prevent reductions in the published rate by the separate action of each of them?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think not.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. You do not think there is any greater opportunity for that than before?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think not.

Commissioner PROUTY. Mr. Harriman, you say it is for the interest of railroads that traffic should move by its natural channels. For instance, take cotton raised in Texas and the South- 2536 ern States. Is the natural channel by which that cotton is moved from this country to Japan by the Southern Pacific or by the Great Northern?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think that would be controlled largely by the prevailing conditions at the time that commodity was to move.

Commissioner PROUTY. Both of those roads could take it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

2537 Commissioner PROUTY. And both would probably be competitive for it. Don't you think that out of that competition the cotton grower would be likely to get a better rate to Japan than if you owned both roads, or Mr. Hill owned both roads?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think if Mr. Hill, myself, or any other man owned all of the railroads that they would get a very much better rate than they would if they were separate.

Commissioner PROUTY. Why?

Mr. HARRIMAN. For the reason that the conditions prevailing on each line could be taken advantage of in favor of a par-2538 ticular shipment. We have often had conditions where we could induce the shipment of cotton or any other commodity where we have a prevailing movement of empty cars one way or the other; and with a freer hand I believe the railroads could increase the movement of commodities from one part of the country to the other, to Japan, or any other foreign country, if we had less restriction and could have more elasticity than is now given them in the matter of giving rates at any particular time.

Commissioner PROUTY. Just assume, for instance——

2539 Mr. HARRIMAN. One moment, please. I think Mr. Hill explained that yesterday: that commodities of the Northwest have to be moved to points on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad; they have to be moved to points on the Union Pacific Railroad, and the prevailing movement of empty cars the other way would influence the rate at any particular time, which could be given to cotton or to anything else.

Commissioner PROUTY. Take cotton. Suppose you owned all of the transcontinental roads, so that a man could not get his cotton across the country unless it went by your road; why 2540 would you reduce his rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Because it would be to our interest to make such a rate as would induce the movement of that commodity.

Commissioner PROUTY. If by reducing the rate you could increase the movement or volume, it would be to your interest to reduce the rate and you would reduce it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Commissioner PROUTY. Unless you could increase the volume of traffic, you would not reduce the rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It would not move. The same principle 2541 that would induce the rate that was made on the first bale of cotton would influence the rate which was made on a million bales of cotton. You would have to make a rate in the first instance that would enable the producer to ship his commodity.

Commissioner PROUTY. So you do not think, Mr. Harriman, that competition between different lines would reduce the rate on cotton—competition itself?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think it is only temporary.

Commissioner PROUTY. I will take another illustration that you may know something about; I guess you do. Take the 2542 movement of grain from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic seaboard. Some years ago this Commission made an order—before I came on it—that corn should be transported from the Mississippi River to New York for 17 cents per hundred pounds, and the railroads of this country said it was confiscatory. Four years ago, in the winter time, when there was no competition by water, there was a published rate in effect from the Mississippi River to New York of 13½ cents per hundred pounds, and we had an investigation to determine why that rate was 13½ cents, and every railroad man that testified on that occasion 2543 testified that there were no market conditions abroad that required it—that it was entirely competition between rail lines.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Who benefited by it?

Commissioner PROUTY. I am not asking who benefited by it.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I can not account for the inequalities or stupidity in railroad management.

Commissioner PROUTY. I am not asking about stupidity. I am talking about the rate. What was it that reduced that rate to 13½ cents if it was not railroad competition?

Mr. HARRIMAN. May I ask you another question? Did the 2544 rate stay at that point?

Commissioner PROUTY. The rate stayed a great deal lower than it had been before.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I confess that there are matters in railroad management which I can not understand. I do not pretend to be an expert traffic man; but I know what the shipper wants and the railroad wants is stability, and that there are special instances, such as you cite now, where there are reductions in 2545 rates because of the then specially existing condition. Now, if we could, as I said before, have a little elasticity—there may have been in that instance, I do not know, a movement of empty cars east bound which enabled them to take the commodity at that rate you named. I do not know what the conditions were at that time, but that might have been the influence of one railroad.

Commissioner PROUTY. Those conditions prevailed for two or three winters.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Every year when the lake is frozen 2546 up the rates go up on the railroads, I understand, and when the lake is open the rates go down. That must be the influence of competition.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Is it not a fact that there is a larger volume moving in any event during the time of navigation than there is after navigation is closed? That enables them to make a more attractive rate.

Commissioner PROUTY. You have said, and repeatedly, that the railroad was interested and the public was interested in having these systems developed and put into first-rate shape.
2547 That is undoubtedly true. That is because the public is interested in the rate at which merchandise finally moves, is it not?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; not only in the rate, but in the facilities furnished and the regularity of movement as much as in the rate. There is no advantage to a shipper if he is shipping his goods at a favorable rate if he is not well assured that that particular commodity will reach its destination within a reasonable time.

Commissioner PROUTY. If your rate from here to Denver was 5 cents higher than rates by other lines, how much stuff do 2548 you think you would ship?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think that 5 cents is a little out of proportion. We might get a little more if we had better facilities, but 5 cents is out of proportion.

Commissioner PROUTY. You know, Mr. Harriman, that competing rates have to be practically the same between the same points. You do not rely on facilities to enable you to secure a better freight rate, do you, ordinarily?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; but what I have been trying to illustrate is that by having better facilities and more economical 2549 methods for transporting our business that we would be enabled to make better rates; but if we have destructive competition and irregular rates we will not be able—as it has been in the past—we will not be able to give the facilities to continue the increase in the volume of business all over the country.

Commissioner PROUTY. Is not the thing in which the public is ultimately interested the rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; not absolutely.

Commissioner PROUTY. Well, pretty near.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not pretty near. 2550

Commissioner PROUTY. Do you think you can charge a higher rate than your competitor, no matter what facilities are?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think there are certain conditions. One manufacturer can give better goods and get a higher price.

Commissioner PROUTY. If the public is interested along with you in rates and facilities, why should not the public have some voice in determining and supervising the rates?

Mr. HARRIMAN. They have. They practically make it.

Commissioner PROUTY. What do you mean?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Apparently a shipper in the past has been 2551 able to make the rate.

Commissioner PROUTY. Name some rate.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know. I am not a traffic man.

Commissioner PROUTY. Mr. Stubbs is.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Don't I understand, as it exists to-day, that if any unequal condition that exists any shipper can make a complaint and have his case brought before a court to adjudicate the same at the expense of the railroad against whom the complaint is made? Am I not right?

Commissioner PROUTY. I won't undertake to answer that 2552 question. But I would like to have you do this: I would like to have you consult your attorneys and file as a part of your examination here a reference to some case in which a court has rendered a final judgment correcting a rate, a discriminating rate. I do not speak of those States in which there is a commission which has power to fix rates, but I speak of interstate rates of vital importance to the public, and rates in those States where there is no commission with power to fix rates. I would like to have you file a reference to some one case of that sort.

2553 Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know of any that has been brought. I am asking you. I am not as familiar with that as you are.

Commissioner PROUTY. I think as you do with reference to a part of this question, that unless these consolidations and unifications result in the overcapitalization of our railroads they are good for the country and a good thing for the carriers. I think that they may result in imposing on the public, and have resulted in some cases in imposing upon the public, an unjust rate.

Mr. HARRIMAN. May I ask you——

2554 Commissioner PROUTY. Just a minute. I think the public ought to have some means by which a shipper can complain, and by which, if his complaint is found to be reasonable, he could get relief. I do not think he has any such relief now.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Do you know of any special case where you fear that there may be some discrimination or some hardship?

Commissioner PROUTY. I do not think that the discrimination between shippers is so likely to take place after consolidation as before. I think the hardship is likely to come from the 2555 charging of too high a rate.

Mr. HARRIMAN. It has not in the past.

Commissioner PROUTY. I am not quite certain about that.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Can you give me an instance.

Commissioner PROUTY. I will give you an instance without saying whether it is in point or not. The actual rates from Buffalo to New York for three or four years had been on corn 2¾ cents a bushel, something higher on wheat. Two years ago you organized up there, or the railroads organized up there, what is called the Buffalo Grain Pool, and the sworn testimony 2556 before this Commission is that that pool absolutely eliminates competition on ex-lake grain from Buffalo to New York, and that its effect has been to raise rates from one-half to 1 cent a bushel, which amounts on all grain moving through Buffalo in a year to a million and a half dollars. The rate is that much higher without competition than it was with competition. I do not say it is unreasonable.

Mr. HARRIMAN. You do not say it is unreasonable?

Commissioner PROUTY. I do not express any opinion about it.

Mr. HARRIMAN. You do not ask me to? 2557

Commissioner PROUTY. No; I do not ask you to.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there anything further you desire to ask, Mr. Day?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir; you said when my examination was broken that you got part cash and part stock for the sale of the $78,000,000 of Northern Pacific stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Part cash and part securities.

Mr. DAY. What became of the cash?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It was used to pay the obligations of the Oregon Short Line—money which they had borrowed to pay 2558 for the Northern Pacific.

Mr. DAY. And none of it went back into the treasury?

Mr. HARRIMAN. The treasury of the Oregon Short Line and was used——

Mr. DAY. Used to pay any of the $61,000,000 or the securities, certificates, or obligations of the Short Line that had been put out to raise these $78,000,000?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Had that been reduced? I think not.

Mr. DAY. You said that the subsequent management of the Northern Pacific showed that subsequent to the election of the new board of directors that you were right—that the Union 2559 Pacific interests were right—in turning the property over to the stockholder, Mr. Morgan. What did you mean by the subsequent management of the Northern Pacific that justified your action?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Perhaps the subsequent management might have been the continuation of the same management.

Mr. DAY. Is that what you meant?

Mr. HARRIMAN. That is what it was.

Mr. DAY. Has any agreement been made, or any understanding been entered into, regarding a division of trans-Pacific 2560 traffic between the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Or between the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific and the Atchison?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Or with the Northern Pacific or Great Northern or the Canadian Pacific?

2561 Mr. HARRIMAN. Not that I know of.

Mr. DAY. You are not a party to it, and have no knowledge of it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I have no cognizance of it.

Mr. DAY. Has there been any change in the routing of traffic or regarding rates, division of traffic, or pooling of traffic, since you assumed the management of the Union Pacific system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. DAY. The Union Pacific is just as independent and is 2562 operated just as independently of the Southern Pacific as before the union of interests?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know of any instance where there has been any change.

Mr. DAY. And the same is true of the Union Pacific and competing lines to the northward? They are just as independent of each other as they were prior to this union of interests?

Mr. HARRIMAN. There has not been any union of interests.

Mr. DAY. Whatever results from the interlacing of stock.

Mr. HARRIMAN. So far as I know, the relations of the com-2563 panies are on the same basis as before.

Mr. DAY. Does the Union Pacific stand in a better position to get traffic that formerly went by the Southern Pacific? Does it now?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think so.

Mr. DAY. The Southern Pacific is not used to—or the traffic is not diverted from the Southern Pacific to the Union Pacific proper?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. Nor vice versa?

2564 Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

Mr. DAY. That is all I wish to ask.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Harriman, about when did your connection with the Union Pacific system begin?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Just after the reorganization, I think, in 1898.

The CHAIRMAN. You at that time acquired a large interest and became the chief executive officer?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; I became a member of the board of directors and a member of the executive committee. I was made chairman of the executive committee and preside at meet- 2565 ings of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. And that is the relation which you have since sustained to that system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. And that relation has been practically the same from the time of the reorganization down to the present?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Down to the present time.

The CHAIRMAN. And that was, of course, before the acquisition of any of the Southern Pacific stock by the Union Pacific? 2566

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. At the time the Union Pacific began to acquire stock of the Southern Pacific, had you individually any interest in the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. You had not been connected as a stockholder or otherwise with the Southern Pacific system?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Not as an officer in any way. I might have had an interest in Southern Pacific stock at some time, but I do not remember that I had. If so, it was so small as not to 2567 have had any influence at all.

The CHAIRMAN. You have had to do with deciding upon the policy of the Southern Pacific after acquiring that large interest in the Southern Pacific which was acquired?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Your testimony may have covered the point I have in mind in a general way, but I desire to ask you what was the direct purpose in acquiring that interest in Southern Pacific stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. To prevent its control by some other line 2568 that might have diverted the business into other channels against the Union Pacific system.

The CHAIRMAN. Had you reason to apprehend that the Southern Pacific might fall into such unfriendly hands?

Mr. HARRIMAN. It might have. We had no reason to suppose that any other company were acquiring it, but it was not advisable for us to wait until somebody else moved.

The CHAIRMAN. You were not moved by immediate apprehension or by knowledge of efforts being made on the part of others?

2569 Mr. HARRIMAN. As you remember, the principal holder of Southern Pacific stock had recently died, and there was a chance always of that stock being disposed of to some interest that might have been adverse to and prevented the free interchange which had formerly existed between the two companies.

The CHAIRMAN. It was on general grounds and for the future prosperity of the Union Pacific road?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; and we believed for the future prosperity of the Southern Pacific.

The CHAIRMAN. And that was the sole inducement on the 2570 part of the Union Pacific to acquire this large interest in the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir; to preserve the then existing conditions.

The CHAIRMAN. The Southern Pacific at that time owned the line from San Francisco to Ogden?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. The Union Pacific and its connections could not reach the Pacific coast over its own rails except at Portland?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Well, it does not now. It could by build-2571 ing a railroad.

The CHAIRMAN. Except as it controls the Southern Pacific.

Mr. HARRIMAN. That is all.

The CHAIRMAN. Before you acquired control in the management of the Southern Pacific you could not reach by your own rails the Pacific coast at any point south of Portland?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No more than we do now.

The CHAIRMAN. So that all transcontinental traffic which reached the Pacific coast at points south of Portland, passing over the Union Pacific, had to go from Ogden on the Southern 2572 Pacific rails?

Mr. HARRIMAN. There was no other way provided for it then; naturally it must, no matter who owned it.

The CHAIRMAN. Did that give the Southern Pacific the position which enabled it to control transcontinental rates upon the Union Pacific route?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think not.

The CHAIRMAN. Then, is the present control of the Union Pacific system over transcontinental rates by the Union Pacific route no greater than it was before the Union Pacific acquired 2573 this interest in the Southern Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think not. Understand me; I have already explained that in these matters the traffic officers and executive officers of the various companies have to be communicated with and——

The CHAIRMAN. I understand that.

Mr. HARRIMAN. All has to be done by conference with the managers of those various lines, the same as it had to be before, to arrange the divisions.

The CHAIRMAN. In point of fact, Mr. Harriman, has there 2574 been any change in transcontinental rates since this acquisition by the Union Pacific of Southern Pacific stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I understand that Mr. Stubbs was on the stand yesterday. I did not hear his testimony and I have not had any conference with him, and he would be the proper one to answer that.

The CHAIRMAN. You do not know?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. You do not know of any change?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; I do not. 2575

The CHAIRMAN. Either by increase or reduction?

Mr. HARRIMAN. In any way whatever.

The CHAIRMAN. Is it your understanding that your rates and basis of rates to-day are the same as they were before the Union Pacific acquired the interest in Southern Pacific stock?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know of any change whatever.

Commissioner PROUTY. How about the maintenance of rates? Are rates better maintained or not so well maintained as they were?

Mr. HARRIMAN. As between the transcontinental routes, do 2576 you mean?

Commissioner PROUTY. Transcontinental rates.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not know of any change whatever.

Commissioner PROUTY. I did not understand exactly what Mr. Stubbs's duties were. He is the traffic director of these two companies. Has he power to do anything except to tell somebody what he thinks had better be done?

Mr. HARRIMAN. He has the power, as far as possible, to 2577 unify the management of the different officers by conference with the officers of these various companies.

Commissioner PROUTY. Suppose Mr. Stubbs thinks some rate ought to be changed on the Southern Pacific system, has he any power to change it?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I think Mr. Stubbs's influence on the Southern Pacific could enable him to change it. He has no power, as I understand it, to issue a tariff. There is a traffic manager of the Southern Pacific.

Commissioner PROUTY. You think, then, if Mr. Stubbs's 2578 reasons were sufficiently cogent, he could influence the traffic manager to change the rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Commissioner PROUTY. On the Union Pacific, is that the same?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Yes, sir.

Commissioner PROUTY. Practically Mr. Stubbs can make the rates on the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I should think he could.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Mr. Stubbs told us yesterday that 2579 these roads, and probably all the transcontinental roads, had a joint agency at San Francisco, or that there was an understanding in practice whereby no one would reduce a rate except through this joint agency after notice to competing lines. Don't you think that tends to hold up rates?

Mr. HARRIMAN. To keep rates stable.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Don't it tend to prevent reduction of the published rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not think it does. I do not know what Mr. Stubbs testified to, but whatever his testimony was, I 2580 think he ought to be questioned on it. I am not familiar with those details of traffic matters, but Mr. Stubbs's general powers are that he shall have the general supervision, in cooperation with the managers, of the various lines.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. You have asked us some questions, one of which was whether we believe there were any unreasonable rates, and also in respect to the effect of association in regard to the raising of rates and keeping rates up. Now, it is a pretty well-known fact, I suppose, in New York and throughout the country, that about two years ago, when the volume of 2581 traffic began to grow immensely, after the depression, that the carriers, particularly in trunk-line territory, got together and through their classification committee raised hundreds of articles from one class to another. They took articles of great importance out of the commodity list and put them at a higher rate in the class list. It effected something like eight or ten hundred changes by one paper that was issued, 90 per cent of which, or more, perhaps, were increases, and some of which were increases in the rates over what they had been for fifteen years previous to that—an average increase on the whole of the arti- 2582 cles changed was about 33 per cent. That was done by a representative committee of some sixty-odd roads which adopted the classification. I call that to your attention as an illustration of what can be done by cooperation, community of interest, or joint interest, or common interest of the carriers, when they get together to prevent competition and get a better rate.

Now, laying aside for the time being the question of whether the rate was too low before or not, the shipper under the law is declared to have the right to a reasonable rate. Must he look always to the judgment or discretion or generosity or conscience 2583 of the railroad manager in order to get his just rate? If in the present state of the law competition is to be eliminated in this way, will he not be left entirely to that tribunal to get his rate?

Mr. HARRIMAN. I do not understand that he is at present left to that tribunal, if there is such a tribunal. But it seems to me that if that rearrangement of the various commodities was made and there has been no evidence of any dissatisfaction, that in itself is evidence that it was reasonable.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. There was a multitude of complaints brought before the Commission, five or six hundred, by 2584 wire and letter, and by all known means of communication, and several formal complaints have grown out of it since.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Are they still in process of being adjudicated?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. They are in process of adjudication.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Are they going to be adjudicated?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. The Commission will report upon them when they are finally argued. These cases are tedious, 2585 and voluminous testimony has been taken, and at various times. All of this suggests that if there is to be any remedy for the public against the exaction of unreasonably high rates the shipper must have the rate before he ships, because the merchant and business man—I think you will agree with me—can not very well conduct his business on rates which he must pay, and then take his chances of getting a part of it back by some process in court, which would require perhaps a suit on each transaction, and the amount involved would not pay for the suit; it is cheaper for him to lose it than to try to get it back.

2586 Mr. HARRIMAN. As I understand, the railroad in that case has to bear the expense of the suit.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. If he gets judgment, the company would.

Mr. HARRIMAN. I understand, whether or no, the expense of that suit has to be provided by the railroad complained against.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. That is not the law, that I know of.

Commissioner PROUTY. Where will that suit be brought?

Mr. HARRIMAN. Now you are getting me into a tangle of 2587 things that I do not know about. I am attending to the every-day matters of these corporations that come before me.

Commissioner PROUTY. You are looking after the railroad interest and letting somebody else look after the public interest?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No; I am looking after the public interest too, because they are both common.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. There is a difference between the rate that traffic will bear and the rate that is reasonable. In answer to a question this morning you said it would not do to make a rate too high; that the traffic would not move; that you 2588 would not get the business. It will move at a high rate sometimes, perhaps, because it is of no value unless it does move, provided there is something left the shipper after he pays the rate; but that would not be the measure of the reasonableness of the rate. It was said by Mr. Hill at some time—I do not know whether in this investigation or not—that the increase of 1 mill per ton per mile—it seems very little—would aggregate to the roads of the country $165,000,000 and take from the public $165,000,000, at a mill a ton.

Mr. DAY. Per mile? 2589

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Per mile.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Or 1 cent for moving 1 ton 10 miles. It is a little plainer to understand.

Commissioner CLEMENTS. $165,000,000 is a great deal of money, and yet that would not seem like a very great increase in the rate per ton per mile. It illustrates the extent to which a little stiffening up of the rates by diminution of competition may bring about a very great result in dollars and cents.

Mr. HARRIMAN. Would not the reverse of that be a fact if 2590 the rate were reduced a mill or 1 cent for moving a ton 10 miles?

Commissioner CLEMENTS. Undoubtedly.

Mr. HARRIMAN. It only shows, it seems to me, how the management of these railroads has become refined down to such a fine point, and that they have got to a point where they have got to have some method of preserving their existence. In other words, the manufacturer to-day is dependent upon the railroads as his principal customer. I undertake to say that the increase in volume of business this year is largely because of the im- 2591 provement and additions to the railroad properties as they exist to-day, and the rates that are made are made sometimes as against themselves.

The CHAIRMAN. Have you any further questions, Mr. Day?

Mr. DAY. I have nothing more.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Harriman, do you wish to make any further statement?

Mr. HARRIMAN. No, sir; except to thank the Commission for excusing me in time to catch my train. 2592

Witness excused.

ORIGINAL TESTIMONY TAKEN BY COMPLAINANT.

Mr. RICHARDS: I would like to have Colonel Clough sworn.

W. P. CLOUGH, called as a witness on behalf of the complainant, being duly sworn by the examiner, testified as follows:

Examined by Mr. RICHARDS:

Q. Colonel Clough, what position do you hold in the Northern Securities Company?

2593 A. Fourth vice-president, general counsel, a director, and a member of the executive committee.

Q. You have taken an active part in the management of the affairs of the company since its organization?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the answer of the Northern Securities Company it is stated that that company has purchased and had transferred to it five-twelfths of the capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company and has negotiated for four-twelfths of the capital stock of that company. I should like to have you explain what 2594 is meant by the term "negotiated for" and what is the present status of that stock.

A. The total authorized capital stock of the Great Northern Railway Company is 1,250,000 shares of $100 each, of which 1,238,804 shares are outstanding. I am giving this in a way so as to make it as comprehensive as possible. Of the outstanding shares, the Northern Securities Company up to this date has purchased and paid for and had transferred into its own name on the transfer books of the Great Northern Railway Company 528,672 shares. It has also purchased and paid for, but has 2595 not had transferred into its own name on the transfer books of the Great Northern Railway Company, 458,017 additional shares. These latter shares stand on the stock books of the Great Northern Railway Company in names other than that of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Now, when you say that these shares that have been purchased, but not yet transferred, stand in the names of persons other than Northern Securities Company, do you mean persons named and chosen by the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

2596 Q. The Northern Securities Company, then, if I understand you, has substantially as complete ownership and as full control over the shares of stock not transferred as over the shares transferred?

A. I think I have stated the facts, and the other matter is one of mere inference.

Q. Those shares could not be voted except by the acquiescence or consent of the Northern Securities Company, could they?

A. They could be voted by the persons in whose names they 2597 stand. No other person except those in whose names the stock stands could vote them either in person or by proxy. It is likely that any request by the Northern Securities Company to these persons would be complied with in regard to the votes, if any, which they might cast upon this stock.

Q. These persons hold the stock, then, virtually as trustees for the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The complete equitable ownership is in the Northern Securities Company? 2598

A. I presume that would be so. However, that is a question of law, in a sense, to be determined upon a consideration of the provisions of the charter and by-laws of the Great Northern Railway Company.

Q. At what time, Colonel, did the Northern Securities Company first have shares of stock in the Great Northern, which it had purchased and paid for, withheld from transfer and placed in the hands of individuals in this way?

A. I don't remember now the precise date of the first transaction of that character, but it was some time last winter or early 2599 in the spring, as the stock was offered for sale to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Wasn't it, Colonel, some time early in the spring?

A. I don't remember the date now, but if desired I could get the date of the first transaction of that character.

Q. I wish you would get the date of the first transaction.

A. I will do so and hand it to you or to the stenographer.

Note by the Examiner: The witness has accordingly advised the Examiner that the date of the first transaction above referred to is December 11, 1901. 2600

Q. And also let us know how much stock of the Great Northern Railway Company had been transferred—purchased by and transferred to the Northern Securities Company at the time this first stock was not transferred, although purchased. Do you understand my question?

A. Yes, sir. My recollection is—subject to correction by looking at the books—that before the purchases of untrans-2601 ferred stock began the purchases of the transferred stock had substantially been completed.

Note by the Examiner: The witness has accordingly advised the Examiner that the number of shares above referred to is 490,833 shares.

Q. Do you know how the change of policy in the handling of the shares of the Great Northern Railway Company came about?

A. In the acquisition of stock not transferred to the Northern Securities Company, that company followed the usage almost, probably quite, universal among large financial institu-2602 tions and dealers in securities in this city, elsewhere and throughout the country, of carrying in names other than its own considerable proportions of its holdings of securities, in order to facilitate the handling of its business and its financial transactions.

Q. And did the necessity of doing that——

A. The desirability.

Q. The desirability of doing it—was that first called to your attention only after you had had transferred five-twelfths of the stock of the Great Northern?

2603 A. We had previously been carrying considerable quantities of Northern Pacific shares in the same way, and it was thought desirable to carry a certain proportion—or some proportion, I will say, instead of a certain proportion—some proportion of Great Northern shares in the same manner.

Q. How much Northern Pacific shares had you been carrying in that way?

A. From a rough recollection thirty-odd million, and at times I think considerably more.

Q. Has that all been transferred to the Northern Securities 2604 now?

A. No, sir; large amounts are still being carried in the names of others.

Q. Can you state what the entire amount is of Northern Pacific that is carried in that way now?

A. As I say, my recollection is that it is more than thirty millions of dollars; that is my recollection.

Q. And how much Northern Pacific has been transferred?

A. My recollection is that it has practically all been transferred now except about twenty millions.

Q. Whether the stock has been transferred or not, the certifi- 2605 cates are in the possession of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Yes, sir; the certificates are in our possession—in the possession of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Were all these certificates paid for by the transfer of stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. What certificates were not?

A. On the 18th day of November, 1901, the Northern Securities Company purchased $37,023,000 of the common stock and $41,085,000 of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific 2606 Railway Company, making a total of $78,108,000 of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in one lot, for which it paid the lump sum of $91,407,500. Of this price the Northern Securities Company paid $8,915,629 in cash and $82,491,871 in its own stock at par. That is one transaction. On the 27th day of December, 1901, the Northern Securities Company purchased from the Northern Pacific Railway Company the convertible bonds, so-called, of the latter company to the amount of $34,709,062.50, for which it paid cash. Within two or three days afterwards, about the 1st of January, 1902, it caused 2607 those bonds to be converted into the new common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, which it has since held. It has also from time to time since purchased small lots of Northern Pacific, for which it has paid cash.

Mr. GROVER. Why not state the total amount of those?

WITNESS. I don't remember. I did not get those figures. They are comparatively small lots that came in from time to time and we paid cash for them. They are not large in the aggregate, but they were small holdings that came in and we bought them and paid cash for them. 2608

Q. From whom did you purchase this large block of common and preferred stock—thirty-seven millions of common and forty-one-odd millions of preferred?

A. That is the block of stock referred to in the testimony of Mr. Steele and Mr. Perkins as having been purchased from E. H. Harriman and Winslow S. Pierce, trustees, and afterwards turned over to the Northern Securities Company.

2609 Q. Who carried on the negotiations for the purchase of that stock from Harriman and Pierce?

A. J. P. Morgan & Co., or some members of that firm. I don't know of my own knowledge which one of them. It appears from the evidence of Mr. Perkins and Mr. Steele that they were the members that conducted the negotiation; that is the source of my information.

Q. Do you know how the price paid for this large block of stock was reached; upon what basis the computation, if any?

A. I have not the slightest idea and have never been able to 2610 form one.

Q. The stock was purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co., and then turned over to you and you carried out the terms?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The purchase as arrived at between J. P. Morgan & Co. and Harriman and Pierce was transferred to the Northern Securities Company, and the Northern Securities Company carried out the sale by direct dealing with Harriman and Pierce on the 18th day of November of last year.

Q. It issued to Harriman and Pierce some eighty-two mil-2611 lions of its own common stock?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And paid them over $8,000,000 in cash?

A. $8,915,629 in cash.

Q. Does the stock of the Northern Securities Company thus issued to Harriman and Pierce still stand in their names?

A. It stands in their names on the books of the securities company. That is the extent of my knowledge about its present ownership.

Q. In what way did you pay the money portion of the con-2612 sideration?

A. The securities company borrowed the funds to make the cash part of the payment on collaterals which it owned and paid Harriman and Pierce from the proceeds of that loan.

Mr. GROVER. By check.

Q. From whom did it borrow the money and on what did it give the check?

A. The money was borrowed from J. P. Morgan & Co.

Q. You gave a check?

A. We gave a check on J. P. Morgan & Co. My recollection 2613 is that the check ran against them.

Q. For that amount?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, as the purchaser of thirty-seven millions of common and of forty-one-odd millions of preferred stock of the Northern Pacific, the Northern Securities Company became entitled to do certain things. It became entitled, in the first place, did it not, to subscribe for convertible bonds?

A. If you will just let me explain that in my own way.

Mr. RICHARDS. Just strike out my question, Mr. Reporter, 2614 and let Colonel Clough go on and complete his statement.

WITNESS. By the terms of the resolutions of the Northern Pacific Railway Company retiring the preferred stock of that company it was provided that the holders of the then existing common stock of that company of record at a certain future day, which I think now was the 10th of December, 1901, would be entitled to subscribe at par for convertible bonds that were to be issued by the Northern Pacific Railway Company in the process of retiring the preferred stock to the amount of 75/80 of their holdings in the existing common stock. All stock that 2615 was transferred on the record of the Northern Pacific Railway Company prior to the date of the closing of the books, which, as I have stated before, as I remember, was on December 10, would carry with it this right of subscription, so that when the Northern Securities Company purchased the Harriman and Pierce stock, common stock, or any other common stock of the Northern Pacific, prior to December 10, with their purchase they got the right of subscription which the resolutions which I have mentioned gave. Now, does that explain it fully?

Q. Yes, that explains that portion of it. Now, as a matter 2616 of computation, 75/80 of 37,000,000 is about 34,000,000, isn't it?

A. Yes, sir; it is about 34,000,000. And I think that the subscription right which the Northern Securities Company exercised was obtained by it almost wholly from its purchase of the thirty-seven and odd millions of the Harriman and Pierce stock. Is that what you want to get at?

Q. That is it.

2617 A. I haven't made the computation. I can make it in a minute, you know.

Q. Now, you have explained the right you acquired by the purchase of the common stock, but you have not explained the right you acquired by the purchase of the preferred stock of forty-one millions. What right did you acquire by that?

A. The right on the 1st day of January, 1902, to have that stock redeemed by the Northern Pacific Railway Company at par in cash.

Q. And was it redeemed at par at that time?

2618 A. It was on the 1st day of January, 1902, all presented to the Northern Pacific Railway Company for retirement and was redeemed at par. The Northern Securities Company received from the Northern Pacific Railway Company on the 1st day of January, 1902, an amount in cash equal to the par of the preferred stock which it turned in.

Q. That amount substantially reimbursed you for those expenditures of cash, didn't it—within one or two million dollars?

A. That is a matter of computation easily made.

Q. Well, it is a fact that the loans you made of J. P. Morgan 2619 & Co. at that time to carry out this transaction were wiped out?

A. No, sir. No, sir; the loans we made from J. P. Morgan & Co. covered some other matters besides.

Q. Some others?

A. Yes, sir; they have since been paid.

Q. They have since been paid?

A. They have since been paid; yes, sir.

Q. Colonel, I don't think I asked you, and I suppose I ought to ask you, who received the dividends on the untransferred stock of the Great Northern Railway Company?

2620 A. All dividends on the untransferred stock which I have mentioned in my previous testimony, accrued and paid after the purchase of the stock by the Northern Securities Company, went into the treasury of the Northern Securities Company either directly or indirectly.

Q. That also applies to Northern Pacific?

A. Also applies to Northern Pacific; yes, sir.

Q. Has there been any election of directors of either the Great Northern or Northern Pacific Companies since the Northern Securities Company purchased the stock?

A. No, sir. 2621

Q. What provision has been made for voting the stock of these two railway companies held and owned by the Northern Securities Company?

A. Nothing except the appointment of proxies, which I stated in my testimony that is already in evidence here.

Q. What is the end of the fiscal year of the Northern Securities Company, according to your regulations?

A. None has yet been adopted, nor has that subject been discussed to any great extent. It has been suggested that the business and calendar year should be made to conform. But 2622 neither the board nor the executive committees has ever had the subject before it.

Q. No annual report of the securities company has yet been prepared?

A. No, sir; but all of its records are at the service of the Government any time they want to inspect them.

Q. When do you have the next annual meeting of the Northern Securities Company?

A. In November.

Q. November 13? 2623

A. I think it is the 10th.

Mr. RICHARDS. That is all I care to ask the Colonel.

The EXAMINER. In connection with Colonel Clough's testimony you recall you asked him for a date he is to supply. How shall that be inserted in the record unless he goes on the stand again?

Mr. GRIGGS. Let it be filled in by consent.

Mr. RICHARDS. It may be put in by consent. Now, that covers substantially all we care to offer, as at present advised. There are a few reports that we might care to produce, reports 2624 that we have not seen yet; and after we examine those, if we care to introduce them, we will hand them in. Under the stipulation and agreement (at least a verbal understanding outside of that entry here) Mr. Harriman was to have the opportunity of going over and making certain corrections in his reported testimony taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission. If he should make material changes which would require explanation, in our opinion, then we would desire to examine him;

2625 but of course the right is reserved in the stipulation to examine any of these witnesses upon doubtful points. Subject to those reservations, we are through now with everything.

Mr. GRIGGS. Mr. Examiner, we are not prepared to go on at the present time, and the fixing of a date and place for resumption of the examination, I think, will have to be postponed till we have a conference with the counsel of the Government to see how far certain matters that he has suggested can be accepted 2626 without formal proof. Perhaps we had better go into the other room and take up that matter now.

(A short recess was here taken.)

Mr. GRIGGS. Mr. Examiner, the counsel of the parties have arranged, subject to your consent, to postpone the further taking of evidence to October 20, at 10 a. m., in the Federal building, St. Paul, Minn.

The EXAMINER. Then, as I understand it, gentlemen, an 2627 adjournment will now be taken until Monday, October 20, 1902, in St. Paul, at 10 o'clock, at the office of the United States district attorney in the Federal building in that city?

Mr. GRIGGS. Yes.

The EXAMINER. And the complainant reserves the right to offer further testimony. Am I right about that?

Mr. RICHARDS. Yes.

The EXAMINER. We will adjourn accordingly, then.

O

MAP(S) IS/ARE TOO LARGE TO BE FILMED

ORDER OF ADJOURNMENT.

OFFICE OF UNITED STATES DISTRICT ATTORNEY,
Federal Building, St. Paul, Minnesota,
Oct. 20, 1902, 10 A. M.

This cause having come on to be heard at this time and place pursuant to adjournment, all parties interested appearing, it was by consent of all parties agreed that the further hearing and taking of testimony in this case be adjourned to the court-room of the United States District Court in and for the District of Minnesota in this building. Thereupon said adjournment was taken and the following proceedings were had.

DEFENDANTS' TESTIMONY.

JAMES J. HILL, called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, being duly sworn by the Examiner, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Young:

Q. You are the president of the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have been such since what time?

A. Since the organization of the company.

Q. Prior to the organization of the Great Northern Company, what corporation owned and operated the railways which I might say formed the nucleus of the Great Northern Railway system?

A. The St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Company owned a portion of them, the main portion.

Q. When was that corporation formed?

A. The corporation was formed under the charter of the St. Paul & Pacific, and was formed in 1879.

Q. That is, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were one of the original proprietors of the Manitoba Company, were you not?

A. Yes, sir.

2632 Q. And at the formation of that company, in 1879, did you become connected with it in an official capacity?

A. Yes, sir, I was active in connection with it both before the re-organization of the St. Paul & Pacific and the formation of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Company, and afterwards as manager, vice president and president.

Q. You became president in 1882, I believe?

A. 1882 or 1883.

Q. As president of the Manitoba Company and of the Great Northern, will you state whether you have been acquainted 2633 with the operation and the policy of those companies, and to what extent you have been concerned in framing and carrying out the policy of the road?

A. The general business of the company, for the first years, was mainly left in my hands. The directors, almost entirely, were non-residents and later lived abroad. The business was left very largely in my hands. The policy of the company, the extension of its lines and the general methods were left with me, necessarily, because the directors were non-residents. Sometimes I felt the responsibility was quite heavy.

Q. Since the formation of the Great Northern Company, 2634 state to what extent you have been concerned with the operation and with the matters of traffic, matters of extension and the general policy of the road.

A. The general policy of the company has been largely, I might say almost entirely, on the lines recommended by me. At the present time we have more of our directors in the West and they visit the road more frequently than was the case formerly, and are better able to advise than were our former directors. The others were excellent, good men. I suppose mainly on account of their financial ability they were connected with the company, when its necessities were great-2635 er than they are now.

Q. What was the mileage of the Manitoba Company when organized in 1879?

A. About 400 miles.

Q. That was situated wholly in the state of Minnesota, was it not?

A. I think when our party (myself and associates) bought the bonds, they had about 380 miles, and we completed 125 or something of that kind, which carried it over 500 miles at the 2636 time of the organization; but under the direction of the United States court we had been working for a year prior to that.

Q. Were those lines wholly in the state of Minnesota?

A. They were all in the state of Minnesota, yes, sir.

Q. At what time did the Manitoba Company begin the construction of its road from Minot, westerly, towards the Pacific coast?

A. In the spring of 1887. During the year 1887 the line was extended from Minot, in North Dakota, to Helena, 2637
Montana,— something over 700 miles, I think.

Q. And when was the line completed to the Coast?

A. In 1893.

Q. In 1893?

A. It was commenced in the fall of 1889, and finished in 1893, probably in January. In 1893 the rails were connected on the Cascade range, and opened for traffic the following June.

Q. This line was built by the Manitoba Company, but was leased and operated by the Great Northern?

A. Yes, sir. It was thought best to have the one ownership 2638 of the main line through to the Coast, and it came under the lease. The Manitoba stockholders preferred it that way, and I suppose they were entitled to say how they would have it.

Q. Before undertaking the construction of the railway to the Coast, to what extent did you acquaint yourself with the character of the country which it traversed and in the neighborhood of the terminus, and the sources from which the road must look for such traffic as it might obtain?

A. I visited and made personal inspection of various lines on the ground, examined the country and the soil, water and climate, and the company spent a very large sum of money in 2639 examining the various locations; practically made examinations enough, from the international boundary line south to the Big Hole river, to enable us to make a model of the Rocky mountains. We spent, I think, over eight hundred thousand dollars in surveys before we did any work at all.

Q. What was your purpose in making such extensive, minute survey?

2640 A. The purpose was to be certain that we built upon the best possible location, that we secured the best line in regard to distance and especially in regard to grades. A great many lines in the older part of the country had been built and rebuilt, and we wanted to avoid that if we could. We wanted, in the first place, to get the best location possible. For instance, I remember something which impressed my mind very strongly. Between Philadelphia and the Alleghany mountains through to Pittsburg, the Pennsylvania was building its road, part of it on the fourth right-of-way. I wanted to avoid that, if I could.

2641 Q. Was there anything in the nature of the traffic which you expected to get, which made you give especial attention to getting low grades?

A. The traffic in that country to be developed—it was all to be developed—must come from the natural resources of the country. It was a country very sparsely populated, and no manufacturers, and likely to be none except in connection with lumbering, mining, possibly milling, and flour manufactured for local consumption and for export on the Pacific coast.

2642 Q. What eastern-bound traffic, then, did you look for and expect to get from the Pacific coast?

A. Well, from the entire line the traffic had to be what the country would produce. From the Pacific coast, the present great item of traffic east-bound is, naturally, the lumber from the forests. They have large forests of very high grade timber.

Q. Is that lumber a product that will bear a high rate for transportation in proportion to its bulk and weight, or is it something that must be carried at a low rate in order to find a market?

2643 A. I remember when I went to the Pacific coast, before our road was built there, the rate on lumber east was 90 cents a hundred pounds, and it was practically prohibitory. I called the representative lumbermen together. They thought a reduction of 25 cents a hundred would enable them to ship their lumber East, and if we could make a rate of 65 cents a hundred they would be able to ship their lumber East. But I remember saying to a gentlemen who was with me at the time, that they could not pay 50 cents, in my judgment, and 2644 move any large amount of lumber. The rate we made was 40 cents a hundred, and that rate has continued, that is, it is the present rate. And that has built up considerable trade, a trade equal, or maybe a little more than equal, at the present time, to the west-bound tonnage. The west-bound tonnage, that is, the local supplies consumed along the line, was at first considerably in excess of the amount eastward, but the east-bound traffic has been very largely developed.

Q. What is the market, the principal market, for this lum- 2645 ber of the Pacific that you haul eastward, what territory?

A. Portions of it go from Washington to Newport News, to Portland, Maine, but the great bulk of it is in the interior of the West, north of the Ohio river and north of St. Louis; you may say through central Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and a good deal used in this state, North Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Montana, Utah, and a great deal goes to California.

Q. In order to give these low rates, which would enable the lumber to be shipped to an eastern market, what was necessary to be done in reference to getting return freights to your western terminus? 2646

A. The rate or any rate that would pay the cost of moving a car from the eastern terminal to the coast, empty, to bring eastward a carload of lumber, would be prohibitory, and I think certainly a rate of 65 cents would be necessary in order to move cars west-bound, empty, for east-bound loads from the Coast; it would be as much as 65, maybe a little more, because the service would be twice—would have to run two train miles to get one loaded train mile.

Q. State whether the Pacific coast and the population reached by your lines there furnished a sufficient market for the commodities which it was necessary for you to carry west- 2647 ward in order to give low rates eastward on your line.

A. At the time the road was completed, and for a short time after, the west-bound merchandise furnished more than enough empty cars to move the lumber east, but within a short time (two or three, or at the most, four years) the lumber trade had grown very rapidly, and the Alaska trade sprang up, and that furnished a larger west-bound movement, in-2648 creased the west-bound movement; Honolulu increased the west-bound movement; and to some extent in 1896, by making very low rates, we were able, for the first time, to take American rails to Japan.

Q. Just a minute, Mr. Hill. I was speaking of the market on the Coast in our country; I am coming to this oriental trade. I will ask you another question.

A. Well, answering the one led to the other. I will answer your question briefly. The market on the Coast, when the road was completed, was more than sufficient to furnish 2649 empty cars to move the lumber east, because the lumber had been moving at 90 cents a hundred, and there was little demand for it and little knowledge of what it was; and by building it up, by seeking markets for it and making a low rate, we developed the lumber trade very fast, faster than the merchandise trade of the people of Washington, even with the addition of Alaska and Honolulu.

Q. What steps did you then take? What markets did you seek for west-bound traffic on the line?

A. Well, we took every step that we thought would result in developing the trade. I sent men to Japan and China and 2650 kept them there, one man for over a year; his business was to get a manifest of every ship that entered or left a Chinese or Japanese port, as far as he could; to find what the exports and the imports of those countries consisted of, and where they went. Afterwards we sent one of our traffic representatives, and kept him there for a time. We also had men in the East, and wherever there was any business or likelihood of business.

Q. Mr. Hill, I wish you would go on now and state in a general way the growth and development of this oriental business and traffic; what steps you took to secure transporta-2651 tion across the Pacific ocean; and also what connection or relation, if any, there was between the building up of this oriental commerce and the purchase of the Burlington road, or the stock of the Burlington road.

A. We found that the lumber supply of the United States east of the Rocky mountains and north of the Ohio river was becoming more and more dependent upon the Washington and Oregon forests, and that the time was rapidly approaching when the states that theretofore furnished the lumber for 2652 that region would not be able to furnish lumber enough to meet their own consumption; as, for instance, Michigan. Michigan furnished for a long time the bulk of the lumber going into the states east of Lake Erie or east of Detroit, and also the large market in Chicago and west of Chicago. I think it is reasonably safe to say that Michigan does not furnish today as much lumber as she consumes. I have given a great deal of attention to that matter, because at the time we considered building the road and when I first went to the Pacific coast, if we could not carry that lumber to market there was absolutely nothing else for us to carry and no use in 2653 building a road there. I felt, after making a thorough examination of the lumber trade of the country, that it was only a question of time when that would be the source from which all the northern lumber would have to be supplied, or practically all; and the result has shown that the time when such will be the case is much shorter than I had anticipated. But in order for that lumber to move, it must be moved at a low rate; and in order to make a low rate you must have a large tonnage, and you must load your cars in both directions. That carried us to investigating the different markets to which we 2654 could send anything that was made in the East. In 1896, in the fall, we had just closed an agreement with the Japanese General Steamship Company to put on a line of through steamers running to our terminal at Seattle, in connection with our road; and the conditions of the contract were such as to enable us to make a rate from the East to the Orient. I remember when those men were present with us. Some of them were interested in securing rails for their railways. I asked them where they were going to get their rails. Well, they thought they would either get Belgian rails or English rails. The Belgian rails would come from Antwerp, the Eng- 2655 lish rails from Middlesboro. I asked them, as they were going to stay here a day or two, to let me see what could be done for American rails. I immediately cabled to my friends in London and got quotations for Antwerp and Middlesboro rails and the best charters to Yokohama. I remember that the rails could be laid down at about $29, the English or Belgian rails. I telegraphed to Chicago. The time was rather a quiet one 2656 in American manufacturers, especially with the rail mills (the Joliet and one or two others were about closing down), three or four weeks before election, and possibly they were a little anxious to keep their mills running. I told them if they would make a rate of $19.50, we would give them a rate of eight dollars a ton—of 40 cents a hundred—from Chicago to Yokohama, which would be $1.50 a ton lower than the English or Belgian quotations. After some hesitation they made the rate and got the contract for 15,000 tons. That is one case. The cotton business: Some Japanese were passing

2657 through. The men I had out there reported the amount of cotton spun in Japan and the fact that the cotton came—the raw cotton—came mainly from India; a short staple cotton, which made an inferior yarn and sold at a low price. I got these gentlemen to try a small shipment of American cotton, with the guaranty, if it did not prove profitable to mix our long staple with their short staple of India, that I would pay for the cotton. The result of that was very satisfactory. The cotton trade has grown very fast, both raw and manufactured, but especially raw cotton. We have chartered ships to run to Honolulu, and make low rates there. The rates we 2658 made and the rates we are making now are very low. We make a rate from Minneapolis to Hong-Kong, or from St. Paul or any part of the state here to Hong-Kong, that would enable them to ship flour, if the Chinamen wanted to use flour or were able to buy it (they are rather poor over there just now, and have to be content with millet, they can't buy flour). In carrying this business forward we were soon brought to a point where we realized that the rates, in order to build the traffic upon a permanent basis, must be permanent, or reasonably so. We found in going to the south for cotton,—Texas cotton going to Galveston, and the Gulf states cotton 2659 going to New Orleans, that it went at different rates, and went from New Orleans to foreign ports at such rates as the ships were inclined to make, according to the supply and demand for tonnage. We found that it was necessary for us, in order to be on a permanent basis, to have more than a joint rate, to have more than a joint tariff, which might be withdrawn at any time. We could not build up a great permanent business, extending across the continent and even across the ocean, on the basis that tomorrow the rate might be 2660 changed or the party with whom we were working to reach the different points of production or consumption had some other interest or some greater interest elsewhere. It was necessary in doing this that we should have some reasonable expectation that we could control the permanency of the rate and that we would be able to reach the markets. In other words, if the man producing lumber on the Coast, or cattle on the ranges, or ore in the mines, could not find a market for it and if we could not take it to a market that would enable him to sell his stuff for a profit, he would have to stop making 2661

it. That was the line we worked upon, and that was the reason we felt called upon to put ourselves in a position where we could control access to the markets for him and access to the production for the west-bound. The Burlington reaches, more than any other road in the country, I think, these particular conditions; I think probably as much as all the other western roads put together.

Q. In that particular, as to the places which it reaches, what are the distinguishing features of the Burlington, as compared with the other roads; what points does it reach?

A. Well, if you will commence in the West, it connects with 2662 the Northern Pacific at Billings; it reaches Denver; it reaches Lincoln and Omaha, Nebraska; coming east to Des Moines and to Burlington, and going south to St. Joe, Kansas City and St. Louis; and then you may commence at St. Louis and it reaches every town between St. Louis and the Twin Cities. It reaches Chicago, Peoria, Galesburg, Aurora—all those large points in Illinois. I had the figures and probably I might be able to find them. It reaches a very large percentage of all the manufacturing interests in the state of Illinois, and Illinois is a large manufacturing state.

Q. What are the principal markets in the West for the cat- 2663 tle that are brought over your line, from the ranges?

A. Well, the principal markets in this country, over all lines, are Omaha, St. Joe, Kansas City and Chicago.

Q. All reached by the Burlington?

A. By the Burlington.

Q. As for this ore from the mines, that is shipped eastward?

2664 A. Well, the Burlington runs to Denver and has connection over some road to Colorado, but Denver and Pueblo are the principal western terminal smelting points.

Q. Omaha?

A. Omaha, Kansas City, Aurora (Illinois), and the Black Hills. I think, outside of the copper smelting in Montana, those points cover three-quarters of the smelting in the United States.

Q. What advantage does the Burlington give you in regard to obtaining cotton for shipment?

2665 A. The Burlington, at St. Louis and Kansas City especially, connects with all the southern railways reaching the cotton fields. To illustrate, Mr. Ripley, President of the Atchison, a few weeks ago told me he found they could make more money loading their cars that went down to Texas and back to St. Louis with cotton than they could in hauling the cotton to San Francisco. They would rather haul it up to St. Louis in the return cars and give it to us and let us take it abroad, because they had to haul the car that took it to San Francisco back empty. They had no lumber to bring back, and we had lumber to bring back, for every car we carried.

2666 So that the question is one that depends on the low rate, on the bulk of the traffic, the density, the amount of the traffic and the ability to load in both directions. It would seem rather strange that we should take cotton from Texas to Puget Sound (I think Puget Sound last year carried 75 per cent of all the cotton that left the Pacific coast, and it is the farthest port from the cotton), but the conditions are such as to enable us to carry it there.

Q. Mr. Hill, when was your first shipment of cotton to Japan, or when did that traffic there begin to be of any consequence; in what year?

2667 A. Well, I would not say whether our first shipment was in 1895 or in 1896. At first it was small. After the Cuban war commenced and the vessels were taken for transports, I remember that it was very much curtailed for want of tonnage. Sometimes within a week we would refuse fifteen or twenty thousand bales, for we had no ships to carry them.

Q. What advantage, if any, did you expect to derive, and have you derived, from the Burlington purchase in regard to 2668

the supply of coal for the country traversed by your line?

A. On the west end we have a local supply of coal. On the east end the coal in the past has come from Pennsylvania, West Virginia mainly, and some from Ohio; but during the season of navigation of 1901-2, and commencing with 1900, the difficulty in getting coal from Pennsylvania mines up to Lake Erie was very great. It was first quite apparent in 1900. In 1901 it was impossible for us to get our full supply of coal. In fact, in both these years the contracting miners were unable to furnish the coal at Lake Erie ports; we had 2669 our own steamers, and could, in an emergency, bring the coal from Lake Erie ports to the head of Lake Superior; we were willing to take it at the head of Lake Superior or at Lake Erie ports, and we were unable in 1900 to get our full supply of coal. We had to bring coal from the south, and bring some of it through all rail, that is, from the east. Last year the situation had grown worse. While the railroads were unable to bring coal for our own consumption, they were also unable to bring it for domestic use, and they were unable to do this because at the same time they were unable to supply the furnaces on their own lines. Furnaces 2670 within a hundred miles of the coke ovens were cold all last winter for the want of fuel, because the railroad companies had absolutely reached the capacity of their facilities. Now, that was, I think, not the capacity of their ability to haul it from one point to another, but they could not move it. I made as close an examination of the general situation as I could, and I came to the conclusion that it was because the business could not be moved at the terminals. It was like the hour-glass—the opening was not large enough to run it through in the time necessary, and that was shown by the fact that the car movement had gone from thirty miles a day to twenty 2671 miles a day in ten years,—the average movement of cars; so they didn't move the cars. This year—1902—the case is much worse, I think. Speaking for the Great Northern Company, at this time we haven't missed a solitary load that we could get, and have kept a man traveling from the mines to the railroad offices trying to get the cars, and we are now well on into October and we have not got half our order of coal 2672 up the lakes. And that applies still more, I understand, to coal for domestic consumption. But that was a matter we saw (and I have spent a great deal of time investigating coal matters; used to be engaged in the coal business; I brought to St. Paul the first coal ever sold here), and naturally the coal supply is an important one, and I felt that unless something were done to secure a supply of coal here in the Northwest there would be a coal famine this winter and no way to avoid it, and every year hereafter it will be greater and greater and no amount of work can avoid it, because the peo-

2673 ple down in the older states, Pennsylvania and Ohio, will see that their own demands are supplied before it comes away out here.

Q. You have been speaking of bituminous coal.

A. Yes, sir, bituminous coal. Anthracite coal is used in the cities, but as long as people have bituminous coal they can live; they can get along without anthracite, and they will be very glad to get bituminous coal before they are done. The coal situation of the Northwest is a very serious one. I think it is one that is very little understood by the public.

Q. Wherein would the purchase of the Burlington shares
2674 which was made, and the control thereby given of the Burlington road, be of benefit to your road and to the country which your road traverses, in helping them to a better supply of bituminous coal for fuel or for domestic use or for manufactures or other purposes?

A. To begin with, the Burlington road has a very low grade down the Mississippi river,—a water grade, 16 feet to the mile, and can carry with a train of properly equipped cars, well designed for the purpose,—a heavy locomotive can carry a modern boat-load on a train.

Q. How does that compare with the capacity of other roads
2675 into the coal fields?

A. I think a Burlington locomotive could haul, for instance, as compared with the Chicago-Northwestern, three times the load; or, to put it in another shape, I am sure that the Northwestern, coming up by way of Madison and Elroy, the Burlington would move a hundred thousand tons of coal with one-third of the train miles necessary on the other line.

Q. What bearing has that capacity of the road to haul so much heavier trains upon its ability to carry at a low rate, 2676 and consequently the furnishing of this country with coal at a reduced price?

A. Coal at a low price is a necessity. The people in the northwest would have to abandon the country for five months in the year if they could not get coal at a reasonable price; and they cannot get it from the East at any reasonable price. The time has come when the East cannot supply us, and then they have to go to St. Louis or the country between us and St. Louis for the supply of coal. You can get some in Iowa. The Iowa coal is not as good as the Illinois coal, and the northern Illinois coal is not as good as that further south. 2677

Q. Perhaps you didn't get my question, Mr. Hill. I am asking what bearing the fact that the Burlington road can carry so much heavier train-loads than other roads, has upon the question of the rate at which it can carry and the price at which the coal can be sold here and in the country traversed by your road?

A. The load it is able to carry determines the rate, and the rate on the coal is more, in any event, than the cost of producing the coal at the mine; the importance of the rate is, therefore, very manifest. It fixes the price at which the 2678 coal can be sold in the Northwest here. And, again, there was a further reason for buying the Burlington, namely, that the coal may be loaded on cars and the situation controlled so that when cars are in demand we may furnish our cars or they may furnish theirs and let the cars go through to their destination in Minnesota or in Dakota without unloading the coal and breaking it. Every time it is handled it interferes with the quality of the coal. The main point, however, is our ability to control the movement of coal at all. We bought, so that we might supply coal, if the coal miners in Illinois were at any time unwilling or unable to supply coal at rea- 2679 sonable prices—we hoped they would always be so willing—but if not, we have, through the Burlington people, bought twenty-five or thirty thousand acres of coal land in the best part of Illinois, and for the purpose of extending or reaching more into the coal fields, the Burlington bought the Jacksonville & St. Louis, about 100 miles.

2680 Q. Whereabouts does the Burlington road reach the coal fields of Illinois, in what part of the state?

A. Well, it reaches the coal fields of Illinois on their northern extremity, and through its lines and this Jacksonville & St. Louis it reaches to the southern limit of the coal field, down at Centralia or southeast of St. Louis.

Q. How extensive an area are those coal fields of Illinois, as compared with others that are reasonably accessible from this point of the country?

A. Well, there are no others reasonably accessible, unless 2681 you may so call the few pockets in Iowa, and they do not begin to supply—I don't imagine they supply 15 per cent of the consumption of the state of Iowa today.

Q. Then, practically, these coal mine fields of Illinois are what we shall have to almost entirely depend upon in the future in this part of the country?

A. They are the nearest by far to this part of the country; and, with the low grade of the Burlington road and the physical conditions under which the business may possibly be done, it will furnish the cheapest and only certain supply of coal that this country can rely upon, unless you are willing 2682 to pay a price that will bring it. If you have money enough you can bring coal here. But I am speaking of bringing coal here in competition with the ordinary markets East and West under the rule that coal is handled. Coal in this country has, in any event, to come a long way.

Q. Mr. Hill, I desire to ask you in regard to the coal fields of the state of Washington.

A. There are large coal fields in Washington.

Q. I will ask you another question: How far east can that coal be profitably carried?

A. The coal fields in Washington would come half way 2683 across that state. They are mainly located on the western coast, or west of the Cascade mountains; they would come half way across the state of Washington, or as far as Spokane Falls. Spokane Falls is about the same distance from here as is Boston—very little difference; so that it could not come in this direction very far. East of there, there is some coal, excellent bituminous coal, in British Columbia. That is 1,300 or 1,400 miles from here, nearly as far as to Spokane Falls.

The coal from east of the Rocky mountains is, much of it, the same class as the Illinois coals, but the distance is twice or twice and a half as far as it is to the Illinois fields, and there is no population there to consume anything that would load these cars back. Now we are working up an iron ore trade with St. Louis. Within the last week we had advices of seventy-five or a hundred thousand tons of iron ore to go, through the winter, from the iron mines of Northern Minnesota to St. Louis. Coming back the cars will be loaded with coal. The fact that the coal has to come north, or that there is coal to come north, makes it possible to make a lower rate on the iron ore, and together the iron ore rate and the coal rate are both affected and are both reduced to the extent that we can load the cars both ways. This is a matter we have had under consideration; this iron matter we have had under consideration maybe for a couple of months, but it has culminated within the last week. We hope that it will reach 300,000 tons before spring. 2684 2685

Q. In reference to shipments of cotton especially, and other articles, what disadvantage was there in its being carried over separate lines under a joint tariff which you do not have, where it is carried with both roads under the same control,— for instance, in the matter of breaking bulk, or anything of that kind, shifting from cars? 2686

A. Well, it is almost a necessity, if business is to be at all permanent, to be able to control the rate. The rates on the high seas vary according to the supply and demand for ships; and we, in order to take this business west, must be in a position to compete to take the traffic, one day with another. The line between here and St. Louis, if the Burlington was not in a position to work with us and to continue to work with us, might find some other connection that would give them a larger division that we could of the rate; they might find or feel that it was their interest to work with somebody else. Maybe they would give them some other business in lieu of this, and we would have to hire some other road to haul that business from St. Louis here, at the best rate we could get. We could not control it except through the option of some other road which might at any time withdraw the rate; might at any time refuse to make a joint rate with us, except on 2687

2688 terms that would be prohibitory. And, in that way, we could not go very far. We would not be in a position to compete for that business. We must either take that business to the Coast—we must take all the west-bound business we can get to the Coast, or else we must advance the rate on the lumber. Now, outside of cotton—take nails, wire, articles of that kind —that business has grown to very large dimensions, but our rate is a very low one. From Lake Erie to Hong-Kong it is 45 cents a hundred, $9 a ton, on those commodities. But the demand for American steel at home makes it almost a matter
2689 of indifference whether they send it or not, and we have to look not only to cotton, but we have to look to anything that will furnish us business going to the west, whether it is going to the Pacific coast or to Alaska, or to Honolulu, or to the Orient or Manila—anywhere; we must try everything. During the season of open water, during the season of navigation, we can make rates from Buffalo and the lower lake ports by way of Lake Superior on our own lines, but that does not reach to the south, and only takes the manufacturing districts south of the lakes during the season of navigation. A line reaching St. Louis and all the trunk lines of the 2690 south and the trunk lines of the east, between St. Louis and Chicago, puts us in a vastly different position; and that is the reason why it was of such importance for us to control the situation. We could not control it without controlling the access to the main centers. We could not control it unless we could give a market for the production of the line—products raised along our road—whether it was out of the mine, from the farm, or out of the forest. If the man who produced it could not sell it, he would stop producing. And that was the problem we had to meet, and with the Burlington we find ourselves able to meet it.

2691 Q. As I understand it, Mr. Hill, by having control of the Burlington, that was obtained by purchase of its stock, freight originating on the Burlington or brought to it is either carried over that line or over yours and the Northern Pacific without changing cars, whereas, if it were the ordinary practice, in the absence of such an arrangement, there would be a change of articles from one car to another or the breaking of bulk. Now, what is gained in that particular by avoiding change of cars? 2692

A. Well, the avoidance of changing cars is a decided advantage, but there is a greater advantage in uniformity of service and cars. For instance, we found ourselves face to face with this condition: our cars are larger than the cars of most of the roads. The cars we use in the Pacific trade, in order to carry a respectable load or a paying load of lumber or cedar, carry a large quantity. We found that the small cars of the Southern and Southwestern lines that come up here would hold, for instance, but little more than half our load. Many of the shipments, parties wanted them to be preserved—car number so and so kept separate, not to be mixed. 2693 One of our cars would hold 185 or 190 bales—

Q. Of cotton?

A. Yes, or 160 bales; and we found cars from connecting lines coming in with ninety bales. We could not put two into one; and one of their cars would only a little more than load half of the capacity of our cars. That would make us haul practically empty cars over the road. By controlling the situation we could send Great Northern cars to St. Louis and load them there, if the Burlington cars were not large enough, 2694 or we could transfer them here, because we are in a position to say what we wanted done.

Q. Mr. Hill, to what extent do the conditions that you have said surrounded the Great Northern Company and had to be met—to what extent did these same conditions affect the Northern Pacific Railroad Company?

A. The conditions that would affect the Great Northern would, to a very large extent, affect the Northern Pacific, in a similar way. I would be unable to give the figures as to the effect on the Northern Pacific, but they would be very easily arrived at, as they would on the Great Northern. Except 2695 in the matter of coal, I happen to know that they are about in the same position for their supply of coal from the lakes that we are. They have got possibly a little less than half of their coal purchase for the year, and I think there is practically no soft coal on the docks at Lake Superior to supply the domestic use of the Northwest.

2696 Q. And as to the general traffic of the roads in the country traversed by them, the business afforded by that country and by the country at their terminals, state whether or not the roads are substantially in the same condition?

A. What would affect us would affect them in the same way, as applied to the same business, naturally.

Q. And is their business, to and from the Coast, and their other business such as to put them in the same position with you in regard to the need of such purchase as that of the Burlington?

2697 A. I think entirely so, and in fact I know that that is the case. Both the Northern Pacific and ourselves, as far as that business was concerned, would have to limit the eastward movement or else increase the westward movement in order to furnish the facilities. In order to do that we have got to compete with the Suez canal; we have got to compete with anything that floats on the high seas; and it is a big undertaking, but we are doing it, and doing it successfully.

Q. With what line of transportation does your route, say from St. Paul to China and Japan, compete at the Oriental points which you reach, speaking generally?

2698 A. We compete with not only lines of transportation, but with markets. We compete with goods. The goods are counted at their value laid down there, and the competition extends all the way though from the production, the transportation, the cost of laying them down.

Q. With what lines? In other words, from what countries?

A. Germany, Great Britain, as far as the production and transportation; with transportation alone, Norway and Sweden; they do not produce so much, but they furnish a great deal of cheap transportation. And we compete, of course, 2699 with lines across the American continent, the Isthmus, the Panama route. It is hardly called competition, because the Suez canal is so much more effective that our competition with the Suez canal leaves the Panama route practically out of the question. The other is much more serious. And the rail transportation; take, for instance, traffic going from anywhere in Ohio (Ohio is a large manufacturing state) to go by Suez canal it would have to go down to the seaboard. The same thing from Scranton or from Bethlehem, Pa., or from Pitts- 2700 burg or Harrisburg; have to go down to the seaboard to take the ship, and the same miles of transportation would carry it, if it was a season when corn—grain—is moving east from Chicago, would carry it in an empty car out to Chicago, and we could take it there and carry it to the Pacific coast, rather than haul a car empty when we were going to bring that car back to Chicago loaded with lumber. In that way we make rates against the high seas.

Q. What lines are there on the—

A. Well, now, you ask me questions as to what lines. I 2701 was thinking of the larger competition. Then you come to the Southern Pacific and the Atchison and the Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, ourselves and the Canadian Pacific. Those are the principal competing lines across the continent. Some of the lines reach out as far as Salt Lake and have various connections there. May be other lines built. They have one now, I think, under construction from somewhere in southern California up towards Salt Lake. We are not sure they will continue to compete for the business. They may. We are entirely satisfied that they should. But whether they are able to compete for this traffic or not, we will be able to compete 2702 for it as long as we have a carload of freight on the Pacific coast waiting to come back; we can certainly afford to haul at a low rate to the Pacific coast, and we will be able to compete for it for a long time, and we will carry that traffic whether the others carry it or not. We are not competing with them; we are competing with the conditions that are made applicable through the Suez canal and through any possible route to get it to the Orient. We have to meet whatever the conditions are, or else not do it.

Q. Mr. Hill, I omitted to ask you, when I was inquiring about the steps you took to develop this Oriental traffic, in 2703 reference to the causing of construction of some ships for that purpose, for that business.

A. A few years ago—say three years ago this fall—we found ourselves entirely unable to get tonnage to carry the business going west. We had to refuse thousands and tens of thousands of bales of cotton. I think we refused between 2704 August and January fifty or sixty thousand bales of cotton because we could not get the tonnage.

Mr. Griggs. That is, cotton intended for Asia?

Witness. Yes, sir. And we started to build our own ships, and they are about ready to go into the water; the first should be launched in December.

Q. How do those ships compare in size with vessels in ordinary use—freight steamers?

A. They are the largest now afloat, I think, except the Celtic.

2705 Q. What is her tonnage, do you know?

A. About 18,000. The tonnage of our steamships is 28,000—about 10,000 greater than the largest afloat.

Q. Those are to ply between your terminus and Oriental ports?

A. Yes, sir. There are now two 18,000 ton ships belonging to the Boston Company, running from the Pacific coast—new ones, built at Sparrow's Point, making their first trip.

Q. Mr. Hill, are you able to state the comparative growth of that Oriental traffic since its inception up to this time?

A. The growth has been very rapid. In some commodities 2706 more rapid than in others. Last year the increase was very large in cotton goods, both raw and manufactured, and in machinery; and in some other commodities it fell off. The oil, I think, was considerably reduced. The Batoum oil, by some arrangement with the American reducers, had that market largely, and we do not carry the oil we did.

Q. Taking the aggregate of the traffic, the total amount of it—

A. Well, I should say the year ending June 30, 1902, the business was more than twice as great as it was the previous year, ending June, 1901. We were in better position to do the 2707 business.

Q. Can you give us the quantity of cotton, in raw cotton or piece goods, that was carried in 1901 and 1902?

A. I can give it to you exactly, by the Great Northern.

Q. Yes, by the Great Northern we are speaking of.

A. In 1901 the amount of cotton piece goods was 13,070 bales; 1902, 64,542 bales. Raw cotton in 1901 was 13,230,000 pounds against 41,243,000 pounds the next year.

2708

At 12:35, the hearing was adjourned until 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The witness, James J. Hill, was recalled, and his direct examination resumed as follows:

By Mr. Young:

Q. What is the purpose and advantage of making those steamships of so large a size as you have testified to, rather than making more of them of a smaller size?

2709

A. They are built in a very substantial way, and we felt it was necessary to go as far as we did in the most modern construction and to carry the largest load, in order that we might be able to make a low rate. We carry the cargo of five ordinary freight steamers with one crew, in place of five crews.

Q. That is, then, it was in pursuance of your policy of carrying a large volume of traffic at the lowest rate?

A. Yes, sir. The problem we have to meet is, in any event, a difficult one. We have to compete with the transportation of the whole world, and we cannot afford to do anything except the best that we can possibly devise.

2710

Q. In the purchase of the shares of the Burlington road, was there any purpose or intention on your part, or so far as you know on the part of either of the Railway Companies or those connected with them, to restrain or hinder commerce between the states or among the states or with foreign nations?

A. That, I am sure, never occurred to us. The object was exactly the opposite.

Q. What, if any, has been the effect of that purchase upon commerce between the states and with foreign nations? Has it restrained it, or otherwise?

2711

A. It has very greatly increased it. It has increased it more rapidly than I ever have known commerce of the same extent to be increased in my forty years' experience.

Q. In the same time?

A. In the same time. It has only been in effect practically a year, and in that year the business has more than doubled on the Great Northern Railway.

2712 Q. What has been its effect on the local business of the road?

A. The increased tonnage eastbound, growing out of the increased tonnage westbound, has very largely increased the total tonnage. I think the total tonnage on the Great Northern Railway for the last year—the annual report will give the figures accurately—I think the increase is about 33 per cent. The foreign business has increased over 100 per cent, which is a very unusual increase in one year. And the effect of that, the increase of the entire business, has made a large increase in the revenue of the company.

2713 Q. And what effect has that had in enabling you to reduce rates?

A. We have been able to reduce rates from ten to fifteen per cent in a year on the local business, between the Pacific Coast and the Twin Cities and Lake Superior. When I say ten to fifteen per cent I speak of business in a general way, and that is very nearly the actual reduction.

Q. What has been the effect of the Burlington purchase on the business of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, as far as you know?

2714 A. Well, I can only testify as to that matter in a general way. The same conditions would affect their road that affect the Great Northern and in the same way, because they are doing the same general business. Their rates have also been reduced, and their revenue has been such as to enable them to make this reduction, without any reduction in their dividends.

Q. Have they also had a largely increased volume of traffic following the purchase of the Burlington shares?

A. Yes, sir; very large.

Q. What, in your judgment, will be the future effect of this 2715 common ownership of the Burlington shares upon the interstate and international traffic of the two companies? Will it tend to restrain the trade of the companies or to increase it?

A. To carry out the policy that has been uppermost in our minds from the time when we built the road, the general plan and purpose in building the road, building with low grade and in arranging for the business, if carried out will very materially increase the business, increase the tons moved and enable the company to move the tonnage at lower rates, both inter- 2716 state and state, foreign and domestic.

Q. At the time of the purchase of the Burlington shares, was there any purpose or intention to restrain or hinder the traffic of the Burlington road itself,—interstate traffic?

A. No, sir; none whatever.

Q. What has been the effect of that purchase upon the traffic of the Burlington road? Has it hindered it, restrained it, or has it increased it?

A. I think that the traffic of the Burlington road from Billings to the southwest has been very largely increased, 2717 and from here to the south the increase has been considerable.

Q. What is likely to be the future effect? Will it be to restrain or to enlarge the commerce of the road?

A. If the plan as contemplated is carried out, it should make a very large increase in the traffic. For instance, if the iron ore from Minnesota can find the furnaces in Missouri or southern Illinois, or down in that country where they get cheap coal, and bring back coal in the same cars, cars adapted to moving both, that business alone should run very soon into millions of tons. That is one. I know of no place where the business would not be increased; I know of no place where it 2718 would not be increased and benefited. I can imagine none.

Q. Why was it, Mr. Hill, that you took no steps for the purchase of the Burlington road or some other eastern connection prior to 1900 and 1901?

A. The earliest consideration of that question, which I recall, of a line to the south—and the Burlington was mentioned at the time—was in 1897. It was by some friends of mine in London. But we were just emerging from a period of business depression, and the undertaking was a very large one for the Great Northern Railway,—a very large one. It was thought that if two roads having the same general in- 2719 terest in the broad question of developing their local business would take it up, the burden would be very much less, and the Northern Pacific was hardly in a condition to take it up sooner than the time when it was taken up. Its earnings and dividends were hardly established. While its earnings had been increasing quite rapidly, the company's recent reorganization left its credit somewhat on a different basis from the 2720 Great Northern, which had been paying dividends from its organization or commencement.

Q. Do you remember when it was that the Northern Pacific common stock first reached par in the market?

A. When it first reached par?

Q. Yes.

A. In the spring of 1901. I think it was rather a surprise to some of the shareholders at the time.

Q. In planning and carrying out the purchase of the Burlington shares, was it any part of that scheme, so far as you know, that the shares of the Great Northern and the North-2721 ern Pacific Companies, or any of those shares, should be put into a holding company?

A. That was no part of the Burlington transaction; it was not considered. I don't know that it was thought of. I know it was never discussed, and I don't think it was thought of or cut any figure whatever in the Burlington purchase. Some of the people connected prominently with the Northern Pacific recognized the advantage of a line to Chicago, and wanted to consider the purchase of another railway that was offered to them, or, as I understand, was offered to them if we would 2722 join. It would not answer our purpose. It practically did not reach anything except Chicago; did not reach St. Louis; did not reach the great markets and material that we wanted to reach and desired to reach, and it was not seriously considered. But the question of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern ever being put into a common ownership was not thought of in that connection, nor until long afterwards.

Q. At the time of making the Burlington purchase was there any purpose on your part, or so far as you know on the part of your associates, or Mr. Morgan and his associates, of increasing your holdings of Northern Pacific stock so as to 2723 obtain a controlling majority of that stock?

A. At what time?

Q. At the time of making the Burlington purchase.

A. There was no effort made to increase the holdings of the Northern Pacific by the stockholders of the Great Northern that I know of, and I am very well satisfied had such been the case I would have known of it. In fact some of them had sold their stock as the prices advanced. As to Mr. Morgan's views about increasng his Northern Pacific, I don't think Mr. 2724

Morgan's people increased their holding of Northern Pacific up to or during the time the Burlington transaction was being considered. They could answer that question better than I can.

Q. I meant to ask you so far as you knew.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the date when the resolution of the board of directors of the Great Northern Company was passed authorizing the purchase—

A. I couldn't give the exact date.

Q. —of the Burlington stock? 2725

A. I couldn't give the exact date. It would be in the month of April.

Q. You were present at that meeting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not a suggestion was made at that meeting that, in order to protect the Great Northern Company, the control of the Northern Pacific common stock should be acquired in its interest.

A. As I remember it, one of our directors raised a question that inasmuch as the purchase of the Burlington stock and 2726
the creation of a bond to pay for it involved the joint and several liability of the entire amount of the purchase, it was a matter of consequence to the Great Northern to know that the Northern Pacific would not pass into the hands of people who might be interested in other directions, in developing in other directions or other sections of the country; and I remember I answered that with what myself and friends held at that time, and what Morgan & Company held we would have somewhere in the neighborhood of 35 or 40 millions of the stock out of a total of 155 millions, which was larger than is usually held in any of the large companies. I did not think 2727 at the time that it was at all likely that anybody would undertake to buy in the market the control of 155 millions of stock.

Q. At the time in April, Mr. Hill, how much common stock did you and your immediate associates hold in the Northern Pacific?

A. I should think, on the first of April somewhere from 33

2728 to 35 millions. That is, however, an estimate, and I think a reasonably close one.

Q. Is that common stock?

A. Common stock.

Q. And about how much of that was held on the 21st of April?

A. Well, I don't know that it was not all held then. I know that on the 9th of May, after there had been a struggle, or we will say up to the 3rd of May, after prices had been put up to above par, 110 or 120, and it was actually demon-2729 strated that there was an attempt to buy the Northern Pacific, I sent word to a few of my associates who were large stockholders, and they sold no more of their stock from that time. Some of them had parted with large amounts of the stock. I know that Morgan & Company, for a fund they had (about a million and a half), on the 2nd of May sold over a million dollars, probably a million and a quarter or more, of the stock. They thought that the market price was quite high and did not believe that anybody was trying to raid the property.

Q. In your statement as to the holdings on the first of 2730 April, putting it, I think, at thirty-five millions, did you include the holding of Morgan & Company?

A. No, sir. I recollect one gentleman who, I think, held three and a half millions, and he sold it all out before he received a telegram from me. He said he would rather have burned it than to have sold it. There were others who held large amounts,—and when I speak of large amounts I mean anywhere from $250,000 up to two or three million.

Q. On the 5th and 6th of May the holdings of yourself and the gentlemen associated with you amounted, as I think has already been testified, to between 21 and 22 millions of com-2731 mon stock?

A. I think at that time the closest estimate I could make was about between 20 and 21 million.

Q. Between 20 and 21 millions?

A. Yes. Afterwards I think it turned out to be a little more. That was on the 2nd or 3rd of May, I couldn't say which.

Q. And that holding continued?

A. They held from that time on regardless of what the price was. 2732

Q. And the holdings of Mr. Morgan on the 1st of May and before they went into the market to buy, was about how much?

A. Oh, probably in the neighborhood of five or six millions. I couldn't say whether they owned it or whether it was held in their office for the account of other people.

Q. Mr. Hill, after the return of Mr. Kennedy in June, and when it was contemplated taking the stock of the Northern Pacific in the proposed holding company, what proportion of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company was it then expected would be taken into the holding company? 2733

A. Mr. Kennedy returned from Europe early in June and I discussed the matter with him and with one or two (maybe three) other shareholders, I think four, three of whom owned Northern Pacific as well as Great Northern. One had sold his Northern Pacific, attracted by the high price. Following out the plan we had for a long time, of putting our Great Northern stock into one company, the question came up whether we should not put our Northern Pacific in as well. The Northern Pacific that we held at that time was something over 20 millions. Morgan & Company held about the same amount. They had bought in the market in the neighborhood of 15 millions of common stock, and they held something over 20 millions. Together our holdings amounted to about 42 million dollars, probably a little less than 42 million dollars. At the time I discussed that with Mr. Kennedy, after his return, and with the other gentlemen, there was no conclusion, no definite conclusion, arrived at in regard to the Northern Pacific as I remember there was in regard to the Great Northern. That had been considered for a long time, although in view of what happened Mr. Kennedy said we must devise some plan to prevent hereafter such raids as have occurred. 2734 2735

Q. How soon after that was it that an understanding was arrived at that a holding company should be formed, large enough to include the holdings of yourself and associates and Mr. Morgan and his associates?

A. I think it was in the last half of August. It was during the month of August, is my best recollection. I know it was 2736 after Mr. Morgan returned from Europe, and he returned some time in the early part of July.

Q. At that time what amount of capitalization was either agreed on or thought to be the proper amount for the proposed company?

A. When the matter was discussed with Mr. Kennedy and Mr. James and myself in June, I think that we thought a hundred millions would cover the necessity, provided that a large number of the shareholders of the Great Northern did not deposit their shares. There was also a good deal of hesitation; in fact, the formation of a holding company, in the first 2737 place, was discussed among a very limited number of Great Northern shareholders. The amount was comparatively small. It was the stock of those who had always been most active in carrying on the business of the company. But when it came to making a holding company that would hold the ownership of the stock held by these people, they all hesitated about forming any company to hold the shares of the Great Northern Railway in which all the shareholders might not be allowed to participate, if they so desired. And in that way it became necessary—it was decided, and it was decided early, possibly in June; it had been discussed at least a year before 2738 that. I know Mr. Farrer, of the firm of Baring & Company of London, was here and he said, "No matter what you do,—your company has always had the reputation of dealing with all the shareholders on the same basis,—no matter what you do, try and keep that." Everybody seemed to be of the same mind,—that all the shareholders might participate in any advantage that any shareholder might have, so far as related to the action of those who were most active in the company's affairs. That involved the necessity of making the capital of the holding company large enough to take in the stockholders of the Great Northern, if they elected to sell their stock.

2739 Q. Taking that stock at the figures which had been mentioned, 180—

A. That would make 225 million.

Q. 225 millions. What additional sum to those 225 millions was considered necessary on account of the holdings in Northern Pacific stock of your party and the Morgan party?

A. After Mr. Morgan's return from Europe, I bought for myself and a few friends the bulk of his holdings. I think I bought 12 millions out of the 15 millions that he had purchased 2740 in the market at cost, and with what he held made the control of the Northern Pacific common stock an absolute majority, which controlled the company after the redemption of the preferred. That would take some 48 or 49 million dollars of the stock to purchase the 42 millions of Northern Pacific common, and the additional amount that might be necessary—or rather, the amount, 225, for the Great Northern, with say 50 for Northern Pacific, carried it up 275. We thought at one time of making it 300, covering these amounts and some other properties that the Northern Securities Company desired to buy. 2741

Q. Did you at that time take any account of what ought to be provided in case of your getting additional common stock for your preferred, on the retirement of the preferred?

A. That was considered. Those steps came one after another. They were considered, I should say, after the latter part of August, and prior to the organization of the company. One condition as it took shape called for a relative change in the plan of the stock, that is, an increase in the amount of the stock. I might answer that further, that Mr. Morgan, acting as he had been for the Northern Pacific for a great many years, since its reorganization, was very urgent that whatever 2742 was done for his shares, any other holder should have the same right. That had to be considered.

Q. In case of a retirement of the preferred stock of the Northern Pacific, to be replaced by common stock, if you had taken your proportion, you and the Morgan interest, your proportion of new common stock, what would have been the amount then of your holdings? You would have taken 75/80 of $42,000,000, I suppose?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That would have brought you up to about in the neighborhood of 90,000,000, or about 80,000,000? 2743

A. Yes, a little over 80; between 80 and 90.

Q. Now, what I wanted to get at was whether at this time, at the end of August, when you were fixing your proposed capital for the holding company, you took into account the increase of your holding which would or might result from a retirement of the preferred stock?

2744 A. That had to be considered; it was considered.

Q. Now, if that was taken at 80,000,000—that was 115—it would be about 120,000,000? Oh, no—

Mr. Richards. 92 million.

Q. It would have been about 92 millions?

A. But there was not 80 millions of the preferred.

Q. No, 75 millions of the preferred.

A. Yes.

Q. To 80 of the common. You would have had 15/16 that you could have taken?

A. Yes, sir.

2745 Mr. Grover. 75/80.

Mr. Young. Well, that is 15/16. I was merely taking round numbers.

Mr. Griggs. 92 millions of the stock of the Northern Securities Company to pay for the common stock of the Northern Pacific, which you and Morgan would have had after the retirement of the preferred?

Witness. I could get at that with a pencil and a piece of paper; I haven't any on this chair. You can figure it out.

Q. It is nearly 82. That would bring that to something 2746 over 300 million. Now, what did you have in mind as to the disposition of the rest of that 400 million at that time, supposing you made it 400 million?

A. Well, I think up to possibly the middle of September it was hardly deemed necessary to make the capital over 300 million. I think that is substantially correct, because we were to offer the Great Northern shareholders the right to come in if they desired, but the market price was higher than the price we offered.

Q. The price offered was 180, I believe?

A. Yes, sir.

2747 Q. And what was the market price of the Great Northern stock during the fall and winter of—

A. I think it ran from 187 to 190 or 195. I don't think it has ever been 180 from the time the offer was made to the present time. The amount was made large enough to provide for—I remember the question asked of me and answered a number of times: make it large enough to cover what you may have to do, so you won't have to amend your articles. I am testifying up to, I should say, the end of September.

Q. The end of September, 1901? 2748

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The amount actually fixed at 400 million was arrived at when?

A. Oh, I think some time in October. It might have been the latter part of October. I have had a great many things to think of, and it was in the office in New York and I have no opportunity of going back to refresh my recollection as to the actual date. I am testifying from my best recollection.

Q. What was the purpose after the purchase of the Burlington Company and after the very large purchases of Northern Pacific stock made in the Union Pacific interests,—what was 2749 the purpose after that time of you gentlemen who promoted the Northern Securities Company in forming that company and putting into it a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company?

A. We were particularly anxious to put a majority of that stock where it could not be raided again as it had been. We wanted to put it in a corporation that was not a railroad company,—a company that would hold it as an investment, and the larger the company the more difficult it would be to secure a majority of it. Then, again, a reason why we preferred an 2750 investment company: railroad charters, I think I may say almost entirely, are drawn or granted on terms that do not permit railroad companies to buy the shares or own the shares or investment companies. Railway companies, under certain conditions, can buy the shares of other railways, as a means of consolidation, or they might buy the shares of a road that they would otherwise build. We were advised that we would be safer with the shares held by an investment company, the stock of which could only be held by individuals or by corporations that were not railway companies, and to that extent we would be more free from such raids by interests that were 2751 anxious to destroy or restrict the growth of this country,—such raids as had been made by the Union Pacific interests, so-called.

Q. What injury did you consider was likely to result to the stockholders of the Great Northern Company or the stockholders of the Northern Pacific Company, or to those corporations, if a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific or a 2752 controlling interest in that company should be obtained by a hostile railway interest?

A. With the Northern Pacific as a half owner in the shares of the Burlington and responsibility for one-half of the purchase price of these shares, the transfers of the shares of the Northern Pacific or the control of the Northern Pacific to an interest that was adverse or an interest that had greater investments in other directions, the control being in the hands of companies whose interests would be injured by the growth and development of this country would, of course, put the Great Northern in a position where it would be almost help-2753 less, because we would be, as it were, fenced out of the territory south which produces the tonnage we want to take west and which consumes the tonnage we want to bring east, and the Great Northern would be in a position where it would have to make a hard fight—either survive or perish, or else sell out to the other interests. The latter would be the most business-like proceeding.

Q. What would be the effect of such an acquisition by a hostile interest on the minority shareholders in the Northern Pacific?

2754 A. Why, it would practically put the control of the Northern Pacific interest in the hands of people who were hostile to its growth or development.

Q. Exactly.

A. The measure of injury would be destruction.

Q. And its effect on—

A. It would destroy the entire plan upon which the whole enterprise was originally designed and carried out, as far as it had been carried out.

Q. That is, your plan of building up a great interstate and Oriental traffic?

2755 A. Yes, sir; and the conditions under which that business should be done, because the other lines could not—it was a physical impossibility for them to carry at the rates that are necessary to carry it, and the rates that we must make, without making a positive loss on the business.

Q. So that, in effect, they would not only deprive you of that commerce, but they would destroy the commerce itself?

A. Destroy the commerce itself.

Q. It would not be done? 2756

A. It could not be done. I can show it in a moment. The great interests centering in San Francisco have no return cargo from the west except fruit, and that is carried in a special service, in a special car; that car is not intended or designed to carry this Oriental or sea-going business at all; and for every car we can get to the Pacific Coast we have a carload of lumber ready, loaded by the shipper and unloaded by the consignee, and all we have to do to it is to hitch to it and haul it; and the conditions are entirely different. We have no objection to their getting any rates that we make. They have the right to make any rate that we make. We 2757 cannot prevent that, and do not desire to. But we must, in order to carry this business, meet the competition of the Suez Canal and the high seas and the entire world, and we are prepared to do it and we are doing it. And that we are doing it successfully is shown in the enormous increase in the business in the last year.

Q. Was there any other motive, Mr. Hill, in having the Northern Securities Company acquire a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company—was there any other motive in that than the intention to defend and protect the interests of the stockholders and this enterprise which you had 2758 undertaken?

A. The object and the intent was to defend the property that otherwise would be destroyed, both of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern. When I say destroyed, there would be something left, but the main plan would be destroyed; there would be something left, but the property would be incapacitated from doing what it was intended to do and what it was quite able to do.

Q. Was there any intention or purpose on your part or on the part of anyone else, so far as you know, in forming the Northern Securities Company, to restrain trade or commerce 2759 among the states or with foreign nations, or at all?

A. There was absolutely none whatever, and that view of the case never occurred to us; on the contrary, it was constantly in our minds that it was going to be the most effective way of developing and increasing commerce between the states and international commerce. And it was necessary, if 2760 we were to bring his enormous business to the eastern markets,—it was necessary that we should pretty soon be able to reach some point where there was a market, where people would buy our products, and in the growth of that business our increased earnings would put us on a firmer basis and in a better position to make lower rates on the local traffic of our line. The average rates on the Great Northern Railway today are much lower than the average rates on the other transcontinental lines. I think the average rate on the Atchison would raise our revenue five and one-half millions annually, and on the Union Pacific would raise our revenue five and a 2761 half millions, maybe six.

Mr. Griggs. That is, if you carried as much as you do now?

Witness. Just carrying the same amount we do now. If the amount we carry now was carried at the average rate of those southern lines, we would have from five to six millions more money than we have. But by increasing our tonnage and by increasing our revenue we have been able to reduce our rates, and we expect to go on reducing our rates for the same reasons. If we carry that out I see no reason why our rates cannot be materially reduced in the future. We have 2762 little difficulty in earning our seven per cent, which is our dividend, and we don't expect to raise it. Now, as we cheapen the cost of transportation and increase the tonnage, what have we to do with it? We will put it on a safer basis by reducing the rates. And I suppose the public are more interested in low rates and good service than they are in any other attitude of the situation.

Q. Mr. Hill, at the time of the formation of the Northern Securities Company or in the planning or making of it, did you have any intention or purpose of destroying or lessening the competition between the Northern Pacific and the Great 2763 Northern Railway Companies, or did any of the other persons or companies have any such intention, so far as you know?

A. The idea never occurred to me, and I never heard it discussed,—and all matters in connection with the transaction were frequently and fully discussed; I never heard that attitude of it presented.

Q. In point of fact, has the formation of the Northern Securities Company caused or resulted in any lessening of competition between the Great Northern and Northern Pacific 2764 Railway Companies?

A. I don't know that it has affected it in the least. Take the interstate business of the two roads, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, from one end to the other, and there is very little of that business that could be affected by the two companies in any way without the co-operation of other companies. The amount of business is very small that is not affected directly by various carriers and conditions. So that if the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern should set their minds and exercise all the ingenuity of their traffic departments to affect the business, I am quite sure that they 2765 could not affect ten per cent of it. I think it would be very much less than that. But I am quite sure they could not affect in any way ten per cent of it.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hill, has anything been done between the two companies for the purpose of reducing competition at any point?

A. Nothing whatever. I think the competition is just as free and as full as it has been at any time in the past twenty years.

Q. So that as far as you know, Mr. Hill, is either road operated less independently of the other since the formation of 2766 the Northern Securities Company than it was before?

A. If there is any difference, I think they are a little more independent of each other. For instance, the Northern Pacific runs three passenger trains from here to Lake Superior; the Eastern Minnesota runs two. The Eastern Minnesota proposed that they would give the Northern Pacific the right to choose which hour of the two they would start, if they would divide the time. I think they both started a train at the same time. They said, "Now, the through passengers don't need two trains, but if you will start yours at one time we will 2767 start ours at another." The Northern Pacific said, "No, we have got so much local business to take care of, we have got to run ours on our own basis," and that was a complete answer. I speak of that because that is the only occasion that has ever come to my mind where there was anything looking that the roads might come together, and the Northern Pacific felt that they had local business to take care of and would 2768 rather keep their train on the same time that they had had it. But that is not an uncommon thing to take up between any railroads, however strong the competition or how light it is—the time of starting and arriving of trains.

Q. Did the Great Northern Railway Company or its board of directors or any of its officers, so far as you know, have anything to do with the organization or formation of the Northern Securities Company, or was it an affair of the stockholders alone?

A. Neither the Great Northern Company nor any of its officers as such had anything whatever to do with it, not any 2769 more than the most distant railway corporation in the country. Absolutely nothing. The matter of forming the Northern Securities Company was purely of the shareholders and limited to a very small number, I think I am safe in saying not to exceed 11 out of 1800.

Q. Who were those eleven, more or less? You can give the names right here.

A. In the order in which they were most active I would probably have to put myself, and Mr. Kennedy, the representative of Strathcona, and Mount Stephen, Mr. John W.
2770 Sterling, Willis James, Samuel Thorne, Johnson Livingston, Col. Lamont, Oliver Payne, Edward Tuck, George C. Clark, George F. Baker. I think now I have got there most of them.

Mr. Clough. Mr. Cannon.

Witness. Mr. Cannon knew of it, but his holding was small. He probably held four or five thousand shares.

Q. About what was the general holdings of these gentlemen in the Great Northern, as you remember?

A. Between 33 and 35 millions.

Q. Out of a capital of 125 millions?

A. Yes, sir. I have a list of the men somewhere, if I could 2771 put my hand on it. I have a list of the men, the names, that I undertook to see, and I checked them off as I saw them, and the amount of stock they held. I may be able to find that list. I saw it within a few months. It was a list of the parties I saw, and I think there are eleven names on that piece of paper of men whom I have seen and with whom I have discussed when we were arranging to go on and form the company.

Q. What corporate action, if any, was taken by the Northern Pacific Company or by any of its officers, so far as you know, in forming or organizing the Northern Securities Company? 2772

A. I don't know that there was any and I don't know any they could take as a company. The Northern Securities Company simply bought the stock of the Northern Pacific from the people who owned it, and the corporation had nothing to say as to the disposition of the stock, the corporation didn't own any stock, or at any rate it didn't sell any stock to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Shortly after the formation of the Northern Securities Company, you yourself transferred to it, sold to it, a large amount of Great Northern stock and Northern Pacific stock, did you not? 2773

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And large amounts were sold in like manner by other holders?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In your own case, state whether or not your sale or transfer to the Northern Securities Company was an absolute, out-and-out sale and transfer, or whether there was any understanding or condition or trust or anything of that kind connected with it. 2774

A. The sale by myself and by everybody—and as the president of the Northern Securities Company I know the conditions upon which the purchases were made—they were absolute purchases, as absolute as was possible to make them, and outside of any condition or trust or implied agreement or anything else. They were just as free to sell the stock—that is, the Northern Securities Company is the absolute owner of the stock and free to sell it and dispose of it or burn it if it sees fit.

Q. Was there any understanding as to how the Northern Securities should vote that stock? 2775

A. None whatever. It is a matter for its own consideration. Not any more than if you bought it, or any other purchaser. There was no condition of any kind attached to the sale of the stock. They bought it outright and paid for it, and there is no agreement, direct or implied, in existence or ever was in existence or ever contemplated.

2776 Q. In the formation of the Northern Securities Company, was there any agreement among its promoters or any of them, including yourself, by which they or any of them bound themselves to transfer their stock in either railway company to the Northern Securities Company, when it should be organized?

A. There was no agreement of any kind. When I discussed the matter with these gentlemen they said, "All right, go ahead, we will put ours in"—each man speaking for himself, and I think I saw them all separately, with one exception. I saw Mr. Kennedy and Mr. James together; both happened 2777 into my office at the same time, as was a very common thing with them. Possibly I saw Mr. Thorne and Mr. Clark together. The others I saw separately. There was no agreement, an hour—a minute—before any shareholder of the Great Northern transferred his stock he was at liberty to turn round and go away with it.

Q. And in the purchases made by the Northern Securities Company from the Great Northern stockholders, state whether or not such purchases have been the result of any agreement among several shareholders, or whether they were separate transactions with each shareholder who sold his stock.

2778 A. Each sale covered nothing but the sale of that particular stock. Each shareholder acted for himself at all times. And after the company was organized the offer was made to take the shares of the outstanding Great Northern stockholders on the same terms as the few who had been active in forming the company had put in theirs.

Q. Can you state, Mr. Hill, about how many shareholders there were in the Great Northern?

A. My recollection is there were about 1800.

Q. Now, was there any solicitation with the shareholders of the Great Northern, either on the part of the officers of the 2779 Great Northern or of the officers of the Northern Securities Company—any solicitation to them to turn in, to transfer, their shares to the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir, there was absolutely none. On the contrary, great pains were taken to see that every shareholder understood that it was a matter for himself to decide and one that nobody else could decide for him. The price was such, being below the market, that it was thought it would deter a number from selling their stock. In fact, I did not expect that 2780 so large a number of the shareholders would exchange their stock. We gave them the opportunity if they desired to.

Q. About how many individual shareholders of the Great Northern have transferred their shares to the Northern Securities Company?

A. Well, I can hardly say, but I should think possibly a thousand or twelve hundred. But that information can be accurately furnished from the books of the company. I am only speaking from the best general estimate I could make.

Q. I show the witness a paper purporting to be a circular 2781 from the Northern Securities Company to the holders of Great Northern stock. Is that the circular which was sent out by the Securities Company, soon after its formation, to the Great Northern shareholders?

A. (After examining the paper.) Yes, sir, that is a copy of the circular issued by the Northern Securities Company on the date of it.

Mr. Young. We offer this in evidence as defendants' Exhibit 1.

Defendants' Exhibit 1 is as follows:

2782

"NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY.

James J. Hill, President.
John S. Kennedy, First Vice-President.
Geo. F. Baker, Second Vice-President.
D. Willis James, Third Vice-President.
W. P. Clough, Fourth Vice-President.
E. T. Nichols, Secretary and Treasurer.

27-29 Pine Street, New York City,
November 22, 1901.

TO HOLDERS OF STOCK OF THE GREAT NORTHERN 2783
RAILWAY COMPANY:

The Northern Securities Company, incorporated under the laws of the state of New Jersey, with an authorized capital stock of $400,000,000, and with power to invest in and hold the securities of other companies, has commenced business, and has acquired from several large holders of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company a considerable amount of that stock.

A uniform price has been paid of $180 per share, in the fully-paid stock of this company, at par. This company is ready to purchase additional shares of the same stock at the same price, payable in the same manner, and will accept offers made on that basis if made within the next sixty days.

Offers for sale of stock of the Great Northern Railway Company should be made upon the enclosed form, and should be accompanied by the certificates of the stock offered with transfers duly executed, having United States stamps for transfer tax of two cents per share affixed.

Upon receipt of any such offer, so accompanied, the Northern Securities Company will deliver to the seller of the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company, certificates of its own stock to the amount of the purchase price above named, or, if such certificates are not then ready for delivery, its negotiable receipt obliging it to issue and deliver such certificates as soon as ready. For fractional parts of shares scrip certificates, convertible into stock in multiples of $100, will be given.

NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY,

By James J. Hill,

President."

Q. After sending that circular, Mr. Hill, state whether or not you received inquiries from shareholders in reference to what conduct they should take, what they should do with their shares.

A. There were a great many letters; I was in New York at the time, and a great many letters came addressed to the office, and some of them addressed to me, wanting to know what I would advise them to do. Some would write to the office and want to know what Mr. Hill wanted them to do or what the company wanted them to do.

Mr. Richards: Mr. Hill, had you signed the circular of the Northern Securities Company as president of that company?

Witness. Yes, sir.

Mr. Grover. Yes; it was after that that this was sent out.

Witness. My name is printed as president of the company.

Mr. Richards. Yes, I didn't recall exactly.

Witness. The circular has the names of the officers of the 2788
Securities Company in the upper left-hand corner.

Q. What action did you take in answer to those inquiries? How did you answer them?

A. Some individuals came in to see me. I told them it was their own affair. Others wrote, and there were so many letters that I prepared a letter that was in the nature of a circular letter, that would answer all their questions, and that was issued.

Q. I show the witness a paper, defendants' Exhibit 2. Is that the circular letter which you prepared?

A. That is a correct copy of the letter which I prepared in 2789 answer to communications from shareholders.

Q. You sent it simply in answer to communications?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And not to people that you had not received inquiries from?

A. Oh, no, no. This was in answer to communications, and, as I was coming to St. Paul, this general letter could be sent from the office in New York.

Q. Instead of writing a separate letter to each inquirer, you sent him this one? 2790

A. Yes, sir.

The letter was offered in evidence, and marked defendants' Exhibit 2.

Defendants' Exhibit 2 is as follows:

"Copy. November 30th, 1901.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter of the 23rd instant, asking for further information about the Northern Securities Company, I beg to say that the business of that company is to deal in high-class securities, to hold the same for the benefit of its shareholders and to do such other acts as will advance the 2791 interests of the companies whose securities it holds.

The powers of the company do not include the operation of railways, banking, nor buying or selling for others on commission.

The organization of such a company has been considered for many years by the original promoters of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company, and its succes-2792 sor, the Great Northern Railway Company, who have always remained the largest shareholders therein. These men have deemed it wise to make permanent arrangements for the protection of their interests and for securing a continuous policy in the management of their properties. Believing the Northern Securities Company will secure the objects named, they have generally sold to it their holdings of Great Northern shares, on the terms stated in the circular.

The traffic of coal and other local companies is of great value to the railway, while the conduct of the business of 2793 such companies is outside of the railway's corporate powers. The Securities Company will control this large traffic for the railway and will receive the profits of these separate properties.

The offer contained in the circular came from the request of the large holders of Great Northern, above mentioned, who desired that all other holders might have the same opportunities as themselves in association with them, and upon the same terms. The writer is of opinion that the offer of the Securities Company is one that Great Northern shareholders can accept with profit and advantage to themselves.

2794 Yours truly,

(Signed) JAS. J. HILL."

It is understood that the foregoing examination of Mr. Hill was on behalf of all the defendants.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Richards:

Q. Mr. Hill, you signed the circular of November 22 as president of the Northern Securities Company; you signed the 2795 circular letter of November 30, which you sent in answer to inquiries, in your individual name. I ask you whether those inquiries came to you from stockholders of the Great Northern, as president of the Great Northern, or to you as an individual, or to you as president of the Northern Securities?

A. It would be difficult for me to answer. I had been president of the Great Northern Railway for a long time, and, coming from the shareholders of the Great Northern, I think invariably I was writing to them giving them my individual 2796 view; that is the way it presented itself to me at the time—my individual views as to the questions they asked. I wanted to give them the information as fully as I could, whether I did it as president of one company or the other; I think it was more in my individual capacity, as one who had represented their interests for a great many years. It is the first time that that question has presented itself to my mind in that light, and I think that—

Q. Well, the circular letter of November 30 really had all the weight of your opinion as president of the Great Northern 2797 and as the one who was most intimately connected with its affairs?

A. I don't think there was any advice given in that letter.

Q. Well, whatever the views expressed were, or the facts given, they came from you?

A. My recollection of the one of the 22nd was a simple offer to buy—

Q. Oh, I am speaking of the 30th.

A. Oh, of the 30th.

Q. Of the 30th.

A. That gave them the facts, recited the facts, that the 2798 company was not a railroad company, and I think there is in it an important matter that they (I felt) ought to know. The company had been negotiating, and at that time was about to close the deal for some other important properties that would go to the Securities Company. I hesitated, I remember, about saying anything about it, because it might be construed as advising them, but if I concealed it from them I would be concealing an important fact. So I preferred to put down the fact and let it go as it was.

Q. You state in this letter: "The organization of such a company has been considered for many years by the original 2799 promoters of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company, and its successor, the Great Northern Railway Company, who have always remained the largest shareholders therein. These men have deemed it wise to make permanent arrangements for the protection of their interests and for securing a continuous policy in the management of their properties." What did you mean by that?

2800 A. "The protection of their interests;" protection from raids like the one which had been made in May previous, on the Northern Pacific. Some such raid might be made on the Great Northern. And for the making permanent the general policy. The road was built with great care, with very low grades, built through a country that had very few people for a long distance west of Dakota. When we built it we had to get permission from the government, because it was unceded land; and we had a policy; building a low grade road, a road that could move a large tonnage (if it could get a large ton-2801 nage) at a low rate, and develop the business, the country. It is true, as every one will find on inquiry, that that country has practically no manufactures, and the traffic has been confined to the natural productions.

Q. Yes, I understand what the policy was.

A. Well, it was to protect that policy.

Q. It was to protect and continue that policy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that meant to protect and to continue the control which had carried out that policy? That is what you meant by it?

2802 A. Well, it was to protect the policy and to—

Q. Now, could you continue the policy without continuing the control?

Mr. Grover. Let him answer the question he started to answer.

Witness. I will answer it if you will permit me.

Mr. Richards. Yes.

Witness. I may say that I think I controlled the policy of the Great Northern Railway Company and its predecessor as fully as the policy of any railway ever was controlled in this country, and I never owned over ten or twelve per cent—2803 I never owned a majority of the stock, but I always had a following of good, loyal stockholders, and the men who were most active, covering about 33 or 35 millions out of 125 millions, practically formed the company, and they desired that their other shareholders, whoever they were, new or old, might participate in anything that they were doing, if they thought it would be any advantage to them as shareholders.

Q. And so, in order to continue the policy which had obtained for so many years for the benefit of the company and 2804 of the public, they arranged to put their holdings into this holding corporation,—these shareholders?

A. The eleven shareholders.

Q. Yes.

A. And asked that the same offer be made to all the shareholders so that they might not be charged with any discrimination, or doing anything for themselves that they were not willing to do for all the shareholders.

Q. Exactly. Now, would the policy be perpetuated or the interest protected if less than a majority of the stock of the 2805
Great Northern had gone into the holding corporation?

A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. If less than a majority of the stock of the Great Northern had gone into the holding corporation, wouldn't the stock of the Great Northern have been liable to a raid by hostile or rival interests?

A. The stockholders of the Great Northern were many in number, but we have always considered they were a very loyal list of stockholders and we never felt that we were liable to lose control.

Q. You thought that about the Northern Pacific, too? 2806

A. The Northern Pacific was in an entirely different position. The Northern Pacific stock, when the Burlington was bought, was selling at somewhere from 50 to 60, while the Great Northern was selling at three times that price. The Great Northern was selling at 180 or 190. A different question about getting control of the Great Northern. In answering the question it never occurred to me that we would lose control of the Great Northern except at a price that we would be well paid if we sold. We could afford to take any price that anybody could pay to get control of the Great Northern. I think there has never been in the past ten years an hour 2807 that that was not true. As long as we could control the traffic and develop it, the Great Northern shareholders would be well satisfied and well paid.

Q. Then you never intended to put into the Northern Securities Company a majority of the stock of the Great Northern Railway?

A. I never did put it in. I put in a very small amount.

2808 Q. And you thought you could protect the interests and continue the policy without placing in the Northern Securities Company a control or a majority of the stock of the Great Northern?

A. When we made the offer we decided to make the offer to allow all shareholders to sell their stock on the same terms as those who had been most active—a small number of ten or eleven. It was necessary, if they were going to sell their stock, to be able to give them the Great Northern stock in payment.

2809 Mr. Grover. Northern Securities.

Witness. I mean the Northern Securities stock in payment for the Great Northern. If the question has reference to the desire or preference, I should answer that if the individual men who formed the Securities Company had their choice and all the shareholders were there and could say, "We release you from any responsibility," we would have preferred to have had the Northern Securities Company stock restricted to the 35 millions. There isn't any question about that. I have discussed that with the shareholders many, many times. One gentleman spent an afternoon discussing it with Mr. Grover;
2810 another one spent an evening at my house; came from London to discuss it. So, it is not a new question with us. The question was, Shall we make a corporation and close the door on our old associates? If we do, it is the first time that anything has ever been done in which any shareholder had the advantage over all the shareholders. And that was the reason for making the offer, and the only reason for making the offer.

Q. Now, what was the response to the offer? How much stock of the Great Northern was exchanged for stock of the Northern Securities?

A. Oh, I don't recall the amount. I know a great deal came 2811 in before—I should say nearly half of it came in very soon after,—maybe 40 per cent. Then a lawsuit was started. I think by the state of Minnesota first, or Peter Power, I am not sure which,—but a lawsuit was started, and we took pains then—a great many had sent their stock to the office—we took pains to notify them that a lawsuit had been commenced, and the stock was not purchased, the transaction was not closed, until they were notified and asked: "Do you still want to sell your stock?" We felt it was a duty to let 2812 them know that such a lawsuit had been commenced, as that might make some difference in their view as to whether they wanted to sell their stock to the Securities Company or to hold it as Great Northern.

Q. Do you recall about how much stock had been transferred at that time? Was that the 5-12 of the stock of the Great Northern, which is referred to in the answer, that had been purchased and transferred at the time this suit was begun?

A. I don't carry those figures in my mind, because it would 2813 only be recollection, and it is so easy to get the record of any or every day in the year.

Mr. Clough. Mr. Richards, I gave it to you; I sent it to you from New York.

Mr. Richards. I just wanted to connect that with this suit —the information you gave me.

Mr. Clough. I gave you the holding on December 11th. You have it.

Q. Well, then, after this suit was brought, the stock of the Great Northern, which was purchased by the Northern Securities, was not transferred to the Northern Securities, but was 2814 held in outside hands?

A. I don't know that it was. I think that the purchase was not completed. Now, I was not in the office in New York until some time in the winter or spring, and the purchase was not completed; some of it was, but some of it was not.

At this time the hearing was adjourned until the morning of Tuesday, October 21, 1902, at 10 o'clock.

St. Paul, Minn., October 21, 1902. 2815

The hearing was resumed at the same place at 10:35 a. m. James J. Hill, recalled, and his cross-examination resumed, as follows:

By Mr. Richards:

Q. Mr. Hill, I understood you to say yesterday that one reason why the stock of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific was put into a holding corporation was to protect it from raids similar to that of the Union Pacific interests on the 2816 Northern Pacific; that a railroad company, while it might acquire the stock of other railroad companies, could not, under the law, acquire the stock of an investment company, and therefore it was thought advisable to virtually change the stock of the railroad companies into the stock of an investment company, or put the stock of the railroad companies in the control of an investment company. Am I correct about that being one of the reasons you gave?

A. Not in that direction. The Northern Pacific Company we considered much more subject to raids than the Great Northern. The Great Northern was held by investors mainly 2817 who had held it for a very long time; but one of the advantages would be that stock held by an investment company was more out of the way of purchase by railroad corporations, and less liable to be purchased in that way; in fact, the question as to the legality of a railroad company holding the shares of an investment company, that was one feature, not a controlling one.

Q. I understood you to say that you had been advised (and I inferred by counsel) that railroad companies could not acquire and hold the stock of an investment company, and that 2818 was one reason why the Northern Pacific stock was put in the control of a holding corporation.

A. The charters of railway companies, I think, generally preclude the idea of holding investment company's shares.

Q. And for that reason do you think the Northern Pacific stock is any safer now than it was before?

A. We hope it is.

Q. Well, then, will you explain how it comes about that the Union Pacific interests now hold about eighty millions of the stock of the Northern Securities Company?

A. How it comes about?

2819 Q. Yes.

A. They sold their shares of Northern Pacific.

Q. But how it comes about, in connection with this legal objection which you spoke of.

A. That is a matter that concerns them and you; it does not concern us. We haven't the enforcement of the law in our hands.

Q. Yes? The Union Pacific interests, that is to say Harri- 2820 man and Pierce, do hold about 82 millions of the stock of the Northern Securities, do they not?

A. Harriman and Pierce are the holders, as far as I know. Now whether it is held by the Union Pacific or whether it is a collateral trust or collateral for a trust bond for a railroad company is a matter, I suppose, of public record; it does not concern us.

Q. Well, it would concern you if Mr. Harriman and Mr. Pierce should go on and, in addition to their holding of 82 millions, acquire enough more stock of the Northern Securities to control that, wouldn't it? 2821

A. Yes, sir, it would.

Q. And if they could find shareholders of the Northern Securities willing to sell, and if they deemed it profitable to go on, they could acquire a majority of the Northern Securities Company, couldn't they?

A. If they could find people who held it and owned it and were ready to sell it to them, they could buy it, if they were able to agree on the price.

Q. Well, then, the only thing that stands in the way of a raid by Harriman and Pierce, or men of that sort, is really the 2822 fact that shareholders of the Northern Securities cannot be found willing to sell a majority of the shares; isn't that true?

A. I don't know that they could not be found; I would be unwilling to testify.

Q. Well, don't you know that they could not be found, Mr. Hill?

A. No, I do not. I suppose the shares of any business corporation have a value at which the owners would sell.

Q. Well, now, that wasn't true with you, Mr. Hill, at the time the value of the Northern Pacific stock went up to fabulous figures, was it? 2823

A. No, sir.

Q. You stayed "put," didn't you? You "stood without hitching?"

A. We had other interests, and there was a matter beyond the ordinary business interests. Our position was largely that, or my position was that of the executive head of a cor-2824 poration, the existence of which was in jeopardy if that raid succeeded.

Q. That is what I understand, Mr. Hill, and I am putting it to you now whether you do not feel the same way as the president of the Northern Securities Company: that it is your duty as the head of that company, interested in the development of the Northwest, to see that the Northern Securities stock is not raided by some interest which desires to develop some other section of the country?

A. If other parties desire to buy the stock of the Securities 2825 Company, they could only do so by offering a price that would secure to them the shares—a price that the owners would be willing to accept. And it would be very difficult for them to do it. Possibly this will answer the question: We have tried to make it as difficult as we could, in a fair business way, for such raids to prove successful.

Q. Well, now, as a matter of foresight and of prudence, would not you look to it that the stock of the Northern Securities is not in hands that would sell it out to a hostile interest?

A. I haven't the control of—

Q. You haven't the control, but you have the interest?

2826 A. I haven't the control of who should own it or might own it. The stock is for sale. And the owners must always settle that. I think some of the owners who have always worked together would be very slow to dispose of their shares without consulting their associates.

Q. You know how and in what hands the stock of the Northern Securities Company is held, who are the large shareholders?

A. Probably out of eleven or twelve hundred shareholders I know the names of twenty-five or thirty.

Q. Is there any block of stock held by any one individual 2827 larger than that held by Harriman and Pierce?

A. No, sir.

Q. That is the largest holding?

A. If it is held by Harriman and Pierce.

Q. I understood Col. Clough to say that it stands on the books of the Northern Securities Company in the name of Harriman and Pierce.

A. I have seen it announced that it was placed as security 2828 for a bond or debenture,—some security of the Oregon Short Line.

Q. Well, I was referring to the way in which it stands on the books of the Northern Securities Company.

A. Oh! I have not examined the books for several months. It was issued to Harriman and Pierce, I think, as individuals, as far as the record of it.

Q. About what is the outstanding stock of the Northern Securities Company, how many millions?

A. Oh, three hundred and fifty or sixty; possibly more, and 2829 it may be four or five millions less. I haven't looked at the totals for some time.

Q. Well, if Harriman and Pierce were to double their holdings, they would come close to the mark of having one-half of the stock outstanding, would they not?

A. They would have some difficulty probably in doubling their holding; if they did they would have to pay a fair price for it. They would have to pay a price that the owners would be willing to sell at. The shares are held largely by people who have been interested in the Northwest for a long time, and I think have reason to be pleased with their investment, 2830 and would be slow to sell.

Q. Well, then, that is the true safeguard and security of the Northwest interests, the fact that the stock, or a majority of the stock, of the Northern Securities Company is in hands which have the development of this section at heart and would not be willing to sell?

A. Oh, that,—the development of the section of country—

Q. I mean the development of the lines of railway.

A. And the line of railway is a matter of self-interest with them; that is their business interest; the growth of the country reflects upon the growth and value of their property; 2831 and I think investments are always, that is, business investments, are always controlled by business reasons, and the purchase and sale would be one of price.

Q. Mr. Hill, yesterday you stated that but a very small per cent of the interstate business of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern could be affected by these two companies in any way without the co-operation of other companies.

2832 A. Yes, sir.

Q. I think you mentioned ten per cent; that was in answer to an inquiry touching the competitive business of the two railways. I would like to have you explain what sort of business you refer to by this particular business that would alone be affected by the two companies. You stated it in a general way; I would like to have you go into some detail.

A. I meant to make it reasonably plain, and will try to do so. The business I alluded to was the interstate business on the lines of the Northern Pacific or on the line of the 2833 Great Northern. The interstate business was not controlled; that is, the rate upon it was not controlled or affected by the rates made by other lines. For instance, a station where the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railways both reached and some other railway line also reached: it would be necessary at that station for all three roads to make the rate; no one or no two could make the rate independent of the other; and at stations of that kind I feel very certain that business of that description on the line of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern together will not amount to ten per cent of the interstate business.

2834 Q. Do you limit it to business that originates and terminates upon the line of either the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern?

A. Oh, I mean that it is business that originates or terminates on the line of the Northern Pacific or Great Northern, and may be destined for or may originate in any part of the country or out of the country.

Q. But business which cannot be handled by any third line; is that your statement?

A. Business that cannot be handled by any third line, that is competitive between the two, would not amount to ten per 2835 cent of the entire interstate business. I feel very sure that ten per cent is in excess of the amount the actual figures would show.

Q. Why do you make that limitation and exclude all competitive business between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific where there is also another railroad company which may compete? Is it less important to keep up the competition between the two lines simply because another one may compete? 2836

A. I answered the question. Mine was in answer to a question, and I tried to answer it intelligently.

Q. Well, it was rather a puzzling answer to me; your statement that the action of these two railway companies could not affect more than ten per cent of the traffic, in view of your other statement that the action of the two railroads in acquiring the Burlington and in carrying out certain improvements in service and in rates had resulted in a very large increase of the traffic. I think you said with regard to certain traffic some thirty-three per cent, and with regard to others it had doubled. 2837

A. More than doubled.

Q. Yes.

A. And that had reference to the extension of traffic and the reduction of rates, and, as I understood the question, in reference to the amount that would be affected, that was the amount of business upon which the Northern Pacific and Great Northern might advance the rates. Quite a different question.

Q. Well, now in that connection do you take the view that the Northern Pacific could not advance or lower the rate where some other company had also to take part in carrying the freight? Do you take that view? 2838

A. A railway can always lower the rate.

Q. No matter whether it carries the freight the entire distance or not?

A. It can always lower the rate, as a matter of right; if it advances the rate and other roads are willing to carry it for less, it loses the business.

Q. Exactly. And if it is carrying freight in connection with another line (a connecting line) it can lower the rate so far as its own portion of the carriage is concerned, whether the other railroad is willing to or not. 2839

A. I think that practice is very uncommon.

Q. I think so, too.

A. I think it might be able to do that, but if the rate is a published rate, which the law compels, I do not know how a railroad company would make a published rate, and then in 2840 connection with another road, or what is known as a joint rate, reduce its own rate below the rate at which it was carrying the same class of business over the same country. I think it would be rather difficult to reconcile it with the law.

Mr. Richards. Well, that was not the case I was referring to. Of course, I meant a lawful reduction of rate, not any cutting.

Examined by Mr. Day:

Q. Mr. Hill, you spoke yesterday of the development of the Great Northern Company. Was it organized under a special charter or under the general law?

2841 A. Under special charter.

Q. What is the corporate name of the Great Northern Company?

A. Great Northern Railway Company.

Q. What charter was it evolved out of?

A. I think the name of the original corporation was the Minneapolis & St. Cloud, or it might be Minneapolis, St. Cloud & Superior.

Mr. Grover. Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railway. Simply the name was changed.

2842 Mr. Day. Simply the name was changed?

Mr. Grover. That is all; simply changed the name under the provisions of the charter.

Mr. Day. The Great Northern took all the rights and—

Mr. Grover. Changed the name to the Great Northern.

Mr. Day. It retained all the rights, franchises and land grants that were appurtenant to the charter of the Minneapolis & St. Cloud?

Mr. Grover. It didn't retain it—it was that company.

Mr. Day. I am asking Mr. Hill simply to get it in the record, that is all.

2843 Witness. It is that company, with the change of name, is it not?

Q. How much of a line of railway was built by the Minneapolis & St. Cloud before its name was changed to the Great Northern?

A. About 200 miles, if I remember right; maybe 230.

Q. What mileage does the Great Northern Railway Company own?

A. It has a very short mileage; almost all the lines that it 2844 controls it owns through the ownership of stock or leases.

Q. Could you give approximately what mileage the Great Northern Railway Company owns?

A. A copy of the annual report just published (which I would be glad to give you) shows in detail.

Q. I thought perhaps you might give approximately the mileage owned by the Great Northern Railway Company.

The Examiner. Do you offer that as an exhibit?

Mr. Richards. We would like to have that in, and Mr. Hill says he will furnish it.

The Examiner. Defendants' Exhibit 3 will be supplied by 2845 the witness.

Q. Could you give it approximately, Mr. Hill?

A. Oh, I could approximately. It is changing almost from month to month, added to. Somewhere between 5,500 and 6,000 miles.

Q. That it owns?

A. That it owns or leases, or owns the shares of.

Q. No, my question was as to the mileage that is actually owned by the Great Northern Railway Company.

A. No, I could not. I would have to go back and look at the 2846 titles; I don't know that it owns, except in the way that I have spoken of—I don't know that it owns any.

Mr. Grover. Is that what you want?

Mr. Day. That is what I want.

Mr. Grover. It does not own the fee of any—

Mr. Day. Mr. Hill ought to know; he is the president and was present through its development.

Q. Now, what is the mileage of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba road, approximately?

A. About 3,800 miles.

Q. Was that company organized under a special charter 2847 to it?

A. Yes, sir, a special charter; not to that name, but a special charter by the territory of Minnesota, before it was a state.

Q. And to what company was that charter granted?

A. I think the title originally was the Minnesota & Pacific.

Q. Was that another instance of a mere change of name

2848 by which the Manitoba road went on, under the charter of the Minnesota & Pacific?

A. I think the Minnesota & Pacific was changed to the St. Paul & Pacific, and the St. Paul & Pacific to the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba.

Q. And the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba road took all of the franchises of the Minneapolis & Pacific and the St. Paul & Pacific?

A. Of the Minnesota & Pacific.

Q. Of the Minnesota & Pacific, and the St. Paul & Pacific?

2849 A. Yes, sir.

Q. Including its land grants and whatever pertained to it?

A. It was a foreclosure of bonds, and it took whatever the decree of foreclosure gave.

Q. How did the Great Northern Railway acquire the title to operate the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba road?

A. In the first instance by a lease.

Q. In what year was that?

A. I think in 1889.

Q. For what length of time?

A. It was completed probably early in 1890; 999 years, I 2850 believe, was the term of the lease.

Q. The Great Northern has a lease of the Manitoba road for 999 years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in addition to that, is it an owner of the stock of that road?

A. It subsequently bought the shares of stock of that company to a very large extent, say 97 or 98 per cent.

Q. What is the relation of the Great Northern to the Eastern Minnesota?

A. It leases it.

2851 Q. Is that a long-term lease also?

A. I think that is 99 years.

Q. Is it an owner in the shares of the Eastern Minnesota?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What proportion of the stock does it own?

A. Very large; almost entirely.

Q. What other roads are operated or owned, by the ownership of stock, by the Great Northern?

A. The Willmar & Sioux Falls, Montana Central, some lines 2852 in Dakota, some lines in Washington, some lines in Montana, and some in Idaho.

Q. And the total mileage, as operated by the three proprietary lines or leased lines, is now what?

A. The total mileage of the system is between 5,500 and 6,000. The report will show accurately.

Q. You were speaking yesterday of lumber rates from the Pacific coast east, and you mentioned a meeting of some lumbermen who came here to consult you, or you met them elsewhere, in which it was agreed upon that the lumber rates should be reduced; when was that? 2853

A. That is not according to my testimony.

Q. Well, whatever you spoke of; you spoke of a meeting.

A. I said that on my first trip to the Pacific coast I called together the lumbermen to try and find out what rate would enable them to move their lumber to the Eastern markets, to markets east of the Rocky mountains.

Q. Now, I ask you when was that meeting?

A. That meeting, I think, was in the fall of 1889.

Q. When was the rate of forty cents a hundred put in on that lumber?

2854

A. As soon as our road was completed and ready for business, which was in 1893.

Q. You mean by forty cents a hundred, the rate from the Pacific coast to the Mississippi river?

A. To the Twin Cities or to the head of Lake Superior, or fifty cents to Chicago. I think the fifty-cent rate was made at that time, or very soon after.

Q. Did any of the other lines follow your rate of forty cents?

A. Where from?

Q. Well, say from Washington to the Mississippi river,— from the origin of the traffic. 2855

A. The rates to Minnesota Transfer or St. Paul and the rate to Omaha are usually the same; but the rate on lumber to Omaha has never been made as low as it is here.

Q. Did any of the lines meet your rate of forty cents to the Twin Cities?

A. The Northern Pacific did, and I think at that time it was the only line. I know Mr. Villard, a few months before we 2856 opened the road, said that a sixty-five cent rate was an impossibility. But they changed their mind on that subject.

Q. When you made the reduction in rates from the Pacific coast to the Twin Cities or to the Mississippi river, the head of the lakes, did you make a reduced rate correspondingly to interior points between the Mississippi and the Pacific?

A. Certainly; the long and short haul would compel that, wouldn't it?

Q. Well, I am asking as a matter of fact. The rate was uniform, was it,—a blanket rate,—covering the entire territory?

2857 A. The rate from points west of the Rocky mountains, Kalispel valley, was somewhat lower than the Pacific coast rate.

Q. Has the rate continued the same from that time until now, or has it been changed since?

A. It has not been changed; I think the rate has remained. It is a very low rate,—I think the lowest rate on lumber that is made anywhere.

Q. You have mentioned a reduction in rates of ten to fifteen per cent since the purchase of the Burlington road.

A. Yes, sir.

2858 Q. When was that reduction made?

A. During the last year.

Q. About when?

A. Oh, my recollection is that the merchandise reduction was made some time early in the year, soon after the 1st of January. The grain rate was made during the summer, but before the crop moved.

Q. Who directed the reduction of the rates?

A. On the Great Northern?

Q. Yes.

A. It was a matter of conference between the officers and 2859 myself. It was not a new thing, the reduction of rates on the Great Northern; it is not an uncommon thing. It is quite frequent. It has been for a number of years.

Q. Is that reduction, the one that was made early in the year, the one that Mr. D. H. Miller participated in while he was yet vice-president of the Great Northern, and its traffic manager?

A. Mr. Miller, when he was vice-president of the Great Northern, had to do with considering the reduction. The re- 2860 duction, the character of it, was one that made necessary a great deal of careful work. It was adjusting the distance tariff as well. The distance tariff, owing to changes in the mileage, had become a sort of patch work, and the rate was reduced substantially to making the distance tariff 105 per cent of the terminal tariffs,—the reduction varying in different localities; some places it might be 8 per cent and in others 25 or 30, but I think the average was about 15.

Q. My question, Mr. Hill, was whether the rate, the reduction that was made early in the year on merchandise, as you 2861 called it,—whether that was the schedule that was made by Mr. Miller, in which he participated?

A. He had to do with the matter while he was here. I am not clear as to whether, when the rate was made public, Mr. Miller was here or not.

Q. Were those reductions made on the class rates or on the commodity rates?

A. Largely on class rates and distance tariffs.

Q. Iron or steel is not in your class rates, is it?

A. I have not the classification here; if I had I could tell you. 2862

Q. Do you happen to know?

A. I do not. In carloads it would be in the special.

Q. Yes, I am speaking of carload lots.

A. Well, it would be in the special. But the classification would be a great deal more accurate than my memory.

Q. Then I will put it in another form. The reduction that you claim to have made, after the purchase of the Burlington, did not cover iron or steel, did it, Mr. Hill?

A. I could not say.

Q. Or coffee or sugar?

A. It is quite easy to get the tariff before and after, and 2863 that will show exactly.

Q. Yes. I am endeavoring to ascertain what you cover when you say a reduction of ten to fifteen per cent had been made after the purchase of the Burlington.

A. The reduction amounted to ten or fifteen per cent; the reduction amounted on grain to practically ten per cent, almost exactly ten per cent, as nearly as it could be made, in 2864 the West, and to substantially the same in the East; while the reduction of merchandise varied in different localities, and on the whole was about fifteen per cent on merchandise.

Q. This reduction of ten per cent that was made on grain, from what points to what points did that reduction apply?

A. From points on the line of the railways to the terminal points, where the grain moved to market.

Q. Do you mean to say that from all the points where grain was raised on the Great Northern, to the Twin Cities, the rate was reduced ten per cent?

2865 A. Nearly that, and some places more than that.

Q. And on the Northern Pacific likewise?

A. I am more familiar with the reduction of rates on the Great Northern.

Q. Well, you said the rates were reduced, in response to Judge Young, who made that remark, and I am asking you now if these rates applied on the Northern Pacific?

A. I am more familiar with the rates on the Great Northern, but I think an examination of the tariffs will show that it was substantially the same on the Northern Pacific.

Q. Well, now, did these reductions apply from all points on 2866 the Great Northern to the Twin Cities, on grain?

A. Substantially so, on all points where grain is raised.

Q. Yes, of course, I am asking you a practical question now, and where it operated.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At all points where grain was produced, had its origin, that reduction applied to the Twin Cities and also to the Pacific coast?

A. And to the head of Lake Superior.

Q. Yes, applied to all three: to the Twin Cities and the head of Lake Superior and to the Pacific coast?

2867 A. I understand that the reduction on the eastern end was not exactly ten per cent; in some cases it was more and in others not so much.

Q. Have you exercised a general supervision of tariffs over the Great Northern system during the past two or three years?

A. Not in a way of supervision. The changes that have been made, if they are of large consequence, have been a mat- 2868 ter of conference or advisement.

Q. Is it true that about the 1st of January, 1900, a new classification went into effect on the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and in fact on all the transcontinental lines west of the Mississippi river?

A. I could not testify as to when the classification went in. It is quite an easy matter to fix the date by getting the classification sheet.

Q. The change of classification, you may recall, Mr. Hill, on the 1st of January, 1900, occasioned a very great deal of dis- 2869 cussion throughout the United States; protests were filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and published in many of the newspapers of the land, regarding the official classification that applied east of the Mississippi river. At that time a new classification went into effect, applying upon the roads west of the Mississippi river, the Burlington and the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific. Do you recall that at all?

A. I do not. I know there was a great deal of discussion; I remember there has been from time to time very considerable discussion on the matter of classification and attempts 2870 to call for a uniform classification throughout the country. I never could understand any reason for it. I have seen the discussions and I have seen arguments in favor of it, but the conditions—

Q. I am not referring to the question of uniform classification.

A. I was answering this in regard to the "discussion." as I understood your question.

Q. No, not the uniform classification. It was the complaints of manufacturers and shippers that by reason of this classification that went into effect on the 1st of January, 1900, in 2871 the territory of the Great Northern road and the Burlington and the Northern Pacific, the rates were advanced from fifteen to fifty per cent on more than 250 articles of general merchandise. Do you recall that?

A. I do not, and don't think that it applied in any such way. Most of that business is carried under commodity rates.

2872 Q. Well, I am speaking now of the class rates that were changed.

A. I think that the business is carried under commodity rates and not under the class rates; I don't think the class rates practically cut any figure in it.

Q. These articles bore the class rates, and the articles were changed from a lower class to a higher class by reason of the change of classification; the rate was changed on the article. You don't recall that?

A. I do not.

2873 Q. You don't know whether that is or is not true?

A. I don't know whether that is true or not.

Q. Now, to get back to the question of the reduction of rates. You say you don't remember whether sugar and coffee and tea and oil and iron and nails and wire are carried in class rates or commodity rates?

A. Sugar is carried in class rates, I believe. I do not charge myself with the classification.

Q. Was the rate on sugar reduced?

A. I could not tell you, sir.

Q. Was the rate on oil reduced?

2874 A. I wouldn't undertake to say.

Q. Or nails?

A. I wouldn't undertake to say.

Q. Or oil?

A. You can get all that information from the tariffs better than from my recollection.

Q. I am trying to ascertain what you covered by your general statement when you said rates had been reduced ten per cent; I am endeavoring to ascertain whether rates were reduced on these necessaries of life.

A. Rates were reduced on the business of the railway, the 2875 business carried by the railway, and the reduction can be substantiated more readily by the tariffs themselves than by any other means.

Q. I thought perhaps you had looked into the question; that when you said there had been a reduction of ten per cent, you would probably know on what articles the reduction applied.

A. The reduction of ten per cent on grain on the Pacific 2876 coast; the reduction was ten per cent.

Q. Yes; that was this summer you made that change?

A. Yes, sir; and that was the reduction I alluded to; the reduction on the eastern end of the road was an average of about ten per cent. It might be a little more. In some cases it was considerably more than ten per cent, and in some cases not so much. The rate, however, would average about ten per cent. Then, the merchandise rate, I think, would average fifteen per cent of the existing rates.

Q. But you can't give what articles of merchandise the re- 2877 duction was made upon?

A. No, sir, I could not. The figures in my mind came from my general knowledge as to the effect upon the revenues of the company, and so on, and in discussing the matter with the accounting department and the traffic officers that was the effect of the reductions.

Q. You spoke of a rate that you put in from some point on Lake Erie to Hong-Kong on nails and wire, of forty-five cents a hundred?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your rate to the Pacific coast at that time on 2878
the same articles?

A. I don't know.

Q. Can you state, Mr. Hill, on how many articles the rate was reduced after the Burlington purchase?

A. The tariffs will give that information better than my recollection, and we will be very glad to furnish the tariffs.

Q. Yes; I am asking if you know.

A. I would not undertake to say, speaking from recollection.

Q. You only state generally that the rate was reduced on 2879 some articles, but you cannot state what they were, or the number?

A. I have stated, and tried to.

Q. You stated grain, I recall that. Now, on what others?

A. On merchandise.

Q. What do you mean by merchandise?

A. On all that comes under the class of merchandise. Now, lumber is not usually called merchandise, for it is carried in 2880 a classification by itself; and so is pig-iron; so is coal; so is salt.

Q. Did you make a reduction on those?

A. They were already very low.

Q. Did you make any reduction on those articles after the Burlington purchase?

A. I think not. I think those rates are lower here than they are in most of the states in the East, where they carry ten or fifteen times the tonnage—the density of traffic. I think the coal rate here is lower than it is on the Reading road, for instance, or on the Lackawanna.

2881

Q. How long has that rate been lower than on those roads?

A. Oh, several years.

Q. There has been a very bitter complaint in the East that the rate on coal on those roads is abnormally high.

A. I have often wondered why the gentlemen who are charged with the regulation of these matters did not take it up and help the public.

Q. Your astute counsel have had determined that question, I believe,—that the reasonableness of rates or the amount of rate was not a question that the public authorities could deal 2882 with; that would have to be left to the individual suitor. I think you got some such decision as that from the Supreme Court. Now, Mr. Hill, do you know what your gross earnings were per ton per mile of traffic, last year?

A. The year ending the 30th of June?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it?

A. .859 of a cent.

Q. Do you know what the average earnings of the roads of the United States per ton per mile were in that same year?

2883 A. I have not seen the figures up to the 30th of June.

Q. It was .729. Yours was what?

A. .859.

Q. The average for the roads of the United States was—

A. .729.

Q. .729. What was yours for the year ending June 30, 1901?

A. I could not recall it. It would be something higher; .860 something, I should think.

Q. Do you know what it was on the Northern Pacific? 2884

A. The Northern Pacific would be higher; probably in the neighborhood of .900.

Q. Do you know what it was on the Atchison?

Mr. Grover. .988.

A. I think the Atchison would be nearly a cent. I know I looked this morning; opening my mail I found the report of the Rock Island; I found that was 1.04 for the year just closed.

Q. I examined the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, their statistical report for the years 1900 and 1901, which is made on the sworn returns of your own road and of the other roads of the United States. 2885

A. Yes, sir, I have no doubt they are correct.

Q. And the average earnings for those two years were somewhat lower than yours, which brings me to ask you to explain wherein the Atchison rates are higher than your rates. You said yesterday that if you could have the same rates on your road that the Atchison gets on its, your earnings would be something over five millions in excess of what they now are on the same quantity of traffic carried.

A. If you will take the number of tons carried one mile by our road and multiply it by the average rate of the Atchison, 2886 I think you will find it will increase our income about five millions of dollars.

Q. But you didn't mean to have it understood that the rates of transportation on transcontinental traffic are higher on the Atchison than they are on the Great Northern or Northern Pacific?

A. In many cases they are.

Q. Are the classification rates not the same?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you file with the Interstate Commerce Commission all of your rates? 2887

A. I think so. All interstate rates I think are filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Q. The rates that are filed by both roads with the Interstate Commerce Commission are the same, the class rates.

A. Are they?

Q. They are.

2888 A. To common points?

Q. Well, to Pacific coast points and transcontinental and Asiatic traffic.

A. I think the rates on Asiatic traffic vary.

Q. They vary by water, but I am speaking now of the rail haul.

A. Take, for instance, the rate on lumber from the Pacific coast to Omaha or Kansas City, I know that that rate is higher than the rate to St. Paul or Duluth.

Q. Yes, but you say they don't carry any of that lumber.

2889 A. The Atchison?

Q. Yes.

A. They don't carry lumber from Puget Sound, but lumber does come from Oregon.

Q. From where?

A. From Oregon, to all the intermediate country.

Q. Does the Atchison participate in that traffic?

A. No, sir, not that I know of.

Q. No, I thought not. These rates that were put into effect in the early part of this year, went into operation on both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern about the same time?

2890 A. And on other lines in the same country.

Q. What other lines?

A. I think the Soo road had to modify its rate.

Q. Yes, they had to meet it to get participating traffic.

A. And the Milwaukee & St. Paul and other roads.

Q. Now, were those reduced rates that were put into effect in the early part of this year on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific the result of a conference between the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern traffic officers?

A. I think that all rates or all changes in rates are preceded by a conference between the parties interested. I think that 2891 is the custom.

Q. The result of an agreement? They agreed on these reductions and put them in at the same time?

Mr. Young. No, he didn't say so.

Mr. Day. I am asking him if that is so.

Witness. Not necessarily an agreement. Very dangerous to make an agreement in regard to rates. They find each other's views, and if one road wants to make the rate and to make a reduction in the rate and notifies the other, they are going to do it anyway, the discussion ends in their publishing a rate that is probably uniform. 2892

Q. Do you remember being at Chicago in January of this year when the subject of the combination between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific was under consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission?

A. I remember being called to Chicago to testify on the subject of community of interests, or something of that nature.

Q. Yes, community of interests. And consolidations and combinations of carriers. 2893

Mr. Grover. That was put into the title afterwards.

Witness. That was not in the notice that came to us there.

Mr. Day. You are in error in stating that, Mr. Grover. I do not regard it as of any special consequence excepting that you have publicly stated an error. The notice that went to you was a copy of the resolution of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and, among other things, it says: "And whereas, it appears to the commission that certain consolidations and combinations of carriers subject to the act, including the method of association known as the 'community of interest plan' should be made the subject of investigation." "Combination" was in it and was not put in afterwards. 2894

Mr. Griggs. Do you want this on the record?

Mr. Day. It is immaterial to me. I suppose the stenographer took it all, with Mr. Grover's remark, and then Mr. Hill said it was "community of interest," and of course it was, and the other thing as well.

Q. What I was referring to there was the testimony of Mr. Miller; Mr. D. H. Miller, who had been vice-president and traffic manager of the Great Northern.

Mr. Clough. D. Miller—not D. H. 2895

Mr. Day. You are right; Darius Miller.

Q. Mr. Miller there testified that in making up this schedule of rates that you speak of that went into effect early in this year, it was done under an agreement with the Northern Pacific and the Canadian Pacific, I think, and that the reductions which were made were made only in the class rates, and that coffee and iron and nails and oil and wire and sugar and 2896 tea were not covered by the class rates, that they were what he called commodity rates, and that there had been no reduction in the commodity rates. Do you remember that testimony?

A. I do not, sir; I don't know that I heard it.

Q. Mr. Hill, Judge Young put the question to you concerning reduction in rates following the acquisition by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific of the Burlington system, and the question was framed to give the impression that the reduction of rates was caused by the acquisition of the Bur-2897 lington. Is that the way you wish to have it understood—that it resulted from that and as a consequence of that?

A. The increased traffic growing out of the acquisition of the Burlington, or the acquisition of the Burlington was in a measure responsible for a portion of that increased traffic. The increased traffic, creating a larger revenue from a larger business, made it not only possible but we thought it wise to reduce the rates. The rates have been reduced always on the basis of the growth of the company's business, and in all the years, several years past, our company has had its dividend, that is all its shareholders get, and as our business 2898 increases, the volume of our traffic increases and our revenue increases, we are able to reduce our rates, and hope to be able to continue to reduce them for the same reason.

Q. My question was whether you wished to be understood as stating that it was because of the acquisition of the Burlington system by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific that this reduction in rates that you mentioned took place?

A. I understood the question and tried to make it plain; I hope I have.

Q. I simply wanted to clear up my own mind by asking 2899 you definitely if that is the way you wish to be understood.

A. I hope I have made the answer plain.

Q. Did you cause a reduction of the rates applying on the Burlington system to be made at the same time?

A. I had no desire and made not attempt to—

Q. The reduction applied—

A. I made no attempt to deal with the rates on the Burlington in any way.

Q. The reduction applied only to the Great Northern and 2900
Northern Pacific?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The roads in direct competition, going west?

A. In my testimony I alluded to the reduction on the Great Northern particularly, and also to the reduction on the Northern Pacific which corresponded with the Great Northern where they were at common points.

Q. You spoke yesterday, Mr. Hill, of the vast benefit that is to accrue to the people of this northwest territory, lying west of the Mississippi, from this acquisition of the Burlington by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific; that by 2901 reason of that acquisition you were going to give them coal here in the Twin Cities and in the manufacturing towns here in the West at lower rates than had been prevailing.

A. I would like the record read where I said that. I think that is not a fair statement of what I said.

Q. Well, then, I don't wish to be unfair; that was the impression it created on my mind, that you would be enabled by this acquisition to lay down coal here cheaper than it could otherwise be laid down and you could avert coal famine. Now, I wish to know whether any reduction in the coal rate 2902 from the Illinois coal territory to St. Paul or Minneapolis has resulted in the year and a half of your control of the Burlington system.

A. The Burlington has not been controlled for a year and a half, to begin with; and in the next place, I did not have, nor is my language susceptible of that meaning. I undertook to make it plain that the acquisition of the Burlington and the bringing of the interests of the Burlington into that of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern would make it possible to get coal for this country, and it was not possible to get a certain supply of coal in any other way except from Illinois. 2903

Q. Are the facilities for bringing coal over the Burlington road from Illinois greater by reason of your control of the road than they were when the Burlington was under an independent control?

A. The facilities and reasons for bringing it here are greater if we controlled the Burlington than if we did not. If we did not control the Burlington and they desired to send their coal

2904 to other places, we would fall very short of compelling them to bring it here; but I think—

Q. Does the transportation line direct where a commodity shall be shipped to, or is it the shipper, the consignor?

A. We could control that by buying our own mines, and be certain that we could bring it here.

Q. Oh, you could do it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you purchased any mines in Illinois?

A. We have to this winter. And I will answer that ques-2905 tion if it is germane to this examination; we prefer not to give our business away and advertise it to the world unless it is necessary.

Q. Well, then, I certainly have no wish to intrude upon your private affairs. But as you assigned that as part of your argument and as a part of the reason why the northwest was to be benefited by your possession of the Burlington stock or Burlington road, and you mentioned coal fields—

A. Well, our interest—

Q. I will ask you this question, Mr. Hill.

A. Well?

2906 Q. Has the Northern Securities Company coal mines in Illinois now, or had it at the time of the inception of this suit?

A. No, it had not at the time of the inception of this suit.

Q. When did the Burlington road pass into the possession of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. I think a year ago in July.

Q. The purchase was made when, concluded when?

A. Oh, probably concluded in September.

Mr. Clough. Yes.

Witness. A year ago last month.

Q. When was the contract made for its purchase?

2907 A. It was made during March and April mainly, but the completion of it—the final completion—was I think in September.

Mr. Clough. That is right.

Q. You spoke of the increase of business that had followed the purchase of the Burlington system.

A. May I, before the coal question is dismissed, endeavor to clear that matter?

Mr. Day. I have no objection, Mr. Hill, to your making 2908 any statement you wish.

Witness. I do not want to be misunderstood, and from the questions I think I have been. The Great Northern Railway Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company have an interest in this country and in people living here, and inasmuch as our winters are cold it would be difficult for them to live here without fuel, and it is a very serious matter —it is a very serious matter for the railways. We don't know now that we will be able to run our trains to the 1st day of February, with the lack of supply of 2909 coal, without bringing coal from Illinois, and we don't know but we will have to give up a portion of our supply of steam coal to keep people from freezing before spring,—and it is not due by any means to the anthracite strike, and I tried to make it plain yesterday that it was not; but it is due to the inability of the railroads between Lake Erie and the mines in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio to move the coal. They are unable to move the coal up to Lake Erie ports, and we are unable to get a supply. At this time we have not been able to get one-half of our purchases for the year, and navigation will close sometime next month. That is the importance of the 2910 control for us of access to the coal mines of Illinois, which are the nearest coal mines to this country, and the importance of that will be apparent more and more as time goes on.

Q. A question was put to you by Judge Young that left the impression upon my mind that traffic in carload lots, which came to your line in Burlington cars destined for the Pacific coast, was unloaded and reloaded into your cars before your acquisition of the Burlington road. Do you wish to be understood as making that statement?

A. I understood Judge Young to make that statement 2911 applying to all roads carrying traffic from the South, not limiting it to the Burlington.

Q. Did it apply to the Burlington road when traffic came in Burlington cars, carloads for the Pacific coast?

A. The same as it would to other railways.

Q. Was that the practice, that it should be loaded and reloaded into your cars, or did they go through in carload lots intact?

2912 A. They were generally transferred if they could be, because the mileage on (as we call it) a foreign car, a car of another company, going two thousand miles, was a very considerable sum; mileage of three-quarters of a cent a mile amounted to $15. $15 would transfer quite a number of cars. I mean $15 a car. That would pay for transferring a number of cars.

Q. You said yesterday that the reason for trans-shipment, or assigned it as the one that was operating in your mind, that the cars were not large enough.

2913 A. Many of the cars are not large enough. I think I alluded to shipments of cotton, cars from southern roads carrying a hundred or, in some cases, ninety bales of cotton, and our larger cars would carry 150 or 160 bales of cotton.

Q. What is the average capacity of your cars?

A. Well, it would be difficult to say without making a computation. We have a few cars of 30,000 pounds capacity—probably three or four hundred; then we have a number of cars of 40,000; we have a greater number of cars of 60,000, and we have a number of 80,000 and 100,000 pounds. All the cars we build are 80,000 or 100,000 pounds, and long cars.

2914 We have some box cars carrying 80,000 pounds, which are 44 feet long inside.

Q. How many cars have you, approximately, of 80,000 pounds capacity?

A. Oh, eight or nine thousand, I think.

Q. And how many of sixty thousand?

A. Probably eight thousand.

Q. When you referred to the small carrying capacity of cars, you meant the southern roads and not the Burlington?

A. I meant the roads south of here.

Q. Did you mean the Burlington?

2915 A. The Burlington has a larger proportion of small cars than we have on the Great Northern.

Q. A larger proportion of what?

A. Of small cars.

Q. But the Burlington has as many large cars as you have, has it not?

A. I don't think it has as large a proportion of large cars.

The Burlington has more cars than we have. It is an older 2916 and longer line.

Q. Now, to get back to the increase of traffic that was to come to you from the Burlington road by reason of your acquisition of it. Do you wish to be understood as stating that because the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern purchased the Burlington road, traffic was actually created by that fact? Or did you mean to say that you would get a larger portion of the Burlington's traffic by reason of your ownership of the Burlington?

A. Not by any means. The object was to make it possible 2917 to carry out a clearly-and well-defined plan. If we depended upon joint tariffs, if we depended upon lines of railroad coming here that had no interest in our road or we no interest in them—take, for instance, the St. Paul road, to illustrate, which has just been or is advertised as having been allied with the Union Pacific; the Chicago & Northwestern which comes here and has a contract with the Union Pacific; their lines reach away out to Omaha and into the Platte Valley; they have a direct interest in taking their business over their own lines and not bringing it here. Now, we wanted to be in a position where we were not subject to the good will or the 2918 changes of ownership of any railway; we wanted to be in a position where we could reach these centers, and to do that the Burlington gave more ground than any of the other lines, —practically, I think, as much as all of them. And it was to put us in a position where we would not be defeated in building up the traffic of these northern states and the northern line to the East.

Q. The question was so framed, Mr. Hill, that you were made to answer—it so appeared to me in reading it this morning and in listening to it yesterday—that by reason of the acquisition of the Burlington by the Northern Pacific and 2919
Great Northern, traffic was created. Now, you state, as I understand you, that by your control of that, you divert it so that you will get traffic that you formerly did not get, but some other route will lose, is that it?

Mr. Young. He didn't say so.

Witness. That is not the question or a fair statement of the question, as I understand it, and I think it has not any 2920 reference to the testimony as given; but, then, I will undertake to say that that is not as I understand it.

Q. I ask you now, then, do you state that the acquisition of the Burlington by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern will create traffic that would not otherwise exist?

A. It has created traffic. The figures show that the traffic has increased very materially. Now, how much of that traffic would have been created or would have existed, it is very difficult for me or anybody else to say. But we know that the traffic has increased since the acquisition of the Burlington, to an enormous extent, and we know further that we are able, 2921 not to compete alone with railways, for that is a small matter in this business, but to compete in the matter of rates with the ships going from New Orleans or from Galveston, or the railways carrying it anywhere, or in connection with any other system of transportation. Now, we are able to make a rate that will take that business. And it was that rate I had reference to, and that policy and that ability that I tried to make plain yesterday.

Q. Yes. Then, your traffic has increased since the acquisition, and because it has increased since the acquisition you 2922 attribute it to the acquisition?

A. We can trace a great deal of it to that.

Q. Is it not true, Mr. Hill, that the railroads generally throughout the United States, all of them, have had their volume of traffic vastly increased in that same period of time?

A. I think that you will find upon examination that few of them have doubled their export business, and we have more than doubled our export business, and our general business has increased 33 per cent.

Q. What proportion of your entire business is export?

A. I couldn't say.

2923 Q. What percentage?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Can you state what percentage of it is competitive, interstate?

A. I couldn't say; I have never seen the computation.

Q. Or you can't state what percentage of your entire traffic is local to your own rails?

A. No, sir; I have never made the computation. If I wanted 2924 the information it would not be very difficult to get.

Q. You say your export traffic has doubled. I thought perhaps I might get some notion of—

A. I happen to know the export traffic. My attention was called to it by the publication of the United States treasury figures, showing that there was an extraordinary increase in the export business from Puget Sound ports, much greater than that of any other part of this country. The department seemed to be quite rejoiced that they were doing so much business. 2925

Mr. Grover. We have all those figures.

Q. Mr. Hill, speaking of the Burlington, it was testified to in your testimony taken heretofore and engrafted into this case, that the Union Pacific interests (meaning Mr. Harriman and Mr. Schiff in particular, or one or the other) made an effort to purchase the Burlington in the fall, before you succeeded in negotiating its purchase. Is that correct?

A. Mr. Schiff told me that they had done so; in fact, Mr. Harriman told me they had.

Q. And that after you had negotiated or concluded the purchase of the Burlington, Mr. Schiff or Mr. Harriman came to 2926 you and wanted to participate in the purchase, to take a third interest,—or the Union Pacific.

A. That was before the purchase was completed.

Q. It was before; well, while you were negotiating?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You declined?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the Burlington system in competition with the Great Northern before the purchase of it by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

A. No, sir. 2927

Q. Was it in competition with the Northern Pacific?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was it in competition with the Union Pacific?

A. On some of its lines. It was in competition with the Union Pacific; on some lines I think it was a connection or run in connection—joint tariffs.

Q. You said yesterday that the purchase of the Northern 2928 Pacific by hostile interests, or a raid on the Northern Pacific, would have left the Great Northern in a helpless condition.

A. A successful raid on the Northern Pacific would have left the Great Northern in a helpless position or condition. Under the conditions it certainly would.

Q. Will you please state just what you meant by that?

A. I meant that inasmuch—

Q. By the raid and in the hands of hostile interests.

A. I meant that inasmuch as the Great Northern was jointly and severally responsible for over 200 millions of 2929 dollars, being the purchase price of the Burlington stock, that with the Northern Pacific owning a joint interest in the Burlington stock, one-half interest; with the Northern Pacific in the hands of a rival transcontinental line having its interests in San Francisco and from Omaha through the Platte Valley to San Francisco, that they would be in the position to make the Northern Pacific and the Burlington (as far as they could influence the Burlington) subservient to their southern interests, and they would be in a position to prevent them from building up or aiding in the development of the business that the Great Northern had worked long and hard 2930 to establish.

Q. Well, if, say, the Union Pacific had got physical control of the Northern Pacific, as it got actual control of a majority of its combined capital stock,—suppose it had gone on and got, as you feared it might, or anticipated it might, physical control of the Northern Pacific property, they could not have carried lumber any cheaper to the East or cotton any cheaper to the West than you could? It would not have crippled you in that respect, would it?

A. How would we get to the prairies of Nebraska and Kansas and Iowa and Illinois?

2931 Q. Just as you always have—by all the lines of travel that are open to you?

A. They are not.

Q. Six lines out of here?

A. Any one of those lines, or all of them, could at any moment withdraw their joint tariff from us. We could not control the business a day longer than they were willing we should, and we could not undertake to build up a great, permanent interstate and international business, or any such business. I think it would be ridiculous—the statement of it. 2932

Q. Section 3 of the Act to Regulate Commerce would give you a remedy in that case?

A. But we have learned that the Act to Regulate Commerce is a very peculiar act in the way it is enforced.

Q. Has either of these lines, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, or the Chicago Great Western, or the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, prior to your acquisition of it, broken through relations with you so that you could not get through rates to this territory? 2933

A. The Milwaukee & St. Paul for years refused to give us a joint rate at any of their junction points between here and Sioux City, and we cross them five times.

Q. When was that?

A. Every time we have ever asked them.

Q. What percentage of the traffic that the Great Northern handles either from the Pacific coast, east, or the Twin Cities, west, is destined for the middle west, for Colorado, Utah or Nebraska points?

A. That the Great Northern handles?

Q. Yes, sir. 2934

A. The Colorado and Wyoming and that business is more over the Burlington from Billings.

Q. Yes, but the Great Northern does not intersect the Burlington at Billings.

A. I spoke of the business as it affected those roads, and the Northern Pacific was one of them. Now, the state of Iowa is reached by the Burlington from here, the state of Illinois and the states east of Illinois; this lumber business now begins to seek markets as far south as Newport News.

Q. You might extend that argument on down to the Atlantic. 2935

A. It does go to the Atlantic.

Q. But the question I direct you to is this: With your exceptional facilities of being able by reason, as you say, of your low grades and the lower rates at which you carry this transcontinental traffic today than any of the other southern lines can afford to carry it, as you say, how would the possession 2936 of the Northern Pacific prevent your continuing to do that business which has built up your road and your empire?

A. The possession of the Northern Pacific by whom? By the Union Pacific?

Q. Yes.

A. Because if the Union Pacific controlled the Northern Pacific and controlled the Burlington to the extent that the Northern Pacific half-interest would control it, we would be deprived of any access that we could control for a moment longer than the good will of another company; and we could 2937 not go on building up a business on any such condition. And let me add, further, if I may, that it would have almost destroyed the value of the Great Northern property or its shares for its shareholders. I would have recommended them to sell their line at once on the best terms they could get.

Q. Competition would have been so severe you could not have stood it.

A. It was not a question of competition. It was a question of physical inability to reach the market. We would be shut out from the markets.

Q. What did you mean when you used the word "raid" on 2938 the Northern Pacific stock?

A. Well, the phrase is one that probably I borrowed from the common expressions in the newspapers,—an attempt to buy the stock or the control of the stock in the open market.

Q. Now, Mr. Hill, they got what percentage of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. I think they had all together 78 millions of common and preferred.

Q. Out of a total of 155 millions?

A. Yes. They had a majority.

Q. And what percentage of the Burlington stock did the 2939 Northern Pacific and the Great Northern acquire?

A. Oh, 98 or somewhere in the neighborhood of very nearly the whole of it.

Q. You have stated that the Union Pacific interests endeavored to buy (they told you so) or to purchase the Burlington and they failed, and then after you had secured an option on it they came to you and endeavored to get you to let them have one-third of it, and you refused that?

A. Did I say one-third? 2940

Q. Well, what ever percentage it was; I will withdraw that, I am not sure about that. That was the impression I had.

A. My recollection is a half.

Q. A half, is it?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. Whatever it was. And that was declined. You said the Burlington system was not a competitor with the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific, but was a competitor of the Union Pacific?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when the Great Northern and Northern Pacific pur- 2941 chased the Burlington stock, was that a "raid?"

A. Not at all. It was done by the consent of the directors of the Burlington and by their advice to their shareholders, and could not have been done in any other way.

Q. When was it the Northern Pacific directors approved of your contract to purchase the Burlington?

A. I do not know. I do not know anything of when the Northern Pacific approved it. The Great Northern directors approved the purchase of the Burlington in April, I think, 1901.

2942

Q. How long was that after you had contracted to purchase it?

A. Oh, about that time.

Q. Had there been a corporate meeting, a directors' meeting, to consider that prior to your purchase?

A. I don't know. The matter had been discussed between the directors, and had been discussed—

Q. I am speaking of a corporate meeting; at a meeting of the directors, I mean, where the subject had been considered.

A. I could not say from recollection.

Q. What was your individual holding in the Northern 2943
Pacific?

A. At what time?

Q. On the 1st of April, say, 1901?

A. Oh, between seven and eight millions.

2944

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Young:

Q. Mr. Hill, am I to understand you as saying that you made a contract for the purchase of the Burlington shares before a meeting of your directors?

A. Before a meeting?

Q. Before the meeting, in April, of your directors?

A. Why, I couldn't make such a contract. I could make a tentative arrangement that was subject to their approval.

2945 Q. And was that what you in fact made?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And no contract was made and nothing to bind the Great Northern Company until it was passed on by the directors?

A. I had no authority and could not do it, and the Burlington people would not take my contract if I had made one. It would require the act of the corporation.

Q. You have been questioned as to what effect or what injury the acquisition of the Northern Pacific stock by interests hostile to the Great Northern or hostile to the development of this Northwestern country, would have on the Great Northern Company. Now, I want to ask you what effect would such an acquisition of the majority or of the control of the Northern Pacific by a corporation which had greater interests in other directions than it had in developing the country traversed by the Northern Pacific, and making that property valuable,—what effect would that have on the minority stockholders of that company, including yourself,—on their property, their stock?

2946

A. The value of the property would be destroyed. Its growth would be restricted. It would be controlled in the interests of another property or body for the reason that it would be restricted or might be restricted so as not to interfere with the growth of the other property. We were making great efforts, and very successful efforts, at that time to settle up all this northern section between the Great Lakes and Puget Sound, and bringing in an enormous number of people, many of these people coming from the line of the Union Pacific in

2947

Kansas and the Southwest, bringing them up here. And I 2948 remember one reason why they wanted to get a joint interest in the Burlington; they said we were getting too strong for them, we were going down into their country and taking people from there. That was one of the reasons they gave.

Q. Mr. Hill, will you state whether or not, so far as you know, there exists any agreement among the shareholders of the Northern Securities Company in regard to whether they would hold or sell their stock or what use they would make of it, whether in voting or otherwise?

A. There is no agreement of any kind between the share- 2949 holders, that I know of, or have heard of, and I do not know how any agreement would be effective unless it was made by a very large number or majority of the shareholders.

Mr. Young. That is all.

Mr. Richards. That is all.

The witness was excused.

JAS. J. HILL.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of October, 1902.

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL,
Special Examiner. 2950

Mr. Grover. We haven't any other witness here at this time. I think it would be better to adjourn.

The further hearing and taking of testimony in this case was adjourned until the morning of Wednesday, October 22, 1902, at 10:30.

2951

St. Paul, Minn., October 22, 1902.

The hearing was resumed at the same place at 10:40 a. m. All parties present.

FREDERICK WEYERHAEUSER, called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, being duly sworn by the examiner, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

2952 By Mr. Young:

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Weyerhaeuser?

A. In this city,—St. Paul.

Q. What relation have you to the Great Northern Railway Company? What official relation to the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. Business relation.

Q. What official relation have you to the Great Northern?

A. I am a director of the Great Northern.

Q. When did you become a director of the Great Northern?

A. About a year ago.

2953 Q. What is your business?

A. Manufacturing lumber and selling it; dealing in lumber, manufacturing and selling.

Q. For how long a time have you been engaged in that?

A. Forty-six years.

Q. In what territory?

A. In the northwest, the east and south. The forests we have now in the south are mainly in Arkansas and Louisiana, and the forests west in Washington, and we have mills in Washington, Idaho, Illinois, Arkansas, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

2954 Q. How extensive was your business the last year in quantity?

A. We shipped last month something like 120 millions. Probably during the year over a billion, say from a billion to a billion and a quarter.

Q. Your concern is the largest manufacturer of lumber in the United States, is it not?

A. I don't know. They say so.

Q. You don't know of any larger one? 2855

A. No, I do not. Now I am talking of mills I am interested in. I don't want to give the idea that I own those mills. I am interested in about twenty mills and two sash and door factories, etc.

Q. I am speaking of the concerns in which you are interested.

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Are you acquainted with the lumber supply in the Mississippi Valley?

A. Yes, sir; that is where I have been operating for forty odd years. 2956

Q. How does the amount of standing timber in the Mississippi Valley, available for making lumber, compare with that in former years?

A. It is getting very short; the supply is getting very low.

Q. About how long do you think that you can continue lumbering at a profit in this valley?

A. I think five or six years will wipe out most of our mills, though the last tree will not be cut for some time to come in these states. I am speaking now mainly of Wisconsin and Minnesota and Michigan.

Q. How is it with your own mills in this valley? Are they increasing or diminishing? 2957

A. Diminishing. We get through sawing at Shell Lake this year and we are getting through at Haywood, so there are two mills less.

Q. And taking down those mills.

A. We used to operate three in Rock Island and one in Davenport, Iowa; we now have only two left in Rock Island.

Q. To what part of the country are you resorting for a supply of timber in the failure of this Mississippi Valley timber?

A. We have been buying in Idaho, Washington and Oregon. 2758

Q. What has been the extent of your purchases in Washington?

A. We own from 1,250,000 to 1,500,000 acres, in that state; about 200,000 in Oregon, and perhaps about the same in Idaho.

Q. Have you begun manufacturing lumber from any of that timber?

A. Yes, sir; we manufacture in Washington, and manufacture in Idaho.

2959 Q. Where is your principal market for the lumber which you manufacture on the west coast?

A. The northwestern states. I think probably we reach about 15 states and territories. We have shipped quite a little lumber from Washington to Jacksonville, Florida.

Q. But the great bulk of it is in the northwestern states?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what state furnishes the largest market?

A. I think Iowa; and eastern Kansas and Nebraska; Illinois is quite a good market, too.

2960 Q. And some, I suppose, in the Dakotas, and Minnesota?

A. Yes, we ship into Minnesota, Dakota, Idaho and other states.

Q. Over what railroads do you ship to those markets?

A. We ship pretty much all over the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and the Burlington and the different roads; we give them all some. Those are the principal roads.

Q. What part of Iowa do you ship the most lumber in respect to the lines of the Burlington road?

A. Over the entire line; there is hardly a little place that we are not shipping some to. In some places we ship a good 2961 deal; it depends on the size of the town.

Q. I meant to what portion of the state of Iowa, whether to the northern part or the part traversed by the Burlington lines, if you can say?

A. Well, we ship a good deal to Des Moines, Omaha and Kansas City; in fact, all over.

Q. What railroad in Iowa has the largest market for lumber along its line?

A. I always found the Burlington the best lumber line.

Q. In shipping lumber from Washington and other points on or near Puget Sound to points on the Burlington road, 2962 what advantage, if any, is it to be able to load your cars and have the lumber carried through on the same cars to its destination?

A. It is a great advantage.

Q. Will you explain why, how it is an advantage?

A. When cars are not very plenty, the roads will not let us transfer them from their road onto other roads, and in place of transferring the cars, they transfer the lumber; they do not handle the lumber as carefully as our people do, and sometimes we have a big car load which they try to put into a small car, and they can't get it in, and there is often some left over, and the lumber is damaged more or less by reloading it and handling it. 2963

Q. And what difference does it make, if any, as to your ability to obtain cars at all times?

A. Well, we have to wait until we get foreign cars for foreign roads. If they haven't got the cars for the points the lumber is consigned to, we have to wait until we get the cars, otherwise they transfer the lumber in place of the cars.

Q. Mr. Weyerhaeuser, does the Burlington road reach any of the pineries, as they are called, where timber is kept? 2964

A. No, sir; the Burlington road does not.

Q. When lumber was obtainable in the Mississippi valley as heretofore, from what points were places on the Burlington road supplied?

A. From what points?

Q. From what points.

A. The Burlington road used to get the bulk of the lumber in Chicago and haul it from Chicago. Since Chicago has lost its prestige as a wholesale market, why, they have got to go north for it and west, largely west. 2965

Q. And at the present time, and especially in the future, where must the country along the Burlington road look for its supply of lumber?

A. To Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

No cross examination.

FREDERICK WEYERHAEUSER.

Subscribed and sworn to before the undersigned this 24th day of October, 1902.

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL,
Special Examiner. 2966

2967

GEORGE B. HARRIS, called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, being duly sworn by the examiner, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Grover.

Q. Mr. Harris, are you president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway Company?

A. I am.

2968 Q. How long have you been connected with that company?

A. With that company or companies which are now part of it, or owned by it, for the last 36 years; most of the time for 36 years.

Q. How long have you been connected with it as president?

A. Since the formation of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway, about a year ago.

Q. Before that what?

A. Before that I was president of the company which preceded that.

Q. The Chicago,—Burlington Railroad Company?

2969 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have been for how long?

A. Well, I had been, as vice-president and afterwards president, for about ten years.

Q. What is the mileage of the Burlington in the state of Illinois?

A. About 1,500 miles.

Q. In Iowa?

A. It is about 1,400 miles in Iowa.

Q. How much in Nebraska?

A. About 2,400 miles. About 1,100 miles in Missouri; 260

2970 in Kansas; 400 in Colorado, and I don't remember just now the Montana mileage; 200 and odd, I think; 215, I think, but I won't be certain; 38 miles in Minnesota and 223 in Wisconsin.

Mr. Richards. How much all together?

Witness. There are about 8,200 miles of main track, counting straight main track, and about 464 miles of double track.

Q. Will the acquisition by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific of the shares of the Burlington restrain trade 2971 and traffic between the states and foreign countries?

A. On the contrary, I think that it will promote business very greatly and develop latent resources and enable forest, mineral and other products and resources to be utilized which are now idle.

Q. Speak on that subject with respect to general merchandise and manufacturing industries and products.

A. I think that the practical extension of the Burlington road to the Pacific coast, by reason of its connection or union with these two lines (whatever you may call it) and the practical extension of those lines into the Mississippi and the Missouri valleys and throughout all the country occupied by the Burlington lines, by affording an opportunity to merchants and manufacturers to extend their markets, that they will do it, and that the opportunity to trade will be taken advantage of to promote business and commerce. I think in respect to one item that has been brought to my mind since Mr. Weyerhaeuser was on the stand—the lumber business; we have a little over 2,400 miles of track in Nebraska; there is not a tree on it except the trees and shrubs that have been planted there in hedges and in timber-claims; there is no merchant lumber; there is no lumber that is cut in Nebraska and sold on the market; and lumber is a prime necessity. It is a necessity, to assist in settling up that country. People must have roofs over their heads, and they must have cheap ones, too, because they cannot afford to buy expensive ones. And anything that tends to put in good and cheap lumber into that territory is beneficial; we have a larger mileage than any other road and I think is distinctly an advantage to that country, as well as to the manufacturers on the Pacific coast and to the transportation lines that distribute it. I think we felt that in settling up the country. I think the need of lumber is felt. I was in Nebraska, for instance, and drove over the country before any rails were laid; there were only 50 miles laid west of the Missouri river when I went there, and people said that Nebraska was an uninhabitable country; there was no timber, there was nothing; there was good grass, an elegant climate; and I thought and others thought that the country would be habitable and be filled with a productive 2975 population. But lots of others thought we were simply boomers, as they do now, you know, about the development of these other western resources.

2972

2973

2974

Q. What was the supply of fuel in Nebraska?

A. There is no fuel whatever in Nebraska, except I have known some of the Russian Mennonites, who came there, to burn grass, tied together with iron bales, as they did in the old country; and I remember we used to burn sunflowers there; I have seen a great deal of corn burned there, and since our lines have been built through there and we have developed coal west of that territory and Wyoming and brought it in 2976 from Iowa, why, coal is a pretty cheap fuel,—and from Colorado also.

Q. How about the lumber supply in the other states, in the other states through which the Burlington extends?

A. There is no lumber supply whatever on the Burlington lines, with the exception of hard wood, and only a limited quantity of that.

Q. From what section of the country must the lumber supply come to those dependent upon it along your line?

A. Lumber has got to come entirely from the Pacific coast;
2977 there is no question about that in my mind. We get some lumber from the south, yellow pine lumber. Lumber used to practically all come from Chicago, and we hauled out an enormous quantity of it. I remember when I was a boy on the Hannibal and St. Joe Railroad I used to see about 20 cars a day being hauled out of Hannibal, and I thought the time would come when that continual drain, 20 cars a day, would simply ruin the country. There were scarcely any trees in it. There were mills then at Hannibal and Quincy and they have since been established, and then again mostly abandoned, at other points on the road, at Quincy, Rock Island, Davenport, 2978 Clinton, Lyons, Dubuque, McGregor, LaCrosse, Winona and elsewhere, and some of the smaller ones; those are the principal points, I think.

Q. What advantage is there or may there be growing out of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific ownership, over what would be the case if dependence was made upon joint tariffs for the exchange of traffic between the lines?

A. Well, in my opinion, it tends to develop these latent resources, to justify merchants and manufacturers in adjusting their affairs to do a continuous and a permanent business 2979 rather than one that may be cut off by anybody's volition from day to day, and they say, "That door has got to be closed." But ownership, common ownership, provides an open door and the means of access, ingress and egress, and people take advantage of it. Commerce flows in the line of the least resistance. It removes the obstruction.

Q. Speak in reference to agricultural products, if you will, and live stock.

A. Well, the Missouri valley, as is well known, and the Mississippi valley are great fields for the production of forage in all its forms; I think the best in the world, perhaps because 2980
I was raised there. It is a great corn country. All of the forms of stock feed is abundant, and it is probably the greatest place in the world to finish cattle, to bring up cattle and make good beef out of them. The cattle that are raised in the west very frequently come down there when the range is short of grass; they come down there to finish up on corn; come from all the western states, Oregon and Idaho and elsewhere, in great quantities.

Q. Now, of the ranges along the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, in this connection.

A. Well, we have had a good many cattle down there to 2981 finish. Some years when there is a big corn crop they flow in more than in others, but it is a regular business, and it is promoted and continued by the opportunity to come and by the interest of the parties that they should come.

Q. The cattle are loaded on the ranges, on the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and sent down there on the Burlington to feed and fit for market?

A. A great many of them are. We take our cattle up there in the spring, and they are the young cattle, they are raised up there to a certain age, and then they are brought back and 2982 finished on corn in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys.

Q. What is the market with respect to the sale of cattle and beef products on the Burlington?

A. I believe the Burlington rails reach every large packing point that I happen to think of now, except Sioux City. We reach Omaha, Nebraska City, St. Joseph, Kansas City, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Ottumwa, Chicago, and half-a-dozen 2983 other smaller points where cattle and hogs and sheep are packed in smaller quantities.

Q. Those places furnish, do they not, a large market for the cattle grown, fed or fattened on the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

A. Yes.

Q. And in the ranges?

A. Yes.

Q. What effect will attend the transportation of lumber on to the Burlington and the territory tributary to it, as affording 2984 return traffic over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, increasing the volume and the reduction of rates?

A. Well, it is obvious that a wagon which can go loaded both ways can afford to do business at a lower price than one which has to be hauled one way empty; and the lumber business, affording a constant supply of tonnage eastbound, enables the company to do west-bound tonnage and tempts us to do west-bound tonnage at the lowest price we can afford to in order to promote that business. We accomplish various things by doing that. We give the people of Nebraska and Iowa, where we have a great many lines, cheap lumber, which 2985 promotes trade there, promotes settlement. They build houses, make improvements, and it is an added inducement to people to settle there where we need settlement; and, indirectly, it helps us in other ways. Those people have got to wear shoes and clothes, and have tea and coffee.

Q. Speak with reference to coals and minerals on the line of the Burlington.

A. Well, with reference to coal, the Burlington company has in Illinois, as I say, about 1,500 miles, something more. I haven't been exact in these figures, but that is substantially correct. We reach a great many mines from the Streator 2986 district on the north to the district of which Centralia is the southernmost point in the south, and I don't know how many mines we reach in that district, but a great many; and some very large ones. A few years ago—a very short time ago, in fact—the coal supply on the Burlington lines in Illinois exceeded the demand to such an extent that the coal operators were beignning to be a little restive about it. They thought we ought to be able to hustle around and provide a market in some way, do something about it. But it was somewhat difficult to do that independently. The soft coal does not stand a great many transfers; it is friable, deteriorates rapidly, and must be taken from the mine to as near the point of consumption as possible without car transfer. So this country up here, being without coal— 2987

Q. You mean by "up here" along the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, Minnesota and Dakota?

A. Yes, this northern country and especially the lines of those two roads. We thought that that would afford us a permanent market for the large amount of coal that is to be had there at a moderate price. 2988

Q. And you would have an advantage, through shipment and exchange of cars, over the fluctuating conditions attendant upon a joint rate?

A. Well, in preparing for a very large business you could not provide cars, nor could the miners afford to work the mines and make the large expenditure that is necessary to do it in the most economical and efficient manner when the market was liable to be changed, or, as I said before, the door was liable to be shut any day by somebody saying, "Well, we think we will turn this current of commerce somewhere else; we would rather have it from some other place." The field, we think, is the largest, the cheapest. It will promote the mining of coal down there and the use of coal up here, and we can do that better than anybody else can. 2989

Q. With respect to ores smelted at points along the line of the Burlington?

A. Well, there are precious metals at various points on the Burlington road. The largest deposit of mineral on the Burlington road is in what we call the Black Hills country in South Dakota, in the western part of South Dakota, Deadwood, Hill City, Lead City, Custer, and all that country in there, it is all mineralized. It is all low-grade. There are very few great bonanzas in mines. But there is an enormous amount of highly refractory ore that costs a very large proportion of its entire value to reduce, and it is practically impossible to reduce that ore by using a barren flux or flux which carries no value. It must have an ore which is complementary and which also carries value to act as a flux to enable its treatment. Some ore 2990

2991 has been heretofore procured from the western country off the Northern Pacific to complement the refractory ores of the Black Hills, but it was practically impossible to procure the establishment of the necessary smelters down there. That business is all right today, but it might not be tomorrow. Somebody might say tomorrow, "Well, I guess we don't care to exchange cars; we don't care to pro-rate with you, you had better go some place else and get your wet ores." Well, the dry ores cannot be treated so advantageously; they can be treated by cyanide and chlorination and other processes, but 2992 they cannot be treated so advantageously as they can with ores that are complementary to them. The people with whom we talked about the establishment of mineral reduction works said that. They said, "We can't go in there and make an enormous expenditure and leave it liable to be changed at any time; we don't know just how long it will last." Partially for that reason we had negotiations under way for the purpose of making a contract for a definite term of years, for ten years, for instance, so as to in a measure satisfy those people until fortunately, as I thought, and others thought—

Q. A contract with whom?

2993 A. A contract with the Northern Pacific, for an absolute connection at that point so that neither party could close the door and that the merchant or manufacturer might be safe, for that term at least, in settling down there with his business.

Q. You refer to the junction with the Northern Pacific at Billings?

A. At Billings; I was speaking of that, because I had in mind the Black Hills ores.

Q. When was the line extended to Billings?

A. Well, I don't remember exactly; it was about 1892 or 2994 1893.

Q. What justified the building to Billings in the mind of the Company?

A. Well, it was very hard times then, and I was rather anxious to induce the directors of the Company to build a railroad. I rather liked to build them, and they sometimes didn't like to operate them, but I got them to do it occasionally. I met a gentleman who was then connected with the Northern Pacific Railroad, and he said that Mr. Weyerhaeuser 2995 had told him that the lumber that would flow over a line built in that country, to connect at or about Billings (the exact point of connection not being fixed) would be a very valuable thing for the lumber merchants of the West, for the settlers in Nebraska, for the railroads, and perhaps incidentally that he could make a little something out of it himself. So I mentioned it to some of our directors and finally brought them together with some of the Northern Pacific people, and it was discussed. And that was one of the controlling considerations which led to the building of that branch up there; the 2996 idea being that, with the connection there, the Northern Pacific would practically be the western extension of the Burlington and the Burlington would be the eastern extension of the Northern Pacific to the field that it reached and especially the Missouri valley where it made a short and direct line.

Q. Now, the contract to which you refer related to making permanent an exchange at Billings between the Burlington and Northern Pacific in the handling of traffic?

A. A contract was to be as permanent and definite as possible in its terms, providing that the Northern Pacific and the Burlington should co-operate in doing all that could be done 2997 to promote the free and copious flow of traffic through that gateway.

Q. How long was this matter of a contract considered? How long prior to the purchase of the stock of the Burlington?

A. Well, I don't remember dates so very clearly, but it was a comparatively short time. The contract was under consideration and this other matter came up, and of course that furnished us so much better and so much more permanent and unbreakable an arrangement that the contract of course was abandoned; they never thought any more about that.

Q. Now, what advantage was thought would be derived to 2998 the Burlington shareholders, or those interested in the property, by the sale to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific instead of to other interests?

A. Well, there was more or less discussion about that, of course; and, in view of some other opportunities and possible opportunities, it was thought by the directors that it would be necessary for the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern 2999 to actively use all of the Burlington lines in order to utilize the investment; and if such a thing should happen as that the property should come back, that it would come back in first-class condition, that there was no part of it that the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern could afford to permit to fall into disuse. It would be to the interest of those companies (that would be the best bond that it would be done) to develop the territory, and they therefore thought that the paper that they would get and offer to their 14,000 stockholders—about 15,000 stockholders—would, on the whole, be a 3000 better piece of paper than they would be likely to get elsewhere.

Q. What points are the principal smelters on the Burlington, where are they located?

A. Well, the largest smelters on the Burlington road are at Denver, Omaha, Aurora and Chicago. The Chicago smelter, I believe, is not doing now as much as the others. There is one thing that I happen to think of now in respect to ore or minerals that I didn't mention: the drift of Illinois coal north, that we hope to be able to establish, we hope may be about equal (and very large in volume) to a drift of ore south,—iron 3001 ore from the deposits reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and that the union of interests makes it feasible to provide equipment to prepare for the business and to do it, and we already have assurance from some parties that they will engage in that business on a scale of considerable magnitude.

Q. At what point?

A. Well, in the Mississippi Valley, down in the vicinity of St. Louis.

Q. The ore you now speak of is the iron ore—

3002 A. The iron ore.

Q. Of the Mesaba ranges?

A. Yes.

Q. Going to the Mississippi Valley to be smelted, and coal returned in the cars?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What effect would such a transfer and exchange in traffic have upon rates, stimulating the business?

A. Oh, the general trend of transportation prices, that is 3003 the price received by the carrier for services, is downward, and we must prepare to meet it and we are preparing to meet it. In fact that is a large part of what we have been doing for the last two or three years. And all this business (this ore business and the coal business and the lumber business and all other business) must be done at the very lowest price, and all barriers must be taken away. The lowest price and the best service sets the pace for everything and everybody else; they have to come to it or drop out.

Q. And the lowest price rates come from being able to load 3004 trains both ways?

A. To load both ways.

Q. With large train-loads and low grades?

A. That is obvious.

Q. What manufactured products or interests on the line of the Burlington are such as are demanded in interstate and Oriental trade?

A. Well, there are—in fact, in the first place all articles that are produced from iron and steel I believe are produced on the Burlington road, many of them in large quantities and some of them in small; implements, vehicles of all kinds, 3005 engines, boilers, fixtures, steam and water pipes and fittings. It would be very difficult to enumerate them. We have got one town I believe where there are about 400 factories. Now you would be surprised to go into the freight house and see the things that are produced in that town. I remember one thing: there is a man there that makes incubators. You go into the freight house at any time, and I guarantee you will find incubators going to every civilized nation in the world,—a small one here and there—big and little.

Q. Now there are large rail manufacturing plants, are there 3006 not?

A. Yes.

Q. Nails and wire?

A. Yes. The Missouri towns are all drifting into manufactures, and on a considerable scale too. The markets have moved west. With the movement of the markets westward a great many manufacturers have moved west. Manufacturers who were in the Hudson Valley a few years ago are 3007 now found in the Mississippi Valley and some of them in the Missouri Valley.

Q. You reach in fact the largest manufacturing points in the state of Illinois, do you not?

A. Illinois has a very large manufacturing interest, and I believe that we reach from eight-tenths to nine-tenths of the factories of the state. We have, or did have a short time ago, the largest mileage in the state of Illinois of any railroad in it. I am rather inclined to think that the Illinois Central at the present time has about as much or possibly a little more, 3008 but we have over 1,400 miles.

Q. One thing more I want to ask you now; that is in reference to cotton goods, raw manufactures and the export of it, as respects the Burlington.

A. Cotton goods of various kinds are manufactured in some considerable quantity and the manufacture is increasing. I speak now of the manufacture of the cloth into articles of various kinds, at St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph especially, and there are other places where it is increasing considerably. The cloth is manufactured at Denver (cotton cloth) in large quantities and we are hoping to promote that trade 3009 very greatly and believe that the opportunity to trade without obstruction (in fact helping it) will promote that business, as it does all other branches of trade.

Q. Now at what points do you connect with rivers and lines leading to the south, giving you in that way access to the cotton fields?

A. Well, we connect at some points west of the Missouri river with the Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; and at the Missouri river with all the lines that extend from the Missouri river to the Gulf; and at St. Louis with all the lines that extend to the Gulf and also to the Atlantic sea-3010 board; and also have a connection with the river there and a very extensive river frontage. Our scheme has been laid out at St. Louis with a view to some extent of the river and its increasing importance.

Q. Well, you have connection with the river and rail lines reaching all the cotton-producing states?

A. Yes.

CROSS-EXAMINATION. 3011

By Mr. Day:

Q. Mr. Harris, when you were stating the mileage of the Burlington, I don't recall what mileage you gave that the Burlington system had in the state of Minnesota.

A. I think about 38 miles; about 40.

Q. And in the Dakotas?

A. In South Dakota—well, I don't remember; I ought to know, but there are so many things I ought to know and don't —you may call it 200 miles.

Q. And in North Dakota? 3012

A. No, we have no miles in North Dakota.

Q. And what in Montana?

A. Well, it is about 145 miles from Sheridan to Billings, and we built about 120 miles from Toluca down into the Big Horn Basin, and that is (a part of it) in Montana, and a part of it extends down into Wyoming. I should say—oh, you might call it 220 miles perhaps. That is approximately. I will give you all these figures exactly if you desire to have them put in the record.

Q. No, you have been giving approximations. 3013

A. Yes.

Q. I wanted to carry you on into these other states that I didn't know you had spoken of. Prior to January 1st of 1901, had it been discussed by the board of management of the Burlington road to extend the Burlington on farther into the Northwest?

A. No, there hadn't been any serious discussion of that for a long time, except to make some connections which were then considered and which are now being considered and may be or may not be done as a determination is reached hereafter.

Q. My question was whether it had been discusssed prior to 3014 January 1st?

A. I don't think it had been seriously discussed.

Q. By the management or board of directors?

A. I had to do with it I think individually—I don't claim to have had all to do with it, but I was in active charge of all the property of the company and the things that were done 3015 and not done were frequently, perhaps usually, on my recommendation.

Q. It had been in contemplation to do some building to the Northwest?

A. North of Billings you mean?

Q. Yes.

A. We had thought of building and we had made some surveys, and are still making some surveys, about a line running north of there to or for a connection with Great Falls. With that exception—3016 Q. Now I am directing your attention to a period of time prior to January 1st, 1901.

A. Well, since what time before that?

Q. Prior to the negotiations for the purchase of the Burlington by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern.

A. Well, ten years before that (in round figures) we made reconnoissances through that country, but we had decided not to build. There hadn't been any recent serious consideration of building into that country.

Q. But I am asking you now whether it had been considered. Had it not been considered by the board of directors, 3017 and the subject discussed, looking to the building of the Burlington on to the north, to connect with the Great Northern there?

A. I don't remember that it had, Mr. Day. I don't think it was ever seriously discussed in the board or discussed at all for that matter. We had made reconnoissances all over that country, as we had all over every other country in the western country, but that was a matter of information. We have always been doing that, simply to have it in case we ever wanted it in the future, without any serious present intention.

3018 Q. When was the survey made in reference to Great Falls?

A. Well, we have been polishing it up quite recently.

Q. No, I am asking you when it was first made. I am speaking now of a period prior to the purchase of the Burlington road by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific.

A. Well, sir, we made a reconnoissance across there but we did not make what we call a survey; we didn't finish it up, we didn't tie it together, but we sent a man across there with an aneroid barometer and on horseback; he probably got a 3019 pretty good idea of that country; and followed it up with a little party just to make a reconnoissance, and I think that was—oh, that might have been about the time that we built to Billings. That was a little before the time we built to Billings. I remember it now. We graded a track across the Northern Pacific tracks at Billings.

Q. Now state what other preliminary surveys were made under the direction of the Burlington road looking to its extension into the Northwest territory, north or west of where it now has its line?

A. We never made any at all. 3020

Q. Was that under discussion or contemplation—extending it—by the board of directors?

A. It never was to my knowledge seriously discussed, and I don't think it would have been discussed unless I had known it.

Q. How long were you president of the Burlington road, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company?

A. Oh, about a couple of years, or such a matter.

Q. Was it contemplated to extend the Burlington westerly over towards the Pacific coast, say from Denver northwest or 3021 west?

A. We made surveys; the Burlington Company made surveys from Denver in a westerly direction, oh, twenty years ago.

Q. Any surveys, preliminary or otherwise, subsequent to that?

A. Yes, we have looked the country over there at various times.

Q. Well, just tell now what has been done, what was in contemplation.

A. Well, there hasn't been anything done in recent years. 3022

Q. What was contemplated by the board of directors or the management of the Burlington road?

A. Nothing by the board of directors. The management was always exploring the country, sending people out to make preliminary surveys, so that in case the question ever should come up seriously the management would be able to say to the directors, "Why, these are the facts."

3023 Q. You explored this western and northwestern country by engineers or people competent to do it, in anticipation that your board might some time wish to take up the subject?

A. In case the time ever came when we desired to reach the question or the board asked for it we wanted to be able to say to them, "Gentlemen, here is what we know about it."

Q. To recur to the lumber question, the paucity of lumber in Kansas or Nebraska or portions of those states that the Burlington rails reached, before the merger in 1901, were Kansas and Nebraska points on the lines of your road supplied—its demands supplied—with lumber?

3024 A. Why, of course there was lumber there; people could not exist without it, but this gave another source of supply of superior lumber at a moderate price.

Q. What source of supply?

A. The northwestern country.

Q. Particularly what do you mean by that? I ask for information.

A. Well, that lumber could not get into that country before that connection was made.

Q. What lumber?

3025 A. Well, the Oregon and Washington,—the lumber west of the Cascade range.

Q. Does it go to Nebraska now?

A. Quite freely.

Q. What character of lumber is that?

A. Well, there are all kinds of lumber that go there.

Q. Well, what is it you bring from Washington and Oregon to Nebraska?

A. General merchant lumber, all kinds. I could not give you a schedule of the stuff that comes in there. I presume the lumber dealers could do that.

3026 Q. You are testifying to your knowledge of the subject and you are the witness. I want the basis of your own information, your own statement.

A. Well, I noticed very shortly after that connection was made that there were stocks of lumber along there, and I was informed that it was Oregon lumber; and I think I noticed an improvement in the way of houses and corrals and all that sort of thing; that was due, perhaps, to an additional supply of lumber, and partly to better times. Nobody could figure 3027 it out and tell you exactly how much was due to each, but we thought some portion of it was due to that fact.

Q. How was that brought to Nebraska?

A. By Billings.

Q. By way of Billings?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did that come off the rails of the Great Northern?

A. It came off the rails of the Great Northern, a part of it off the Great Northern; that is, it didn't come to us from the Great Northern rails, but I have been informed that some of 3028
the lumber originated in the western country on the Great Northern and was transferred over to the Northern Pacific and brought down to Billings.

Q. Is that the short route from Oregon points to Nebraska, the points in Nebraska that your rails reach, to come by way of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and Billings?

A. I think that the Northern Pacific and our line form a short route not only to Nebraska but to the Mississippi and the Missouri valleys.

Q. Well, my question was whether that was the shorter route from Oregon points, where this Oregon lumber came 3029 from, to Nebraska?

A. I think it is.

Q. By way of Billings?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much shorter is that than by coming by your western route?

A. That is by way of—

Q. The Oregon Short Line, say.

A. The Oregon Short Line and Denver?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, our connection there was by the D. & R. G., (Den- 3030 ver & Rio Grande), our principal connection, and the Billings connection was several hundred, perhaps 200 miles. I would prefer not to testify to that because I don't remember the exact distance.

Q. Shorter than the D. & R. G.—

A. Yes.

3031 Q. —Which you say was your principal connection?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But was it shorter than the shortest route that was open to you by way of the Short Line?

A. I am quite positive it was shorter than the short route.

Q. Quite a substantial difference?

A. Yes, quite a substantial difference.

Q. Any difference in the rate?

A. I don't remember about the rates.

Q. You don't testify, then, that the lumber was laid down 3032 to the people of Nebraska at any lower rate by reason of this—

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Well, what was the difference in the rate?

A. I can't tell you what the difference was, but I do know there was a material difference in the rate, a very large difference in the rate, after we had made this arrangement for the through rate to Omaha. This stuff was brought from its origin to the Missouri river and all points west of there at a rate which was very much less than that lumber was ever laid down on our lines before that time.

3033 Q. When was this?

A. Just after the opening of the Billings line.

Q. You state that your published tariffs were lower, from the Pacific coast, say Portland, on Oregon lumber to Nebraska, by way of the Billings route, than your published rate by way of the other route?

A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. I am asking you if you do say that?

A. No, I don't. I don't remember what it was. I do remember that the published rate was reduced after the—at least the published rate that was established; I don't know it was 3034 reduced, because I don't think there was a rate in between those points before; but when the Billings line was established and the connection made at Billings, the rate on lumber from the Oregon district to the Nebraska territory reached by the Burlington road was introduced and it was lower than any previous rate.

Q. The rates, when they were established, were uniform by all the lines?

A. I can't say that, Mr. Day; I don't remember. 3035

Q. On the lines that were open to you.

A. I can't say that; I don't think they were. I think we were able to make lower prices, we certainly were to a very large part of our territory (and I think all of it) by the Billings line than we were otherwise.

Q. When was this route open to the Billings line?

A. I think about 1893.

Q. Oh, you are speaking of that point; is that when the reduction was made?

A. When the reduction was made. 3036

Q. Oh, at that time You are not speaking of the time of the merger?

A. Oh, no.

Q. The rates from points on the Pacific coast to points on the Burlington line in the state of Nebraska, the published rates, are they any different by your western connection (your Denver connection) than by your other connections?

A. I couldn't testify to that without examining the tariffs. I did have all those tariffs and rates in my head, but I haven't got them now.

Q. The facilities over the Burlington for getting coal to St. 3037 Paul and Minneapolis,—do you wish to be understood as stating they are greater today, by reason of the merger, than they were before?

A. I think they will be very decidedly greater.

Q. I am asking you what they are in fact.

A. What they are today?

Q. I am asking about facts, and not your speculations as to the future.

A. Well, there has been some change. We have been spending considerable money in reducing grades, putting in sidetracks to accommodate longer trains, and that work is par- 3038 tially done now.

Q. You have been doing that for years, extending—

A. Not on any such scale as we have been for the last—

Q. Do you wish to be understood as stating that coal that was brought by the Burlington to St. Paul and Minneapolis from the Illinois coal fields before the merger was unloaded and reloaded here?

3039 Mr. Young. One minute. I would like to know what is meant by "the merger". We have heard a great deal of that. I don't know that there is anything in the pleadings about that.

Mr. Day. Mr. Harris used that himself, or a similar term.

Mr. Young. I don't think he used that term. I think this is the first use of it.

Mr. Day. No, I beg your pardon. The witness knows precisely what I mean.

Mr. Richards. He used the term "union",—the union of 3040 these lines.

Mr. Griggs. The joint purchase of the Burlington. I think the criticism of Mr. Day's use of that term is just, because it does not convey any idea as to whether he means the joint purchase of the Burlington or the formation of the Northern Securities. I suggest you make the time definite by some other phrase.

Mr. Day. Well, the witness seemed to understand. He was responding to that term for some time before.

Witness. Oh, I supposed—I am kind of a mind-reader, and while I didn't know what the word meant, I thought I knew 3041 what you meant. (Laughing.)

Mr. Day. Well, I am perfectly satisfied with Mr. Harris' response to my question.

Witness. That is all right. I will tell you anything I know, my mind is perfectly open.

The following question was read to the witness. Do you wish to be understood as stating that coal that was brought by the Burlington to St. Paul and Minneapolis from the Illinois coal fields before the merger was unloaded and reloaded here?

3042 A. I don't know that it was all unloaded and reloaded here, but I do know that at times it was unloaded and reloaded here, and I think that some degree of common interest will prevent that and create an economy. That is my opinion about it.

Q. You are speaking as to the future.

A. And that we have already, to a very considerable extent, been preparing for that. We have purchased cars, additional ones; we have extended some sidings and are still extending them and making arrangements so as to haul long trains without delay. 3043

Q. Coal that came by the Burlington road, destined for the Great Northern road, prior to the union or prior to the purchase of the Burlington, coming in carload lots, was bulk broken here?

A. There was no permanent rule about that. It depended on the conditions from day to day. One day there might be plenty of cars and the Burlington would say, "We will let our cars go through"; another day the northern lines might have a surplus of cars and they would say "You can load all our north-bound cars with coal." But there was no permanent arrangement for doing this today and tomorrow and all the days after that in the year, as we are doing it now. 3044

Q. The general rule was not to break bulk?

A. There were times when it was all broken, and when we would not let our cars go through and they would not give us cars to go south; when the Burlington wouldn't let their cars go north and the other ones wouldn't let their cars go south. There was no rule about it; it simply depended on the will or volition of the superintendents and the car men who judged the situation from day to day. 3045

Q. Who controlled their volition, their determined judgment?

A. The ultimate control was in the board of directors, and that sifted down through the president and manager and superintendents and trainmasters.

Q. Who controls it now?

A. Well, it is still in the board of directors, I guess.

Q. Yes, where is the change, then?

A. There is no change whatever as far as that is concerned. The roads are still absolutely controlled,—our road is still controlled by its board. 3046

Q. What outside force has entered into it?

A. What outside force? Do you mean what persons?

Q. Yes,—that has changed the policy or you would expect to change the policy. What has changed the policy?

A. Simply a change in interest, a union of interest.

Q. And how has it manifested itself?

3047 A. Well, it has manifested itself by our decision that the business is likely to be permanent enough so that we can buy engines and cars and make physical changes in the roadway to meet this business that seems probable.

Q. Who has given any instructions regarding those facilities?

A. The board of directors.

Q. The who?

A. The board of directors.

Q. Who else?

3048 A. Nobody.

Q. Have you had any instructions from the board of directors?

A. Any formal directions from the board of directors?

Q. Yes; different from what you had before?

A. Oh, no.

Q. Whom do you look to now, who is the directing man that tells you what to do or what shall occur?

A. Well, there hasn't anybody told me what to do. I have trusted in some degree to common sense, thinking perhaps that I had a little bit of it.

3049 Q. No doubt of that, Mr. Harris, I have no doubt of your ability as an operating railroad man and as a traffic man. But you now have two masters. Who directs your policy, the policy of the Burlington road?

A. The board of directors is charged with the duty and has the power of directing the president and all the officers.

Q. The board of directors of what road?

A. The Burlington & Quincy.

Q. The Burlington & Quincy Railway Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Who composes the board of directors of the Burlington
3050 & Quincy Railway?

A. Well, I will give you a list of them.

Q. Well, name some of them that you can think of.

A. Well, I am a member. Mr. Hill is a member. Mr. — let's see, have you got the list there? It is a very simple matter, but I don't—

Q. Who composed the executive committee of your board of directors?

A.Mr. George W Perkins and Mr. — I am on the board. 3051
Only been to a few meetings.

Q. Mr. Harriman a member of your committee?

A. Yes.

Q. Of the executive committee?

A. Yes.

Q. Whom do you consult with on the committee? From whom do you receive instructions regarding the management of the property or how these facilities that you have been speaking of are to occur in the future?

A. I have consulted with everybody. I have consulted 3052 freely with Mr. Hill.

Q. Yes. Now, who else?

A. I suppose, being a mind-reader, as I said before, that that was what you desired, and it is all right. I haven't received any instructions. I have been told to—the directors in a general way have made me president of the company and I am expected to go on and do whatever I think best. There has been no radical change of any kind or character, if that is what you desire, so far as I know.

Q. Well, have you received any instructions respecting any 3053 changes that are to be made that did not exist before, under the old management?

A. I can't recall any just now.

Q. What members of the board of directors have you discussed the policy of the Burlington road with?

A. Oh, when I have been in New York, the few times I have been there, with all of them. If you will just give me a list or if I could look it up—

Q. I am asking you respecting your recollection. I have no objection to your looking at the list.

A. Well, just for the minute I couldn't remember. I have 3054 talked with all of them.

Witness was handed a piece of paper by Mr. Young, on which was written the following: "Ex-Com., Harris, Hill, Clough, Perkins, Schiff, Harriman."

Q. Have you talked to them when they were sitting as a board?

A. As a board and individually.

3055 Q. How often has the board of directors of the Railway Company met since you have been president of the new company?

A. Oh, I couldn't tell you that, without examining the record.

Q. How often have you met with them?

A. Oh, I have been in New York I suppose four or five times.

Q. Have there been four or five meetings of the board of directors of the Railway Company since you have been presi-3056 dent?

A. Well, now, I couldn't tell whether the meetings were formal meetings of the board or simply informal meetings with the members, but those things I haven't laid any great stress upon because a man as a member of the board would act in the same way as he had already expressed himself as an individual. I have never required that he should clothe himself with the authority of the board in discussing matters.

Q. Mr. Harris, sometime ago you were a witness and testifying regarding the Burlington Railway Company, a consider-3957 able time after its organization. My recollection is you testified at that time that there had been no meeting of the board of directors of the Railway Company, certainly none at which you had been present. I would like to know now how many meetings of the board of directors of the Railway Company there have been, if any, since you became president.

A. Well, there have been meetings, but I can't tell you without consulting the record, I can't tell you the number.

Q. Well, do you state that you have or that you have not had any instructions from those whom you regard as your 3058 superiors in the management of the Burlington property, involving a change of the management of that property, since its acquisition by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern?

A. That is a pretty broad question, and I shall answer it broadly by saying that I don't remember to have received any orders or directions as to a change in the policy of the company. Questions of physical adjustment, and all that sort of thing, have been talked over.

Q. After the purchase of the Burlington, were the rates on 3059 lumber by way of Billings to Nebraska and Nebraska points (interior points) changed?

A. I don't remember whether there have or have not been any changes in the rates. The question with us was of maintaining the connection and of being able to increase the business and increase the supply of lumber, as well as getting it cheaper.

Q. I understand you to say that you don't know whether the rates have been lowered or raised?

A. I can't tell you that.

Q. All these routes from the Pacific coast to Nebraska that 3060 are open today were open before the merger were they not—before the union?

A. Well, there is a question as to what "open" means. If it is a permission to contribute business, why that is one thing. They are all open. If it means a reciprocity, which is the only condition under which business can be successfully done, there hasn't been any. Business cannot be done simply by saying "You may do it." There must be some reciprocity; there must be an exchange; there must be a tonnage in both directions; there must be a desire on the part of the buyer 3061 and the seller, as in any commercial transaction.

Q. At how many points did the Burlington system touch the Union Pacific system?

A. Well, I couldn't tell you that without looking at the map. There are a great many points.

Q. Can you give an approximate notion?

A. Well, there is Kansas City, Beatrice, Omaha, Grand Island, Kearney, and I don't know how many other places where there are small junctions or crossings; a good many places, mostly in Nebraska; some in Colorado.

Q. Prior to the purchase of the Burlington, was the Bur- 3062 lington by the way of Billings in competition for Pacific coast traffic with the other lines?

A. Why, the Burlington did all the Pacific coast business it could by the way of Billings, and to the extent that it got it away from other lines of course it was in competition with them. Yes, all lines that reach the Pacific coast, I suppose, competed for the same business we did by the way of Billings.

3063 Q. What proportion of your Pacific coast traffic (north Pacific coast traffic) went by way of Billings?

A. I can't tell you. Well, all the North Pacific coast business that we controlled at that time in the Missouri Valley, a large part of it in the Mississippi Valley, I should say south and east of Burlington, went by the way of Billings.

Q. As compared by your Denver route, (by way of Denver), which route took the most of your Pacific coast traffic —North Pacific coast traffic?

A. Well, of the North Pacific coast traffic I think—I have 3064 no doubt—without being able to testify exactly—that the bulk of the business went by the way of Billings. I say a very large majority of all of it, no question about it.

Q. Is Billings the terminus of the Burlington in the Northwest?

A. Yes.

Q. By what route did it then pass to the Pacific coast?

A. Over the Northern Pacific.

Q. Do you maintain any agents at Seattle or Portland or Tacoma?

A. Yes.

3065 Q. How many?

A. Well, we have an agent in Portland who has general charge and jurisdiction over all the other points, and we have an agent in Seattle and one in Tacoma and I think one in Spokane and I believe one in Butte. It was so a little time ago, and I don't think there have been any substantial changes; there may have been one or two put on or possibly one or two taken off, I don't know, I don't think of any; I don't think of any changes.

Q. You stated that the general trend of rates received by the carrier has been downward. Do you mean the published 3066 rates or—

A. Yes, I mean the published rates. The business is getting to be more and more so that it is conducted in public. There is less and less secret business all the time, and I hope the day will soon come (with your assistance and others who are interested in the subject) that there will be none at all. I don't want to see it. I want everything done right out in public—publicity for everything in regard to all these carriers, as far as I am concerned. That 3067 is what I believe in.

Q. Could you give a list of the articles on which the published rates have been reduced?

A. I could not. There is a long classification. And in a general way, the amount that we received is decreasing per ton.

Q. You spoke of the class rates or classification. Is it not a fact that on the first of January, 1900, a new classification went into effect in the United States, north of the Ohio river, whereby more than 500 articles were taken out of lower 3068 classes and put into higher classes?

A. Well, I heard you say so yesterday and I am ashamed to say that is the first imformation I had on the subject. I don't know whether it was so or not. And in explanation of that I will say that I haven't been quite as close to that subject as I was a time ago. I don't know quite so much about rates and classifications as I did when I was living with them every day.

Q. Now, when you were testifying as to your opinion of the advantage of this union—the advantages of this union,—were you speculating as to the future or were you stating ad- 3069 vantages that have already accrued to the public?

A. Well, I think they have accrued in a small degree, but to no such extent as they are likely to accrue when we get through talking about it, when all these things pass away (as I think they will), when people are satisfied to settle down in business and when the question as to whether things that have been done and put together are going to stay together or going to be torn asunder; when merchants and manufacturers feel that they can settle down and do business today and tomorrow and forever without having the question raised by somebody. I have no question about it, 3070 but some others have. These manufacturers say "Well, we don't want to establish places for the reduction of minerals." For instance, in order to economically and profitably treat these minerals it requires two ores to do it, one of which must be procured from one line and the other from another, because it all depends on the chemical composition of the ores. "Why," they say, "we guess we will wait a while."

3071 Q. Where do those ores come from?

A. Well, the particular ores that I have in mind come from the Northern Pacific and the Burlington, and they are also found in the Great Northern territory.

Q. They had been coming together before, had they?

A. In a very small way, and we haven't been able to bring them together yet, for the reason I stated, in a large way.

Q. Do you wish to be understood as claiming or stating that the manufacturing towns and manufacturers on the Burlington system rely for their raw materials on traffic relations with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, or your traffic 3072 relations with them?

A. I did not say so. I said I thought that the business would be very greatly extended.

Q. What that would be or might be.

A. That barriers would be broken down and that the ease with which business can be done will promote more business.

Q. You have always brought raw materials to the manufacturers on your line from other connecting lines, have you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. They have been well supplied, have they not?

3073 A. Fairly well, yes.

Q. The company is developed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Burlington system has been pretty well managed in the past?

A. Well, I hope so.

Q. In order to continue the general prosperity or to advance the general prosperity of these manufacturers in the towns on the Burlington system, was it necessary or needful that the Burlington system should be owned by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

3074 A. I think that was the very best disposition that could have been made of the property for the interests of the merchants and the manufacturers and the industrial population and the agricultural population along the Burlington road; I think it gives them additional resources, aids in the development of latent resources, and represses none.

Q. But you are unable to state any circumstance or fact that has yet occurred that has contributed to their prosperity?

A. I have endeavored to state that there were cases where 3075
the conditions now under consideration—

Q. I am speaking of facts that have occurred, not what you hope may come in the future.

A. Well, may I ask if you will kindly restate your—

Mr. Day. The stenographer will read it to Mr. Harris.

The following question was read by the stenographer: "But you are unable to state any circumstance or fact that has yet occurred that has contributed to their prosperity?"

Witness. That is, a fact as to what?

Q. That has added or that has resulted in substantial ad- 3076 vantage, material advantage, to the manufacturing towns in the territory in Nebraska that you are speaking of, these manufacturing places.

A. I think in a general way—I can't put my finger on the exact amount or quantity of traffic, but I think commercial transactions have undoubtedly occurred that would not have taken place. I think the people who are trading and manufacturing are looking up the territory and are doing the business. I can't put my finger right on it and say "There is so many dollars, or so many pounds or so many tons of anything."

Q. All these avenues were open to them before? 3077

A. Well, as I said before, there is a difference between an avenue being opened and having permission, and having an interest in bringing something about.

Q. Well, you say there have been no instructions from the board of directors or from the management whereby you as president of the Burlington Railway changed the policy of the Burlington Railway Company?

A. They didn't have to instruct me. It is an obvious fact that where a community of interest of that kind exists everybody will be disposed to aid it to the very greatest extent.

Q. That a man will use his property to make out the most 3078 of it?

A. He naturally will; he naturally looks after his own.

Q. And the Northern Securities Company will manage the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, which are its property, so as to make the most for the Northern Securities Company, following that line of argument?

3079 A. Well, I couldn't testify to that. We have had no directions from the Northern Securities Company yet.

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Young:

Q. I think you stated you have been president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway Company for how long?

A. Well, I don't remember now. It is about—

Q. Two or three years, I believe?

A. A couple of years, somewhere along there, more or less;
3080 it is a short time.

Q. Immediately before that time what position did you hold in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Company, and what particular branch of the business of the road was in your charge?

A. I was vice president; I was second vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, having general charge of the traffic, operation and maintenance of the existing properties and construction of such new lines as were undertaken. General charge of all the lines and property of the company in respect to traffic, operation, construction and maintenance.

3081 Q. For how many years were you vice president?

A. Well, I left here, I should say about ten years ago; previous to that time I was president of the Burlington & Northern here in St. Paul.

Q. You say you were president of the Chicago, Burlington & Northern Railway Company?

A. Yes.

Q. That is a part of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system, is it not?

A. It is now.

3082 Q. And that is a road extending from Minneapolis and St. Paul down the Mississippi river and connecting with your lines, to St. Louis and Chicago?

A. Connecting with the old C., B. & Q.

Q. That is the line over which your coal would naturally come if brought by the "Q" from Illinois?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is the line over which your iron ore, or anything else which came from Northern Minnesota or came through 3083

St. Paul, would go on the "Q" line?

A. Naturally.

Q. What special advantage has this Mississippi river line of yours for carrying great volumes of traffic at especially low rates?

A. Well, it is a low grade line; it has no grade in either direction for some 300 miles in excess of about 16 feet to the mile; and it is light in curvature, having no curve (except in one place) in excess of three degrees. And it is a line, by the way, that we can produce a line from here to St. Louis at a 3084 very moderate expense; and that is one of the things now under way, on the same basis. That is to say, not to exceed 16 feet to the mile in either direction in grade and considerably under three degrees in curvature,—one and a half probably, or one.

Q. You say "Produce a line to St. Louis." Do you mean to put existing lines to St. Louis in that condition?

A. By economical and slight changes in existing lines; we readjust it. I should have said readjust it, instead of produced, because we already have the line.

Q. How long trainload can you haul with a single loco- 3085 motive on this Mississippi river line that you have spoken of?

A. I think we can hitch up to haul regularly, day in and day out, in the vicinity of 3,000 tons to the train, of the right kind of freight; heavy freight, coal, ore, pig iron or similar articles.

Q. You were asked whether the factories and mills on the Burlington road had been supplied with their raw material, prior to the purchase of the Burlington stock, by these other companies. I will ask you whether you ever carried them any iron ore from Lake Superior.

A. I don't think we ever did. I don't think we ever had any 3086 iron ore. I don't think we ever transported but one lot, and that was taken as a sample lot some years ago. I may be wrong about that, but that is the only recollection I have of any ore over the line.

Q. You were inquired of by plaintiff's counsel less with reference to Washington lumber (as I understood it) than Oregon lumber, and as to whether (I think it was) the Oregon Short 3087 Line would bring it to some other point. Whereabouts in Oregon are the lumber forests situated?

A. Well, about that I would say, and I would like with the permission of Mr. Day now to say that in speaking of that lumber I spoke of all the lumber west of the Cascade Range, the Pacific slope lumber. I had in mind no particular mill or no particular forest and I supposed that was the scope of the inquiry.

Mr. Day. I so understood you.

Witness. I meant that western lumber.

3088 Mr. Day. The witness had used the words "Washington and Oregon lumber" and I used that to draw his attention to that route, the Oregon route, the Short Line route. I understood him precisely as he has testified.

Q. Mr. Harris, whereabouts in Oregon is that lumber situated so far as you know,—the standing timber, in any quantity; in what part of the state?

A. Well, I would rather refer you to Mr. Weyerhaeuser as to that. I know in a general way about that lumber, about the quality and character and the extent of the supply; but when you come down to details, I have only been there two or 3089 three times and I would rather not attempt to testify.

Q. Do you know whether there is any lumber in the central or southern part of Oregon (any standing timber or merchantable timber for lumber)?

A. Well, I should certainly say not. I don't know of any.

Q. You have been over that country?

A. I have been over the Short Line, and I guess I have been over all the lines of railroad.

Q. Well, is there any merchantable lumber on the Short Line?

A. I don't remember any; I don't remember seeing any.

3090

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Day:

Q. When did you cease to act as president of the Burlington & Northern?

A. I don't remember the date. It was the time the Burlington & Quincy bought it, I think. I won't be certain that my connection with the corporation ceased at that time.

Q. About when was that, Mr. Harris? 3091

A. Well, I think that I left here about twelve years ago, and that was at the time when the Burlington & Quincy took possession of the C., B. & N. I was, by the way, president of the Burlington & Northern Corporation, and I may be now for all I know. My reply, Mr. Day, I would like to explain meant that what I had in mind was the date when the change took place, when I ceased to be an active officer of the Burlington & Northern Company as an active corporation and became an active officer of the Burlington & Quincy.

Q. You are, as far as you know, yet president of that? 3092

A. Well, I may be.

Q. Now, when you became vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system, you were the traffic manager, you had charge of the traffic of the entire system; that was a part of your jurisdiction?

A. My title was not that of traffic manager; I was vice president and was in general charge of operation, traffic and maintenance.

Q. The Burlington & Northern from that time until now continued to be a part of the Burlington system? 3093

A. Yes; it was practically a part, and the exact corporate change I wouldn't want to—I suppose what you meant—

Q. I am asking for the substance of things.

A. Yes; I didn't want to mislead you at all.

Q. You stated to Judge Young that that was the route by which you brought the coal from the Illinois fields to Minneapolis and St. Paul. What, roughly speaking, was the volume of that sort of traffic?

A. Well, at times it was pretty heavy, and at times it was pretty light; depending on the volition of the consumers up here, and that was one of the things that leads me to think 3094 that with a continuing interest to bring it there we will be able to handle that large tonnage.

Q. The tonnage was larger at certain seasons than others?

A. Yes; and it was larger at times because the dealers said or the roads said—the Northern Pacific said "We will burn some coal we have got up here at the head of the lakes," 3095 or "Buy coal from somebody else." Or the Great Northern said so, or the dealers bought from somewhere else.

Q. Well, during the season or the times when coal was moving in large volume, about how many carloads a day did you bring into St. Paul?

A. I can't tell you now, Mr. Day.

Q. Many?

A. Oh, I remember in a general way that for a while our coal tonnage was heavy, but there have been so many figures that they have completely disappeared from my mind.

3096 Q. Was any considerable portion of it destined for points on the Northern Pacific and Great Northern in the state of Minnesota?

A. I remember at one time we brought a very considerable quantity of coal for one, and perhaps both, of those companies.

Q. Well, Mr. Harris, I want to ask you, in view of your knowledge of the situation, if coal brought by the Chicago, Burlington & Northern destined for points in Minnesota on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads was broken bulk here?

A. A great deal of it was.

3097 Q. What were the facilities, how was it done?

A. Well, that was not done by us, and therefore I can't describe it in detail. The coal was transferred by the dealers and we required them to do it because we wouldn't let the cars go through.

Q. The dealers, where the coal was billed through from your road to points in Minnesota, unloaded it here?

A. Coal was very largely handled by the dealers; the local dealers north of here as a rule bought their coal of dealers located in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Q. I am speaking now of the coal that was billed through 3098 from points in Illinois to points in Minnesota beyond St. Paul and Minneapolis.

A. Yes; that is the same coal. At times that coal was transferred.

Q. How was it transferred?

A. Transferred by the dealers.

Q. What were the methods, what were the facilities?

A. Well, I suppose they had transfer tracks and shov- 3099 eled it out.

Q. Isn't it a fact that where coal was transferred, destined for points in Minnesota, that those were exceptable instances?

A. I can't say about that, Mr. Day. It is very difficult to testify definitely about those things that happened so long ago. There was a good deal of it that was transferred and there was a good deal that went through, but I can't tell you the exact quantity. I can't give you a correct idea about it because I haven't got it myself.

GEO. B. HARRIS.

3100

Subscribed and sworn to before the undersigned, this 23rd day of October, 1902.

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL, Special Examiner.

The further taking of testimony was thereupon adjourned by the Examiner until the morning of Thursday, Oct. 23, 1902, at 10 o'clock.

3101 St. Paul, Minn., October 23, 1902.

The hearing was resumed at the same place at 10:30 a. m. All parties present.

It is stipulated by counsel for the respective parties to this cause that the reading of the testimony to each witness by the examiner is waived; that each witness shall read over his testimony and thereafter sign the same in the presence of the examiner.

W. P. CLOUGH, recalled as a witness on behalf of the de-3102 fendants, testified as follows:

Examined by Mr. Grover:

Q. What official connection did you have with the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. I was the first vice-president from the time the name was changed from the Minneapolis & St. Cloud Railroad Company to the Great Northern, sometime in the latter part of the year 1889, until a little more than a year ago, when I resigned all of my official connection with the Great Northern Company, about a year ago.

3103 Q. Previous to your becoming vice-president of the Great Northern, what official connection did you have with the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Company?

A. From 1887 on until some time last fall I was second vice-president of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba.

Q. You may state in this connection your official relation to the Northern Securities Company.

A. I am a director, a member of the executive committee, fourth vice-president and general counsel.

Q. And your official relation to the Northern Pacific?

A. Since December 11, 1901, I have been a director and a 3104 member of the executive committee of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Q. What official relation have you at the present time with the Great Northern Railway Company?

A. None whatever.

Q. That relation ceased about a year ago?

A. About a year ago.

Q. During your relation with the Great Northern Railway Company, was the subject of organizing what we call a holding company, or making use of one, mentioned in your presence and mine and discussed by Mr. Hill, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. James and other Great Northern shareholders? 3005

A. Yes, sir, those suggestions and discussions, to a certain extent, began years ago. I couldn't in my memory now fix the precise date when that began, but certainly as long back as five years ago. Mr. Kennedy, particularly, who was getting along in years himself, began the suggestions, I think; I think they came from him perhaps originally,—that certain of the shareholders of the Great Northern Company who had originally gone into the properties in the '70's, and all of whom 3106 were getting old, should make an arrangement to put their shares in these properties (the Manitoba and Great Northern properties—it had gone from Manitoba shares into Great Northern shares) into a company for which they should receive the stock of that company.

Q. State the purpose or declared object of organizing or making use of such company.

A. The gentlemen who were to be considered in that connection, and whose co-operation was desired and intended were about eight or ten men who had originally gone into 3107 the St. Paul & Pacific Securities, along about 1875, '6 and '7, when the lines were in a state of bankruptcy. They had retained their interests in the property and increased them (their investments) as time had gone by, with the result that they had made very large gains; and the securities they held and had acquired from time to time up to within two or three years ago amounted to very large sums; and it was the desire of those gentlemen, in the event of any of them passing away (and it was believed that all of them would pass away in a comparatively short period of time), that as they had co-operated together and acted in view of the mutual and common 3108 interest in the past, that their stock should be put in a position so that the stock of those parties in the future would stand about in the same or similar relation to each other that they had in the past; that the value of the securities should be preserved, as far as possible, by a continuation of the policy of building up the property of the company, and in event of a sale of the holdings of any of them that those of the 3109 rest of them should be treated in the same way and be subject to the same conditions. That was the general idea.

Q. Was the matter mentioned or discussed during the early winter of 1891?

A. Of 1891?

Q. 1901?

A. 1901, yes, sir. I went to New York, arrived there on the 15th day of March (either the 15th or 16th), 1901, and have remained there practically all the time since. Mr. Kennedy was about to take a trip to Europe, and he again revived the suggestion in regard to the formation of what he called a 3110 holding company, to take the Great Northern shares of himself and his old associates that I have mentioned.

Q. You mean Mr. John S. Kennedy?

A. Mr. John S. Kennedy, yes, sir; the gentleman who has testified before in this case. And he suggested, as time was advancing with himself and his old associates, that the matter should not be long delayed. He went away very soon, and as time permitted the subject was taken up, from time to time, and working upon the proposition was continuous until the formation of the company, the final filing of its articles in No-3111 vember following—November, 1901.

Q. Did you take part in the drawing of the articles?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take charge of the matter?

A. Mr. Kennedy, I think, talked to me on the subject quite as much as Mr. Hill did. Very soon after Mr. Kennedy went away the question was more closely considered, and it was thought desirable, if a company of that kind were formed, that it should have the stability that a charter beyond the power of legislative amendment would give, and such a charter should be acquired for it if possible. It was known that 3112 the territory of Minnesota, before the admission of the territory into the Union, had granted a great many charters for financial and other companies, and it was thought possible that some of those old charters could yet be found on foot that would contain the powers that would be considered necessary for the purpose, and that would at the same time be legislative contracts with the state of Minnesota so that they would be beyond the power of amendment. An examination into that subject was set on foot, and Mr. Grover, who was 3113 on the ground here, was entrusted with the subject of looking that matter up. That occupied, necessarily, quite a considerable time, and I believe we didn't get the report of Mr. Grover (I am stating from recollection now) until some time in May. By that time Mr. D. Willis James, another of the gentlemen whom I have spoken of as being one of the early investors in these properties, had returned from California, and renewed suggestions of a character similar to those he had made before. Mr. Samuel Thorne came back about that time. He was another of them and he concurred in that view. Lord 3114

Mount Stephen and Lord Strathcona, who were two others, had directly and indirectly sent communications from England of a similar character. So that it was regarded as settled that as soon as the matter conveniently could be reached the holding company should be formed. The result of the inquiries into the territorial charters in Minnesota was, as I remember now, that nothing of a nature deemed entirely satisfactory could be found; and the idea of getting hold of an old special charter was dropped. The question then came of the formation of such a company under the general incorporation acts of some state that contained legislation permitting such 3115 corporations to be formed, and that was a matter of discussion for a considerable period. There were several states suggested as having appropriate legislation on that subject, and among them I remember were West Virginia, New Jersey and New York. That inquiry necessarily occupied considerable time, especially in view of the fact that I was very busy in connection with the carrying through of the purchase of the Burlington stock; I had been from March. The negotiations for the purchase of that stock began almost immediately after I arrived in New York, in March, and the completion of those negotiations, the making of the contracts for the purchase of 3116 the stock, the preparation of the mortgage and the bonds and the signing of the bonds, and the other necessary labor was very great from March, all the way through until along in September, when the bonds had been signed and the completion of the purchase of the stock had been made. But as time could be gotten the questions that came up in connection with this company were given attention; and I remember that be-

3117 fore the subject of the selection of a particular state was decided—long before that—

Mr. Beck. What particular state did you say?

Witness. The selection of the particular state.

Mr. Beck. I just wanted to see if I understood.

Witness. The selection of the state, yes, under which the company should be incorporated. Long before that was determined, at the suggestion of Mr. Kennedy, I had sketched out the substance of a statement of the powers of a corporation such as was contemplated. Another hindrance was the fact that the parties who were to be interested in this new 3118 corporation were very much scattered. Mr. Kennedy, who was the most active of all except Mr. Hill, and quite as active as Mr. Hill, was not in very robust health. He went to Europe, I think, about the first of April, somewhere along there, and did not return until June. About the time he got back to New York the weather became very hot, which affected his health considerably, so that he left almost immediately for Bar Harbor, and consultation with him was very difficult. But this draft was made, as I remember (the first draft), after his return; I am quite sure it was after his return in June from 3119 Europe and before his departure from Bar Harbor, some little time after that. It was not determined at this time either the state under which the incorporation should be made or the amount of the capital stock.

Mr. Beck. Would you mind, Col., telling what year you are speaking of now?

Witness. Last year, 1901. I thought I had made that clear. Beginning at March, and lasting through that year. As Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Thorne and Mr. James (they were the gentlemen who were principally consulted) could be seen, the matters of the state where the incorporation should be 3120 made and the amount of the capital stock were discussed, and also (in a general way) the powers. The sketch of the articles of incorporation that I have mentioned left blank the name of the incorporation, the state under whose laws it was to be incorporated, and the capital stock. After discussion over the subject of powers with Mr. Kennedy, at various times, and with Mr. James as there was opportunity to see them, changes were made in that draft. I think between June and October there were probably two or three different sketches made, 3121 and the matter of capital stock and of the state where the incorporation should be and its name were not finally decided until these various gentlemen had gotten back from their summer places and there had been an opportunity to have a more extended consultation with them. But some time along in the month of October, as I remember it, most of the matters had been decided except the state where the incorporation should be made. That was about the last thing to be decided. In the preoccupations of all of us we did not reach that until along in November. As soon as parties could be consulted 3122 who were immediately interested, the state of New Jersey was decided upon, and steps were immediately taken for the incorporation of the company, which followed by the filing of the articles on the 13th of November.

Q. State, as near as you have in mind, the number of shareholders of the Northern Securities Company.

A. At this time?

Q. At this time, and when this petition was filed in this proceeding.

A. When this petition was filed there were about 1,300 shareholders; there are now about 1,800,—of the Northern 3123
Securities Company.

Q. You refer to the shareholders who have registered their stock and appear on the records?

A. Yes, that is what I have reference to. The only knowledge the officers of the company have is the stock transfer books, and there appear on the stock transfer books now about 1,800 names. When this suit was begun, there appeared about 1,300 names.

Q. Had you knowledge of the fact of transfers of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific to the Northern Securities Company? 3124

A. Yes, sir, I knew about that; it was all done under my supervision.

Q. You had general charge of the New York office of the Northern Securities Company?

A. As far as it is entrusted to the officials; the business affairs of the Northern Securities Company are, under its char-3125 ter and by-laws, controlled by its board of directors and its executive committee.

Q. You were in the office and had charge of the office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, state whether the transfers were individual, absolute, without reservation, and without solicitation from the Northern Securities Company—fully?

A. To answer the first question, every purchase of stock that has been made by the Northern Securities Company (whatever stock it may be) has been by direct individual transactions and negotiations with the owner of that stock except 3126 in the one instance that I have referred to in my previous testimony of the purchase of the Harriman and Pierce stock, where J. P. Morgan and Company negotiated the purchase and the purchase was assigned to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Now, were the transfers absolute?

A. They were absolute and unconditional in every case.

Q. Were they solicited by the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir; in no case. The Northern Securities Company, 3127 some time in November, I have forgotten the precise date, I think it was the 22nd, issued a circular to each individual stockholder of the Great Northern Railway Company, of which a copy has been introduced.

Q. Were you present in the office of the Northern Securities Company at the times when holders of shares came there to make transfers or to make inquiries?

A. Yes, sir; I was there constantly in attendance at all times during practically every business day from the time of the organization of the Company until, I might say, last Friday. I believe I was absent during the summer occasionally Saturdays, but practically every business day since its organization 3128 until last Friday, when I left for St. Paul, I was in the office during the business day and practically all the business hours.

Q. Now, were a considerable number of transfers made there by parties appearing personally or by their representatives?

A. Yes, sir, quite a good many people brought their stock in personally; many others sent it by mail.

Q. What information or suggestions were made to them 3129 respecting the transfers?

A. Why, there was nothing special; the transaction would be that the individual would present his Great Northern stock, or Northern Pacific stock, as it might be, and ask to sell it to the Company and to receive in pay the stock of the Company. When litigation against the Company was threatened, I think in every instance that fact was communicated to every person bringing his Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock to the Securities Company to sell it. And after a little time, after litigation had been begun by the state of Minne- 3130
sota in the Supreme Court of the United States (that was, if I remember right, early in the present year, about the first of January, 1902), the Company had a rubber stamp made, of which I haven't a copy of the impression here (I forgot to bring it), but it was to the effect that the person who offered his stock to the Securities Company for sale had been informed by the officers of the Company of the pendency of the litigation, and that was stamped upon each application. In order to keep our records straight, we had a blank form of offers to the Company, and that was stamped upon the application. 3131

Q. What considerations led to the fixing of the capital of the Northern Securities Company at $400,000,000?

A. In the early part of the active consideration of the formation of this Company it was expected that the holding Company would acquire the shares of eight or nine of the old investors, as I call them, amounting, in the aggregate, to a little over $30,000,000, perhaps 31 or 32 millions of dollars; and, at that time, when the question of capital stock was suggested, it was suggested at a comparatively small figure, but after the so-called raid of the Union Pacific interests on Northern Pacific stock, which culminated some time along 3132 about the 8th or 9th of May or a little after that, it was expected to take into the company the interests—the Northern Pacific interests—or the holdings, rather, of Northern Pacific stock of those parties and of a few other gentlemen who were friendly with them. The Northern Pacific holdings amounted to a little over $40,000,000 of the common stock. So that along up until the end of July the stock suggested

3133 (the capital stock of the Northern Securities Company) was about 150 to 200 millions of dollars. I might mention in this connection that it was also expected, very soon after the matter commenced to take form last season in New York,—it was also expected that the Securities Company would acquire the stock of other companies, industrial concerns in the country where the railroads operated, that were of the character that the railroad companies themselves could not well hold, such as coal mines and iron mines and properties of that character; and there was always intended to be left a very considerable 3134 margin above what was needed for the railroad stocks to take care of these outside stocks. And the discussion and suggestions of the amount of the capital stock, along in June or July or up to early July, rather, were around from 150 to 225 millions of dollars, one gentleman suggesting one thing and another, another; and it ran along that way until I think after Mr. Morgan got back from Europe. If I remember rightly he got back about the Fourth of July, and some time after he got back he was, I believe, asked whether he would sell his Northern Pacific stock to a company of that character. I think he had five or six—or his firm owned or had in their possession
3135 five or six millions of the Northern Pacific capital stock. Some time after his return, he expressed his willingness to sell his stock to a company of that character, but upon the condition that all other holders of Northern Pacific stock (common stock) should have like privileges with him, if they desired to exercise them. I might say at this time it was known, became generally known, that a plan for the retirement of the Northern Pacific preferred stock and its replacement by new common stock, that had been conceived early in the year, would be quite surely carried out on the following January; and, when it was carried out, there would be 155 millions of stock 3136 of one class of the Northern Pacific, and Mr. Morgan was very strenuous that when this stock was all out, if he sold his stock to the Northern Securities Company, that each of the other holders of the common stock, if he wanted to do so, should have the privilege of selling to the Northern Securities, at the same rate. He was extremely insistent on that. Some of the eight or nine or ten Great Northern stockholders who were consulted in this matter had quite early taken a similar view in regard to Great Northern stock. They suggested that 3137 it had been the settled policy of the Great Northern management that whatever benefits of any kind should be open to the holder of any of the Great Northern stocks should be opened upon equal terms to all the others. There was not very much progress made with that proposition until after Mr. Morgan's return, and his insistence upon that privilege (a similar privilege for the Northern Pacific stockholders in relation to their stock) and then it was very generally considered by these gentlemen that the arrangements for the holding company, as it was commonly called at that time, 3138 should be made large enough so as to let in, if desired, all of the holders of the Great Northern stock as well as of the Northern Pacific. That matter was discussed from time to time, and it was believed by myself and Mr. Hill and Mr. Kennedy and some of the others who had watched things very closely, that there was very little probability of anything nearly like the whole of the stockholders, of the Great Northern at least, coming in, because that was a well established stock in the market. It had been on the market for ten years and had a high market value and was thoroughly well known. It was held entirely by investors. There never has been any 3139 speculative movement in Great Northern stock, and it was thought, that being held that way, the holders of a well-known and well-established stock would be loath to sell it and take in pay the stock of a new and comparatively unknown company. But finally it was said, and that was the argument which prevailed in fixing the amount at what it was,—it was finally suggested by somebody and strenuously insisted (I think it came from Mr. Morgan perhaps first) that if the capital stock of the Northern Securities Company were fixed at any sum very largely below what would be required to purchase the capital stock of the Northern Pacific and Great 3140

Northern companies, it would have an appearance upon its face as of an intention on the part of the gentlemen promoting this company to exclude some of the other stockholders from the benefits, whatever they might be, in the new organization. The amount that would be required to purchase the two stocks was computed, in a rough way, and it came to something in the neighborhood of 400,000,000 of dollars. It 3141 was also desired, as I said before, that the new company should have reserved to it a considerable amount of stock available for the acquisition of other properties, some of which it has since acquired, and 400 millions was fixed as a round number covering all of those different ideas. That was the way the 400 millions came to be fixed. It was very largely a matter of appearance in the minds of some of the few gentlemen who expected to sell their stock to it.

Q. Is there any agreement or understanding, on the part of the Northern Securities Company, that in any way restrains its right to sell or dispose of the stock it has purchased or 3142 make such disposition of it as it may?

A. None, whatever. The holdings of the Northern Securities, of all of its securities, railroad and other, are absolute and unconditional and free from any restrictions of any kind, either expressed or implied.

Q. During your connection with the Manitoba Company and the Great Northern, did you give attention to the matter of traffic, the making of rates?

A. Very much, from the time I went on the Manitoba Company until I ceased my connection with the Great Northern, 3143 and, in fact, ever since,—very especial attention.

Q. You know the location of the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific?

A. Yes, sir, I know them.

Q. The Burlington and other lines in the Northwest and west of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Map shown witness.) This is a map showing railway lines,—Northwestern, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Burlington, Canadian Pacific, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Soo Line, Chicago & Northwestern, Union Pacific, Oregon Railway
3144 & Navigation Company, Oregon Short Line, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Great Falls & Canada Railway. The lines of the different railways named are shown on the map as represented by the colors in the index.

A. I may say I have carefully examined this map before seeing it now, and the different railway systems are laid down on the map with approximate correctness, so far as could be done upon maps of that scale.

Q. And the lines are represented in the colors as shown in the index? 3145

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The scale is 40 miles to one inch?

A. Yes, sir. That very small scale makes it impossible to use the precision in laying the lines down that could be used on a map of larger scale.

Q. The map also shows the population of the towns under which the figures are entered?

A. They are intended to be as shown by the census of the year 1900. Those were the instructions for putting it down. 3146
I haven't looked this over.

Mr. Grover. I propose to put upon the map figures taken from the census of 1890 and 1900 showing the population of some of the states, also showing the wealth of the states in 1890 and in 1900. I didn't have them accurately. We ask leave to insert those on the map, and I offer the map in evidence subject to that reservation.

The map was marked for identification defendants' Exhibit 4.

Q. At what points or stations in the state of North Dakota do the lines of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific 3147 meet or form junctions?

A. If you will let me look at this map to give you the proper order and read them off.

Q. And in this connection you may answer as to Montana and Washington.

A. (Referring to map.) As I understood you, North Dakota, Montana and Washington?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. In North Dakota: Wahpeton, Fargo, Grand Forks, Casselton. That is a mere—

Q. I will ask you later about the business. 3148

A. Leeds.

Q. And Grafton?

A. Yes, sir. I was coming to that, and will suggest here that the name ought to be put down; I see that the draftsman has omitted it. I will mark it with a pencil so we will be sure to remember it.

3149 Q. You may state about the population, and the business and development of the stations at the points named.

A. They are all small, comparativevly new towns, having only an agricultural interest; no particular development of any other industries. Wahpeton, by the census of 1900, had 2,228 people; Fargo, by that census, had 9,589 people; Grand Forks, 7,652; Grafton is not here, it will be put on; it is a small farming village.

Q. Grafton and Leeds?

A. Leeds is a mere junction point, connection; there is practically nothing at Leeds.

3150 Q. Speak of Montana.

A. In Montana there is practically nothing but Helena and Great Falls.

Q. Helena and Butte?

A. Helena and Butte, I mean. There is a place called Boulder, where they meet; the name is not down here; it is a small mining town, I will put that down also. The only places of importance are Helena and Butte in the state of Montana.

Q. In Washington?

A. Shall I give the population of Helena and Butte?

3151 Q. Yes, you may.

A. Butte, by the census of 1900, had 30,470, and Helena, 10,770. In Washington the points of any consequence, common points, are Spokane, Seattle, Everett. The Northern Pacific also gets now into the Bellingham Bay towns. I will put it down here; that is not mentioned.

Q. That is within 60 days?

A. Oh, yes, that is just now.

Q. Well, if you have it before you, give the population.

A. Yes, it is a small place; the population is not here.

Q. The population of Spokane?

3152 A. Oh, of Spokane; 36,848.

Q. Seattle?

A. 80,671; Everett, 7,838. My recollection is that the Bellingham Bay towns have seven or eight thousand. That is about right, isn't it, Mr. Mellen?

Mr. Mellen. Yes, sir.

Witness. I have forgotten precisely what they are.

Q. Now, Mr. Clough, the interstate and international traffic of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, either, of course, originates on their own line or on the line of other carriers? 3153

A. Yes, sir; the business they do is local business, that is, local to their own lines, and exchanging with other carriers to and from.

Q. Where it begins or ends on the lines of other carriers it is handled under what is known as a joint tariff?

A. In respect to the great majority, the great bulk of that class of business; both in quantity and in earnings.

Q. What do you mean by joint tariff?

A. I mean a tariff where several carriers having connecting routes, make a through route between one point and another, unite together in a rate, in a single rate through from the point of the origin of traffic to its destination. 3154

Q. In short, it rests upon an agreement made between the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and connecting lines fixing the rate?

A. There can be no joint tariff, in any proper sense of the word, except by agreement of all of the carriers concerned in the tariff and putting it out.

Q. Mr. Clough, I show you paper marked "No. 4-A, Transcontinental Freight Bureau, West-Bound Tariff, naming Class and Commodity Rates, effective July 1, 1902," and inquire if that paper shows the railway companies with whom the Great Northern and Northern Pacific had a joint tariff, between what points it applied and the number of railway companies parties to it. 3155

A. This is an illustration in general form and nature of joint tariffs, and shows upon its face the parties intending to join in the tariff; the names of the railroads on the first page might be called the parties of the first part to the tariff, in a sense. Here are eighteen roads. Shall I read them?

Q. Yes. 3156

A. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway; Burlington & Missouri River Railroad in Nebraska, (that is a part of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway); Canadian Pacific Railway; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway; Colorado Midland Railway; Colorado & Southern Railway; Denver & Rio Grande Railroad; Great Northern Railway; Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company; Missouri, Kansas

3157 & Texas Railway; Missouri Pacific Railway; Northern Pacific Railway; Oregon Railroad & Navigation Co.; Oregon Short Line Railroad; Rio Grande Western Railway; St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad; St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway; Union Pacific Railroad. I might say that these eighteen roads are roads operating in the territory west of the Missouri river and between there and the Pacific coast. The parties of the second part, so to speak, are about 120 roads in the part of the country eastward of the Missouri river and connecting with the lines mentioned on the first page of this leaf, and all together furnishing through routes between prac-
3158 tically all important traffic centers of the country east of the Missouri river and all the country west of the Missouri. Is it desired that I should read the names of all these roads?

Q. No.

A. There are about 120 of them.

Q. What is the reason, occasion and necessity for entering into such joint tariff on the part of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific?

A. Why, it greatly facilitates the movement of traffic. In the first place, many of these routes that are named here, or 3159 rather, I should say, in many instances, connect important traffic centers in the eastern part of the country with important points in the western part of the country. It is necessary for the traffic to pass over from three to six and maybe ten lines of road, possibly; and if each road had its own separate billing and handled the business locally, it would greatly obstruct the movement of traffic. It would be more expensive for the carrier, as a rule. It would be a great deal higher priced for the shipper because the sum of the local rates is generally considerable in advance of the through rate.

Q. That is, the through joint rate?

3160 A. Yes, sir; the through joint rate. So, in order to permit business to move, it may be said, in large volumes, such arrangements as are provided for in tariffs of this class are entered into; and it is that class of arrangement, I think, that marks the railway system of the United States as extremely superior to those of other countries. It makes a single route out of so many individual routes, combining them into one for a continuous passage.

The defendants offer in evidence defendants' Exhibit 5, being a "No. 4-A Transcontinental Freight Bureau West-bound Tariff, naming Class and Commodity Rates, effective July 1, 1902." 3161

Q. Now, that exhibit shows the parties to the joint tariff?

A. To that joint tariff. There are other joint tariffs, but it shows the parties to that joint tariff.

Q. This is the sheet or page to the tariff, but it does not, of course, contain the rates.

A. It shows what the routes are and the companies parties to that particular joint tariff.

Q. And that tariff is filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission? 3162

A. Yes, sir, it is filed there. All interstate tariffs have to be.

Q. This is a tariff of 1902?

A. 1902, effective July 1, of this last year.

Q. State whether tariffs of like character have been in force during the years you were connected with the Great Northern.

A. Similar tariffs, yes, sir, for many years past. They are more complete, I think, from year to year, but this method of making a tariff is very old; it has been in force for a great many years. 3163

Q. I show the witness two papers, one headed "Great Northern Railway Line," showing per cent of earnings, marked defendants' Exhibit 6, and another headed "Northern Pacific Railway Company, Statement of Freight and Passenger Earnings for Fiscal Year ended June 30, 1901," marked defendants' Exhibit 7. What do Exhibits 6 and 7 show?

Mr. Day. We will object to the first page of the Great Northern exhibit (being Exhibit 6), unless it is first ascertained that Col. Clough is competent; we can't permit that to go in as true without the testimony of some witness who knows it to be true. 3164

Mr. Grover. I didn't mean to offer them now; I present them for identification, to get them marked.

Q. What do those exhibits show?

A. The first page is in the nature of—

Q. Of which exhibit?

A. This is Ex. 6. The first page of Ex. 6 is in the nature of 3165 an index or resume of the matter that appears upon the following three pages; the entire exhibit is intended to show the distribution of the interstate traffic for the year 1901 upon the lines of the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Q. The Great Northern, you mean?

A. The Great Northern Railway Company between that competitive with the Northern Pacific Railway and that non-competitive with the Northern Pacific Railway.

Q. Now, speak as to Ex. 7.

A. Page 1 of Ex. 7 is intended to be an index or resume of the matters appearing upon the next three pages of the ex-
3166 hibit, and the exhibit is intended to show the distribution of the interstate traffic for the year 1901 upon the lines of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, between that competitive with the Great Northern Railway Company and that non-competitive.

Q. State whether the figures on the two exhibits are accurate or what means you have taken to determine their accuracy, the inquiries made.

Mr. Grover. Of course, if you desire, I will bring up the accountants.

3167 Witness. I will state, if you desire, how these are made. The figures on the last three sheets of each of these exhibits are compiled by the accounting department of each company, that is, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, from their records and statistics, made through the year 1900 and 1901. These years end June 30, 1901, and according to the custom of railways the year is named according to the year in which the ending occurs. These are compiled in the accounting department of the respective roads in the regular way, from statistics of the departments made through the year, as represented here, as the way-bills come in and the traffic is moved.
3168 They were instructed to be made correctly. They are as correct as any statistics kept by railroad companies can be, and each is certified by the chief accounting officer of the company; that of the Northern Pacific by Henry A. Gray, comptroller; that of the Great Northern by J. G. Drew, comptroller.

Q. The figures are made up from each way-bill showing the respective shipments?

A. If I may be allowed to state how all traffic statistics of railroads are kept. It is done usually in this way, and by these companies in the method that I mentioned; the station 3169 agent at the station where a shipment is made, or where tickets are sold, especially where shipments of freight are made (I will explain that first), makes out a way-bill for the freight that is shipped, stating the name of the consignor, the name of the consignee and the place of destination, the amount and quantity of traffic shipped, the rate, and a number of other little items of that character. The station agent at the shipping point sends regularly, under the rules of the company, to the chief accounting officer, or department, rather, an abstract of the figures in that way-bill. When the traffic arrives at the station of destination with the way-bill, the station 3170 agent at that station, to insure correctness, transmits to the accounting department an abstract of it also, and when these abstracts come in from the two ends of the route, the accounting department checks one against the other, and that is the ultimate basis of all the accounts of the railway company,—the way-bill. When these abstracts come in men are set at work recording the substance of them in records under each station, and from month to month; so that for each month in every year each railroad company has in its office all of the figures relating to each shipment that has been made during that month. These figures contained here are abstracted from 3171 those records. There are a great many people in that method of doing business directly concerned with such statistics, and I presume it would be no exaggeration to say to show from the original sources of information about railroad statistics of that character it would probably be necessary to call about 1,500 or 2,000 witnesses. But these are of the same class as all other railway traffic statistics and are intended to be perfectly reliable. The earnings account of the company depends upon them, upon their corectness.

Q. The work is tabulated from day to day and condensed?

A. Yes, sir. 3172

Q. Reduced to the figures from which these exhibits are made?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You asked that they be made correctly?

A. Yes, sir; I personally attended to it since I have been here. There were very many men, of course, necessarily engaged in this work; I think in each company about fifteen 3173 men were employed in making these figures. But that is the method by which such great figures have to be gotten together; they can't be in any other way.

Q. Now, for the purpose of showing rates which can be controlled by the joint action of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific alone as competitive rates, I call your attention to Ex. 6 and ask you to state the percentage and the amount in dollars.

A. I will refer to the second page of Ex. 6, to the third page of Ex. 6 and to the fourth page of Ex. 6, which is a consolidation (the fourth page) of the figures on the second and third 3174 pages.

Q. Will you for convenience let the stenographer mark those pages?

A. Well, I will re-mark them. These exhibits, on account of the shortness of time, were copied by typewriters in different places, so that they are not paged consecutively. One typewriter made the last three and another typewriter made the other. Now, referring to page two of Ex. 6: The total freight earnings of the Great Northern Railway line, which includes Great Northern, Eastern Railway of Minnesota, Mon-3175 tana Central, Willmar & Sioux Falls, and Duluth, Watertown & Pacific Railways, for the year ended June 30, 1901, were $21,623,653.95. The above earnings consist of the following: Local to the several states through which the line passes, (that is, traffic which both begins and ends in its transit in the same state) earnings $7,013,050.96. I may say that these tables are made up on the basis of earnings, because if they were made up on the basis of weights and quantities of traffic the figures would be so large that the work of making the tables would be very much increased. The earnings will show the proportions of traffic approximately, as well as the quantites. In-3176 terstate traffic $14,610,602.99. The Interstate freight earnings were made up as follows:—

Mr. Day. Now, Mr. Grover, we haven't had the opportunity to examine these papers to ascertain (if we can, if it is within our power) their correctness and their accuracy. They may be. I have no reason to doubt they have been made up as Col. Clough says, but what he is now about to read, subsequent to the first statement, is inference or conclusions from facts. We wish to reserve our objection to the paper, but some time hereafter we may withdraw the objection, but at this time we 3177 object to the competency—not the relevancy, but to the competency—of this form of proof.

Mr. Grover. Well, of course, when we get through with Col. Clough, if you persist in it, think it best, we will bring our accounting departments.

Mr. Day. Perhaps Col. Clough later, on cross-examination, can tell us what he knows about this.

Witness. I think I have told you all I know about it and the comptroller knows just as much as I do.

The Examiner. Well, the objection will be noted, and it 3178 may be withdrawn later, if necessary.

Witness. The original source of information about any traffic statistics, including those that are in the sworn reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission, are made in the manner in which I have stated. There is no individual you could call that would have any personal knowledge of it; that is, it would not be practicable to call anybody.

The following part of the answer of the witness was read: "The Interstate freight earnings were made up as follows:"

Witness. First. Interstate business forwarded from and to towns where the Northern Pacific also has stations, but which 3179 towns can also be reached by other lines of railway, amount to $974,999.17. The percentage of the entire interstate earnings for the year, 6.67. Second. Interstate business forwarded from and to towns reached by Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways only, earnings $380,117.53; percentage of total interstate freight earnings for the year, 2.60. Third. Interstate business originating or terminating on connecting lines carried by junctions common to Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways and which was destined to or forwarded from towns on the Great Northern Railway where the Northern Pacific Railway also has stations that are reached by other lines of railway, earnings for the year $2,249,- 3180
642.91; per cent of entire interstate freight earnings for the year, 15.40. Fourth. Interstate business originating or terminating on connecting lines carried via junctions common to both Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways and which was destined to or forwarded from towns reached by Northern and Great Northern railways only, earnings for the year, $79,805.69; percentage of the entire interstate freight 3181 earnings for the year, .55. Fifth. Interstate business not included in above four subdivisions, $10,926,037.69; percentage of the whole interstate earnings for the year, 74.78. That is of the freight.

Q. Now, I don't believe it is necessary to read them all. Can't you just make a general summary? I want a little explanation about it now. Is the Northern Pacific, Ex. No. 7, made on the same basis and does it show the same—

A. It is made on the same basis and made in the same way, and the information that is contained here comes, as I have explained at the beginning, from the way-bill that was issued 3182 by the station agent when the traffic was started.

Q. When it is to a connecting line or from a connecting line, where do you get your information?

A. The information is the same way because if a shipment is to a connecting line the station agent on the home line forwards his abstract to the accounting department, and the station agent or officers of the receiving company send their report back to check against it to the office of the home company; so that the information is obtained—it has to be. It is the entire basis of all the financial figures in regard to the operation earnings of the railways. They have to come from 3183 abstracts of the way-bills from the two ends of the route.

Q. At what stations reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific are other lines—junctions?

A. At Fargo, North Dakota. Well, I will say, commencing in order, at Wahpeton, North Dakota, there is the Milwaukee & St. Paul; at Fargo, North Dakota, the Milwaukee & St. Paul is present also; at Butte, the Union Pacific system is present; at Spokane, the Union Pacific system is present; at Seattle and at Everett the Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific, by means of water lines, do business in and out all of the prominent points on the Sound.

3184 Q. What effect do those connections have upon the rate-making power of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific?

A. I beg pardon?

Q. What effect do those connections have, these various lines?

A. You mean the presence of a third party?

Q. Yes. 3185

A. Whenever there is a third carrier, connecting points that are connected also by Northern Pacific and Great Northern, the rates between the points connected could not be raised by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern acting by themselves, because if they should raise the rates the traffic would go to the other line having the lower rate, if that is what you mean.

Mr. Grover. I will offer Exs. 6 and 7 in evidence.

Mr. Day. We stated our position, Mr. Grover. The cross-examination of Col. Clough may clear up any doubts we have.

Defendants' Exs. 6 and 7 received subject to the objection. 3186

Witness. I might say here, in addition to what I said before, that the first page on these exhibits is my own work, and it is intended to be an index or a compilation to show at a glance the results that it seemed to me are the inferences necessary to be drawn from the sheets following. But if I am not correct, of course the sheets will speak for themselves. They are all put in together, simply for convenience.

Q. I forgot to ask you, I will ask you now, the amount of holdings in the Northern Securities Company of the gentlemen named by Mr. Hill as associates, Mr. Kennedy, Lord Mount Stephen and Lord Strathcona, J. W. Sterling, Willis James, Mr. Thorne, Mr. Johnson Livingston, Mr. Lamont, Mr. Payne, Mr. Tuck, Mr. Clark and Mr. Baker. 3187

A. Do you mean in the Great Northern?

Q. In the Northern Securities Company; the Great Northern also, if you can.

A. I had prepared a memorandum showing the exact figures of those holdings in the two companies, but by accident I left it behind in New York, but I remember in a general way.

Q. State the percentage.

A. In the Great Northern Company the holdings of those gentlemen never exceeded thirty-three millions of dollars, I would place it as an extreme figure, that is my recollection, out of about 125 millions. Their holdings in the Northern Securities is almost exactly in the same proportion; about thirty per cent—between thirty and thirty-five per cent. 3188

3189

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Beck:

Q. Of course, Col. Clough, you do not mean to say that the associates that have just been named by Mr. Grover are the only stockholders of the Northern Securities Company or of the Great Northern Company who act in association and sympathy with Mr. Hill?

A. So far as that is concerned, I might perhaps be permitted to make an explanation; since the Great Northern took 3190 over the lines of the Manitoba Company, on February 1, 1890, I am more especially familiar with the conditions. I also was with those of the Manitoba Company which has now practically passed away. There never has been between the stockholders of the Great Northern Company any agreement about any common use of their stock; neither has there ever been any solicitation by the president of the company of support from the individual stockholders. All that has ever been done has been to disseminate among the stockholders of the Great Northern periodical information as to the state of the business of the company and its progress and the usual formal 3191 request that is sent out in all companies, or announcement, rather, of the approach of an annual stockholders' meeting for the election of directors, the request for proxies and the blank form of a proxy for the individual holder to sign and transmit as he should see fit. There has been no solicitation other than that. That has resulted in proxies for the annual meetings of the Great Northern coming in I think in no year less than eighty per cent and sometimes eighty-five and ninety per cent of the total stock. That is the only association or co-operation there has ever been, except as it has been possible to personally consult a number of the larger stockholders whom Mr. Hill 3192 refers to. If that answers your question?

Q. No, it doesn't, quite.

A. Perhaps I didn't understand it.

Q. Well, I will acquit you of any desire not to answer. It is not exactly what I am after. The suggestion of Mr. Grover's question was that Mr. Hill's holdings with the friends that are in his group, both with respect to the Northern Securities Company and the Great Northern Company, were relatively small. Now, I want to ask you, whether, as a matter 3193 of fact, taking the Great Northern Railway first—whether there has ever been any lack of unanimity in supporting Mr. Hill's policy?

A. Never has been, if that is what you mean.

Q. They have agreed with the unanimity of a stage chorus as to what Mr. Hill desired?

A. I have stated the result. As a common thing from 75 to 80 per cent of the stockholders sent their proxies for the re-election, it may be said, of the old administration.

Q. So, as a matter of fact, there has been, in your recollec- 3194 tion, no contest over the control of the Great Northern by Mr. Hill and his immediate group of friends?

A. Well, I don't think that Mr. Hill or his immediate group of friends have ever had control of the Great Northern.

Q. I am not speaking now of the legal control as to their respective stock holdings, but the practical control of the road. Has Mr. Hill's and his associates' control of the Northern Pacific road been seriously disputed within your recollection?

Mr. Grover. You mean the Great Northern?

Mr. Beck. The Great Northern, yes.

A. The Great Northern road has always been controlled by 3195 its stockholders and the majority, acting individually; and, as I have said before, when the time for the annual election came around, from 75 to 80 per cent of the total stockholders sent in their proxies favorable to the re-election of Mr. Hill as president.

Q. And in support of the policy which he advocated?

A. Well, naturally that would follow.

Q. And, therefore, when their holdings were carried over into the Northern Securities Company, Mr. Hill had back of him the same influences with respect to the stock holdings of the stock thus transferred?

A. The Northern Securities Company has not yet held an 3196 annual meeting, but it is very likely that when the annual meeting is held and the stockholders of the Northern Securities send in their proxies, those will be favorable to the re-election of Mr. Hill as president of the Northern Securities Company. I presume so; that is what we expect.

Q. Yes. Now, Col. Clough, Mr. Hill has had a continuous 3197 policy with respect to the railway situation in the Northwest, running back a number of years?

A. Running back for 30 years, practically.

Q. And step by step, developments have progressed to carry out and effectuate that policy?

A. Yes, sir; as rapidly as the conditions of the company and the ability to get money would permit. The road has grown from 400 (or so) miles in about 1877 or 1878 to nearly 6,000 miles (that is, the system under one control) at the present time.

Q. Now, of course, you recall the fact that a part of that 3198 policy was, prior to the year 1896, the direct acquisition of the Northern Pacific by the Great Northern?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, what was the attempt which was made to make a practical merger of the two systems which the supreme court declared to be invalid?

A. Well, I don't remember any time when any practical merger of the two roads was ever suggested.

Q. Well, do you recall the fact that the supreme court was of opinion that there was an illegal attempt to consolidate 3199 the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific?

A. No, I don't know that. I was familiar with all of those transactions, and as I remember it (subject to correction) there was an arrangement that Mr. Hill had made by which stockholders of the Great Northern Company should acquire a certain amount (I think it was one-half) of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to be reorganized. As I remember, it was held by the supreme court that that was practically a holding of one-half of the stock by the Great Northern Railway Company, and the laws of the state of Minnesota forbid one railway company to hold even one share of another rail-3200 way company which had a parallel and competing line, and it was held that the one-half of stock which the shareholders of the Great Northern were to acquire was practically the acquirement of Northern Pacific stock by the Great Northern Railway Company, and that the Great Northern Railway Company could not hold one share of the stock in the Northern Pacific. It was never contemplated to merge the two companies at any time, that I ever heard of.

Q. Now, without in any way discussing the nicety of terms as to merger, of which there is perhaps a technical and a general meaning, I want to ask you whether we are to understand you to say that the attempt of the Great Northern Railway to acquire one-half of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific, in return guaranteeing its bonds, was not an attempt to control the Northern Pacific road? 3201

A. By the Great Northern?

Q. Yes.

A. No, sir, it was not.

Q. What was the purpose of acquiring one-half of the capital stock of the Northern Pacific road? 3202

A. The purpose (which we conceived was entirely misunderstood by the court) was what it purported to be on its face; that the stockholders of the Great Northern Company, as individuals, should acquire, in addition to their own holdings, the holdings of the other company.

Q. In order to have a common interest in its operation?

A. In order that the stockholders, as individuals, might be interested in both companies.

Q. You mean the stockholders of the Great Northern should have an interest in the operation of the Northern Pacific? 3203

A. In the stock.

Q. And to that extent the incentive and inducement for competition between the two would be eliminated?

A. It was never thought of. The subject of competition between the two roads was never thought of, never entered their minds; at least I never heard it spoken of.

Q. Do we understand you to say that in your opinion there was thus no attempt on the part of the Great Northern to get control of the Northern Pacific?

A. Not any attempt to put the control of the Northern Pacific in the Great Northern Railway Company. 3204

Q. Is it not a fact that much less than 50 per cent of the stock will, for ordinary purposes, give control?

A. Well, I didn't know it and—

Q. Is it not a fact that Mr. Hill, with his group of friends, with their relatively small holdings in the Great Northern to which reference has been made, have found that sufficient to control the Great Northern Railway?

3205 A. It was not the holdings in the stock that Mr. Hill and his friends had that induced the great majority of the stockholders to send their proxies favorable to his re-election. It was the favor with which the policy of Mr. Hill and his associates had met for years that induced all the other stockholders as a body, practically, to support that policy and to favor its continuation. It wasn't any holding that these other gentlemen had at all. That had nothing to do with it.

Q. You think, then, that the fact that a strong group of very rich men, controlling 35 million dollars of the common stock 3206 of the Great Nrthern Railway, had nothing to do with their effectual control of the operations of the road?

A. Absolutely nothing. I know from my own knowledge it had nothing to do with it. It was merely the support that the majority of the stockholders gave on account of their favoring the policy of Mr. Hill.

Q. You think there was no gravitation on the part of the small stockholders towards the holders of large individual blocks of stock—

A. Not in this case, not a bit of it.

Q. Who were already in control?

3207 A. No, sir.

Q. Well, whatever be the opinion of counsel of the Great Northern road as to the objects of the attempt to buy the Northern Pacific on foreclosure, the fact remains that it was decided by the supreme court that that was an attempt to get the control of the Northern Pacific road; and it is a fact also, is it not, that the supreme court held that if that were valid, a control of all the railroads of the United States would be equally valid?

A. Does counsel wish me to express my views as to what the supreme court decided, or will he be contented by having 3208 me refer to the decision itself as to what it did decide?

Q. Well, perhaps the decision will speak for itself.

A. I can give my views; it would require some time.

Q. Now, what year was it, as near as you can recall, that the formation of this securities holding company was first discussed?

A. It must have been at least five years ago when Mr.

Kennedy was out here from New York. He was not in very 3209 good health, and he was getting along in years; his holdings of Great Northern securities were very large, and he desired that they should have the same treatment, in the event of his passing away, as the treatment of his own associates; either that they should be held, or if they were sold his estate would get the benefit of the same price. That was largely what he was after.

Q. I am coming to that in a few moments. I only want to first fix the time. How do you fix the time that it was about five years ago?

A. That is an indefinite period; it was a long time; it may 3210 have been seven or eight.

Q. Do you recall the fact that it was, therefore, about the time that the supreme court declared invalid the attempt to control the Northern Pacific?

A. No; I connect it with the last time that I recollect Mr. Kennedy having gone over the line of the Great Northern Railway, which I think was about five years ago, it might have been six. He was out here and spent some time, and went over the lines of the Great Northern road; and when he came back—he stayed here some time—and when he went 3211
East he had a special car; I happened to be going East at the same time and I sat in his car all the evening after leaving St. Paul until bedtime, in going to Chicago, and he discussed the matter there, brought it up again.

Q. It was Mr. Kennedy's suggestion, then, originally?

A. I don't know who mentioned it first. It is back so far that I wouldn't undertake to say, but Mr. Kennedy's mentioning it at that time, on the occasion of his visit and when I went down to Chicago with him, that is very clear in my mind as a first beginning of clear recollection on the subject. Before that time my recollection is hazy, but I remember Mr. 3212
Kennedy's visit and my going down with him in the car and his bringing up the subject at that time.

Q. And that you locate as five or at least not more than six years ago?

A. Why, I think it was about five years ago; that is my recollection. I don't think he has been over the Great Northern road since that time; I have no recollection of it.

3213 Q. Now, the Great Northern Railway itself was a holding corporation?

A. A leasing corporation and a holding, both. It leased from the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba about 38 hundred miles of road. The rest of the system, practically all, is owned by other companies which have been promoted by the Great Northern, and the Great Northern interest is represented by stocks and bonds of those companies.

Q. Well, then, is the Great Northern directly an operating company?

3214 A. Yes, sir; it directly operates about four or five thousand miles of road, between four and five thousand; probably its direct operation would represent about 42 hundred or 43 hundred miles.

Q. And to the extent of the balance it is a holding corporation?

A. It is a holding corporation and a directing corporation, yes, sir.

Q. Now, I understand you to say that four or five years ago, therefore, Mr. Hill and Mr. Kennedy and the other gentlemen immediately allied with him reached the conclusion that it 3215 was desirable to form this holding corporation?

A. Well, not this holding corporation.

Q. I don't mean with any particular name, but I say a holding corporation.

A. That by Mr. Hill, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. D. Willis James, Mr. Thorne, and indirectly from Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen—their representative was over here occasionally—it came from them indirectly. They were of the opinion, as they had acted together so long and their holdings were so large and they were getting along in years, that it would be better if something could be done so that their holdings of stock 3216 could be treated in the same way and have the same treatment, either by holding or by selling.

Q. The age, then, of the respective stockholders and the fact that in the natural course of life they would not live so very long, was the main inducement to this attempt to form a holding corporation.

A. That was what they stated, that is what they said. And their holdings were so very large, to secure for their estates 3217 a fair treatment of their stock.

Q. The original idea was a close corporation of a limited number of individuals?

A. That was the purpose, yes, sir, as expressed by those gentlemen.

Q. In order to effectuate a common control of certain holdings of stock?

A. Simply that certain holdings of stock should stand together as long as they were held by these various gentlemen; or, if they were sold, so that they sold all together and 3218 be subject practically to the same price.

Q. But if that was the purpose, Col. Clough, why did not the eleven gentlemen who held these stocks put their stocks in the hands of a common trustee, so that they could not sell without the consent of the trustee?

A. They didn't want to tie things up as tight as that. They were willing to take the chances of the fair treatment of their holdings in a corporation the stock of which should be issued to them and be held by their estates. In other words, they were willing that the stock of the suggested corporation—the majority of it—should determine all those things. 3219

Q. But, in the matter of holding them together, how was the formation of a new corporation any more effectually to prevent a sale of the stock than the holdings in the Great Northern Railway?

A. It was only this: that the selling or keeping of these stocks, in whole or in part, would be determined by a majority of the stock that represented these shares. They were willing—in other words, each of these gentlemen was willing that the handling of his stock should be in the hands of what would represent a majority of all the holdings in the new company, but they didn't desire to tie up the new company 3220 at all. They didn't think that that would be considerate or politic, to put it in the hands of a trustee. They were willing to trust to a corporation, that would act through a majority of its stock, the future of their holdings. They were willing to do so, so they said.

Q. Do I understand that it was contemplated in the formation of this proposed securities holding company that its 3221 respective stockholders could not sell their respective holdings except with the consent of the majority of the corporation?

A. The purpose was that they would absolutely sell their holdings in Great Northern stock to a new company to be formed.

Q. I am not referring to the sale of the Great Northern stock; I am referring to whether or not your idea was to tie together this group of interests, if it was contemplated that no one in the new holding corporation could sell his stock?

3222 A. Oh, on the contrary.

Q. Without the consent of the others?

A. On the contrary. That was to be entirely free, and in each estate which should hold it in the place of the Great Northern stock it should be held absolutely by each individual holder independently of the other holders, and he should be at liberty to sell if he should see fit. But it was believed that the interest—the mutual interest—of all the stockholders in having their securities kept as valuable as possible, would secure a policy for the management of the stocks that would be the best for all. They were willing, in other words, to rely 3223 upon that; that is all they could rely upon.

Q. There was, then, no more ability, by creating a new corporation to hold the stock in the hands of the same person or his family, than in the old corporation?

A. None at all, none at all, not the slightest.

Q. And Lord Strathcona's heirs could sell quite as well in the holding company as in the Great Northern Company?

A. They would be entirely free to sell their stock, yes, sir.

Q. Therefore, the only real purpose of the holding corporation was to compel a certain unity of action by a majority of the holding corporation deciding what was to be done.

3224 A. It was so that all of the stock which, not by agreement, but by a sense of mutual interest, had kept together in building up this property and making its value, as far as could be provided in the way that I mentioned, should be held together.

Q. Now, that was the only idea of the holding corporation?

A. That, as I heard it expressed by the gentlemen; I am merely expressing their ideas.

Q. Certainly.

A. Not my own. 3225

Q. I understand that you never heard Mr. Hill or Lord Strathcona or Mr. Kennedy or any of the other gentlemen associated with Mr. Hill express any other opinion as to their motive for forming a holding corporation than the desire to make a close corporation of their common interests?

A. In the beginning, until the enlargement came that I mentioned.

Q. When was the enlargement?

A. The enlargement came through the suggestion, that I have mentioned, by Mr. Morgan and some of the Great Northern stockholders, that the other holders of stock of the Northern Pacific and of the Great Northern, respectively, should have an opportunity, if they chose, to sell their stock to a holding company upon the same terms. 3226

Q. At what time, in what year was that?

A. That was last year, and I think I have stated it; I believe the first suggestions of that kind came along in May or June of last year.

Q. In May or June.

A. Yes.

Q. But I understood you to say that the definite suggestion didn't come until Mr. Morgan made it? 3227

A. It didn't assume form; it did not assume form.

Q. And he was in Europe during the summer of 1901?

A. Until the 4th of July.

Q. And it was, then, after the 4th of July that the first definite proposition was made to change the character of the holding corporation by making it more than a mere group of individual stockholders of the Great Northern?

A. I think it must have been; that is my recollection. Of course I can't attempt to fix the precise dates, but I think the insistence of Mr. Morgan, after he got back in July, caused the crystallization and formation of the general idea that the corporation probably should be made—ought to be made broad enough so that no stockholder of either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern could feel that he had been excluded from the advantages of any arrangement that the other stockholders had entered into with regard to their stock. 3228

Q. Well, I am entirely right, then, in the suggestion that 3229 until Mr. Morgan made the suggestion that there ought to be some combination, through a holding corporation, of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, the only idea that was in the mind of Mr. Hill or his associates was to pool their stock together in the Great Northern in a security company.

A. I never heard any suggestion for combining the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern. I have never heard it yet, from any of the gentlemen interested in the Northern Securities Company or the Northern Pacific or Great Northern. I think as early as May, if you desire to know—I think as early 3230 as May, I am sure as early as May, the idea as it first started of a holding corporation was enlarged to include the holding of Northern Pacific as well as Great Northern—holdings of these gentlemen. I think that came in some time along about the 1st of May or somewhere in that neighborhood.

Q. Before or after the great panic in the New York Stock Exchange?

A. Well, I am inclined to think about the same time.

Q. About the same time?

A. As I have explained, these gentlemen were constantly going and coming to and from New York and the country, 3231 and they never were gotten together or in a position where all of them could be consulted until along in the latter part of the year, along in the fall, when everybody got back from the summering places and from Europe, etc., and that retarded the development of the matter and the final filing of the articles for several months.

Q. Well, now, what was there that for nearly four years, or quite four years, had delayed the formation of this holding corporation?

A. Nothing except simply they didn't get at it; they were all very busy men; some of them in Europe, some in New 3232 York, Mr. Hill here, and they never got all together.

Q. You have stated that these gentlemen were of the opinion that it was a matter of great importance that their stocks should be placed in this way in a common pool; what was the delay of four years in making the corporation?

A. Well, I think I stated that the first mention that I heard of it was by Mr. Kennedy; that makes a distinct impression on my mind now, why Mr. Kennedy didn't take that matter up with Lord Strathcona, Lord Mount Stephen (they lived in 3233 Europe, they came here very infrequently). Why he didn't take it up and push it through more early with Mr. James of course I don't know. He is a man of very large affairs and very busy, and has many other things besides his holdings in this property, but I presume—it is a mere matter of inference—why those gentlemen delayed was because of the infrequency with which they got together. I should presume so.

Q. Very well. Now, you have stated in your testimony in chief, that a part of the time that was thus lost (at least a part of the time in which the formation of this company was 3234 postponed) was due to the fact that Mr. Grover was seeking for some charter with special privileges; to quote your exact language, "A charter which would put the holding corporation beyond legislative control." I want to ask you, if the only purpose of the holding company was to make a pool between ten or eleven gentlemen, what necessity there was to seek for a charter beyond legislative control.

A. I don't know that I used that exact language—"legislative control."

Q. I took it down, Colonel.

A. What I meant to say, if I did say that, was an amend- 3235 ment of the charter that might radically change the purposes and objects of the corporation. That is what I referred to.

Q. How under any charter could the legislature affect the mere right of Mr. Hill and several other gentlemen to hold their stock?

A. Many of the states in this country have constitutional provisions and some of the others, perhaps, have statutory provisions that all incorporations made under the general laws of the state shall be subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature. It was to avoid any violent interference by legislative authority with the great properties that the com- 3236 pany expected to have, because it would at least amount to probably 75 millions in value and might amount to hundreds of millions.

Q. Oh, yes, but you have testified that this group of gentlemen who originally contemplated no more than their own association did not hold more than thirty-five millions, it being a minority of the Great Northern Railway Company stock.

3237 Now, therefore, I ask you what necessity there was, if this was the innocent purpose of the holding corporation—what necessity there was for such a prolonged search after a charter beyond legislative control.

A. Great Northern stock then was worth in the market, during the summer of 1901, the early part of it, around 180, a little about it; it had been worth more than that. So that the 33 (or odd) millions that these gentlemen had in value represented pretty nearly seventy or eighty millions of dollars; and that was quite a sum. And naturally a gentleman own-3238 ing a large amount of property would not want to put it into a corporation if he felt that the charter might be taken away from it or might be radically amended, or if the legislature should assume to determine how the property of that company should be managed and controlled. That was the idea. It would be very large in any event. The value would be in the neighborhood of or quite 70 millions of dollars at the lowest.

Q. Then, do I understand that the purpose of putting it beyond the possibility of legislative control was to prevent any legislation that would affect the operations of the Great 3239 Northern Railway?

A. No, sir, not in the slightest degree; just of the stock.

Q. That particular stock was not intended to operate the Great Northern Railway?

A. Not the slightest, not a thought of it.

Q. And it being a minority of the total capital stock of the Great Northern, it could not operate the Great Northern Railway?

A. No, not at all, and it didn't refer to the operations of the railway.

Q. Its one purpose was to put the stock in a common pool 3240 and to collect its dividends and disburse them; that is right, isn't it?

A. It was to own. It wasn't to be a pool at all. It was to be an absolute owner of the stock. It would naturally collect the revenues on the securities that it would own. That would be natural, of course. It would collect the revenues on whatever securities it owned; if it owned Great Northern stock, and the Great Northern Railway Company continued to pay dividends, it would collect those dividends; and if it had any 3241 surplus after its expenses were taken care of, it naturally would pay a dividend on its own stock, to the stockholders; but there was no pooling of the stock.

Q. What else was the holding corporation to do except to collect and disburse dividends?

A. It was to own. That is, the idea was that it should own the stock the same as any other stockholder. That was the idea; that would be the natural inference of course.

Q. Well, then, I want to press my question again: What reason there was for a prolonged search for a charter that 3242 would be beyond legislative control.

A. You do not express my view when you use the words "legislative control" correctly. What I meant was, a violent and radical change; any violent or radical change or repeal of the charter, or any legislative interference as to the manner of its holding of the property.

Q. Do I understand you to say then it was your opinion that unless some charter was found of a particular kind that the legislature could deprive these stockholders of property rights?

A. In many states they can. In the state of Minnesota it 3243 is questionable.

Q. Do you think that could be done under the constitution of the United States?

A. Well, under the decisions of the Supreme Court, the limitations of the legislature upon vested rights are very uncertain now—have become so.

Q. When did Minnesota first adopt a state constitution?

A. I think in 1858.

Q. Was this search for a charter prior to 1858?

A. Prior to 1858.

Q. And you preferred, therefore, to have a Minnesota char- 3244 ter prior to your existing constitution?

A. Yes, sir, if we could find it, that would have the necessary powers for carrying on this business and be properly constituted for it, for the reason that under our constitution all charters antedating the admission of the state into the Union became fixed legislative contracts, and those charters have been very much sought after by railroad companies and other 3245 companies since the state came into the Union—very much; regarded as very valuable.

A recess was here taken until 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The hearing of testimony was resumed at 2 o'clock P. M.

W. P. CLOUGH, was recalled, and his cross-examination
3246 resumed, as follows, by Mr. Beck.

Q. Col. Clough, when was the necessity for some special charter first discussed?

Mr. Grover. The question assumes what has not been proven.

Mr. Beck. Then, I will say the desirability of some special charter.

A. Oh, very early,—when the subject first began to be mentioned.

Q. Do you mean five years before the formation of the 3247 Northern Securities?

A. Oh, I presume so. It was mentioned by way of suggestion pretty nearly as early as the suggestion of the formation of a holding company. Let me say, by way of explanation, that that is a question we meet very much up here,—because since the formation of the constitution, in 1858, the formation of corporations is under a general law that is subject to extensive alterations by the legislature; and for that reason a large number of special charters that were passed when Minnesota was a territory have been very much sought 3248 after and extensively used by railroads that have since been built, by financial institutions of various kinds and business corporations. They have been regarded valuable because of the supposed or presumed protection against violent legislative changes. And when any question of a railroad or a large business concern comes up here, for years that has been thought that has come early in the minds of those who would be entrusted with the organization. So it came up this time, just as it would with any other large important 3249 enterprise.

Q. Had the charter of the Great Northern Railway Company been acquired prior to the adoption of the constitution?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And does that apply also to the present charter under which the Northern Pacific operates?

A. The present charter of the Northern Pacific is a Wisconsin charter,—a special charter granted many years ago; I have forgotten the exact date, but granted many years ago by the state of Wisconsin. That is since the reorganization 3250 of the Northern Pacific. Before the Northern Pacific was reorganized there was a charter granted by the government containing conditions that before it was used in any state the consent of the local legislature should be obtained. In 1896 the property was sold under foreclosure and acquired by the present Northern Pacific Railway Company, which is a Wisconsin corporation under a special charter granted many years ago. I don't remember the number of years, but it is an old charter.

Q. Then, the matter of the procuring of a special charter had been in discussion for some years prior to the actual 3251 formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. The two subjects naturally arose in close association with each other.

Q. When did Mr. Kennedy go to Europe in 1901?

A. My recollection is now (and I state it from mere recollection) that it was sometime early in the month of April.

Q. Do you recall when he returned?

A. Well, it was sometime in June, if I remember correctly, when the warm summer weather was about beginning; but I can't pretend to give dates, I didn't charge my mind with 3252
it.

Q. When did Mr. Grover commence his search for a special charter?

A. Why, I think that he and I, and probably in connection with Mr. Hill, had been talking about that question on the previous occasions when it had been suggested, as it had come up through the years from time to time. I think all of us had directed our attention toward the question of the probable existence of some inviolable charter.

Q. But that is not my question. I am not speaking about the desirability of special charters for general purposes, but when was the search first made for a special charter for this holding company that was contemplated?

A. In the event of its formation?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, I think years ago. I mean not necessarily a thorough search, but I think to some extent. The old enactments were glanced through with a view of seeing if there was anything that would meet the desires and purposes of such a corporation.

Q. Well, why then, in your testimony this morning, did you state, in answer to a question, that it was very soon after Mr. Kennedy went away that the question was more closely considered and it was thought desirable, if a company of that kind were formed, that it should have the stability—that a charter beyond the power of legislative amendment should be acquired for it if possible?

A. I did not mean to be understood that it was then thought of for the first time. It was then thought of, but it had been thought of previously. And then began a systematic search and investigation of the question, such as had not been given to it before.

Q. And what time was that? You say you defined it as after Mr. Kennedy's return?

A. No, it was after Mr. Kennedy went to Europe.

Q. Yes, you are right; after Mr. Kennedy went away,—and that you say was in April, 1901?

A. I think it was April or May, sometime along that time.

Q. It was about the time, therefore, of the contest for the control of the Northern Pacific by the Union Pacific interests and the Morgan interests so-called.

A. No, it was long before any public developments of that character; at least long before anything of that nature was known or suspected or even deemed probable, and it had no reference to any operation of that character—not the slightest.

Q. How do you know that if you can't recall when it was 3257 that Mr. Kennedy went away?

A. Well, I feel quite sure, from the fact that I went to New York myself and arrived there about the middle of March and that he left within a few days after that, that he must have left around the first of April.

Q. Now, do I understand you to say that in this discussion of the necessity or the desirability of a special charter, that it had reference solely to the formation of a Great Northern holding company?

A. In its origin, in its beginning?

Q. No, I mean to say at the time, now, that Mr. Grover 3258 commenced his search for a special charter. At that time was simply the Great Northern under discussion?

A. So far as I can recall, in the very beginnings it was confined to the Great Northern. The precise dates when the proposition or the suggestion was made that the same gentlemen who contemplated selling their Great Northern stock to the Northern Securities Company might also well sell their Northern Pacific, I can't remember just the time when that was first suggested; in fact I don't pretend to be precise upon any of these dates, because all of these matters came up 3259 in conversations as the gentlemen interested would come into the office or we would meet them elsewhere. And let me say that there was no meeting or conference at any time. The gentlemen whose interests were expected to go into the holding company, as I have explained, were scattered; some were in Europe, some were in California and others were in other places. So that it was impossible to have any meeting, and that was one thing, in fact the principal thing, that delayed the formation of the Northern Securities Company and the filing of the articles until so late in the fall,—that it was impossible to get the gentlemen interested together for any 3260 consultation; it had to be taken up in detail and as the gentlemen could be met and as they were met casually. So when any particular proposition came up or was suggested it would be impossible to fix the date.

Q. Well, you don't mean to say there were no meetings for the purpose of forming the Northern Securities Company, in 3261 which the Northern Pacific interests participated as well as you, subsequent to the great May panic?

A. No, sir, there never were any meetings at all.

Q. Never at any time?

A. Never at any time.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Morgan's testimony as to meetings?

A. Mr. Morgan's testimony I heard. Mr. Morgan testified about a meeting of exclusively Northern Pacific shareholders to try to make some arrangement that would restore confidence in the money markets of the world, but that had abso-3262 lutely no reference to the matter of the Northern Securities Company in any way. Absolutely irrelevant to that.

Q. Then, the meetings to which Mr. Morgan, Mr. Steele, Mr. Schiff and others have testified had no reference at all to the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Nothing at all. And let me say again there never was a meeting held in reference to the formation of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Never was a meeting held?

A. Never was a meeting held, no, sir. It was just merely carried along; it had to be by casual meetings of the different 3263 gentlemen who were interested.

Q. Its formation, then, was the fortuitous concourse of atoms to which scientists refer?

A. That is a matter for the counsel to satisfy his own mind upon the facts.

Q. If there was no meeting at all, but a certain number of individuals by coincidence amalgamated, then it would be just simply the accidental meeting of so many minds.

A. I have stated the facts as to how the company was organized, and all these other things are for the gentleman to draw his own inferences.

3264 Q. I am going to ask you again (without in any respect, in this or any other question, wishing to be offensive to you) to reiterate your statement that at no time prior to the organization of the Northern Securities Company was there ever a meeting held on the part of any of the parties in interest to effectuate its formation?

A. Nothing that could be called a meeting.

Q. Well, what do you call a meeting?

A. I will explain this. There never was any time when 3265
even as many as four gentlemen were called together on any one occasion to consider the subject of the formation of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. But you don't dispute at all that there were meetings of Mr. Morgan and Mr. Hill, for example, of Mr. Hill and Mr. Schiff, or Mr. Hill and Mr. Harriman, or Mr. Harriman and Mr. Kennedy, all of which had a common purpose in view, namely, to form the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir; I deny that there ever was any such meeting. That is, as far as I know or had any reason to believe.

Q. Now, what was the objection that you have stated that 3266
Mr. Grover reported? I quote your words exactly: "An examination into that subject"—namely the special charter—"was set on foot. Mr. Grover, who was on the ground here, was entrusted with the subject of looking that matter up. That occupied necessarily quite a considerable time, and I believe we did not get the report of Mr. Grover (I am stating from recollection now) until sometime in May." Was that report in writing?

A. My recollection is (it goes back to a considerable period) that Mr. Grover wrote a letter to Mr. Hill at some length 3267 upon the subject, and I think also that I saw Mr. Grover personally one or more times in that interval; I am not sure about that, but I think I did,—in which it was also gone over personally, but I won't speak about the personal interviews because my recollection is not clear upon that subject. But I do remember the letter on the subject.

Mr. Beck. Counsel for the Government, then, calls upon the defendants to produce the letter addressed by Mr. Grover to Mr. Hill.

Witness. Well, I have no recollection of where it was, and the date of it I couldn't tell. 3268

Mr. Beck. Well, of course we don't expect you to have it about you. We simply note the call for the letter.

Witness. Yes.

Q. Now, you have stated in substance, as I recollect it—

Witness. Of course I may be wrong in my recollection that it was a letter. I have a recollection of something in writing. That is all I can say.

3269 Q. What were the objections of Mr. Grover found to such special charters as he did discover? In what were they defective?

A. If I remember correctly, Mr. Grover produced the copies of perhaps something that he found, I am not sure about that, and it appeared upon the reading of the substance of the act of the territorial legislature that it would be at least doubtful as to whether the powers were sufficient to enable it to buy and hold and manage stock—

Q. And to own stock?

A. And to own stock, yes. That is all we were looking for 3270 —was just simply something that would have the requisite power.

Q. And it was impossible to find any special charter prior to the adoption of the constitution of Minnesota that would enable you to carry out your plans?

A. That is, that was not already in use for some other financial institution. I am simply speaking so far as we could see from looking over the records.

Q. Did I understand you to say that some exploration was made into West Virginia for a charter?

A. No, I didn't say so.

3271 Q. Well, I ask you the question because my recollection is vague.

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, I think you did say that an investigation or an examination was made of other states for special charters.

A. If you will allow me to restate what I think I said, that when we gave up the idea of finding the special charter in the state of Minnesota, it was then suggested (I don't remember by whom; by some of the gentlemen, perhaps by myself) that the incorporation be under the laws of some state having general laws for the incorporation of companies with requisite 3272 powers to deal in securities; and as I remember, those three states that I named were suggested.

Q. Which three states were those?

A. They were New York, New Jersey and West Virginia—as having legislation of that character.

Q. Well, was there an examination made as to whether there was any adaptable special charter in either New York or West Virginia?

A. Not the slightest; there never was any inquiry about either of them, or any suggestion. 3273

Q. Therefore, having exhausted the Minnesota field, you had recourse to that last resort of noble corporations—the state of New Jersey?

A. Well, that was the state that was finally selected.

Q. Now, is it not a fact that the state of New Jersey was selected because of the plenary powers given to corporations to do anything?

A. My recollection is (going back to last summer) that the laws of New Jersey were not dissimilar from those of New York, that they were quite similar, but there was this difference: the laws of the state of New York, which had evidently been passed with a view of enlarging her legislation to put it on a parity with New Jersey, were of very recent origin and had not been construed by her courts, whereas the statutes of the state of New Jersey upon that subject had been in force for quite a good many years and the law was regarded to be thoroughly well settled. That was the main difference, I think. 3274

Q. You therefore thought that the fullest powers, as judicially determined, could be found in a New Jersey charter?

A. We wanted to be certain that when we went into business with a concern that might possibly have three or four hundred millions of dollars of property, there would not be any doubt at all about what that corporation would be authorized to do. 3275

Q. Ah, but you have said, Col. Clough, that at the time you were discussing this question of a special charter your capitalization was not contemplated to be beyond 35 millions.

A. Not at that time.

Mr. Grover. No. Wait a moment.

Mr. Beck. Well, the witness is very intelligent and can protect himself. 3276

Witness. Mr. Grover, if you will let me I will set the counsel right. He has evidently forgotten. Now, firstly, if it is of any importance at all, I said in my testimony in chief, I think, that the amount of Great Northern stock which it was expected the new corporation would buy was that of these gentlemen who held thirty or thirty-five millions—of Great 3277 Northern stock. I think I stated upon cross-examination the fact that that stock—Great Northern stock—was worth at least 180 and at times had been as high as 200. So that the value of the stock contemplated in the beginning was in the neighborhood of 70 millions of dollars, and that would be the value of the property, around 70 millions of dollars, that the corporation, with the most limited holdings that were ever suggested, would have. So it would be a big corporation in any event and would own a great amount of property, and for that reason we wanted to know exactly what the rights and powers of the corporation were.

3278 Q. Then, it is correct that at the time when you were discussing the sufficiency or insufficiency of the Minnesota charter, the matter of capitalization of 400 millions was not contemplated or under discussion?

A. At the time we had arrived at the point where we satisfied our minds that it was not probable that there was any special Minnesota charter that we could procure that contained the necessary powers, I don't think at that time any definite sum of capitalization had been arrived at. I am very sure that came later. We had not in our minds fixed what the capital would be, but from the great value of the property 3279 which was intended to be purchased by the new company it was known in any event it would be very large and it would be a very large corporation. That is about what we had arrived at in that particular.

Q. Col. Clough, how long before the actual formation of the Northern Securities Company was it that you did determine upon the New Jersey charter?

A. It was a very few days; I don't think it could have been more than five or six days before the articles were filed; it was probably just about five or six days. There were the two states, New York and New Jersey, with very similar legisla- 3280 tion, and it was a question really between those two which should be selected, and we could not make the selection without consulting a number of the gentlemen who were to be largely interested, who were around in various parts of the country and did not get back. That is what detained it.

Q. At whose suggestion was it that the Northern Pacific stockholders began to be consulted with reference to this amalgamation?

A. Well, with the exception of the Northern Pacific stock- 3281 holders who also were Great Northern stockholders, I don't think they ever were consulted, at least prior to the organization of the Securities Company, unless it might have been to this extent, to ask of Mr. Morgan whether, in the event of the formation of a corporation of that character, he would be willing to sell to it his then holdings of Northern Pacific stock. Other than that I do not believe that any Northern Pacific stockholder was ever consulted about it.

Q. Was Mr. D. Willis James a stockholder in the Great Northern?

A. Great Northern and Northern Pacific both. 3282

Q. Northern Pacific also?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was it that he expressed his opinion or made some suggestion with regard to the form of the charter?

A. Why, I don't know that I can attach that to any particular dates. My recollection is that after I went to New York in the spring of 1901, Mr. James was in California, where he is in the habit of spending his winters, for a month or more; and when he came back—he has always been a large stockholder in the Great Northern, from the beginning, and a man 3283 of high business position and prominence in New York, of excellent judgment; I think I met him very often, I think I discussed all the questions that arose very frequently with him; probably met him more frequently than any of the other gentlemen.

Q. And what was the suggestion that he made with regard to the form of the charter, or character of the charter?

A. Why, I don't recollect, so far as the form of the charter was concerned.

Q. Well, I understood you to say this morning (and I may have misunderstood you) that after Mr. James came back from 3284
California he had some suggestion to make with regard to this matter of the character or form of the charter.

A. No, I don't remember that I said anything of the kind except in a general way, that the desire was to have a corporation that beyond any question would have the right to own and hold the stock. But I do not think Mr. James ever made any special suggestions as to the language of any special char-

3285 ter or of any articles of incorporation. I remember showing him the draft of the articles, which I originally made, for his examination, and it contained the substance of what afterwards went into the articles of incorporation. There was practically no change in the substance of it from the beginning. Slight changes of phraseology from time to time. He appeared to be satisfied.

Q. He made no suggestion with regard to the form or the character of the corporation, that you recall?

A. Well, that is a broad question, and I don't know pre-3286 cisely what you mean by "the form or character of the corporation."

Q. Well, as to what state you should get the charter from, or as to what its powers should be.

A. Mr. James, of course, was consulted upon those questions. He was consulted upon all the questions, but I can't remember any language that he used in the course of any conversation I had with him. Mr. James came frequently to the office of the Great Northern Railway Company where I had a room, and I also saw him frequently in his own office because I had other business with him that brought us in 3287 contact very frequently. Most of the conversations with him, as well as with Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Thorne and the others, would be brought up whenever the parties happened to meet together, generally twos and threes, not larger than that, upon other matters. These were all men of very large affairs and very numerous business engagements and their time was very much occupied, so that it was difficult to get them together.

Q. Well, now, Col.,—

A. But if you will allow me to finish that.

Q. Certainly.

3288 A. When the decision was finally made upon the state in which the articles should be filed, I think that was mostly left to myself. I had not made up my own mind, I couldn't, the matter was of such large importance, I wanted to make full inquiries, and I did as much as I had time to, and I think it was left very largely to my own judgment more than to any other one.

Q. What power was it that this holding corporation was to exercise that justified this prolonged investigation in regard to the character of various charters and which finally determined you to use a New Jersey charter which had been judicially tested? 3289

A. It was to have beyond any question the power to purchase, own and hold and dispose of corporate securities on a large scale.

Q. And that was the only power that made you doubtful as to whether a charter of one state or a charter of another state would be ample for its purpose?

A. Yes, sir, that was the main proposition.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that the character and form of this charter first became a burning question after it was determined to amalgamate or put into a common holding corporation the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway interests? 3290

A. Well, firstly, the form of this corporation never became a burning question at any time.

Q. Well, it seems to have been a subject of prolonged consideration.

Mr. Griggs. Yes, on cross-examination.

Mr. Beck. Well, it seems to have been preliminary to the formation of this corporation.

Witness. That came, as I have explained before, mainly from the difficulty of getting the views of the seven or eight or ten gentlemen who were to be largely interested in this corporation. They were so scattered that it was impossible to see more than one or two at a time, and that is what did more to prolong the final determination of details here and the placing of them on paper and putting them on file than anything else. 3291

Q. But these gentlemen were not making a search after the charter?

A. I didn't know that I had testified they were. 3292

Q. No.

A. No, I wasn't aware of that.

Q. Therefore, their absence from the city or their inability to get together had nothing to do with it, except the final meeting when you passed upon it and determined it, which you said was a few days.

A. There never was any final meeting. There never was 3293 any preliminary meeting, or any intermediate meeting or any final meeting.

Q. How, then, was it determined to take out a New Jersey charter, if you never held any meeting?

A. When I decided in my own mind that the advantages were in favor of the laws of the state of New Jersey, as they were well understood, as I saw the gentlemen I imparted my views to them and they acquiesced. That is the way it was done.

Q. Tell me this, what advantage had a New Jersey charter in the matter of the acquisition or holding of stock over a 3294 charter of the state of Minnesota?

A. I have stated to you my views on that subjcet; that the laws of New Jersey are very clear and well understood upon that subject. A great many corporations of that kind have been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey. Her statutes on the subject have been well understood and have been construed, and there is very little doubt or uncertainty as to them, whereas the state of Minnesota is new in that class of corporations. There are no large business corporations incorporated under the laws of the state of Minnesota; she never has had any. There has been no occasion to put powers that 3295 are given by her general statutes to such organizations under judicial question.

Q. Then, I will ask what advantage had the New Jersey charter, when you decided upon it, over a New York charter?

A. I stated that also a little while ago,—that my impression was that as the laws of the state of New York, which had been passed for the purpose of placing New York and New Jersey on a parity, were of very recent origin and had not yet been put to judicial determination and I did not know what view the New York courts might entertain, and the concern was to be so large, we wanted to know exactly what the pow-3296 ers of the company were.

Q. Well, at all events I am right in saying that a final decision as to the state in which you were to incorporate the holding corporation was not reached until after the holders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company's stock and the holders of the Great Northern Railway Company's stock had agreed to put their stock in a common corporation.

A. I don't think that I so stated.

3297

Q. Well, is it a fact or not?

A. I will state, as I said before, that the ultimate and final determination to incorporate under the laws of the state of New Jersey was not reached until a very few days before the articles of incorporation were filed, and after that they were prepared and filed just as soon as they could be.

Q. I repeat the question: Before you reached the conclusion to take out a New Jersey charter, Mr. Morgan's interests and the Great Northern interests had agreed to place their holdings in a common corporation?

3298

A. Before that was done, as I have stated before, the gentlemen who were stockholders of the Great Northern and who also held stock of the Northern Pacific, and Mr. Morgan himself (the holdings of Great Northern being, I think it was, about 33 millions and of the Northern Pacific about 42 millions all together, somewhere in that neighborhood, about 40 or 42) had decided that they would sell their stocks to the new company when created. Now, it was after that decision relating to those stocks and, as I said, only a few days before the articles of incorporation were actually filed, that the conclusion was ultimately reached to incorporate under the laws of the state of New Jersey.

3299

Q. Well, that is what I was trying to get at.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you have stated that the holders of Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock, other than the immediate associates of Mr. James J. Hill, were not solicited in any way to put their stock holdings into the Northern Securities Company.

A. Even James J. Hill was not solicited to put his stock of either Northern Pacific or Great Northern into the Northern Securities.

3300

Q. I am not asking whether Mr. James J. Hill was solicited, because the solicitor rarely requires to be solicited, but what I am asking you is whether I understood you to say that there was never any solicitation on the part of stockholders other than James J. Hill and his group of allied interests to put their respective holdings into the Northern Securities Company.

A. I want to answer that just as I did before, that nobody (including Mr. James J. Hill) was ever solicited by the North-3301 ern Securities Company to sell any part of his stock (either Northern Pacific or Great Northern) to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Did not Mr. James J. Hill, by letter dated November 30, 1901, in reply to inquiries that had been addressed by stockholders to the Northern Securities Company, say as follows: "The offer contained in the circular came from the request of the large holders of Great Northern, above mentioned, who desired that all other holders might have the same opportunities as themselves in association with them, and upon the same terms. The writer is of opinion that the offer of the Se-3302 curities Company is one that Great Northern shareholders can accept with profit and advantage to themselves"?

A. What is the question?

Q. The question is whether Mr. Hill did not address such a letter to those making inquiry of the Northern Securities Company as to whether they should put their respective holdings into the Northern Securities Company.

A. Well, now, if you will allow me to state—I think Mr. Hill has already stated, but I will repeat it: The Northern Securities Company, on the 22nd of November, as I remem-3303 ber, issued a circular, which has been introduced in evidence, and you have it before you.

Q. Yes, that is the letter.

A. That circular of November 22nd was issued—

Q. Well, if you will pardon me, Col. Clough; I don't want to interrupt you—

A. Now, excuse me. I just want to get to this. I am all through.

Q. I am not speaking of the circular of November 22nd. I am speaking of the circular of November 30th.

A. There was no circular of November 30th,—that is what 3304 I am trying to explain to you.

Q. All right. Now, explain that.

A. There was a circular issued November 22nd, which has been introduced in evidence and which you have before you. That was an offer by the Northern Securities Company to purchase such stock as should be tendered to it within a limited period, about sixty days. After that circular had been received by parties comparatively near by (that is, living in this country), a number of them wrote to Mr. Hill letters of 3305 inquiry about the circular and the Securities Company. Mr. Hill was about to leave for the West; he was very much pressed for time, and it was thought very probable that other letters of inquiry would be received at the office, addressed to him, during his absence. It was desired not to burden him with sending all of those letters of inquiry out to Minnesota, for him to make detailed answers to. So, before he got ready to leave New York he drew up the form of a letter, which is the form you have, dated November 30th, to be sent to such stockholders of the Great Northern as should address 3306 him at the New York office letters of inquiry during his absence.

Q. To the New York office of what?

A. To the New York office of James J. Hill.

Q. As a matter of fact were not those circulars sent out by the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir; none of them ever sent by the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Were not the inquiries that were addressed to James J. Hill, to the New York office, sent to the Northern Securities Company for attention, as he was the president of that body? 3307

A. No, sir, not one of them. I am sure none of them were.

Q. Having read to you the statement of Mr. James J. Hill, the president of the Northern Securities Company, in which he advises a sale of the respective holdings of Northern Pacific—

Mr. Griggs. Well, that is the trouble, you are misstating the language. He didn't advise anything of the kind. If you will make your question so as to say "after reading that portion of the circular" all right, but I object to your putting into the question the legal effect as you conceive it.

Mr. Beck. I am very sure that if Col. Clough thinks the 3308 question is unfair to him, he can say so.

Mr. Griggs. Well, he isn't the only person interested.

Mr. Beck. It is only a question of the interpretation of the language. If there is any man, woman or child on earth who would not, after reading that letter, take it as advice to sell his stock, I am very much mistaken.

Q. Having had read to you the letter of Mr. James J. Hill, 3309 do I still understand you to say that no one connected with the Northern Securities Company in an official capacity advised holders of Great Northern Railway stock to sell their holdings to the Northern Securities Company?

A. That was not the question you asked me before. I will answer the question you ask now by this statement. You have before you the circular of the Northern Securities Company of November 22nd.

Q. No, I haven't,—yes, that is right.

A. Yes, you have.

3310 Q. No, I haven't.

A. Well, it is in evidence. You have the form of a letter which was sent to individual stockholders upon inquiry. Both documents will speak for their own contents, and any one can draw his own inference. If you desire my inference, it is, as I said before (which is a fact) that the Northern Securities Company has never solicited any person to sell to it any stock of any kind, either Northern Pacific or Great Northern.

Q. Well, then, I understand you now to state that you mean that the Northern Securities Company as a corporation never solicited any stock?

3311 A. Not only that, but I do not think any officer of the Northern Securities Company has ever done so. I don't regard that draft of letter, the personal letter of Mr. Hill, as a solicitation. However, that is a pure matter of inference. My judgment is worth no more than that of anybody else on that subject. But that is the view I take of it. It will speak for itself, whatever it is.

Q. Col. Clough, do I understand you to say that the only purpose of forming the Northern Securities Company, either in its inception or as finally planned by comparison of views with Mr. Morgan and other interests, was to place the hold-3312 ings of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific in a position of security?

A. Firstly, I want to repeat what I said before. There was no comparison of views with Mr. Morgan about the Northern Securities Company except to the extent that he was asked if he would sell his stock to a corporation of that kind. Secondly, the sale of the stock (Northern Pacific and Great Northern stock) to the Northern Securities Company was undoubtedly made by each individual seller because each thought it 3313 would be a good and profitable thing for him to do. That is all I know about it. I don't know what his motives were.

Q. Well, I am not asking for the motives of 1,800 or 1,300 stockholders.

A. No. I don't know what their motives were, but I suppose they thought it was a good thing to do.

Q. It has been repeatedly stated here by you and other witnesses that the only purpose was in order to place certain stock holdings of Mr. Hill and associates beyond—to give them stability by pooling them in a common corporation. Now, I 3314 want to ask whether that was the only reason that prompted the formation of the Northern Securities Company—

A. Yes, sir.

Q. —on the part of those who were responsible for it?

A. The purpose, as I said, in its origin—the only thought that I have ever heard expressed in its origin, in regard to the Northern Securities Company, related to keeping together all the stock of the gentlemen I have named as being those who were consulted. So far as the other stockholders were concerned, comprising the great majority of the stocks of both the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, and comprising 3315
the great majority of the stockholders of the Northern Securities Company,—those gentlemen were given an opportunity to come in because the other gentlemen who had promoted this company thought that it was only right and fair to give every stockholder in the same class with them the same opportunity for whatever advantages (if there were any) which would arise out of the sale of their stock to the Northern Securities Company.

Q. There was, then, no intention at all after the great struggle for control of the Northern Pacific, to promote peace in the financial world by the formation of the Northern Securi 3316 ties Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. None at all?

A. No, sir.

Q. Therefore, the fact that Mr. Harriman sold his 78 millions to the Northern Securities Company, and Mr. Morgan put in his large holdings of Northern Pacific, and that Mr 3317 Hill and his associates put in their large holdings of Great Northern, had nothing to do at all with the community of interest plan of which so much has been said?

A. So far as I know, it had not.

Q. Do you also say it had nothing at all to do with—

A. Now, if you will excuse me one minute and let me finish my answer. I don't know what may have been in the mind of any individual stockholder when he offered to sell his stock to the Northern Securities Company. I assume he thought it would be an advantageous thing for him to do it. But 3318 about the elements that were in his mind as making up that advantage of course I have no means of knowledge.

Q. I don't ask concerning a number of insignificant people that drifted with the current; I am speaking of the really big men in this thing, with whom you were associating and conferring in New York. Now, do you mean to say in your testimony in this cause that the creation of peace in the railway world had nothing to do with the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. I don't think it had anything at all.

Q. Do you also say that the increase in this indirect way
3319 of the capitalization of the constituent companies had nothing to do with the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. Now, if you will allow me to answer that. You speak of an increase in capitalization. Let me ask you what you mean by that? Do you mean that there have been issued Northern Securities Company shares for the purchase of Great Northern and Northern Pacific to an aggregate amount of more than the shares in the two railway companies?

Q. Oh, no, I am not referring to that at all. I will tell you what I am referring to. What was the capitalization of the 3320 Great Northern Railway Company, for instance, in the year 1898?

A. You mean in the year 1891.

Q. No, I mean in the year 1898.

A. If you will permit me to state I think I can help you.

Q. Yes.

A. When the Great Northern leased the Manitoba Company in 1890, February 1, the capital stock of the Great Northern Company was 20 millions of dollars. It was increased at 3321 various times from that time until along about 1900 (my recollection is) or 1901, possibly might have been 1901.

Mr. Grover. It was before 1901.

Witness. It had been increased before 1901. My recollection is that the last increase took effect in 1901, increased to 125 millions of authorized capital, of which 123 and odd millions (that is, millions and odd hundred thousand) are now outstanding. Now, if you wish to know about those increases: Each one of those increases was sold to existing stockholders of the Great Northern at par for cash or its equivalent, and 3322 represented 105 millions of dollars of additional cash investment. The increase was 105 millions, and that was for 105 millions of dollars of cash or its equivalent in bonds, at par, which were worth that on the market,—worth par or more.

Q. In the year 1898 what was your common stock?

A. The common stock of which?

Q. Of the Great Northern Railway?

A. The Great Northern Railway has never issued since 1890 more than one class of stock. Let me say that all the stock of the Great Northern goes under the name of preferred stock. That came about in this way. In 1890, when the Great North- 3323 ern was about to take over the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba—

Q. Well, Colonel, unless you desire this, I don't want to cumber up the record.

A. There is only one class of stock, if that is what you want to know.

Q. I don't care about the reason for it. What was, then, the so-called preferred stock in 1898?

A. This paper you show me here states what it was. I won't vouch for the correctness of the figures upon it. Along about 1898, I don't remember the exact year, it had reached 3324 a hundred millions of dollars in round numbers.

Q. In 1898?

A. Yes, sir. Oh, no, not in 1898. About 1900, before the last increase.

Q. Well, I am asking about 1898.

A. Well, as I have mentioned, it was first 20 millions, and 3325 then it was increased and the new stock sold for cash or its equivalent in securities.

Q. First, I want to get what was the stock in 1898.

A. Well, I don't want to state from your paper. I don't know whether this is a correct compilation, but I will give it to you exactly.

Q. Can you tell me approximately? Was it over 30 millions in 1898?

A. I think it was, but I will give you exactly what it was; I will get it.

3326 Q. Do you know what the mileage was in that year?

A. If you call for it I will give you the stock and mileage of each year since 1890.

Mr. Richards. I wish you would, Colonel.

Witness. I will give you the mileage of the system for any years you want, and the capital stock.

Subsequently the witness forwarded to the Examiner such statement, which by consent of all parties is received in evidence and marked defendants' Exhibit 8.

Q. Eliminating the Burlington, how much has the mileage of the Great Northern road increased since 1898?

3327 A. New road has been built every year, and in addition to that great amounts have been laid out in the improvement of the property and additional equipment.

Q. Tell me whether this paper is approximately correct, and if you feel the slightest hesitation about vouching for it, approximately, I will abandon that line of questions?

A. Let me answer this, which I think will cut it short. There never has been an increase in the stock of the Great Northern road from the beginning that was not sold at par and for cash or its equivalent in securities, and every dollar went into the property; and, in addition to that, many millions 3328 of dollars out of the earnings of the property. Whether it went for lengthening the road or for the betterment of the existing line and for the increase of equipment, it all went into the property and is in it today, and much more than the cash from the increase of the stock—very much more.

Q. The holdings of the Northern Securities Company, so far as they represent the Great Northern stock holdings, aggregate 225 millions par, do they not?

A. I beg pardon? 3329

Q. 225 millions. I say the holdings of the Northern Securities Company stock which represent the transfers of the Great Northern stock, aggregate 225 millions.

A. No, sir.

Q. How much was that?

A. A little over 90 millions—about 95 millions of Great Northern stock have been bought and paid for by the Securities Company, at 180.

Q. About 171?

A. About 171 millions Securities Company stock have been issued to pay for Great Northern stock. 3330

Q. Well, if all the Great Northern was in it, you would get about 225?

A. Yes, sir; if it were all in.

Q. The corporate securities that now represent the Great Northern property, assuming that all the Great Northern stock was put in the Northern Securities Company, would represent a capitalization of 225 millions as against a capitalization of about 25 millions five years ago?

A. That is not quite correct.

Q. Well, wherein is it incorrect? 3331

A. It is incorrect in this: In the first place, the Northern Securities Company is not buying Great Northern stock, and it would depend on the price at which Great Northern stock would be bought. If you will look at the circular of November 20, 1901, you will notice that the offer to buy the stock was for a limited period; and while a few lots of stock of the Great Northern have been bought since, that is since the expiration of that period,—the Northern Securities Company is not buying Great Northern stock at 180, and all of the Securities Company stock that can be counted on as representing Great Northern stock is 171 millions. The remaining 30 3332 millions of Great Northern going into Northern Securities would depend entirely upon the price that the Northern Securities Company would pay for it.

Q. Well, then, there are securities of the Northern Securities Company amounting at least to 170 millions which represent a portion only of stocks which five years ago were capitalized at 25 millions?

3333 A. No, sir. The property which is capitalized at 125 millions is not the same property which was capitalized at a smaller sum before. The property which is capitalized at 125 millions has had 100 or 105 millions out of increased Great Northern stock—and a large amount additional out of the current revenues of the company put into it, and what is represented by the Great Northern stock to-day and this year is the result of all of these expenditures, what were made before 1900 and what have been made since.

Q. Are you able to tell how your mileage has grown from 1898 to 1901?

3334 A. It has grown very considerably. It has grown probably five or six hundred miles.

Q. Yes, five or six hundred miles.

A. But the great amount of expenditure has been made in the improvements and betterments of existing lines and additions to the equipment and things of that kind.

Q. What is the mileage of the Great Northern now?

A. In the system?

Q. Yes.

A. The mileage in the system of railways is about six thousand miles.

3335 Q. Are you including the Burlington?

A. No, sir; I include only the Great Northern system under various companies. In addition to that it includes a fleet of steamers on the Great Lakes,—two passenger boats and six freight boats, and various investments of that character. The investments of the Great Northern are not confined to railways.

Q. And you think in the last five years the mileage has increased about 500 miles?

A. Oh, I think more than that, perhaps, in acquisitions.

3336 Q. Well, not over a thousand?

A. I will give it to you precisely.

Q. Now, Colonel, do I understand you to say, as far as you know, that none of the astute gentlemen who formed the Northern Securities Company contemplated the undoubted monopoly, that was made possible, of the railway transportation of the Northwest?

A. What do you mean by that?

Q. Well, I will tell you what I mean. The Northern 3337
Securities Company owns a majority of the stock of the Great Northern? Is that right?

A. It does.

Q. It owns a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific?

A. It does.

Q. It has a voting committee?

A. No, I beg your pardon, it has not.

Q. Has it two voting committees?

A. It has given proxies; it has given proxies for the stock of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and another set of proxies for the stock of the Great Northern Railway Company. 3338

Q. And they are vested in committees?

A. It is not a committee; they are proxies.

Q. They are proxies?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, therefore, through these two bodies of men that are appointed by the board of directors—are they not?

A. They were selected by the board of directors, yes, sir.

Q. The majority of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern stock can be voted at pleasure?

A. At whose pleasure?

Q. I say at the pleasure of those holding the proxies? 3339

A. Why, I presume so.

Q. Yes.

A. For certain purposes—if you will allow me to state.

Q. Well, do the proxies that have been given contain any limitation as to the purposes for which they are devoted?

A. The charters do—the charters of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway Company.

Q. But the charter of the Northern Securities Company does not contain any limitation on the power to vote under proxy?

A. Not the slightest. The limitations on the powers of the 3340 proxies are contained in the charters and by-laws of the respective railway companies, and they cannot cast any vote for any person or any measure otherwise than as the charters of the two companies provide. That is one limitation.

Q. Now, therefore, is it beyond the power of those within the Northern Securities Company who hold those proxies to 3341 have the same board of directors for the Great Northern and for the Northern Pacific?

A. Within the power of whom?

Q. I say within the power of those who hold proxies for a majority of the Northern Pacific and a majority of the Great Northern to select the same board of directors for both corporations?

A. They have exactly the same power as the proxies for the stock of any other two corporations.

Q. Well, won't you answer my question direct?

A. I am answering it directly. I am going to answer it.
3342 They have precisely the same power that proxies for the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern always had, and as proxies for the stock of the Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago Northwestern always had. I don't know of anything except the laws of the country that prevent the proxies for the stock of one railroad company electing the same people directors and officers (as far as the stock can elect officers) of any other railroad corporation. There never has been anything in either the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern since their foundation, except the laws of the country, that prevented the stockholders of the two companies electing the 3343 same board of directors. There isn't anything else now. There is just as much to prevent it now as there ever was; and there is no more. They stand just the same as they always did.

Q. Then, it is a fact that those who hold a majority of the stock of both corporations can vest both of these great railway systems under one board of directors?

A. The separate stockholders of each company—the separate proxies, if you please (put it that way), of Northern Pacific and Great Northern stock have the same powers and no more powers than have always existed in the majority 3344 of the stockholders of both companies, subject to the laws of the country, to elect whoever they please to be on the board of directors.

Q. And that, I have understood you to say, contemplates the possibility of those in the Northern Securities who hold the proxies, to put both these railway systems under a common board of directors?

A. On the contrary.

Q. Under the same board of directors as its personnel? I 3345 am going to have a direct answer to my question.

A. Yes, you are going to get a direct answer, and you have it. Recently you changed your question. Excuse me, but it makes it somewhat more difficult to answer, because the question jumps around so much and doesn't stay in a place. In the first place, in your last form of question you assumed that somebody contemplated that the proxies for the Northern Pacific and Great Northern stock were going to elect the—

Q. I didn't say anything about that.

A. I understood you so. No, sir, there is no such contem- 3346 plation.

Q. I am now speaking of the possible exercise of a power; and what I want to get is the simple, naked fact whether, in your judgment, those who hold the proxies in the Northern Securities Company for the stock of that corporation which represents a majority of the stock holdings of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, could elect the same board of directors in its personnel for both corporations.

A. No, sir. And I will tell you why. I was not permitted to finish my answer before or I would have done so then. I spoke of the limitations in the charters and in the laws of the country. There is a provision, I think (if I remember cor- 3347 rectly), in the laws of the State of Minnesota, and many other states where these two railways are operating, that would forbid the officers and directors of one company being officers and directors in the other. Consequently, since the adoption of those laws it has not been in the power of the holders of the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern to elect the same men to be directors of the company or officers of the company. But the formation of the Northern Securities Company has not added anything to nor taken anything away from that power. It stands just as it did before under the pro- 3348 hibition of the laws of the various states in which these roads are.

Q. This is the fact, that a majority of the stockholders of the Northern Securities Company can control a majority of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway systems?

A. Well, now, I can admit that.

Q. Can't they vote the stock?

3349 A. They can vote the stock of the Northern Securities Company to elect a board of directors—of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. Yes.

A. And the Northern Securities Company can designate proxies to vote the stocks of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railway Companies. But those proxies can only exercise their powers when they come into the meetings of these two companies, in accordance with the charters and by-laws of the respective companies and the laws of the land. Now, when the proxies of the Northern Securities Company 3350 come into these meetings, the laws of the land say that they must elect separate and independent boards, and entirely distinct boards of directors for each company, and that they cannot elect the same men. That prohibition stands just as it always has.

Q. Even if the two boards of directors are different in their personnel, respectively, they both are subject to the common control of the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir, they are not subject to any control of the Northern Securities Company.

Q. They can be voted out or in at the pleasure of the North-3351 ern Securities Company.

A. When the next election comes and their successors are to be elected, the proxies of the Northern Securities Company again will be confronted with precisely the same conditions as they were the year before, until the laws of this row of states up here are repealed or the charters of the companies changed. If another one is to be elected it will be somebody else than a director of the other company.

Q. I am asking you whether each of the boards of directors of these two great railway systems (assuming now that they are different in their personnel) is not yet subject to the power 3352 that created them, namely, the Northern Securities Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. In what respect are they not?

A. They cannot be voted out or in at pleasure because under the by-laws and charter the directors hold their places for a fixed term, which is one year.

Q. Notwithstanding a stockholders' meeting vote them out?

A. No, sir; they hold absolutely for one year; and after the election is made the tenure of office, during the term of office, is entirely independent of every stockholder—absolutely. 3353

Q. You do not seriously dispute, Col. Clough, the moral control of those who elect the directors over the directors?

A. Well, you are talking about a certain indefinite state of things that has no palpable weight at all.

Q. Now, be that as it may, be it legal or moral control, I want to ask you now whether you mean to suggest that when the Northern Securities Company was formed by the responsible interests that formed it, the suggestion of this common control was never even discussed or considered? 3354

A. No, sir, I never heard it mentioned.

Q. Never heard it mentioned?

A. No, sir, never heard it mentioned. That is, the subject of a common control or the subject of any power outside of the board of directors and officers of the separate corporations managing each company for all there was in it. It never was mentioned, I am sure it wasn't.

Mr. Beck. It wasn't necessary to mention it.

Examined by Mr. Richards:

Q. Col. Clough, just to utilize all the time and to get into the record something which you furnished to me. You agreed at the time of your examination in New York to give me the date when the first batch of Great Northern Railway stock paid for by the Northern Securities Company but not transferred upon the books of the Great Northern Company, was acquired? 3355

A. Yes, sir, and I wrote you a letter giving it.

Q. Yes, I have that letter, and it states on December 11, 1901.

A. Yes, sir; I have the same data here from which I wrote the letter; that is right. 3356

Q. And at the same time you stated that you would give me on that date the amount of holdings by the Northern Securities Company of Great Northern stock standing in its name?

A. Which was also included in the letter.

Q. And that amount, as stated in this letter, was 490,833 shares.

A. That is correct.

3357 Q. That is corect?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. Let me ask you now whether this date, December 11, 1901, was the date when a certain suit was filed against the Northern Securities Company?

A. Oh, no. The Minnesota suit was filed some time in January following. January 6th was the first litigation in which the Northern Securities Company was party. That had no relation to any litigation, but was for the purpose I mentioned in my testimony before.

3358 Mr. Grover. Does that letter state the number of shareholders of the Northern Pacific outstanding?

Witness. No.

Mr. Richards. No.

Q. Let me ask you, Col. Clough, whether it was not about that time that the governors of certain states in the Northwest met to consider the question of how the organization of the Northern Securities Company affected certain public interests here and certain laws.

A. They may have done so. I didn't charge my mind with any dates relating to that subject.

3359 Examined by Mr. Day:

Q. Col. Clough, regarding the rates you spoke of this morning, these rate sheets and tabulated statements.

A. Yes.

Q. When was it that you went to New York—left St. Paul and severed your direct relations with the Great Northern?

A. I went to New York on other business in March, 1901. I mean on other business relating to the company than the Burlington purchase. I had occasion to go there frequently. And after I got there these various matters came up and I 3360 was detained, and have been living there ever since, practically all the time.

Q. When did you cease to be vice-president of the Great Northern?

A. It was some time in the fall of 1901 when I found out that it was necessary for me to spend all of my time in New York. Then I resigned because I could not fill the place; it required a man on the ground here.

Q. Now, when you were vice-president of the Great Northern and taking an active interest in the affairs of the company, were you familiar with the rates and the way they were made out? 3361

A. Yes, sir, I was very familiar with all of the business of the company.

Q. And in making up this statement you know that the data are preserved by your company for the making of it?

A. As I said this morning (and I can explain more at length), all I know about the correctness of these figures is the same that pertains to all statistics of railway companies. They have to be made by so many different people that they are like the census of the United States. There is no one individual, or no twenty individuals, or no fifty, or no hundred who can be called to speak of their own knowledge. The Great Northern Railway Company, like the Northern Pacific, has a fixed set of rules for the keeping of its accounts and the reporting of its business. 3362

Q. Well, Col. Clough, you went over that I think to that extent this morning.

A. Yes.

Q. My question was this: whether data were preserved by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies showing how traffic was divided, the percentages? 3363

A. I am going to explain to you just how this was made, exactly. The way-bills, as I explained, are the basis of all accountings in regard to earnings, etc. Each way-bill states separately its point of shipment and its point of destination. Abstracts of each separate way-bill are sent to the central accounting department, and those are preserved; and as they come in statistical men are set to work to make record of those.

Mr. Richards. You explained all that before, Col. Clough.

Mr. Day. I don't want you to go over that again.

Witness. Well, I don't know what you mean, then. 3364

Q. My question was this—

A. Now I know. It is the necessity of the business of the company to make and keep these records because it is the basis of all their financial accounting, and it is through these documents that they are able to report their gross earnings; and they are returned and this work is done; it has to be done;

3365 it is a necessity; the roads couldn't do their business unless it were done.

Q. Now, what I had in my mind was this: whether this was made directly from a tabulation of what these way-bills contain—at this specific time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or was it made from month to month or week to week during the period it covered?

A. These tables were made from records, one for each month, which is a tabulation of the way-bills of that month.

3366 Q. Did you direct this to be made up?

A. I did, sir, and was in both offices several times while the process was going on, to be sure it was correct.

Q. Whom did you direct to have it made up by the Great Northern?

A. I went to the Comptroller, who is the chief accounting officer.

Q. And the Northern Pacific?

A. The Northern Pacific, the Comptroller, Mr. Gray, who was the chief accounting officer; and each of those gentlemen, when it was requested, called in the heads of the freight 3367 and passenger accounting departments and instructed them to do it; and each one at once (as the time was short) placed each book for each month in the hands of a separate clerk and he went to compiling the freight. The passenger statistics were put in the hands of as many clerks as could work on them. There is no other way of doing it. The figures contained in these sheets that have been presented here, Exs. 6 and 7, for each company, the work of making these particular sheets and taking them from the statistics occupied altogether (officers and clerks) about sixteen or seventeen men in each company.

3368 Q. Now, when did you cease to have anything to do with the traffic and the rates, the way rates were made up on the Great Northern system?

A. When I ceased connection with the Great Northern system, I ceased to know directly about that. But being in the offices and seeing the method in which business is done, I discovered that there is no material change.

Q. Now, this tariff sheet that is marked Defendants' Exhibit 5, what is that? 3369

A. That is what it purports to be on its face.

Q. Will you state briefly what it is?

A. Yes, sir. It is the west-bound joint tariff on class and commodity rates effective July 1, 1902, between the roads operating in the country west of the Missouri river and the roads generally in the country operating east.

Q. Those are the rates that apply in that territory on the traffic mentioned in the tariff?

A. Yes, sir, they are the rates on traffic from points east of the Missouri river to the territory west of there. This is the west-bound. 3370

Q. And that is issued by a traffic association and is the uniform tariff that applies on all those lines in that territory.

A. Well, it is called a bureau now; it is a bureau of information, that is what it is.

Q. Yes, sir.

A. That issues the book for all. It does the printing, to save expense in printing, as the tariffs are identical. It gets a whole lot of them printed.

Q. Now, then, the question I am asking you is this: that contains the rates that apply upon all of those lines? 3371

A. Yes, sir.

Q. They are uniform?

A. They are uniform, yes, sir.

Q. Now, you have in this territory, the territory which is called west of the Missouri river, an Official Classification?

A. Yes, sir, called the Western Classification.

Q. What is the title of that?

A. That is called the Western Classification.

Q. What traffic does it cover?

A. It covers all traffic that moves under the class rates, and carload rates also to a limited extent, because there are a great many special tariffs besides that, in the country west of Chicago and north of the Ohio river. 3372

Q. Now, in conjunction with this do you use the Official Classification?

A. The Official Classification has very little importance in the territory west of the Missouri. It is of great advantage 3373 and value to the companies, all the companies operative in the territory west of the Missouri, the entering into the joint tariffs; because the joint tariffs on all commodities that move in any quantity ignore all classifications. Joint tariffs ignore all joint classification for the great bulk of the business and give the rate on each commodity as a commodity, all the way through from the point of shipment to the point of destination. So that it is not necessary, in regard to any article that is specified in this joint tariff, to refer to the classifications at all. That is one great value of it to the carrier and also to the shipper.

3374 Q. In what territory does the Official Classification apply?

A. Well, the western and the official overlap to a certain extent. The Official Classification is north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river. The western classification crosses the Mississippi river and goes to Chicago.

Q. Now, I understand in this tariff, Ex. 5, the rates that are mentioned there are what you call commodity rates—

A. Yes, sir, they are all practically commodity rates in this tariff, but if you will notice—

Q. Now, when an article that is named in that tariff, des-3375 tined, we will say, from New York to the Pacific coast, how do you make up the rate on articles of that character that are named in Ex. 5?

A. Have you one of these?

Mr. Day. No.

Witness. Well, I will hand it to you then (handing Mr. Day copy of tariff). On page 21 there are general class rates, but practically the business of the country moves under these commodity rates.

Q. Now I am asking you where the article is shipped from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic seaboard, or from the Atlan-
3376 tic seaboard to the Pacific coast, that is not named in this Ex. 5,—

A. That is what I am saying, and calling your attention to page 21, which provides for that.

Q. You use, then, the two classifications to ascertain that rate?

A. Theoretically that would be so; practically, I am inclined to think that most of the settlements are based on the 3377 western classification—in practice.

Q. Now, will you just state, looking at page 21, what the class rates are?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take the five classes.

A. You mean the five that are numbered?

Q. Yes; carloads.

A. Then there are five that are lettered classes. There are five numbered classes, Mr. Day, and five lettered classes. Now, which do you refer to?

Mr. Grover. Why can't you tear the page out and put it 3378 in evidence?

Witness. Page 21.

Mr. Day. Yes.

Witness. Yes, I see those.

Q. Those are the rates that apply on traffic from the Missouri river or from Chicago to the Pacific coast, where the articles are not named, specifically named, in that tariff sheet?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, you have an Official Classification on traffic that applies in all instances excepting where the rates 3379 in your Ex. 5 apply, which are the commodity rates?

A. Well, I should rather invert that, considering the volume of business. I think immensely the greater portion of the business moves under these commodity rates.

Q. Yes, I am assuming that now. But I am saying now that where the commodity rates do not apply, the Official Classification applies and fixes the rate.

A. If there is no commodity rate.

Mr. Grover. You use the word "official."

Mr. Day. Well, I mean classification; your western classification. 3380

Witness. If you will allow me to suggest, and so as to have it made clear, the Official Classification is not in force on any of these lines in the west here. What is called the western classification is in force here.

Q. The western classification applies on the territory west of the Mississippi river?

A. Yes, it runs to Chicago.

3381 Q. Now, the point I want to get into the record is this: these are commodity rates, and where a rate is not named in Ex. 5, as a commodity rate, the class rates apply—the official rates on page 21 apply?

A. That is right; that is so far as this business is concerned. Of course there are numerous other tariffs, and this was only produced as an illustration of what a joint tariff is, so it could be gotten into the record.

Q. I simply wanted to get into the record how the rates are made up.

3382 A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say in this Ex. 5, those are commodity rates and they cover the bulk of the traffic, but where they are not specifically named there, you look to the classification to find it?

A. Sure.

Q. And the class rates are named on page 21?

A. On page 21, yes, sir.

Q. There are ten classes?

A. Yes, sir. I will suggest also, if you will allow me to interrupt—I will suggest that if any part of this goes in ex-3383 cept the title page, the number of articles that are specifically covered be counted up, approximately, and that also be stated.

Q. Mr. Clough, did you bring a copy of the classification that took effect—

Mr. Grover hands classification to Mr. Day.

Witness. See if that is the one you wanted; I sent for it.

Q. Is this the classification, western classification No. 29, that applied prior to the taking effect—

A. Various supplementary sheets to these classification volumes, as they are put out, are sent out from time to time; they are issued from time to time, and then as periods elapse 3384 they are all condensed into a single volume. This classification pamphlet included everything up to and on July 1, 1899, and thereafter except as modified and added to by subsequent supplementary sheets. I do not see any supplements in here; but I have no doubt there were supplements.

Q. Is that the next classification that was issued after that one? (Showing classification to witness.)

A. I can't answer that question. I don't believe it was.

I have a notion that there was at least one volume printed 3385 complete between July 1, 1899, and Oct. 1, 1902. I will ascertain this evening.

Q. Now, Col. Clough, to return to this Ex. 6. In this you say "Interstate business forwarded from and to towns where the Northern Pacific also has stations, but which towns can also be reached by other lines of railway." That is your statement?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take Ex. 6, the five divisions that you have made here, do either of these cover traffic that come to the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific from the Burlington? 3386

A. Everything.

Q. On other lines?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Destined, say, to foreign parts?

A. Yes, sir. If you will allow me to explain—

Q. Well, which one of them would cover traffic that would come from, say, points east of Chicago and destined, say, for Asia?

A. That would come under either "3"—

Mr. Richards. No.

Witness.—or "4" or both. 3387

Mr. Richards. I think not, Colonel.

Witness. Yes, sir, it would come under "3". Just let me read that. (Looking at the exhibit.) Yes, sir.

Mr. Richards. Not at all. I don't see how you can make that good.

Witness. Why?

Mr. Richards. Number 3 says "Interstate business originating or terminating on connecting lines, carried via junctions common to both Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railways, and which was destined to or forwarded from 3388 towns on Great Northern Railway where the Northern Pacific Railway also has stations, that are reached by other lines of Railway."

Witness. That is right. The Asiatic business was intended to be included under "3" because the Northern Pacific and Great Northern points through which the traffic passes are reached either directly by other railroad routes or by 3389 other railroad routes in connection with the steamship service. That is, they are all bidding for that business that is indicated in the third paragraph.

Examined by Mr. Richards:

Q. Do you regard freight shipped, say, from Chicago to Hong-Kong, that passes over the Great Northern or Northern Pacific line, destined for a point on either of those lines? It is destined for Hong-Kong, isn't it?

A. But it has to pass through its western terminal.

3390 Mr. Day. It doesn't say so in this exhibit.

Witness. No.

Q. It limits it to freight that is destined to or forwarded from a town on the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific.

A. That is right. It is either forwarded from or destined to and passes through junction points, and at the Pacific coast terminal it has to pass through the terminal points of those companies and there be delivered to the steamer. The junction points that were intended were eastern terminals, or the junction point was particularly meant a point where the two roads come together and there connect with another carrier 3391 beyond. That was the intention of it, whichever way the carrier is beyond. So this was intended to cover both east and west-bound business to and from Asia.

Examined by Mr. Day:

Q. And section 3 does cover that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does paragraph 5 cover?

A. Paragraph 5 covers all business that both originates and terminates on the Great Northern road (in case of the Great Northern), and on the Northern Pacific (in case of the North-3392 ern Pacific), where the other company has no station. In other words, where it is interstate business which is strictly local to the several companies and the other company is not there at all, is not competing for the business.

Q. Now, turn to page one of Ex. 6, third division.

A. I have it now.

Q. Take the third paragraph.

A. The third paragraph of page one—I have not a copy of 3393 page one of Ex. 6, but I have a corresponding one for the Northern Pacific.

Examined by Mr. Richards:

Q. Just in the line of what I was asking you before and to clear up the matter in my own mind at least; does the third paragraph here include all this great foreign business respecting which Mr. Hill testified?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that altogether that amounts, as far as the Great Northern road is concerned— 3394

A. These are earnings, you understand.

Q. Yes, earnings—amounts to only 17 per cent of the earnings?

A. That is what it amounts to.

Q. Or to $2,891,310.69?

A. Yes, sir; that is what it amounts to, that is correct. The fact is, of course, that the immense bulk of the traffic of all kinds on these roads is strictly local to the company—begins and ends at places where the other is not present. I think that is practically true of every railroad in the country. The great bulk of all railroad traffic is local to the road. 3395

Examined by Mr. Day:

Q. Now, Colonel, to return to page one, the third paragraph.

A. Yes, I have the form here of the Northern Pacific.

Q. "The percentage of interstate traffic, the rates on which could be controlled only by agreement with lines competing with Northern Pacific and Great Northern, 6.89 per cent" of the whole.

A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. What I mean by that is: that is a class of business the 3396 transportation of which passes over, firstly, connecting lines. Oh, it is the third paragraph?

A. Yes, the third paragraph.

A. Oh, excuse me, I was reading the fourth. The fourth paragraph relates to traffic—

Q. Well, I asked about the third.

3397 A. The third paragraph relates to traffic which begins at a Great Northern and Northern Pacific common point, as, for instance, for the purpose of illustration, St. Paul, and goes to another common point on the Northern Pacific and Great Northern where another railroad between the same points is operating, as, for instance, Fargo, where the Milwaukee & St. Paul is operating. That is what I mean by that. Another of those points is Butte, where the Union Pacific is present. Another of those points is Spokane, where the Union Pacific is present.

Q. And Seattle and Portland?

3398 A. Yes, there is competition there also.

Q. Now, do you mean to state that that percentage, 6.89 percentage of the total interstate traffic, is controlled by rates that are the result of agreement by these competing lines?

A. No, sir; what I say is that they cannot be controlled by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific by their own arrangement, but in order to control rates they must bring in a third party who must be consulted and consent to the rates,—like the Milwaukee & St. Paul or the Union Pacific. That is what I mean. Do I make myself clear?

Q. Yes, I think so. Those are the rates that are mentioned 3399 in this Ex. 5?

A. Yes, sir. No, those are not quite the same. The rates in Ex. 5 are those in the fourth paragraph, if you will read the next below. No, there must be an agreement not only between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific and a third carrier reaching the same point to control rates, but the connecting line beyond must be brought in to consent to the through rates; then four classes of parties are necessary.

Q. Where are the rate sheets that come under that third paragraph?

A. I have not those here.

3400 Q. As a matter of fact, doesn't Ex. 5 apply to both third and fourth?

A. It was not intended to; it was only intended to apply to the fourth, and there is a class of tariffs on the Great Northern road itself and on the Northern Pacific road going out to a number of those points.

Q. And on the St. Paul road and on the Union Pacific?

A. Yes, sir. 3401

Q. Where the rate is the result of agreement between those four or five lines?

A. Yes, sir, where, if the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific desired to raise the rate, they couldn't do it without securing a simultaneous rise to the same extent by the other competing carriers.

Q. Yes; the rates are the result of agreement and they won't change them without agreement.

A. Yes. Under paragraph four it is necessary to get the consent of the line beyond to the joint tariff, in addition to the local road that is competing directly. 3402

Q. Col. Clough, have you had anything to do with the rates since you went east?

A. Not directly, no, sir.

Q. Had anything to do with the traffic arrangements between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific?

A. Absolutely nothing. My connection since I have been east has been nothing with the Great Northern. I have been a director and a member of the executive committee of the Northern Pacific, but the subject of rates and tariffs has never been mentioned in any of the meetings of the board or executive committee of the Northern Pacific since I have been a 3403 member.

Mr. Day. That is all, Colonel, and we withdraw our objection to that paper.

The Examiner. You withdraw your objections to Exs. 6 and 7?

Mr. Day. Yes. Your explanation regarding Ex. 6 applies to Ex. 7 also?

Witness. Yes, sir.

Mr. Day. The reporter will make a mark on these two classifications that are produced so we may subsequently put them in if we deem best. And, Col. Clough, will you file or 3404 submit to us the Western classification that was in force between January 1, 1900, and January 1, 1902?

Witness. I will do it if I can get it, and I think among the various roads around town I can get it.

Mr. Richards. That is all.

3405

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Grover:

Q. Is there a provision in the constitution of the state of Minnesota subjecting stockholders to double liability for any indebtedness of the company?

A. There is. That is, in the state of Minnesota?

Q. The state of Minnesota.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is a material matter in the consideration of the or-3406 ganization of corporations under the general laws of the state?

A. Yes, sir. That was another reason why we felt that the state of Minnesota was not a proper state to resort to for incorporation under the general law.

Q. What was the number of outstanding shareholders of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in, say, August and September, 1901?

A. There were over 3,000; something like 3,600, to the best of my recollection. I will give it to you exactly. But it was between three and four thousand.

3407 Q. Was there any negotiation or discussion concerning the formation of the Northern Securities Company, or the purpose of its organization with any Northern Pacific shareholder except Mr. Morgan, outside of the Great Northern shareholders who likewise held Northern Pacific shares?

A. To the best of my knowledge there was not; I am sure there was none; and with Mr. Morgan only to the extent I have mentioned.

Q. That was a question whether he would turn in his shares?

A. Yes, sir; sell his shares and take his pay in the stock of 3408 the new company, or otherwise.

Q. Previous to the first day of May, 1901, did you know of any purpose on the part of Great Northern shareholders owning Northern Pacific shares to increase their holdings in Northern Pacific shares?

A. At what time was that?

Q. Prior to the first of May, 1901.

A. I never heard the subject mentioned.

By Mr. Day: 3409

Q. Colonel, just one other question that may be in there or may not. Your commodity rates or your tariff rates, say, to the Pacific and Pacific to the Atlantic apply by every line in the official classification territory?

A. Apply to all who are—

Q. —named on page 2 of this book?

A. To all who are consenting parties to this joint tariff.

The witness was excused.

W. P. CLOUGH.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of October, 1902. 3410

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL,
Special Examiner.

8411 CHARLES S. MELLEN, called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, being duly sworn by the Examiner, testified as follows:

Examined by Mr. Bunn:

Q. Mr. Mellen, you are the president of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I am.

Q. You have already given testimony in this case?

A. In the Power case.

8412 Q. Well, it has been introduced in this case by consent. Are you a member of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railway Company?

A. I am.

Q. How long have you been its president and a member of the board?

A. Since some time in August, 1897.

Q. Are you, as a director, also a member of the executive committee?

A. I am.

Q. Are you in the habit of attending the meetings of those 8413 boards?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the corporate proceedings of the company since you became its president?

A. I am.

Q. Has the Northern Pacific Railway Company ever taken any action or any part as a corporation in the formation of the Northern Securities Company?

A. It has not.

Q. Has it taken any action or part as a corporation in the transfer of any shares of stock to the Northern Securities
8414 Company?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. I refer to shares either of Northern Pacific stock or Great Northern stock.

A. I think not; not to my knowledge, certainly.

Q. Prior to your connection with the Northern Pacific Company, Mr. Mellen, were you at one time connected with the Union Pacific Company?

A. I was, for four years. 3415

Q. For four years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During what years?

A. From June 1, 1888, to the first of April, 1892.

Q. And during that time were you over the Union Pacific lines frequently?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of your duties for the Union Pacific road?

A. Well, I held several positions during the four years. I 3416 was assistant general manager, acting general manager, purchasing agent, and for the greater portion of the time the general traffic manager.

Q. And your headquarters were where?

A. In Omaha, Nebraska.

Q. Are you familiar, and have you been familiar during these years, with the Burlington lines, Northern Pacific lines, Great Northern lines and Union Pacific lines?

A. I am, and have been for ten years back.

Q. Mr. Mellen, did the acquisition of the stock of the Bur- 3417 lington road by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern have any effect or influence to restrain or hinder trade or commerce between the states or with foreign nations?

A. I have thought it promoted it rather than hindered it.

Q. Will you tell us in what respect it promoted it?

A. It resulted in a much freer interchange of business between the Northern Pacific and the Burlington. The business increased very much. It has been more to the interest of the two companies to work closely together. It has opened a much wider market to the products tributary to the line of the Northern Pacific and the business has increased. I have no figures to show, but it is my impression the business has 3418 increased very considerably, and is bound to increase from month to month and from year to year as the result of the acquisition.

Q. What are the products which are tributary to the Northern Pacific lines and which are shipped from that line to the country reached by the Burlington?

A. The largest product is lumber.

3419 Q. Mineral products, and live stock also?

A. Very considerable live stock interchanged, and second to lumber in importance is the mineral products.

Q. What has been the effect on the passenger business?

A. It has very greatly increased. While we had a short time ago connection with our regular transcontinental train at Billings, it was uncertain owing to the fact that trains are frequently off time, as long distance trains generally are. We now have a solid train from Kansas City and St. Louis through to the Coast, and it is one of the profitable trains that we 3420 run.

Q. How many trains did you run to the Coast before the Burlington shares were purchased?

A. My impression is that we ran, during the summer months, two; but the rest of the year but one.

Q. Summer two, and winter one. How many have you run since?

A. We are running two through from St. Paul to the Coast and one from St. Louis and Kansas City by way of the Burlington, making three trains west of Billings.

Q. Has this third train taken its business away from the 3421 other two trains, or is it an addition of business?

A. The old trains (so to speak) are paying in excess of what they were when they were the only trains, and the Billings train is paying equal to any of the others.

Q. You are familiar, Mr. Mellen, with the Burlington lines and the general nature of the country reached by them?

A. I am.

Q. What, in your judgment, will be the future of that interchange of business between these roads by the Billings route?

A. I believe it is going to assume very large proportions. I question whether or no the business of the Northern Pacific, 3422 the interchange at Billings, will not be larger than the interchange at St. Paul, within a few years.

Q. Now, Mr. Mellen, is that increase of business which has occurred up to the present time, and future increase which you hope for,—do you refer in that respect to business at present existing and diverted from other lines, or to new business created?

A. I think it is new business created, so far as the Northern Pacific is concerned. I suppose if the towns upon the Burlington line did not secure their lumber from the line of the Northern Pacific they would not go without lumber, they would get it in some direction; but the result of the acquisition of the Burlington road by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern has been to make a market for the lumber of the Northwest country. Where the lumber would have come from, if the Northwest country supply was shut off, I can't say. I regard the lumber business that we interchange with the Burlington road as business made by the connection at Billings. 3423

Q. Mr. Mellen, why does this existing arrangement between these roads tend to create or promote business beyond what a mere connection and joint tariff would have done? 3424

A. It is among the possibilities that a joint tariff and interchange under the same might produce a large business, similar to that perhaps that we are doing now, but it is uncertain and insecure and people who are establishing large industries and seeking a market want to be sure of a secure one, that it may not be subject to the whims of management, that might possibly see in another part of the country a chance to get a few cents more on a carload of freight and divert the lumber business now coming from the state of Washington say to Texas or some other point where a supply could be obtained under a division of rates with the Burlington road. That might make it equally as well for the Burlington road, but at the same time would cause the Northern Pacific a great loss. 3425

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

By Mr. Day:

Q. You say the companies are closer together. What do you mean by that? What have they done? 3426

A. I mean to say there is a very much larger business interchanged between the companies.

Q. What have the companies done?

A. The companies are in exactly the same position they were before.

Q. You said it brought the companies closer together.

3427 A. Well, I meant that it promoted the interchange of business between the two companies.

Q. What has actually transpired, what has been done, what physical changes have been made by reason of the joint ownership of the Burlington?

A. There has been through service as far as the passenger business is concerned; there has been a freer interchange of business; I think there has been a larger business interchanged. I think we have been perhaps less desirous of securing the longest haul upon our traffic, and the Burlington per-3428 haps has been desirous of promoting business with us in preference to shorter hauls in other directions.

Q. Have there been any directions from the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern to the officers of the Burlington?

A. There is no authority on the part of the officers of the Northern Pacific over any officer of the Burlington. The Northern Pacific is simply a stockholder of the Burlington, and any influence that it has it can only exercise at a stockholders' meeting.

Q. Has any instruction gone to anybody as officers of the 3429 Burlington as to what they should do in the way of withdrawing competition for traffic by the way of St. Paul or some other point?

A. I know of no one who could give any instructions to the Burlington except its board of directors.

Q. Then, what thing has been done to change the previous conditions or the previous methods of doing business except that you have put on a through passenger train from Kansas City?

A. We have done a larger business.

Q. I ask you what thing has been done that changed the 3430 conditions that existed before the purchase?

A. The Northern Pacific has become a stockholder, and the officers of the Northern Pacific would naturally feel freer to interchange business and promote business with a line it was interested in than a line with which it had no interest.

Q. You can't name a thing that has been done beyond the acquisition of ownership?

A. Beyond ownership, practically nothing.

Q. You spoke of a market being created that did not exist before. How was it created? 3431

A. Why, the interchange of business was made easier; tariffs were made that would permit the business to be interchanged.

Q. What tariff, and when was the tariff made?

A. Well, I can't call to mind any specific tariffs. I don't personally handle that branch of the business. I know tariffs have been made.

Q. But you are generalizing, and I ask you now for the details,—what it was that was done that makes the difference?

A. Well, there have been tariffs on lumber made; rates have been reduced on lumber. 3432

Q. When?

A. I can't give you specific instances. I will bring you tariffs, if you desire.

Q. No, but you pretend to know and I ask you now for the data, the particular facts that occurred upon which you rest this opinion you are giving here?

A. I have before me from day to day various matters that affect the interchange of business between the Burlington and the Northern Pacific road. I don't specifically charge my mind with any particular tariff, but such tariffs have been made and such business has been interchanged, and the business has been greater than it was before. 3433

Q. Oh, I have no doubt the business has been greater. Prosperity has been greater?

A. Yes.

CHARLES S. MELLEN.

Subscribed and sworn to before the undersigned this 27th day of October, 1902.

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL. 3434
Special Examiner.

Further taking of testimony was thereupon, at request of defendants, adjourned to Nov. 10, 1902, at 11 a. m., in the City of New York, room 70 in the Federal Building in said city.

3435 Subsequent to the foregoing adjournment, it was agreed by and between all the parties hereto that the testimony of E. N. Saunders, a witness for and in behalf of the defendants, might be taken by and before said examiner at his office in the city of St. Paul, at the convenience of the parties and without notice to complainant; that a copy of the testimony of the witness should thereafter be forwarded to complainant for the entry of such objections as might be desired; that said witness should thereafter, at some date to be agreed upon, appear before said examiner for cross-examination.

3436 Thereupon, on the following day, to-wit, October 24th, 1902, at the office of said examiner in the city of St. Paul, Minnesota, the following proceedings were had:

E. N. SAUNDERS, called as a witness on behalf of the defendants, being duly sworn by the examiner, testified as follows:

Examined by Mr. Young:

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Saunders?

A. St. Paul, Minnesota.

Q. What is your business?

3437 A. A miner and distributer of coal.

Q. You are president of the Northwestern Fuel Co?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have principal charge of the business of that company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Through what territory does that company distribute coal?

A. Principally in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Nebraska, and we also distribute in Iowa, Northern Illinois and Wisconsin.

3438 Q. In what places do you have yards for wholesale distributing points?

A. The principal distributing places are at Duluth and West Superior and Washburn (Wisconsin), on Lake Superior, and at Green Bay and Milwaukee on Lake Michigan, and Chicago as a rail distributing point.

Q. How extensive in tonnage is the business of your company in bituminous coal?

A. The Northwestern Fuel Company's distributing tonnage 3439 of bituminous coal is about two million tons annually.

Q. What other concerns are you interested in, or do you have the management of, which are engaged in mining or distributing coal?

A. I am interested in the production of coal in Northern Illinois (a company called the Spring Valley Coal Company), and in a bituminous mining company in Green county, Indiana, and in a bituminous coal mining company in eastern Ohio, and a coal mining company in West Virginia.

Q. How extensive are the mining properties of the Spring Valley Mining Company in Illinois? 3440

A. Their capacity is about five thousand tons daily production.

Q. About how large a field have you?

A. 32,000 acres of Illinois coal, with an average producing capacity of 5,000 tons to the acre; probably a total of undug coal in the ground of 180 millions to 200 millions of tons at that property.

Q. Your present production or output, you say, is about 5,000 tons a day?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is that shipped to, principally? 3441

A. Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and the two Dakotas.

Q. Are you familiar with the mining production of bituminous coal in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio?

A. Yes, sir, quite familiar.

Q. To what extent have your own business operations informed you in regard to the mining business in those states?

A. I have had experience and acquaintanceship with the operation of mines in Ohio and Pennsylvania extending over a period of 25 years. In West Virginia I have been familiar with the operations for a period of about five years. All of 3442 that time I have been closely identified with distributing the products of these various mining interests that I have been interested in.

Q. From what source has been derived the greater part of the bituminous coal which you have distributed in Minnesota along points on the Northern Pacific or Great Northern lines?

A. From Pennsylvania and Ohio, up to within a very short 3443 period. The last five years a considerable quantity has been secured from Virginia. All of which originating from those three states has been brought by rail and lake to these various distributing points for distribution in this northwestern section. Latterly there has been a large and growing distribution of coal from western fields, especially from Illinois.

Q. State whether or not in recent years you have had difficulty in obtaining such supplies as you require of bituminous coal from the eastern coal fields?

A. In the past two years it has been practically impossible to get anything like an adequate supply from those eastern 3444 fields by the original channels, and the country, as a result, has been forced to look to the nearby coal fields for its supply.

Q. What is the cause of that diminution of supply?

A. Inability of the carrying companies engaged in hauling coal from western Pennsylvania, Virginia and Ohio mining districts to move it to Lake Erie ports in adequate quantities. The requirements for transportation on those railroads for supplying their nearby market have been so great that they have been absolutely unable to furnish the motive power or cars to move the supply of coal during the short period or 3445 season of navigation during which it can be moved.

Q. That is, you mean to move it in sufficient quantities?

A. In quantities sufficient to supply the demands of the people depending on the lake distributing points for fuel.

Q. State whether or not the insufficiency of their terminals on those eastern roads is a factor in this diminution of their capacity, or don't you know as to that?

A. Well, I should judge that it was owing to insufficient terminals, insufficient railroad tracks, insufficient power and insufficient cars; general incapacity.

Q. Does that state of things still continue?

3446 A. It has been very much aggravated during the past six months, and to such an extent that we are at this time, the last of October, absolutely unable to accept orders for a car of coal from any one. We have no prospect of securing between now and the close of navigation on the lakes any adequate supply for the territory that is dependent on us.

Q. You are speaking of bituminous coal?

A. Bituminous coal.

Q. State whether, in your judgment, the supply of bituminous coal from the eastern mines is liable to continue to be insufficient to supply the territory through which you distribute coal, especially on the lines of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway. 3447

A. I should think it is. And I base that opinion on the failure of pledges and promises on the part of the managers of roads engaged in moving this coal to the lakes. The demand is constantly increasing; and, while they have increased their facilities to an enormous extent, they have not any more than kept up with what might be termed their local requirements. So that we are in the situation of foreigners, so to speak. They take care of the people near home, and when they have done that they have exhausted their resources. 3448

Q. State whether or not the demand for bituminous coal in this western country, including the territory on the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, has been increasing, and at what rate,—speaking generally?

A. The demand has gradually increased ever since I have been engaged in the business, some 28 years; and for the last five or six years the consumption has increased at least 25 per cent a year. In fact, it has outrun all of our calculations and expectations, and it is evident that this whole northwestern country is up against a very grave problem as to getting an adequate supply of fuel to allow them to go on settling up the country as they have been, and increasing their manufacturing industries, which require fuel, as the foundation stone, unless new and very extensive bases of supply and facilities for moving the fuel can be secured. 3449

Q. What base of supply is there that is adequate?

A. There is only one near-by base, and that is in the State of Illinois. Indiana can be called upon to some extent, although it is almost impossible to get Indiana coal past Chicago. The production there is too limited to even supply Chicago adequately. But there is almost an unlimited supply in Illinois, and a very large development has already taken place in that state. 3450

Q. Are these Illinois coal fields that you speak of anywhere near the line of the Burlington road?

3451 A. There are very large tracts of the Illinois fields tributary to the Burlington road, and also very large tracts that are directly local to the Burlington road or its close-by connection.

Q. When you say directly local to the Burlington, do you mean that are not reached by other roads?

A. Yes, sir; that are wholly located on the Burlington; large mine developments.

Q. How is it with your own mines at Spring Valley with reference to the Burlington road?

A. Well, they are right on the Burlington road, although we 3452 do not market all of our coal on the Burlington. But we have free access and free shipping facilities on the Burlington.

Q. Are you familiar with the general practice in reference to the trans-shipment of coal over several connecting lines from Illinois points up here and to points beyond?

A. Quite familiar.

Q. Heretofore, prior to the year 1901, how has it been with Illinois coal shipped from the mines in that state destined to points beyond St. Paul and Minneapolis?

A. It has been almost impossible to get it through on account of the fact that the C., B. & Q. and other roads who 3453 could haul it to those points have always been unwilling, and in fact have refused to allow their equipment to go through to the destination of the coal, which necessitated transferring it here into the cars of the lines reaching north, to the great injury of the coal and great delay in transit, and with great addition to the cost.

Mr. Grover. What makes the additional cost?

Witness. The labor of transferring and the delays incident to transferring.

Q. State what effect that has upon the coal itself, and whether that effect is greater on Illinois coal than on Eastern 3454 coal?

A. It is damaging to all grades of bituminous coal, and especially to Illinois coal, in that it breaks it up and produces a large amount of screenings and waste, to the great detriment of the purchaser.

Q. What advantage would it be in the transportation and distribution of coal if the cars could go directly from the mines in Illinois to points of destination on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads without breaking bulk?

A. It would make the Illinois fields directly available to the 3455 users of coal on the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, giving the consumers the advantage of that great deposit, with a certainty of their being able to secure their coal supply cheaply and promptly.

Q. Is this Illinois coal of such character that a consumer can put in a large stock of it?

A. It is coal that is not advantageously stocked, as it contains rather more sulphur, is more friable and disintegrates more rapidly than higher classes of coals. But it has an evaporating power which is adequate for all purposes, in comparison with Eastern coal, if used fresh-mined and after being 3456 shipped directly from the mines.

Q. About how far west on the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific do your operations extend?

A. Well, in bituminous coal to the borders of the State of Montana, the western limits of the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Q. Assuming, Mr. Saunders, that this coal can come from the Illinois coal mines up here on the Burlington road and then go out over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific without breaking bulk, on the through tariff (likely to be permanent), what advantage would the consumers of that coal 3457 at the points of destination on these two northern roads gain over and above what they would have if it went in the way it has been going, breaking bulk at St. Paul, and depending on a joint tariff between different roads?

A. In the first place, they would have an assured regular base of supply for a splendid quality of fuel, which they could depend upon; and, in my judgment, it would result in a reduction of the average cost to the consumers of fuel in that territory of 25 per cent.

Q. And this in addition to the advantages of a certain supply?

3458

A. Yes, sir. I meant to convey the idea that it is my opinion that the people in the territory served would secure a saving of 25 per cent in their necessary disbursements for fuel as compared with what they would have if the base of supply was not made available to them. In other words, this opens to the people of a large territory one of the most aggressively competitive fields of coal in the United States, from which heretofore they have been practically cut off.

3459 Q. What, in your judgment, would be the effect of this upon the traffic in coal and the development of the country along these two northern lines and the manufacturing and other business that may be located there?

A. It would greatly encourage the location of manufacturing interests in that territory and make it possible for them to operate successfully, as well as largely enhance the traffic in coal.

Q. State whether or not since the purchase of the Burlington shares by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific there has been any change as to coal cars going through from the 3460 Burlington road to points on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific as to transferring coal from one car to another?

A. There has. We are now allowed to load cars in Illinois and send them to their destination, wherever the buyer lives, on the line of either of those roads, without changing the coal from one car to another, with the result that we are already building up a very extensive trade in that class of coal.

E. N. SAUNDERS.

Subscribed and sworn to before the undersigned this 25th
3461 day of October, 1902.

FREDERICK G. INGERSOLL,
Special Examiner.

Thereafter, the direct testimony of said witness E. N. Saunders, having been reduced to writing, was by said Examiner forwarded to the solicitors for complainant, who thereupon instructed the Examiner to place upon the record the following statement:

"The complainant does not desire to cross-examine the witness E. N. Saunders, whose testimony was taken before the 3462 Examiner at St. Paul, Minn., on the 24th day of October, 1902, but complainant does object to the testimony of said witness Saunders, on the ground that said testimony and all thereof is irrelevant and immaterial."

3463

Office of the Examiner,
St. Paul, Minn., November 3rd, 1902.

Further hearing in this cause having been on the 23d day of October, 1902, adjourned to November 10th, 1902, at the City of New York, now on this 3rd day of November, 1902, at the request and by the consent of all parties hereto, the further hearing is adjourned from said November 10th, 1902, to November 12th, 1902, at Room 70 in the Federal Building in the City of New York.

3464

City of New York, November 12, 1902.

The taking of testimony was resumed before the Special Examiner, in Room 70 Federal Building, at 11 A. M.

All parties were represented.

Mr. Griggs. Mr. Examiner, on behalf of the defendants, I desire to offer in evidence a letter from the Interstate Commerce Commission upon the subject of certain testimony which we desire to introduce. Before formally offering the letter, however, I wish to read, as introductory to it, the following statement:

3465

"Mr. Griggs, of counsel for defendants, states, for the purpose of making proof in this cause, that for years prior to 1890 many of the principal railway companies of the country had acquired all or a majority of the shares of the stock of competing railway companies, or had acquired by purchase or lease the control of parallel and competing lines of railway, and that this state of things was matter of common knowledge, was reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and by it to Congress, and was known to Congress at the time of the passage of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and that Congress did not intend by that act to declare those transactions 3466
—many of them expressly authorized by state legislature—to be illegal, and also for the purpose of showing that the same practice in regard to competing companies and parallel and competing lines has been pursued, with like legislative sanction, and reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission and to Congress, and well known to the executive branch of the government from the passage of the Sherman Act to the

3467 beginning of this suit, without any objection on the part of any branch of the government, thus showing a general practical construction of the Sherman Act as not intended to forbid any such purchases, leases, or ownership of stock of parallel or competing lines, by any railway or other corporation, he did, on the second day of November, 1902, personally request the Interstate Commerce Commission to furnish the defendants with certified copies of so much of the reports made to the commission in each of the years from 1888 to 1901 by the following named railroad companies, as is contained in the following pages of the form of report furnished by the 3468 commission to the companies and by them filled out, sworn to and returned to the commission, viz.:

Pages 1, 4 and 14 of the reports for the year 1888;

Pages 1, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 20 of the reports for the year 1889;

Pages 3, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 38, 39, and the answers to questions 3 and 5 on page 53 in the reports for each of the years 1890 to 1901, both inclusive.

The pages named contain the questions by the commission and the answers of the companies, together with their explanatory remarks on the following matters:

3469 Name of carrier making report, date of organization, and, if consolidated, the names of the constituent companies, with reference to charters, and date and authority for consolidation, and what carrier operates the railroad.

The name, terminals and mileage of each railroad operated by the reporting company, and whether represented by the reporting companies' own capital stock, or roads of proprietary companies whose entire capital stock is owned by the reporting company, or whether operated under lease, with the mileage of each class of road.

The name, terminals and mileage of each railroad whose 3470 income from lease or otherwise is included in the reported income account.

The name of each railway company of which the reporting company owns any of the capital stock, with the amount of such stock owned, its par and its actual value, and the dividends received therefrom, and a like requirement as to all other stocks owned by the reporting company.

All leases, taken or surrendered during the year for which 3471 the report is made.

All consolidations or reorganizations effected during the same period.

All new stocks issued during the same period.

The companies whose reports were embraced in such reports were and are the following:

1. Boston & Maine Railroad Company;
2. New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company;
3. New York Central Railroad Company;
4. Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway Company;
5. Pennsylvania Railroad Company; 3472
6. Pennsylvania Company;
7. Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company;
8. Illinois Central Railroad Company;
9. Southern Railway Company;
10. Southern Pacific Company.

—which request said commission did wholly deny in the letter to him which he now produces and offers in evidence on behalf of the defendants."

It was in response to that request that the letter, which I now offer in evidence, was received.

The letter was marked defendants' Exhibit 10. 3473

Mr. Griggs. I would say further, Mr. Examiner, for the benefit of counsel, that I offer this letter in evidence to show that the request for these reports, which are, as we suppose, public records, was refused; and, being unable to obtain them, we propose now, in order to prove the facts, to follow the matter up by producing the next best obtainable evidence, viz.: the printed publications on this subject obtained from the railroads and verified by the compiler of the publications.

Mr. Richards. Mr. Examiner, you will note that the government objects to the introduction of this testimony on the 3474 ground that it is both incompetent and irrelevant. We will present to the Court our reasons for this objection.

8475 JOHN P. MEANY, called as a witness by the defendants, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Examined by Mr. Young:

Q. Where do you reside?

A. In Brooklyn.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am editor and manager of Poor's Manual of Railroads.

Q. How long have you filled that position?

A. I have been editor since November, 1881.

8476 Q. Are you familiar with the mode in which that book is prepared?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you any connection with Poor's Manual before 1881?

A. Yes, sir. I went there first in 1873.

Q. What was the nature of your relation with it between 1873 and 1881?

A. I was general junior clerk.

Q. To what extent, during that time, were you familiar as to the make-up, the way in which the book was made up?

A. During that time in a general way.

8477 Q. And since 1881 you have been the chief editor?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Having in charge the making up of the book?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you please state in what manner, since you have had any knowledge on the subject, this Poor's Manual has been made up?

Mr. Richards. We desire to object to the testimony of this witness upon all grounds. We insist that what the other side evidently desires to prove by the witness is irrelevant and immaterial; and even if it were relevant and material, they are 8478 not attempting to prove the facts in the proper way.

Mr. Young. The defendants insist that this evidence, in connection with other competent evidence that will be introduced, is material, for the purpose of showing the construction of the Act of Congress of 1890, known as the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and the intention of Congress in passing that act; the main contention in this case being whether the matters of which the defendants are said to have been guilty are matters which are prohibited by that act. Now, as bearing upon the 3479 construction of the Act of Congress, and in support of our contention as to the true construction of the act, we propose to show the facts in regard to the ownership of stock in one railroad company by another, where the lines are competing, and other matters of that kind, which had existed for a great many years prior to the passage of the Sherman Act, and which were known to the public and to Congress, and which had been reported to Congress itself at that time; and among those facts, we propose to show, in a measure, the extent of that practice and of the knowledge of Congress in regard to it. We propose to show that as early as the year 1840 three rail- 3480 road companies were incorporated in the states of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine to build a line of interstate railway from Boston to Portland: the Eastern Railroad of Massachusetts, the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire, and the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroad Company. About that time the Boston and Maine Railroad Company was incorporated in Massachusetts to build a railroad from Boston to Maine. Long before the passage of the anti-trust act, the Boston and Maine had itself first leased those parallel and competing lines, and afterwards practically absorbed all of them. So, again, some years before the passage of the anti- 3481 trust act, the West Shore Railroad extended from Weehawken in New Jersey to Buffalo, with ferry connections to New York, and was a competing line with the New York Central. That line was leased by the New York Central, and its entire capital stock of ten million dollars was acquired by the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company; and that was a matter of common knowledge and known to Congress when it passed the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. In like manner, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern road, extending from Buffalo to Chicago, formed, with the New York Central and other 3482 roads, at Buffalo, a line of interstate railway between New York and Chicago. About the year 1881, a rival and competing line, the New York, Chicago & St. Louis, known as the Nickel Plate Line, was projected and built between Buffalo and Chicago, having the same connections and opportunities for interstate traffic that the Lake Shore itself had, and was a rival and actually competing line; and the majority of the 3483 capital stock of that company was acquired as early as 1883 or 1884 by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad Company, thus making from New York to Chicago a series of parallel and competing lines, where the stock of one system, or a majority of it, was owned by the railroad which controlled the other system. In like manner the principal highways of interstate commerce between the cities of New York and Philadelphia were originally a parallel railroad and canal; the Camden & Amboy Railroad, and the Delaware & Raritan Canal, chartered by the state of New Jersey prior to the year 1840. Prior to 1871, those systems had become closely united 3484 in operation with the road of the New Jersey Railroad & Transportation Company from Jersey City to Trenton, and the road from Trenton to Philadelphia known as the Philadelphia and Trenton. In 1871 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company leased perpetually all of those parallel and competing lines, and has ever since operated them between New York and Philadelphia. Prior to the year 1870 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company had a substantially perpetual lease of the railroad from Pittsburg to Chicago, known as the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad, and was built by that company.

3485 It also owned the entire stock of a railway leading from Pittsburg, known as the Pittsburg, Cincinnati & St. Louis, which among its other lines had a line from Pittsburg to a point known as Bradford Junction, in the state of Indiana, I think it was, where it connected with a line which itself leased, known as the Chicago, St. Louis & Pittsburg, or at least at some time known by that name, which extended from Bradford Junction to Chicago; and the entire stock of that Pittsburg, Cincinnati & St. Louis Road was owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. In 1870 the Pennsylvania Railroad Company caused to be incorporated in the state of Pennsyl-3486 vania a holding and operating company, known as the Pennsylvania Company, to which it transferred its leases and its holdings of stock in the lines west of Pittsburg. At the time of the organization of the Pennsylvania Company and the transfer to it by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company of its leases and stock holdings west of Pittsburg, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in consideration of such transfer, acquired and has ever since held the entire capital stock of the holding and operating company—the Pennsylvania Company.

Now, all of those are matters which existed at the time of 3487 the passage of the Act of 1890. And since then the Boston & Maine Railroad has gone on with the same policy of leasing and acquiring stock of parallel and competing lines, including the Boston & Lowell, with its connections—the Concord & Montreal, the Northern Railroad of New Hampshire, the Central Railroad of Vermont, the Connecticut & Passumpsic, the Fitchburg Railroad, with its lessor—the Vermont & Massachusetts, and other lines—the result of which is that the Boston & Maine has acquired at least four of what were originally parallel and competing lines between the cities of Boston and Montreal and Quebec, and also at least two par- 3488
allel and competing lines between Boston and the West, and still holds and operates them. And in like manner, the New York & New Haven Railroad Company, originally chartered to build and which did build a road from New York to New Haven of ninety miles—and the only road which it ever built, —afterward became consolidated with the New Haven, Hartford and Springfield Railroad Company, under the name it has ever since borne, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Road; and it has by a series of similar leases, acquisitions of stock, or purchases outright from other railroad companies, acquired 3489 a series of competing lines between Boston and New York—all rail lines, and lines of rail and water transportation, so that in point of fact a person cannot go by anything like a direct road from Boston to New York without going over one or the other of the roads which were originally parallel and competing, but which have been acquired in one of the different ways before stated by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. Among other acquisitions of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, they acquired a majority of or substantially all the stock of the New York & New England road—a parallel line which controlled one line of transporta- 3490
tion on Long Island Sound (that from Norwich to New York); and by their acquisition of the Old Colony Railroad, through substantially a perpetual lease, and the ownership of a very large portion of its stock, secured a controlling interest in the Old Colony Steamship Company, and also the stock of the steamers running from Providence and Stonington to New York.

3491 Now, coming to the state of New York, we find that the New York Central & Hudson River road has also acquired the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg road by substantially a perpetual lease—which with its connections had been a direct competitor and rival of that company. And within a very few years the New York Central Company has acquired ninety-five per cent of the stock of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Company, and substantially the same amount of the stock of the Michigan Central Railroad Company, which, with its lessor company, the Canada Southern Company, operates 3492 a line from Buffalo to Chicago, being naturally and originally a competing line both with the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and the Nickel Plate. So we have from New York City to Chicago, the New York Central controlling by stock ownership this series of roads which were its natural competitors.

And so in the case of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Within a very short time, I think in the year 1899 or 1900, it acquired a controlling interest in the Baltimore & Ohio. The Pennsylvania road for many years had owned substantially all the stock of the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroad Company, whose line extended from Philadelphia to Balti-
3493 more; and of the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad Company, whose line extended from Baltimore to Washington; and it operated these lines, and these lines from New York and Philadelphia made a through line from New York to Washington. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has owned a line for many years from Baltimore to Washington, and has operated other railroads for some years past, making a through line from New York to Washington, and beyond Washington. And in the West and Southwest the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has had a line which touches all the principal points reached by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and competes 3494 with the Pennsylvania at Pittsburg, Cleveland, Sandusky, Wheeling, Chicago, Louisville, and St. Louis, to say nothing of other points. The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company has also been very much in the same position in regard to the Pennsylvania Railroad as the Baltimore & Ohio has been. The same is true to some extent of the Norfolk & Western Railroad. And within the last three years, I think it is, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has acquired, if not a majority at least very near that amount of the capital stock of each 3495 one of these railroads operating parallel and competing lines. So to-day no official of the Government can go in or out of the city of Washington without riding over a railroad which is operated and controlled by some other railroad company also having parallel and competing lines going to the same place. That is true to-day and has been for some years.

Now, we say that many of these matters have been neces sarily well known, during all this period, to all the officers of the Government, both before and since the passage of the Anti-Trust Act. And they were done under the authority of state legislation which is plainly unconstitutional if these acts 3496 are restraints upon interstate commerce. Consequently we say that all of these matters are to be taken into consideration in determining, first, what congress intended by the passage of the act; and, secondly what the universal construction of the act has been since that time. And on these grounds we claim that the testimony is material. The question of its competency, of course, will be reserved until a later period.

Mr. Richards. Mr. Examiner, I do not intend to present in detail the objection of the government to the introduction of the testimony now offered, but the statement made by 3497 opposing counsel compels me to say a word in reply. The so-called Sherman Anti-Trust Act was passed on July 2d, 1890. It provides that "every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal." It was for some years doubtful whether this act did or did not apply to the railways of the country. The railways had for years been in the habit of entering into contracts affecting rates and fares on competitive traffic. This practice which prevailed before the passage of the anti-trust law was assailed in what was known as the 3498
Trans-Missouri Freight Association case. That case was begun when Mr. Miller was attorney general, to have declared illegal and void and to enjoin the execution of a contract between the railroads west of the Mississippi river, fixing and maintaining rates and fares on competitive interstate traffic. The case was argued by Attorney General Harmon, during the second Cleveland administration, and was decided in 1897.

3499 The Supreme Court in that case held that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law did apply to railways; and it declared the contract mentioned illegal and void. But the decision of that case did not conclusively establish the fact that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law applied to the railroads, because at that time a case was pending, known as the case of the United States against the Joint Traffic Association, which by both the lower courts had been decided against the United States. That case was argued before the Supreme Court early in the administration of President McKinley. It was a case growing 3500 out of an association of the trunk line systems east of Chicago, to fix and maintain rates and fares on competitive interstate traffic. In the argument before the Supreme Court both the constitutionality of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law and its application to the railways of the country were again argued and assailed. So it was really not definitely determined until after the decision of that case that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law as applied to railroads is constitutional, and in fact that the law does apply to railroads. That case was decided in 1898, when Mr. Griggs was attorney general of the United States. Now, the present suit is one brought against the Northern 3501 Securities Company, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway Companies, and certain stockholders of these two corporations. The position of the government is that in the formation of the Northern Securities Company in the way it was formed, there was a contract or combination made in restraint of interstate and foreign trade. In the answer of the defendants it is insisted that there was no contract or combination made in restraint of such trade. That is a proper defence, and I have no objection to any testimony tending to sustain it. But it is further urged, on the side of the defence, that if there was a contract or combination made 3502 in restraint of trade, other railway companies have been and are guilty of doing substantially the same thing. Now, is that any defence? If other railway companies did in any way enter into contracts or combinations in restraint of trade among the several states before the passage of the anti-trust act, can it fairly be claimed that the anti-trust act was not intended to apply to such contracts or combinations? The inference is clearly the other way. If before the passage of the

Sherman Anti-Trust Act railroad companies did in any way 3503 enter into combinations in restraint of interstate trade, and in interference with the freedom of such trade, then we must assume that congress intended to prohibit any such contracts or combinations in the future. But if we proceed further and enter into the investigation of the history of railroads since 1890, is it any defence to say that because other railways have entered into contracts or combinations in restraint of trade, for which they have not been prosecuted, that therefore the court must hold that under the law these defendants cannot be prosecuted? I would like the gentlemen to show where they find any reason or authority for such 3504 a defence. Can a man charged with an offence when brought into court plead as a defence that others have been guilty of like acts? Or, if men temporarily in charge of the interests of the United States, fail to prosecute violations of law, fail to institute suits to declare null and void combinations in restraint of interstate trade, is the law therefore, by construction, deemed to be modified or nullified? That would be a speedy and expeditious method of abrogating the will of congress. It would be a new way of amending the law or of wiping out the law—simply to fail to enforce it. I believe that the Sherman Anti- 3505 Trust Law has been enforced so far as it could be in the regular and orderly way. One question must be determined at a time, and it never was conclusively settled that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law applies to railways until the decision in the Joint Traffic Association case. And as soon as this particular combination was formed and the matter had been carefully investigated and passed upon by the Department of Justice, this suit was brought. Now, it is an entirely proper defence to attempt to show that there is not here any contract or combination in restraint of interstate trade. But I object to lumbering up the record in this case and endeavoring to mislead 3506 the public and befog the mind of the court by lugging into the case the entire railroad history of the country—as if the effect of a decision in favor of the United States in this proceeding would be to disrupt and disorganize the railroad systems of the country. I insist that no such result would follow. Even if the gentlemen could show that there was another case precisely on all fours with this, where a holding corporation had been created by two parallel and competing lines, or their stockholders, for the purpose of taking over the controlling interest of both, and placing both under the control of one corporation—even if they could show that there existed another case on all fours with this (a thing they cannot do), still it would be no defence. Fair-minded men might insist, and I am willing to concede, that it would be the duty of the government to bring a prosecution if such a case were shown. But here we are to have unloaded onto us the railroad history of the country from the beginning, and it is to be insisted, in argument before the court, that every time a railroad, by lease or consolidation, or purchase of stock, took in a connecting line, that a case arose on all fours with this. And how can the court determine whether a case arose on all fours with this or not? Are we to try before this court every case of lease or consolidation or purchase of stock that has occurred in the development of the railway systems of the country, and as to each investigate and determine (because that is what we would have to do) whether the lines were parallel and competing, and whether they were engaged in interstate traffic, and whether the particular act amounted to a contract or combination in restraint of trade within the meaning of the Sherman Act? It would be simply interminable.

I do not object to the gentlemen on the other side presenting to the court, in argument, such historical facts as will enable the court to determine the conditions and circumstances congress had in mind when this law was passed. I do not object to the gentlemen referring in argument to the railroad history of the country. I think the court has a right to take judicial notice of that. I think it will take judicial notice of it. But I do object to this kind of evidence—to the incorporation into the record of this mass of immaterial matter.

Mr. Young. I regret that in my statement I did not succeed in making counsel for the government understand wherein this evidence is deemed by us to be material. Of course, if we admit that we have done things which are forbidden by the Anti-Trust Act, it is no excuse and no defence that every other company or person in the United States has done the same thing. But the main question is, Are the things which we are charged with doing forbidden by the Anti-Trust Act? That is the question. It is not whether we 3511 are to be exonerated because other people have done these things; but the question on which this evidence is offered, and the material question in the case is, Are they within the Anti-Trust Act? Now, it is said that the two cases in the Supreme Court settled everything in regard to railroad companies. Suppose they did. We are not a railroad company, never had anything to do with the operation of railroads. The question of the purchase of the stock of two competing railroads by a third company has never been before the Supreme Court of the United States and is an open question today, at least so far as any federal court is concerned. It is 3512 said, "You are charged with an agreement in restraint of trade." Wherein is the purchase of the stock of a railway company in restraint of trade? They say, "You have bought stock in two competing railroad companies, and, because you have, that is in restraint of trade." But the Solicitor General argues that if one railroad company should buy the stock in another competing railroad company, somehow that is not in restraint of trade, but would involve a great deal of investigation and examination to find out whether it really restrained trade or not. 3513

But our position in regard to that, even in regard to purchases by railroad companies of stock in competing companies, or their control of such companies by leases, or anything of that kind, is that the mere general language of the act of congress does not cover them? Congress knew, in 1890, that the railroad systems of the country rested on such combinations, and that to declare them void would make them valueless and illegal, and would make hundreds of millions of dollars of stocks and bonds absolutely worthless. Congress never intended by the act of 1890, by such general terms, to strike such a blow at the railroad and investing interests of 3514 the country.

